I cannot agree with this pastor, because he would place churchianity before Christianity (not, however, perhaps avowedly). He does not realize that the lodge is anti-Christ, seeking the destruction of Christianity, and is capable of adapting itself to modern churchianity for the accomplishment of its purpose. Nothing but the Bible truth about Masonry, and other lodgery, accompanied by the Holy Ghost sent down from heaven, can destroy the venomous beast, lodgery.

W. FENTON.

FROM THE EASTERN AGENT.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 20, 1893.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—I reached the Iron City Wednesday night, and yesterday consulted the State president and committee regarding the calling of the next State Convention. The latter part of February appears to be the opportune time. I hope to be able to announce the place and part of the speakers next week.

An especially large number of those here who have supported the principles of the N. C. A. advocates have passed from their earthly pilgrimage during the year closed; but those who remain of the old guard, and those who are coming forward to carry on the work of Christ, appear to be in good heart and ready to again come up to the help of the Lord against the mighty.

Leaving home one week ago, I stopped for a short visit with Bro. I. Gable and friends at Stewartstown, Pa. I found this aged brother none the less interested in the Lord's work as he realized the number of his days here shortening. Bro. Gable's health has not been good. Shall we not pray, if it is the Lord's will, that he may be spared to testify for the truth many years yet?

At Highland, not far from Harrisburg, I found an opportunity to preach the word on Sabbath. I was glad to learn that the seed sown here in other days had not been without fruit.

It was reported that seven gave up their lodges after listening to my lectures some years since. I regretted to learn that some belonging to the church in which I spoke still cling to their lodges.

Brothers John White and Wm. Smeltzer made my stop here specially pleasant. They gave as the Lord had prospered them in aid of our work, as usual.

A blessed hour was spent in company with Brother White at the prayer meeting, on Saturday evening. Some new subscriptions to the Cynosure were secured.

At Chambersburg and Fayetteville I found revival meetings in progress. Friends there will be glad to arrange for lectures later. May the Lord bless and carry forward his work, is my prayer.

W. B. STOPPARD.

THE HOME.

THE NAME HIGH OVER ALL.

Jesus! the name high over all,
In hell, or earth, or sky;
Angels and men before it fall,
And devils fear and fly.

Jesus! the name to sinners dear,
The name to sinners given;
It scatters all their guilty fear;
It turns their hell to heaven.

Jesus the prisoner's fetters breaks,
And bruises Satan's head;
Power into strengthless he speaks,
And life into the dead.

Oh, that the world might taste and see
The riches of his grace!
The arms of love that compass me
Would all mankind embrace.

His only righteousness I show,
His saving truth proclaim:
'Tis all my business here below,
To cry, "Behold the Lamb!"

Happy, if with my latest breath
I may but gasp his name;
Preach him to all, and cry in death,
"Behold, behold the Lamb!"

—Charles Wesley.

"BLEST BE THE THIEF THAT BINDS."

This hymn has been in general use for over a hundred years. It has been called "the best poetical expression of the sentiment of Christian brotherhood in the English language." It was written in 1772, by the Rev. John Fawcett, an English Baptist, of Yorkshire. At the age of sixteen he heard Mr. Whitfield preach, and under that sermon he was converted. He went into the ministry of the Baptist church, and with such zeal and far-reaching sympathy as gave him blessed results.

After serving a little Yorkshire church for seven years he was called to an important church in London. He preached his farewell sermon, packed his goods in wagons and was ready to go. His loving people gathered about him, and "men, women and children clung around him and his family in perfect agony of soul." Greatly affected by these expressions of sorrow, Dr. Fawcett and his wife sat down on one of the packing-cases and wept bitterly.

Finally Mrs. Fawcett exclaimed: "O John, John, I cannot bear this! I know not how to go."

"Nor I, either," said the good man; "nor will we go. Unload the wagons and put everything in place where it was before."

The decision was hailed with tears of joy, and a letter of explanation was sent to London. He then took up again his Yorkshire work, receiving a salary of less than two hundred dollars a year. He wrote the hymn as a memorial of this experience.—Christian Witness.

A SENTENCE FOR WOMEN TO READ.

When I see women stay indoors the entire forenoon because their morning dresses trail the ground, and indoors all afternoon because there comes up a shower, and the walking dress would soak and drabble; or when I see the "working woman" standing at the counter or at the teacher's desk from day to dark, in the drenched boots and damp stockings which her muddy skirts, flapping from side to side, have compelled her to endure; when I see her, a few weeks thereafter, going to Dr. Clark, for treatment, as a consequence; when I find after the most patient experiment, that, in spite of stout rubbers, waterproof gaiters, and dress skirt three or four inches from the ground, an "out-of-door" girl is compelled to a general change of clothing each individual time that she returns from her daily walks in the summer rain; when I see a woman climbing upstairs with her baby in one arm, and its bowl of bread and milk in the other, and see her tripping on her dress at every stair (if, indeed, baby, bowl, bread, milk and mother do not go down in universal chaos, it is only from the efforts of long skill and experience on the part of the mother in performing that acrobatic feat); when physicians tell me what fearful jars and strains these sudden jerks of the body from stumbling on the dress impose upon a woman's intricate organism, how much less injurious to her a direct fall would be than this start and rebound of nerve and muscle, and how the strongest man would suffer from such accidents; and when they further assure me of the amount of calculable injury wrought upon our sex by the weight of skirting brought upon the hips, and by thus making the seat of all the vital energies the pivot of motion and center of endurance; when I see women's skirts, the shortest of them, lying (when they sit down) inches deep along the foul floors, which man, in delicate appreciation of our concessions to his fancy in such respects, has inundated with tobacco juice, and from which she sweeps up and carries to her home the germs of stealthy pestilences; when I see a ruddy, romping school-girl in her first long dress, beginning to avoid coasting on her double-runner, or afraid of the stone walls in the blueberry fields, or standing aloof from the game of ball, or turning sadly away from the ladder which her brother is climbing to the cherry tree, or begging him to assist her over the gunwale of a boat; when I read of the sinking of steamers at sea, with nearly all the women and children on board, and the accompanying comments, "Every effort was made to assist the women up the masts and out of danger till help arrived, but they could not climb, and we were forced to leave them to their fate;" or when I hear the wail with which a million lips take up the light words of the loafer on the Portland wharf, when the survivors of the Atlantic filed past him, "Not a woman among them all!"—when I consider these things, I feel that I have ceased to deal with blunders in dress, and have entered the category of crimes.—Elizabeth Stuart Phelps.

HOW TO PROSPER.

Upward of thirty years ago, when David Maydole was a roadside blacksmith at Norwich, New York, six carpenters came to the village from the next county to work upon a new church. One of them, having left his hammer behind, came to the blacksmith's to get one made, there being none which gave satisfaction in the village store.

"Make me a good one," said the carpenter—"as good a one as you know how."

"But," said the young blacksmith, who had already considered hammers, and had arrived at some notion of what a hammer ought to be, and had a proper contempt for cheapness in all its forms, "perhaps you don't want to pay for as good a hammer as I can make?"

"Yes, I do; I want a good hammer." And so David Maydole made a good hammer that perfectly satisfied the carpenter. The next day, the man's five companions came, and each of them wanted just such a hammer, and when they were done the employer came and ordered two more. Next the storekeeper of the village ordered two dozen, which were bought by a New York tool merchant, who left standing orders for as many such hammers as David Maydole could make. And from that day to this he has gone on making hammers, until now he has one hundred and fifteen men at work. He has never pushed, he has never borrowed, he has never tried to compete with others in price, because other men had done so. His only care has been to make a perfect hammer, to make as many such as people wanted and no more, and to sell them at a fair price.

Boys, whatever you undertake, do it perfectly, with your might (Ecc. 9:10), and you will succeed.—The Sunlight.

PERSONALITIES.

Keep clear of personalities in general conversation. Talk of things, objects, thoughts. The smallest minds occupy themselves with personalities. Personalities must sometimes be talked, because we have to learn and find out men's characteristics for legitimate objects; but it is to be with confidential persons. Do not needlessly report ill of others. There are times when we are compelled to say, "I do not think Bouncer is a true and honest man;" but when there is no need to express an opinion, let poor Bouncer swagger away. Others will take his measure, no doubt, and save you the trouble of analyzing him and instructing them. And as far as possible, dwell on the good side of human beings. There are family boards where a constant process of depreciating, assigning motives and cutting up of character goes forward. They are not pleasant places. One who is healthy does not wish to dine at a dissecting table. There is evil enough in man, God knows; but it is not the mission of every young man or woman to detail and report it all. Keep the atmosphere as pure as possible and fragrant with gentleness and charity.—Rev. John Hall, D. D.

DO YOU EVER?

Do you ever visit the sick?
Do you ever feed the hungry?
Do you ever have family prayer?
Do you ever pray for your enemies?
Do you ever pray for your minister?
Do you ever think of seeking holiness?
Receive any answers to your prayers?
Do you ever lend any souls to Christ?
Do you ever spend an hour alone with God?
Do you ever deny yourself for Jesus' sake?
Do you ever ask a blessing before meals?
Do you ever make any inroads on the devil's kingdom?
Do you ever invite anyone to prayer meeting or church?
Do you ever displease Jesus by standing idle in his vineyard?
Do you ever do anything that your conscience condemns?
Do you ever think you might be in the wrong as well as others?
Do you ever weep with Jesus over the erring, sinful souls of men?
Do you ever think that to give less than a tenth of your income to God is robbery?
Do you ever grumble or find fault with those who are earnestly laboring for souls?
Do you ever think that any other life than that of self-denial will admit you into the fold of Christ?

THE PREFERENCES OF CHILDREN.

There was once a little girl, dark-eyed and intense, who, now that she is a white-haired woman, remembers how unhappy she was made during a whole winter by being compelled to wear a certain odd-looking cloak to school. The cloak was warm and comfortable; it was also quaintly pretty; but it was not in the fashion. A thrifty mother, in anticipation of a mode that actually came into vogue twenty years later, manufactured the little maid's cloak out of a gay tartan shawl, matching the brilliant plaids with precision, and trimming sleeves and collar and the garment's hem with long, knotted fringe. It was really a very striking garment.

The cloak was wadded and lined and quilted. It was a marvel of comfort.

But the child who wore it was wretched, feeling herself a target for every eye, knowing that whole Gertrude of people would say: "That comes Gertrude. She has that odd plaid woolen cloak on, made out of a shawl. Fancy!" She fretted and fumed and cried over her cloak; rubbed against rails to tear it and against paint to spot it, with only one burning wish, like fire in her veins, that some fortunate fate would separate her and her torment. The cloak gave the child a miserable winter.

All this was forty years ago, when parents felt that "discipline must be maintained." Secretly, the mother lamented the hour when she had invested her little one in the clothing which had proved so great a trial, but she felt that it would be weak and silly to indulge Gertrude by the purchase of another cloak. She feared, too, to encourage vanity. The cloak was not laid aside till the snows melted and the spring came. Over the gulf of two score years the child, herself the mother of girls, keenly recalls the experiences of that winter, and in her own practice always consults her children's preferences in choosing their clothing. They are allowed to exercise their own taste as to colors and shapes, the mother wisely recognizing the fact that once arrayed to their liking, they will think little more about the matter.

Should not childish preferences have the same respect shown them which we courteously accord to the wishes and sentiments, even to the random caprices, of those who are mature in years and judgment? A child's aversion is far more sedulously cultivated, his self-consciousness and consequent awkwardness far more certainly insured, by exalting clothing into a concern of great importance and by ignoring a child's expressed fancies, than by treating the whole thing as of comparatively small account.—Bazar.

A MESSAGE FROM THE DEAD.

"He, being dead, yet speaketh!" This was said of the first martyr, by the apostle Paul, in the muster-roll of the knights of faith. He had reference to the influence of Abel's life and death. Literally, now, it may be said of one noted character (Browning), "he, being dead, yet speaketh." Says the Independent:

"When Browning had passed away, Colonel Gouraud, of Edison-phonograph celebrity, remembered that one night, at the painter Rudolph Lehmann's house, Browning had spoken into a phonograph. The cylinder had been laid up at Edison House, and exactly a year after the poet's death, Colonel Gouraud, Mr. Furnival, and myself and wife were lunching together, and the colonel proposed that he would repair to Edison house and take out the wax cylinder.

"Then, for the first time, was heard the voice of a dead man—Browning's cheery 'Ready?' And shortly afterwards his voice repeated the opening lines of the famous Ride to Ghent. Of course the thing could not be done in a corner, and very soon Colonel Gouraud was besieged by Browning's friends and admirers, all naturally anxious to hear their master's voice again. I consented to lend my drawing-room at Queen's House, and the experiment was renewed in the presence of some hundreds of friends, and proved a complete success."

UNCLE TOM'S CABIN AT THE FAIR.

With a history based wholly on tradition a little log structure now standing on a Red river plantation in Louisiana is about to be removed to Chicago and placed on exhibition as "Uncle Tom's cabin".

The tradition that tells the story of the cabin that is coming to Chicago says that in 1850 there lived, on an old plantation at Natchitoches, on the Red river, a planter, named Robert McAlpine, said to have been an exceedingly intemperate person and brutal to his slaves.

Because McAlpine lived in a residence with a double row of China trees in front of it, with a wide, double verandah around it, and for the reason that Mrs. Stowe describes Legree's house as one of this kind when she is telling the story of Uncle Tom's arrival at his new home, immediately after his purchase by Legree from the St. Clair estate, the residents of that vicinity have put "two and two" together and hit upon a verdict that the old McAlpine plantation is none other than the Legree plantation of her story, and that a certain log cabin on it was Uncle Tom's. Legree died before the war, and the plantation fell into the hands of Mr. S. Chopin, the present wealthy owner, who has religiously guarded this cabin as a treasure, and for years he has employed a man for the simple purpose of guarding it from the vandalism of relic seekers. It is on the line of the Texas & Pacific railway, and is generally pointed out as Uncle Tom's cabin.

"GO BECAUSE IT RAINS."

"I suppose that you won't go to Sabbath-school to-day, Lucy?" said a mother, one stormy Sabbath, settling herself to read.

"Please let me go to-day, mamma; I want to go because it rains."

"Why, Lucy, that is my excuse for staying at home. How can you make it a reason for going?"

"Our teacher always goes, mamma, in all weather, although she lives so far away. She told the class that one Sabbath, when she went through the storm, and did not find even one scholar, she was so discouraged that she could not help crying. She asked us, too, if we did not go to our day schools in the rainy weather; and she said, while we must obey our parents, if we ask them pleasantly to let us go, they would likely be willing. Mamma, will you please let me go to-day?"

"Well, I am willing, my dear, if you wear your suit. Go and get ready."

But the mother no longer took any interest in her book, but said to her husband (a lawyer), who came in from the library, "Lucy is going to Sabbath-school to-day because it rains, so that her teacher may be encouraged by the presence of, at least, one pupil. Suppose we go to the chapel for the same reason, if not for a better."

"Agreed. I never could plead a cause to an empty court room, and the minister must find it hard work to preach to empty pews."

TEMPERANCE.

'TIS TRUE AS TRUTH.

My boys, come listen while I teach
A lesson true as truth,
A lesson that you all should learn
By heart in early youth.
'Tis this, there's naught upon the earth
That hapless home can cheer,
Where but five cents is spent for bread
To fifty spent for beer.

The wife and mother, though she be
As patient as the best,
Wears on her face a look that tells
Of nights unknown to rest.
The children shiver oft with cold,
And tremble oft with fear,
Where but five cents is spent for bread
To fifty spent for beer.

The holidays bring but fresh grief,
Fresh want, and added care,
And while, around it, happy songs
And laughter fill the air,
The sound of curses, sighs, and sobs
Is all that one can hear,
Where but five cents is spent for bread
To fifty spent for beer.

And boys, I beg you, let my words
On fruitful soil be sown,
So when you've left your boyhood's days
And are to manhood grown,
No one can speak of homes you've made
As places poor and drear,
Where but five cents is spent for bread
To fifty spent for beer.

—Detroit Free Press.

TWO WAYS OF WORKING.

Bro. Hipp sends us, in circular form, resolutions passed by the Rocky Mountain Baptist Association, Oct. 13, 1892. They condemn license in strong language, and endorse the Prohibition party as "the only political party which has expressed itself squarely in opposition to the liquor traffic, etc., and adds:—

"Resolved, While not presuming to dictate how any individual shall vote, we yet deliberately affirm the great principle.....of open hostility toward the saloon.

"Resolved, That we recommend to the members of our churches....that they give their votes....to the Prohibition party."....

On the opposite side of the circular is given the attitude of the liquor men, as given in The Bar, a liquor paper. After alluding to the danger of prohibition, it says:—

"The old parties are our friends; and for the last thirty years they have held the reins of government, and during all this time our business has prospered and increased beyond our most sanguine expectations. As long as they control we are safe. Depose one or both of them, and we might as well hang our harps on the willow tree, for our vocation will be gone.

"Our duty is plain,—keep both parties in the field; divide the spoils of office between them; prevent the hopeless defeat of either.

"We have the power to do this. Let us use it with fear and trembling; for one blunder, one false step, may precipitate our ruin."

On the part of the liquor men "eternal vigilance" and success; on the part of the church, resolutions made for effect, which are immediately broken by nine-tenths of their members, who vote with the rum-seller and help him carry out his plans. If the Rocky Mountain Baptists vote for prohibition, all right; if they do not, their resolutions are absolutely worthless and misleading.

All the denominations have passed resolutions of a similar tenor, and have repeated them year after year.

Methodist.—"The liquor traffic can never be legalized without sin."

Presbyterian.—"It is the duty of all Christians to use every legitimate means to bring about national, local and universal prohibition."

Baptist.—"We reaffirm our earnest protest against the liquor traffic in any form."

Congregationalist.—"Prohibition is the only effective way of banishing the liquor traffic."

Disciples.—"We are pledged to the cause of legal prohibition of the rum traffic."

Lutheran.—"We heartily indorse and pledge our continued support to the present prohibitory law."

And yet they march steadily to the polls in aid of the program laid down by the liquor men.—N. Y. Church Militant.

THE DISEASE OF DRINKING.

The disease of drinking among women is fully confirmed by the facts of heredity. In families of moderate and excessive drinking parents, the girls rarely become inebriates, while the boys, as a rule, develop the parents' maladies.

Numerous instances like the following are within the common observation of every one: One or both parents may use wine on the table daily. The father may use wine to excess, at intervals or continuously, and the mother be a nervous and neurotic woman. The boys will drink to excess, sooner or later, and the girls will have a defective nervous system, and turn to narcotics for relief, using opium, chloral or other drugs.

The children of these girls will develop inebriety and similar diseases, from the slightest exposure. Alcoholism may appear in the female side, but it will be exceptionally, and naturally merge into drug-taking or other disease. It may appear in a paroxysmal form, and apparently start from irregularities of life and living, but it will always be found associated with nerve and brain defects.

The direct alcoholic heredity running through the male line is changed and diverted in the female side. This heredity always leaves the females with defective vital force and unstable brain vigor, also with weak power of control. The strain of the reproductive period brings on central exhaustion, with a strong tendency to organic disease. The female neurotic may use alcohol for the exhilaration which it brings, but only until she discovers some other drug with more pleasing effects.

The emancipation of women from the slavery of caste and ignorance, and the steady upward movement in mental and physical development, will prevent any general increase of alcoholism or inebriety. Psychological drink-waves may come and go, and tides of degenerative immigrants may bring an increase of inebriety for a brief time, but remedial forces will quickly neutralize and readjust the race march from the lower to the higher.

Many causes which seemingly are very active in Europe, increasing the number of female inebriates, do not exist here. Inebriety over there is a condition more or less fixed; here it is an accident and an incident constantly changing.—T. D. Crothers, in the North American Review.

SET DOWN THAT GLASS.

There is death in it. It contains ardent spirits, and it will destroy you.

"One glass will not destroy me," you say.

So said the man whom you saw drunk on the floor. So said the wretch whom you saw on the gallows, for committing murder while intoxicated. And so you will say until you become like them.

Set down that glass. I speak not to the drunkard, for he will not mind me. I speak not to the man who already loves strong drink so much as to think it necessary for his comfort or his health. I speak to the man who is yet free.

Set down the glass. There is death in it. Will you drink it? What urges you to do it?

"I am my own master," say you?

Then let not strong drink become your master. I beseech you to stop this boasting or you are undone.

Set down that glass. Taste it no more.—American Tract Society.

Please renew your subscription now.

BIBLE LESSON.

STUDIES IN THE OLD TESTAMENT.

LESSON VI.—First Quarter, 1893.—February 5.

SUBJECT.—Dedicating the Temple.—Ezra 6:14-22.

GOLDEN TEXT.—I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go into the house of the Lord—Psalm 122:1.

[Open the Bible and read the lesson.]

DAILY READINGS.—M.—Ezra 6:14-22. T.—Ezra 6:1-12. W.—2 Chron. 7:1-11. T.—Eph. 2:13-22. F.—Rom. 12:1-9. S.—Psalm 84. S.—Psalm 122.

COMMENTS BY E. E. FLAGG.

1. The temple finished.—vs. 14, 15. It was nineteen years from the time the foundations were laid before the temple was finished. The enemies of the work wrote letters to Darius asking that search be made for the edict of Cyrus giving permission to the Jews to build. They doubtless hoped and believed that no such record could be found; but the result effectually thwarted all their schemes, for the document was brought to light—not in Babylon, but in the distant province of Media, where, had they remained quiet, it might have been forever undiscovered. Darius was a great admirer of Cyrus, who was his father-in-law, which may account for his confirming the decree at once with so many additional marks of favor. This is an illustration of the way in which the adversaries of good often defeat themselves. Let all who are laboring in the cause of reform take to heart the encouraging lesson, that however wily the plots laid by the enemy, God can and will use them as instruments to work out his own divine purpose. "And they prospered through the prophesying of Haggai the prophet and Zechariah the son of Iddo." They gave fresh heart and courage to the people. This is one of the most important offices of a true preacher—to encourage the children of God, not by prophesying smooth things, not by crying peace, peace, when there is no peace, but by exhorting them to stand firm against sin and evil of every kind, without regard to consequences. Zion will "prosper" when she has such watchmen on her walls.

2. The house dedicated.—vs. 16-18. They dedicated it with joy, not grudging the years of labor and self-sacrifice which they had given to it. So if we are temples of the living God, every time we dedicate ourselves anew to his service it should be with joy. God loveth a cheerful giver, especially one who gives himself. "And they set the priests in their divisions," etc. Each had their special place and their appointed work. So in the Christian church, every member should have his particular department of service. If this rule was universally followed, we should have living, working churches instead of spiritual club-houses.

3. The duty of separation.—vs. 19-22. There were different ways of keeping the Passover, just as there are different ways of celebrating the Lord's Supper. During their period of national degeneracy it was either entirely neglected or became a mere formal observance, in which the people lost all sight of the real object of the institution. But now they were prepared to keep a true passover. We notice (1) The priests and Levites purified themselves. They must be free from all defilement who serve in God's temple. Should we not require as much from those who stand in our pulpits and break the bread of life to the people? Is a Masonic pastor qualified to represent at the Lord's table Him who was "separate from sinners?" Separation must begin with the ministry and then it will extend to the Jews. (2) The people at large separated themselves from all the idolatries and defilements of heathenism. This included the proselytes as well as those in regular descent from Abraham. The whole history of the Jews teaches the principles of national reform. There should be but one law for the native-born American and the stranger within our gates—and that is the law of God. We have here the only conditions of a true revival, a sanctified priest and a sanctified people. It is often asked, how shall we secure a revival? Only by putting away from ourselves "all filthiness of the flesh and of the world." The lodge is to-day the chief hindrance to a work of grace in our churches. Could the Jews have looked on a completed temple, and kept this solemn passover with such devout thanksgiving if they had inclined in their hearts, though ever so little, to heathenism? much less if they had mingled idolatry with its sacred rites. (3) They kept the feast with joy. A happy Christian is the best recommendation of his religion to others. "For the Lord had made them joyful." If he makes joyful, who then can make sad? If we look to God instead of the world for our sources of enjoyment, we shall surely find what we seek; and, best of all, others will be attracted to the same Fountain. "Turned the heart of the king of Assyria." God has the hearts of rulers in his keeping, and any time he can turn them as he will. The cause of reform would advance faster if more earnest prayers were offered up for those in authority. God would either turn their hearts to espouse the side of truth and righteousness, or he would raise up other and better men in their stead. The building of the temple was a slow work; much more the building of that great spiritual temple whose glory is yet to fill the earth. Only by patient continuance, each standing in his appointed lot, is the work to be finished. Delays and setbacks need not discourage us. They are a part of God's great plan, only to be fully comprehended hereafter.

RELIGIOUS NEWS.

BAPTIST.

—A London letter in the Standard says that according to the Baptist Year Book, just published, the statistics of the denomination in Great Britain and Ireland are as follows: In England there are to-day 1,592 churches; 2,736 chapels; 883,828 sittings in the chapels; 204,603 members; 34,924 Sunday-school teachers; 358,049 Sunday scholars; and 1,181 pastors. Including Wales and Monmouthshire, Scotland, Ireland and the Channel Islands, the totals are as follows: 2,803 churches; 3,754 chapels; 1,237,612 sittings in chapels; 337,409 members; 47,927 Sunday-school teachers; 487,801 Sunday scholars; and 1,858 pastors. As compared with last year, these figures show an increase in the sittings of 12,515; in membership of 3,246; Sunday-school teachers, 143; Sunday scholars, 3,880; and pastors of 17; while there is a decrease of 9 in churches, and of 44 in chapels. In the whole world there are now 44,558 Baptist churches, with 4,013,689 members and 28,876 pastors; each of these being a large increase on former years. During the past twelve months 36 new chapels have been erected, at a cost of £58,070, providing sittings for 17,450; and £64,302 has been paid towards wiping off or diminishing chapel debts. The Baptist Missionary Society has at the present time at work in the foreign field 125 missionaries. Forty-one ministers have died since the last handbook was published, including Mr. C. H. Spurgeon and other well-known ministers.

—Everything is now working harmoniously at Mr. Spurgeon's Metropolitan Tabernacle, though there is a slight falling off in the congregations and finances. Dr. Pierson will be absent from the Tabernacle pulpit during February and March; he goes to Scotland to fulfill his long standing engagement to give a series of missionary lectures. He will visit Edinburgh, Glasgow, Aberdeen, Dundee and other towns, his subject being, "The New Acts of the Apostles; or a Century of Modern Missions."

CONGREGATIONAL.

—The Congregational Year Book shows that there are 4,634 churches and mission stations in England and Wales, providing sitting accommodations for over 1,547,000 persons.

FRIENDS.

—The amount contributed by Friends of Philadelphia Yearly Meeting to the establishment of the Boarding School at Hickory Grove, Iowa, was $3,889.98—and adds that there are now 47 pupils in the school.

LUTHERAN.

—The object of the Gustavus Adolphus Society is to establish and support Lutheran churches in Roman Catholic regions. Since its organization in 1830 it has aided nearly 4,000 congregations at an expense of more than $5,000,000. The main organization is assisted by 1,830 branch societies and 480 women's aid societies.

—The Lutheran Standard of Columbus, O., came out with a special number celebrating its fiftieth anniversary. We congratulate the editors and publishers upon the celebration of this event and hope they may have a prosperous future in their new quarters, which have just been entered.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL.

—Rev. John Swahlen built and dedicated the first German M. E. church ever erected in this country. Though very old, he is still active. His son, Rev. A. F. Swahlen, Ph.D., is one of the faculty of DePauw University.

—Chancellor C. F. Creighton, D.D., advocates a Nebraska ecumenical council, composed of ministers and official laymen of the four conferences. He believes it would greatly promote the interests of Methodism.

—Miss Wesley, granddaughter of Charles Wesley, has presented to Rev. Allen Rees the hymn book used by the poet of Methodism himself, and another used by his wife. They are of peculiar interest, the first-mentioned having a table of contents in Charles Wesley's handwriting, together with six manuscript hymns not as yet published. Mrs. Wesley's book bears date 1749, and Charles Wesley's 1775. Mr. Rees intends to present them to the trustees of Wesley chapel, City-road, London.

—Apropos to the current discussion concerning sectarianism in university management, it is interesting to note that in the faculty of the college of liberal arts of Northwestern University there are four Presbyterians, one Friend, one Episcopalian, one Congregationalist, and twenty-four Methodists, while the 520 students represent eleven different denominations.

—The Marshfield Avenue Methodist church, Chicago, has been sold to the Metropolitan Elevated Railway company by order of the court. The Tribune states that it will be removed to another site and be used for a Jewish synagogue.

—Bishop Walker of North Dakota has constructed, and is soon to launch at Bismarck, a Gospel barge, which is to be devoted to missionary work in towns and camps along the Missouri river. The boat is 93 feet long and 25 feet wide. It will command 500 miles of territory. The bishop has named it "The Missouri Missioner."

PROTESTANT EPISCOPALIAN.

—Protestant Episcopalians have 72 bishops, 4,250 preachers (priests and deacons) and 549,250 communicants. For the last three years their benevolent contributions have averaged over $13,000,000.

—The Protestant Episcopal church is building a cathedral in the city of New York. They are going to put $10,000,000 into it. It is to be called the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. The cornerstone was laid December 27, with imposing ceremonies, eight bishops in their robes of office, and many clergymen and prominent civilians being present. Among others, Chief Justice Melville W. Fuller, of the United States Supreme Court, was present in his judicial robes and took part in the service. This is the first building of this kind in America, reared by Protestants.

—The Church of England, as well as the Episcopal church of this country, annually receive a large number of converts from other denominations, but it is believed that they lose more by defections to the Church of Rome than they gain. The Living Church gives the following summary of those received since 1891: "Since Advent, 1891, there have been the following conversions to the church from the ministry of various denominations: Congregationalists, 18; Methodists, 16; Presbyterian, 9; Romanist, 4; Baptist, 4; Lutheran, 3; Reformed Episcopal, 3; Universalist, 2; Reformed, 2. Besides these there were 15 in Wales, the names of which your correspondent could not obtain. Of this total of 76, 35 belong to the Church of England, and 41 belong to the church of this country. Three returned to the church of their first love, and one will probably bring his entire congregation with him into our communion."

—Daily mass is celebrated in eight Protestant Episcopal churches in New York City, seven in Philadelphia, six in Newark, N. J., four in Chicago, three in Baltimore, and in thirty-three other churches, mentioned by a ritualistic journal of New York City. These celebrations are generally early in the morning, and worshipers, even if present, are not expected to partake, as these are not communion services.

ROMAN CATHOLIC.

—A Catholic priest named Lentz, at Bement, Ill., has printed a prayer for free distribution among the faithful. It is a prayer for the conversion of Americans to the Roman Catholic church. As an encouragement to pray this prayer, we are told that "all who recite the prayer daily will participate in the benefits of two masses every month, and the hope is expressed that indulgence may be obtained for them. They have a great task before them."

—There are at present 51 cardinals of the Roman church; 24 of these live in Rome. Of the remaining 27, 9 are Italians, 6 Frenchmen, 3 Austrians, 3 Spaniards, 2 Portuguese, with one from each of these four countries: the United States, Canada, Belgium and Australia.

UNITED PRESBYTERIAN.

—Tarkio College, Mo., which was burned a little over one year ago, after a year of hard work, re-opened in the re-constructed buildings. The number of students has nearly doubled since the fire, and is now over 200. The endowment has been increased from $58,000 to $158,000. There is an indebtedness, however, of about $10,000 not yet provided for.

—Latest statistics: Synods, 10; presbyteries, 60; pastors and stated supplies, 42; without charge, 254; total ministers, 796; licentiates, 62; students of theology, 93; ruling elders, 3,619; congregations, 920; mission stations, 169; congregations having no house, 56; parsonages, 274; total members, 109,018; total Sabbath-schools, 1,090; officers and teachers, 11,415; number of scholars, 98,859; contributions, $76,058; congregational missionary societies, 836; number of young peoples' societies, 589; members, 23,994. Contributions: salaries of ministers, $543,400; congregational purposes, $401,690; the boards, $567,023; general purposes, $74,175; total, $1,286,288. Average per member, $13.38; average salary of pastors, $1,025; legacies to the boards, $101,777; congregations contributing to all the funds, 307; congregations not contributing to any of the funds 52; congregations not reporting, 61.

A Powerful Flesh Maker.

A process that kills the taste of cod-liver oil has done good service—but the process that both kills the taste and effects partial digestion has done much more.

Scott's Emulsion

stands alone in the field of fat-foods. It is easy of assimilation because partly digested before taken.

Scott's Emulsion checks Consumption and all other wasting diseases.

Prepared by Scott & Bowne, Chemists,
New York. Sold by druggists everywhere.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

COUNTRY.

Evanston's, Ill., gas works were blown up Saturday by escaping gas becoming ignited in the furnaces. The plant was shattered, as were the windows of the houses in the vicinity. One man was injured and the city is deprived of public lights.

The east-bound express on the Big Four ran into an open switch at Wann, Ill., four miles east of Alton, causing a disastrous wreck. Thirty-five thousand gallons of oil ignited, baffling the rescuers and enveloping the wreck in flames. Sixteen were killed and fourteen fatally injured.

At Wichita, Kan., in the Federal Court, Thos. McGill, a Lane county farmer, secured a verdict for $5,000 against the Western Union Telegraph Company for failure to promptly deliver a message. McGill's wife was in such a condition that an operation was deemed necessary and the physician in attendance telegraphed to a neighboring town for another to administer chloroform. The message was not delivered until too late and the woman died.

The cold snap played havoc with the operation of the Edgar Thompson Steel Works at Braddock, Pa., four of the big blast furnaces being banked down and the big steel rail mills closed down for the want of material to work on. All the ore is frozen up about the furnace plant, which requires a double force of men, and to add to the embarrassment of the situation, many of the Hungarians have refused to work in such cold weather. The shut down under these conditions is very disastrous to the firm.

Twenty-seven miners were killed by an explosion in a mine at Como, Col.

Evidence is certain that several deaths of non-union men at Homestead were the result of poison.

The Pope has decided to establish a permanent apostolic delegation in the United States, and has nominated Mgr. Satolli to be first delegate.

White Caps in Mississippi have given themselves to persecuting the Jews. One Jew had twenty-seven houses burned which had been rented to Negroes. Colored men have been forced to leave plantations owned by Jews.

The ice hindered the running of ferryboats on the East River, New York. Many Staten Islanders could not get to the city.

A consignment of 658 tons of rubber, the largest that ever left the Amazon for any American port, entered New York. It is valued at over $1,000,000.

The exodus of Negroes from Avoyelles Parish, Louisiana, continues. Their destination is Oklahoma. The reason assigned for their leaving is that they are driven out by white neighbors who will neither let colored children attend the schools for their children nor allow them to establish schools of their own. Many of them were owners of property, which they were compelled to dispose of at a sacrifice.

Continued cold weather increased the suffering at Homestead, Pa., and it is said that nearly 300 people were on the verge of starvation. Contributions are still coming in. In the mill there is a great deal of dissatisfaction over the wages.

Wrinkled and grizzled, but strong and erect withal under the weight of his 98 years, the Rev. Jacob Garber stood up in the pulpit of the Lutheran church at Charlotte, Mich., Sunday week and preached an eloquent birthday sermon. The church was thronged to the doors and the conclusion of his address was greeted with loud applause.

The intense cold extended from the Rocky Mountains to New York City and through the Southern States. New York harbor was a great field of ice. Many vessels were carried out to sea. Two hundred and fifty of the five hundred tug boats of New York harbor were disabled. Hundreds of tons of freight of every description were blocked on the wharves and the lighters. Snow seriously impeded railroad travel and mails. At Knoxville, Tenn., and other points South, the mercury stood below zero, and business was suspended. In the mountain region of East Tennessee snow was from ten inches to three feet deep. For days the mercury stood from two to twenty degrees below zero in places throughout the Western States. Jan. 16 Chicago experienced the coldest weather in five years, the thermometer registering 16 degrees below zero.

SUBSCRIPTION LETTERS.

The following have made remittances of money to the Cynosure from Jan. 16 to Jan. 21:

W A Pratt, W Witter, W J Coleman, Mrs J Kuns, L B Lathrop, M Woodward, Rev A Tuemo, S H Moore, Rev C D Trumbull, A M Miller, M L Beck, Rev J McBride, R Paddock, A F Worden, Rev W Hazenbarg, E Verkler, Rev S Collins, R Gorely, P B Bates, W H Minton, Mrs E B Clark, Rev H Bert, J M Elliott, J S Harnden, J R Letts, A I Yoder, S Kuffel, C S Allen, W Matthews, J F Ames, Rev J Heck, T H Nichols, L Miller, Mrs A W Schoenhut, Rev H C Foster, E H Person, Miss M E Mason, Miss C Kingsbury, E O Russel, H F Bufham, Rev C Bender, J Remington, Mrs L V Ryan.

Buckingham's Dye for the Whiskers is a popular preparation in one bottle, and colors evenly a brown or black. Any person can easily apply it at home.

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO.

Wheat—Spring No. 2.....	73½@	74
Winter No. 2.....	67½@	73½
Corn—No. 2.....	43½@	43½
Oats—No. 2.....	31 @	36
Rye—No. 2.....	54½@	59
Barley per ton.....	11 75 @	12 25
Hay—Timothy.....	9 50 @	11 50
Butter, medium to best....	17 @	33
Cheese.....	03 @	11
Beans.....	1 75 @	1 90
Eggs.....	24 @	30
Seeds—Timothy.....	1 92 @	1 97
Flax.....	1 10 @	1 16
Broom corn.....	02 @	05½
Potatoes, per bu.....	55 @	71
Hides—Green to dry flint..	04 @	06½
Lumber—Common.....	10 00 @	13 00
Wool (washed).....	15 @	32½
Cattle—Choice to extra.....	5 55 @	6 15
Common to good.....	4 10 @	4 75
Hogs.....	6 90 @	7 90
Sheep.....	2 75 @	6 00

NEW YORK.

Wheat.....	79½@	82
Corn.....	53½@	55
Oats.....	40 @	43
Eggs.....	39 @	43
Butter.....	17 @	35
Wool.....	15 @	30

KANSAS CITY.

Cattle.....	1 25 @	5 10
Hogs.....	4 50 @	7 65
Sheep.....	3 50 @	5 50

Minutes of the Syracuse Convention. Containing addresses by Rev. B. T. Roberts, Chas. W. Green, Esq., Prof. C. A. Blanchard, Rev. D. P. Rathbun, Rev. D. S. Caldwell, Mrs. M. E. Gage, Elder J. R. Baird and others. 25c each.

STANDARD WORKS

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES.

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Association.

221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

TERMS:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order as a guaranty that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums. A liberal discount to dealers.

ON FREEMASONRY.

Freemasonry Illustrated. A complete exposition of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter. Profusely illustrated. Complete work of 640 pages, in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 75 cents. First three degrees (376 pages), in cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Knight Templarism Illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the Council and Commandery. A book of 341 pages. In cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.

Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated. The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all the Masonic Rites, and are fully and accurately given in "Freemasonry Illustrated." Vol. I. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3rd to 18th inclusive. Vol. II. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 19th to 33rd inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive. Price per volume, paper cover, 50 cents each. In cloth, $1.00 each.

Hand-Book of Freemasonry. By E. Ronayne, Past Master of Keystone Lodge No. 639, Chicago. Gives the complete standard ritual of the first three degrees of Freemasonry. New edition, 274 pages. Bound flexible cloth covers, 50 cents.

Freemasonry Exposed. By Capt. William Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book republished. 25 cents each.

Adoptive Masonry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the five degrees of Female Freemasonry, by Thomas Lowe. 20 cents each.

Light on Freemasonry. By Elder D. Bernard. In cloth, $1.50 each. Paper, 75 cents each.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Baal Worship Identical. Explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the lodge. Bound in fine cloth, 420 pages, 75 cents.

Mah-Hah-Bone; comprises the Hand Book, Master's Carpet and Freemasonry at a glance. Bound in one volume. In cloth, 589 pages, $1.00.

History of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. As prepared by seven committees of citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan. 25 cents each.

Ex-President John Quincy Adams' Letters on the Nature of Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties. Price, cloth, $1.00. Paper, 35 cents.

Hon. Thurlow Weed on the Morgan Abduction. This is the legally attested statement of this eminent Christian journalist and statesman concerning the unlawful seizure and confinement of Capt. Morgan in Canandaigua jail, his removal to Fort Niagara and subsequent drowning in Lake Ontario. 5 cents each.

The Broken Seal; or Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. By Samuel D. Greene. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Reminiscences of Morgan Times. By Elder David Bernard. This is a thrilling narrative of the incidents connected with Bernard's Revolution of Freemasonry. 10 cents each.

The Mystic Tie, or Freemasonry a League with the Devil. This is an account of the church trial of Peter Cook and wife, of Elkhart, Indiana, for refusing to support a reverend Freemason. 15 cents each.

Freemasonry Self-Condemned. By Rev. J. W. Balu. A careful and logical statement of reasons why secret orders should not be fellowshiped by the Christian Church. Paper covers, price, 20 cents each.

Grand Lodge Masonry. Its relation to civil government and the Christian religion. By Pres. J. Blanchard. The un-Christian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is proved from the highest Masonic authorities. 5 cents each.

General Washington Opposed to Secret Societies. This is a re-publication of Governor Joseph Ritner's "Vindication of General Washington from the Stigma of Adherence to Secret Societies," communicated to the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania, March 8, 1837, at their special request. To this is added the fact that three high Masons were the only persons who opposed a vote of thanks to Washington on his retirement to private life—undoubtedly because they considered him a seceding Freemason. 10c each.

Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry. As proved in court in the New Berlin trials. The New Berlin trials began in the attempt of Freemasons to prevent public initiations by seceding Masons. These trials were held at New Berlin, Chenango Co., N. Y., April 13 and 14, 1831, and General Augustus C. Welsh, sheriff of the county, and other adhering Freemasons swore to the truthful revelation of the oaths and penalties. 10 cents each.

Morgan's Exposition, Abduction and Murder, and Oaths of 33 Degrees. Composed of "Freemasonry Exposed," by Capt. Wm. Morgan; "History of the Abduction and Murder of Morgan;" "Valance's Confession of the Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "Bernard's Reminiscences of Morgan Times," and "Oaths and Penalties of 33 Degrees." 300 pages; cloth, $1.00.

Finney on Masonry. The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry. By Pres. Charles G. Finney, of Oberlin College. President Finney was a "bright Mason," but left the lodge when he became a Christian. This book has opened the eyes of multitudes. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper cover, 35 cents.

Narratives and Arguments, showing the conflict of secret societies with the Constitution and law of the Union and of the States. By Francis Semple. The fact that secret societies interfere with the execution and pervert the administration of the law is here clearly proved. 15c each.

Secrecy vs. the Family, State and Church. By Rev. M. S. Dury. The antagonism of organized secrecy to the welfare of the family, state and church, is clearly shown. 10c each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. James Williams, Presiding Elder of Dakota District Northwestern Iowa Conference M. E. Church—a seceding Master Mason. 10 cents each.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 Degrees of Freemasonry. To get these thirty-three degrees of Masonic bondage, the candidate takes half-a-million horrible oaths. 15 cents each.

Thirteen Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy. Address of Pres. J. Blanchard. This is a most convincing argument against the lodge. 5 cents each.

Stearns' Inquiry into the Nature and Tendency of Freemasonry. 338 pages. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. W. P. McNary, pastor United Presbyterian church. 5 cents each.

The Anti-Masonic Scrap-Book, consisting of 53 "Cynosure" tracts. In this book are the views of more than a score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of secret societies. Postpaid, 25 cts.

Temple of Honor Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of "The Templars of Honor and Temperance," commonly called the Temple of Honor. By a Templar of Fidelity and Past Worthy Chief Templar. 25c each.

Pres. H. H. George on Secret Societies. A powerful address, showing clearly the duty of Christian churches to disavow secret societies. 10c each.

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern, and College Secret Societies. Composed of the two pamphlets combined in this title, bound together in cloth. 25c each.

HOME AND HEALTH.

SUGGESTIONS FOR WINTER COMFORT.

If there are old people in the home give extra care toward keeping them warm. Take the severe chill from the bed before they retire by running a hot iron or soapstone through the bed. Old folks should sleep with woolen sheets or blankets next to them, both underneath and over. Their blood runs slowly, and they have not the vitality of younger persons for resisting the cold.

Never start on a ride when it is very cold without taking heated soapstones or bricks for both the hands and feet. A bag made of heavy canvas or ducking filled with hot sand is an excellent warmer for long rides, or for keeping at the feet of sick persons.

If you wear extra warm, wool-lined slippers in the house, you should not change to ordinary street shoes when going out. Such changes result in colds and sickness.

Mothers who must be up with the little ones at night, and those who care for the sick, should have special slippers for night wear. They should be wool-lined, and kept by the side of the bed, ready for the feet when they get out of bed. The bare feet should never touch the cold floor.

If one is inclined to a chilly feeling in the back between the shoulders, baste a piece of all-wool flannel in the upper half of the back of the undershirt. It serves as a lung protector.

Don't keep the living rooms too warm. There is no more frequent source of colds than staying in an overheated atmosphere, and then going suddenly into the cold air.

If you must work in a cold room, it will pay you to put on your overshoes and a light wrap. A knitted woolen jacket is very good for such purpose.

Don't run out-doors for a pail of water, or on any short errand, with head bare and sleeves rolled up. Severe suffering has been caused by such imprudent exposures.

It is often that delicate persons cannot keep warm at night. If such ones will wrap a light woolen cape or shawl around their necks and shoulders on retiring, they will find it very conducive to warmth.

The exercise of such little precautions is one means by which the general health is preserved, and sickness and suffering held at bay.

HAVE YOU NOTICED—

That eggs covered when frying will cook much more evenly?

That if you heat your knife you can cut hot bread as smoothly as cold?

That camphor menthol is an excellent inhalant if one is suffering from catarrh?

That a little flour dredged over the top of a cake will keep the icing from running?

That the white of an egg, with a little sugar and water, is good for a child with an irritable stomach?

That clear, black coffee, diluted with water and containing a little ammonia, will cleanse and restore black clothes?

That a large slice of potato in the fat when frying doughnuts will prevent the black specks from appearing on their surface?

That by rubbing with a flannel cloth dipped in whiting, the brown discoloration may be taken off of cups which have been used for baking?

That a little powdered borax in baby's bath water prevents the little one's skin from chafing, and he is not so liable to "break out with the heat?"

APPLES ARE GOOD MEDICINE.

Chemically, the apple is composed of vegetable fiber, albumen, sugar, gum, chlorophyll, malic acid, gallic acid, lime, and much water. Furthermore, the German analysts say that the apple contains a larger percentage of phosphorus than any other fruit or vegetable. The phosphorus is admirably adapted for renewing the essential nervous matter, lecithin of the brain and spinal cord. It is, perhaps, for the same reason, rudely understood, that old Scandinavian traditions represent the apple as the food of the gods, who, when they felt themselves to be growing feeble and infirm, resorted to this fruit for renewing their power of mind and body. Also, the acids of the apple are of signal use for men of sedentary habits, whose livers are sluggish in action, those acids serving to eliminate from the body noxious matters which, if retained, would make the brain heavy and dull or bring about jaundice, or skin eruptions and other allied troubles. Some such an experience must have led to our custom of taking apple sauce with roast pork, rich goose, and like dishes. The malic acid of ripe apples, either raw or cooked, will neutralize any excess of chalky matter engendered by eating too much meat. It is also the fact, according to the Medical Age, that such fresh fruits as the apple, the pear, and the plum, when taken ripe and without sugar, diminish acidity in the stomach rather than provoke it. Their vegetable sauces and juices are converted into alkaline carbonates, which tend to counteract acidity.

It clears the head when you clear the stomach and bowels. You can't think, with your system all choked up and stagnant. That's just the time to contract disease, too.

Put yourself in good condition with Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

You won't have to have a struggle with them, as you do with the ordinary pill. You won't notice them. Mildly and gently, but thoroughly and effectively, they cleanse and regulate the whole system. Sick or Bilious Headaches, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the liver, stomach, and bowels are prevented, relieved, and cured.

They're the best liver pill known, purely vegetable, perfectly harmless, the smallest, easiest and best to take. They're the cheapest pills you can buy, too, for they're guaranteed to give satisfaction, or your money is returned. "Value received or no pay"—it's a plan peculiar to Dr. Pierce's medicines.

WILL SELL FOR

Regular Price.		Selling Price.
FIVE CENTS.
$.15	"A WOMAN'S VICTORY, or the Query of the Lodgeville Church." By Jennie L. Hardie. Paper, 21 pp.	$.05
$.10	"WASHINGTON SOUVENIR." Portraits of Geo. Washington and his Co-patriots, with their testimony on Freemasonry. Size 18x24 inches. Framed it is an ornament to any home.	$.05
TEN CENTS.
$.15	"MY EXPERIENCE WITH SECRET SOCIETIES." By a Traveler. Paper, 51 pp.	$.10
$.25	"SKETCH OF THE LIFE OF JAMES G. BIRNEY." His relation to the Anti-slavery movement and place in history. By General William Birney. Paper, 32 pages.	$.10
TWENTY-FIVE CENTS.
$.75	"BEREA COLLEGE," Kentucky. An interesting history of the founding of that College for white and black in a slave State. Cloth, 87 pages.	$.25
$.75	"SONGS FOR THE TIMES," by Geo. W. Clark. Words and Music. Intended for Prohibition and W. C. T. U. meetings. Boards, 152 pages.	$.25
FIFTY CENTS.
$1.00	"NATIONAL SUICIDE AND ITS PREVENTION." The following will show the drift of the book: Measure or Standard of Value; What is Honest Money; Our National Banks; Paper Money; Land Tenure, etc. By O. F. Lumry. Cloth, 224 pp.	$.50

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
Wm. I. PHILLIPS, Treasurer,
321 W. Madison St., Chicago

Odd-fellowship Judged by its own utterances; its doctrine and practice examined in the light of God's Word. By Rev. J. H. Brockman. This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-fellowship, in the form of a dialogue. In cloth 50cts; paper covers, 25cts.

AYER'S Hair Vigor

Restores faded, thin, and gray hair to its original color, texture, and abundance; prevents it from falling out, checks tendency to baldness, and promotes a new and vigorous growth. A clean, safe, elegant, and economical hair-dressing.

Everywhere Popular

"Nine months after having the typhoid fever, my head was perfectly bald. I was induced to try Ayer's Hair Vigor, and before I had used half a bottle, the hair began to grow. Two more bottles brought out as good a head of hair as ever I had. On my recommendation, my brother William Craig made use of Ayer's Hair Vigor with the same good results."—Stephen Craig, 832 Charlotte st., Philadelphia, Pa.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.
Sold by Druggists Everywhere.

DO YOU WANT

To receive, read, distribute and otherwise aid in the circulation of a large number of Holiness and Reform papers and magazines? If so, send me a SILVER dime, and your name and address will be printed on the Holiness and Reform Mail Exchange List, which is sent to all publishers of holiness and reform literature, who will mail you sample papers and magazines. Write name and address PLAINLY. Address, J. H. PADGETT, Printer, Ennis, Texas.

The Blue Bell.

The Mountain Daisy.

Daily Text books for a year. Dainty little souvenirs, only 1 1/2 inches square, elegantly and neatly bound in leather, with silk marker, gilt edges, round corners, each net 25
Illuminated paper covers, each 10

Birthday Memorial Text-Book. An Autograph Text-book. Text for each day and space for autographs. 32mo., Cloth..... 25

Daily Comfort in Four Fold Links.

The most popular Wall Roll published, and deservedly so. Every page is an effective sermon. The striking character and particular value of this new Wall Roll is in the remarkable arrangement and selection of the Scripture Texts.

A constant monitor in the Christian household.

A silent teacher for the school.

A comforting messenger for the sick-room, as well as being suitable for the office, the store or the shop.

Printed in beautiful large, clear letters, easily discernible at a distance of 10 to 15 feet. Mounted on rollers, with cord, to hang up in usual style. 31 pages, size 14x22in. 75

The Secret of Success; or

Finger Posts on the Highway of Life, by John T. Dale; introduction by Hon. John V. Farwell. 416 pages, 12mo., full cloth.....$1.50
A book for the aspiring. Written in a fascinating style and full of incidents and illustrations which hold the interest of the reader spell-bound.
"It may be true, as has been said, that 'books are sold, not bought'; but this, at any rate, is a book which, if brought to one's attention, he will wish to own. Such a book in every intelligent family in the land—how much (in showing so clearly, so wisely, so persuasively the secret of success,) it might do toward helping to solve the countless aching, burning questions of the time."—The Advance.

Prof. Henry Drummond's Booklets.

The Perfected Life. (The greatest need of the world.) Bound in chaste style, vellum paper..... 20

Love the Supreme Gift. (The greatest thing in the world.) Uniform with Perfected Life. 20

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS N
221 W. Madison St., Chi

$1100 FOR 4 TOMATOES!

SURE HEAD CABBAGE is a perfect success. It has proved the earliest and best and bears abundantly of large bright red tomatoes, very smooth, of excellent quality and free from rot. My plants set in garden last of May produced full size ripe tomatoes July 2nd. I want a great record for it in 1893, and will pay $500 Cash to a person growing a ripe tomato in 75 days from day seed is sown, also $400 to the person growing a ripe tomato in least number of days from day seed is sown. $125 for next and $75 for next. Beware of imitations. I own all the seed. Never offered before, is all head and sure to head, very uniform, of large size, firm and fine in texture, excellent quality and a good keeper. I will pay $100 for next heaviest. Single heads have weighed over 60 pounds.

GIANT SILVER QUEEN ONION is large and handsome, single specimens under sworn testimony have weighed over 5 lbs. They are of mild and delicate flavor, grow rapidly, ripen early, flesh white and handsome. I will pay $100 for next heaviest onion grown from my seed in 1893, and $50 for next heaviest.

ALICE PANSY is a creation of a sensation everywhere. They grow larger and contain the greatest number of colors (many never seen before in pansies) of any pansy ever offered. I offer $500 to a person growing a Blossom measuring 4 1/2 in. in diameter, and $300 for largest blossom grown, $100 for second, $50 for third, $50 for fourth, $50 for fifth and $50 for sixth. Full particulars of all prizes in catalogue.

MY CATALOGUE is full of bargains. $900 is offered persons sending me largest number of customers, and $500 for largest club orders. $1.00 customers get 50 cents extra FREE.

MY OFFER I will send a packet each of Earliest Tomato to the World, Sure Head Cabbage, Giant Silver Queen Onion, Alice Pansy and Bargain Catalogue, for only 25 cents. Every person sending silver P. N. or M. O. for above collection will receive Free a packet Mammoth Prize Tomato, grows 14 ft. high, and I offer $500 for a 4 lb. tomato grown from this seed. If two persons send for two collections together each will receive Free a packet Wonder of the World Beans, stalks grow large as broom handle and pods are 18 in. long. It is a perfect wonder. F. B. MILLS, Rose Hill, N. Y.

Royal Commandments; or, Morning Thoughts for the King's Servant's. 20
Royal Bounty; or, Evening Thoughts for the King's Guests..... 20
The Royal Invitation..... 20
Loyal Responses..... 20
Sunlight Through Shadows.... 20
Little Artist's Painting Book.

A Novelty for children, suitable for the Summer days or Winter evenings, in quarto size, with a limp varnished cover of artistic design. Price, 50c.

Containing colored studies of children at play, illustrative of seashore and country life, in simple colors, the whole repeated in outline for filling in from the paint box.

Children will be delighted with this painting book. It will interest, amuse and instruct.

Sermons of Rev. John Mc Neil.

The first volume of this "Scottish Spurgeon's" sermons. One large 12mo. volume of 416 pages. Price.....1.50

Our Darlings.

The Children's Treasury of Pictures and Stories. An elegant volume, beautifully illustrated and printed. Nearly 500 pages and 1000 illustrations. Edited by Dr. T. J. Barnardo, F. R. C. S. Quarto, board covers, unique design1.25
Quarto, full cloth, gilt edges, elegant designed stamps in gold and colors.....2.00

Pictorial Africa.

Its Heroes, Missionaries and Martyrs. Stirring narratives of their perils, adventures and achievements, with description of the peoples and countries of the "Dark Continent." Including portraits of all the most remarkable travelers that have visited Africa. Fully illustrated. Royal 8vo., 400 pages, cloth, elegant2.50

The book with its manifold illustrations will prove an attractive one both to old and young, and it strikes us as being the best descriptive book upon Africa, including an account of its explorers and eminent missionaries.—Missionary Herald.

Address - - W. I. PHILLIPS,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

United Sons of Industry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the secret tradesunion of the above name, giving the signs, grips, passwords, etc. 15cts each.

The Eating of clothes—the rotting and ruining of them—won't show right away. Your new washing powder may be dangerous, but you'll have to wait a little for its results. But it is doing its work. After a while, your clothes go to pieces, all at once. Now isn't it better not to run any risk? Isn't it better to trust to an article like Pearlina, which has been tried, tested, proved?

Send it Back Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearlina." IT'S FALSE—Pearlina is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearlina, be honest—send it back. 343 JAMES PYLE, N. Y.

FARM NOTES.

THE COW AND HER MILK.

It is certain that in the management of cows generally courteous treatment of them is not only not wasted, but is absolutely essential in securing the best results in milking them. Harsh, boisterous, brutal behavior toward a milch cow, especially at the time of milking, is as out of place as it would be toward a lady in her drawing room.

Of late years scientists have been "nosing around" with scalpel and microscope to find out why it is that the bovine "madam" sometimes gives down her milk freely, and sometimes—as milkers well-know to their sorrow—doesn't. These investigations are interesting, and though they may not reveal the whole mystery, they let in light upon it, and afford some hints to milkers which are well worth their careful attention.

A cow carries her milk, so the investigators tell us, from one milking to another in little cells or reservoirs distributed all through the udder. The passages which connect these with the teats are opened and closed by valves which are under the control of the will, but are naturally and involuntarily kept closed except when relaxed by a special effort of the will. This relaxation occurs at milking time, when the cords which control the valves are loosened so that the milk flows down easily into the teats, and thence into the pail.

But the relaxation does not last long. After a short interval the special effort to hold the valves open ceases, and they instinctively close again, shutting off the flow of milk and retaining in the reservoirs any milk which may not have passed out. The habit of refusing to "give down" consists in shortening the time of this relaxation, thus stopping the flow from the cells to the teats before all the milk is drawn.

The practical application of this is that any treatment of the cow which causes her to hold up her milk should be most carefully avoided. Anything that excites fear, grief, solicitude, such as loud noises, "hollering" at, beating or kicking her, or otherwise disturbing her serenity of mind, will have the effect of closing up the milk cells. The things that promote a continuance of relaxation are comfort, quietude and freedom from disturbance and excitement, together with the relief which the flow of milk affords. It is very important that these favorable conditions should be sedulously cultivated, for if a cow from any cause acquires the habit of shortening the time of "letting down," it is very difficult and sometimes quite impossible to overcome it.

It follows, then, the stable or yard where the cows are milked should be as free from all distractions as a Quaker meeting. The owner should not permit himself nor any one else to treat the cows otherwise than with the utmost gentleness. No loud talking or boisterous behavior of any kind should be allowed, and such a thing as striking or kicking a cow should be absolutely unknown.

It is desirable, an English journal suggests, to milk as rapidly as possible consistent with comfort, with a view to getting the milk all out during the period of relaxation. But this does not mean jerking down sharply or moving with hasty or irregular motions, which would tend to defeat the very object aimed at. All the motions should be cool, quiet, gentle, but the work should go steadily forward, from start to finish, with the kind of quickness which results from making every movement tell. The old Latin phrase, "festina lente," exactly expresses the idea.

And when the milk ceases to flow stop pumping the udder, whether all the milk is drawn out or not, for a cow is like her human counterpart, in that "when she will, she will, and when she won't, she won't," and, as old Sam Johnson would say, "There's an end on't."—Mail and Express.

GOOD ROADS.

The subject of good roads, says the Scientific American, is now occupying a great deal of attention on the part of the public. The American nation appears to be gradually awakening to the fact that the bad roads of this country are unworthy of its position among the nations. It is stated that in Illinois alone the loss to the community from bad roads last year was as much as $16,000,000. If this ratio were taken for the whole country, it would give a loss of $300,000,000. At 3 per cent such loss would represent a capitalization of ten thousand millions of dollars. This is one-sixth of the total wealth of the country.

To pass the winter season comfortably avoid colds by using Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

"Don't Tobacco Spit Your Life Away"

Is the startling, truthful title of a little book just received, telling all about Noto-bac, the wonderful, harmless, economical, guaranteed cure for the tobacco habit in every form. Tobacco users who want to quit and can't, by mentioning Christian Cynosure can get the book mailed free. Address THE STERLING REMEDY CO., Box 655, Indiana Mineral Springs, Ind.

The Washington Souvenir, Size 18x24 inches, and containing the portraits of Washington and his Com-Patriots WITH THEIR TESTIMONY ON FREEMASONRY.

It contains the portraits of Washington.

John Adams, 2nd President of the United States.
James Madison, 4th President of the United States.
Joseph Ritner, Governor of Pennsylvania.
Richard Rush, Secretary of State and of the Treasury.
Alexander Hamilton, the friend of Washington.
Samuel Adams, the Father of the Revolution.
John Hancock, President of the Continental Congress.
Samuel Dexter, Secretary of War and of the Treasury.
William Wirt, Attorney-General.
John Marshall, Chief Justice of U. S. Supreme Court.
John Quincy Adams, 6th President of the United States.
Benjamin Rush, the Father of Temperance Reform in America.
Lebbeus Armstrong, Founder of the first Temperance Society.
Framed, it is an ornament to please the eye, and a testimony to gladden the heart. Sent safely packed in a mailing tube, post-paid, for ten cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
331 W. Madison St., Chicago

All cannot possess a

$10,000 Souvenir

(This sum was paid for the first World's Fair Souvenir Coin minted.)

in the shape of a coin, but many can have fac-similes of this valuable work of art—only special coin ever issued by the U. S. Government—for $1 each.

United States Government

World's Fair Souvenir Coins—

The Official Souvenir of the Great Exposition—

5,000,000 of which were donated to the World's Columbian Exposition by the Government, are being rapidly taken by an enthusiastically patriotic people.

As there early promised to be a demand for these Souvenirs that would render them very valuable in the hands of speculators, the Exposition Authorities decided to place the price at

$1.00 for Each Coin

and sell them direct to the people, thus realizing $5,000,000, and using the additional money for the further development of the Fair.

Considering the fact that there were but 5,000,000 of these coins to be distributed among 65,000,000 people, in this country alone (to say nothing of the foreign demand,) and that many have already been taken, those wishing to purchase these mementoes of our Country's Discovery and of the grandest Exposition ever held, should secure as many as they desire at once.

For Sale Everywhere

and Banks. If not for sale in your town, send $1.00 each for not less than five coins, by Post-office or Express Money-order, Registered Letter or Bank Draft, with instructions how to send them to you, all charges prepaid, to Treasurer World's Columbian Exposition, Chicago, Ill.

A rapid growing, hardy climber, attaining a height of over forty feet. Flowers curious pipe shape, three or four inches long, yellowish-green brown. Leaves ten inches across.

A FLORAL CURIOSITY.

Price per plant 25 cents; three plants 60 cents, and, where requested, with each order will be given FREE a copy of

THE POETS' NUMBER

Vick's Floral Guide, 1893.

This year we have combined a most novel and charming feature in the way of hundreds of beautiful and appropriate poetical quotations from the best authors, making THE POETS' NUMBER OF VICK'S FLORAL GUIDE a source of interest and pleasure the whole year. The practical part contains Colored Plates of Alpine Aster, Begonia, Delphinium, Dutchman's Pipe, Clematis, Pansies, Cannas, Corn and Potatoes, hundreds of Engravings; descriptions of the sweetest and most prolific Pea—The Charming, The Golden Nugget Corn, which was such a favorite last summer, new Roses, new Chrysanthemums and scores of other grand and good things. Names and prices of everything one could desire in way of Flowers, Vegetables, Plants, Bulbs, etc.

Sent for only 10 cents, which can be deducted from the first order.

JAMES VICK'S SONS, East Ave., Rochester, N. Y.

MY EXPERIENCES

WITH

SECRET SOCIETIES.

BY A TRAVELER.

With a Key to Masonry Illustrated

A new edition, greatly enlarged, has been issued, embracing chapters on the Language of Numbers, Secret Empires, and Good Men, containing more Experiences, and affording a deeper insight into the Hidden Language and Workings of Secret Clans, and of the counterfeit pretences of good men, than ever before published. The Key is an exposition, explanation and verification of modern Baalism, with which all should be thoroughly acquainted. The price of the new edition is

Fifteen Cents,

but copies of the first edition will be forwarded for Ten Cents.

CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
331 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

PATRIARCHS MILITANT ILLUSTRATED

THE COMPLETE RITUAL

With Eighteen Military Diagrams.

As Adopted and Promulgated by the

SOVEREIGN GRAND LODGE

OF THE

INDEPENDENT ORDER OF ODD-FELLOWS.

At Baltimore, Maryland, Sept. 24th, 1885

Compiled and Arranged by John C. Underwood, Lieutenant General.

WITH THE

UNWRITTEN OR SECRET WORK ADDED,

ALSO AN

Historical Sketch and Introduction

By Pres't. J. Blanchard, of Wheaton College.

25 cents each.

For Sale by the National Christian Association

331 West Madison St., Chicago

ROYAL BAKING POWDER Absolutely Pure.

A cream of tartar baking Powder. Highest of all in leavening strength.—Latest United States Government Food Report. ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 106 Wall St., N. Y.

NEWS OF THE WEEK (Continued from 15th page).

A dispatch from Cape Charles, Va., Jan. 15, says: "Snow fell early this morning, covering the peninsula from eleven to fourteen inches deep. The mercury is at ten degrees to-night, and falling fast. It has been the coldest day since 1857. At Smith's Island ice extends a mile and a half into the ocean."

A Knoxville (Tenn.) dispatch says: "Not for thirty years has there been such severe weather as now prevails in this section. The thermometer is far below zero, and a dozen or more of people are reported frozen to death. Business of all kinds has been suspended."

About fifty retail lumber and coal dealers of South Dakota and Northwestern Iowa met at Sioux City, Ia., and formed an association for mutual protection. The primary object is to give organized opposition to the enforcement of the forty-eight-hour demurrage rule now in force by all roads and to oppose the handling of coal by middlemen at mine weights, which they claim are invariably short from 1,000 pounds to several tons per car.

Eight or nine persons were killed and several others injured in the collision of a railroad engine and a large sleigh filled with a pleasure-party, who were returning to Pawtucket, R. I., from Attleboro.

The British ship Clement, Captain Lancaster, which arrived at New York from Manas Para and Barbadoes, brings 658 tons of rubber as part of her cargo. This is the largest cargo of rubber that ever left the Amazon for any American port.

Spence and O. Fisher and Joseph Turner may be counted the lumber kings of Michigan. Quite recently they purchased 400,000,000 feet of standing pine on Georgian Bay for $800,000, and to-day added 175,000,000 more feet in the same district to their purchases for $350,000.

The Danish Brotherhood of America concluded its fifth biennial session at Omaha, Neb., last week. Manistee, Mich., was selected as the place at which the next session will be held in 1895. The following officers were elected: Supreme President, P. S. Johnson, Omaha; Supreme Vice President, Peter Helm, Milwaukee; Supreme Secretary, Virgus A. Danielson, Chicago; Supreme Treasurer, Jens C. Eskeldson, Chicago; Supreme Trustees, E. Christopherson, Manistee, Mich.; H. N. Vogt, Davenport, Iowa; L. Frandsen, Bridgeport, Conn.

Victor Collian, known to iron-workers the world over by his inventions, died at Detroit, Mich., aged 66 years. The deceased was born in Paris, France, and received a thorough education in chemistry and mechanical engineering. He came to America in 1860, and at once took a leading position in directing affairs of Michigan mines. Ten years ago he began to invent iron-working machinery, and his cupolas, now used in every country of the world, netted him a fortune.

Mary Ann Nelson, a colored woman, was found dead in a little shanty on the Powell farm, about three miles from Orland, Ill. She told Mrs. Powell, a few days before her death, that she was 130 years old. She used to tell stories of how she lighted George Washington's pipe in the old days before the revolution, and gave a vivid description of a ball at the White House under Gen. Jackson's administration when she was a servant there.

By the burning of a large storage warehouse in New York City, Saturday, fifteen firemen were injured. The loss on building and contents was heavy and total.

Robert Louis Stevenson, the author, is reported to be dying of consumption in the island of Samoa.

A Fort Madison, Iowa, dispatch reports much excitement over the work of body snatchers in the cemeteries of that city, and it is believed that a wholesale traffic in human bodies has been carried on there, through agents of various medical schools. A Keokuk physician is strongly suspected.

FOREIGN.

Excitement over the Panama scandal is quieting down. Rumors that the political institutions had not been affected by the exposures had this calming effect. Confidence in the Bourse has been restored, and the fear of an agitation has passed the crisis.

The Bishop of Chester has refused to allow the Earl and Countess of Shrewsbury, who were divorcees, to partake of the sacrament of communion.

Nearly 8,000 women have joined the anti-crinoline movement. The queen has been asked to banish the new fashion from court circles.

Quite a fight is imminent in the Tabernacle over the re-election of the Rev. James Spurgeon, the acting pastor.

The greatest pain-annihilator of the age is Salvation Oil. It always cures.

BOSTON CRYSTAL GELATINE.

Lady agents wanted everywhere to sell above Gelatine. A good remuneration can be made. For particulars address Crystal Gelatine Co., 216 Lake St., Chicago.

WE SEND FREE with this beautiful Organ an Instruction Book and a handsome, upholstered stool! The organ has 11 stops, 5 octaves, and is made of Solid Walnut. Warranted by us for 15 years. We only charge $45 for this beautiful instrument. Send to-day for FREE illustrated catalogue. OXFORD MFG. CO Chicago.

WHEATON COLLEGE, WHEATON, ILL.

A School for Men and Women.
SPRING TERM BEGINS APRIL 4th, 1893.

Full College Courses, Preparatory Courses, Stenography, Typewriting, Vocal Music and Blackboard Drawing, without extra charge.

CHAS. A. BLANCHARD, Pres.

ONE DOLLAR EVERY HOUR

Is easily made by any one of either sex in any part of the country, who is willing to work industriously at the employment which we furnish. We fit you out complete, so you may give the business a trial without expense to yourself. Write and see. H. HALLETT & CO., Box 1,750, Portland, Me.

GRATEFUL-COMFORTING.

EPPS'S COCOA BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in half-pound tins, by Grocers, labelled thus: JAMES EPPS & Co., Homoeopathic Chemists London, England.

BEATTY Pianos, Organs, $33 up. Want Agents. Cat'g FREE. Dan'l F. Beatty, Washington, N. J.

Price 1 "Worth a Guinea a Box" 125c.

BEECHAM'S PILLS

Dislodge Bile,
Stir up the Liver,
Cure Sick-Headache,
Female Ailments,
Remove Disease and Promote Good Health.

Covered with a Tasteless & Soluble Coating.

Famous the world over.

Ask for Beecham's and take no others. Of all druggists. Price 25 cents a box. New York Depot, 35 Canal St.

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained, and all Patent business conducted for Moderate Fees.

Our Office is Opposite U. S. Patent Office, and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.

Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.

A Pamphlet, "How to Obtain Patents," with names of actual clients in your State, county, or town, sent free. Address,

C. A. SNOW & CO.

Opposite Patent Office, Washington, D. C.

AMERICAN HANDBOOK AND

CITIZEN MANUAL.

BY

MANLOVE N. BUTLER.

CONTENTS:—Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement; Real Prohibition; Poor Man's Bible, and All-Around Reformers. Over 200 pages.

Paper, single copy 40c.; per doz. 35c.

CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

JONATHAN BLANCHARD'S

SERMONS AND ADDRESSES.

Select discourses of the late editor of the Cynosure and leader in our reform. Lectures, sermons and speeches given from 1834 to 1892 in leading cities of the United States, discussing topics of

LIVING REFORM.

Secret Societies,
The Sabbath,
Temperance,
National Reform,
Christian Education,
Christian Socialism,
The Bible, Etc., Etc.

A BOOK EVERYBODY SHOULD READ

12mo. Fine Photogravure Portrait.

Price, 75 Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

Disloyal SECRET OATHS

ADDRESS OF

JOSEPH COOK,

OF BOSTON.

AT THE

Conference of Christians CHICAGO, 1890.

No better document of its size for general distribution has been printed. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference.

Single Copies 5 cents, or 12 copies for 50 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

Standard Works

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Association

221 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois

TERMS:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order as a guarantee that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums. A liberal discount to dealers.

Revised Odd-fellowship Illustrated. The complete revised ritual of the Lodge, Encampment and Rebekah (ladies) degrees, profusely illustrated, and guaranteed to be strictly accurate; with a sketch of the origin, history and character of the order, over one hundred foot-note quotations from standard authorities, showing the character and teachings of the order, and an analysis of each degree by ex-President J. Blanchard. This ritual corresponds exactly with the "Charge Books" furnished by the Sovereign Grand Lodge. In cloth, $1.00; paper cover, 50cts.

Anti-masonic Sermons and Addresses. Composed of "Masonry a Work of Darkness;" the Sermons of Messrs. Cross, William M'Nary, Dow and Sarver, the two addresses of President Blanchard, and the addresses of President H. H. George, Prof. J. G. Carson and Rev. M. S. Drury; "Thirteen Reasons Why a Christian cannot be a Freemason," "Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion," and "Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate?" 287 pages; cloth $1.00.

Between Two Opinions: OR THE QUESTION OF THE HOUR. By Miss E. E. Flagg, author of "Little People," "A Sunny Life," etc., etc. Everyone who loves to read a good story, chaste and elegant in expression, pure in thought, interesting in narrative, should read this book upon the power of secret societies in politics, and the remedy. 389 pages, cloth, postpaid, $1.00.

Sermon on Odd-fellowship and other secret societies, by Rev. J. Sarver, pastor Evangelical Lutheran church. This is a very clear argument against secretism of all forms, and the duty to disfellowship Odd-fellows, Freemasons, Knights of Pythias and Grangers, is clearly shown by their confessed character as found in their own publications. 10cts each.

Proceedings of Pittsburgh Convention. Containing official reports. Addresses by Rev. D. R. Kerr, D.D., Rev. B. T. Roberts, Rev. G. T. R. Meiser, Prof. J. R. W. Sloane, D.D., Pres. J. Blanchard, Rev. A. M. Milligan, D.D., Rev. Woodruff Post, Rev. Henry Cogswell, Prof. C. A. Blanchard and Rev. W. E. Coquette. 25 cents each.

Eminent Men on Secret Societies. Composed of "Washington Opposed to Secret Societies," "Judge Whitney's Defence," "The Mystic Tie," "Narratives and Arguments," the "Anti-masonic's Scrap-Book" and "Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry as Proved in the New Berlin Trials." 328 pages, cloth, $1.00.

Five Rituals Bound Together. "Odd-fellowship Illustrated" (old work), "Knights of Pythias Illustrated," "Good Templars Illustrated," "Exposition of the Grange," and "Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic," are sold bound together in cloth for $1.00.

Sermon on Secret Societies. By Rev. Daniel Dow, Woodstock, Conn. The special object of his sermon is to show the right and duty of Christians to examine into the character of secret societies, no matter what object such societies profess to have.

Holden with Empire. OR THE POWER OF THE SECRET EMPIRE. By E. E. Flagg, author of "A Sunny Life," etc. This is a thrillingly interesting story, accurately true to life because mainly a narration of historical facts. In cloth, $1.00; in paper, 50 cents.

College Secret Societies. Their customs, character and the efforts for their suppression. By H. L. Kellogg. Containing the opinions of many prominent college presidents and others, and a full account of the murder of Mortimer Leggett. 25cts each.

Sermon on Secretism. By Rev. H. Theo. Cross, pastor Congregational church, Hamilton, N. Y. This is a very clear arraignment of the objections to all secret societies, and to Masonry especially, that are apparent to all. 5cts each.

Knights of Pythias Illustrated. By a Past Chancellor. A full illustrated exposition of the three ranks of the order, with the addition of the "Amended, Perfected and Amplified Third Rank." 25cts each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. J. Day Brownlee. In reply to a Masonic Oration by Rev. Dr. Mayer, Wellsville, Ohio. 8 pages each.

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XXV., No. 21.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 2, 1893.

WHOLE No. 1,188.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,

221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PER YEAR..... $2.00
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... 1.50

No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearses paid.

Address all letters for publication to EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, CHICAGO. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed.

Make all drafts and money orders payable to the Treasurer, W. I. PHILLIPS, 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO. When possible make remittances by express money order. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address on Cynosure list always give the former address.

[Entered at the Postoffice, Chicago, Ill., as Second Class Matter.]

CONTENTS

EDITORIAL:	REFORM NEWS:
Notes and Comments..... 1	Seed-sowing in Snow;
Civil Rights in Chicago.. 8	Illinois State Convention;
A Memorial of Lr. Geo. B. Cheever..... 8	The Pennsylvania State Convention;
James G. Blaine..... 8	Good Work in the Western District..... 5,9
Justice Lamar..... 8	CORRESPONDENCE:
"Protection for Labor Orders"..... 8	The World's Fair and Sunday Opening; The Powers of Darkness at Galva; The Lodge a Dangerous Institution; Help Needed for Colored People in the South..... 6
The Cost of War..... 9	LITERATURE..... 6
CONTRIBUTIONS:	IN BRIEF..... 7
A New Song (Through Aid of Burns and A' That) (Poetry)..... 1	AGENTS AND LECTURERS..... 7
Under what Circumstances may Christians Enter a Secret Order?..... 1	THE N. C. A..... 7
A Chariot of Fire..... 10	THE HOME..... 10
SELECTED:	TEMPERANCE..... 11
Flimsy Apologies for the Lodge..... 2	BIBLE LESSON..... 12
Why the Sunday Law Should Stand..... 3	RELIGIOUS NEWS..... 12
Gems from the "Catholic Review"..... 3	NEWS OF THE WEEK..... 13
The Boys..... 3	MARKETS..... 13
NEW ENGLAND LETTER..... 4	HOME AND HEALTH..... 14
WASHINGTON LETTER..... 4	FARM NOTES..... 15

Elsewhere we print a summary of the proceedings of the Illinois State Anti-secrecy Convention, as reported by Rev. M. A. Gault. The official minutes of the convention, resolutions, etc., are received, but laid over until our next issue. It was a grand success, and full of interest. The following officers of the State Association were elected for the current year: President, Rev. R. W. Chesnut, of Marissa; secretary, Rev. J. R. Wylie, of Coulterville; treasurer, Rev. W. I. Phillips, 221 West Madison street, Chicago.

The Pennsylvania State Anti-Secrecy Convention is to be held in Carnegie Music Hall, at Allegheny City, on Monday and Tuesday, February 27 and 28. In the absence of the official call and the prepared program, we can only make reference to some of the prominent persons who are expected to be present, with a few of the titles of addresses to be delivered on this occasion: Rev. J. S. T. Milligan, Principles which underlie our anti-secrecy reform. Rev. D. C. Martin, Secrecy as a temptation to crime. Rev. S. Collins, Effect of secret societies in the temperance reform. Rev. Dr. H. H. George, The labor lodges. Rev. William Dillon, editor of the Christian Conservator (Radical U. B.), Dayton, Ohio, will probably be present and add to the interest of the convention; also two Lutheran pastors. Read Rev. W. B. Stoddard's letter, in another column. We are promised additional particulars next week.

Among the important news of the week is the revolt of the Sandwich Islanders against their monarchical system. The queen has been deposed without bloodshed, a provisional government established, and a committee is on the way to ask for annexation to the United States. If no intervening influence is brought to bear upon the islanders, Hawaii may become a Territory along with Oklahoma and the Cherokee Strip.

Andrew Carnegie, the distinguished capitalist and iron manufacturer, who retired from business several years ago and was absent in Europe when the Homestead strike riots occurred last year, has returned. In a recent interview he stated that under the circumstances he had no authority in the affair, as he had delegated his powers to Mr. H. C. Frick, to whom he paid a high compliment for his integrity and ability. The strikers receive but little encouragement from his expressions.

Thousands of intellectual, moral and Christian people, as well as the Protestant Episcopal Church, in which he was a prominent figure, greatly regret the death of Phillips Brooks, Bishop of Massachusetts. The son of a worthy clergyman, whose boys creditably follow his profession, Phillips Brooks may be said to have been a churchman both by nativity and education. Endowed with a fair heritage of religious character and possessing a commendable degree of common sense, eloquence and efficiency, he devoted the last years of his life to the duties of a very laborious position in the church, which proved too arduous for his health and hastened his demise. His exaltation leaves a vacancy in the Christian world that cannot be easily filled.

A reform convention of considerable importance is to be held at Clay Center, Clay county, Kansas, on Friday of this week, in the Free Methodist church, beginning at 9 o'clock in the morning. Among the speakers and subjects announced we find the following: Hugh L. McClurkin, of Clay Center, address on Temperance; Rev. S. M. Stevenson, of Idana, address on Temperance; Rev. G. E. Carnahan, of Clay Centre, The Sabbath Question; Dr. D. M. Gillespie, of Clay Center, The Lodge in Politics; Rev. W. C. Paden, of Oakland, Odd-fellowship; Rev. J. W. Dill, The Sabbath Question; Rev. Thos. M. Chalmers, of Topeka, The Masonic System. Others named as participants in the proceedings are: Rev. D. D. Pembleton and Rev. D. J. White, both of Clay Center. We shall look for a full report of the proceedings of this convention from Rev. W. C. Paden, to whose active exertions and Christian zeal it largely owes its existence.

Chicago (Union Park) Theological Seminary is just now basking in a cheerful effulgence of Christian benevolence, for which it and the Congregational church (to whose enterprise and careful nurture it owes its existence and prosperity) are to be congratulated. About the first of May last Dr. Daniel K. Pearsons, of this city, offered to give the Seminary $100,000, on condition that other friends would contribute $350,000 on or before the first of May, 1894. Now he offers to give the directors a bonus of $50,000 if they raise $400,000 on or before Nov. 1, 1893; that is, he still offers $100,000 if they raise $350,000—and if they secure $50,000 more will match their $50,000 with his $50,000, thus making an additional endowment for the Seminary of $550,000. This is in accordance with the offer he made last May. This offer comes most opportunely, as the rapid growth of the Seminary, the addition of departments far beyond its resources, in response to the demand of churches for a trained ministry for the foreign populations of the interior, necessitated the addition of at least $500,000 to its funds, including a new chapel and the reconstruction of the three old buildings. In 1877 he gave McCormick Theological Seminary and the Chicago Theological Seminary each $50,000 to establish a permanent fund in aid of young men studying for the ministry. Since then he has rounded out his gifts to a full million.

A NEW SONG (THROUGH AID OF BURNS AND A' THAT).

BY REV. J. B. GALLOWAY.

There is no clan by right divine
Can rule and reign and a' that;
No princely "rite," nor lordly line—
Equality for a' that!
For a' that, and a' that,
"The mystic tie," and a' that,
A common birthright crowns us all
With liberty, for a' that.

Let fools and upstarts boast they find
In Masonry, and a' that,
A higher place to them assigned—
Mankind are one for a' that!
For a' that, and a' that,
"Grand lodge above!" and a' that;
It matters not, though "passed and raised,"
They're wicked still, for a' that.

Ye see yon Templar ca'd a Knight;
He struts and stares and a' that,
Wi' hat and sword, as if for fight;
He's hut a coof for a' that;
For a' that, and a' that,
His sash and gold, and a' that;
The man of independent mind,
He looks and laughs at a' that.

Ye "cowan" brood, why look and stare,
And how and scrape, and a' that?
Their Baal worship will not bear
The test of truth for a' that.
For a' that, and a' that,
"Benevolence," and a' that,
Wi' altars bare, and Christless prayer,
They serve the de'il, for a' that.

Their innocence they sound and show
By "lambskin hib," and a' that;
But Morgan's death, as well they know,
Is witness still 'gainst a' that.
For a' that, and a' that,
The "Tyler's" sword and a' that,
The "cable-tow" and savage oath—
They're hypocrites in a' that.

They boast of secrets, dark and sealed
By penalty, and a' that;
But a' that's hid has been revealed—
Their Mah-hah-bone, and a' that.
For a' that, and a' that,
"Grand hailing sign," and a' that,
When judgment comes, they'll cry in vain—
"Help widow's son!" and a' that.

Poynette, Wis., Jan. 24, 1893.

UNDER WHAT CIRCUMSTANCES MAY CHRISTIANS ENTER A SECRET ORDER?

ADDRESS BY REV. PROF. LUTHER T. TOWNSEND,
D. D., BEFORE THE NEW ENGLAND ANTI-SECRECY CONVENTION, BOSTON,
DECEMBER 14, 1892.

MR. PRESIDENT AND FRIENDS:—I think the subject that was assigned me does not appear on the program that I have in my hand, but on some of the others. It is: "To what extent can Christian people associate in secret societies?" I would like to add these words to the subject, "and under what circumstances may the state investigate and abolish secret societies?"

I think I am always inclined to give the devil his due, if he has any, and possibly I am not so pronounced in my opposition to secret societies as are many of my brethren. I have belonged, or do belong, to nine different secret organizations; at least, I could at one time give the passwords and grips of that number. A young man's curiosity led me to enter these orders; that being gratified, my interest in them, for the larger part, no longer remained. With one or two exceptions, and for quite a number of years, I have had no active connection with secret organizations of any kind. I could not now give their grips, and have forgotten the passwords that are necessary to gain admittance to them. Some of these organizations that I entered disappointed me very greatly. On the whole, I think I have not received, personally, any benefit from secret lodges and associations worth mentioning.

I am very sorry, on the other hand, that I am forced to say, to be perfectly honest, that some of the secret organizations of this country appear to do more for their poor and sick, than do some of our churches for theirs. This confession I regret to make, but in justice to all it ought to be made.

Before proceeding further, there is a fundamental question we ought to consider, and that is this: Can two persons have, in common, a secret, for any reason whatever; and if two may have a secret in common, why may not those two under circumstances communicate that secret to a third person, and then the three to ten or twenty or a hundred other persons? And if these ten or a hundred persons can be associated in one place, city or town, why cannot some of that number go to some other city, town or county and organize, and so also in a dozen cities or towns and throughout the world?

And if they can meet in this way without any charter or state authority, why may they not also meet and organize under state or national authority and charter?

There seems to be,—let us be perfectly frank and fair in this discussion,—there seems to be some worthy authority, both ecclesiastical and civil, for such association. Did not Christ and his disciples have secrets that were not given to the public? Indeed, there were matters in the fraternity of the disciples that it would not have been policy or wisdom to have communicated to those outside of that communion.

And is it not true that the church, during the early ages of Christianity, protected itself by organization? The symbolizations found in the catacombs were known only to the fraternity of Christians. I presume we need not question the statement that there were secret organizations among them, and that they had their passwords and signs, and could communicate in ways that the outside world knew not of. And under certain circumstances our churches at the present time hold secret sessions, and no one disputes their right to do so. Would it not be unwise for them, under certain circumstances, not to order secret sessions?

And then in state matters we know that affairs are sometimes discussed in secret. There is in the state a secret service, and the civil law recognizes certain matters as privileged. There may be communications between a counsel and his client, between the physician and his patient, between the clergyman and his parishioner, that the court in some States will not allow to be divulged; and in all our States these communications, under ordinary circumstances, are regarded as privileged matters.

It would seem, therefore,—would it not?—that our fundamental question must be answered in the affirmative: that two or more persons may have a secret, and may organize under the authority of the state to hold that secret.

So far, I presume, we may all agree. The next question is this: What are the conditions under which two or more persons may be justified in forming what is termed a secret organization? Could not this properly be done for mutual protection in times of trouble? Great perils are come upon us, we will say, or upon a community; may not two or more persons unite for personal and mutual protection, and unite in secret organization, and even unite under bonds or under the most solemn promises not to divulge the proceedings or the purposes of that organization?

May not persons also thus unite for the protection of society in certain emergencies? and for the protection of the state? and for the protection of any of our civil, ecclesiastical and religious institutions? It seems to me that without hesitation any person in this convention could answer all these questions in the affirmative. Indeed, unless we admit that two or more persons may unite in an organization, chartered or not chartered, for personal protection, or for the protection of society, or for the protection of the state, or for the protection of our civil, educational and religious institutions, we ought at once to dissolve this meeting and disband the organization under whose auspices we have been called together.

The next question that confronts us is this: Do conditions frequently exist such as would justify the forming of secret organizations, or do such conditions exist at the present time? If I were a little more thoroughly informed I might not take the attitude on this question that I now do; but with my present light it does seem to me that such conditions do exist at the present time. There are patriotic organizations, as you may know, now forming in the East and in the West. They are forming for the protection of our civil, educational and religious institutions, against another organization that is thought to be a great peril in our country. The profound conviction in many hearts is this, that treasonable organizations must be met by patriotic organizations; and I am not prepared to say that such patriotic organizations shall not have their grips and passwords.

Our fourth question is this: Under what conditions should Christian people decline to have anything to do with secret societies? and under what conditions should secret societies be investigated by the state and even be abolished by law?

Our answer is, that when any secret organization, of whatever name or character, is dangerous to the individual; or when it is dangerous to the state; or when it is dangerous to society, then Christian people should withdraw from it, and the state should investigate it, and, if need be, abolish it altogether.

The next question in order is this: Are there such organizations at the present time? I presume there is not a well-informed person in this audience but would answer that question in the affirmative.

Let us enumerate a few of them. I suppose every person here would say that the Clan-na-Gael is an organization dangerous to the individual; in the promotion of its own interests it is often dangerous to society; and it is dangerous to the state. If this be so, then no Christian can be a Clan-na-Gael, and the state has a right to investigate that society, and if it discovers there what we have supposed, then the state ought to abolish it; and not only that, but the members of it ought at once to be sent back to their native country.

May not the same be said of the Mafia? Unquestionably it is dangerous to the individual; it is murderous, having caused the death of persons obnoxious to it. It is a peril to the safety of the individual, to the safety of society, and to the safety of the state. Therefore, no Christian can be a member of it; and further, we should at once demand of the state to investigate this outlandish organization without longer delay, and if these charges are found to be true, then the Mafia ought to be abolished, and those who are members of it ought to be put under arrest.

There are certain orders of Nihilists and of Socialists that appear to stand in about the same relation to the individual, to society and to the state as do the Clan-na-Gael and the Mafia. They should receive, of course, the same treatment.

And the Mormon church is likewise to be placed in this classification, for it has been a murderer; it has made attacks upon the individual and upon society and upon the state, and would be a greater mischief than it now is if it had the power. At least there are grounds enough for the most thorough investigation, and abolishment, it seems to me, of the Mormon church from this country.

There is still another organization, the "Society of Jesus," which we cannot regard otherwise than a peril in this country, and in all countries where it exists. So great a peril is this order, that its members have been expelled from country after country, time and again. And we do not hesitate to say that enough is already known of this "Society of Jesus" to justify the state in making a thorough investigation of its rules, of its oaths, of the obligations that rest upon its members, and of its purposes, and if they are found to be dangerous to the individual, to society or to the state, all Christians must withdraw from it and that pestilential order should be abolished without longer delay, and every Jesuit in this country should be sent flying!

We are now in position to speak of the Freemasonry order, and the Odd-fellow order, and of some other orders that take about the same rank. The question to be settled—the question for you to settle, before making war on these organizations, is this: Are these orders dangerous to the individual? Are they dangerous to society? Are they dangerous to the state? Do they sometimes defeat the ends of law and justice by shielding the membership? If so, then the same course must be pursued with these organizations as with the others. If statements that have been published are true, then to be consistent we must demand a reform that would amount to a revolution; otherwise the indictment against them should not be longer withheld. The Christian membership should withdraw and the state should enter the halls where the meetings are held and take possession of their belongings. It must be clear to any unprejudiced person that any organization that stands between the claims of justice and its membership is a menace to the state. That any organization that takes into its own hands the punishment of an offending member by injuring his business or person should be frowned upon by every law-abiding citizen.

And we must go one step further and say that since Christianity is of supreme advantage to the individual, to society and to the state, it follows that any organization that is detrimental to Christianity, any organization that interferes in any way with the effectiveness of Christianity, whether it be Masonry, or Odd-fellowship, Good Templarism or anything else, ought not to receive the support of any one who bears the name of Christian.

Every Christian who is a member of any of these orders should therefore weigh carefully all these matters, and if he finds that his lodge is guilty of the charges that have been reiterated, or that it is taking time and money that more properly belong to Christianity, or that it is detrimental in any other way to Christian faith and work, then there is but one course for him to pursue, and that is to sever his connection and no more be known as a lodgeman.

FLIMSY APOLOGIES FOR THE LODGE.

[From an address by the late ex-President Jonathan Blanchard before the National American and Prohibition Convention, Lincoln Hall, Washington City, Feb. 22, 1884.]

Let us examine the whole secret-lodge system, of which Masonry is the mother and type.

Its apologists are wont to say, families, churches, senates, juries and camps have their secrets; and these justify the lodge.

The answer is: Secret societies are not families or churches. The lodge is human; the family and church, creations of God. They rest on the words of Christ, "What God hath joined let no man put asunder;" and "This do in remembrance of me." On the contrary, secret societies rest on art, and, only appeal to God to enforce the contrivance and give fealty to the clan. The first family was a church, and worshiped; and the proper principle of both is love. The artificial motive of the lodge is terror. The family swears one man and one woman to love and keep to each other; the lodge binds a promiscuous body of men together by penalties and pains to be enforced or inflicted by unknown hands. Wedlock begins and is perfected in love. The lodge commences, like prostitution, in a joke, is sanctioned by blasphemy, and ends in swindling and secret advantages. Therefore, to call a family a secret society, as many do, is to put the veiled sanctities and pure blandishments of a home on a level with the rollickings of a brothel, and confound the mercenary grimaces of a hunger-pinched harlot with the pure blushes of a bride. This is to mock God who made the family.

Nor are lodges senates. True, to avoid peril, senates close their doors, as men lock their trunks when thieves are looking on. But the injunction of secrecy is taken off when the peril is passed; while the lodge demands concealment till death, seals the Mason's lips, and makes his silence perpetual.

Again, secret societies are not juries. A jury is a band of independent men, sworn by their "verdict," or true word, to do justice to their equals and the equals of each other before the law; being amenable to the independent God, who cannot be bribed, and, who will not bribe. The lodge is a body of superiors and inferiors, sworn to concealment, the upper from the lower, and all from the outside world; not to do justice, but to get and give secret advantages. And they are amenable to a "Master," who is amenable to a "Grand Master," who is amenable to a "Sovereign Grand Commander," each of whom is a frail, needy, and selfish man like themselves.

True, the juryman during the trial must be shut from those whose silver might turn him into a Judas Iscariot. But the seclusion of the jury is not the secrecy of the lodge. If Barabbas is a Mason the lodge requires the jury to find for Barabbas and condemn Christ.

Nor again, are lodges camps. "The Cincinnati" and the "Grand Army" were contrived after the fighting was done. Battles, it is true, must have their concealments. But the private exploits of the veteran become the stories of his children, while the secrecy imposed by lodges, brigands and banditti, are perpetual.

Thus the lodge is neither family, church, senate, jury nor camp. It is a civil and religious fungus; no more like the church or state than a wen or cancer is like the human body, which it disfigures and destroys. And to justify the sinister secrecy of Freemasonry from its semblance to the wholesome privacies of the household, church or state, is as illogical and irrational as to reason from the semblance of "proud flesh" to flesh in a healthy man, in order to prove that cancer is health.

WHY THE SUNDAY LAW SHOULD STAND.

1. No new reasons are urged against the law. All now presented were considered at the time of its enactment. (See Congressional Record, May 26, 27; July 10-20.)

2. All the old reasons for the law, which secured in both Houses the memorable majorities in its favor, remain unanswered. (See Record, as above.)

3. There are many new reasons for supporting the law, including great ratification meetings in leading cities; the acceptance by the directory of the conditioned appropriation; and the enactment by the commission of the Sunday-closing rule. The following was signed by the directory's officers:

"Be it resolved by the Board of Directors of the Columbian Exposition, Chicago, August 18, 1892, that the appropriation made by the act of Congress, approved August 5, 1892, is hereby accepted upon the conditions therein named. H. N. Higinbotham, President; H. O. Edwards, Secretary.

ANSWERS TO OBJECTIONS.

1. It is objected that recently published letters of several eminent divines indicate a change of sentiment in the churches.

The answer is that letters received by one of the undersigned from the two most eminent of these divines indicate that they have been misunderstood and do not favor such an opening as is contemplated, and that the sentiment of the churches for closing has not been weakened, but intensified. It should be remembered that only two Episcopal bishops out of the twenty-five that contributed to the independent symposium of bishops were for opening. All the other Protestant bishops, numbering nearly one hundred, except one Afro-American, were for closing.

No churches, acting officially in their national conferences, have declared for opening. But one of our number has gathered vouchers to validate substantially the estimates of Senator Hawley and Congressman Dingley that the petitions for closing represent, including the families of the petitioners, forty millions of our population.

2. It is objected that workingmen now ask for Sunday opening.

The answer is that the Federation or Labor officers were at work for opening, and the Knights of Labor had refused to vote for closing, before the law was passed. Some in these bodies, then as now, favored the law.

The railway engineers, the Farmers' Alliance, by its Ocala resolutions, and some other labor unions are on record in favor of the law. There are more workingmen in churches than in labor unions, which include only a million or two of the twenty millions of wage-earners in the United States.

3. It is objected that Sunday closing would promote crime.

The answer is that Centennial Mayor Stokeley, of Philadelphia, and Rev. T. A. Fernley, Secretary of the Philadelphia Sabbath Association, have both testified to the contrary, with police statistics showing a remarkably small increase in the arrests during the six months of the Fair.

In conclusion, permit us to say that the continuance of this agitation for Sunday opening is alienating from the Fair the sympathy, by offending the conscience, of a great multitude of the staunchest and truest citizens of the Republic.

The undersigned, spontaneously gathered here, with others, from many sections of the country, unite in the above statements in defense of Christianity, law and labor, knowing as we do that every step toward the secularization of the Lord's day is an advance toward the enslavement of labor.

Elliott F. Shepard, New York; President American Sabbath Union; Editor Mail and Express. J. H. Knowles, New York; Cor. Secretary American Sabbath Union. H. H. George, Beaver Falls, Pa.; Field Secretary American Sabbath Union. J. F. Hurst, Washington, D. C.; Bishop M. E. Church. Wilbur F. Crafts, Pittsburg, Pa.; Editor Christian Statesman; Honorary Secretary Pennsylvania Sabbath Association. R. V. Hunter, Terre Haute, Indiana; Chairman Sabbath Observance Committee, United States Christian Endeavor. Jesse W. Brooks, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Chairman Sabbath Observance Com., General Synod Ref'd Ch. of America. A. A. Robbins, Brooklyn; Chairman New York State Sabbath Observance Committee. Joseph Cook, Boston Monday Lecturer; Editor of "Our Day." Geo. S. Mott, Flemington, N. J.; President New Jersey Sabbath Union. L. S. Coffin, Fort Dodge, Iowa; President Iowa Sabbath Association; Ag't Brotherhood R. R. Trainmen. C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.; President Sabbath Association of Illinois, and President Wheaton College. F. A. McCarroll, Shippensburg, Pa.; Presbyterian Cumberland Valley Sabbath Association. T. A. Fernley, Cor. Sec. Philadelphia Sabbath Association. J. W. Woodside, Philadelphia, Pa.; U. S. Commissioner Columbian Exposition. Herrick Johnson, Chicago, Ill., Pres. Chicago Ministerial Alliance. C. B. Botsford, Boston; President Massachusetts Sunday-Protective League. C. B. Ramsdell, Pastor North Pres. Church, Washington, D. C. F. A. Dony, Representing Scranton and Wilkes-Barre, Pa. Thos. D. Christie, President St. Paul's Institute, Tarsus, Asia. A. H. Plumb, Boston, Member Prudential Com. A. B. C. F. M. Mrs. S. D. La Petra, Pres. Dist. Col. W. C. T. U. Mrs. Mary E. Catlin, Supt. Sabbath Observance, Dist. Col. W. C. T. U. William Adams, Pres. Evangelical Alliance, Boston, Mass. H. A. Thompson, Columbus, Sec. Ohio Sabbath Association. Green Clay Smith, pastor Metropolitan Baptist Church, Washington, D. C. J. H. Leiper, Philadelphia, Pa., Field Sec. Pennsylvania Sabbath Association. J. R. Stokes, stonemason and carver, Washington, D. C.

Washington, D. C., January 13 1893.

GEMS FROM THE "CATHOLIC REVIEW."

In his administration of the church the Pope is not infallible. He may make mistakes. He may act injudiciously, imprudently, prematurely.

As for the Catholic Review, it has never had, and will never have, any predilections or prejudices contrary to the mind of the church.

It is to the influence of the Catholic immigrants of the last fifty years that we must principally attribute the immense improvement that in that time has been witnessed in the manners of the American people, and especially in cities.

Eighty thousand dollars are needed for the seminary in Baltimore that is to train priests for the colored missions in the United States, and Father Slattery is trusting that St. Joseph (husband of the Virgin Mary), under whose invocation it has been placed, will provide the funds to build it.

The Redemptorists, up at Mott Haven, when they visit their parishioners, bless their homes, beginning at the basements and going up over the entire building. This is a beautiful and devout Catholic practice.

An incident that proves the Pontifical warnings against the activity of Freemasonry in Italian towns to be but too well justified has just occurred at Genoa. The editor of that excellent little paper, L'Eco d'Italia, having printed as a leaflet the Holy Father's Letter to the Italians, asked permission of the Questura for the public sale of the copies. No such permission was a matter of legal necessity, the laws on freedom of the press sufficiently saving the situation; but the editor asked for it as a guarantee for the salesmen against police suspicion and molestation from Liberal loungers; it was immediately and summarily (and illegally) refused.

No one acquainted with the history of the United States can fail to see what a crude civilization it was that flourished here before the immigrants from Ireland and Germany began to arrive in sufficient numbers to make themselves felt.

From its center in the Vatican it (Romanism) reaches the farthest confines of the world. Yet in no country is it a foreign government. For that which is Catholic cannot be foreign anywhere.

THE BOYS.

What shall we do with them? Make Christian men of them. How? By the thousands they are growing up in sin and going down in ruin; from the slums they come and go, and from Christian homes also. Save them, but how? Are the church and the Gospel a failure where boys are the subjects? Thus we must conclude when a mock army is organized to save the boys. If there is a failure anywhere it is a failure of the church and not of the Gospel, and no mock army will ever take the place of a backslidden, God-forsaken church, and better the case at all.

Lieutenant-Colonel Silliman of Michigan is out in a defense of this substitute for the church and Gospel. He would have the "Boys' Brigade" in the place of the church, and the manual of the army in place of the Gospel. His letter to the Detroit Journal presents the case. He says: "To really benefit a boy an organization should offer him moral, mental and physical improvement." This is right, and the home, the church and the school furnish all these. But we are told that this military society for boys is the desideratum. To prove this, Lieut. Silliman tells us of a Sabbath-school teacher who led him to believe that morality is a "long, pale, serious face, exhibiting an injured expression to every one, and on everything that was gay." He leaves his readers with the impression that this is the morality of the church and Sunday-school, and that the boys must have the mock army to teach them the true morality. In all that he only betrays his incompetency to tell us what to do with the boys. The Christ-type of morality is not as he describes it; it is the most vigorous, rosy-cheeked, laughing, happy, whole-souled, pure, noble, and manly of any type of character this earth ever saw or heaven ever produced.

After misrepresenting the church and Sunday-school, he undertakes to define morality, and only succeeds in telling us of the kind of morality which he expects from his mock army. "It is a spirit of honor, gallantry, and soldierly pride." This might make dudes, but never so much as a decent coat for true Christian morality. Surely the Christian is a man of honor or he is no Christian at all. He is gallant and chivalrous, and he is brave, but he is all this in his heart and not merely on the outside. A man may have the soldierly pride which is evidenced in fine accoutrements; he may be a gallant, the most polished; he may have what is known as a soldier's honor, and yet be unlike Christ. Shall we call that a moral character which is Christless? Never.

This is all that we can expect. When a worldly-minded man undertakes to teach the church of Jesus Christ we must expect worldly doctrines and worldly methods, and the product will surely be worldly. All that this mock army proposes to do, then, is to make good worldlings of the boys; it does not save them. Then away with it. We want the boys saved from sin. A polished sinner is no more to be desired than any other kind. A proud sinner is as sure of a fall as any one. A sinner who has honor, without honoring his God, is not honorable in the sight of God. A boy may not swear, drink, lie, steal, or be impure and yet be unsaved. We want the boys saved from, not polished in, all outward wrong, and from all love of sin. The power of Jesus does this and not a mock army.

We will take the vilest boy in this city and in thirty minutes at Jesus' feet in humble penitence make more of a man of him than a mock army drill of a life time will do. We will make him a truer gentleman, a more desirable companion, more intelligent, a better business man, and a more Christ-like man with a few years in a Christian home, the Sunday-school, and the public school, than all the mockery of the army can ever do for him. Let us have Christ first and then what he instituted, the home, the church, the school, and the state and we will do the boys good; but away with all imitation of soldiers or mockery of the army.—Wesleyan Methodist.

NEW ENGLAND LETTER.

A journey to the stars.—A Boston notion.—The death of Bishop Brooks.—Harvard and total abstinence.—Salem factory girls and snuff-dipping.—The license question in the Legislature.—Dr. Graves' case and Miss Borden's.

A lecturer recently illustrated the distance to the fixed stars by bidding his hearers imagine themselves bound for Centauri, on a railroad train running sixty miles an hour, at the moderate fare of two cents per one hundred miles. But even at this extremely cheap rate, a single ticket would cost more than the national debt of England, and the traveler, if he reached his journey's end, would have to calculate on living 48,663,000 years, a longevity beside which Methuselah's fades to a vanishing point. I remember with curious vividness a dream I once had after inhaling ether. I imagined myself on board one of those railroad trains, "traveling with the speed of a cannon ball," which was used in a school textbook of my childhood to illustrate our distance from the sun. Our high rate of speed did not trouble me, but I felt nervous lest I should miss one of the stopping-places—I do not know whether it was Mars or Saturn,—until the conductor touched me on the arm with a reassuring, "All right," and the rest of my celestial journeyings remained unchronicled. But it was a unique experience even in a dream. The telescopes are bringing us so close to other worlds that I do not wonder that M. Flammarion believes in the possibility of intercourse with their inhabitants at some future day. Read his description of Mars in his latest work:—"To see before one in space another world, with wide reaches of land, and sea, and stream; with sun-gilt areas and tracts of snow of dazzling whiteness, all turning slowly from bright day to shadowy night and on again to day—our own world in miniature—to see this and much more, brings us face to face with the greatest of mysteries, that of universal and eternal life . . . Earth becomes only one province of the universe, and we feel the existence of our unknown brothers in other lands of the Infinite Creator."

A correspondent of one of our daily papers, writing from the West, states that Boston news, as reported in the papers published the other side of Mississippi, "relates chiefly to the railroads and to pugilism," though he mentions reading a dispatch in one of the papers of New Mexico which gave an inventory of Whittier's estate, followed by the announcement of a prize-fight between two pugilists of the Pilgrim City. This must be gratifying to the æsthetic Boston soul. But so long as they support a daily press filled with such things, to the exclusion of more refined and elevated matter, I do not see that Boston people, with all their Browning clubs and everything else that savors of "high culture," can reasonably complain. By the way, a new enterprise has just been started which may possibly give her back some of her pristine glory as a seaport town. A company has been organized which proposes to run a line of unsinkable steamships between here and Europe, rendered so by making them with double bottoms filled with small air-tanks so that they will be like mammoth life-boats and outride the severest storms. The ship will float even if filled with water. Such a line will doubtless be very popular, and New York may have to look out for her laurels. And if in addition to all this the company can find out some device for preventing sea-sickness among the passengers, I am sure the line could not begin to accommodate all its patrons, and the stock would pay higher dividends than any other known.

The death of Bishop Brooks removes from our midst a preacher who was said, by no less an authority than Canon Farrar, to have no equal among the English clergy. The bishopric of Massachusetts was a costly honor. It entailed upon him an amount of hard work which, according to the verdict of friends and physicians, cut him off in his prime. It is a curious fact that at the time of his graduation, when doubtful what profession to choose, he consulted with the President of his Alma Mater, Harvard University, and was advised by him to lay aside all thoughts of the ministry, because, owing to the impediment in his speech, he "could never be a preacher;" which shows that the wisest human counsel may prove to be the most utter foolishness. That rapidity of utterance which made him the despair of reporters, and Canon Kingsley's "strange, sweet, high-pitched voice," were both due to the same cause, an impediment in the speech; and yet both conquered the difficulty nature had so ungraciously put in the way at the very outset of their careers, and became the most noted of pulpit orators.

Speaking of Harvard, its friends would have done better to let the statement of a Cambridge writer in the Voice, that "the influence of Harvard is always counted against total abstinence," go uncontradicted, for by taking the trouble to deny it they have only brought the real facts of the case into more unpleasant prominence. The papers have made us familiar with the drinking habits of many of the students; but what can be expected when President Eliot is himself not a total abstainer—was that remarkable Utah speech of his an after-dinner effort?—and liquor is served at all the class reunions. Certainly the higher education as represented by Harvard ought to make a better showing for temperance than this.

The Salem News is authority for the statement that over three tons of snuff is consumed annually in that quaint old seaport town, and, most surprising of all, that most of it is "dipped" or chewed by the girls who work in the factories, after the fashion of our Southern sisters. Doubtless most of them are foreigners; still it is not pleasant to know that a practice so filthy, and one which we supposed was confined to the poor white "cracker" of the South, has gained a footing on New England soil. It is something the W. C. T. U. had better look into.

Our Legislature will be called upon this winter to decide some important questions. The saloon is wide-awake and active, and will try to get a repeal of the law passed four years ago which limited the number of saloons to the proportion of the population. There would be no fear of their success if those who call themselves temperance men had a tithe of their wisdom instead of allowing themselves to be caught by chaff. I know nothing of the Presbyterian minister, Rev. Mr. Brown of Fall River, whose bill for a special license committee in every city will soon come before the House; but he is doubtless one of those well-meaning men who cannot, to use a rather vulgar colloquialism, "see beyond their own nose." The commission is to consist of three members, of which the mayor shall be one, ex-officio, the second member to be appointed by the board of trade, and the third—here comes the richest part of it—to be annually appointed by the clergymen of the city. In case they fail to act, and one can easily imagine that there are some city pastors who would not relish even such a quasi endorsement of the traffic, the appointment shall be made by the mayor; the price of a license not to be over $500 or less than $200. Thus he hopes to take the saloon out of politics and make the question a non-partisan one. As if a non-partisan bar-room would not murder soul and body as fast and make as many widows and orphans as one of the most pronounced political stripe!

So Dr. Graves is cleared, and will probably get the $10,000 left him by the woman of whom there is overwhelming evidence that he was the murderer. The doctor is a Mason, and it was prophesied at the outset that his Masonic brethren would clear him—as they have. But note the difference in the case of Miss Borden, still confined in Taunton jail while the government strangely delays her trial. This is a common thing enough on the part of the defendant in a criminal case when he has a shrewd lawyer and the evidences are all against him; but for the government to hesitate and dally in this way is one of the strangest things in a case which has been nothing but mystery all the way through. Thinking people can see but one reason for this delay on the part of the prosecution—the inherent weakness on their side. A singular statement in the Taunton papers, that the authorities were putting off the trial, in the belief that if she was not already insane she would be made so by the long suspense, and the case therefore never be brought into court, savors of the darkest days of the Inquisition. This long imprisonment of a probably innocent woman is an outrage, and strengthens the impression that the government has little or no new evidence to bring against her. Query: If Miss Borden had been a man and a Freemason instead of a woman and a W. C. T. U., would she now be languishing in jail while the prosecution, on one pretext or another, delays her trial? The triumphant acquittal of Dr. Graves is sufficient reply.

ELIZABETH E. FLAGG.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 25, 1893.

The House of Representatives may be just as earnestly in favor of the enactment of a stringent quarantine law at the present session of Congress as the Senate, but, if it is, it takes a queer way of showing it. Instead of taking the bill which had already passed the Senate and making the desired changes by means of amendments, which would have given the measure a privileged legislative standing, the House took up and passed an entirely new bill, which sends it to the bottom of the already full Senate calendar. Your correspondent has no charges to make, but is not surprised that others should charge members of the House with trying in this roundabout way to defeat quarantine legislation. As the matter now stands there is a Senate quarantine bill on the calendar of the House and a House quarantine bill on the calendar of the Senate. If the House had passed the Senate bill with amendments it would have been sent to a conference committee, privileged to report and have its report acted upon at any time, which would have made the new law a certainty.

Strange how people are prone to overlook things in their immediate midst. I was reminded of this by some facts and figures in an address delivered by Judge Kimball (who presides over one of Washington's police courts, and is therefore competent to speak of the evil wrought by intoxicating drink), to a temperance meeting. There were during the last fiscal year more than 26,000 arrests in Washington, the greater number of which were attributable directly to the use of intoxicating liquor, while nearly all of the remainder could be traced indirectly to the same cause. The revenue received by the District of Columbia from liquor licenses is about $75,000 a year, while the traffic carried on under those licenses necessitates the spending of at least $500,000 a year to pay for the apprehending, prosecuting and punishing of crime directly or indirectly arising therefrom.

The art of saying much in a few words is possessed in a marked degree by Rev. Dr. Milburn, the blind chaplain of the House. In his opening prayer yesterday morning he gave a specimen of that art in referring to the deaths of Justice Lamar and Bishop Phillips Brooks. He said: "O Eternal God, we come before thee with bowed heads and hearts filled with sadness, mourning the death of an eminent Justice of the Supreme Court, more than once a member of this House, and likewise of the most illustrious Christian preacher of the time. While we commemorate the virtues and rare grace and charm of the justice, the wonderful talents and dedication of himself on the part of the bishop to the services of his fellow men, we pray that their sudden deaths may come as an admonishment to our own hearts." This prayer is perfect enough in construction and expression to find a place in the scrap-book of every student of the English language and every lover of condensed expression.

Rev. Sam Jones delivered several lectures here this week, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. The large audiences which listened to him indicate that his drawing qualities are still unimpaired.

Nothing was done this week in either Senate or House about the proposed bill allowing the World's Fair to be opened on Sunday. The House committee had a meeting yesterday and decided to defer the consideration of this bill for another week. This action looks a little suspicious, in view of the known sentiments of two-thirds of the members of that committee. And to add to the suspicion nearly all of the people who were brought here to work for the passage of the bill have been sent home. It is believed that these tactics have been adopted for the purpose of making the opponents of the bill believe that hope of getting it passed has been abandone. Such is not the case, however, as time will shortly show.

The Senate is now considering the bill which recently passed the House, providing for the purchase and opening to settlement of the land belonging to the Cherokee Indians, popularly known as the Cherokee strip. An attempt will be made to amend the bill by providing for the appointment of a commission for the extinguishment of national or tribal titles to lands in the Indian Territory. This bill is to be before the Senate when the anti-option bill is not, until it is disposed of. The anti-option bill will be voted on, and passed, next Tuesday, unless something occurs to prevent the consummation of the agreement to that effect made this week.

Several members of the board of lady managers of the World's Fair are here looking after an additional appropriation which they have asked for. They have asked that $10,000 of the appropriation be in souvenir silver quarters, bearing on one side the head of Queen Isabella and on the other a picture of the Woman's Building at the Fair.

REFORM NEWS.

SEED-SOWING IN SNOW.

PEORIA, Ill., Jan. 28, 1893.

Letters from points where Bro. M. A. Gault and myself had corresponded promised openings for work in Bureau, Mercer and Peoria counties, Illinois. Our N. C. A. president must hasten on to the vicinity of the State convention at Coulterville, and I agreed to make as good a substitute as possible in the districts named.

Thursday, Jan 19th, at 10 P. M., I reached my first resting place with a loved brother and his interesting family near Kewanee, having spent more or less time during the day at Batavia, Aurora, and Princeton, soliciting subscribers and arranging for future meetings.

Brief but cheering interviews were had along the way with Rev. Bro. Challman of Batavia and Bro. W. H. Chandler, evangelist for the State Home Missionary Society of Illinois.

At Princeton, Mrs. Hodgman, the unwearied friend of every Christian reform, was entertaining a large delegation of W. C. T. U. ladies, attending a district convention. In the short time I could tarry, arrangements were made with Revs. Nelson, Petersen, and Leidman for future addresses in their churches. Another pastor, who has in his church several members of secret societies, promises to begin a faithful instruction of these brethren and get them out of their lodges with God's help. At Kewanee another pastor was moved to give more faithful instruction to his young people.

At 8:30 P. M. of Friday, light gleamed over the snow from Bro. Wm. Pinkney's farm-house home, three miles east of Viola, and I was soon forgetting another weary day. Bro. P. is pastor of two Wesleyan churches, one some six miles east, the other three miles west of Viola. He preaches three times and drives nearly twenty-four miles on every Lord's day. Morning and afternoon the Word of God was opened to reveal the nature and danger of lodge altars, in these two churches. The brethren heard with interest and sympathy, and gave good collections to our Association. In the evening services for salvation were resumed in the Hopewell church at which I had the pleasure of assisting on Monday and Thursday evenings.

Bro. Calhoun, pastor of the U. P. church in Viola, proposed that I speak a-half hour for our reform in the Sabbath-school Institute for the Fourth district of Illinois. The convention was well attended from all parts of the district, from Mercer to Henry, Stark and Rock Island counties. Something interfered with the anti-lodge speech, though I was confident I had some profitable facts and arguments for all S. S. teachers. Time was promised again and again, but I had to take train at 3 P. M. Wednesday for New Windsor, where an address was promised that evening in the large Lutheran church. Rev. Mr. Lindstroem received me cordially and a good audience was out. A revival service and singing-school in the two other churches, and a theatrical company in the only hall, took away some of the people of the small village. Bro. Lindstroem is the only resident pastor, and with a large and scattered congregation is a very busy man. He has an interesting and intelligent people, whom it is a pleasure to address.

Friday noon I was again in Peoria, and have work for the Sabbath and Tuesday and Thursday evenings appointed, with enough for the intervening spaces to make rest a pleasure after a few days. The city is just now agitated with the Romanist aggressions of Bishop Spalding, who rules with a high hand in political and business affairs. He has presumed too much on his power and a reaction is sweeping over the people. The American Protective Association is throwing its drag-net into this commotion and securing hosts of members. Pastors are besieged, and the second question everybody seems to ask or expect is, Have you joined the A. P. A.? May God help to turn this tide truthward.

HENRY L. KELLOGG.

ILLINOIS STATE CONVENTION.

COULTERSVILLE, Ill., Jan. 26, 1893.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—Again we have great reason to praise God for another successful State Convention. Rev. Ira D. Hicks, who predicted an unusual storm period for the 24th and 25th, failed entirely in his calculations for Southern Illinois. We could not have had nicer weather, better roads, or more beautiful moonlight.

For several years there had been a lull in this reform agitation, and some had predicted that we could not revive the people's interest; but such fears were all disappointed. The Covenant church, one of the largest in town, was filled at nearly all the sessions. What was unusual, it was well-filled during the forenoon session. Good delegations came in from Sparta, Oakdale and surrounding towns. The addresses and discussions were excellent. The people were in their seats promptly and listened with a calm, earnest attention till the close. Quite a large list of Cynosure subscribers was obtained, and the contributions to the cause were liberal. A revival spirit pervaded all the sessions, increasing in interest. Many said the cause of reform had never before received such an impetus in this part of the State.

Rev. R. W. Chesnut, of Marissa, was elected president and Rev. J. R. Wylie, of Coulterville, secretary. Bro. Wylie will send the official report to-morrow.

Bro. Chesnut led in the singing, using the old version of the Psalms. Nearly all the congregation joined, and seldom have we heard such soul-inspiring praise. There is a sublime pathos in the singing of the old Bible Psalms which can be produced by no other songs.

Each session was opened by a season of earnest devotional exercises.

It was a serious disappointment that Dr. D. H. Coulter was prevented by sickness from coming. He was obliged to write, a few days before the convention, "I am so sorry; I did set so much store by this visit and participation in the convention. But the Lord's will be done."

Providentially Rev. Wm. Weir, of Washington, Pa., the field secretary of the National Reform Association, was with us and spoke in Dr. Coulter's place.

Bro. Wier gave us a splendid address; so did all the speakers. They were Rev. Messrs. J. L. Chesnut, N. A. Whitehill, J. R. Wylie, C. M. Ritchie, Mrs. A. K. McKelvey, Miss Mary Patterson, Mrs. J. M. Sloane, Rev. R. W. Chesnut, R. C. Reed, and D. S. Faris.

The first morning session was nearly all occupied in discussing a series of strong resolutions.

The Glee Club furnished some inspiring songs. There was abundant entertainment provided for all the delegates.

Coulterville must be put down as a first-class convention town. It is doubtful if any town in the State could furnish an anti-secret convention such an interested audience.

Much of the success of this convention must be attributed to the untiring efforts of the chairman, Rev. R. W. Chesnut, who planned my meetings for the last two weeks in Southern Illinois, and who was seconded in his efforts by Rev. J. R. Wylie, of Coulterville. The reformer's work would be comparatively easy if he could always have such helpers.

Some excellent letters were addressed to the convention. Two that were listened to with deep interest were from Dr. B. Carradine, of St. Louis,

J. P. Stoddard, of Boston, and from J. M. Sloane, of Oakdale, Ill.

A fuller report will be furnished next week. Let the friends take courage and praise God for the success of this truly inspiring convention.

M. A. GAULT.

THE PENNSYLVANIA STATE CONVENTION.

HOME HOTEL, PITTSBURGH, Pa.,

January 26, 1893.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—The time and place of the coming Pennsylvania State Anti-secret Convention has been decided upon. The time is February 27th and 28th. The place is Carnegie Music Hall, Allegheny City.

We have secured the finest hall in Western Pennsylvania. Its central location and general popularity will undoubtedly aid in securing a general attendance of the people.

The official call, together with the program, will be sent soon. Those who attend may expect a rare treat. There are to be a large number of brief addresses. Rev. J. S. T. Milligan is to speak on the principles that underlie our reform. Rev. D. C. Martin takes, as his theme, Secrecy as a temptation to crime. Rev. S. Collins will discuss the effect of secret societies in the temperance reform. It is hoped that Dr. H. H. George will favor us with a discussion of the labor lodges. Their legitimate fruit is very manifest at this time. With laboring men begging for the grocers' credit at Beaver Falls, because some lodge-boss has ordered them to cease the toil that provided the necessities for wife and children; with men on trial, accused of poisoning those who, contrary to their orders, sought to earn an honest living, who, perchance, were prompted to deeds of violence, expecting the lodge to stand between them and justice; surely there should be but one voice in this matter.

The better class here are, I believe, unanimous in protesting against these outward evil manifestations. Will they discover that their homes are not safe; that the government is not safe; that nothing is safe, while these lodges are tolerated, and rise in their might and put them away? Or will they sleep on until the rumbling volcano breaks forth and anarchy reigns? Our convention will afford an excellent opportunity to answer this question.

Brother Wm. Dillon, of the loyal U. B. church, Dayton, Ohio, writes that he can be with us. Those who heard this brother last year will be glad to hear him again.

Two Lutheran pastors have partially consented to address us. I trust I can announce their names in the program.

We are likely to have a treat in the musical line. Several young friends are interested; orchestra and quartette are being consulted.

Will not friends expecting to attend address me, care of the Home Hotel, Pittsburgh, in order that ample entertainment for those coming may be provided? I have mentioned the matter of entertainment to some of the friends, and there has been a ready response. Free entertainment will be provided for all those who write in time. The expense of this convention will be large. Any friends in the State desiring to aid in meeting it should send their contributions to the State treasurer, Rev. R. C. Wylie, Wilkesburg, Pa.

During the week past I have spoken three times. Sabbath morning I spoke in the Fairview U. P. church, eight miles from Beaver, Pa.; Rev. J. S. T. Milligan, pastor. Sabbath evening I addressed an audience in the R. P. church in the same neighborhood, Rev. Mr. Brownell, pastor. Monday evening the so-called sublime mysteries of the Masonic order were exposed to public view in the Fairview school-house. The meetings were all well-attended; as the sleighing was good, unless they were sick, the people could have no good excuse for remaining at home.

I very much enjoyed the hospitality so kindly extended by Brother and Sister Milligan. The warm soapstone at one's feet, on retiring, is more conducive to slumber than the "preacher's spare-bed," sometimes assigned to agents laying up treasures on high.

On calling at his home, I was disappointed in not meeting Dr. H. H. George. His son kindly accompanied me in canvassing for Cynosure subscribers. He is very popular among the young

(Continued on 9th page.)

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE WORLD'S FAIR AND SUNDAY OPENING.

WAUPACA, Wis., Jan. 17, 1893.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—I notice that those who favor and those who oppose the opening of the Fair on Sunday do so mainly on religious grounds.

It is held by Cardinal Gibbons, as well as by the municipal authorities of Chicago, that to have the gates open will be the most appropriate way of keeping a Christian Sabbath. It is not hard to see that this is but a make-believe on the part of those who desire Sunday opening, and that the real animus is simply and purely to make money.

For this reason the friends of temperance generally, without regard to their views of Sabbath laws, are inclined to favor Sunday closing. But to my mind these are not the reasons why the national government should legislate for or against Sunday closing.

It is not in the province of the government to enforce a religious observance of the Sabbath. "Congress can make no law establishing religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof." This does not prohibit, but rather enjoins the protection of religion, and the suppression of all immoralities that men may practice in the name of religion. Congress may and ought to protect its employes in the right to keep the Sabbath. It may, for this reason, suspend all national labor on the first or any other day of the week, and no one is wronged; but it simply cannot require the religious observance of the Sabbath. The reasons why we think the gates should not be opened on the first day of the week, are, first, that to pass a law requiring them to be opened, would be an invasion of the rights of the State of Illinois. This sovereign State has on her statute books a law which prohibits labor, except in certain contingencies, on Sunday. Whether this law was wise or unwise is not the question. Congress might legislate in harmony with it, but it has no right to repeal or invalidate a State law. And this is equally true of the permission that has been granted to sell liquors on the Fair grounds. This is an invasion of the municipal rights of the people of that part of the city. This alone is sufficient argument so far as Congress is concerned.

Second, I oppose the opening by the local authorities for the same reason; that it would violate a State law and would countenance the violation of the law by the 7,000 saloons which, by keeping open on Sunday, do more to promote crime than all other influences put together.

Third, the employes of the Fair need a rest day. It is their right, and it is essential in order that they do their work well. So long as there is a general agreement to keep the first day of the week, they ought to have that day. Say what they will, if the gates are open on Sunday, it will not be different from other days of the week.

Third, the opening of the Fair on Sunday will bring vast excursions on that day from all parts of the country, and will greatly increase the sale of liquors and tend to general demoralization. The general interests of morality will be promoted by Sunday closing. H. H. HINMAN.

THE POWERS OF DARKNESS AT GALVA.

GALVA, Ill., Jan., 1893.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—While it may not be pleasant nor seemly to report an evil work as prospering, yet it may be in place to "tell the truth and shame the enemy," for surely the greater the prosperity of such evils as lodgery and intemperance the greater the shame.

The lodge interest in this town and vicinity seems to be running high. In some cases the growth and prosperity is thought to be almost phenomenal. The Odd-fellows especially are having quite a revival of late, with many accessions. The Masons, the G. A. R., the A. O. U. W. and Woodmen are steadily gaining or, at least, holding their own.

For some reason I fail to hear much from the famous Red Men, and I suspect they are not in a very prosperous condition. Perhaps playing savage has "played out"—was too childish to last with grown children. But nothing seems to check the secrecy craze. Young men and older men are crowding into the different lodges as if their lives and salvation depended upon it; and the spirit of secret working and closed-mouth cunning is so common, and so much practiced, that open candor and truthfulness have almost become rare jewels. Alas for a people when these commendable traits of character are supplanted by secrecy and a want of veracity! Not only are the adherents of the lodge under a spirit of bondage and slavish fear, but the gag of secrecy is crowded into nearly every mouth, so that men and women outside dare not manifest any want of veneration for the lodge.

"Hands off" is everywhere understood, if not seen; and so strong is the lodge-rule that if a respectable dog should presume to move his tongue against the sacred thing he would doubtless suffer the loss of character, if not of life.

But rejected light goes out in darkness, and those who reject the Gospel truth are left to believe a lie. There was, in years gone by, an anti-secret element and influence sufficient to have saved this community from the domination of the lodge, but a spirit of indifference and compromise allowed the lodge to gain the ascendancy and crush out and trample down the truth and build up their system on the ruins thereof. Now it (lodgery) is the power that dictates and runs (so far as possible) everything in its own interest (the liquor traffic included), and those to whom it holds out the "royal scepter" may live; but otherwise it is much like martyrdom.

It is truly lamentable that right in an intelligent and Christian community, and in full blaze of Gospel light, the demons of the pit should, through an institution of men, bring about such a "reign of terror" that causes ministers and lawyers, good men and noble women, to close their mouths with fear, not daring to speak or write their honest convictions lest they bring down the wrath of the lodge tyrant upon them.

But those who are in the light, and hold the faith of a pure Gospel, should not fear, but "be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might;" for our God reigns, and has set up a kingdom that will crush out and destroy all these kingdoms and overthrow their rule; and his Christ, as the Conqueror, is going forth, and will bring to naught all these evil things.

Every plant not of God's planting shall be rooted up, for he will "destroy them which destroy [or corrupt] the earth"; for "that Wicked" the "Lord will consume with the spirit of his mouth, and destroy with the brightness of his coming." "Amen. Even so: come, Lord Jesus."

R. CANNING.

THE LODGE A DANGEROUS INSTITUTION.

WESLEYAN ACADEMY, }
WILBRAHAM, Mass., Jan. 16, '93. }

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—There are in this school two open debating societies, one of which was organized in 1826, and is commonly known as "Old Club."

Before this organization, on last Friday evening, was debated the question: "Resolved, That secret organizations are becoming a dangerous factor in society."

Fortunately we had present, as our guest, an aged, retired minister, and he, upon being invited to speak, told us of facts that had come under his observation; of how a murderer, who was a Mason, escaped punishment, through the influence of his society, although the evidence was all against him.

His earnest words caused a manifest impression on all who heard him; and when the vote was taken on the weight of argument, it was given to the affirmative.

Your paper is read with much interest. Yours truly,

ONSLow W. COMSTOCK.

HELP NEEDED FOR COLORED PEOPLE IN THE SOUTH.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Jan., 1893.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—Since the fight (about secrecy in the church), some of the prominent attendants have dropped off, but the congregation has increased in numbers of non-society people until there is not standing room.

A great number of new members of the church are young people, from ten to fifteen years of age; while some of the oath-bound disciples have taken their children from the church.

There are many old persons coming to my church who cannot read and who have no Bibles. The American Baptist Home Mission Society gives us a grant, but this does not begin to supply our needs.

We have three families who are in need of food and clothing. Please send me the names of some friends before whom I can lay the condition of my work.

I have a great many girls who do not know anything about housework; even grown women. Mrs. Woodhull, a white lady, has kindly consented to teach a class of these girls who belong to my church, from 12 to 18 years each, one day in every week. She also says that she will give something toward building a more commodious house, with a basement, the latter to be used for an industrial training-school. Many of our mothers know nothing about housework themselves and so cannot teach their girls.

If there is a Christian Woman's Association in your city, please tell them about us. You will remember that second-handed or old clothing is as good for one who needs it as a new garment, hat, or shoes. Supplies may be sent to

S. M. FISHER,

Pastor of Mt. Canaan Baptist church (colored),
No. 18 corner of Grand avenue and School street, Hot Springs, Ark.

LITERATURE.

CURRENT PERIODICALS.

Worthington's Magazine for February opens with a decidedly interesting paper by J. A. MacKnight, entitled Brigham Young: A Fair Sketch by One Who Knew Him. When a boy Mr. MacKnight, as a relative of the so-called prophet, was a member of Brigham Young's household. Mrs. Livermore presents the second paper of the entertaining series of personal reminiscences, In 'Ole Virginny'—Fifty Years Ago. In Zeph, Lida A. Churchill contributes a strong story, of which the teaching is: From the least thing to the greatest, be true. Do Women Love their Worshipers? is the striking title of a characteristic paper by Junius Henri Browne that will attract much attention. Miss Trot's Valentine, by Mary G. Woodhull, an appropriate February story, is based upon an ever-interesting incident. In the Story of the Tile Fish, Rene Bache gives an account of the destruction, supposed to be total, of this valuable edible fish, and of its re-discovery, after ten years, by the Grampus, a vessel in the service of the U. S. Fish Commission. The Regeneration of Camp Scott is a story by Albert Bigelow Paine. The illustration adds much interest to the story, since it shows the veritable old block-house of Camp Scott, as it stands to-day at Fort Scott, Kansas. The poetry of this number includes Clinton Scollard's In a Bazaar; the Winter verses, by Alice W. Rollins and Wm. Francis Barnard, and Eben E. Rexford's Sunset Fancy. The various departments are replete with interest for the ladies and children, and the entire magazine is highly creditable to contributors and publishers. Hartford, Conn.: A. D. Worthington & Co.

The Missionary Review of the World for February sustains the reputation of that excellent magazine for breadth of scope and for timeliness in its articles. The editor-in-chief, Dr. A. T. Pierson, contributes the second article of a series on Our World, a survey of the mission field at the present time, and a summing up of the forces and factors now at work for the extension of Christianity. Our Missionary Heroines—By Faith, is the title of an article by Dr. J. T. Gracey, who makes almost as imposing an array of examples of what faith has accomplished as St. Paul does in his letter to the Hebrews. Confucianism, by Rev. A. P. Happer, D.D., is a very able exposition of that religious system. Rev. A. J. Gordon, D.D., contributes the third article of a series on the Forerunners of Carey. Other articles of especial interest are: Training of Native Agents, by Rev. Edward Storow; Seventh Convention of Christian Workers, held in Boston in November, described by Rev. C. M. Southgate; Bulgaria and the Bulgarians, by Dr. Cyrus Hamlin, etc. The General Missionary Intelligence department is arranged by countries, each month's Review summing up the news from the various quarters of the globe in missionary lines. Published by Funk & Wagnalls Company, 18 and 20 Astor Place, New York City.

The complete stories in the forthcoming Midwinter Century include Goliath, a dog story by Thomas Bailey Aldrich.

The Rev. Henry van Dyke's article on The Voice of Tennyson, which is to appear in the next number of The Century, is in the nature of a critical estimate of the poet's influence upon life and letters.

The Midwinter (February) Century will contain two illustrated travel articles. One of them, Life in the Malay Peninsula, is descriptive of the palace and the people of the Maharajah of Johore, whose home is on the mainland opposite the English city of Singapore. The other is a vivid account of the routine of a whaleman's life, by the late James Temple Brown.

Rudyard Kipling will have a story of Indian monkeys in the February St. Nicholas.

IN BRIEF.

A man in Maine has built an immense lobster pond and stocked it this autumn with about seventy-five thousand lobsters.

The bees go to distances of from two to four miles in search of honey in good weather, and fly at the rate of seven miles an hour.

The organist at Cardiff church found several of the notes soundless. An examination revealed the fact that no fewer than six birds, including a robin, had built their nests in the pipes.

A crocodile which had "taken the pledge" was recently shot on the Daintree river, Queensland. The creature's stomach contained a Father Matthew temperance medal dated 1880.

Electrical science is now after the caterpillar. Alternate wires of zinc and copper, half an inch apart, attached to a battery, encircle a tree. The caterpillar mounts the tree and soon becomes a martyr.

The European rat is found all over the world. In hot or cold climates it flourishes, and wherever man has gone it has gone, and often secured a lodgment where man found it difficult or unpleasant to live.

In order to keep sea porgies through the summer the fishermen of Rhode Island have nets so arranged that the passing schools are led up into salt water ponds and the channels connecting with the ocean are closed.

Up to 1880 the shad was unknown in California waters. Young shad were sent there that year and planted in the Sacramento river. Shad are now so plentiful in California that they sell in San Francisco by wholesale at two cents a pound.

"What is the use of a mosquito?" has long been asked in vain. Havana answers the question. They convey the yellow fever germ by their bite, and their inoculation is so gentle that the sufferer has only a mild attack and is safe forever after.

Two residents of Apalachicola, Fla., recently encountered a den of rattlesnakes and exterminated the entire lot. According to their statement there were forty snakes in the den, the largest being seven feet long, and the smallest measuring about a foot and a half in length.

One thousand acres of the 5,000 in Taney county, Missouri, owned by St. Louis men, is inclosed by a wire fence eight feet high and used for a deer park. The fence is constructed around the hill slopes so that the deer may leap over into the park, but cannot get back. They become very gentle and are never molested.

It had been pouring hard all day, everything was soaking, and the poor pony looked in vain for a dry spot to lie on. After evidently deliberate thought it went up to a cow that had been lying in one place for a long while and gave her a most vicious kick; this he repeated several times until at last she was compelled regretfully to rise, whereupon the pony promptly lay down in the very spot occupied and kept dry by the cow.

The grand jury in Philadelphia has indicted a man on the rare charge of necromancy. It declared that he "did unlawfully pretend to relieve and free William Cressley from all evil influences and spirits deleterious to his health, happiness and peace of mind, by means of certain charms and incantations, by burning certain powders and burying bottles of liquid in the cellar of defendant's house." But the cure was a failure.

In the home of Tennyson's father at Somersby, Eng., one of the rooms on the second floor was set apart as the poet's den, and here he would sit of an evening pondering his verses. One night as he leant from the window, he heard an owl hooting; and, with a faculty of imitation which was strong in him, he cried back to the bird. The poet's "tu-whit, tu-whoo" was so natural that the owl flew to the window and into the room, where it was captured and kept for a long time as a pet.

MUSIC

JUST ISSUED.

FOR CHOIRS

SUNDAY ANTHEMS.

For choir service. A superb collection of Anthems for choir singing by W. O. Perkins. This book contains very VALUABLE MATERIAL FOR CHOIR PRACTICE. Price, postpaid, $1: $9 per dozen, not prepaid.

FOR SCHOOLS.

THE DAY-SCHOOL CROWN.

By Charles Walker Ray. The latest book for average pupils. It is concise and simple in its methods and any person can READILY LEARN BY ITS USE TO READ MUSIC. A very valuable book for schools. Price, 20c, postpaid; $15 a hundred, not prepaid.

Lyon & Healy,

Chicago, Ill.

OLIVER DITSON COMP'Y, Boston.

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained, and all Patent business conducted for Moderate Fees. Our Office is Opposite U. S. Patent Office, and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington. Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured. A Pamphlet, "How to Obtain Patents," with names of actual clients in your State, county, or town, sent free. Address,

C. A. SNOW & CO.
Opposite Patent Office, Washington, D. C.

AMERICAN HANDBOOK

AND

CITIZEN MANUAL.

BY

MANLOVE N. BUTLER.

CONTENTS:—Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement; Real Prohibition; Poor Man's Bible, and All-Around Reformers. Over 200 pages

Paper, single copy 40c.; per doz. 35c.

CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

JONATHAN BLANCHARD'S

—] oo [—

SERMONS AND ADDRESSES.

Select discourses of the late editor of the Cynosure and leader in our reform. Lectures, sermons and speeches given from 1834 to 1892 in leading cities of the United States, discussing topics of

LIVING REFORM.

Secret Societies,
The Sabbath,
Temperance,
National Reform,
Christian Education,
Christian Socialism,
The Bible, Etc., Etc.

A BOOK EVERYBODY SHOULD READ

12mo. Fine Photogravure Portrait.

Price, 75 Cents.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
WM. I. PHILLIPS, Treasurer,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

THE IMAGE OF THE BEAST

A Secret Empire;

Or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy.

By Rev. Richard Horton.

Third Edition. 200 pages. Cloth.

Price, 60 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

Rituals and Secrets Illustrated. Composed of "Temple of Honor Illustrated," "Adoptive Masonry Illustrated," "United Sons of Industry Illustrated," and "Secret Societies Illustrated." $1.00 each.

ANTI-MASONRY TRACTS.

The following numbers are in stock, and can be had at the wholesale price of 20 cents per pound:

3. Address to American Pastors.
4. Freemasonry in the Family.
7. To the Boys who Hope to be Men.
8. Modern Heathenism.
9. Ministers at Rival Altars.
10. A Pastor's Confession.
12. Alexander Campbell's Estimate of the Lodge.
15. Secrecy and Sin.
22. Extracts from Masonic Oaths and Penalties as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.
37. Why a Christian should not be a Freemason (German).
38. Masonic Oaths and Penalties.
39. Should Freemasons be Admitted to Christian Fellowship?
42. Our Duty and Ability to Know the Character of Masonry.
45. Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?
49. John Quincy Adams on the duty of American Voters.
- The Masonic Oath Itself a Perjury (40 cents per pound).

The above are the only tracts in stock in large quantities. There are a few of several other numbers. Remember that these are being retailed at wholesale prices—20 cents per pound. Keep a package of Anti-masonic tracts for use in letters.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,
321 W. Madison St., Chicago.

AGENTS AND LECTURERS.

NEW ENGLAND DEPARTMENT.—Rev. J. P. Stoddard, Agent, 218 Columbus Ave., Hotel Howland, Boston.

EASTERN DEPARTMENT.—W. B. Stoddard, Agent, No. 215, 4½ St., Washington, D. C.

CENTRAL DEPARTMENT.—Rev. M. A. Gault, Blanchard, Ia.

WESTERN DEPARTMENT.—Rev. W. C. Paden, Oakland, Kan.

PACIFIC DEPARTMENT.—, address Rev. S. Mathew, Canby, Oregon.

COLLEGE AGENT, Rev. S. F. Porter Cynosure office.

OTHER LECTURERS.

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
Rev. H. H. Hinman, Oberlin, O.
Nathan Callender Montdale Pa.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
T. B. McCormick, Princeton, Ind.
E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
H. A. Day, Brighton, Mich.
J. M. Bishop, Chambersburg, Pa.
A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
W. M. Love, Osceola, Mo.
J. K. Glassford, Carthage, Mo.
Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Minn.
J. S. Perry, Thompson, Conn.
Rev. E. Mathews, Long Island City, N. Y.
E. Barnetson, Haskinsville, N. Y.
D. A. Richards, Brighton, Mich.
A. W. Parry, Evanston, Ill.

SCOTCH RITE MASONRY

ILLUSTRATED.

The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all Masonic rites, and are fully and accurately given in

"FREEMASONRY ILLUSTRATED,"

as advertised, but the signs, grips, passwords etc., of these three degrees are given at the close of Vol 2 of

"Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated"

Vol. 1 of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3d to 18th inclusive. Vol. 2 of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 19th to 33d inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive. Price per volume, paper cover, 50 cents each, in cloth, $1 each. Each volume per dozen, paper covers, $4; per dozen, cloth bound, $9.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill

History Nat'l Christian Association Its origin, objects, what it has done aims to do, and the best means to accomplish the end sought, the Articles of Incorporation, Constitution and By-laws of the Association. 35c each.

THE N. C. A. BUILDING
(The gift of Philo Carpenter.)

The Christian Cynosure,
221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO
The National Christian Association

PRESIDENT—Rev. M. A. Gault, Blanchard, Iowa.

VICE PRESIDENT—John Dorcas, Tipton, Iowa.

FIELD SEC'Y and TREASURER—W. I. Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

CORRESPONDING SEC'Y—Rev. H. L. Kellogg, Wheaton, Ill.

REC. SECRETARY—Mrs. E. A. Cook Chicago.

DIRECTORS—T. B. Arnold, C. A. Blanchard, E. A. Cook, J. M. Hitchcock, G. R. Milton, J. P. Richards, E. Whipple, E. R. Worrell, Edgar Wylie, W. M. Howie, H. F. Kletsing.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

NEW ENGLAND.—Pres., Rev. J. M. Foster, Boston, Mass.; Sec'y, Miss E. E. Flagg, Wellesley, Mass.; Treas., L. E. Lincoln, Boston.

CONNECTICUT.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Willimantic; Sec., David J. Ellsworth, Windsor; Treas., C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.—Pres., C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton; Vice-Pres., Wm. Pinkney, New Windsor; Rec. Sec., Miss E. C. Pinkney, New Windsor; Cor. Sec., A. W. Parry, Aurora.

IOWA.—Pres., John Dorcas, Tipton; Sec., Rev. T. P. Robb, Linton; Treas., Rev. L. Mendenhall, Fairfield.

KANSAS.—Pres., Rev. C. H. Strong, Lawrence; Vice-Pres., Rev. J. L. Countermine, Hiawatha; Sec., Rev. D. H. Couiter, Winchester; Treas., Rev. B. B. Paull, Neosho Falls.

NEBRASKA.—Pres., Rev. W. I. Brooks, Pawnee City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. G. Widen, Mead; Sec., Howard P. Young, Wahoo; Treas., Rev. T. H. Dabney, Hooper.

MAINE.—Pres., Isaac Jackson, Harrison; Sec., I. D. Haines, Dexter; Treas., H. W. Goddard, West Sidney.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Pres., S. A. Pratt, Worcester.

MICHIGAN.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec., H. A. Day, Brighton; Treas., Geo. Swanson, Jr., Bedford.

MINNESOTA.—Pres., S. B. Sjobom, Ferguson Falls; Cor. Sec., Wm. Fenton, St. Paul; Rec. Sec., Mrs. M. F. Morrill, St. Charles; Treas., Wm. H. Morrill, St. Charles.

MISSOURI.—Pres., B. F. Miller, Eagleville; Treas., William Beauchamp, Avalon; Cor. Sec., A. D. Thomas, Avalon.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—Pres., Robt. A. Frohock, Aiton; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., James F. French, Canterbury.

NEW YORK.—Pres., Rev. S. R. Wallace, Syracuse; Sec., Rev. W. H. Clark, Binghamton; Treas., Lucius Woodruff, Binghamton.

OHIO.—Pres., J. W. Martin, Mt. Perry; Rec. Sec., A. T. Vestal, Seneca; Cor. Sec. and Treas., E. Thomson, Seneca.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Pres., R. J. George, D. D., Beaver Falls; Cor. Sec., J. S. T. Milligan, Pittsburgh; Treas., R. C. Wylie, Wilkinsburg.

WISCONSIN.—Pres., J. B. Galloway, Poyette; Sec., Isaiah Faris, Vernon; Treas., J. W. Wood, Baraboo.

The Christian Cynosure.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 2, 1893.

The Lord of hosts hath sworn, saying, Surely as I have thought, so shall it come to pass; and as I have purposed, so shall it stand.—ISA. 14:24.

CIVIL RIGHTS IN CHICAGO.

We notice that several cases are now pending before the city courts against restaurant-keepers for refusing to serve meals to persons of Negro origin.

The law of the State providing penalties for such refusal, when based on no other grounds than race or color, was made in accordance with the fourteenth amendment of the Constitution of the United States, which was designed to secure equal civil rights to all persons, "without respect to race, color or previous condition of servitude." The State law was rendered necessary by the decision of the United States Supreme Court, that the act of Congress securing equal civil rights to all persons was inoperative and void, except where Congress had exclusive jurisdiction.

This disregard of the rights of Negroes does not grow out of any unwillingness to accept their money, but is a concession to the spirit of caste that, to a great extent, still disgraces our nation, both in the North and in the South. It is the same spirit that enslaved the Negro and now continues to hate and oppress him.

We do well to remember that not only is this race prejudice utterly unjust and anti-republican, but that it constitutes one of the greatest obstacles to the peace and real unity of the nation. The African race did not come here of their own choice, but they are here to stay. The vital principle of republicanism is the equality of all men before the law.

A MEMORIAL OF DR. GEO. B. CHEEVER.

We have received a "Memorial Address on the Life and Character and Influence of Dr. George B. Cheever," delivered by his brother, Dr. Henry T. Cheever, of Worcester, Mass. The occasion of the delivery of this address was the presentation of the library of Dr. Geo. B. Cheever, and his bust, to the Howard University, Washington, D. C.

The pastor of the Church of the Puritans was one of the commanding characters in the long war with slavery. He was associated with all the leaders of the hosts of freedom in that great battle. It was natural and fitting that his library should, after his death, be presented to such an institution as Howard University, which is dedicated to freedom and hostility to the spirit of caste. Dr. Cheever was also one of the leading men in the temperance movement; and though he never took an active part in the effort to remove secret societies from our country, he was, as such a man must needs have been, opposed to all secret societies.

The author of this memorial address has also been for fifty years in the advance guard of the army of reform. It is entirely safe to say that no great iniquity has lifted its head in this country during his manhood's days without receiving his unhesitating and most decided assault.

It was fitting that such an one as he should give this address in loving memory of his honored brother who had preceded him to the better land. The address is a pleasing and powerful one, giving in eloquent fashion the story of a most eloquent life. It were easy to fill more than the allotted space of this review with extracts therefrom. We must content ourselves with less than we might desire.

Speaking of his brother's position on slavery, he says: "He aimed his blows not at the abuses of slavery, but at the core and sinful act of slaveholding itself. He struck not at the evils of the liquor traffic, but at the criminal practice of rum-selling itself, and the palpable sin of legalizing it by legislation. It was this high regard to principle, courage of convictions and a lofty moral standard of character and conduct, together with a noble self-forgetting enthusiasm in behalf of the right and a masterly will in standing for it that distinguished him among his peers. To this was added such a reverential belief in the plenary inspiration and authority of the Holy Scriptures, as to make him positive and potential in their use and application to human affairs." Speaking of his desire that God should be recognized in the fundamental law of our land, he says: "He believed with all his heart that God is love; he believed in the sovereignty of love, and in the certain success of that remedial kingdom which in the sovereignty of love he has established, the kingdom of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ. He was settled in the certainty that to him every knee shall bow and every tongue confess Jesus Christ to be Lord to the glory of God the Father. He believed Christ to be the rightful King of nations, as he is the King of saints; and that in America and the American Constitution, first of all, his name should be named, and his word acknowledged as the supreme law of the land; Christianity the bed-rock, the basal underpinning of the American nation, beginning with our Pilgrim Fathers in the cabin of the Mayflower." In another paragraph he speaks of the fact that great men are the God-ordained leaders of the people, and that to them the progress of society is very largely due. He says: "The great men whom God raised up in the bosom of Christianity to do battle with slavery in the middle of the nineteenth century—William Ellery Channing, George Thompson, Gerrit Smith, Lloyd Garrison, Charles Sumner, Wendell Phillips, William Goodell, Jonathan Blanchard, Henry Ward Beecher, and the stalwart preacher in the pulpit of the Puritans at Union Square, New York—all but one of them, the surviving leader of organized opposition to oath-bound orders of secrecy (Rev. Jonathan Blanchard), now passed to the realm of the blessed—all were men of the mountain-type.

We could wish that this address might be widely read. It would be an inspiration and help to the young men of our nation. It would aid in bringing about the time of which the author speaks in his concluding paragraph when, "will it come to pass by the mighty moral pressure of of Christianized public opinion, which Professor Bryce says in his great work entitled 'The American Commonwealth' is the mind and conscience of the whole nation, is the product of a greater number of minds than in any other country, is more irresistibly sovereign, and determines the direction and character of national policy, then will come to pass that all liquor-sellers will have to quit their nefarious business, by a healthy, moral, and legal compulsion that cannot be resisted." The God of our fathers, in whom we trust, hasten that glorious day for our goodly city, our loved New England, our mighty Republic, the hope of the world.

"Were a star quenched on high,
For ages would its light,
Still traveling downwards from the sky,
Shine on our mortal sight.
So when a great man dies,
For years beyond our ken,
The light he leaves behind him lies
Upon the paths of men."

JAMES G. BLAINE.

The death of James G. Blaine takes away one of our most eminent politicians and statesman. For thirty years he has had a commanding influence in American affairs. Several times he has been prominently before the people either for nomination or election to the presidency; and in 1884 came within less than 1,500 votes of securing the great prize.

No man contributed so much to the respectability of Mr. Harrison's administration, and no Secretary of State ever conducted our foreign affairs with greater, if equal, ability. While there has been a manifest popular dissent from his extreme views on the subject of protection of our manufacturing interests, yet no financial measure ever struck a more popular chord than the reciprocity feature of the McKinley tariff.

That Mr. Blaine made serious mistakes is quite evident, but no man despised him. He had the warmest of personal friends and the bitterest of political enemies.

His most serious and fatal error was in his underestimate of the moral convictions of the people—a mistake common to those other great statesmen, Webster and S. A. Douglas. Representing a Prohibition State, and personally committed to the principle of prohibition, yet as a private citizen he feared to vote for the prohibition amendment, lest he should offend the liquor interests. This alienated the radical temperance vote, and failed to secure that of the liquor interest. In his zeal to secure the introduction of American products into South American nations, he took special pains to advertise the American breweries; and there seemed not to have been printed enough copies of these BEER CIRCULARS, so that the Christian public could see one of them.

He was openly a Protestant, but privately attended the Roman church; and while serving as Mr. Harrison's prime minister, allowed his name to be used as an opposing candidate for nomination for the Presidency, resigning his office to secure that nomination.

These are some of the mistakes of a man who had resplendent abilities and rendered most important public service. Like most of our truly eminent men, he had the good sense to keep out of the Masonic lodge, and was, in his private life, entirely respectable.

He will take rank with the world's great statesmen, such as Webster and Bismarck.

JUSTICE LAMAR.

To the names of dead Confederate leaders—Jefferson Davis, Robert Toombs, Robert E. Lee, and Alex. H. Stephens—must be added that of the late Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, Lucius Quintus Curtius Lamar, who died suddenly at Macon, Ga., last week, of Bright's disease.

As a true son of the South he aspired to political exaltation. A lawyer by profession, he became a State legislator, a member of Congress, a Confederate colonel, a commissioner of the confederacy to Russia, a United States Senator, the Secretary of the Interior, and then a justice of the highest national tribunal.

No one can doubt his intellectual fitness for these multifarious responsibilities, in which he performed his duties acceptably under the various administrations that he served. But he was, by nature, education, and surroundings, a typical Southerner, with all that the name implies.

The slave system in which he was nurtured was responsible for his prejudices and for the lack of patriotism which he, in common with these other Southerners, exhibited. It made men brutal in their instincts and conduct; it fostered hatred against all who opposed it; it promoted insubordination to authorized government; it led to secession and war, and involved the lives and characters of men who, like Lamar, had not the moral strength to rise above their weaknesses. It is the same to-day. The same prejudice exists still in the South, and clouds the souls of men who, like Lamar, are capable of winning more worthy if not more lasting wreaths of laurel in their public careers.

"PROTECTION FOR LABOR ORDERS."

The labor unions are invading various State Legislatures with schemes to enlarge their powers, and in this way to make themselves doubly inimical to the peace and safety of communities and the constitutional liberties of individuals.

On the 19th of January the order of Railway Telegraphers in Nebraska made public a bill to be introduced at the present session of the Legislature of that State. Its object is to enable members of the fraternity to avoid discriminations, claiming that the organization has suffered by the discrimination of railroads against it as a labor order.

In substance the bill provides: "That it shall be unlawful for any individual, or member of any firm, or agent, officer, or employe of any company or corporation to prevent employes from forming, joining, and belonging to any lawful labor organization, and any such individual, member, agent, officer, or employe that coerces or attempts to coerce employes by discharging or threatening to discharge from their employ or the employ of any firm or corporation, because of their connection with such lawful labor organization, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor."

This bill, if it becomes a law, it is expected, will protect all labor organizations, and its promoters propose to push it to completion. It will undoubtedly receive the sanction and support of the Central Labor Union of that State and the other labor associations.

A few days ago a bill was passed in the lower house of the Indiana Legislature, making it a misdemeanor for an employer to discharge a laborer for belonging to a protective organization.

Later on, Mr. Hord, a Democrat, and a member of the House from Marion county, introduced another bill, worded exactly like the one that had been passed, making it a misdemeanor to discharge an employe for not belonging to a labor union. It was referred to the Committee on Rights and Privileges, which reported, transmitting the measure to the Labor Committee, which is composed exclusively of organized laborers. Mr. Hord objected, and a wordy war ensued. At last Mr. Hord's motion that the report of the Committee on Rights and Privileges be rejected was carried. Another motion, that his bill be printed and placed on the desks of members, also prevailed; and Mr. Hord was loudly applauded for gaining his victory.

It would seem, looking at these movements in the spirit of the American Revolution and of the Constitution of the United States, that both measures partake of the nature of a conspiracy to cripple the liberties of all manufacturers who employ artisans; inasmuch as it is their prime object to obtain skilled labor of the best quality without regard to the opinions of any man, or set of men, so long as the employes are competent, faithful and contented. The employers look for these traits in their assistants, caring little or nothing whether they belong to the unions or not.

It would seem, also, as if every measure of this kind partakes too much of the nature of class legislation, which is dangerous to the interests of the people at large. If both bills in the Indiana Legislature become laws, the one will offset the other, and no manufacturing employer will dare to hire men, either in or out of the unions, simply because he may not discharge either for any cause, incompetency and dishonesty included, without incurring a penalty.

All legislation of this kind, that aggrandizes one class and injures another, especially in this warfare of labor against capital, can only serve to widen the breach between them and entail trouble and misery upon both; for it may be safely assumed that if capitalists unite their forces of influence and money to "down" the laboring classes, industry and enterprise will be indefinitely suspended.

THE COST OF WAR.

It is said that it takes a month and a half of the wages of a German laborer to pay his share of the cost of the standing army in time of peace, and that with the addition, by the new army bill, it will take two months' labor. This is substantially true of nearly all the nations of Europe. The greater and richer the nation, the more its proportionate cost of defence. This is at once a menace to the peace of the nations, and a reason why international peace should be maintained. A menace, because the excessive burden may provoke revolution; and a protection, because no nation can afford to go to war with its neighbor.

A recent cartoon represents three quaint figures—Poverty, Pestilence and Famine—as the three guardians of European peace. We are not so badly off in America, but have nothing to boast of. Let us look at the cost of our modest little army and navy. We give it in round numbers:

Cost of army.....	$ 23,500,000
Cost of navy.....	24,000,000
Annual pension list.....	165,000,000
Annual interest on war debt, about.....	50,000,000
Total annual cost.....	$262,500,000

As there are about 12,000,000 of voters, the annual cost for military purposes in time of peace is nearly $22 for each man over twenty-one years of age. This does not include the immense war debt that is still unpaid. True, this is a small amount compared with the immense burden of the liquor traffic; but there is this difference, that the main cost of the liquor business is borne by those who consent to be the victims of strong drink, while the cost of war is borne by all. When will the nations "beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning-hooks, and learn war no more?"

—Judge Nelson, of the United States court at Duluth, Minn., on January 19, declared the Chinese exclusion act unconstitutional. Compared with other immigration laws of the United States, it is also uncommonly inconsistent.

—Rev. W. C. Paden is to hold a local anti-secrecy convention for that portion of Kansas of which Clay Centre is a rallying-point, beginning to-morrow, Friday, February 3. We hope for a good report of this gathering.

—As an item of interest to reformers, we are enabled to announce that the present owner of the house at Batavia, N. Y., in which William Morgan wrote the famous Exposition of Blue Lodge Masonry, in 1826, is endeavoring to arrange for its removal to the World's Fair for exhibition. A specimen brick of the old house is now to be seen among the bric-a-brac of the Cynosure office.

—The Catholic Review notes a proposition to have an official list prepared, giving the names, etc., of recalcitrant priests and nuns of the Romish church who are engaged in lecturing against and exposing its superstition and wickedness. What terrible punishment is to be meted out to these offenders we are not told. We know of one in Chicago, however, who says that there is a price offered by the Bishop of Montreal for his life. When a man has been for a number of years a faithful adherent of the Romish church, then forsakes it and uncovers its iniquity, the hierarchy, like Freemasonry, deems him unfit to live.

—Some one having stated that Mr. Moody claimed that his prayers saved the steamship Spree in her recent dangerous passage across the Atlantic, he has made the following characteristic declaration: "I never said it. What I did say was that God answered my prayers by quieting me and letting me go to sleep. I did not know whether I was going to heaven or to Northfield; and I was prepared for either. I can't say whether other people's prayers were answered or not, nor can I tell whether their prayers changed their characters, but I know every soul in that ship prayed, and prayed hard. They didn't worry over predestination and the higher criticism."

—General Bragg, an American, an old soldier, and a Democrat, was a prominent candidate for United States Senator from Wisconsin. Opposed to him were two other Americans, Colonel Knight and Congressman Mitchell. The fight for the office had become virulent in tone. At a caucus, held on Tuesday, Assemblyman Blenski, of Milwaukee, deserted Mitchell and declared for Bragg. This increased the excitement to an intense degree; and to add to the interest of the contest, two Polish Roman Catholic priests from Milwaukee invaded the caucus and participated in its proceedings, contrary to the rules. The Bragg faction very properly disapproved of their action. It serves to show, however, that Rome desires something more than spiritual aggrandizement in this country.

—The decision of the Supreme Court of Illinois, granting a new trial to Dan Coughlin, re-opens the whole question of the character and operations of the Clan-na-Gael, as delineated in the murder of Dr. Cronin. Since a number of the witnesses are either dead or have disappeared, the trial, it is likely, will not be as full or as fair as at first. If it was difficult at that time to find a jury of intelligent men who had not formed opinions as to the merits of the case, it may now be regarded as impossible. It seems to us that there was much wisdom in the opinion of Justice Magruder, who dissented from the decision handed down, that a prejudice against the Clan-na-Gael was simply a prejudice against murder, and that such prejudice is not inconsistent with the ability to judge fairly as to the guilt or innocence of individuals.

—Only three months remain of the present financial term of the National Christian Association, and it is very desirable that the close of the year should find it out of debt. Our friends and patrons are reminded that the payment of donations should be made for that purpose at their earliest convenience. Expenses for building repairs and some other necessary contingencies have required rather more than usual. The taxes on our headquarters this year are $384.63. Will the readers of the Cynosure contribute of their means as God has prospered them? We wish to meet our obligations to the agents in the field in full before the first of May next. We are grateful for the many commendations received, and also for moneys already sent. This appeal is not made to those who have previously remembered the needs of our work to the extent of their ability, but to many from whom we have not yet heard.

REFORM NEWS (Continued from 5th page.)

people, and will doubtless aid much in making our convention a success.

Dr. Johnson, president of Geneva College, will arrange for me to address the students, and further our work what he can.

While the sky looks bright for our convention, and circumstances are very auspicious, we need to constantly remember that it is not by man's might, but by the power of the Divine Spirit, that we can overcome successfully anything of evil. The God of all grace can alone subdue rebellious hearts. Let us pray earnestly for this gathering.

W. B. STODDARD.

GOOD WORK IN THE WESTERN DISTRICT.

IDANA, Clay Co., Kan., Jan. 25, 1893.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—I am now in Clay county, holding a series of reform meetings from evening to evening. I am on a three weeks' tour in this county. I commenced on Monday evening, Jan. 16, in Eight Mile school-house; in the same place on Tuesday evening; at Centennial on Wednesday and Thursday evenings; at Idana in the U. P. church on Friday evening; and at Hebron R. P. church on Saturday evening.

A number of Odd-fellows were present at our Idana meeting. I touched on Odd-fellowship as a conclusion to my address. They gave courteous attention, and stayed until dismissal. Odd-fellowship is having a revival in and about Idana. A lodge has been organized within a few weeks, and many are flocking into it. I hope to secure further hearing at Idana soon.

On Sabbath morning I worshiped with the good Covenanters brethren of Tabor. Bro. S. M. Stevenson is the beloved pastor of this church, and has been for more than twenty years. It does one good to find such pastorate. I enjoyed Bro. S.'s hospitality and efficient help in the work. I preached for the Covenant people on Sabbath evening. Bro. S. had arranged meetings for me for the week and announced them. I addressed two audiences in his church on Monday and Tuesday evenings.

This evening a mass temperance meeting will be held in the church. By invitation I shall address the meeting on Prohibition.

On Thursday and Friday evenings I shall speak at the Iwacura school-house. Addresses will be given by myself and others nearer Clay Center next week.

On Friday, Feb. 3, we shall hold a County Reform Convention in Clay Center, in the Free Methodist church. We shall have three sessions. Bros. Dill and Chalmers of Topeka, and others, will assist in the convention. I am announcing it wherever I go, and we expect to have a good convention and a good attendance. There is a great deal of interest in the cause of reform in this county, and it is our earnest prayer that our work and our convention may be the means of awakening more genuine interest in genuine reform.

My work is meeting with favor among these people. Many young people attend our meetings. I have received none other than royal treatment on this trip. Such treatment began with Dr. D. M. Gillespie, of Clay Center. He is the prime mover in this tour, and has helped very much in the work. The doctor is a reformer of the right stamp. He has set his pen to paper and has written several books on reform that are worthy of attention.

I found friends all along the line: Mr. Borland; Mr. Sam'l Milligan and wife; Mr. J. A. Houston; Mr. Ambrose Copeland, and Mr. Jos. Kerr. Time would fail to mention all their names. Then Bro. S. M. Stevenson took me up into the Tabor neighborhood, and after arranging meetings for me, dropped me down among another list of friends. The only trouble I find is that there are not enough nights in the week to go and stay with them all. I am glad that there are other communities as earnestly committed to Christian reform. I wish there were many more such.

I can frankly say that I am encouraged in the work. You shall hear from our convention soon.

W. C. PADEN.

THE HOME.

NOT COMFORTLESS.

The night approaches, yet the way before us
Is wild and long, and fears our hearts oppress;
A tender Voice calls from the darkness o'er us,
"I will not leave you comfortless."

The night grows darker, and around us ringing
We hear the cries of weakness and distress;
Yet over all is still the sweet Voice singing,
"I will not leave you comfortless."

The wind grows bitter, and the rain is falling.
O Christ! is this the path of holiness?
"Bear up, bear on!" the heavenly voice is calling,
"I will not leave you comfortless."

"This thorny way and weary, I before you,
With feet unsandaled, for your sake did press.
The Father's watchful eye is ever o'er you,
Nor will I leave you comfortless."

Thus ever sweetly, with the tumult blending,
This benediction, as a soft caress,
Is through the heavy cloud from heaven descending,
"I will not leave you comfortless."

Oh, might we, patient Lord, learn thy endurance,
So know thy peace and win thy rest!
Our weary hearts still wait the dear assurance
Thou wilt not leave us comfortless.

—Evangelical Messenger.

A CHARIOT OF FIRE.

BY MRS. VICTORIA ALEXANDRA STONE.

Aunt Sally was an old Negress, who lived a few miles from Nashville, Tenn. She was quite old, and had been a slave in her youth. Her husband and children were dead, and she lived alone in a little tumble-down shanty near the edge of a forest. She was widely known as a nurse, and also took in washing, and so managed to earn enough to live very well; "for," she said, "an old darkey like me don't need much to carry dem 'trugh dis low ground of sorrow." She was very pious, and her hymns and testimonies were an inspiration in the revival meetings that were held in the little log house near her home.

Aunt Sally's greatest desire, so she said, was to be carried to heaven in a chariot of fire. "Such a thing was quite possible," so she said; "for wasn't Elijah carried to heaven in a chariot of fire? and wasn't Enoch translated? and who knew where Moses was buried? Dey was all taken to heaven in a chariot of fire, and so will I be, de Lawd willin; mark dat, chilluns." She would also say, tossing her arms aloft: "I knows Ise pore and ignorant, but dat has been my prayer all my life. 'Spose anything is impossible with God? Wait and see." Aunt Sally's whole life had been spent in the little town where she lived, and her face was as familiar to its inhabitants as the rocks and trees by the roadside. But her oft-repeated prophecy was to be literally fulfilled, and the place that had known her so long was to know her no more.

A meeting was held in the little log hut near Aunt Sally's home, one evening in August. The house was crowded, and the hymns and testimonies of the dusky-faced children of a long-despised race were very inspiring. Several white people, young men and women, were present, and they listened half-fearfully, half-derisively, to what was said and sung. At the last Aunt Sally rose, and every eye was turned upon her face. "Chilluns," she said, "I am old, and my work is almost done, my prayers are almost ended, and I am looking for the coming of my Lawd and Master. What do you think, chilluns, is the sweetest sound I ever heard? It is the sound of the chariot wheels that are rolling over the mountains! I hear dem in my work during de day, and in my dreams at night. Dey is almost here. Sisters, chilluns, I shall be carried to heaven in a chariot of fire!" tossing her arms wildly on high—"in a chariot of fire! Mark dat, chilluns!" and she sat down. A feeling of awe crept over the assembly, and the white ladies looked fearfully at each other. The meeting was dismissed, and they all walked thoughtfully home beneath the bright light of the Southern stars.

That night a fearful storm arose. The lightning flashed, and the thunder rolled in awful grandeur. Tom Oliver, Aunt Sally's nearest neighbor, arose and looked from the window. "I suppose Aunt Sally is awake, singing her jubilee hymns: 'G'wine to ride up in a chariot sooner in de morning;" that's what she sings," he said. The storm soon ceased, and he and his wife lay down once more and had fallen asleep, when Mrs. Oliver woke her husband with a scream. "Look out the window," she cried; "Aunt Sally's house is on fire!" They ran over to where the burning building stood. Several Negroes stood around, looking helplessly on. "Bress de Lawd!" an aged Negro cried; "de angels are all about us! Dey have taken Aunt Sally to heaven in a chariot of fire."

Sure enough! Thus was her life-long prayer and strongest desire fulfilled. She was literally carried to heaven in a chariot of fire.

Steamburg, N. Y.

ADVICE FOR YOUNG MEN.

In a recent number of Young Man, Professor John Stuart Blackie publishes an interesting article on reminiscences of his youth, and sets down a few of the rules of conduct which have guided him through life, and to which he attributes whatever of good works he has been able to achieve. Here are some of the rules:

Never indulge the notion that you have an absolute right to choose the sphere or the circumstances in which you are to put forth your powers; but let your daily wisdom of life be in making a good use of the opportunities given you.

We live in a real, and a solid, and a truthful world. In such a world only truth in the long run can hope to prosper. Therefore avoid lies, mere show, and sham, and hollow superficiality of all kinds, which is, at the best, a painted lie. Let whatever you are and whatever you do grow out of a firm root of truth, and a strong soil of reality.

The nobility of life is work. We live in a working world. The lazy or idle man does not count in the plan of campaign. "My Father worketh hitherto and I work." Let that text be enough.

Never forget St. Paul's sentence, "Love is the fulfilling of the law." This is the steam of the social machine.

But the steam requires regulation. It is regulated by intelligence and moderation. Healthy action is always a balance of forces, and all extremes are dangerous.

Do one thing well. "Be a whole thing at one time." Make clean work and leave no tags. Allow no delays when you are at a thing; do it and be done with it.

NELLY MOSTYN'S GRIEVANCE.

"I must work in my own way, or I won't work at all," Nelly would assert in a decided way which effectually checked all remonstrance.

"Nelly Mostyn runs all the church work. I can't get on with her; her overbearing ways drive me frantic, so I shall give up the missionary society for this year," one of the church-members told another.

"I feel that it is better to keep away than to continue the constant quarreling and bickering that make the meetings unendurable; but I am very sorry, for I am so much interested in our missions," lamented her companion.

The pastor's wife was a confirmed invalid, and the Mostyns were her distant relatives. Nelly, who had both means and leisure at her disposal, was inspired by a sincere desire to serve the Lord; to consecrate herself to his service. No one appreciated the gifts of administrative ability with which she had been endowed more thoroughly than herself. She was thoroughly capable; no fault could be found with either manner or method; everything she undertook was carefully planned and carried out; but she was rather too decided in her views, and intolerant of interference in her plans, to please her fellow-workers. Her zeal and energy had caused all branches of church work to flourish. At first, a constant chorus of admiring approbation had rewarded her strenuous exertions; then a cold breath of adverse criticism, at first almost imperceptible, but gradually gaining substance, arose. After three years of steady effort, into which Miss Mostyn had thrown all her faculties and energies, the result appeared to be that all societies carried on by the feminine portion of the congregation had certainly dwindled into feeble inertness. The kindly old pastor sighed as he perceived one Christian after another drop away, and found himself forced to listen to endless complaints, and even disputes.

"Nelly is a fine girl, but she has not the gift of conciliating others," he mourned. "Even her efficiency seems to tell against her."

His wife listened quietly. Mrs. Pelton had learned through deep suffering the lesson of faith and patience; it seemed almost impossible for her bright spirit to understand discouragement.

"Poor child," she smiled gently. "She is determined to serve in her own way, and not in the Lord's. I fear that Nelly has a hard lesson to learn; but what a comfort it is to remember that everything is sure to come right in the end."

In Streatfield church animosity, jealousy and vexation of spirit increased. One-half of the congregation resolutely ignored the other half; some left the church; the temper which prevailed among the women was anything but the meek and loving influence which might be expected to emanate from the disciples of Christ. Opposition aroused all the worst elements of Miss Mostyn's character. She stood almost alone; but she threw herself into the conflict with all the force of her dominant temperament and with a definite determination to conquer. She persuaded herself that she had been treated with the cruellest ingratitude, and was wounded to the core, though she disdained to acknowledge the hurt.

"But for me where would the church work have been? she demanded indignantly. "Rain or shine, I have always been at my post. I have given more than any two women. If I had not taken it in hand, those silly, incapable women would never have got through. If I am to take the responsibility, I shall do it in my own way. I put down that odious Mrs. Mayne—"

"That's a fine, Christian spirit, Nell. 'See how these Christians love one another,'" commented Cousin Walter in laughing mockery.

Walter was inclined to be careless, and Nelly had been trying to persuade him to join the church. Now she flushed hotly and a quick retort was on her lip, but the young man left the room before she could utter it.

"That is the trouble, Nelly, you are just a little too domineering," ventured the younger sister, Maggie.

"Domineering!" repeated Nelly, vehemently. "I give up everything for others. I did not buy that sealskin jacket I needed so much, simply that I might give the money to the church reparation fund. I never make the weather or headaches or pleasant engagements an excuse for neglecting my duties, as others do. What can you possibly mean?"

Maggie declined the argument in which she was aware she would inevitably find herself worsted. She had clearer insight than her more clever sister, and was heartily tired of the ceaseless disturbance.

"Could some kind fay the giftie gie us
To see oursels as ithers see us."

"For my part, I am heartily tired of charitable organizations of every description, and should be glad never to hear anything more about them. We live in a perpetual warfare, a sort of tempest in a teapot; and I confess I don't see any good of it."

As Maggie left the room, Nelly's sewing dropped from her hands. Aunt Mary, quietly observant, perceived the tears gather in her eyes. Mrs. Raynor had only recently arrived on a visit to her nieces. She was a quiet and sensible woman, who observed much and said very little.

"Aunt Mary"—Nelly claimed her attention in a broken voice; in her trouble she was glad to turn to a gentle and sympathizing confidant—"Aunt Mary, it is very hard, but every one is against me, even my own. You hear Maggie and Walter. I have never grudged time or trouble or money. I have spent myself and been spent in the service of others, yet even Maggie, who does not do a tenth part of what I do, is better liked than I. Even Mr. Pelton does not cordially approve, though no woman in Streatfield has done as much for his church as I have. In that matter of the missionary society he did not support me as he should have done. I just said plainly that if Mrs. Lowe was not appointed president, I should resign, and I knew they could not get on without me. Some of the members showed such a hateful, unforgiving spirit, I believe they actually detest me."

"Was Mrs. Lowe the only really efficient person proposed for the position?"

"Well, not exactly. You see, most of the members wanted to have Mrs. Mayne, who opposes me in every thing. I really cannot bear her. However," triumphantly, "I carried my point. Mrs. Mayne and many of her supporters withdrew from the work altogether, but I succeeded in keeping her out of office."

"Was the triumph worth the cost?" inquired Aunt Mary quietly. "Have the real interests of the association been advanced? Are the workers satisfied? Does a pleasant fellowship prevail among them? That is the vital question."

"No, indeed; they are most disagreeable. That is what I complain of; they are so ungrateful for all I have done. The attendance has decreased, and we have not been able to carry out our plans."

There was a long pause. Aunt Mary's knitting needles clicked as she knitted swiftly, while cogitating anxiously over a perplexing question.

"Nelly, what do you work for?" she asked at length.

"Why, Aunt Mary!" Nelly's eyes were still humid as she glanced up in surprise. "Of course for God's glory and the advancement of his kingdom. I have always loved to work for him. When these people won't give in, it is just because they are stupid or obstinate."

"Or because Nelly Mostyn worships her own will instead of her Master's. You have mistaken the way, my dear. As we sow, we reap. Your own dictatorial spirit has been your stumbling-block; you have gathered a harvest of dislike and hostility in place of peace and good will. You have been determined to carry out your own plans and ideas, careless of the rights and claims of others, and the Lord's work has suffered in consequence. Remember how gently he drew people to him, how tolerant he was of weakness and ignorance, how he used even their prejudices to draw them to the light. Instead of being with him you have been striving against him, driving others from his service. If you would render acceptable service, Nelly, dear, you must do it in his spirit who was 'meek and lowly of heart.'"

Nelly tried to be angry, for the strong, brave words of tender counsel cut her to the quick. She was really honest and conscientious, and the truths forced upon her attention would not be ignored. As she recalled the enmities she had aroused, her carelessness of other's feelings, Nelly Mostyn covered her face in shame, and prayed that she might be forgiven and enabled to conquer the will-worship which had injured the cause she earnestly desired to serve.

"Aunt Mary," she frankly confessed a few days afterward, "I hate to give in, but I believe you are quite right in what you said the other day about my work. With God's help, I will try a different plan."

"Nelly Mostyn is my right hand; she is really a power for good among us," remarked the pastor a few years later. "All Nelly's energies and faculties are consecrated, because she sincerely tries to overcome self. Her influence has increased as the Christ-like spirit has deepened within her."—Blanche L. Macdonell, in Zion's Herald.

THE AGE OF HURRY.

An old gentleman, evidently a philosopher, had been spending a week in Chicago. He had been jostled on the sidewalks, crowded against walls, prodded in the side, and shoved hither and thither in the midst of a turmoil such as he was quite unused to. His visit was at an end. He was going to a quieter place. He had just bought his ticket when a station official said briskly but not unkindly:

"Hurry up, sir, or you'll miss your train."

No doubt the old gentleman seemed a little "slow."

"Hustle, there; hustle," shouted a gate-tender.

"I don't have to, do I?" said the old man.

"You do if you want to catch that train."

"But I don't have to catch it unless I want to, do I?"

"I suppose not; but Chicago's a fast place, sir, and you can't keep up with the procession if you don't hustle."

"People don't get honest here any faster than they do elsewhere, do they?" asked the old gentleman, seriously.

"No, I can't say they do."

"Nor they don't become respectable citizens any faster, do they?"

"I suppose not," said the official, whose face was beginning to look puzzled.

"Nor develop the Christian graces any faster, do they?"

"No, I guess not."

"Nor reach the highest type of manhood and womanhood any faster, do they?"

This was getting almost beyond the official; but he shook his head negatively.

"Nor learn any faster their duty to their fellow men?"

Again the official shook his head.

"Nor go to heaven any faster?"

"Not much!" said the railroad man with emphasis.

The stranger took out his watch.

"Well, I have two minutes in which to walk a hundred feet. I guess I can make it without blowing out a cylinder head, can't I?"

He spoke in a gentle tone, almost as if he were speaking to himself, and the railway official picked up his satchel and carried it for him out through the gate and across the platform.—Youth's Companion.

THE ELDEST.

When the minister came to see us,
He sat in the easy chair,
And dear little Bess came shyly,
And stood by his elbow there.

His face it was solemn and wrinkled,
His voice very grave and low;
He wore wonderful gold-bowed glasses,
And his hair was white as snow.

He lifted the little maid gently,
And perched her upon his knee,
And said to her, "Are you the eldest
Of all the family?"

She looked rather timid and awe-struck,
And scarcely could speak at all;
But she answered honestly, "No, sir;
Papa is the oldest of all."

"What a child!" cried mamma and aunties,
While Bess sat still in affright;
But knew she had said something funny,
When the minister laughed outright.

—Eleanor A. Hunter.

TEMPERANCE.

MR. GLADSTONE ON THE DRINK TRAFFIC.

FROM ADDRESSES JUNE 25 AND DECEMBER 3, 1892.

I.

Gentlemen, the question of drunkenness is one which has very different aspects for different classes of society. There is no vice more outrageous in members of the upper classes than drunkenness. They have no excuse, no palliation whatever; but the case of the workingman is a little different. . . . There is much to tempt the workingman; there is much to make the beginnings of indulgence in drink excusable, at any rate, not unnatural. But it is an insidious enemy, and, without his knowing it, he is led on step from step. In many cases he reaches the point at which the indulgence in strong liquors becomes fatal to the discharge of the duties of life, and what, therefore, has he done? I am not now speaking of this workingman or that workingman, but I am speaking of the body of workingmen. He has—I believe such to be their intention—he has besought the legislature to remove the temptation out of his way, and to remove it by putting in the hands of the local community a power which is enjoyed by every landlord, the power of what is called Local Option. He demands no more than this, that in areas reasonably defined and marked out the population shall have the power of regulating the conditions under which the liquor traffic is to be dealt with, and that that power shall extend even to local extinction of that traffic. . . . Gentlemen, you know that so far as the Liberal party are concerned they are determined as one man to place in the hands of the local communities the power of putting an end—under fair provisions—of putting an end to a traffic which they believe in a multitude of instances to be detrimental and pernicious in the highest degree to the social and moral as well as the physical life of the community.

II.

Let us all carry with us, deeply stamped upon our hearts and minds, a sense of shame for the great plague of drunkenness which goes through the land sapping and undermining character, breaking up the peace of families, oftentimes choosing for its victims not the men and women originally the worst, but persons of strong social susceptibility and open in special respects to temptation. This great plague and curse, gentlemen, let us all remember, is a national curse, calamity and scandal. . . . I wish we could all of us take it into our minds, for surely there is hardly one amongst us that has not seen in individual cases the pestilential result to which this habit unfortunately leads, and that we should all carry with us individually a deep and adequate sense of the mischief, and an earnest intention to do what within us lies, each man within his sphere, for the purpose of mitigating and removing it.

THE WORST OF ALL LIQUORS.

The Mexican pulque is the worst drink on the face of the earth. It is the juice of a tree, and at first tastes like spruce beer; but after fermentation has ended and the alcoholic principle is fully developed in the liquid it is not only extremely intoxicating, but has a most abominably putrid smell, having imbibed the animal principles of the skin in which it is kept. It is impossible for an American to drink it without holding his nose; and after he has imbibed a comparatively small quantity he will get drunker and stay drunk longer than on any other drink ever manufactured.

NUGGETS.

—A prominent clergyman in London says that in his congregation is a socialist who, for years, was one of a secret society appointed for the purpose of assassinating the Prince of Wales. The only reason that they did not carry out their plan was that no opportunity occurred, although they dogged his steps with a persistency worthy of a better cause. One Sunday afternoon this ring-leader of the gang came to church and heard the clergyman, the singing, the prayers, and somehow they formed the turning pointing in his life. He became a devoted Christian, and is now one of the most exemplary workers in the church guild to which he then became attached. Perhaps the change in his outlook could not be better expressed than in the testimony that he often gives in the social meetings of the church, after the following fashion: "My brothers, once my creed was this, 'Down with everything that is up;' but it has changed, and now I say, 'Up with everything that is down.' One means destruction, the other building."—Union Signal.

—Some time ago there appeared in a daily paper the story of the death of six men in a very strange way. They had purchased a quarter barrel of beer, drank freely, dying soon after with every evidence of poisoning. Upon investigation a dead copperhead snake was discovered in the keg. How it came there remained a mystery. No one reading the sad incident can fail to be impressed with the vivid object-lesson, since in every keg of intoxicants lurks a serpent more deadly than the copperhead, and the venom is potent to destroy bodies and souls. Beware of the "serpents of the still!"—Union Signal.

—Regarding the report that Gov. Lewellyn of Kansas would not enforce the prohibitory law, he said: "The people by their votes in November demonstrated that they were satisfied with the prohibitory law. I do not think it would be wise for me to recommend its repeal in my message to the legislature, and I shall not do it. The only just cause for complaint on prohibition is as to the method in which it has been administered. I shall enforce the law to the best of my ability."

—Mr. Hackett, in the Quebec legislature, has given notice of a bill to prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors at all agricultural and industrial exhibitions and fairs. But the management of the World's Fair to be held in Chicago have decided to allow the sale of liquors on the Fair grounds and share in the profits of such sales. Thus, volens volens, every stockholder in the World's Fair becomes a liquor seller. And this in Christian America! What next?

BIBLE LESSON.

STUDIES IN THE OLD TESTAMENT.

LESSON VII—First Quarter, 1893.—February 12.

SUBJECT.—Nehemiah's Prayer.—Nehemiah 1: 1-11.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Lord, be thou mine helper.—Psalm 30: 10.

[Open the Bible and read the lesson.]

DAILY READINGS.—M.—Nehemiah 1. T.—Nehemiah 2: 1-8. W.—1 Kings 8: 44-52. T.—Exodus 32: 7-14. F.—Deut. 30: 1-10. S.—Dan. 9: 3-11. S.—Deut. 7: 6-11.

COMMENTS BY E. E. FLAGG.

1. The afflicted state of Jerusalem. Vs. 1-3. Nehemiah is one of the most striking characters in sacred history. Perhaps the trait that impresses us most is his perfect consistency. We see no trace of that moral weakness, those spots on the sun, that we see in the lives of so many Scripture worthies. He is always the devoted patriot, the incorruptible official, strict with others, but even more strict with himself; never serving personal ends, or striving for personal popularity, but filled with a burning zeal for the honor of Jehovah and the upholding of his laws. He stands before us a Jew of the Jews, a Puritan of the Puritans, a grand type of a God-fearing ruler. His position as cup-bearer to the king gave him a residence in the royal palace of Shushan, the favorite winter abode of the kings of Persia. He occupied no menial position, but one of the greatest trust and confidence. Of all the courtiers he held the place nearest the monarch. He was a man of wealth and influence, yet Jerusalem, not Babylon, occupied the first place in his affections and interest, as we can see by the shock it gave him when he learned of its actual condition. The exiles were a subject race, poor, but forced to pay heavy tribute; the prey of lawless banditti as well as of their half-heathen neighbors. The practical question which should come home to each and every one of us, is this: "Do we, like Nehemiah, prize Jerusalem above our chief joys, and mourn when the spiritual Zion, the church of God on earth, lies waste?"

2. Nehemiah's prayer. Vs. 4-11. Nehemiah did not seek the sympathy of other Jews of the captivity, but he went to God instead. He "fasted and prayed before the God of heaven." He might have failed to meet an ardent response from those of his own nation, for many of them had grown rich in Babylon, and their hearts would naturally be where their treasure was. But those who go the Lord in trouble do not find him deaf to their cry. Nehemiah's prayer, as we know by the sequel, was wonderfully answered. So it is well to study it, and thereby learn some of the conditions of prevailing prayer. We note: 1. The solemnity and reverence with which he addresses Jehovah, as the great and terrible God." Some people shrink from this side of God's character, but a firm belief in these attributes of Deity must lie at the foundation of all true prayer. "That keepeth covenant and mercy for them that love him." His love and his justice are correlatives of each other. We are to "come boldly unto the throne of grace;" but this does not mean carelessly or irreverently. The strongest inspiration to faith comes from a clear apprehension of God's character. 2. Confession of sin, both national and individual. Nehemiah, though he seems from all that appears in the sacred record to have lived a spotless public and private life, includes himself and his father's house in the general confession. A proper sense of our own guilt and unworthiness is essential to prevailing prayer. We may have no gross, out-breaking sins to accuse ourselves of, yet who can say, "I have let no opportunity for doing good pass unimproved; I have never yielded to selfishness, to ill temper, or any other besetting sin." But it is these little foxes which spoil the vine of Christian character. Besides, God cannot fill our souls until we are entirely empty of self. 3. Pleading God's covenant promises. His threatened punishment in case they transgressed, "I will scatter you abroad among the nations," had been fulfilled to the letter. But much more would he be faithful to keep his promise that he would "gather them again" as soon as they returned to him. The very fact that God has punished us for our sins, is in itself one of our strongest arguments for turning to him in penitence, sure of his pardoning love. 4. Pleading his mercies and blessings in the past. These are thy servants and thy people whom thou hast redeemed." Surely we have every inducement to pray. The Gospel, the good news of redemption, includes everything needful that we can ask for. Having given us his Son, says the Apostle, will he not also freely give us all things. 5. Prevailing prayer is definite prayer. Nehemiah wanted a special blessing, and he got it. "Prosper thy servant, I pray thee this day, and grant him mercy in the sight of this man." Nehemiah knew well the character of the monarch he served. It would have been entirely in keeping with the accounts which we have in history of the capricious cruelty of Eastern kings if, instead of granting his request, he had been ordered to instant execution. 6. United prayer, though not a condition of success, is a great help. The expression, "the prayer of thy servants," would seem to imply that other pious Jews—perhaps Hanani and his companions—were joining their petitions to Nehemiah's.

RELIGIOUS NEWS.

BAPTIST.

—The interest shown in the sessions of the Centenary conference, held in the Fifth Avenue church, New York, Jan. 17 and 18, was more widespread than was anticipated. The audiences were large and the addresses were of a high order, and well calculated to arouse a deeper enthusiasm in the cause of foreign missions. The needs of mission fields in heathen lands were eloquently portrayed and the necessity for the outlay of more money was forcibly urged.

—The Second Baptist church of Chicago has started the Centenary missionary ball rolling by subscribing, recently, fifteen hundred dollars, to be increased to two thousand. This is setting an example which it is expected all our churches will follow. The year closes in March, and the million dollars asked for should be secured by that time.

CONGREGATIONAL.

—Not long ago was made an arrangement between the representatives of five evangelical denominations in Maine to secure mutual co-operation and prevent waste by overcrowding ground already occupied. More recently a conference of representatives of the home missionary societies of the Presbyterian, Congregational and Reformed churches met at the office of the Presbyterian board in New York to discuss the same subject. It was agreed that Western superintendents of the societies should be instructed to inquire carefully concerning churches already organized in a town before entering on any new work; also that when two or more denominations wish to organize churches in the same town, and the wisdom of such action is questioned, the matter should be referred to a local committee representing the proposed organizations. If this committee should not agree, the difference should be referred to the secretaries of the missionary societies in New York as the final arbiters. The Episcopal Methodist and Baptist societies were invited but were not represented. Therefore the conference failed.

—The Home Missionary Society aided last year about 2,100 fields in the West and South. It shares 483 of these fields with the Methodists, 224 with the Baptists, 133 with Presbyterians and 120 with the Episcopalians. In ninety-one of the 133 fields shared with Presbyterians there are populations ranging from 2,000 to 20,000, and there appears to be abundant room for churches of both denominations. In thirty-one of the remaining forty-two fields the Congregational church was first organized. Last year in six States where forty-eight Congregational churches were organized only two were planted in communities where there existed any other evangelical church. The statement of principles of our Home Missionary Society affirms that "it is the invariable rule of the society not to plant a Congregational church or mission on ground which in the proper sense of the word is cared for by other evangelical denominations."—Congregationalist.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL.

—The poor people of London who attended the West London mission last year, placed over $5,000 in the various "savings banks" under the name of goose clubs and slate clubs. With these small sums the superintendent purchased for the members articles ranging from a pair of shoe-laces to a musical cabinet.

—The Queen of England a few days ago gave $75 towards a fund being raised for the extinction of a debt on the chapel at East Cowes.

—Prof. H. O. Tanner, son of Bishop B. T. Tanner, of the African M. E. church, has been installed as one of the six committeemen to superintend the works and affairs of art embraced by the American Art club in Paris.

—The general cabinet of the Epworth League will meet in Chicago, Feb. 7, to transact important business. They will be the guests of the Methodist social union.

—The World's Fair commission appointed by the bishops by order of the general conference will be called to meet in Chicago, Feb. 15.

—Chicago Home Missionary and Church Extension society has had a year of prosperity. Fifteen new missions have been organized. Eleven churches were erected, at a cost of $71,000, with an indebtedness of $10,-

000. Ten charges have become self-sustaining. Forty-one missions have been aided during the year.

—Mr. Joseph Graydon has just completed his half-century of service as a teacher in St. Paul M. E. Sunday-school, New York City. The event was celebrated by the school Jan. 4.

—Old Morris chapel, one of the famous Methodist churches of Cincinnati, at whose altars hundreds of souls have been saved, is now a theater, with a saloon attached. Old Langley Avenue Methodist church, Chicago, is a dancing academy.

—It is said that in all parts of England, without any authoritative direction from the Wesleyan conference, a marked change is taking place in the mode of conducting public worship. Instead of the long prayer at the commencement of the service, which sometimes extended to twenty minutes, it has become the custom to offer a brief prayer of invocation and supplication, followed by a more comprehensive prayer after the second lesson. The singing of the "Amen" at the close of each hymn bids fair to become common.

—The Methodist Times says of its effort to bring Methodism in England once more into touch with the skilled artisans and the agricultural laborers: "It is not too much to say that on this subject Methodism has experienced something like a revolution since this journal was started. Social Christianity is now in the air. All churches are experiencing the same transformation. Its nature and tendency were very cleverly expressed by a Congregationalist minister the other day when he exclaimed: 'My church is rapidly ceasing to be a society of the saved, and becoming a society of saviors.'"

PRESBYTERIAN.

—As one result of the agitation over the Briggs case, Rev. L. L. Clark withdrew from the church. A committee of presbytery waited on him, heard what he had to say, and then urged him to remain in the church. They did not regard him as being out of line with her doctrines. He insisted that he is, and that he cannot conscientiously remain in the Presbyterian fold. The committee reported to presbytery and the matter was referred back to them with instructions to have further conference with Dr. Clark.

—It is not certain that the Briggs case will go before the general assembly. The final minute adopted by the presbytery was intended to bear strongly against this. The New York Evangelist, which has all along strongly supported the professor, of course pleads strongly against prosecuting the case. The New York Observer, which has opposed Dr. Briggs, also expresses its judgment that, as the professor has had a full and fair trial before the presbytery and has been declared "not guilty" on the charges, the prosecuting committee should drop the appeal.

PROTESTANT EPISCOPALIAN.

—At Duluth, Minn., January 25, Rev. Wm. B. Barker was consecrated as bishop of Western Colorado. The services were elaborate and impressive. The sermon was by Bishop Gilbert, of St. Paul. A large number of bishops and clergy from distant States and cities were present. Father Troth, of San Francisco, and Father Dabensky, of Minneapolis, were present as authorized representatives of the Greek church, an unusual and significant circumstance.

Y. M. C. A.

—More now, perhaps, than ever before, are the eyes of the people in the Western world turning toward Jerusalem, to catch signs of change. Among the means now used for the improvement of the present population of the Holy City is a Young Men's Christian Association. Jerusalem is certainly a "peculiar field," and therefore the methods of reaching young men there are unlike those adopted elsewhere. A feature of the work is along the line of temperance. One of the workers in Jerusalem says that at the present day more public houses and shops for the sale of spirituous liquors are to be found in a single street in Jerusalem than there were some thirty years ago in all Jerusalem, Bethlehem and Hebron put together. The sad part of it is, that it is the Christians (men who call themselves Christians) who have done all this mischief. It is they who have taught the Mohammedan, who is strictly forbidden by his religion to taste any intoxicating liquor, to drink. He thinks, therefore, that the Y. M. C. A. should try, by setting an example of a godly life, to undo this evil.

MISCELLANEOUS.

—The return of D. L. Moody to Chicago, after an absence of more than a year, has attracted renewed attention to the work he has been instrumental in accomplishing in the city through the Bible Institute and the Chicago Evangelization Society, and also to the work he proposes to do during the World's Fair.

—Chicago Sunday-school workers, headed by B. F. Jacobs, chairman of the international executive committee, are taking definite steps looking to the erection of a $50,000 building just outside the World's Fair grounds for a complete showing of Sunday-school progress and methods. An additional sum of $50,000 will be required to pay the expenses of the exhibit during the fair.

—Three heroes of foreign missions—Alexander Duff, David Livingstone and John G. Paton—were all lineal descendants of the Covenanters, says Dr. Cuyler, and all belonged to the old granite formation.

Easily Taken Up

Cod Liver Oil as it appears in Scott's Emulsion is easily taken up by the system. In no other form can so much fat-food be assimilated without injury to the organs of digestion.

Scott's Emulsion

of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites has come to be an article of every-day use, a prompt and infallible cure for Colds, Coughs, Throat troubles, and a positive builder of flesh.

Prepared by Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All druggists.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

CHICAGO.

Two proprietors of a restaurant (Germans), who refused to serve three Negroes, were held to the criminal court under bonds, respectively, of $1,000 and $2,000, for trial under the civil rights laws.

A creditor's bill was filed in the circuit court which may revive the litigation resulting in the failure of S. A. Kean. The complainant is Thomas Cleator, who recites an unsatisfied judgment against Kean for $4,660.94. The bill vigorously attacks the assignment which the banker made to Benjamin F. Jacobs as not being bona fide and as being made with an intent to defraud creditors. Incidentally the complainant states that Kean has $100,000 worth of concealed assets over and above all liabilities. He wants the court, among other things, to appoint a receiver for Kean.

Philip Haps, a driver for the Chicago Brewing company, was fined $50 by Justice Glennon for abusing his horses in a public street.

About 1200 persons met at Central Music Hall, on Friday, under the auspices of the Building and Aid Society of the Home for Destitute Crippled Children. Mrs. Nelson Stelle, president of the society, occupied the chair. The object of the meeting was to organize a movement to raise $250,000 to build a permanent home for the destitute crippled children of Chicago and the State of Illinois.

By an explosion of escaping gas in a house on Halsted street three persons were burned—one seriously.

Lumbermen from Northwestern centres, to the number of 600, visited this city last week. They have a new social order—that of the "Hoo-Hoos"—and while here initiated a large number of new members.

The Rev. Glen Wood, for many years an active minister of the Presbyterian church, and widely known as the secretary of the Children's Aid Society of Chicago, died at his residence in Lake Forest last Wednesday night. His death was caused by neuralgia of the heart, from which he had been suffering for some months. Mr. Wood was born in Greenbush, N. Y., April 6, 1818.

COUNTRY.

Congressman John L. Mitchell has been chosen for United States Senator from Wisconsin in place of ex-Senator Sawyer. He is a son of the late Alexander Mitchell, banker and railroad magnate, of Milwaukee, and has a good war record.

At Pittsburgh, Pa., Rev. Wm. R. Covert, the late attorney in fact of the Order of Solon, has begun criminal proceedings against Abraham Israel and R. H. Jackson, solicitors of Solon; R. J. Godfrey, ex-Supreme Treasurer; A. S. Mundori, ex-Supreme Secretary; J. L. Strickby, and W. J. Coyle, both prominent members of the order. The specific charge is conspiracy to defraud. The accused were arrested and gave bail.

Professor Rosenthal, a Chicago linguist, went to Rockford, Ill., last fall and organized a class in German, securing twenty-five pupils. After giving several lessons he collected the tuition for the full course in December and has not been seen in Rockford since.

Seventeen years ago one Grossman murdered two men at Rogers City, Mich. On Thursday last he was sentenced to life imprisonment in the penitentiary at Jackson.

Fred Morris, of Avoca, Iowa, found guilty of sending an obscene letter to a school teacher who refused to go to a dance with him because of his unsavory reputation, was sentenced to the penitentiary for three years and fined two thousand dollars by Judge Woolson in the United States court. The judge gave the prisoner a severe scolding and regretted his inability to impose a more severe sentence.

A ten-years' contract has been signed between the United States Express Company and the Reading Railroad Company by which the United States Express will carry all express matter on the Reading road and leased lines, including the Lehigh Valley. The Adams Express Company has been transporting the business of the Lehigh Valley, and the loss of its business will be a severe blow. The new contract goes into effect on the 3d inst.

Elijah Halford, President Harrison's private secretary, has been appointed a paymaster in the army.

(Continued on 16th page.)

SUBSCRIPTION LETTERS.

The following have made remittances of money to the Cynosure from Jan. 23 to Jan. 28:

M M Marling, E Blackburn, J G Stauffer, A H Leach, D Callow, Eld I C Weidler, T Gifford, A S Aiken, S J White, S Bushey, T R Turner, J O Doesburg, W H Stratton, Hon C T Austin, M L Miller, E A Washburn, R Park, B Doolittle, I Crawford, G W Lewis, L B Oliphant, T Kingsnorth, R Moore, Mrs M M B Stone, T Hudson, W Stewart, B M Sharp, O Tichenor.

To drive a cough from the system use Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. It never fails.

To grow old gracefully, one must live temperately, calmly, methodically; be interested in all that is going on in the world; be cheerful, happy, and contented, and above all, keep the blood pure and vigorous by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Be sure you get Ayer's.

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO.

Wheat—Spring No. 2.....	72 1/2 @	73 1/4
Winter No. 2.....	66 1/2 @	73
Corn—No. 2.....	44 @	44 3/8
Oats—No. 2.....	31 @	32
Rye—No. 2.....	53 @	57
Bran per ton.....	13 25 @	11 50
Hay—Timothy.....	9 50 @	11 50
Butter, medium to best....	16 @	32
Cheese.....	03 @	11 1/4
Beans.....	1 70 @	1 90
Eggs.....	22 @	29
Seeds—Timothy, 70 lbs. 4 16 @	4 16 @	4 46
Flax.....	1 15 @	1 15 1/2
Broom corn.....	02 @	05 1/2
Potatoes, per bu.....	58 @	72
Hides—Green to dry flint..	04 @	00 1/2
Lumber—Common.....	10 00 @	13 00
Wool (washed).....	15 @	32 1/2
Cattle—Choice to extra....	5 45 @	6 05
Common to good.....	4 10 @	4 70
Hogs.....	6 50 @	7 90
Sheep.....	4 50 @	5 90

NEW YORK.

Wheat.....	79 @	82
Corn.....	54 1/2 @	56
Oats.....	39 1/2 @	40 1/2
Eggs.....	34 @	35
Butter.....	20 @	33
Wool.....	15 @	30

KANSAS CITY.

Cattle.....	1 90 @	5 50
Hogs.....	5 00 @	7 90
Sheep.....	3 50 @	4 00

BEATTY Pianos, Organs, $33 up. Want Agts. Cat'l'g FREE. Dan'l F. Beatty, Washington, N. J.

Justice to All.

It is now apparent to the Directors of the World's Columbian Exposition that millions of people will be denied the pleasure of becoming the possessors of

World's Fair Souvenir Coins

The Official Souvenir of the Great Exposition—

The extraordinary and growing demand for these Coins, and the desire on the part of the Directors that equal opportunities may be afforded for their purchase, have made it necessary to enlarge the channels of distribution. To relieve themselves of some responsibility, the Directors have invited

THE MERCHANTS

Throughout the Nation to unite with the Banks in placing Columbian Half-Dollars on sale. This is done that the masses of the people, and those living at remote points, may be afforded the best possible opportunity to obtain the Coins.

THE FORTUNATE POSSESSORS

of SOUVENIR COINS will be those who are earliest in seizing upon these new advantages.

$10,000 Was Paid For The First Coin

They are all alike, the issue is limited, and time must enhance their value. The price is One Dollar each.

HOW TO GET THE COINS:

Go to your nearest merchant or banker, as they are likely to have them. If you cannot procure them in this way, send direct to us, ordering not less than Five Coins, and remitting One Dollar for each Coin ordered.

Send instructions how to ship the Coins and they will be sent free of expense. Remit by registered letter, or send express or post-office money order, or bank draft to Treasurer World's Columbian Exposition, Chicago, Ill.

LE CARON, THE SPY.

A STARTLING REVELATION.

More enticing than a romance, filled with the strongest evidences of the power and evil of sworn secret societies, and plainly revealing the danger to any government growing out of political conspiracies, is the

"Autobiography of Henry LeCaron, the Spy."

who was for years a Clan-na-Gael Center, a Fenian Commander, and a Land-League Orator, but always a British Detective. The book covers his twenty-five years' experiences in this secret service, and contains 205 pages.

Price, in paper covers, 50 cents.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
Wm. I. Phillips, Treasurer,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

THE Folly, Expense & Danger OF SECRET SOCIETIES.

BY CHARLES A. BLANCHARD.
(President Wheaton College.)

5 Cts per Copy; $3 per Hundred.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

College Secret Societies. Their customs, character and the efforts for their suppression. By H. L. Kellogg. Containing the opinions of many prominent college presidents and others, and a full account of the murder of Mortimer Leggett. 25cts

Standard Works

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Associat'n

321 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois

TERMS:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order as a guaranty that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums. A liberal discount to dealers.

Revised Odd-fellowship Illustrated. The complete revised ritual of the Lodge. Encampment and Rebekah (ladies) degrees, profusely illustrated, and guaranteed to be strictly accurate; with a sketch of the origin, history and character of the order, over one hundred foot-note quotations from standard authorities, showing the character and teachings of the order, and an analysis of each degree by ex-President J. Blanchard. This ritual corresponds exactly with the "Charge Books" furnished by the Sovereign Grand Lodge. In cloth, $1.00; paper cover, 50cts.

Anti-masonic Sermons and Addresses. Composed of "Masonry a Work of Darkness;" the Sermons of Messrs. Cross, William M'Nary, Dow and Sarver, the two addresses of President Blanchard, and the addresses of President H. H. George, Prof. J. G. Carson and Rev. M. S. Drury; "Thirteen Reasons Why a Christian cannot be a Freemason," "Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion," and "Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate?" 287 pages; cloth $1.00

Holden with Cords. OR THE POWER OF THE SECRET EMPIRE. By E. E. Flagg, author of "A Sunny Life," etc. This is a thrillingly interesting story, accurately true to life because mainly a narration of historical facts. In cloth, $1.00; in paper, 50 cents

HOME AND HEALTH.

BORAX IN THE HOME.

Only within recent years has the low price of borax brought it within the means of everyone as a household assistant, and it would not be surprising if there were still many who would be found but partially aware of the ways in which it can be made helpful. Until within the last quarter century it was principally the product of Eastern countries and Italy, and was imported to this country and sold at a high price. The article known as borax, which, chemically speaking, is the bi-borate of soda, was found in the development of California and Nevada to exist in such quantities that a long farewell might be given to the imported article, if only these deposits could be made available; and it was not long before American capital had extensive reducing works in operation, with such capacity as to not only supply the home demand, but to allow of the export of large quantities. It now sells at less than a quarter of the price prevalent thirty years ago, and is therefore available for every use to which it is adapted. And it can be used a great deal more generally and helpfully than is appreciated. It may not be amiss to state some of the methods of use, as given by those who have made the matter a subject for thought and careful experiment, with a view to lighten labor and brighten the home of the laborer. For all washing purposes borax softens the water, loosens dirt, saves soap and labor, reduces the wear on clothes, and is soothing to the skin, making the hands soft and white, and will not injure the finest fabrics. Borax is also the best preservative known for fish, flesh or fowl; and for these purposes immense quantities are used; a light sprinkling of powdered borax will preserve them from decay or putrefaction.—Good Housekeeping.

ABOUT THE HOUSE.

Pillow shams are pretty when made of heavy, fine muslin, with hems edged with coarse torchon lace slightly full on, and with a monogram in the center done in raised work. Handsome knitted or crocheted lace is an appropriate edging for pillow shams.

The average size of a breakfast napkin is half a yard square; of a dinner napkin, three quarters of a yard. A napkin seven-eighths of a yard square is sometimes sold, but these are rather too large to be handled conveniently.

There is no use for ribbons about a room unless they tie on something, or serve some practical use; or for draperies, unless they drape something which it is desirable to drape, as well as give a brilliant piece of color.

A box about three feet long and one foot high, and not quite as wide as a chair, can be made to serve a double purpose by covering it neatly. The cover should be padded evenly with cotton, and covered over with ticking or cloth, then a pair of hinges should be put on six or eight inches from the end, and the cover attached to the box. Any material used for covering furniture is suitable to cover the sides and top. It should be cut wide enough to cover the sides of the box and fastened neatly over the top and under the bottom with small tacks. Cretonne is inexpensive; also denim. It can be ornamented around the top where the cover closes with a strip of feltting pinked on both edges and tacked to the box in the center of each scallop on the top edge with brass-headed nails. When finished this makes a good seat, and, having a cover with hinges, it is convenient to keep work in, or clothing, etc. Small boxes, such as soap or starch boxes, make very convenient footstools. It is best to cover them with carpeting, yet denim can be used, as it is strong and wears a long time. Pad the top with cotton or excelsior. A band of feltting, pinked on the edge, or a strip of fringe tacked around the sides to the top, adds to their appearance.—Selected.

PHYSICAL CULTURE FOR GIRLS.

The editor of the Review of Reviews has contributed to his December number an article upon physical culture at Wellesley College. It takes very advanced grounds as to the duty of every college for young women in the direction of supplying complete facilities for the care of the health of students and for the development of their physical strength. Some extremely interesting steps in advance have lately been taken at Wellesley, and these are fully described. The most interesting part of the article, however, are the graphic tables with which it is fully illustrated, and which show what forty Freshmen have been able to accomplish under regular gymnasium instruction during six months in respect to the increase of the girth, depth and strength of chest, the capacity of lungs, the breadth of shoulders, the strength of back and the strength of other muscles. It is an article which will certainly have its weight in the educational world, and which can but interest parents who have daughters to train.

One in seven of all deaths comes from Consumption. That's about the proportion. And almost every death from Consumption comes from neglect and delay. There's neglect in preventing the disease—delay in curing it. You can prevent it—and cure it, if you'll act in time, with Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Poor and impure blood makes you an easy victim—a scrofulous condition of the system invites it.

You must reach the disease through the blood, and the "Discovery" does it. It's the most potent and effective blood-cleanser, strength-restorer, and flesh-builder that's known to medical science. The scrofulous affection of the lungs that's called Consumption, and every form of scrofula and blood-taints, all yield to it. For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Bronchitis, Asthma, and all severe, lingering Coughs, it's an unequalled remedy.

And it's the only one that's guaranteed to do what is claimed for it. If it fails to benefit or cure, you have your money back.

The St. Louis Sermon.

Are Secret Societies a Blessing or a Curse?

An Address by Rev. B. Carradine D. D., Pastor of the Centenary M. E. Church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891.

W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's too."

A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover.

Sent postpaid 25 copies $1.00. Single copy 5 cents.

Address - - W. I. PHILLIPS, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

MY EXPERIENCES

WITH

SECRET SOCIETIES.

BY A TRAVELER.

With a Key to Masonry Illustrated

—o—

A new edition, greatly enlarged, has been issued, embracing chapters on the Language of Numbers, Secret Empires, and Good Men, containing more Experiences, and affording a deeper insight into the Hidden Language and Workings of Secret Clans, and of the counterfeited pretences of good men, than ever before published. The Key is an exposition, explanation and verification of modern Baalism, with which all should be thoroughly acquainted. The price of the new edition is

Fifteen Cents,

but copies of the first edition will be forwarded for Ten Cents.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASS'N, 221 W. Madison st., Chicago.

Odd-fellowship Judged by its own utterances; its doctrine and practice examined in the light of God's Word. By Rev. J. H. Brockman. This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-fellowship, in the form of a dialogue. In cloth 50cts; paper covers, 25cts.

Minutes of the Syracuse Convention. Containing addresses by Rev. B. T. Roberts, Chas. W. Green, Esq., Prof. C. A. Blanchard, Rev. D. P. Rathbun, Rev. D. S. Caldwell, Mrs. M. E. Gage, Elder J. R. Baird and others. 25cts each.

"WORTH A GUINEA A BOX."

BLIND.

They are blind who will not try a box of

BEECHAM'S PILLS

for the disorders which grow out of Impaired Digestion. For a Weak Stomach, Constipation, Disordered Liver, Sick Headache, or any Bilious and Nervous ailments, they take the place of an entire medicine chest.

COVERED WITH A TASTELESS AND SOLUBLE COATING.

Of all druggists. Price 25 cents a box. New York Depot, 365 Canal St.

The Blue Bell.

The Mountain Daisy.

Daily Text books for a year. Dainty little souvenirs, only 1 1/4 inches square, elegantly and neatly bound in leather, with silk marker, gilt edges, round corners, each net 25

Illuminated paper covers, each 10

Birthday Memorial Text-Book. An Autograph Text-book. Text for each day and space for autographs. 32mo., Cloth..... 25

Daily Comfort in Four Fold Links.

The most popular Wall Roll published, and deservedly so. Every page is an effective sermon.

The striking character and particular value of this new Wall Roll is in the remarkable arrangement and selection of the Scripture Texts.

A constant monitor in the Christian household.

A silent teacher for the school.

A comforting messenger for the sick-room, as well as being suitable for the office, the store or the shop.

Printed in beautiful large, clear letters, easily discernible at a distance of 10 to 15 feet. Mounted on rollers, with cord, to hang up in usual style. 31 pages, size 14x22in. 75

The Secret of Success; or

Finger Posts on the Highway of Life, by John T. Dale; introduction by Hon. John V. Farwell. 416 pages, 12mo., full cloth $1.50

A book for the aspiring. Written in a fascinating style and full of incidents and illustrations which hold the interest of the reader spell-bound.

"It may be true, as has been said, that 'books are sold, not bought;' but this, at any rate, is a book which, if brought to one's attention, he will wish to own. * * *

Such a book in every intelligent family in the land—how much (in showing so clearly, so wisely, so persuasively the secret of success,) it might do toward helping to solve the countless aching, burning questions of the time."—The Advance.

Prof. Henry Drummond's Booklets.

The Perfected Life. (The greatest need of the world.) Bound in chaste style, vellum paper..... 20

Love the Supreme Gift. (The greatest thing in the world.) Uniform with Perfected Life. 20

The Open Secret.

By Hannah Whitall Smith. A series of practical Bible readings by a most popular author. 320 pages, cloth, 1.00

"All who have read the exceedingly popular work, 'The Christian's Secret of a Happy Life,' will not be disappointed in expecting to find in this new volume a fullness and sweetness in the unfolding of God's Word, in its application to the practical and daily duties of Christian living, such as few writers are capable of presenting."

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

United Sons of Industry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the secret tradesunion of the above name, giving the signs, grips, passwords 15cts each.

Secret Societies Illustrated. Containing the signs, grips, passwords, emblems, etc., of Freemasonry (Blue Lodge and to the fourteenth degree of the York rite), Adoptive Masonry, Revised Odd-fellowship, Good Templarism, 'The Temple of Honor, the United Sons of Industry, Knights of Pythias and the Grange, with affidavits, etc. Over 250 cuts, 99 pages, paper cover. 25cts each.

The New World of Central Africa.

By Mrs. H. Grattan Guinness, with a history of the first Christian mission on the Congo. 12mo., 530 pages with maps, portraits and numerous illustrations. $2.00

"A conscientious piece of work, and gives a very clear account of what has been done by the Protestant missions to evangelize the barbarous races of Central Africa. * * *

He who wants to know what missionary effort means in these days may well learn from this volume. * * *

The reader who goes carefully through will have a good bird's eye view of recent events in Africa, with all the results of modern travel. * * *

The work contains solid information of use to all who are interested in the future of this wonderful country. The many illustrations throw light upon savage customs and costumes."—Graphic.

The Far East.

Letters from China by Geraldine Guinness, edited by her sister, with introduction by Rev. J. Hudson Taylor. Very fully illustrated. Quarto cloth, $1.50

This book was scarcely written—it was lived; for the breath of life is in it from cover to cover.

We have never read so wonderful an account of successful missionary effort.—Presbyterianian

We easily understand how this edition is the fifteenth thousand. It is a very remarkable book.—The Golden Rule.

Frances Ridley Havergall's Poems.

Author's edition complete. The only unabridged authorized edition published in America.

1. 12mo., 880 pages, cloth, beveled.....2.00

2. Beveled boards, full gilt..... 2.50

3. Half white vellum, gilt top, uncut edges, 2.50

4. French morocco padded, roll red under gold edges.....4.00

5. Persian calf, padded and embossed, gilt roll and r. g.5.00

6. Crushed levant, elegant.....6.00

7. Full German calf, padded, elegant, gilt, rd. cors.....7.50

Miss Havergall stands without peer in the English language in the department of religious poetry.

"The book in paper and binding is all that could be desired."—Publishers' Weekly.

Small Books by Miss Havergall.

Bound in elegant illuminated board covers. Kept for the Master's Use. 20

My King; Daily Thoughts for the King's Children..... 20

Works of Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

Sermon Notes. Covering all the Bible from Genesis to Revelation. 4 vols.....4.00

Feathers for Arrows. A volume of Choice Extracts, 12mo., cloth.....1.00

Twelve Striking Sermons..... 50

Twelve Soul Winning Sermons, 50

Twelve Sermons on the Resurrection 50

Twelve New Year Sermons..... 50

Twelve Christmas Sermons..... 30

Notes by C. H. M.

On Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy.

Mr. D. L. Moody says of these books: "They have been to me a very key to the Scriptures."

Deuteronomy is issued in two volumes, the others complete in one volume each.

Separate volumes may be had if desired.

The complete set in six volumes, covering over 2,300 pages, is offered at the reduced price of 75c per vol. or $4.50 per set

A. L. O. E. Intermediate Library.

Selected from the numerous productions of this world-renowned writer as being those of rare merit. 12 vols., 12mo., cloth elegant, each 75c; set.....9.00

An Eden in England. Life in Eagle's Nest. Ad Franks. White Bear's Den. Sheer Off. Fairy Spider's Web. Braid of Chords. Lake in the Woods. Silver Keys. Seven Perils Passed. Grace Vernon. Hartley Brothers.

The Jessica Series. By Hessa Stretton. 6 vols., handsome bindings, cloth 50c each, or per set2.10

Jessica's First Prayer. Friends till Death. No Place Like Home. A Miserable Christmas Under the Old Roof. A Night and a Day.

A. L. O. E. Junior Library. Adapted to the young folks. 7 vols., 12mo., cloth, each 60c; the set4.20

Claremont Tales. A Wreath of Smoke. Christian Conquests. Pomegranates from Punjab. Parables. Little Bullets from the Battle of Life. Batala.

The Hessa Stretton Series. 8 vols., elegant cloth bound, per set.....4.80

Cassy. King's Servant. Lost Gip. Alone in London. Max Kromer. Little Meg's Children. Storm of Life. Crew of the Dolphin.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N, 221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

FARM NOTES.

(From Farm, Field and Fireside.)

PREPARING SOIL FOR FARM CROPS.

My preparation of the soil for corn is to put on a good dressing of barnyard manure; plow not less than six inches deep, as early in the fall as possible. I prefer fall plowing in all kinds of soil, whether the ground is stubble or sod. In the spring cultivate thrice over with a disk harrow, to get the ground good and mellow, then plant with a two-horse corn-planter.

For spring wheat plant as early in the fall as possible, cultivate in the spring with a disk harrow to pulverize the ground, and then sow the wheat and harrow well in.

For barley I prepare the ground same as for wheat; but it is very essential to have good, rich ground, for if sown on poor soil the crop will be very light.

For oats I also prefer fall plowing; but here in the West it is impossible to have all fall plowing; hence in order to have rotation of crops we must plow in the spring or else sow oats on the ground where corn was grown the previous year without being plowed. If the ground has been kept clean I prefer the latter. Sow the oats in the spring and cultivate with the disk harrow twice over and drag with common harrow, and if the season is favorable you may look for a bountiful crop.

For potatoes I take good, rich ground, plow deep and cultivate until the ground is perfectly mellow, and then plant. I prefer ground that is a little sandy for potatoes.

For rye I take my poorest ground and plow and cultivate or pulverize until the ground is in good order and sow about the middle of September.—Wm. Hamilton, of Butler county, Iowa.

WHY HENS DON'T LAY.

In order to coax hens to lay this winter, there must be a good, warm hen-house for them, and well-lighted.

Fifty fowls are enough to keep over, and forty-seven of them should be good laying hens. They should be kept in their own house, and not be allowed to roost and roam over the farm, in the severest weather.

Gravel is what they lack in winter, and that lack should be supplied by burnt clam-shells, broken dishes pounded fine, and burnt bones, with coal ashes and road dust for a dust bath.

Water should be kept always near, and a hot stone or iron put in on cold days to keep the pan from freezing. Then, with plenty of good screenings and corn, crumbs from the table, and a few cabbage leaves, dried grass, and old meat bones to pick, there is no excuse for them.

Hens love to hide away in some quiet spot, hidden from view; and a few hours' work will provide these.—Mrs. E. Bennett.

CONVICT-ROADMAKING.

One of the recommendations of Governor Altgeld which will meet with universal approval is his endorsement of the Farm, Field and Fireside plan of employing convict labor in making good roads. On this subject he says: "While our State has developed in every other respect we have made no progress in the matter of roads. We are, in this regard, almost where we were half a century ago, so that, for a number of months in a year, our roads are almost impassable. The loss and inconvenience of this fall most heavily on our agricultural communities. Not only is the farmer subjected to a heavy loss in the wear and tear of his team, but he is frequently prevented from availing himself of favorable markets by the impassability of the roads. The State should again take up the subject of internal improvements and adopt a policy that will tend to the building of good roads in every county in the State—roads that can be traveled every day in the year. As the railroads do all the carrying for long distances, wagon roads are, to a great extent, a local matter in each county. This being so, the roads will not need to be so wide, and can, therefore, be more cheaply built than would otherwise be possible. It is also to all other medicines for purifying the blood and restoring the health and strength,

SUPERIOR

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

is the standard specific for Scrofula, Catarrh Rheumatism, and Debility.

Cures Others will cure you.

The Christian Witness

Is an eight-page undenominational monthly; the official organ of the New Hampshire Christian Association, opposed to secret societies. It advocates Bible Holiness, Church Purity, Sound Morality and Temperance.

Terms: 50 cents a year, or three years for $1.00.

Send stamp for sample copy.

Address S. C. KIMBALL, Box 277. Newmarket, N. H.

DO YOU WANT

To receive, read, distribute and otherwise aid in the circulation of a large number of Holiness and Reform papers and magazines? If so, send me a SILVER dime, and your name and address will be printed on the Holiness and Reform Mail Exchange List, which is sent to all publishers of holiness and reform literature, who will mail you sample papers and magazines. Write name and address PLAINLY. Address, J. H. PADGETT, Printer, Ennis, Texas.

Disloyal

SECRET OATHS

ADDRESS OF

JOSEPH COOK,
OF BOSTON,
AT THE

Conference of Christians
CHICAGO, 1890.

No better document of its size for general distribution has been printed. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference.

Single Copies 5 cents, or 12 copies for 50 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

probable that some of the convicts in our penitentiaries could be used to prepare material for the building of roads. . . . The convicts must be kept at work. A few of them could be set to preparing material for the making of roads, but other employment must be furnished for the remainder."

Nearly all women have good hair, though many are gray, and few are bald. Hall's Hair Renewer restores the natural color, and thickens the growth of the hair.

BEECHAM'S PILLS cure Bilious and Nervous Ills.

STANDARD WORKS

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES.

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Association.

221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

TERMS:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order as a guaranty that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums. A liberal discount to dealers.

ON FREEMASONRY.

Freemasonry Illustrated. A complete exposition of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter. Profusely illustrated. Complete work of 640 pages, in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 75 cents. First three degrees (376 pages), in cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Knight Templarism Illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the Council and Commandery. A book of 341 pages. In cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.

Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated. The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all the Masonic Rites, and are fully and accurately given in "Freemasonry Illustrated." Vol. I. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3rd to 18th inclusive. Vol. II. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 19th to 33rd inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive. Price per volume, paper cover, 50 cents each. In cloth, $1.00 each.

Hand-Book of Freemasonry. By E. Ronayne, Past Master of Keystone Lodge No. 639, Chicago. Gives the complete standard ritual of the first three degrees of Freemasonry. New edition, 274 pages. Bound flexible cloth covers, 50 cents.

Freemasonry Exposed. By Capt. William Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book republished. 25 cents each.

Adoptive Masonry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the five degrees of Female Freemasonry, by Thomas Lowe. 20 cents each.

Light on Freemasonry. By Elder D. Bernard. In cloth, $1.50 each. Paper, 75 cents each.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Baal Worship Identical, explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the lodge. Bound in fine cloth, 420 pages, 75 cents.

Mah-Hah-Bone; comprises the Hand Book, Master's Carpet and Freemasonry at a glance. Bound in one volume. In cloth, 589 pages, $1.00.

History of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. As prepared by seven committees of citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan. 25 cents each.

Ex-President John Quincy Adams' Letters on the Nature of Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties. Price, cloth, $1.00. Paper, 35 cents.

Hon. Thurlow Weed on the Morgan Abduction. This is the legally attested statement of this eminent Christian journalist and statesman concerning the unlawful seizure and confinement of Capt. Morgan in Canandaigua jail, his removal to Fort Niagara and subsequent drowning in Lake Ontario. 15 cents each.

The Broken Seal; or Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. By Samuel D. Greene. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Reminiscences of Morgan Times. By Elder David Bernard. This is a thrilling narrative of the incidents connected with Bernard's Revelation of Freemasonry. 10 cents each.

The Mystic Tie, or Freemasonry a League with the Devil. This is an account of the church trial of Peter Cook and wife, of Elkhart, Indiana, for refusing to support a reverend Freemason. 15 cents each.

Freemasonry Self-Condemned. By Rev. J. W. Bain. A careful and logical statement of reasons why secret orders should not be fellowshiped by the Christian Church. Paper covers, price, 20 cents each.

Grand Lodge Masonry. Its relation to civil government and the Christian religion. By Pres. J. Blanchard. The un-Christian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is proved from the highest Masonic authorities. 5 cents each.

General Washington Opposed to Secret Societies. This is a re-publication of Governor Joseph Ritner's "Vindication of General Washington from the Stigma of Adherence to Secret Societies," communicated to the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania, March 8, 1837, at their special request. To this is added the fact that three high Masons were the only persons who opposed a vote of thanks to Washington on his retirement to private life—undoubtedly because they considered him a seceding Freemason. 10cts each.

Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry, as proved in court in the New Berlin trials. The New Berlin trials began in the attempt of Freemasons to prevent public initiations by seceding Masons. These trials were held at New Berlin, Chenango Co., N. Y., April 13 and 14, 1831, and General Augustus C. Welsh, sheriff of the county, and other adhering Freemasons swore to the truthful revelation of the oaths and penalties. 10 cents each.

Morgan's Exposition, Abduction and Murder, and Oaths of 33 Degrees. Composed of "Freemasonry Exposed," by Capt. Wm. Morgan; "History of the Abduction and Murder of Morgan;" "Valance's Confession of the Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "Bernard's Reminiscences of Morgan Times," and "Oaths and Penalties of 33 Degrees." 300 pages; cloth, $1.00.

Finney on Masonry. The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry. By Pres. Charles G. Finney, of Oberlin College. President Finney was a "bright Mason," but left the lodge when he became a Christian. This book has opened the eyes of multitudes. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper cover, 35 cents.

Narratives and Arguments, showing the conflict of secret societies with the Constitution and law of the Union and of the States. By Francis Semple. The fact that secret societies interfere with the execution and pervert the administration of law is here clearly proved. 15cts each.

Secrecy vs. the Family, State and Church. By Rev. M. S. Dury. The antagonism of organized secrecy to the welfare of the family, state and church, is clearly shown. 10cts each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. James Williams, Presiding Elder of Dakota District Northwestern Iowa Conference M. E. Church—a seceding Master Mason. 10 cents each.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 Degrees of FREEMASONRY. To get these thirty-three degrees of Masonic bondage, the candidate takes half-a-million horrible oaths. 15 cents each.

Thirteen Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy. Address of Pres. J. Blanchard. This is a most convincing argument against the lodge. 5 cents each.

Stearns's Inquiry into the Nature and Tendency of FREEMASONRY. 338 pages. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. W. P. McNary, pastor United Presbyterian church. 5 cents each.

The Anti-mason's Scrap-Book, consisting of 53 "Cynosure" tracts. In this book are the views of more than a score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of secret societies. Postpaid. 25 cts.

Temple of Honor Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of "The Templars of Honor and Temperance," commonly called the Temple of Honor. By a Templar of Fidelity and Past Worthy Chief Templar. 25cts each.

Pres. H. H. George on Secret Societies. A powerful address, showing clearly the duty of Christian churches to dis-fellowship secret societies. 10cts each.

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern, and College Secret Societies. Composed of the two pamphlets combined in this title, bound together in cloth. $1.00

ROYAL BAKING POWDER Absolutely Pure.

A cream of tartar baking Powder. Highest of all in leavening strength.—Latest United States Government Food Report. ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 106 Wall St., N. Y.

NEWS OF THE WEEK (Continued from 13th page).

On Thursday last a grand jury at Rochester, N. Y., indicted several big local coal dealers for combining to keep up the price of that commodity and prevent competition in the coal trade. They are charged with conspiracy.

The A. P. A. at Lafayette, Ind., engaged for a public lecture Prof. Geo. P. Rudolph, formerly a Catholic priest at Cleveland, O. The subject announced was, "Why I left the Romish priesthood." A mob gathered, some to listen and others to prevent the delivery of the lecture, and a riot ensued in which fire-arms and other weapons were freely used. Officers interfered and restored comparative quiet; but Rudolph, who had been roughly handled and shot in the hand, declined to proceed with his discourse.

An Inter-Ocean correspondent writes from Southern Florida: "I am sitting by a good pine fire, with overcoat on, collar turned up, and trying to keep warm." Another from New Orleans says: "We have never before experienced such cold, distressing weather here."

The complaint from Mexico that "Mormons have renewed the custom of polygamy" may well awaken people to a sense of the danger of admitting Utah into the Union. The Mormons have not been converted. "The heathen of the Cannibal Islands" are much more hopeful subjects to modern civilization than the Utah Mormons.—Inter-Ocean.

In 1880 the South produced 350,436 tons of iron. In ten years it reached to 1,834,586, and the current year will go over 2,000,000 tons. This is an advance of over 400 per cent.

People living in light-houses and upon small islands along the Atlantic coast have been shut off by the ice from all traffic with the mainland, and are, many of them, suffering for lack of supplies. Even Nantucket has been cut off twelve days.

At the annual meeting of the Bowdoin College alumni, Prof. Robinson, of the chemical department of Bowdoin, announced that Edward F. Searles, to whom Mark Hopkins' millions were left, had promised to erect the finest and best-equipped building for the study of the sciences that could be had in this country. He stated that Mr. Searles had placed no limit on the cost.

Surveyors began Feb. 1 to lay out the line of the proposed Winona, Marshalltown & Southern railroad in Iowa.

David Murry, of Harrison Co., Ohio, advertised for a wife, and received a favorable response from a young woman near Charleston, W. Va. The courtship proceeded harmoniously, and the wedding day was set. Providentially, before the marriage he discovered in the bride his own daughter, from whom his divorced wife had separated him in infancy. She is now his housekeeper.

FOREIGN.

Great Britain holds a financial interest in the politics of Egypt, the bonds of the latter government being largely owned by British citizens. Quite recently the young Khedive changed his ministry without consulting the British government, and the representative of the latter at Cairo refused to recognize the new cabinet. The Khedive declined to make another change. The British government was notified, and sternly declared that a change must be made within twenty-four hours. The demand was promptly obeyed; and the Khedive has been warned that hereafter he must ask permission of his superiors before introducing any important political innovations.

A new case of cholera is reported at Trotha, in Prussian Saxony, where several cases have before been noted. The disease has appeared in the village of Morl. Four new cases and two deaths occurred at Ottensen, a suburb of Altona. No new cases have been reported in Hamburg.

The Spanish government is understood not to be disposed to grant the request of the United States that missionaries be readmitted to the Caroline Islands, and be protected in the discharge of their evangelical work.

It is not necessary to call a doctor for a cut or bruise; get Salvation Oil. Only 25 cts.

World's Fair Souvenir Coins.

One of the most creditable pieces of advertising that has been done lately is that of the World's Fair Souvenir Coins. It must have been an inspiration that led Lord & Thomas to suggest to the directory the payment of the advertising in these coins.

The advertising as designed by Lord & Thomas was unique and original. It was placed in all sections of the country, the order was completed within six weeks, and the delivery of the coins made within two weeks of completion.

The World's Fair people were eminently satisfied with the success of the advertisements as a means of selling the coins, the papers are more than satisfied with receiving the coins for their pay, and Lord & Thomas are satisfied with the credit they have received for knowing how to push the sale of a peculiar thing to a successful issue. It is rumored that they are to receive an additional order, to which they are fairly entitled.

RUPTURE

A positive radical cure at home. (Sealed) Book giving full particulars sent FREE. Address DR. W. S. RICE, Box 206, Smithville, Jefferson Co., N. Y.

BOSTON CRYSTAL GELATINE.

Lady agents wanted everywhere to sell above Gelatine. A good remuneration can be made. For particulars address Crystal Gelatine Co., 216 Lake St., Chicago.

THIS $11 TO $17 FREE SEWING MACHINE. A positive radical cure at home. (Sealed) Book giving full particulars sent FREE. Address ALVAH MFG. CO., Dpt. C139 Chicago, Ill. Mention this paper.

MY WIFE SAYS SHE CANNOT SEE HOW YOU DO IT FOR THE MONEY. $12 Buys a $65.00 Improved Oxford Singer Sewing Machine; perfect working, reliable, finely finished, adapted to light and heavy work, with a complete set of the latest improved attachments. FREE. Each machine is guaranteed for 5 years. Buy direct from our factory, and save dealers and agents profit. FREE TRIAL and FREE CATALOGUE. OXFORD MFG. CO., DEPT. b34 Chicago, Ill.

Our High Grade List and Bargain Book sent to any address on receipt of a 2-c stamp. LORD & THOMAS, NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING, 45 RANDOLPH STREET, CHICAGO.

WHEATON COLLEGE, WHEATON, ILL.

A School for Men and Women. SPRING TERM BEGINS APRIL 4th, 1893.

Full College Courses, Preparatory Courses, Stenography, Typewriting, Vocal Music and Blackboard Drawing, without extra charge.

CHAS. A. BLANCHARD, Pres.

IF YOU WANT WORK

that is pleasant and profitable, send us your address immediately. We teach men and women how to earn from $5 per day to $3.00 per year without having had previous experience, and furnish the employment at which they can make that amount. Capital unnecessary. A trial will cost you nothing. Write to-day and address, E. C. ALLEN & CO., Box 1001, Augusta, Me.

The Genuine, Illustrated, Unabridged, Cloth-Bound, $20.

Encyclopedia Britannica

The full set is now ready. It is a reprint, in large type, of the last (9th) English edition, over 20,500 pages, and over 10,000 illustrations and 200 maps, all for $20.00.

Five Cents a Day. Membership in the Britannica Cooperative Club costs $1.00 extra, and secures the work on payments of $1.00 every 20 days. American Supplement, 3,843 pages, and Index, 579 pages, especially treating American topics, and living biography, cloth binding, $6.00.

Full particulars, with specimen pages, free; NOT sold by dealers; order direct.

The World's Best Books.

Fabulously cheap, for excellent editions; large type, fine paper, neat cloth binding, gilt titles. All now ready, in cloth binding; most of them will shortly be issued, also, in fine half morocco binding, gilt top, at 20 cents each, extra.

Prices are by express; if to go by mail add from 8c. to 12c. a volume for postage.

Esop's Fables. Illustrated, 20 cents
Adam Bede. By George Eliot, 30 cents
Alcuin. History of Common Things, 40 cents
American Humors. Lowell, Holmes, Ward, 25c
American Patriotism. Speeches and Papers, 50c
Arabian Nights' Entertainments. 25 cents
Auerbach. On the Heights, 40 cents
Bacon's Essays and Locke on Understanding. 30c
Baring-Gould. Curious Myths of Middle Ages, 30c
Legends of the Patriarchs and Prophets. 35 cents
Baron Munchausen. 30 cents
Beecher's Lectures to Young Men. 35 cents
Blackmore. Lorna Doon, 40 cents
Burke on the Sublime and Beautiful. 20 cents
Carlyle's Heroes and Hero Worship. 25 cents
French Revolution. 2 volumes in 1, 60 cents
Charles. The Schonberg-Cotta Family, 25 cents
Child's History of England. Charles Dickens, 30c
Children of the Abbey. Regina Maria Roche, 30c
Chinese Classics. Confucius and Mencius, 50 cents
Classic Comedies. She Stoops to Conquer, School for Scandal, Every Man in His Humor, 35 cents
Cooper's Tales of St. Augustine. Tr. by Pusey, 50c
Cooper, James Fenimore. Leather-Stocking Tales and Sea Tales, each, 30 cents
Deerslayer. 30c
Pathfinder. 30c
Last of the Mohicans. 30c
The Pioneers. 30c
The Prairie. 30c
Crak (Miss Muloch). John Halifax, Gentleman, 35c
Creasy's Fifteen Decisive Battles of the World. 35c
Dawson's Story of Earth and Man. 35 cents
Darwin's The Origin of Species. 30 cents
Dickens' Christmas Stories. Chimes, Cricket, and Carol, 20 cents
Ebers, Prof. Georg. Uarda, 35 cents
An Egyptian Princess. 35 cents
Emerson's Essays. Two Series, complete, 45 cents
Entering on Life. By Dr. Geikie, 30 cents
Epictetus. The Teachings of, 25 cents
Fairy Tales. By Hans Christian Andersen, 30 cents
Favorite Poems of Bryant, Longfellow, Whittier, and Lowell. 825 pages, large type, 50 cents
Famous Warriors. Hannibal, Caesar, Cromwell, 35c
Farrar's Early Days of Christianity. 60 cents
Franklin's Autobiography. 25 cents
Frederick the Great and His Court. By Miss Mulbach, 30 cents
Gulliver's Travels. By Dean Swift, 30 cents
Hawthorne's Twice-Told Tales. complete, 30 cents
Mosses from an Old Manse. complete, 30 cents
Grandfather's Chair. 25 cents
The Scarlet Letter. 20 cents
Herbert's Poetical Works. 20 cents

Headley. Washington and His Generals, 75 cents
Napoleon and His Marshals. 75 cents
Hughes. Tom Brown at Rugby, 25 cents
Tom Brown at Oxford. 35 cents
Immortal, The. By Daudet, 35 cents
Ideal Classics. Vicar of Wakefield, Rasselas, Paul and Virginia, Udine, Piccola, Elizabeth, 50c
Irry's Sketch Book. 30 cents
Knickerbocker. 30 cents
Ivanhoe. By Sir Walter Scott, 30 cents; the same in half morocco, gilt top, 30 cents
Jane Eyre. By Charlotte Bronte, 30 cents
Jerrold. Mrs. Caudle's Curtain Lectures, 20 cents
Kingsley, Charles. Hypatia, 30 cents
Westward, Ho! 40 cents
Koran. Translated by Sale, 50 cents
Lamb's Essays. complete, 40 cents
Lampighter. By Maria S. Cummins, 35 cents
Last Days of Pompeii. By E. Bulwer-Lytton, 30c
Les Misérables. Victor Hugo, 2 vols., complete, 75c
Lossing's Eminent Americans. 400 Portraits, 75c
Lucile. By Owen Meredith, 20 cents
Marcus Aurelius Antoninus. 25 cents
Miller, Hugh. Testimony of the Rocks, 50 cents
Foot-Prints of the Creator. 50 cents
The Old Red Sandstone. 50 cents
Mitchell's Planetary and Stellar Worlds. 25 cents
Natural Law in the Spiritual World. Drummond, 50c
Old Man's Secret. By E. Marlitt, 30 cents
Parton, James. Eminent Women, 45 Biographies, 55c
Pleasures of Life. Sir John Lubbock, complete, 30c
Purarch's Lives of Illustrious Men. 50 cents
Poetical Works of H. Kirk White. 20 cents
Prescott's Biographical and Critical Miscellanies. 25c
Rebekah. A Novel of the Times of Nero, 50 cents
Richardson's The Choice of Books. 20 cents
Robinson Crusoe. 30 cents
Rogers' Poetical Works. 20 cents
Romby. By George Eliot, 30 cents
Ruskin's Choice Works. Sesame and Lilies, Crown of Wild Olive, Ethics of the Dust, in 1 vol., 50c
Schiller's History of the Thirty Years' War. 40c
Scottish Chiefs. By Jane Porter, 30 cents
Self-Help. By Samuel Smiles, 35 cents
Smith's Bible Dictionary. 40 cents
Spencer, Herbert. The Data of Ethics, 40 cents
On Education. 25 cents
Spain's History of English Literature. 60 cents
Thuddeus of Warsaw. By Jane Porter, 30 cents
The Woman's Story. Twenty Short Stories by Twenty Famous American Authors, 60 cents
Thompson's Poetical Works. 20 cents
Three Guardsmen. By Alexandre Dumas, 30 cents
Twenty Years. By Alexandre Dumas, 30 cents
Todd's Student's Manual. 25 cents
Utopia. By Sir Thomas More, 20 cents
Vanity Fair. By Wm. M. Thackeray, 45 cents

Vathek: An Oriental Romance. By Beckford, 20c
 Views Afoot. By Bayard Taylor, 35 cents
 Zenobia, or The Fall of Palmyra. Wm. Ware, 25c

A Pretty Surprise.

Our new, beautifully illustrated and charmingly bound edition of Longfellow's "Evangeline," is a pretty surprise to book-lovers. It is in good type, with 45 illustrations by Bir ket Foster and other eminent artists, printed on very fine and heavy paper, gilt edges, remarkably handsome, combining the delicate colors, blue and white and silver and gold. No illustrated edition has ever before been published at less than $1.50, and that is about what you might "guess" the price of this to be, but it isn't—we sell it for 19 cents! plus 6c. for postage, if by mail. This covers only about the cost of manufacture by the 100,000, our object being, not profit, but to show the book-loving public what can be done for a little money. Every home ought to have a copy, so charmingly beautiful, as a poem, as a collection of artistic illustrations, and a product of the book-making art.

Great Offer. Samples of the books being our best advertisements we offer: J. Fenimore Cooper's "The Pilot," cloth 20c., postage 9c. Scott's "Ivanhoe," half-morocco, gilt top, 35c., postage 9c.—only about the cost of manufacture by the 100,000 copies—our profits must come on future orders which these samples induce you to send.

Please mention this paper when you write.

JOHN B. ALDEN, Publisher, 57 Rose St., New York.

Any Book supplied; the Britannica at one-sixth its former price is a fair illustration of what we are doing for book-buyers all along the line; 128-page Catalogue sent for two-cent stamp.

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XXV., No. 22.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 9, 1893.

WHOLE No. 1,189.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,

221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PER YEAR.....$2.00
(IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE.....1.50)

No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearses paid.

Address all letters for publication to EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, CHICAGO. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed.

Make all drafts and money orders payable to the Treasurer, W. I. PHILLIPS, 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO. When possible make remittances by express money order. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address on Cynosure list always give the former address.

[Entered at the Postoffice, Chicago, Ill., as Second Class Matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:	REFORM NEWS:
Notes and Comments.... 1	Peoria; The Eastern
Education in Illinois.... 8	Agent in Pennsylvania; Work in the West-
"Under What Circumstances May Christians Enter a Secret Order?" 8	ern District; News from the Floating Chapel.....8,9
"Intensely Christian" Masonry..... 8	CORRESPONDENCE:
CONTRIBUTIONS:	Freemasons and Jesuits in the Rebellion; Lodge Politics Breed Anarchy in Kansas..... 6
Masonry and its Critics.... 1	LITERATURE..... 6
The Bible vs. Secrecy.... 2	IN BRIEF..... 7
Acknowledging the Fact Is a Union of Sectarian Churches Desirable?.. 2	AGENTS AND LECTURERS.... 7
The Lodge as a Temperance Reformer..... 3	THE N. C. A..... 7
SELECTED:	THE HOME.....10
Freemasonry with its Regalia Off..... 3	TEMPERANCE.....11
NEW ENGLAND LETTER.... 4	BIBLE LESSON.....12
WASHINGTON LETTER.... 4	RELIGIOUS NEWS.....12
Illinois State Anti-secrecy Convention..... 4	NEWS OF THE WEEK.....13
	HOME AND HEALTH.....14
	FARM NOTES.....15

The pressure of reform news upon our columns, this week, obliges us to omit several matters of interest. Our readers will find compensation, however, in the hopeful reports from agents in the field.

It is conceded at Washington that Congress is not disposed to open the gates of the World's Fair on Sundays, notwithstanding the enormous pressure that was put upon it to rescind its former decision. A contemporary suggests, in the light of this failure, that a system be adopted by employers to give holidays and half-holidays to their workmen during the period of the World's Fair. This seems to be a more sensible suggestion than has yet been made, and one entirely practicable and satisfactory.

We give place, to-day, to the official report of the proceedings of the Illinois State Association's convention at Coulterville, with the stirring resolutions adopted. There is manifest, throughout, an increasing interest in our work and its importance as a social reform. Next week we purpose to print the paper read before the convention, Jan. 25, by Rev. R. C. Reed, of Houston, Ill., on "The Secret Empire's Influence in Excluding Christ from Politics." We bespeak for it a careful perusal.

The suit brought by a World's Fair transportation company against the World's Fair authorities, to compel them to do certain things, including the opening of the Fair gates on Sundays, came up for trial before Judge Tuley, last week. "An individual," the court said, "has no right to bring a bill to compel the Fair to open its gates on Sunday. A court of equity is not concerned in personal rights, but has to deal with property rights. The court, therefore, has no jurisdiction; and the bill, so far as it relates to Sunday opening, is dismissed."

One of our exchanges, for which we look each week, is The Midland, "the United Presbyterian of the West," published at Omaha, Neb. Judiciously edited by Edwin B. Graham, and carefully issued by the Midland Company, it is the able exponent of a church that is foremost in healthful reforms. In the number for January 26 appears an article from the pen of our esteemed friend and co-worker, Rev. Thos. M. Chalmers, on "Masonry vs. Christianity". The United Presbyterians have no use for the secret lodge system, and rightly class it among the relics of paganism that are sadly out of place in the present century.

The Atlanta, Ga., Constitution, in a recent editorial, takes occasion to deride all people "who have given money to establish schools for freedmen in the South" as "old maids and old grannies". It says that the principal effect of educating the freedmen is seen in the increase of loafers, who think it better to clean spittoons in a public office than to work for an honest living. Fortunately this disposition to consign the colored citizens of the South to contumely and ignorance is shared only by a certain class, to whom, in ante-war days, the crack of the slave driver's whip was a symphony.

The Illinois State Legislature has put itself fairly on record by the adoption of a resolution memorializing Congress to repeal the World's Fair Sabbath-closing law. The vote in the Senate stood 29 to 19; in the House, 63 to 48. The New York Voice fears that if the Sunday-opening advocates cannot prevail upon Congress to repeal that law, the National Commission, having sold all the souvenir half-dollars at a profit before the opening, may be base enough to ignore the Congressional condition entirely and throw the gates wide open all summer. We hardly believe that the commission will be so corrupt.

Senator Chandler, last week, introduced a resolution directing the committee on finance to undertake an investigation for the purpose of ascertaining whether there is a so-called whisky trust organized to control and monopolize the business of producing and selling distilled liquors; whether the rebate system is used, whether adulterants or drugs are used under the guise of rectifiers' license, and if any proceedings have been commenced against said company, and to investigate generally any other matters connected with the trust it may consider material, and to report to the Senate by the 1st of December next. It is to be hoped that this resolution will find active support and prompt adoption, for it must be conceded that the iniquitous combine ought to be subjected to a rigorous investigation.

The following is the call for the Pennsylvania State Anti-secrecy Convention: To the friends of the anti-secrecy cause in Pennsylvania, greeting: You are invited to meet in annual convention in Carnegie Music Hall, Allegheny, Pa., February 27 and 28, 1893, to listen to addresses, engage in discussions, elect officers, and further the work of the Pennsylvania State Christian Association, opposed to secret societies. The convention will assemble at 2 o'clock on Monday afternoon, and continue its sessions through the following day and evening. Good music will be provided. The program (printed below) has been arranged by our agent, Rev. W. B. Stoddard, who may be addressed at the Home Hotel, Pittsburgh, Pa. Free entertainment will be provided for all friends from a distance who write to the agent of their intention to attend, at least one week before the convention. Churches in sympathy are invited to appoint delegates. We believe that present disturbances, caused by lodges, at Homestead, Beaver Falls, and elsewhere, should call for a general coming up to the help of the Lord against the mighty. Signed, on behalf of the committee, by J. S. T. MILLIGAN, State Secretary.

MASONRY AND ITS CRITICS.

FIRST PAPER—BY A FREEMASON.

In two recent issues of the Homiletic Review misstatements have been made in regard to a great society, which I cannot allow to go unchallenged—e. g., "It would be in utter violation of the principles of Freemasonry to use in any of its prayers such an expression as this: 'For Christ's sake.'"

In answer to this, I will simply say that I acted as chaplain in a Masonic lodge for several years, and again and again closed my prayers with precisely those words.

To say that Freemasonry knows nothing of Christ is so palpably false, unless it be a mark of

ANTI-SECRET STATE CONVENTION.

Members of the National Christian Association and all friends of Anti-Secrecy Reform are hereby invited to attend and participate in the approaching State Convention in behalf of the cause:

PENNSYLVANIA.

The Annual Convention of the Pennsylvania State Christian Association, opposed to secret societies, will be held in CARNEGIE MUSIC HALL, ALLEGHENY, PA., FEBRUARY 27TH AND 28TH, 1893. The following is substantially the

PROGRAM:

Monday, Feb. 27. 2:00 P. M.—Devotional exercises, by Rev. D. McAllister, D. D. 2:30.—Address of Welcome, by Rev. W. H. McMillan, D. D. 3:00.—Appointment of Committees. 3:15.—Chart Talk: "The Things Done of Them in Secret," by Rev. J. P. Stoddard, Boston, Mass.

Evening Session. 7:15.—Devotional exercises. 7:45.—Address: "The Divine Condemnation of the Secret Lodge System," by Rev. Wm. Dillon. 8:30.—Music. 8:45.—Address: "The Suppressed Question," by Rev. M. A. Gault. Music.—The music of the evening will be furnished by Prof. Liefeld and his celebrated Mandolin Quartette.

Tuesday. Morning Session. 9:00.—Devotional exercises. 9:30.—Treasurer's Report, and Election of Officers. 10:00.—Open Parliament; Questions, and Five-minute Speeches in order. 11:00.—Address: "The Oath," by Rev. M. B. Patterson. 11:30.—Address: "The Development of our Work," by Rev. Chas. E. Temple.

Afternoon Session. 1:45.—Prayer. 2:00.—Address: "Principles Underlying our Work," by Rev. J. S. T. Milligan. 2:20.—Address: "Secret Societies and the Temperance Reform," by Rev. S. Collins. 2:40.—Address: "Secrecy a Temptation to Crime," by Rev. D. C. Martin. 3:00.—Miscellaneous Business, Reports of Committees, and Adoption of Resolutions.

Evening Session. 7:15.—Prayer. 7:30.—Music. 7:45.—Address. 8:30.—Music. 8:45.—Address.

Music for this evening furnished by the Aletheorian Orchestra of Geneva College, Pa. Names of speakers will be announced later.

inexcusable ignorance, that the wonder is how a man can twist his conscience to utter it.

Masonry needs no defence; but every time these false statements are made some good, true soul is injured, and a word of simple statement of fact cannot be amiss.

If Jesus Christ is not referred to in the Masonic burial service, then most of those church-members who are Masons have not understood their own liturgy.

What does this language mean? "And having faithfully discharged the great duties we owe to God, to our neighbor, and to ourselves; when at last it shall please the great Master of the universe to summon us into his presence, may the trestle-board of our whole lives pass such inspection that it may be given unto us each to eat of the 'hidden manna,' and receive the 'white stone' with the new name written that will insure happiness at His right hand."

This language bears but one construction. It was spoken by the Holy Spirit to St. John the Revelator, and was addressed to all who exercise faith in a crucified Saviour.

The "white stone" was the ballot cast by Him alone whose prerogative it was to cast it, assuring justification and eternal life by His own will.

If this is not enough, I refer to another section of the burial service, as follows: "In the beautiful spirit of the Christian theology, we dare say that He... the same benevolent Saviour who wept on earth, will fold his arms of love and protection about those who put their trust in him."

If one reply that this section is not used in case the deceased was a Jew, we answer that the Christian believer does not throw overboard the Old Testament, nor fail to find Christ Jesus set forth in its references because the Jew will not see Christ there. Both use the same Scriptures, though not with the same light and fullness.

Every antagonist of Masonry should be so well-informed, and then so fair, as to know and admit that the earlier degrees of this science antedate the incarnation, but have hints and prophecies of it, which are fully revealed and fulfilled in the divine Christ, in one of the higher degrees.

Why, then, should false statements be made so recklessly? The doctrine of the Holy Trinity and the Christ runs through Masonry from the very beginning in the blue lodge.

In the name of simple justice, and in the interests of truth, let us know whereof we speak, or else possess our souls in the grace of silence.

C. W. P.

SECOND PAPER—A REPLY BY AN ANTI-MASON. "THE GOD OF MASONRY."

In the April number of the Homiletic Review, "C. W. P." labors to defend Masonry. The broad statement is made in his article that "the doctrine of the Holy Trinity and the Christ runs through Masonry from the very beginning in the blue lodge."

Let any one examine that statement by the light of Masonry itself.

Mackey, in his "Manual of the Lodge," page 215, says: "Though in ancient times Masons were charged in every country to be of the religion of that country or nation, whatever it was, it is now thought more expedient only to oblige them to that religion in which all men agree."

Do all men agree that there are three persons in the Godhead? Are all men agreed that Jesus is the Christ of God?

In "Webb's Monitor of Freemasonry," by Robert Morris, we find these words: "So broad is the religion of Masonry, and so carefully are all sectarian tenets excluded from the system, that the Christian, the Jew, and the Mohammedan, in all their numberless sects and divisions, may and do harmoniously combine in its moral and intellectual work with the Buddhist, the Parsee, the Confucian, and the worshippers of Deity under every form." (p. 280.)

Deity under every form. "Get thee hence, Satan, for it is written, Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve." (Matt. 4:10.)

George Wingate Chase, in his "Digest of Masonic Law," pp. 207, 208, uses this language: "The Jews, the Chinese, the Turks, each reject either the New Testament or the Old, or both, and yet we see no good reason why they should not be made Masons. In fact, Blue Lodge Masonry has nothing whatever to do with the Bible; it is not founded upon the Bible. If it was, it would not be Masonry; it would be something else."

These five things are clearly taught by these Masonic authorities:

1. Masonry is a religion.
2. A man who rejects the Bible may become a Mason.
3. Freemasonry is not founded on the Bible.
4. If Freemasonry were founded on the Bible it would not be Masonry.
5. Hence, the religious system of Masonry is "something else" than what the Bible teaches.

Can a minister of Jesus Christ permit the devotees of such a religion to conduct their services in his church?

ROBERT A. PADEN.

Sumner, Ia.

(To be continued.)

THE BIBLE VS. SECRECY.

BY CYRUS SMITH.

Not long ago I had the pleasure of listening to Bro. Butler while he gave a Bible-reading on the secrecy question. He seems to be a "man of God, thoroughly furnished unto all good works". That is, he is an "all-round" reformer, clean on all lines, through the Word and Spirit. His is a heavenly calling, as glorious as Elijah's duty.

The Bible has been so ignored on the secrecy question that it is enough to make one tremble to listen to his reading and comments. Even many radicals would be astonished that so much of God's Word is directly against the lodge. Nothing can be more true than that God hates lodge-worship. The influence of those ministers who ignore it has proved a snare to many, and God will require their blood as watchmen who do not "cry aloud and spare not." Would we not be guilty also, if we did not "cry aloud" that it is a wicked silence? There never was a time in all the past history of the church when it was more necessary to warn people against engaging in false worship than now.

If false worship in the days of Elijah could not be looked upon by God with the least degree of allowance, how much better is it in the light of the nineteenth century?

"If the light that is in thee be darkness, how great is that darkness." Is not the "candlestick removed" from many churches?

Most certainly the Word of God is direct, pointed, "sharper than any two-edged sword" against false worship, when it says of Christ, "If they tell you he is in the secret chambers, believe it not." Though this is "so plain that the way-faring man, though a fool, need not err," by joining the lodge, thousands of the church worship at lodge altars, where Christ is rejected "in the secret chambers." May God have mercy and the church put on her beautiful garments of righteousness, and in the Spirit's power be more gloriously the shining bride of Christ than now. No compromise with any false worship can ever prosper in the work of God among men. It is no part of "thy kingdom come". Righteousness shall cover the earth as the waters do the great deep, but it must first cover the church. Wicked silence on the part of the church in regard to "secrecy, rum and tobacco" is the bulwark of those evils, from which the minister greatly needs to be free.

De Kalb, Ia.

ACKNOWLEDGING THE FACT.

BY REV. W. M. HOWIE.

Some days ago, while riding down street, I busied myself reading the tract by Pres. Charles A. Blanchard, entitled, "Folly, Expense and Danger". To my left sat an individual who seemed to be interesting himself in the tract, and I incidentally held it so as to give him as much benefit as possible. When I had finished reading he said to me: "Friend, I knew that writer's father. I lived at Galesburg when he was president of the college there. He was a grand man, but a crank on that subject of secret societies. I was then a member of the Masonic order, and have been ever since." So he ran on, and I listened as if entirely ignorant of all that he was saying. I only would add a few words to keep him talking. He went on to intimate that the Freemasons had something to do with making it rather unpleasant for Dr. Blanchard, and that through them came his change from Galesburg. He said that Freemasonry was all right. The only objection he had been able to see was that some were led to think that Masonry was sufficient for salvation, and that there was no need for the church. I remarked that this had always been my greatest objection to Masonry. I said that Masonry taught morals, but there was no Christ in Masonry; and I had met a good many Masons who said that if they lived up to Masonry it would be all right with them. He replied: "Yes, that is the greatest objection. Some men think the lodge gives them religion enough, and that they have no need of the church." I gave him the tract to read, and as we parted I thought: This is one more Mason who has borne testimony that there is no Christ in the lodge, and who has confessed to the dangerous tendency of the system.

IS A UNION OF SECTARIAN CHURCHES DESIRABLE?

BY REV. H. M. HINMAN.

The Associate Reformed Presbyterian Synod of the South, last year, came very near forming an ecclesiastical union with the United Presbyterian church. The measure proceeded so far towards a harmonious amalgamation that the Synod consented to repeal its provision against instrumental music, as a concession; but at the Synod in Atoka, Tenn., last November, the question of union was opposed and suppressed. While the Synod favored the United Presbyterian testimony (or creed), it proposed to relegate the articles in opposition to slavery and secret societies to obscurity in the appendix, instead of openly admitting their vital importance in church ethics.

A writer in the Christian Standard asks: "Is the union of the different denominations desirable?" and then says, "No." We quite agree in the conclusion that he reaches, but not at all in the method by which he gets there. He says:

"From this and other passages we may conclude that in the time of the apostles there were two distinct bodies of Christians, alike in that they had 'One Lord, one faith [and] one baptism,' yet differing more widely in practice than any two evangelical denominations at the present time; and that this condition of things was both recognized and sanctioned by the Holy Ghost and the apostles. (Acts 15:22-31.) The time did come, in the history of the Christian religion, when there was but one denomination; but who would wish for a return of those days?"

If by "denomination" the writer means what Webster does, "a class or sect of Christians," we fully agree with him in deprecating the union of denominations and a return to the period when there was but one denomination.

Earnestly as we desire the unity of Christians, we should greatly deprecate a going back to Rome, or to any other consolidated hierarchy.

But surely our brother has misconceived both the facts and principles of the apostolic teaching.

There were not two bodies of Christians in the primitive church who stood related to each other as do the different denominations of Protestantism now. No such division was sanctioned by the Holy Spirit and the apostles. It was not the union of any two sects that constituted the church of Rome.

The New Testament contains no warrant for any sects among Christians. The church universal contains all those who are saved by faith in Christ; and all of these saved ones who live in a given locality are the church of that locality. This was true of the primitive churches. There is no evidence of a hierarchical government; as for divisions, they were not only not sanctioned, but positively prohibited. Doubtless there were differences of opinion, and somewhat of practice, among the members of the local churches and of the churches in different localities; but these differences constituted no ground for division. Such differences existed in the church at Rome, and Paul commanded that they should not judge one another, and that each should be fully persuaded in his own mind. (See Romans 14.)

That there was any division (as the writer affirms) between Jewish and Gentile Christians is not true. Notice the following passages: Speaking of Gentiles and Jews, Paul says: "But now in Christ Jesus, ye that once were afar off, are made nigh in the blood of Christ. For he is our peace, who hath broken down the middle wall of partition, having abolished in his flesh the enmity, even the law of commandments contained in ordinances, that he might create in himself of the twain one new man, so making peace, and hath reconciled them both in one body unto God, through the cross; having slain the enmity thereby.... So then we are no more strangers and sojourners, but ye are fellow citizens with the saints and of the household of God, being built on the foundation of Christ and the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ being the chief corner-stone; in whom each several building, fitly framed together, groweth unto a holy temple in the Lord; in whom ye also are builded together for a habitation of God through the Spirit." (Eph. 2:11-22.) What could more forcibly express the unity of Jew and Gentile Christians?

Again, "Ye have put on the new man.... where there cannot be Greek and Jew, circumcision and uncircumcision, barbarian, Scythian, bondman, freeman; but Christ is all and in all." (Col. 3:10.) See also 1 Cor. 1:10-13; 3:1-8; 12:12-27.

Now since there is no warrant for sects, there can be no warrant for making a new sect by the union of the old. What ought to be is, a return to the apostolic practice—the union of all the real disciples in our locality as the one church of that locality.

The writer's plea for sects, based on the difference between Jewish and Gentile Christians, reminds us of the good brother who thought that each of the twelve apostles was commissioned to build up a separate sect, and that "the seven churches of Asia" were each a sect, and, as such, a part of the apostolic work. But surely it is too late to plead for schism in the body of our Lord.

As in the instance quoted at the beginning of this article, while Christian union seems both feasible and easy, each conceding to the will of the other in all essential matters, it seems as if the secret lodge and its machinations are somehow the devil's own hindrance to perfect unity and fellowship.

THE LODGE AS A TEMPERANCE REFORMER.

BY PRES. S. M. HILL, OF LUTHER ACADEMY, WAHOO, NEB.

The following communication needs a little explanation.

Several months ago, a citizen of Nebraska sent to Grand Secretary Watts, of the Grand Lodge of Good Templars in that State, the names of temperance workers in various towns, and, among them, that of Pres. S. M. Hill, of Luther Academy, as one interested in the organization of a Good Templar lodge. His name was referred to "Sister" Anna M. Saunders, of that fraternity, who wrote to him in reference to using his influence in its behalf. He replied frankly, among other things using this language:

"If you come here to organize a Templar lodge I must oppose you in all the ways I can. If you get any members of our church to join you, we will excommunicate them. And I will in all candor tell you that if temperance is the cause you really work for, then at this place you serve that cause best by staying away. About two-thirds of the temperance workers here are anti-secrecy people on religious grounds."

His letter to Miss Saunders was printed in full in the Good Templar organ, the New Republic, with some abusive remarks added by Grand Secretary Watts. It is in reply to these remarks that the following was written by Pres. Hill.—EDITOR CYNOSURE.

EDITOR NEW REPUBLIC:—This is a free country, where every one has a right of privately stating his own opinions without being publicly abused. My letter to Miss Saunders, with the added commentaries thereon, being published in your valuable paper, makes it an unpleasant duty for me to answer. And as you must be actuated by the true American ideas of honesty and impartiality, I take for granted you will not put this in the waste basket.

I made five statements, telling why I could not serve as requested. None of these statements were refuted. Readers, please turn back to the issue of Nov. 10, and see for yourselves. He makes, however, four statements about me personally, none of which he proves. (1) He says I am not educated; I am a monstrosity of stupendous ignorance and a rare fossil. (2) He says I am no Christian. (3) He says I am no gentleman, and he blushes with the deepest shame over my actions. (4) He calls me a Roman Catholic that tries to bind the souls and consciences of men.

Now, my good man, Chas. Watts, I know a little too much about the workings of organized, oath-bound and conscience-fettering secrecy, in whatever form and under whatever pretext it may appear, to have anything to do with it. And I guess I thereby touched a very sore spot, making you so raving that you forgot to follow my example and write as a gentleman. And I also know that the progress of secrecy, even under the cover of temperance, will not stop at my bidding. That will stop of itself as soon as the rest of the Christians in the world get their eyes opened to the great evil of organized secrecy. Of my other knowledge I will not speak, for a gentleman should never brag.

You doubt that I am a Christian. My good man, won't you be so kind, and let God decide that himself for us? I am willing to abide by his decision. In the meanwhile, you should not pose with so much authority, where you have none.

Then you cap the climax: you question whether I am a gentleman. In what light did you appear before the ladies and gentlemen that read your article? In answering Miss Saunders, I followed the rule, recognized by all cultured society, to treat all strangers as ladies and gentlemen till compelled to do otherwise. Did you, my good man, do as well as that?

I am a Catholic, you say, trying to bind the souls and consciences of men. What do you suppose those pale lips of the manly and open-hearted Luther would say about secrecy, oath-bound, organized and conscience-fettering secrecy, from Jesuitism down to Good Templarism? I am afraid the words would be so hot as to burn a great blister on your callous conscience, and make you ten times more raving than my mild letter to Miss Saunders did.

Furthermore, I took for granted that Miss Saunders knew the fact of which you seem to be ignorant, namely, that a respectable number of evangelical denominations and individual churches have an anti-secrecy clause in their by-laws, prohibiting lodge members from being members of their churches. The church to which I belong is one of that number; and I think the Constitution of the United States gives to the churches themselves the exclusive right to determine the qualification for their membership. Am I ignorant in this matter, or are you? Shall the lodge dictate to the church in this case?

Now, my good man, I am done with you, and I hope you can understand what I meant to say.

Yours for the open Bible, open temperance work, and an open statute book,

S. M. HILL.

Luther Academy, Wahoo, Neb.

FREEMASONRY WITH ITS REGALIA OFF.

[The following communication from a warm-hearted friend of the anti-secrecy cause, appeared in the Hoopeston (Ill.) Daily Chronicle of Jan. 17, 1893. It is a strong arraignment of the alleged secret "handmaid of religion."—EDITOR CYNOSURE.]

EDITOR CHRONICLE:—In the last week's issue of your paper was almost a full column in adulation of Masonry, describing installation of officers, etc. Among phrases and terms used were "Grand Master," "Worshipful Master," "Chaplain," "High Priest," "Altar," etc.

Reference was also had to Hoopeston Chapter and Blue Lodge. These ceremonies the Chronicle alleged as having transpired in the presence of several hundred ladies and gentlemen. In this short article we wish mainly to refer to Masonic ceremonies above referred to so that the same several hundred ladies and gentlemen and other hundreds as well may see behind the tyled doors. In other words, we wish to remove the tyler so that the people may not be delayed but go in and out without let or hindrance, and without being in the least inconvenienced by silly interrogatories from a cheeky tyler. A tyler is a useless appendage to a Masonic lodge any way. Their so-called secrets (?) are all bosh and are published to the world and can be had for the asking—at least only for a few cents to cover cost of paper and printer's ink.

We will state further that no one man ordinarily can keep a secret. When two men know the same thing, the chance for this secret getting out is doubled. For three to know it, it is trebled. For four to know it, it is quadrupled. For five to know, it is quintupled; and so on, with every additional one knowing it, the chance for the secret getting out is proportionately increased, and with the millions now worshipping at the idolatrous Masonic altars, and of course the devotees knowing their secrets (?), the chance for concealment is absolutely impossible. And yet in the face of all this men are selling pretended secrets for millions of dollars every year and swearing the victims at the risk of having their throats cut not to tell it. The Lord have mercy on such men! And yet there are ministers of the Gospel (?) in Hoopeston that will invoke the Great Being to bless the lodge in such miserable transactions as swindling men out of their money and their freedom, and thus making them slaves of the lodge.

The history of the great rebellion will perhaps not be fully written up until the Masonic lodges of the South are charged with getting up the rebellion, or at least greatly abetting it. The great Charles Sumner, than whom there is no better authority, so affirmed on the floor of the United States Senate.

Our churches of to-day are largely depleted by the lodge, lager beer, tobacco and whisky coming in for a share of the blame, and leaving the churches to be run and supported by the ladies largely; the membership of the churches being about two-thirds or three-fourths women and children. The lodges all over the country are carbuncles, endangering the life and safety of the state and nation.

The oaths and manner of lodge initiations are a disgrace to our age and civilization, being barbarous and dangerous both to life and limb. Only recently a Methodist minister was killed, or maimed so that he died, in Huntington, Virginia, and his body was shipped through Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, and interred just over the Illinois line in Missouri. In all sincerity the writer asks why men should take such devil-daring oaths that cannot by any possibility whatever be kept? Such ceremonies and oaths are unfathomably beneath the dignity of men, and of all forms of government; and ours pre-eminently above all others needs men, and not slaves of the damnable lodge, to run. It is imperative that a halt must be called soon or we will not have a government worth the saving.

If our mistaken Southern brethren had not blindly rushed ahead a terrible war might have been avoided. Our mistaken lodge brethren are to-day openly and publicly claiming that they are running the government, and it is not overstating also to aver that they are running lots of churches. You must not blindly rush ahead but at once remove the lodge hoodwink, for the stupendous reason that you need your eyes, for you are liable to plunge into an awful abyss below.

In the above we only set up the claim that lodge men themselves could not possibly keep their own secrets. There are other reasons also why they cannot be called a secret society. There is, perhaps, not a county in the great State of Illinois but what some one lodge, or more than one, has been watched by outsiders from the time the lodge commenced work till refreshment, and from refreshment till they locked up the lodge to go home. And what is said of Illinois can probably be said of every county in every State of the Union.

In the Chronicle a letter was referred to, and the letter was published in the Hoopeston Herald, from a preacher living at a distance, but who had formerly preached in Hoopeston, the letter having been read in that public installation. Said letter from the minister is mainly false from the beginning to the end, winding up by saying that the "world would be better for having belonged to the one and lived in the other;" that is, that the order had existed and that they, the mystic tie, had been a blessing to themselves by belonging to it, and that the world was benefited by the order. The same could be said of the Italian Mafia that killed so many at New Orleans, or the Highbinders of California. The Masonic order is more dangerous to the well-being of the state and government than either Mafia or Highbinders.

J. S. HICKMAN.

NEW ENGLAND LETTER.

Our January thaw—Cheaper coal for New England—Bishop Brooks—The Masons at Gen. Butler's funeral—A venerable woman—A moral question—Women taxpayers—What's in a name—Another heiress captured by Rome.

Our long-delayed "January thaw" has at last put in an appearance; though after all it is a good deal of a sham, and not a bit like the genuine article, when the snow vanishes like a dream in the night, and Nature distills her cold tears with a fervor which leaves no doubt that the back-bone of winter is really broken, and spring, "gentle spring," with her blue-birds and crocuses, her east winds and pneumonia is not far off.

New England capital is going to see what can be made of the Nova Scotia coal mines, and if they fulfill expectations the East can get cheaper coal nearer home, which will make quite a falling off in the receipts of the Pennsylvania coal barons. The advance of coal 75 cents a ton in one week during our coldest weather was a terrible tax on the poor, but not on the rich or well-to-do, for that class generally put in their supply of fuel during the summer months. What kind of souls can men have who will thus coolly speculate on the sufferings of their necessitous fellow-beings in order to add a few millions more their already overflowing coffers? If they possess such an article at all it must be as small and shriveled up as a pea in a last year's peas-cod. "Woe to the man who loses the faculty of worship, of honoring, and loving, and fearing, not merely something better than himself, but something which is the absolute best, the perfect good, his God! The life is gone out of his soul when this is gone. There is a cloud upon his thought, a palsy in his action, a chill on his love." These words of Phillips Brooks, the poet-preacher so suddenly called away in his prime, are words that every young man tempted to enter the race for money may well ponder. He may get what he seeks, but it will be through the paralysis of his noblest faculties. He must stunt his manhood, kill his heart dieth, weight down with the riches that he cannot carry with him, but which will yet be as a millstone around his neck when he comes to cross the river which separates all, rich and poor, from the great Beyond.

Could anything be more beautiful than the last words of the dying bishop spoken to his faithful servant as she stood at his bedside: "Katie, you can go. I shall not need you any more. I am going home." And so like a child that in the dark takes its father's hand cheerfully and unfearingly, he "fell on sleep," and that beautiful city of the dead, Mt. Auburn, has received the dust of one whose like as a man and a preacher it is not for every generation to see.

A remark which I made in a former letter, that I had seen no account of Masonic ceremonies at Gen. Butler's funeral, must be taken back. An esteemed correspondent sends a newspaper clipping which states that "a brief service from the Masonic ritual" was performed at the grave, and in his letter makes the pithy comment: "The Masons could not let the G. A. R. do it all, but like the camel in the fable must thrust their nose in if only at the grave!"

The list of those who have rounded their century and even gone beyond it, to turn from the dead to the living, seems to be on the increase. Mrs. Lucy Wood, of Barre, Vermont, has just celebrated her 107th birthday, with mental faculties clear and bodily health good; yet no western pioneer's wife ever roughed it in more genuine fashion than she when she went as a young bride into the wilds of Vermont, living in a cottage without doors or windows and divided into two rooms by a blanket hung in the center. Think of the lonely midnight vigils when her husband had gone to the nearest settlement for supplies, and she had to sit up and keep a bright fire burning to scare away the wolves! What do we, living in the sunset glow of this nineteenth century, know of the hardships endured by those who saw its sunrise?

I notice that one of the most important topics which the world of fashion is just now discussing—and one which really almost reaches the dignity of a moral question, is this: "Are we doomed to another reign of the hoop-skirt?" Sensible women are a unit in not desiring to change the present modest and graceful style, but will they carry their point against the modistes who are trying to force upon us this absurd and unseemly fashion? Everybody old enough to remember twenty-five or thirty years back, knows that hoops have a peculiar and exasperating individuality of their own which is often totally opposed to that of the wearer, who can never be quite sure that they will not in the most unexpected way and on the most public occasion play her some mortifying trick. The humor of this description from an old Harper's Magazine, written when they had attained their most voluminous size:

"Jolly hoops that wriggle round,
Sober hoops that sway profound,
Springy hoops that shake and wag,
Broken hoops that droop and drag,"

will be appreciated by everybody of middle age and good memory. One blessed thing about the Empire style of dress is that it is driving out the corset. Corsets, trailing skirts and high-heeled shoes are an unholy triumvirate that have too long held women in subjection and been responsible for at least as many deaths as rum and tobacco. Though the corset has been the most murderous by far, the long skirt is not guiltless, but counting the multitudes who have caught their last fatal cold from the chilling embrace of its dragged folds about the ankles and the victims of shipwreck who could not be saved because so clogged and hampered by their dress, it might roll up quite a respectable death list. And now if crinoline returns we shall have more of those terrible auto-da-fes, so dismally frequent under its former reign. It will be remembered that the poet Longfellow's wife, whose lovely features have been immortalized in the familiar print of "Evangeline," came to her death in this shocking and agonizing manner. As I said before, it is almost if not quite a moral question, and I have faith to believe that American women who have come to a realization of their latent powers, and the possibilities that lie before them, will not submit as tamely to a ridiculous foreign fashion as did those of a generation ago, but will assert their independence by word and action.

The Maine Woman's Suffrage Association has sent to all the tax collectors in the State to find the amount of the taxes paid by women. Their report has not yet been given to the public; but twenty years ago, when they did the same thing, it was found that female property owners paid millions of dollars; and in a certain township one woman paid as much as the aggregate tax of four hundred of its male citizens. How is it in Massachusetts, where "taxation without representation" made such a breeze in the days of Otis and Hancock? And why did Governor Russell make only an evasive reply through his secretary when the woman suffragists sought to know his status on this question? Of course he is too good a Democrat to endorse a measure that is going to ruin the business in which so many who loyally voted for him are engaged; but why didn't he "face the music," and say so like a man?

The orders of the Rainbow and the Solid Rock have alike followed the other defunct orders into oblivion, showing that in such matters a good foundation, on a solid mathematical basis, is more to be desired than a fine name. But the poor, gulled certificate holders, as they take their pittance (if, indeed, they are so lucky as to receive anything back), must feel that it adds the proverbial feather's weight to their chagrin and disappointment. The father of lies himself could not teach anything to the "supreme" officials who named these orders.

Miss Ruth Burnett, of Southborough, Mass., who has lately become a convert to Rome, has just been taken into the Convent of the Sacred Heart. Of course she is an heiress, as she belongs to the "Burnett extract" family. The fact that she is Mrs. Cleveland's most intimate friend, for whom she named her little girl, gives some color to the stories floating about, that the wife of the President elect has yearnings towards high church Episcopalianism—that half-way house towards Rome. This is, at least, a significant straw in view of the exhortations given to Romanists everywhere last fall by their ecclesiastical superiors to vote for Cleveland.

ELIZABETH E. FLAGG.

Can't you get us a few subscribers for the Cynosure in your town?

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 1, 1893.

The United States Supreme Court this week handed down a decision that will be gratifying to every one who wishes the mails of the country to be kept clear of the demoralizing matter sent out by gamblers running lottery schemes. The sale of the Austrian premium bonds was some time ago decided by the Circuit Court of Appeals of New York to constitute a lottery within the meaning of the law, and that decision is now affirmed by the Supreme Court. This decision puts these Austrian premium bonds and others of their kind upon exactly the same footing as lottery tickets, which is just what they are, and makes it unlawful to send them through the mail. An official of the Postoffice Department told me that this decision would very largely curtail, if it did not entirely destroy, the very large business which dealers in these bonds had built up by sending enticing circulars through the mails, persuading many poor people that these bonds were as safe to invest their savings in as our own Government bonds, besides giving their purchasers an opportunity to win mammoth cash prizes every month. The same gentleman told me that a very large percentage of the premium bonds sold by these men were absolutely worthless, and that those having a value were worth but a fraction of the amount they sold them for. The breaking up of such a business is certainly to be desired.

The Anti-Option bill, which has been before the Senate ever since it was passed by the House at the last session of Congress has been passed by the Senate; but as it was amended it now has to go before the House again. The bill puts a prohibitory tax on fictitious sales and purchases of grain, cotton, etc., for future delivery.

Senator Dawes has offered a resolution authorizing the Senate committee on Indian Affairs to sit during the coming Congressional recess, to visit Indian reservations, Indian schools and the Indian Territory, and to take testimony.

The finding of a 12-year-old boy in a beastly state of intoxication, on one of the streets of Washington, the other day, was but another bit of testimony showing how the liquor dealers ignore the law, under which they are quick enough at claiming protection for themselves. The liquor was, it is said, sold to this child by a licensed dealer in the cursed stuff, or, as a friend classes all liquor dealers, "a licensed propagator of crime and misery." This same friend has some ideas about the licensing of these people. Said he: "What would be thought of a government that would license a crazy man to shoot men and women right and left? Yet the shooting of men and women by men crazed by the use of liquor is a daily result of liquor licenses. No government would license a brute to maltreat his wife and children at pleasure, and to half-starve and freeze them; yet it is known to all men that brutes do all these things and more every day, aye, every hour, as the direct result of licensing the sale of intoxicating liquor. I tell you the time will come—it will have to come—when it will be considered as great a crime to issue a license for the sale of intoxicating liquor as it would be to license highway robbery, burglary or murder."

ILLINOIS STATE ANTI-SECRECY CONVENTION.

THE SECRETARY'S REPORT.

COULTERSVILLE, Ill., Jan. 27, 1893.

A summary of the proceedings of the Illinois State Anti-Secrecy Convention, which assembled here on Tuesday and Wednesday, January 24 and 25, 1893.

The convention opened, in accordance with the call, at 7:30 p. m., on Tuesday. The house was well-filled.

Rev. M. A. Gault, president of the National Christian Association, called the delegates to order, and stated the object of the convention.

Rev. R. W. Chesnut, of Marissa, Ill., was elected chairman, and Rev. J. R. Wylie, of Coulterville, secretary.

The program, as printed in the Christian Cynosure, was then followed, with the exceptions that Rev. D. H. Coulter, of Kansas, and Rev. R. C. Monteith, of Coulterville, did not appear and participate in the proceedings, on account of sickness; nor was Rev. J. K. Montgomery present, for reasons then unknown. Mrs. Monteith was also sick and unable to perform her part.

On the other hand, we had the presence and help of Rev. William Weir, of Washington, Penn., field secretary of the National Reform Association, and Miss Mary Patterson, of Baldwin, Ill., president of the Randolph County W. C. T. U. These, with a paper from Mrs. A. K. McKelvey, of the local W. C. T. U., made up for much of the loss.

The devotional exercises of

THE FIRST SESSION

were conducted by Rev. W. J. Smiley, of Sparta.

Rev. J. S. Chesnut, the young and lately-installed pastor of the church in which the convention met, gave the delegates a unique welcome, from the standpoint of a reformed lodge-man, he having, in his youth, joined and been exalted to the position of worthy vice chief door-keeper of a temperance lodge.

In the absence of Rev. Dr. Coulter, Rev. M. A. Gault responded in his customary and happy manner.

Then followed the address of the evening, by Rev. Wm. Weir, of Washington, Pa. His theme was, "The Foundation Principles of All Reforms;" and he showed, clearly and forcibly, that the reform that is not "of Christ, by Christ, and for Christ," must utterly fail; and that if prohibition could succeed without Christ, it would only leave an empty house, ready for seven devils worse than intemperance.

THE SECOND SESSION, on Wednesday morning, January 25, was opened with devotional exercises, conducted by Rev. J. C. Elliott, of Swanwick, Ill. He is a father among us, not only in age, but in all reforms.

The committee on resolutions presented their report; and after an animated discussion, during which many strong points were brought forward, the following

RESOLUTIONS WERE ADOPTED:

Resolved, That as Christians and lovers of liberty, we are opposed to all secret societies on the following grounds:

1. They rob the members of their God-given right to use their own consciences, by pledging them to conceal unknown secrets, and imposing on them unquestioning obedience to unknown dictators. Freemen and Christians should hold sacred this liberty, wrested with much suffering and with blood from political and priestly tyrants, assuming to come between the conscience and God. It is impious voluntarily to surrender to any person or society the right of private judgment; since God only is the Lord of the conscience, and he holds each one accountable for himself.

2. We are opposed to secret societies because they are of the nature of an imperium in imperio; they usurp the place and functions of civil government. While they have the form, they pervert the cause of civil justice. They elevate men to office already sworn to favor their own clans. They screen criminals from punishment, and deprive the uninitiated citizen of an equal chance in courts of justice.

3. These societies nullify the work of the church of Christ, teaching a religion different and contrary to that of the Bible. The righteousness they hope in is at best a distorted morality, while in fact it consists in obedience to rules and rituals of human device, often contrary to the law of God. Christ is excluded, and Christianity reduced to the level of infidelity and paganism. Church councils are distracted by the presence of persons sworn to laws that contravene the ends of religion, and work by partiality.

4. They interfere with social rights. They inculcate the duty of favoring the interests of the initiated at the expense of others. They claim the right to dictate to employers; to make both ends of the bargain; and they forbid the employment of freemen and prevent it by violence and clandestine injury.

5. Concealment leads to crime. Several of these societies have a criminal code peculiar to themselves, with divers penalties, including a barbarous and horrible death. Under the cloak of secrecy, bad men readily discover ways and means of embezzlement and other crimes against law and equal rights.

For these and similar reasons it is our deliberate judgment that all secret societies should be deprived of legal standing in the State, by withdrawing their charters; and that their members should be cast out of the pale of the Christian church, until they obey God by renouncing the deeds of darkness.

D. S. FARIS, { Chairmen.
W. J. SMILEY, }

The adoption of these resolutions was followed by Rev. N. A. Whitehill, of Sparta, on "The Importance of the Anti-Secret Reform;" and by Rev. J. R. Wylie, of Coulterville, on "Why I Do Not Belong to Any Secret Society."

THE THIRD SESSION

was opened with devotional exercises, led by Rev. R. E. Wilkins, of Tilden, Ill.

Rev. C. M. Richie, of Oakdale, Ill., ably discussed the subject: "The Lodge a Supplanter"—supplanting the rights of the family, the church and the state.

Rev. R. C. Reed, of Houston, Ill., spoke upon "The Influence of Christless Lodges in Producing Christless Politics," and showed that they are a mighty power.

Mrs. A. K. McKelvey, of Coulterville, spoke of "The Safeguards of the Home," and showed how full the Bible is of teachings concerning the lodge.

Miss Mary Patterson, of Baldwin, Ill., then gave a most practical and able address, showing how the lodge obstructs justice in our courts. The lodge tramples down all laws against the saloon, and we are powerless.

Then followed the address by our chairman, Rev. R. W. Chesnut, of Marissa, on "Secretism a Foe of Civil and Religious Liberty." This was so practical for our times that I hope to see it in print in the Cynosure.

THE FOURTH AND LAST SESSION was opened with devotional exercises conducted by Pres. M. A. Gault.

Mrs. J. M. Sloane, of Oakdale, read a very sweet and excellent poem, on "What Loyalty to Christ Demands;" which has been secured for publication in the Cynosure.

Rev. D. S. Faris closed the discussions by a masterly effort in handling "The Essential Basis of Reform." He showed that Christ and his kingdom is the only basis for each and every reform, from the beginning to the end.

Rev. J. R. Wylie read a letter from that prince of anti-secret workers, J. P. Stoddard. It is as follows:

BOSTON, Jan. 20, 1893.

To the Illinois State Anti-Secrecy Convention:

BELoved IN THE LORD:—I have just read your program. The mention of the names and places of cherished memories incites a desire to join with you in the discussions you propose for the meetings. Since, however, you have an able corps of defenders of the faith, I am content to send my God-speed and Christian greetings to you, one and all. May the Lord of hosts be with you, making your convention a pillar of light and a tower of strength.

New England has shared in the advance that has been made all along the line during the past year; and as the growth has been steady, and among the most intelligent, as well as the most pious and prayerful, I have no fears that she will lay behind as the work goes grandly on. As you, brethren in the West, plant the standard farther on, we, in conservative New England, will march up to the colors at the front.

Yours in Christ, JAMES P. STODDARD.

Rev. M. A. Gault also read the following letter from Rev. B. Carradine, D.D., of St. Louis, Mo.:

2716 DAYTON STREET, ST. LOUIS, MO.,
January 25, 1893.

GENTLEMEN OF THE ANTI-SECRET-SOCIETY CONVENTION:—I regret that the rush of a busy life prevents my acceptance of your invitation to address you, and also prohibits me, this morning, from writing anything but a brief communication on a subject and work about which so much could and should be said. I can only re-affirm the points and arguments I made in Centenary church, January, 1891, before an audience of two thousand people.

Time and observation only corroborate and strengthen the opinions and conclusions entertained and presented to the public at this time: that the secret society system, with its whole family of orders, fraternities, leagues and clubs, is antagonistic and disastrous to the happiness and best interests of nation, state, community, church and home.

The truth does not love the dark; righteousness prefers the light, and comes forth, inviting and fearing not investigation.

Christ said to the Jews that all that he had said had been spoken "openly." Save me from a man or men who work secretly for ends and objects that are guarded and protected from the knowledge of the general public by the most frightful oaths.

If there are social evils in the land, let us deal with them through the church and civil courts;

if there are political evils in the country, let us meet them bravely and manfully, on the platform and at the ballot-box; if there is trouble born of poverty and sickness, why should societies for its relief be secret?

The KuKlux did the South no good; the White Caps did the North no good. The Masonic fraternity does the church no good. The college secret society does the students more harm than good. The Jesuit order, with its dark secrets, has been properly expelled from almost every nation but our own. The guerilla and bush-whacker were abhorred by both sides in the late war, and were summarily dealt with when captured. The ship that concealed its true colors, and then suddenly hung out a black flag, is called a pirate, and is being swept from the face of the sea by a common agreement arising from a common indignation.

What right have a band of men to organize themselves in secret orders, whose strong influence is felt against other citizens in the hour of the appointments of civil government and in the day of election?

A certain famous Book says that we should put off the works of darkness, and be clothed with the armor of light, and come forth as the children of the day.

And the greatest of all Teachers said that sin loves darkness and will not come to the light lest its deeds be reproved; but it is truth, and those that love the truth love the light and come to the light, that their deeds may be made manifest that they are of God. B. CARRADINE,

Pastor First Church, St. Louis.

The following was also received:

OAKDALE, Ill., Jan. 23, 1893.

Friends of the Anti-Secrecy Convention, to Assemble at Coulterville, Ill., Jan. 24, 1893:

DEAR FRIENDS:—I would have been much pleased, had Providence permitted, to have been with you and have been counted among the soldiers in the war against secrecy, in which I was enlisted when a small boy, at the time of the abduction and murder of Morgan. I was enlisted for the war; and we are told "there is no discharge in the war" as to who shall rule this world, Christ or the devil. The objections to secrecy are like the devils in the man of Gadara, Legion; for they are many.

I shall at this time only refer to the utterly unfounded, Pharisaic claim of brotherhood which all the orders make. The sum of our duty to our fellow-man, as set forth in the last six commands of the decalogue, is "to love thy neighbor as thyself." That binds us to do all the good in our power to our fellow-man, to every man, according to his need, and our ability has no other limit. "As we have therefore opportunity, let us do good unto all men, especially to them who are of the household of faith." Gal. 6:10. And if nature and grace, law and gospel, do not influence us to do the good in our power to the necessities, the man that believes the uniting with a secret order would do it "must surely have a wondrous skull." It is not denied that, sometimes, after paying dues, falsely so-called, for a long time, a pitiful little dole may be returned; but to call it benevolence, or brotherhood, is a shameful and unfounded pretence.

J. M. SLOANE.

We had splendid audiences, even in the forenoon.

The Glee Club rendered us excellent assistance, especially on Wednesday evening.

The expenses of the convention were more than met, and we all felt that we had a good time.

The following officers of the State Association were elected for the current year: President, Rev. R. W. Chesnut, of Marissa; secretary, Rev. J. R. Wylie, of Coulterville; treasurer, Rev. W. I. Phillips, 221 West Madison street, Chicago.

J. R. WYLIE, Sec'y.

"The Blue Degrees are but the outer court of the Temple. Part of the symbols are displayed there to the initiate, but he is intentionally misled by false interpretations. It is not intended that he shall understand them, but it is intended that he shall imagine that he does understand them. Their true explanation is reserved for the Princes of Masonry."—Albert Pike, Grand Commander of the Supreme Council, Sovereign Grand Inspectors-General, in "Morals and Dogma," page 819.

CORRESPONDENCE.

FREEMASONS AND JESUITS IN THE REBELLION.

YORK, Pa., Jan. 27, 1893.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—In the Cynosure of Jan. 26, our friend Charles Reynolds, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, like the Masonic Entered Apprentice, asks for more light.

Well, Rev. J. M. Foster is right in saying that "Masonry fled to the South and allied itself with slavery." He also hit the bull's-eye when he stated that "the Southern Confederacy was conceived and brought forth in the lodge." But his assertion that "The boys in blue went South and crushed the rebellion, but brought back the lodge," is incorrect. I was one of the "boys in blue" referred to; but the Jesuits of Baltimore, Maryland, had initiated me into their great Know-Nothing order before the outbreak of their great conspiracy. And the Jesuits of York, Pa., had initiated me into their secret Union League of America, in 1863. And I have lately discovered that one of the leaders of this great league, which put high Jesuits and Masons into high offices during and since the war, was the famous Romish orator, Daniel Dougherty, of Philadelphia, who was evidently a "silver-tongued" Jesuit, and claimed to be a sound Romanist and a first-class American patriot.

All over the United States the Jesuits and Masons (Protestant henchmen) were very busy, during the five years preceding the war, in initiating all classes into their conspiratorial associations, in order to give the great rebellion a fair start. During the war, the Jesuit society of the United States, and its greatest cat's-paw organization, the Masonic order, were greatly strengthened by recruits from the commissioned officers of the army and navy, and also the civil officers.

I think all Pres. J. Blanchard says about war and secret societies is true.

It is a fact that the Masons of York, Pa., kept up their organization all the time, but only came out publicly in 1863, and built a temple. All over the North, thousands of Masons left the lodges; but the "true blue" Masons everywhere kept up a very secret and select (Jesuitic) organization.

During the past twenty-four years I have collected hundreds of startling and stubborn facts about the Jesuits, Masons and other secretists, in relation to the rebellion and reconstruction, which I expect to publish some day under the title, "On Land and Sea."

Yours truly,

EDWARD J. CHALFANT.

LODGE POLITICS BREED ANARCHY IN KANSAS.

DOUGLAS, Kan., January, 1893.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—I suppose Kansas must be a sort of standing riddle to the people farther east. In time they will learn not to be surprised at anything that may occur here. The rise of the Populist party, so sudden and in such strength, must have been an astonishment to steady-going Republicans and Democrats of the Middle and Eastern States.

The philosophy of it is, however, very simple. It was one of the results of the senseless "booming" that prevailed some years ago, when men thought they could get rich by going into debt. They stoutly defended this idea, saying, "Our debts are investments." Bad investments they have proved; but instead of seeing it in this light, they charge the disastrous outcome to the machinations of that great scape-goat, the "plutocrat." To devise means to down the plutocrat, the Populist party was formed.

At the last fall's election, although they cast less votes than two years ago, they pooled issues and combined forces with a majority of the Democrats and elected their entire State ticket. We had thus five parties in the State: Republican, Populist, Fusion Democrat, Stalwart Democrat, and the little Prohibition contingent.

The interest now centers about our double House of Representatives at Topeka. The Populist-Democrat combination elected not only the State officers, but a large majority of the Senate. But they did not elect a majority of the House. It stood 58 Populists, 53 straight Republicans, 1 independent Republican and 3 stalwart Democrats. The Republicans elected the speaker and clerk of the House, and then the Populists went on to organize another House, admitting 10 Populists who were contesting seats that rightfully belong to Republicans. This action of the Populists is revolutionary, and is a bold outrage on the principle of government by the people. The worst of it is that the conspiracy is likely to succeed, as their House has been recognized by the Populist Governor and Senate.

There may be a hitch in the Supreme Court of the State, two of whose three members are Republicans; but the Populists expect to get around that in some way, as they seem to be utterly lawless—at least the leaders. The Governor has even threatened to call out the militia to suppress the Republican House. The Populists, with their 10 illegal members, have chosen a Democrat for United States Senator, and the probabilities are that the Democratic Senate at Washington will admit him.

But the Populists have simply cut their throats as a party. They will never elect another State officer. There is indignation all over the State, and at the election two years from now they will be overwhelmingly defeated. But there is apprehension to be felt from the fact that they will have the counting machinery in their hands. They seem to have been learning lessons from their Southern leaders, and there is no telling to what extent they may put their education into effect. Some of the leaders are little less than out-and-out anarchists and are thoroughly unscrupulous. The Republicans and Democrats will not always submit to be dominated by them; but let us hope that the rule of the majority will be restored by peaceful means rather than by a bloody revolution.

Readers of the Cynosure will see in the Kansas situation the legitimate fruits of lodge politics. The Populist party began as a secret lodge, established among the debt-burdened and discontented farmers of the State. There were many, and still are some, honest and good men in the toils. They have been used, by dishonest and unscrupulous leaders, even to defy popular government. Many have broken away from their bondage, but some are still held and are forced into complicity with political methods which they do not at heart approve. But I think the days of the Farmers' Alliance, at least as a political power, will ere long be numbered.

T. C. MOFFATT.

LITERATURE.

CURRENT PERIODICALS.

The Century (February—"Midwinter" issue) opens with a full-page portrait of Alfred Tennyson. Contents and contributors: An Embassy to Provence, illustrated, by Thos. A. Janvier; Balcony Stories, continued and illustrated, by Grace King; Sweet Bells Out of Tune, continued and illustrated, by Mrs. Burton Harrison; Stray Leaves from a Whaler's Log, illustrated, by James T. Brown; Franz Liszt, portrait, by Camille St.-Saens; Benefits Forgiven, continued, by Walter Balesier; From Dawn to Sunrise, by Esther B. Carpenter; The Voice of Tennyson, by Henry Vandyke; Spring Songs—"The Mourning Dove," by Mary Hallock Foote; An Art Impetus in Turkey, illustrated by Jno. P. Peters; Genesis, by John H. Ingham; Purity, painted by William Thorne; Goliah, by Thos. B. Aldrich; Lovers in London, by Violet Hunt; The Cosmopolis City Club at Work, by Washington Gladden; On a Head of Christ by Quintin Matsys, by Bessie Chandler; Life in the Malay Peninsula, illustrated, by John Fairlie; Leaves from the Autobiography of Tommaso Salvini, with portraits; The Professor's Aberration, illustrated, by Florence W. Snedeker; The Lustigs, by Mrs. Schuyler Van Rensselaer; A Voice for Russia, by the Secretary of the Russian Legation in Washington, Pierre Batkine; Preliminary Glimpses of the Fair, by Clough C. Buell. The usual departments of Topics of the Time, Open Letters, and In Lighter Vein, are replete with an interesting variety. New York: The Century Company.

The frontispiece of St. Nicholas for February is copied from Delort's painting of The Capture of the Dutch Fleet on the Zuyder Zee by French Hussars, in 1794, and finely executed. With only a few exceptions every article is illustrated with the happy effect that serves to make this popular juvenile magazine continuously attractive. The White Cave, by Wm. O. Stoddard; Holly-trees and Mistletoe, by M. Carrie Hyde and, Polly Oliver's Problem, by Kate D. Wiggin, are continued with interest. Other stories and sketches are the following: Collar-Wallah, by Rudyard Kipling; Battling Under Water, by Fred H. Spencer; The Boyhood of Louis XIV., by Adela E. Orpen; A Chinese Valentine; Little Peter and the Giant, by Jack Bennett; The Lament of Polly Cla; How Janet Did It, by Katharine Festetics; The Vrow that Lives by Haarlem Lake, by Julia M. Lippmann; Railway Speed at Sea, by J. O. Davidson, and several others in a minor key, with the departments of "Jack-in-the-Pulpit," Editorial Notes, the Letter-box and the Riddle-box. Published by the Century Co., New York City.

Scribner's Magazine for February is fully up to its usual standard of excellence. Special interest centres around the Personal Recollections of Charles Sumner, by the Marquis de Chambrun, and the new installment of Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett's autobiographical, "The One I Knew the Best of All—A Memory of the Mind of a Child; Octave Thanet's new Story of a Western Town is "Harry Lossing," illustrated. The illustrated European papers: From Venice to the Gross-Venediger, by Henry Van Dyke; From Spanish Light to Moorish Shadow, by Alfred J. Weston; Impressions of a Decorator in Rome, concluded, by Frederic Crowminshield, and The Florentine Artist, by E. H. and E. W. Blashfield. Other monographs in verse and prose are: How the Battle was Lost, by Lloyd Osborne; Shall I Complain? by Louise Chandler Moulton; A Memory, by Edith M. Thomas; To Her, by T. R. Sullivan, and an article showing how six families in moderate circumstances may visit the World's Fair in rotation at moderate cost, by the editor. New York: Chas. Scribner's Sons.

A fine collection of stories, articles and departments is presented to the readers in the February number of the Cottage Hearth. It opens with the second part of Erastus Faulkner, the powerful Southern story by Matt Crim. Following this is a bright story of New York society life, by Mary A. Sawyer. Our New Navy, as described by Lieut. Wm. Ledyard Rodgers, U. S. S. Atlanta, is of more than passing interest and importance. The accurate illustrations of this series of articles makes them especially valuable. Other articles of interest are Leonardo Da Vinci, by Deristhe L. Hoyt; Turning the Tables (the story of a scout), by Lieut. R. H. Jayne; A Mistake in Consonants, by Clara Louise Burnham, and in the Young People's Department, Gretchen, by Marjorie Richardson. Boston: W. A. Wilde & Co.

No. 37 of Shoppell's Modern Houses (January, 1893) should be in the hands of all who desire to know how to build a good house at moderate cost, since it presents an immense variety of practical designs from which to select the one most in accordance with the reader's taste and means. The publishers—The Co-operative Building-Plan Association, Architects, 63 Broadway, New York City—furnish working plans and necessary information for those who purpose to build. The periodical is published four times a year, each number distinct, at 50 cents per number. The one before us contains fifty designs for residences, stables, etc., ranging in value from $600 to $12,000, with specifications, interior finishings and decorations, estimates, etc.

The literary features of the Arena for February are a carefully prepared biographical sketch of the Life, Character and Work of Charles Darwin, by the editor. A second argument in favor of Shakespearean authorship, by Dr. W. J. Rolfe, the eminent Shakespearean scholar. A story by the Canadian poet, William P. McKenzie, entitled Was It Prophecy? and a poem entitled The Minority. This number is rich in able discussions of vital Social and Economic problems. It also contains a number of religious papers of more or less interest, and some interesting psychological discussions, together with a philosophical paper on Education and Character Building, by Professor Joseph Rhodes Buchanan. Boston: The Arena Publishing Co.

Admirers and enemies of Mr. Blaine will alike be interested in the very full article which appears in the February Cosmopolitan, reviewing his characteristics as a man and statesman. A number of fine portraits are printed with the article.

PAMPHLET.

The American Citizen Co., 7 Bromfield street, Boston, publishes, in a neat pamphlet of 35 pages, an Address by Prof. L. T. Townsend, which was delivered before the Methodist Preachers' Meeting in that city, December 12, 1892, on "Jesuitical Influences on the Secular Press." It is a strong indictment of the principal newspapers in Boston and elsewhere for suppressing reports of meetings and other information opposed to the interests of the Roman Catholic church in the United States. The professor is very outspoken against the cowardice and prejudices of the editors and publishers of these papers, for withholding the truth from the public because the Romish prelatry may, forsooth, be disgruntled should their Jesuitical maneuvers be discovered and exposed. The address made so favorable an impression upon those that heard it that a unanimous vote for its publication was given at its close. It can be obtained of the publishers and ought to be scattered broadcast through the land. Our American liberty of the press and speech was never so much in danger of suppression as at this time.

A year's numbers of the Cynosure would make six good-sized volumes of valuable reform literature, containing 550 pages each.

IN BRIEF.

Next to money Rembrandt, the noted artist, loved nothing so well as his monkey. He shed tears when the ape died, and painted a portrait of his pet from his memory.

It is all fish that comes to the Japanese net. An English-built war vessel of that nation recently steamed into an American port firing salutes with French powder from German guns.

Murder statistics for this country prove the pessimists' fondest theories. Behold! Murders during 1892 in the United States: 6,792 as against 5,906 during 1891, 4,290 in 1890 and 3,567 in 1889.

It is said that in Thomas county, Kansas, there is not a single stream of living water or a tree of natural growth. Nevertheless the farmers manage to raise wheat that averages thirty bushels to the acre.

The number of drug stores in the United States is said to be 34,000, of which 10,649 are in the Eastern States. This makes about one drug store to every three doctors, and one to 1,700 inhabitants.

A little Japanese girl is allowed to keep her teeth white as pearls until after her marriage; then she must stain them black. It is a great deal of trouble to do this, and the process must be often repeated.

One of the blacksmith shops in Williamsport, Penn., has just celebrated its centennial. It is estimated that eight shoes, on an average, have been nailed upon horses' feet every work day during the century, making a total of about 250,000 shoes.

If twelve persons were to agree to dine together every day, but never sit exactly in the same order around the table, it would take 18,000,000 years at the rate of one dinner a day, and they would have to eat more than 470,000,000 dinners before they could get through all the possible positions in which they could place themselves.

An enraged Parisian poet lately brought an action for damages against the publisher because some of his rhymes were spoiled by printers' blunders. He lost his suit; the court holding that in withdrawing the book as soon as the error was discovered and in correcting the offending line the publisher had done all that could reasonably be expected of him.

An effort is to be made to put a product of the mesquite bean on the market as a substitute for coffee. A company, said to be strongly backed, has been formed at San Antonio, Texas, with this purpose in view. It is said that in the lower Rio Grande region a beverage made from the mesquite bean has long been used, that it resembles coffee, and is an excellent drink.

In the window of a Maiden Lane (New York) jeweler is exhibited the shell of a Ningpoo (China) fresh water mussel, upon the inner surface of which, while the mollusc was yet alive, had been dropped little leaden images of the Chinese god of wealth. In the course of time the images became covered with a pearly excretion through which are still visible the grotesque outlines of the enclosed deity.

Frank Sims, a colored resident of the Point, at Louisville, Ky., voted the Democratic ticket at the late Presidential election. When this fact became known among Sim's acquaintances, the latter, particularly his female friends, began voodooring him for giving his allegiance to Cleveland. Their taunts and gibes were of such a nature and so frequent that it is said Sims had to take to his bed, being affected with a bad case of voodooism. He gradually grew worse, and finally died.

A gentleman who has recently returned from Europe tells of an odd superstition in vogue among the more ignorant classes of seamen. They are of the opinion that the presence of a young couple on their bridal tour aboard ship portends a violent storm. The Canadian, an Inman steamer, had a young couple aboard, and sure enough the ship was caught in a hurricane. A number of the sailors were in-

Right in your own hands, if you'll take it, you have the remedy for woman's weaknesses and woman's ailments. And you have it on remarkable terms. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is guaranteed to help you, or it costs you nothing.

If it weren't the most certain and effective remedy in the world, do you think it could be sold in any such way?

Every overworked and "run-down" woman and every delicate and suffering woman, needs it. It builds up and invigorates the whole system, regulates and promotes the proper functions, and restores health and strength. It's a legitimate medicine, not a beverage; purely vegetable, perfectly harmless, and made especially for woman's needs.

In every disorder and derangement peculiar to the sex, periodical pains, weak back, bearing-down sensations, and kindred ailments, "Favorite Prescription" is guaranteed to benefit or cure, or you have your money back.

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained, and all Patent business conducted for Moderate Fees.

Our Office is Opposite U. S. Patent Office, and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.

Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.

A Pamphlet, "How to Obtain Patents," with names of actual clients in your State, county, or town, sent free. Address,

C. A. SNOW & CO.,
Opposite Patent Office, Washington, D. C.

Our High Grade List and Bargain Book sent to any address on receipt of a 2-c stamp.

LORD & THOMAS,
NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING
45 RANDOLPH STREET,
CHICAGO.

tent upon throwing them overboard, and only the courage of the captain, who opposed the mutineers with a revolver in each hand, saved the lives of those who were enjoying the first weeks of their honeymoon.—Cincinatti Commercial Gazette.

With pure, vigorous blood coursing through the veins and animating every fibre of the body, cold weather is not only endurable but pleasant and agreeable. No other blood medicine is so certain in its results as Ayer's Sarsaparilla. What it does for others it will do for you.

50 Cents in Seeds Free.

We are in receipt of a Seed Catalogue published by F. B. Mills, Rose Hill, N. Y., whose advertisement appears in another column. Mr. Mills has a very novel idea in getting up his Catalogue. It is very plain, his idea being to get it up as cheaply as possible, not spending a large amount in fancy covers and colored plates, but give his customers the benefit of this extra cost in Seeds free. With every order amounting to $1.00 or more he allows the customer to select 50 cents' worth of Seeds in packages, free, their own choice. Thus you see every one gets $1.50 worth of seeds for $1.00. Aside from this he offers some very large and interesting premiums, and we believe Mr. Mills is on the right track in offering these premiums for fine Vegetables and Flowers. People will look on him as a benefactor to the country, because it will teach many agriculturists the way to success, namely: less land, better cultivation, heavy and judicious manuring; and that will enable them to reach the top of the ladder, where choice produce is always in demand and good prices are always received.

He offers one of the finest lines of Vegetable and Flower Seeds that can be found, and prices are very reasonable. If anything is not satisfactory, Mr. Mills guarantees to make it so, and we would advise our readers to try some of his Seeds this year, and be sure to send for a Catalogue.

ANTI-SECRECY TRACTS.

The following numbers are in stock, and can be had at the wholesale price of 20 cents per pound:

3. Address to American Pastors.
 4. Freemasonry in the Family.
 7. To the Boys who Hope to be Men.
 8. Modern Heathenism.
 9. Ministers at Rival Altars.
 10. A Pastor's Confession.
 12. Alexander Campbell's Estimate of the Lodge.
 15. Secrecy and Sin.
 22. Extracts from Masonic Oaths and Penalties as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.
 37. Why a Christian should not be a Freemason (German).
 38. Masonic Oaths and Penalties.
 39. Should Freemasons be Admitted to Christian Fellowship?
 42. Our Duty and Ability to Know the Character of Masonry.
 45. Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?
 49. John Quincy Adams on the duty of American Voters.
- The Masonic Oath Itself a Perjury (40 cents per pound).

The above are the only tracts in stock in large quantities. There are a few of several other numbers. Remember that these are being retailed at wholesale prices—20 cents per pound. Keep a package of Anti-masonic tracts for use in letters.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,
321 W. Madison St., Chicago.

AGENTS AND LECTURERS.

NEW ENGLAND DEPARTMENT.—Rev. J. P. Stoddard, Agent, 218 Columbus Ave., Hotel Howland, Boston.

EASTERN DEPARTMENT.—W. B. Stoddard, Agent, No. 215, 4½ St., Washington, D. C.

CENTRAL DEPARTMENT.—Rev. M. A. Gault, Blanchard, Ia.

WESTERN DEPARTMENT.—Rev. W. C. Paden, Oakland, Kan.

PACIFIC DEPARTMENT.—, address Rev. S. Mathew, Canby, Oregon.

COLLEGE AGENT, Rev. S. F. Porter Cynosure office.

OTHER LECTURERS.

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
Rev. H. H. Hinman, Oberlin, O.
Nathan Callender Montdale Pa.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
T. B. McCormick, Princeton, Ind.
E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
H. A. Day, Brighton, Mich.
J. M. Bishop, Chambersburg, Pa.
A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
W. M. Love, Osceola, Mo.
J. K. Glassford, Carthage, Mo.
Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Minn.
J. S. Perry, Thompson, Conn.
Rev. E. Mathews, Long Island City, N. Y.
E. Barnetson, Haskinsville, N. Y.
D. A. Richards, Brighton, Mich.
A. W. Parry, Evanston, Ill.

SCOTCH RITE MASONRY ILLUSTRATED.

The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all Masonic rites, and are fully and accurately given in

"FREEMASONRY ILLUSTRATED,"

as advertised, but the signs, grips, passwords etc., of these three degrees are given at the close of Vol 2 of

"Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated"

Vol. 1 of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3d to 18th inclusive. Vol. 2 of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 19th to 33d inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive. Price per volume, paper cover, 50 cents each, in cloth, $1 each. Each volume per dozen, paper covers, $4; per dozen cloth bound, $9.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

History Nat'l Christian Association Its origin, objects, what it has done aims to do, and the best means to accomplish the end sought, the Articles of Incorporation, Constitution and By-laws of the Association. 30c each.

THE N. C. A. BUILDING
(The gift of Philo Carpenter.)

The Christian Cynosure,
221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO
The National Christian Association

PRESIDENT—Rev. M. A. Gault, Blanchard, Iowa.

VICE PRESIDENT—John Dorcas, Tipton, Iowa.

FIELD SEC'Y and TREASURER—W. J. Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

CORRESPONDING SEC'Y—Rev. H. L. Kellogg, Wheaton, Ill.

REC. SECRETARY—Mrs. E. A. Cook Chicago.

DIRECTORS—T. B. Arnold, C. A. Blanchard, E. A. Cook, J. M. Hitchcock, G. R. Milton, J. P. Richards, E. Whipple, E. R. Worrell, Edgar Wylie, W. M. Howie, H. F. Kletsing.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

NEW ENGLAND.—Pres., Rev. J. M. Foster, Boston, Mass.; Sec'y, Miss E. E. Flagg, Wellesley, Mass.; Treas., L. E. Lincoln, Boston.

CONNECTICUT.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Willimantic; Sec., David J. Ellsworth, Windsor; Treas., C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.—Pres., Rev. R. W. Chesnut, Marissa; Sec., Rev. J. R. Wylie, Coultersville; Treas., Rev. W. I. Phillips, Cynosure office, Chicago.

IOWA.—Pres., John Dorcas, Tipton; Sec., Rev. T. P. Robb, Linton; Treas., Rev. L. Mendenhall, Fairfield.

KANSAS.—Pres., Rev. C. H. Strong, Lawrence; Vice-Pres., Rev. J. L. Countermine, Hiawatha; Sec., Rev. D. H. Coulter, Winchester; Treas., Rev. B. B. Pauli, Neosho Falls.

NEBRASKA.—Pres., Rev. W. I. Brooks, Pawnee City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. G. Widen, Mead; Sec., Howard P. Young, Wahoo; Treas., Rev. T. H. Dabney, Hooper.

MAINE.—Pres., Isaac Jackson, Harrison; Sec., I. D. Haines, Dexter; Treas., H. W. Goddard, West Sidney.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Pres., S. A. Pratt; Worcester.

MICHIGAN.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec., H. A. Day, Brighton; Treas., Geo. Swanson, Jr., Bedford.

MINNESOTA.—Pres., S. B. Sjoblom, Ferguson Falls; Cor. Sec., Wm. Fenton, St. Paul; Rec. Sec., Mrs. M. F. Morrill, St. Charles; Treas., Wm. H. Morrill, St. Charles.

MISSOURI.—Pres., B. F. Miller, Eagleville; Treas., William Beauchamp, Avalon; Cor. Sec., A. D. Thomas, Avalon.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—Pres., Robt. A. Frohock, Alton; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., James F. French, Canterbury.

NEW YORK.—Pres., Rev. S. R. Wallace, Syracuse; Sec., Rev. W. H. Clark, Binghamton; Treas., Lucius Woodruff, Binghamton.

OHIO.—Pres., J. W. Martin, Mt. Perry; Rec. Sec., A. T. Vestal, Senecaville; Cor. Sec. and Treas., E. Thomson, Senecaville.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Pres., R. J. George, D. D., Beaver Falls; Cor. Sec., J. S. T. Milligan, Pittsburgh; Treas., R. C. Wylie, Wilkinsburg.

WISCONSIN.—Pres., J. B. Galloway, Poyette; Sec., Isaiah Falls, Vernon; Treas., J. W. Wood, Baraboo.

The Christian Cynosure.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 9, 1893.

What doth the Lord thy God require of thee, but to fear the Lord thy God, to walk in all his ways, and to love him, and to serve the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul, to keep the commandments of the Lord and his statutes?
—DEUTERONOMY 10: 12.

EDUCATION IN ILLINOIS.

On Wednesday last, bills passed both houses of the Illinois Legislature, repealing the famed Edwards Compulsory Education law. In the House the vote for the repeal stood 119, and 11 against it. Twenty-three members were either absent, or refused to vote. Forty-two Republicans voted for the repeal, and eleven against it. Twenty signed a protest against the measure. Of the Democrats in the House, 77 out of 78 voted for the repeal; the other refused to vote.

No offer of a substitute for the repealed law received encouragement, although one had been prepared by Republicans, which, it was said, would have been satisfactory to Lutherans and not obnoxious to Roman Catholics, and which, it was thought, would very well suit the general public.

The protest adopted and signed by those opposed to the repeal, was an earnest plea for the perpetuation and support of the public free or common schools. "We believe," it says, "that they are one of the chief bulwarks of the State and the safeguard of the liberties of the citizen, and that every attack upon the system of free schools, whether direct or indirect, secret or open, should be repelled by every means within the power of the State or the people. We believe that it is the right and duty of the State to require parents, guardians, and all others having children of school age under their control to cause such children to be educated in the elementary branches of learning."

Further, it opposed the supervision, by public or State officers, of private schools, or that the law should dictate what branches of learning or what language shall be taught in such schools, or the employment of "truant" officers to invade the rights of parents who prefer to have their children attend these private or sectarian schools; but it does declare that compulsory education of suitable character should be enforced in some public or private school.

As it is now, no person can be compelled to send his child to any school. The natural result will be an increase in the illiteracy of the State, since so many parents prefer to have their children engaged in profitable or menial pursuits instead of sending them to school.

The wisdom of such legislation cannot be conscientiously approved.

"UNDER WHAT CIRCUMSTANCES MAY CHRISTIANS ENTER A SECRET ORDER?"

There is much in the address of Rev. Prof. Townsend, printed in last week's Cynosure under the above title, that we heartily commend. There are also other things to which we must add our dissent.

The statement that some of the secret orders are doing more for their poor than the churches, we think, is not true, as a general allegation. That it may be correct in some localities we do not deny. It must be remembered, however, that the assistance given by these secret orders is not charity. They, at best, give back in part only a small proportion of what they have received. Those who join these orders do so from no purpose of impartial benevolence. They give "that they may receive as much again."

The gifts of the church, both to the heathen and to their own poor, are bestowed on a different principle. They are real gifts. The church does not, as a rule, parade its charities; but these pretended benevolences are the stock arguments in favor of secret societies.

But, supposing this claim to be admitted, and that the church has come short of the purposes for which she was organized, namely, to do good to the bodies and souls of men, it does not follow that we do well to join a rival organization; for secret orders are, confessedly, the rivals of the church of Christ. They claim exaltation and honor in proportion as the church is humiliated. The Christian that joins them helps in the reproach that they are casting on the people of the Lord. As well might the husband join the "rival" of his wife, as a Christian become united with these un-Christian societies.

We also dissent from the plea that secret organizations are sometimes allowable. What men may be excused in doing in time of war, or when suffering under great persecution and affliction, is one thing. What they ought to do in time of peace, and when living under the freest government on earth, is quite another and a different thing. We cannot plead "the rights of war" in the time of peace, or the privileges of an abnormal state of society, as a justification of our conduct under entirely different circumstances.

Privacies there are, in both the family and the state; but these are very different from sworn or pledged secrets. Either a family, or a government, whose ordinary doings were under sworn secrecy would be such an anomaly as would call for universal disapproval. What we object to is not privacies, but organizations whose basis is secrecy. These have no warrant in the example of Christ or his apostles. The entire drift of the New Testament teaching is in the opposite direction.

It is true that the church, after its departure from its primitive purity and simplicity, did, for a time, resort to secrecy as a means of defence against bitter persecution. Gibbon, in his "Decline and Fall of Rome," says that they sought to escape persecution by emulating the Eleusinian Mysteries; but so far from this being a means of defence, it was made the occasion of fierce persecutions. It was assumed that what was so carefully concealed must certainly be bad. Jesuitism, by its sworn secrecy, has been a reproach to the name of Christ. True Christianity has always commended itself by its frankness and simplicity.

Again, we object to all secret organizations, because they are all liable to be used for evil purposes. It does not need to be proved that they are always, or even generally, so used. Sometimes they have been used to defeat the ends of justice and impair the influences of Christianity; because of their secrecy, they are all capable of being so used.

Lastly, we object to membership even in such orders as have but the semblance of secrecy. Such membership usually closes the mouth against any positive testimony in opposition to the orders that are surely un-Christian, and is always regarded by members of these orders as a practical endorsement of them.

There is one proper course to pursue: "Have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them." Eph. 5: 11.

"INTENSELY CHRISTIAN" MASONRY.

"The devil holds high carnival." So writes an attentive correspondent, who sends us a slip from the Pittsburgh (Pa.) Dispatch of a recent date, giving a pictorial and fulsome report of a dinner and a dance given by one of the local commanderies of Knights Templar, on the previous evening, at one of the city theaters.

"The scene," says the reporter, "was most attractive and unusual for Pittsburgh. It is not often that so many well-dressed ladies and gentlemen enjoy the dizzy mazes of the dance in this city of iron, steel and glass. . . . The capacity of the beautiful theater was taxed to accommodate the people. It is estimated that fully 1,500 couples, or 3,000 guests, were present. The dancing platform, which covered the parquet and included the stage twelve months ago, was increased thirty feet for this occasion, but it did not provide waltzing space for more than one-fourth of the crowd at one time. . . . All the seats down stairs and in the second galleries were taken, while Prof. — and his — Band held the third gallery, where the theatrical gods always reign."

"Manager Hyde had decorated the entrances and the halls with tropical plants and flowers. The punch bowl department was well conducted in the lounging room by two polite sable citizens who served the guests. The floral and electric light decorations on the stage were away ahead of last season. Three strings of red, white and blue lights were hung across the platform, while suspended from the stage scenery was the well-known banner of the commandery. Under this canopy the ladies danced with the gallant Knights and accepted their hospitality. . . . Woman with her delicate touch and radiant with beauty was the ruling goddess. Knights may be stern and bold in the lodge room or on the street, but they wouldn't think of holding a reception unless the ladies were present.

"In addition to the Knights and the representatives of the fair sex, a number of the Masonic fraternity were present to join in the kindred festivities. William Chatland, the oldest Mason in the State, came from Brownsville, and much was made of grandfather with his long white hair trailing on his shoulders. 'I like to be with the young fellows,' he said, 'and I would not have missed it for the world. It is the greatest reception I ever attended. I never saw anything like it.' The old gentleman was profuse in his praise, and it was not exaggerated."

When the guests adjourned "from labor to refreshment" (Masonically speaking), they ate oysters on the half-shell, drank soup from cups, and then filled up with a most appetizing and bewildering variety of viands. There is nothing in the report about drinking wine at table; but as every Knight there had drank wine from a dead man's skull, in the "fifth libation," with a horrible imprecation (or he wouldn't have been a favored guest at this ball and banquet), it may be that they were sensitive on that subject and preferred taking punch outside.

Seriously, what a sham is Freemasonry in all its degrees! Here is an order, of which every member must have been a Blue Lodge Mason, and which Rob Morris tells us, in his Masonic Dictionary, "is intensely Christian" . . . "The birth, life, death, resurrection and ascension of this exalted personage" (Jesus Christ) "constitute the sublime lessons of the Knights Templar order, which is emphatically the Christian branch of Masonry. The passages from the Gospels that describe his Passion are read during the ceremonies."

This is the order of which Grand Commander DeWitt Clinton, of the Grand Encampment of the United States, and Governor of the State of New York, said: "Its principles are based on pure morality; its ethics are the ethics of Christianity; its doctrines, the doctrines of patriotism and brotherly love, and its sentiments the sentiments of exalted benevolence. Upon these points there can be no doubt."

No secret order, it is certain, can be any better than its self-imposed obligations; and every Knight Templar binds himself, if he fails to keep his secret vows to the order, to have his head smote off and placed on the highest spire in Christendom. By whom is this murder to be done? By his brother Knights Templar, of course. So that the Masonic idea of brotherly love is to assassinate every recalcitrant brother! What a blasphemous mixing up of the tender, loving, pure religion of Jesus Christ with the barbarism of Freemasonry, which originated in the pagan worship of antiquity! Dancing, feasting, murdering—"intense Christianity!"

REFORM NEWS.

PEORIA.

ITS DISTILLERIES AND CHURCHES, PRIESTS AND PASTORS, AND HOW OUR REFORM STANDS AMONG THEM.

The city of Peoria, although the second in size in the State of Illinois, is bigger than Chicago and surpasses all others in the land or the world as a whisky-producing center. The clouds of smoke that pour from the sooty chimneys of the fifteen distilleries is a faint type of the pall of misery, crime and death that shadows every home, every community, every people, whither their product is exported. This whisky business pays, too, the heaviest tax collected by our internal revenue department from any American city. If any doubt that this makes our Government partner in the whisky crime, and that every dollar of this revenue has a moral discount, let the local influence of these great death-factories be noted and measured. How many humble, well-meaning workmen are employed in these establishments because the wages are better and more certain than in others which have less cash but more honor! How many public enterprises, laudable and necessary in themselves, depend more or less upon the distillers for their support! How does this wealth weaken or choke the testimony against the drink crime on ten thousand tongues!

But this cloud over the fair fame of Peoria does not darken all its lustre. The Sabbath is a quiet day; the churches are attractive and seem well supported; and true-hearted, God-fearing men are in some of the pulpits at least, as I have met them. In three churches revival services are now progressing; in others, protracted meetings have just closed. Icy walks, storms of snow, sleet and drizzle, and electric street-car lines suspended by the burning of the power house, have hindered these meetings, as they did several for the N. C. A. cause.

I reached the city Friday noon, Jan. 27, and soon had arrangements for three discourses on the Sabbath afternoon, and three more during the week. The Sabbath afternoon invitation had to be given up because of an exigency about the place of meeting for Tuesday evening. Sabbath morning Brother Smashey introduced me to his people in the tasteful, comfortable and convenient Free Methodist church. They heard the word gladly and gave a hearty God-speed to the cause. A like welcome was extended by Bro. E. C. Jessup, of the Swedish Lutheran church, in the evening, where the audience was largely of young people, a number of whom had been, without due consideration on their part, drawn into a secret society.

Monday forenoon the pastors of the city met in the Y. M. C. A. building. The chairman, Rev. H. D. Clark, of the First M. E. church, very kindly introduced me and my mission, and the motion to give it a hearing was not opposed. The discussion that followed was courteous and, on the whole, friendly. One pastor is a Freemason and defended the order. Another, though a member of several orders, realized that they were drawing away from the strength of the church, and thought there should be a stop to that part of their work. Others were candid in expressing more or less objection to secretism, but did not see clearly what is the root of the evil, whose growth they deplore. Some pastors most interested in the reform were not present.

Tuesday evening a small audience slipped carefully along the middle of the icy streets to the pleasantly-furnished German Reformed church, of which Rev. John Miller is the venerable and beloved pastor. Three other pastors were present, and representatives from a number of congregations. The interest was good, but lacked the enthusiasm of numbers.

Thursday evening the German M. E. church, pastor A. C. Achard, was very willingly opened for an address on the antagonism of the lodge to Christianity. The weather was yet more unpropitious, but the audience was an encouraging one, both in numbers and interest. Bro. Achard ministers to an enthusiastic people, in a beautiful and commodious church, which they built themselves without outside soliciting. Other buildings here that must have cost twice or thrice the money are not more attractive and tasteful.

Private visitation discovered a number of Christian business men who sympathize in our work, and will aid it. The small list of subscribers to the Cynosure is doubled, though it is still small. The testimony of Moses Pettengill, of precious memory, is yet remembered.

Few of the pastors of the city belong or take part otherwise with secrecy.

The aggressions of Romanism are just now arousing the indignation of every true American. Bishop Spaulding rules in local politics with a high hand, and has even undertaken to dictate in banks, stores and business houses. As a consequence, the anti-Romanist feeling runs high, and the secret American Protective Association is pulling in its full drag-net. The folly of attempting to thwart the plans of Jesuitism by secret lodge methods I endeavored to make plain. It is said the Romanists have the name of every A. P. A. member in the city and threaten the thumbscrew of the boycott. On the other hand, the names and number of the Jesuits are as unknown as the others are well known. American and Christian methods alone will withstand Rome.

After attending and addressing several other religious meetings, at intervals during the week, in all of which I was welcomed for the N. C. A.'s sake, I pushed on toward Princeton, Ill., Friday.

HENRY L. KELLOGG.

THE EASTERN AGENT IN PENNSYLVANIA.

HOME HOTEL, Pittsburgh, Pa.,)

February 3, 1893. }

DEAR CYNOSURE:—The past week has been to me one of labor and success. In addition to arranging many details of the State Anti-secretism Convention, I have spoken four times to good audiences. The towns visited, New Galilee, Darlington and Beaver Falls, all contain strong anti-lodge churches. Rev. Messrs. Wylie, Patterson and Savage, pastors of the churches in which I spoke, stood at my right hand and did much to make my stay pleasant, and, I trust, profitable to those who listened attentively to the truths we had to present. Sixteen new subscriptions were added to the Cynosure list. A goodly number stated their expectation to attend the convention.

At Beaver Falls, Dr. H. H. George's welcome was as hearty as he is great. He regretted exceedingly that owing to the pressure of present duties he could not feel justified in having his name on the program as discussing the lodge and labor question. He will plan, if possible, to be with us and help as he has opportunity.

The committee of inquiry reported that the Aletheorian Orchestra of Geneva College had voted to accept our invitation to play for us one evening of the convention. In the line of music we are certainly highly favored. Prof. Liefeld, who, with his Hayden Mandolin Quartette, is well-known to all lovers of music in this part of world, is also the regular Carnegie Music Hall organist.

Nearly every mail brings letters from friends mostly favorable to their attendance. The program will be full. Those presenting addresses or remarks will please plan not to exceed the time given them very much. Short, and right to the point, will be the motto.

Rev. A. McLachlan, Clayville, Pa., writes: "It will afford me pleasure to attend the convention. The evils and dangers of secretism were never so manifest as now. To labor for their overthrow I regard as one of the most important reforms of the hour."

"I am real glad to hear of your success. It always brings joy to my heart to hear of the prosperity of Zion."—Rev. Thos. J. J. Wright, Reading, Pa.

"I shall endeavor to be with you at the time appointed. If your program is not full, you can assign me whatever subject you think would be in harmony with the object of the meeting."—Rev. M. B. Patterson, Hartstown, Pa.

"I rejoice at the prospect of another gathering. I will write and talk convention as I have opportunity. I can distribute judiciously 25 programs, perhaps more."—J. C. Young, Custer City, Pa.

Bro. Wm. Dillon, in his letter accepting the invitation to address us, with fatherly pride remarks: "My daughter, attending school near Cincinnati, is a fine speaker. In a year or two I will have her on the platform against the lodge."

Bro. M. A. Gault says: "Our Illinois convention was my best so far. Do you think the attendance at Carnegie Hall would be so much more than in a church as to justify the expense?" The proof of the pudding is in the eating. Be on time to secure your seat.

An item of interest, as showing what the lodge-men expect of their sworn brothers, is found in the testimony of a Mrs. Russell, of New Castle, Pa., in her application for divorce, as given in the Pittsburg Times, Jan. 27th. It is as follows:

"After the papers were filed," said Mrs. Russell, "I went to visit friends in Allegheny county, and while there my husband came after me. He said that he had a constable with him and that they had an order from the court to take me dead or alive. He said I could not get a divorce in Lawrence county, as he and the judge had been engaged in a little business speculation that was not altogether straight and the judge would not dare to grant me a divorce. He further stated that he had handled money in the election of the new judge and the latter would do nothing against him."

Judge Groer here interrupted the witness, saying that Russell probably referred to the associates. [Laughter.] "He further stated," continued Mrs. Russell, "that a jury could not be found in Lawrence county that would convict him, as a part of them would no doubt belong to the Knights of Labor, of which he was a member, and he could buy off the remainder."

It appears in the article from which this was taken that Russell belonged to the Knights of Pythias and Knights of Labor lodges. They naturally don't like his exposure. Would it not be well to look into this matter further?

Beatty, the man on trial for having administered poison at Homestead, has been indicted on the six counts brought against him. This seems to be regarded by honorable people not connected with labor lodges as a triumph of justice over the lodge foe. Many labor lodges passed resolutions and voted money to aid Beatty and his associates. Had he been innocent, this would have been against him. We learn from observation that the devil sometimes defeats his own purposes by making his cloven foot too prominent. So, however crafty he may be, it cannot be affirmed that he is all-wise.

Let us, dear friends, improve this opportune time. Each improve our opportunities to work for the convention's success, and in the name of our Divine Captain unfurl our banner.

W. B. STODDARD.

WORK IN THE WESTERN DISTRICT.

MORGANVILLE, Kans., Jan. 27, 1893.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—I am still in Clay county, and will be here until February 3, on which day we will hold a Reform Convention in Clay Center, the county-seat of this county. I lectured on Secretism, in the Tabor (R. P.) church in Bloom township, on Monday and Tuesday evenings, January 23 and 24.

On the evening of the 25th I addressed a mass temperance meeting, under the auspices of the local W. C. T. U. A very earnest band of women have organized a W. C. T. U. here in the country. Their laudable custom is to hold a mass temperance meeting once every month. In any case, there is work needed of this character in every community; but these women are stimulated in their efforts because there are so many young people in the community, and especially young men. At their earnest request, through their efficient president, Mrs. Mattie Tippin, I consented to address them on Prohibition, on Wednesday evening. Though the evening was windy and cold, yet a goodly number were present and gave respectful attention to my address.

Mrs. Tippin is president, also, of the county W. C. T. U. I have promised to give another temperance address early in March. I shall have some more speaking to do here in that month.

Mrs. Elizabeth Tippin has charge of the literature department. She has a number of interesting and valuable publications that she furnishes at a low rate. I bought from her "Spun from Facts," an interesting book. In every reform work the literary department must not be neglected.

On Thursday evening I addressed a small company at Iwacura schoolhouse. It was a cold night, and not many were present. I received respectful attention. I went home with Mr. G. W. Duguid, and am enjoying his kind hospitality. On next Sabbath (Jan. 29) I shall preach afternoon and evening in the German Presbyterian church, here, in the country.

This trip has been an encouraging one. I have listed many genuine friends of reform. We expect a good county convention at Clay Center, February 3. We are perfecting the program.

At a number of our meetings secret society men have been present and given respectful attention. It is our prayer that the eyes of some may be opened, and that young men may be forewarned and hence forearmed, and mayhap fore-delivered.

WM. C. PADEN.

NEWS FROM THE FLOATING CHAPEL.

HENDERSON, Ky., Feb. 2, 1892.

Although the Ohio river is rising fast, and is full from bank to bank with heavy ice, the Floating Chapel, which is now at Henderson, Ky., has thus far escaped material damage. Nine ropes, running to a post one hundred and fifty feet up the bank, hold it from being carried away by the torrent of ice that beats unmercifully against it. The greatest danger, we hope, will soon be past.

We have just closed a series of very successful revival meetings, in which about forty persons were converted.

We expect to get the chapel towed to Evansville, Ind., as soon as the river is clear of ice.

I. R. B. ARNOLD.

THE HOME.

NOR SAW MY FACE.

"Have I been so long time with you and yet hast thou not known me?"

My child went forth into my garden fair,
Having no wish or will to stay by me;
But that I patiently had followed him out there
He could not see.

He pass'd on from the garden to the wild,
Where cruel and fierce roaring monsters lie:
I drove them back, but nothing told the child
That it was I.

He saw his brothers toiling on the road;
"I will give life and strength," cried he.
But that I made him strong to lift their load
He did not see.

Soul-thrilling words of love bade him rejoice,
And filled with music all that desert place;
And yet he never knew it was my voice,
Nor saw my face.

And when the night came and his eyes grew dim
And dark and chill, and mists about him lay,
He did not know my hand was guiding him
Till it was day.

—Selected.

COMFORT AT EVENTIDE.

It has many times been averred, and always with the utmost truth, that at no other time has a mother so strong a hold on the heart of a child as at nightfall—at bed-time. The little sin committed in the bright glare of sunlight did not prick at the time, and during the long sunny afternoon it seemed to have vanished from memory. The unkind deed was thought but little of while the busy hours of school-time and the allurements of the playground furnished full diversion. Neither on the other hand did the act of prompt obedience bring a feeling of special content and cheer while the sun was shining everywhere, nor did the kind deed furnish pleasing food for reflection while blithe mates were in gay companionship on every side. But at night, when the sun had hid his head, when the school-room was a dark, deserted place, the playground utterly quiet, the blithe little companions invisible, at night-time, when all the world had grown quiet and sleepy, then memory woke up; back came remembrance of the little sin, and now it hurt to have to face plainly the unkind deed. Or it was mightily comforting as the shades deepened to recall the swift obedience, very soothing to have gliding back a recollection of the kindly deed which possibly cost a minute's grip of self-denial. But whether the day's record was such as to cause regret or satisfaction, how comforting, how delightful it was to review it all in the loving presence of a kind mother. How faithfully she pointed out the faults, yet how indulgently she forgave them all. How hopefully she pointed to a better, brighter future, if only the child would be true to its best and highest impulses. And how fair was her smile as she regarded in thought the act of willing obedience! How quick and gratifying was recognition of the kindly, worthy deed! How her counsels made easy the prospect of the next day's endeavors! How firm and stimulating were her ready promises of oversight and assistance!

Old age has well been called a second childhood. It is strange and pleasant also to notice in how many ways it becomes easy and desirable to return to the habits of childish years. The simple food, the early hours, the need of protection and watchfulness, a willingness to be advised, a craving for love and reaching out for sympathy and attention; all, all these things recur and remind one of the dim, familiar years of the long past. It is true there are other proofs that childhood has long since gone forever. Its follies are past; but who would recall them for a moment? Its mistakes, alas, have perhaps been atoned for through many a sad loss and bitter disappointment. Its unbelief, vague questionings, and restless fears are vanished and at rest. Thank God! One of our writers has said "There are many ways in which it would be well for us all to carry our childhood with us into old age, if it were possible, in its trustfulness and open-heartedness and willingness not only to love, but to show that we love as well." But there has to come the intervening period of independence, of doubt, distrust, sometimes of revolt from what is pure and true, and worthy of a little unsinning child. Then God be praised that we drift back again into the old, safe, simple, sun-lit paths of trust, fidelity, and belief in God and the right.

And here at eventide floats back the dear and precious season so like the hour when a tender mother brooded us before sinking to our rest. No tenderer, more brooding message is needed at the sunset time of life than the words following a "Thus saith the Lord"—"As one whom his mother comforteth, so will I comfort you." Memory and retrospection will combine to reproduce the varied scenes and experiences of the past. The sins will now and then be uppermost in the mind, and the mistakes will array themselves with unwelcome vividness before the mind's unfading eye. But with more than a mother's ready forgiveness the love of Christ will blot out and send into swift forgetfulness every repented-of sin and folly. And other deeds will spring into new life and recognition at this thinking time of life—the good deeds, the acts of charity, the cup of cold water, the helpful, sympathizing words. The love of God will remember and brighten them all. A very cheering article appeared not long since in one of our religious papers on the great mistake of condemning ourselves too severely for the mistakes of our lives. What would be cheerfully forgiven in others we sometimes refuse to forgive in ourselves. What would be forgotten of others is laid up in memory to be allowed again and again to haunt us in grave, reproachful voice. Let it all go. The mother at the bedside forgave every thing as soon as it was fully confessed. She did not return to it again and again, but laid it aside once for all, fully, gladly, lovingly. So Christ forgives; so hasten to forgive yourself. The comforting of the mother was received as spontaneously as it was given. So receive the tender, compassionate comforting of the Lord. At eventide let there be not only light but peace. The two must go together. Memory may be a pleasant reminder, but faith is pleasanter. Memory is strong, but hope is stronger. The days that are past may have had in them much of brightness; but the fair, eternal day just ahead is far more full of comfort and joy than the brightest day of which the fondest mother ever told a child. It will form no delusive dream for God's children to brood on comfortingly at eventide.

"I could not sleep unless Thy hand were underneath my head,
That I might kiss it if I lay wakeful upon my bed;.....
I lived two lives which seemed distinct, yet which did intertwine:
One was my mother's—it is gone; the other, Lord, was thine."

—Christian at Work.

STORY OF A COACHMAN.

It was just tired time at the end of the mission meeting when the workers are shaking hands in sympathy and stealing away.

It did not seem right to pass a certain face without a word. He had been there often before. An honest, aged man, who always sat in perfect quiet during the hour, as if trying to think out something for himself. "Have you a Bible?" I said.

"I have a little Testament; but half the time they talk about things that aren't in it. I want a Bible."

"I will bring you one next Tuesday night; and would you like them to talk about being a Christian?" "Yes." "Then I shall pray God your heart may be prepared," and I said good-night.

Very often such friends disappoint us; but I relied on his thoughtful face. On Tuesday evening he was there.

When the leader asked who would be prayed for, he raised his hand—slowly—not with the slowness of hesitation, but of deliberation. He had made up his mind to that step, at least, that he wanted the prayers of those people he had sat amongst for many evenings, while he communed with his own mind.

When, afterward, I asked him if his heart were prepared, he seemed a little surprised at the question. "Didn't I show you it was, when I held up my hand for the people to pray for me?" he replied, almost gruffly.

What an easy conquest for the Lord! God gives some workers all the easy errands, I thought. Yet, after all, he was not ready for surrender. "I am not quite sure yet that I can stick to it. I'm thinking it over."

Every line of his face evidenced that he would be very slow to promise anything to man or God, but bound to keep it if he promised.

"Well, now, what shall I do to be saved?"

"Why, that's just the question the jailer asked." His Testament was quickly opened to the story of Paul, the prisoner, releasing the jailer from his fetters of sin; and I read slowly, that he might take it all in.

This plain story, with his own question in it, seemed exactly to suit his slow working, matter-of-fact mind.

"Yes, that makes it plain. I see it. And how did you say I was to be kept? 'by the power of God?' Yes, Miss, I'll do just as the jailer did."

Would he kneel down? "Oh, yes;" and he whispered, "I ain't been on these knees for ten years, and it feels queer." But he prayed such an honest, contrite prayer of utter surrender, I could but think of the angels in heaven rejoicing over this quiet soul, which at last had thought it all out and so earnestly given himself to God.

He was not one of the testifying kind. For many nights after this I watched him sitting there silent, just as he used, except for a sincere shining in his face, which spoke of entire peace, a witness of inner peace, and wondered of what he was thinking. Would his strong conscience at last compel him to break his natural stern reserve and confess his Lord?

Night after night I was disappointed. He gave up chewing tobacco, which he bravely decided was a hindrance to his Christian life. His growth in grace, like his conversion, was slow and solid; his face shone more and more, but still he did not speak.

I waited, knowing that the Lord would teach him that he must.

Finally it came, with great effort, as if at last something in his heart had burst and let the words come forth.

"It's no difference to you people what my past life has been; that's a matter between my God and me. I only want to say: I believe on the Lord Jesus Christ!"

The words that had saved him, that was all. The solemn emphasis he put upon them showed how his mind had worked over that story of the jailer until it had become the central theme of his life. They stirred the room more than a lengthy recital of sin and wonderful reformation.

He looked around, later, surprised to see I was there; and I told him I would not for anything have missed hearing just that word from him.

I need worry over him no longer. The Son of man will not be ashamed of him before our Father.

I am thankful for many lessons learned of this new friend.

What a good, sturdy answer of his, when asked the other night in his turn by the leader why he became a Christian: "I studied my Testament, and I thought it was best."

Another time he told me that what set him to thinking it over was that he kept his eyes open and couldn't help seeing how man alter man came in there and somehow got made over; he couldn't deny that something did it, and he liked to investigate facts.

He is half the time out of work, but always cheery and trustful—far more even in his Christian life than many who receive the word with rejoicing.

Oh, for a few more of these common-sense Christians among our "spiritual children!"

Religion is not a dream for the visionary, but a practical thing for plain men; and in our work with many, to find such an one is an oasis of delight.—The Christian (London).

A LIGHT HAND ON THE REIN.

There comes a time in the uprearing of most families when the lads and lassies in their teens begin to find it irksome to take absolute commands. They feel their wings growing; they long to fly alone; they are sure they can do it; or, to change the figure, they grow restless under a tight rein and champ the bit.

It is just at this crisis, as a careful observer of life may often have noted, that the relations become strained between children and parents.

Up to this time there has been no question about obedience; a little later than this comes that reverential confidence with which grown sons and daughters turn back to father and mother after a little journey into the world. But just at this juncture mother and father still issue absolute commands, and John and Jennie are beginning to protest secretly against them.

What would you have? Shall father and mother throw the reins on the necks of these young colts? Too often that would mean a runaway and smash up; but let them handle the reins lightly. There are so many things in which you can afford to let John have his own way, even if it is not the very best way; and still more surely is this true with regard to the gentle little maiden. And if this saves you from hectoring and saves them from heartburnings, it will be worth a great deal to both of you.

"John, dear, the sun is too hot for you to go out on your bicycle this morning," says mother, looking at the mercury registering up in the nineties.

"Pshaw, mother, do you take me for a teething baby?" answers John, fretfully.

Now, wise mother, let him alone, and when he comes home with a headache don't, don't say, "I told you so," or ask if he will take your advice next time, but give him a cooling lemonade and remark innocently that you wonder we haven't all headaches in such weather.

"Don't you think you had better call on Miss Price this morning, daughter?"

"No, mamma, I'd rather go in the afternoon."

"But you have set several afternoons, and it has either rained or you have had callers yourself."

"I don't want to go this morning," declares Jennie, with a gathering frown.

Now, mother, take your hand off the rein; this is one of the times that you can let her have her unreasonable way. Drop the subject, not in sullen silence, but with a deft change of subject, and begin to talk of something about which you both agree. Ten to one (if your Jennie is like mine) she will be moved by your gentle forbearance to see the matter with your eyes; you will find her slipping out of the house with her best gloves on to call on Miss Price.

But, whether you gain your point or not, by all means avoid the chance of losing your daughter's cheerful readiness to obey your gentle guidance.—Congregationalist.

THE COVENANT BANNER.

Blow softly, ye breezes, by mountain and moor,
O'er the graves of the Covenant men;
By the muirland and flood that were red with their blood,
Can ye waft the old watchwords again?

"For Scotland and Christ" the breezes of old
O'er the wilds of the westland bore,
From the Lugar and Nith to the Lothian Frith,
And the German Ocean's shore.

And where'er they blew, a prayer was breathed
And a holy psalm was sung;
And hands were clasped and the banner grasped
When the Covenant watchword rung.

O for the brave true hearts of old,
That bled when the banner perished!
O for the faith that was strong in death—
The faith that our fathers cherished!

The banner might fall, but the spirit lived,
And liveth forevermore;
And Scotland claims as her noblest names,
The Covenant men of yore.

—Political Dissenter.

TEMPERANCE.

PROHIBITION IN THE LATE ELECTION.

The Prohibition vote foots up to 270,000, or more, and had there been a fair count, our vote would probably have been something over 300,000. Some think we are not growing fast enough, and are getting discouraged. But have we any real reason for discouragement? Our vote stands as follows:

PROHIBITION VOTE.

1872.	James Black.....	5,607
1876.	Green Clay Smith.....	9,737
1880.	Neal Dow.....	9,678
1884.	John P. St. John.....	150,626
1888.	Clinton B. Fisk.....	249,950
1892.	John Bidwell.....	272,000

It is a significant fact that we never have had a set-back. Look at the vote in the Abolition movement:

THE ABOLITION VOTE.

1840.	James G. Birney.....	7,500
1844.	James G. Birney.....	62,300
1848.	Martin Van Buren.....	291,263
1852.	John P. Hale.....	156,146
1856.	John C. Fremont.....	1,341,264
1860.	Abraham Lincoln.....	1,816,352

We have had no such discouragement as that which overtook the Abolitionists in the year 1852 when the vote went back from 291,263 to 156,146, but our vote has kept growing larger and larger, and each election has been a grand victory for prohibition.

The reason that some get discouraged, is because they forget that we are right, and that the right is bound to triumph. They see only the great power of wealth exerted through channels which corrupt and debauch the ballot box; they see only the gigantic stature of immoral and godless political parties which seem all powerful. But they do not see the invisible, moral forces working away silently at those mighty powers, which soon, and at a time when politicians are least expecting, will totter and fall and we shall see the mighty triumph of our principles.

THE LAST ELECTION.

It is said there were about 12,250,000 votes cast at the last election, but the Democracy only received 5,617,000, less than 500,000 of a majority vote, while the Republican party lacked over 900,000, nearly a million votes of such majority. These mighty powers are already beginning to totter. Indeed, candid men of good judgment, who have acted with the Republican party from the beginning, freely admit that the party will not probably be able to rally its forces again with hope of success.

This is no time for discouragement or halting. Every Prohibitionist ought now to be in line for action. The break in political lines has already begun.

ORGANIZE EVERYWHERE.

The standard of the Prohibition party ought to be raised in every town and hamlet; there never has been such an opportunity as this to press our party claims. Those men who have acknowledged the justice of our cause, and have always claimed to be Prohibitionists, and really are so in sentiment, are looking for a political home, and we have what they are looking for.

What we should do now is to send out speakers and organizers, and set every man at work.

Some specific work ought to be done through the club organizations. Literature ought to be circulated among the church members. There are forces at work among the churches that are tending to open the eyes of those who are so politically blind. They are nearer our way of thinking than many suppose; some are thinking and thinking hard. The church members are not going to be left without a party to vote with, and if they see that the old party is gone, they will seek a party that most nearly represents their principles. We ought to work, work hard, work wisely, but work. Men get discouraged who do nothing. Let us go to work.—California Voice.

CHARMED BY A SONG.

Little children do not know how much good they can accomplish in this world. A word, a prayer, a song, may save a soul.

A man was leaning intoxicated against a tree. Some little girls, coming from school, saw him there, and at once said to each other: "What shall we do for him?"

Presently one said: "Oh! I'll tell you; let's sing him a temperance song!"

And so they did. They collected around him and sung:

"Away, away the bowl,"

and so on in beautiful time. The poor drunkard liked it.

"Sing again, my little girls," said he.

"We will," said they, "if you will sign the pledge."

"No, no," said he, "we are not at a temperance meeting; besides, you've no pledges with you."

"Yes, we have, and pencils, too," and they held them up.

"No, no, I won't now; but do sing for me."

So they sung again—

"The drink that's in the drunkard's bowl,
Is not the drink for me."

"Oh! do sing again," said he.

But they refused, and declared that they would go away if he wouldn't sign.

"But," said the poor fellow, striving to find an excuse, "you've no table; how can I write without a table? You must put the table somewhere."

At this, one quiet, modest, pretty little figure came up timidly, with one finger on lips, and said: "You can write it upon your hat while we hold it for you."

The man signed, and I heard him narrate these facts before one thousand five hundred children. He said: "Thank God for those children; they came to me as messengers of mercy."—Home Guardian.

NUGGETS.

The foremost men in nearly all the churches in Scotland are total abstainers.

The doctors are responsible for a great deal of drunkenness by their wholesale prescription of alcohol.

High license works so well (!) in Chicago that within five years the saloons have increased 85 per cent, while the population has advanced 10 per cent.

The New Orleans Picayune predicts that in five years the liquor traffic will be suppressed in a large majority of the counties in every Southern State.

Half a million persons, it is said, are in one way or another employed on the Lord's day in connection with the drink traffic in England, and two hundred thousand of these are young women.

Gen. Eaton, United States Commissioner of Education, states that 80 per cent of the crime of this country results from intemperance, and that 95 per cent of our depraved youth are born of drunken, depraved parents.

In Scotland there are 12,500 lunatics of one kind or another, an increase of 116 per cent since 1858, while the population shows an increase of 37 per cent. It goes without saying that the per cent of "drink lunatics" is larger than that of any other.

A missionary in Terra del Fuego writes with reference to the drink traffic: "It is just killing people out here, body and soul; they are very weak, sober; very little drink makes them a toy, if I may use the word, in the hands of their enemies, to do as they like with."

In accordance with the resolution of the Brussels Conference of July, 1890, the Egyptian Government have published a decree prohibiting the importation or manufacture of distilled spirits in the provinces and in the territory dependent upon Egypt south of the 20th degree of latitude.

Senator Pepper said in a temperance speech that the amount of distilled spirits on hand in the United States would fill a canal twenty feet wide, ten feet deep and fifteen miles long, or make a lake a mile square, and thirty feet deep. All that has to go down the throats of the American people next year; and there will be another canal full by that time.

A manufacturer in Belgium marked seven hundred five-franc pieces before paying his workmen. Two days after, the keepers of adjacent grog-shops at his request handed him all such pieces as had been given them. They returned more than three hundred, showing that each workman had spent more than half his wages at the public house in less than two days.

There are 179 parishes in Scotland, says ex-Bailie Lewis, in which not a drop of alcoholic liquor is made or sold. No one complained. Was prohibition not then practicable? The money got for the liquor produced at one manufactory in Edinburgh was upward of £1,500,000, while the number of men employed in it was only 200. Prohibition would result in employment to twelve thousand men at similar wages.

Whenever you see a drunken man it ought to remind you that every boy in the world and many girls are in danger. Some of the girls will become drunken and lewd; many of them will marry drinking men. When will this great curse be driven from our fair land? Sometimes I fear that, like ancient Babylon, we shall be destroyed by our public vices.—Mrs. M. C. Baker, in the Free Methodist.

BIBLE LESSON.

STUDIES IN THE OLD TESTAMENT.

LESSON VIII.—First Quarter, 1893.—February 19.

SUBJECT.—Rebuilding the Wall.—Nehemiah 4: 9-21.

GOLDEN TEXT.—We made our prayer unto our God, and set a watch against them.—Nehemiah 4: 9.

[Open the Bible and read the lesson.]

DAILY READINGS.—M.—Nehemiah 4: 7-14. T.—Nehemiah 4: 15-21. W.—Isa. 51: 9-16. T.—Psa. 33: 10-22. F.—Zech. 2: 1-5. S.—Matt. 7: 24-29. S.—Eph. 6: 10-18.

COMMENTS BY E. E. FLAGG.

1. Setting a watch.—v. 9. The difficulties of the work which Nehemiah had undertaken would alone have called for great faith and courage; but these difficulties were vastly augmented by having to work in constant fear of an attack, and hearing the taunts of the enemy on every side. Now it is exactly taunts like these which all who are engaged in any great undertaking, and especially in reform work, must hear, more or less. How the old anti-slavery leaders were taunted with their feebleness! "Will they make an end in a day?" asked the old slaveocracy. But many of them did live to see overthrown, in a single day, by one stroke of Lincoln's pen, that whole vile system of hoary iniquity. In the temperance reform, especially in its earlier stages, these are stock arguments, easily recognized by every veteran of the cause. But the liquor power has seen "the handwriting on the wall," and knows that its days are numbered. Its braggadocio talk amounts to nothing more than a boy's whistling in the dark to keep up his courage. They are making a desperate fight, for the same reason that the devil, who controls their business, is pictured in Revelation as "having great wrath because his time is short." The taunts of the lodge and its sympathizers against the Christian men and women who are trying to break down this refuge of lies, and flash the light of God's truth on the hidden works of darkness, remind us very much of the taunts of Sanballat and Tobiah. "Shall a small and feeble band of anti-secretists destroy this Gibraltar which has stood impregnable for centuries?" But we can well take new courage from this lesson. Nehemiah did two things, neither of which would have availed without the other. He combined prayer and works. Instead of answering back the enemy's railing, they made their prayer unto God and set a watch, day and night. It is of little use to pray and neglect to watch. A Christian should remember that he is a soldier and be always on guard.

2. Opposition and encouragement.—vs. 10-14. Nehemiah had to meet treachery within and without. A subtle trap was laid to get him to hold a conference with Sanballat, thus putting himself in the power of his bitter enemy. Two false prophets were then hired to persuade him to shut himself up in the temple in the hope that this showing of the white feather on the part of their leader would make the rest of the Jews desert the work. There was disaffection among themselves. "And Judah said, the strength of the bearer of burdens is decayed, and there is much rubbish; so that we are not able to build the wall." These were Jews who in some way had imbibed the heathen atmosphere, so that they only weakened the hands of the brave and loyal Nehemiah. When a Christian begins to breathe the atmosphere of the world he is sure to see nothing but difficulties in the way. A holy life he pronounces impossible. Earnest effort for the salvation of souls, or a brave fight against popular sin, appears to him Quixotic, useless. And so a worldly Christian can do more to discourage God's people than many sinners. A plan was then laid to surprise the Jews, by a sudden assault, and thus cause the work to cease. Of this they were repeatedly warned by Jews dwelling in the immediate neighborhood of Sanballat; but whether they were in league with him, or meant it as a friendly warning, is impossible to tell from the context. Nehemiah, with rare military skill, arranged the laborers into an armed force, each man with his family close beside; and then he exhorted them not to be afraid; "remember the Lord... great and terrible." A child defended by its father's arms forgets all its fears. The most trustful Christian is always the bravest Christian.

3. The rebuilding of the wall.—vs. 15-23. We have here a grand picture of the church militant. Each man wrought with one hand, and in the other held his weapon of war, ready to repel any sudden attack. The work of fighting evil must go hand in hand with the work of construction. Among other important suggestions we note (1), Every one had his sword girded by his side. So none should undertake the great work of building up Zion without the sword of the Spirit at his side, so as to be ready at a moment's notice to confute the skeptic or the profane reviler. (2) They worked in closest union, ready to go to each other's help and succor as soon as the trumpet sounded. The evil spirit of sectarianism and denominational rivalry must be cast out of the church before she can conquer the world for Christ. (3) They worked by families—another great element of strength. A whole family of working Christians carries with it a wonderful power. (4) Men and women labored side by side. Thus it was in the early apostolic church, and thus it should be now. But how many churches do we find where the women do all the work, while the men are worshipping at the altars of the lodge, or so immersed in the cares of business that they let their wives attend to these matters for them, as if religion was a thing that went by proxy! In fifty-two days the wall was finished and the enemy baffled. How soon Zion might be rebuilt, and her foes put to shame, if the church would rise as one man and go to work, making their prayer to God and setting a watch!

RELIGIOUS NEWS.

BAPTIST.

—Oregon reports nine associations and 106 churches, with a total membership of 6,431. The net gain for the year has been 106, or 18½ per cent. The losses about equal the gains by letter and experience, so that the gain of 18½ per cent is almost entirely by baptisms. These figures show that gain by immigration is next to nothing, and that there is a vigorous and aggressive spirit in the churches in pushing evangelistic work. Church property is valued at $320,625; $34,374 have been raised for current expenses, and $10,800 for benevolence. This showing is encouraging.

—In Georgia are 330,861 Baptists. The whites have 68 associations, 1,713 churches, 142,493 members, of whom 8,019 were baptized last year. Our colored brethren report 1,763 churches and 188,368 members. Figuring a little you will see that the Baptist membership is one in every five and a half of the population! Georgia white Baptists reported last year missionary contributions aggregating $60,000. Baptist church property in Georgia is valued at $1,295,800. There are one male college (Mercer University), four female colleges, four academies, or high schools. In these are ninety-three instructors, and 1,647 pupils. The total value of educational property, including endowment, is $788,350.

—Dr. A. T. Pierson, who has been supplying the pulpit at Spurgeon's tabernacle in London, has gone to Edinburgh, to fill the chair of special lecturer on missions. The course extends through February and March, after which he will return to fulfill his engagement at the tabernacle, reaching into June.

—The University of Chicago is again favored. Mr. Martin A. Ryerson offers $100,000 on condition that $400,000 additional be added by other givers before May 1. This raises the total of Mr. Ryerson's gift to $300,000.

—The Baptist Young People's Union was announced to hold its anniversary at Indianapolis, July 6, but as the Christian Endeavor convention is to be held at Montreal that week, the Young People's Union meeting will be held July 13-16. The conflict of dates was inadvertent, and as soon as discovered the change was made.

CHRISTIAN UNITY.

—Bishop Vincent, Chancellor of Chautauqua University, has invited Mr. Theo F. Seward, the originator of the Brotherhood of Christian Unity, to present the cause of the Brotherhood next summer, before the great Chautauqua Assembly. This fact is worthy of note as an indication of increasing interest in the subject of union among the children of God.

CONGREGATIONAL.

—The Congregationalists are quite disturbed over a protest from the New Old South, Boston, Dr. Gordon pastor, against the modus operandi of the American Board. This church gives some eight to ten thousand dollars a year to foreign missions. It gives its contribution this year to the same body, but with a protest, hoping, in a word, that the new theology will have a better chance in the future. The matter is causing general discussion by the denomination, the press and the people generally. The board will doubtless reply.

EVANGELISTIC.

—The president of the Cleveland union, says the Endeavor, has organized a "minute committee of ten," pledged to respond readily to any call made upon them. Very significantly, all the members are young ladies.

—Dr. Carroll, who had charge of the collection and compilation of religious statistics for the census, shows that the facts furnish reason for joy. While the population shows an increase of 24 per cent for the decade, the increase in membership in the different Christian churches stands at 42 per cent. Even yet the world has not outgrown Christianity. The kingdom of Christ is growing steadily.

—Rev. John McNeill, the Scotch evangelist to whom Mr. Moody entrusted the leadership of his work in Dublin when he left there, has made a fine impression on his Irish audiences, all denominations enthusiastically endorsing and co-operating with him. When it was announced that he was to take up Moody's work, the people knowing but little of him, feared that the interest would wane. But his first appearance removed this fear.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL.

—The sixth session of the National Deaconess conference will be held in Cincinnati Feb. 24-27.

—The Baltimore Methodist says: "With Bishop Foster inviting the colored people out of the white churches, and Dr. Buckley inviting them in, we Baltimore Methodists may well say, as did our colored brother Carroll in preachers' meeting recently, 'Lord, to whom shall we go?'"

—Our Young People of Pittsburg, Pa., a Protestant Methodist paper, prints the portrait of Dr. J. F. Berry, of the Epworth Herald, and labels it "Bishop J. H. Vincent, D. D., chancellor of the Chautauqua system."

—Rev. Frank Jackson of Zanesville, Ohio, declined to attend the funeral of one of his most prominent members, Jan. 12, who had requested to be buried from the meeting-house on Sunday by his lodge led by a band. He believes such funeral displays on Sunday to be wrong.

PRESBYTERIAN.

—The directors of Union Seminary quite recently filled two of the vacancies caused by resignation of those who disapproved of Prof. Briggs. The Rev. J. B. Shaw, of the West End Presbyterian church, and Lewis Lampman, of Newark. Both men are Briggsites. H. A. Noyes, M. D., also a sympathizer with liberalism, has been elected.

REFORMED CHURCH.

—The executive committee of Heidelberg University have secured the services of Dr. J. B. Shumaker as financial secretary.

ROMAN CATHOLIC.

—This church is gradually introducing congregational singing into its services. The most notable is the cathedral in New York, under the charge of the Paulist fathers. The members of the congregation have been taught to sing hymns and psalms in English at the vesper service, the Lenten exercises, festival days, and special occasions. The people have taken very kindly to the custom.

—At the special mission meetings held by Mr. Moody in the city of Dublin, during his recent visit, large crowds of Catholics swelled the audiences. In Belfast a priest was numbered among the converts. Perhaps the most remarkable feature of the case was, that the public press, although purely Roman Catholic, cordially welcomed Mr. Moody to Ireland, and some of the Dublin papers gave full reports of his Christian addresses.

—Advance sheets of the official Catholic directory for 1893 have been issued. The Catholic population is given as 8,806,095, to whom spiritual guidance is given by 14 archbishops, 75 bishops and 9,397 priests, of whom 6,954 are secular and 2,443 are regular priests. There are 8,477 churches, 3,485 stations and 1,763 chapels. The 1,845 students for the secular priesthood are educated in 36 seminaries. There are 127 colleges, 657 academies and 3,587 parochial schools; 728,209 children attend the parochial schools, 26,533 orphans are cared for in 245 orphan asylums, besides which there are 653 other charitable institutions.

SALVATION ARMY.

—Salvationist campaigns are being arranged for the continent. Commissioner Booth-Tucker through France, Belgium, Holland and Germany. The general to conduct a continental congress in Copenhagen during February. The leading officers of Sweden, Norway, Finland, Denmark, Germany and Holland will gather at this convenient centre. It is intended that the council shall extend over five days. Commissioner Booth-Tucker will probably conduct the Swedish anniversary immediately after the congress.

WESLEYAN METHODIST.

—Bro. A. C. Loveless, of Wheaton, Ill., makes an offer by which we are enabled to send the Wesleyan Methodist to five widows of Wesleyan Methodist preachers, and if these cannot be found who do not now take the paper, we may send it to other worthy sisters who are widows.—Wesleyan Methodist. Now won't some good anti-secrecy reformer enable the N. C. A. to send the Christian Cynosure to five or six widows of Antimasons, if there are any who do not now receive it? Or any other worthy sister?

—The official calendar of the Wesleyan Methodist church figures up the total membership of the Methodist churches of the world at 6,348,029. They are captained by 44,775 ministers. The bulk of them are in the United States—5,197,032, with 36,195 ministers. In Great Britain, the place of its birth, Methodism counts but little more than half a million adherents.

Two Stepping Stones

to consumption are ailments we often deem trivial—a cold and a cough. Consumption thus acquired is rightly termed "Consumption from neglect."

Scott's Emulsion

not only stops a cold but it is remarkably successful where the cough has become deep seated.

Scott's Emulsion is the richest of fat-foods yet the easiest fat-food to take. It arrests waste and builds up healthy flesh.

Prepared by Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All druggists.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

COUNTRY.

There are 3,687 hop plantations in the United States, 2,491 of them being in the State of New York. The increase for the year was 3,000 acres and 2,615 bales. In California the average yield was 8½ bales per acre as compared with 6½ bales the year before. In Washington and in New York there was a decrease. The Wisconsin output was 4,877 bales. The total crop of the country was 217,942 bales.

Mrs. Laura Francis, an aunt of Governor Francis, of Missouri, has established a branch of "Schweinfurth's Heaven" near Lexington, Ky. Mrs. Francis, together with her late husband, was expelled from the Christian church at Richmond, Ky., because of their belief in Schweinfurth.

A bill has been introduced in Congress, by Mr. Little (Democrat from New York), who is a member of the Raum investigating committee, to revise the pension list with a view toward purging it of all undeserving pensioners.

Mrs. James G. Blaine will soon leave Washington for some Southern resort. She will take the rest needed after the fatigue incident to her long, weary watch at the bedside of her husband.

On Monday the remains of the late James G. Blaine were buried, with simple but impressive ceremonies, in Oak Hill cemetery, Washington, beside his son, Walker Blaine.

The Pottstown (Pa.) Iron Company has failed; liabilities estimated at $2,025,000; it employed about 2,000 men.

The 300 or 400 Russian exiles whom the Baron Hirsch fund settled near Norwich, Conn., are having a pretty hard time of it as farmers. Their Yankee neighbors are charitably helping them out.

Distinguished New York churchmen mentioned as successors to Phillips Brooks are the Rev. Dr. Huntington, of Grace church, and the Rev. Dr. Satterlee, of Calvary. The latter was the candidate when Dr. Brooks was elected.

At the last meeting of the Evangelical Alliance, at St. Louis, Dr. Tyrrell, of the Central Christian church, made a plea in favor of remodeling the plan and methods of the society, so as to admit laymen to membership. He also advocated the discussion of the practical, burning questions of the hour instead of abstract topics, which heretofore have been the themes of the monthly meetings.

The annual report of Wells, Fargo & Co. of the precious metals mined in this country west of the Missouri river, also in Mexico and British Columbia, makes a healthy showing for last year. The latter country produced no silver, and only $272,192 of gold. Mexico during its last fiscal year, produced only $1,275,000 gold, but of silver $45,750,000. In the region of this country included in the report the figures stand, gold, $30,119,636; silver, $50,607,601. The total of copper amounted to $19,370,516, and of lead, $11,433,947, a total of $111,531,700.

Near Benson, in Woodford county, Ill., trichiniasis has invaded the households of Ottman Janson and J. Aden. Two fatalities have resulted, and the physicians in attendance pronounce the remaining cases fatal.

A bill has been introduced in the Illinois Legislature, making the offer and acceptance of a railroad pass by a legislator equivalent to bribery, punishable by removal, impeachment and fine.

The strike of about 1,100 boiler-makers at Dunkirk, N. Y., failed, most of the men returning to work.

About thirty lives were sacrificed in the Alton Junction (Ill.) oil explosion noticed last week.

Hans Anderson, a fourteen-year-old boy who murdered an old man, has been sentenced at Merrill, Wis., to the penitentiary for life.

For the past twenty-one years the average price for butter at Elgin, Ill., has been 28½ cents, and for cheese, 8½ cents. The total butter sold was 82,417,576 pounds, and cheese, 124,003,652; a total of 306,421,228 pounds; whose cash value was $55,928,536.93½. There were, during 1892, 300 factories represented.

Northwestern States suffered severely from wind and snow storms, blocking railroads, tearing down telegraph wires and causing much suffering.

The Seventh Day Adventist Ministers' Institute began a three-weeks' session at Battle Creek, Mich., last week. Several hundred ministers are present. They represent nearly every portion of America, South Africa, England, Australia, and the Scandinavian countries. This institute is preparatory to the thirtieth international conference, which commences Feb. 17 and continues until March 10, and which will be held in the tabernacle at Battle Creek.

(Continued on 16th page.)

SUBSCRIPTION LETTERS.

The following have made remittances of money to the Cynosure from Jan. 30 to Feb. 4.

H D Tatman, D L Amspoker, O Breed, L Wood, H G Hanson, A Merrill, Mrs L M Wylie, P Bacon, Mrs M B Park, J Bittinger, Rev S Wilder, Rev C R Hunt, A Lull, Mrs J A Rumsey, G W Rhine, A Eastman, A Warren, Rev A Kraft, J Comphor, T J Hawser, O A Chillon, Mrs G Brokaw, H D Jennings, P Guthrie, Miss L H Rublee.

To Prevent the Grip

Or any other similar epidemic, the blood and the whole system should be kept in healthy condition. Take Hood's Sarsaparilla to give strength, purify the blood and prevent disease.

Hoods Pills cure liver ills.

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO.

Wheat—Spring No. 2.....	74½
Winter No. 2.....	74½
Corn—No. 2.....	44	@ 44½
Oats—No. 2.....	31½	@ 34½
Rye—No. 2.....	52½	@ 54
Bran per ton.....	13 25	@ 15
Hay—Timothy.....	9 50	@ 11 50
Butter, medium to best....	17	@ 28
Cheese.....	03	@ 11½
Beans.....	1 80	@ 2 00
Eggs.....	32	@ 32½
Seeds—Timothy, $ 100 lbs. 4 12	@ 4 86
Flax.....	1 16	@ 1 17½
Broom corn.....	02	@ 05½
Potatoes, per bu.....	58	@ 75
Hides—Green to dry flint..	03½	@ 06½
Lumber—Common.....	10 00	@ 13 00
Wool (washed).....	15	@ 32½
Cattle—Choice to extra....	5 50	@ 6 15
Common to good.....	4 10	@ 4 85
Hogs.....	5 25	@ 8 20
Sheep.....	4 15	@ 5 80

NEW YORK.

Wheat.....	80½	@ 82
Corn.....	51½	@ 55
Oats.....	37½	@ 45½
Eggs.....	40	@ 41
Butter.....	23	@ 30
Wool.....	15	@ 30

KANSAS CITY.

Cattle.....	1 50	@ 5 50
Hogs.....	6 00	@ 8 00
Sheep.....		@ 4 00

All cannot possess a

$10,000 Souvenir

(This sum was paid for the first World's Fair Souvenir Coin minted.)

in the shape of a coin, but many can have fac-similes of this valuable work of art—only special coin ever issued by the U. S. Government—for $1 each.

United States Government

World's Fair Souvenir Coins—

The Official Souvenir of the Great Exposition—

5,000,000 of which were donated to the World's Columbian Exposition by the Government, are being rapidly taken by an enthusiastically patriotic people.

As there early promised to be a demand for these Souvenirs that would render them very valuable in the hands of speculators, the Exposition Authorities decided to place the price at

$1.00 for Each Coin

and sell them direct to the people, thus realizing $5,000,000, and using the additional money for the further development of the Fair.

Considering the fact that there were but 5,000,000 of these coins to be distributed among 65,000,000 people, in this country alone (to say nothing of the foreign demand,) and that many have already been taken, those wishing to purchase these mementoes of our Country's Discovery and of the grandest Exposition ever held, should secure as many as they desire at once.

For Sale Everywhere

and Banks. If not for sale in your town, send $1.00 each for not less than five coins, by Post-office or Express Money-order, Registered Letter or Bank Draft, with instructions how to send them to you, all charges prepaid, to Treasurer World's Columbian Exposition, Chicago, Ill.

A rapid growing, hardy climber, attaining a height of over forty feet. Flowers curious pipe shape, three or four inches long, yellowish-green brown. Leaves ten inches across.

A FLORAL CURIOSITY.

Price per plant 25 cents; three plants 60 cents, and, where requested, with each order will be given FREE a copy of

THE POETS' NUMBER

Vick's Floral Guide, 1893.

This year we have combined a most novel and charming feature in the way of hundreds of beautiful and appropriate poetical quotations from the best authors, making THE POETS' NUMBER OF VICK'S FLORAL GUIDE a source of interest and pleasure the whole year. The practical part contains Colored Plates of Alpine Aster, Begonia, Dahlias, Dutchman's Pipe, Clematis, Pansies, Carnas, Corn and Potatoes, hundreds of Engravings: descriptions of the sweetest and most prolific Pea—The Charmer, The Golden Nugget Corn, which was such a favorite last summer, new Rosas, new Chrysanthemums and scores of other grand and good things. Names and prices of everything one could desire in way of Flowers, Vegetables, Plants, Bulbs, etc.

Sent for only 10 cents, which can be deducted from the first order. East Ave., Rochester, N. Y.

JAMES VICK'S SONS,

LE CARON, THE SPY.

A STARTLING REVELATION.

More enticing than a romance, filled with the strongest evidences of the power and evil of sworn secret societies, and plainly revealing the danger to any government growing out of political conspiracies, is the

"Autobiography of Henry LeCaron, the Spy."

who was for years a Cian-na-Gael Center, a Fenian Commander, and a Land-League Orator, but always a British Detective. The book covers his twenty-five years' experiences in this secret service, and contains 205 pages.

Price, in paper covers, 50 cents.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
Wm. I. PHILLIPS, Treasurer,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

THE

Folly, Expense & Danger

OF

SECRET SOCIETIES.

BY

CHARLES A. BLANCHARD.

(President Wheaton College.)

5 Cts per Copy; $3 per Hundred.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

College Secret Societies. Their customs, character and the efforts for their suppression. By H. L. Kellogg. Containing the opinions of many prominent college presidents and others, and a full account of the murder of Mortimer Leggett. 25cts

Mrs. William Lohr

Of Freeport, Ill., began to fail rapidly, lost all appetite and got into a serious condition from Dyspepsia. She could not eat vegetables or meat, and even toast distressed her. Had to give up housework. In a week after taking

Hood's Sarsaparilla

She felt a little better. Could keep more food on her stomach and grew stronger. She took 3 bottles, has a good appetite, gained 22 lbs., does her work easily, is now in perfect health.

HOOD'S PILLS are the best after-dinner pills. They assist digestion and cure headache.

HOME AND HEALTH.

PLEASE REMEMBER.

A mixture of cream and ink is an excellent thing to rub on ladies' fine kid boots.

Paraffine will soften leather which has been hardened by water and restore its suppleness.

To keep out water heat shoe soles slightly, then rub them with copal varnish and let them dry. Repeat this operation three times, and you can go into the wet with impunity.

"I am shocked to hear you use such language. It's time your mother took you in hand." "She has. She told me I must stop 'sociating with your boy, 'cause he was making me as bad as hisself."

To keep your shoes from creaking, rub the soles with linseed oil. You may do this more thoroughly by letting the soles rest on a dish containing a little of the oil, which will be absorbed by the leather, and, in addition to stopping the creaking, will make the shoes impermeable to snow and water.

"What have I done to day?" the tired mother asks. "Nothing but take care of baby, plan the meals and 'pick up.' My life is wasted on trifles." The progress of the world depends on the devotion of good women to just such "trifles." She, who with patient mother-love gently prepares a human soul for life's responsibilities, does valiant service for both God and man.—Mother's Magazine.

As soon as you come in from bad weather take off your shoes and fill them with dry oats, which will quickly absorb all the moisture and prevent the leather from losing its shape. Be particularly careful not to put your shoes near the fire. The next day take out the oats, which may be dried and made to serve again. If you do not like the idea of using oats stuff your shoes with fine paper, which answers the same purpose.

LUNCHEONS FOR SCHOOL CHILDREN.

The best medical authorities attribute many of the cases of dyspepsia, so common in children, to the indigestible nature of the luncheons taken to school. Too much cannot be said against the pernicious habit of giving children money to buy their luncheons at a store, where they invariably choose candy, lemons, pickles, or stale cake, pre-eminently bad for their digestion. A wicker basket, being porous, is the best receptacle, says the Albany Cultivator. Tin should never be used. Never wrap the food in paper, either brown or newspaper; the waxed confectioner's paper may be used, or the common Japanese napkins. Milk should be given as a drink, as well as a food. It may be carried in an ordinary glass bottle. With this, a few graham crackers and dates will suffice. Another day the lunch may consist of brown bread and butter, milk, and an apple or orange. Baked apples or pears may be safely carried in a half-pint preserve jar. Children do not require meat more than once a day, and it should then be given them hot, juicy and rare.

WHAT IS A MODEL WIFE?

A model wife is the woman in whom the heart of her husband doth safely trust.

She is the woman who looks after his household, and makes her hospitality a delight to him, and not a burden.

Who has learned that a soft answer will turn away wrath.

Who keeps her sweetest smiles and most loving words for her husband.

Who is his confidant in sorrow or in joy, and who does not feel the necessity of explaining her private affairs to the neighborhood.

Who respects the rights of her husband and children, and in return has due regard paid to her.

Who knows that the strongest argument is her womanliness and so she cultivates it.

Who is sympathetic in joy, or in grief, and who finds work for her hands to do.

Who makes friends and knows how to keep them.

Who is not made bitter by trouble, but who strengthens and sweetens under it.

Who tries to conceal the faults of her husband rather than blazon them forth to an uninterested public.

The woman whose life-book has love written on every page.

Who makes a home for a man—a home in a house and in a heart. A home that he is sure of, a home that is full of love, presided over by one whose price is above rubies.

She is the model wife.—Ladies' Home Journal.

You cannot deny facts, and it is a fact that Salvation Oil is the greatest pain-cure. 25 cts.

Hall's Hair Renewer renders the hair lustrous and silken, gives it an even color, and enables women to put it up in a great variety of styles.

BEECHAM'S PILLS sell well because they cure.

The St. Louis Sermon

Are Secret Societies a Blessing or a Curse?

An Address by Rev. B. Carradine D. D., Pastor of the Centenary M. E. Church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891.

W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's too."

A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover. Sent postpaid 25 copies $1.00. Single copy 5 cents.

Address - - W. I. PHILLIPS, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Disloyal SECRET OATHS

ADDRESS OF

JOSEPH COOK,
OF BOSTON,

AT THE

Conference of Christians CHICAGO, 1890.

No better document of its size for general distribution has been printed. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference.

Single Copies 5 cents, or 12 copies for 50 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N, 221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

Do you ever wash your hair brush? This is the best way:—Put one teaspoonful of Pearl-line into a basin of warm water; wash the brush thoroughly in it; rinse in clean water, and set it aside, bristles down, to dry. This is only one—a small one—of the numberless uses to which you can put Pearl-line. Once you have it in the house, you will find something new for it to do, every day. It does your washing and cleaning better than soap. Try it on anything for which you've been using soap, and see.

Beware Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you, "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearl-line." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearl-line, do the honest thing—send it back. 337 JAMES PYLE, New York.

The Blue Bell.

The Mountain Daisy.

Daily Text books for a year. Dainty little souvenirs, only 1½ inches square, elegantly and neatly bound in leather, with silk marker, gilt edges, round corners, each net 25
Illuminated paper covers, each 10

Birthday Memorial Text-Book. An Autograph Text-book. Text for each day and space for autographs. 32mo., Cloth..... 25

Daily Comfort in Four Fold Links.

The most popular Wall Roll published, and deservedly so. Every page is an effective sermon. The striking character and particular value of this new Wall Roll is in the remarkable arrangement of the Scripture Texts. A constant monitor in the Christian household. A silent teacher for the school. A comforting messenger for the sick-room, as well as being suitable for the office, the store or the shop.

Printed in beautiful large, clear letters, easily discernible at a distance of 10 to 15 feet. Mounted on rollers, with cord, to hang up in usual style. 31 pages, size 14x22in. 75

The Secret of Success; or

Finger Posts on the Highway of Life, by John T. Dale; introduction by Hon. John V. Farwell. 416 pages, 12mo., full cloth.....$1.50
A book for the aspiring. Written in a fascinating style and full of incidents which hold the interest of the reader spell-bound.

"It may be true, as has been said, that 'books are sold, not bought'; but this, at any rate, is a book which, if brought to one's attention, he will wish to own. Such a book in every intelligent family in the land—how much (in showing so clearly, so wisely, so persuasively the secret of success,) it might do toward helping to solve the countless aching, burning questions of the time."—The Advance.

Prof. Henry Drummond's Booklets.

The Perfected Life. (The greatest need of the world.) Bound in chaste style, vellum paper..... 20

Love the Supreme Gift. (The greatest thing in the world.) Uniform with Perfected Life. 20

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Five Rituals Bound Together. "Odd-fellowship Illustrated" (old work). "Knights of Pythias Illustrated," "Good Templars Illustrated," "Exposition of the Grange," and "Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic" are sold bound together in a cloth for $1.00.

$1100 FOR 4 TOMATOES!

This Wonderful "EARLIEST TOMATO IN THE WORLD" is a perfect success. It has proved the earliest and best and bears abundantly of large bright red tomatoes, very smooth, of excellent quality and free from rot. My plants set in garden last of May produced full size ripetomatoes July 2nd. I want a great record for it in 1893, and will pay $500 cash to a person growing a ripe tomato in 75 days from day seed is sown, also $400 to the person growing a ripe tomato in least number of days from day seed is sown. $125 for next and $75 for next. Beware of imitations. I own all the seed. Never offered before. It is all head and sure to head, very uniform, of large size, firm and fine in texture, excellent quality and a good keeper. I will pay $100 for heaviest head grown from my seed in 1893, and $50 for next heaviest. Single heads have weighed over 60 pounds.

SURE HEAD CABBAGE is a large and single specimen under sworn testimony have weighed over 5 lbs. They are of mild and delicate flavor, grow rapidly, ripen early, flesh white and handsome. I will pay $100 for heaviest onion grown from my seed in 1893, and $50 for next heaviest.

GIANT SILVER QUEEN ONION is a large and single specimen under sworn testimony have weighed over 5 lbs. They are of mild and delicate flavor, grow rapidly, ripen early, flesh white and handsome. I will pay $100 for heaviest onion grown from my seed in 1893, and $50 for next heaviest.

ALICE PANSY has created a sensation everywhere. They grow larger and contain the greatest number of colors (many never seen before in pansies) of any pansy ever offered. I offer $500 to a person growing a Blossom measuring 4½ in. in diameter, and $300 for largest blossom grown, $100 for second, $50 for third, $50 for fourth, $50 for fifth and $50 for sixth. Full particulars of all prizes in catalogue.

MY CATALOGUE is full of bargains. $900 is offered persons sending me largest number of customers, and $500 for largest club orders. $1.00 customers get 50 cents extra FREE.

MY OFFER I will send a packet each Tomato in the World. Sure Head Cabbage, Giant Silver Queen Onion, Alice Pansy and Bargain Catalogue, for only 25 cents. Every person sending silver 1 N. or M.O. for above collection will receive Free a packet Mammoth Prize Tomato, grows 14 ft. high, and I offer $500 for a 4 lb. tomato grown from this seed. If two persons send two collections together each will receive Free a packet Wonder of the World Beans, stalks grow large as broom handle and pods are 1 in. long. It is a perfect wonder. F. B. MILLS, Rose Hill, N. Y.

The New World of Central Africa.

By Mrs. H. Grattan Guinness, with a history of the first Christian mission on the Congo. 12mo., 530 pages with maps, portraits and numerous illustrations. $2.00
"A conscientious piece of work, and gives a very clear account of what has been done by the Protestant missions to evangelize the barbarous races of Central Africa. He who wants to know what missionary effort means in these days may well learn from this volume." The reader who goes carefully through will have a good bird's eye view of recent events in Africa, with all the results of modern travel. The work contains solid information of use to all who are interested in the future of this wonderful country. The many illustrations throw light upon savage customs and costumes."—Graphic.

the Far East.

Letters from China by Geraldine Guinness, edited by her sister, with introduction by Rev. J. Hanson Taylor. Very fully illustrated. Quarto cloth,$1.50

This book was scarcely written—it was lived; for the breath of life is in it from cover to cover. We have never read so wonderful an account of successful missionary effort.—Presbyterian

We easily understand how this edition is the fifteenth thousand. It is a very remarkable book.—The Golden Rule.

Frances Ridley Havergall's Poems.

Author's edition complete. The only unabridged authorized edition published in America. 1. 12mo., 880 pages, cloth, beveled.....2.00
2. Beveled boards, full gilt.....2.50
3. Half white vellum, gilt top, uncut edges.....2.50
4. French morocco padded, roll red under gold edges.....4.00
5. Persian calf, padded and embossed, gilt roll and r. g.5.00
6. Crushed levant, cl. gant.....6.00

7. Full German calf, padded, elegant, gilt, rd. cors.....7.50
Miss Havergall stands without peer in the English language in the department of religious poetry.

"The book in paper and binding is all that could be desired."—Publishers' Weekly.

Small Books by Miss Havergall. Bound in elegant illuminated board covers. Kept for the Master's Use. 20

My King's Daily Thoughts for the King's Children..... 20

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASS'N, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Rituals and Secrets Illustrated. Composed of "Temple of Honor Illustrated," "Adoptive Masonry Illustrated," "United Sons of Industry Illustrated," and "Secret Societies Illustrated." $1.00 each.

FARM NOTES.

THE VICE OF LAZINESS.

A gentleman one day asked me what I thought was the most dangerous vice on the poultry farm, to which I replied, "Laziness." He smiled and seemed to think I was joking, but I assured him I was in dead earnest, and I explained how this vice was dangerous to both man and fowl. This may sound queer, yet I have never known it to fail. A busy, energetic man will see that his fowls are never allowed to stand around idle, that they are continually on the move, and never tiring of taking good exercise. I can tell the nature of the man in charge the moment I get on his place. The fowls will be as busy as bees, the hens will be singing their tuneful lay, and the very appearance of the flock will show indisputable signs of health. But it does not end here; the premises will be clean; you won't find the manure piled up in the roosting pens, and that sickening stench so common in dirty quarters will be noted for its absence. That is the busy man's place, every inch of it. How about the lazy man? Well, you cannot mistake him. You will find everything upside down; you will see dingy, dirty quarters, and you will see regular mounds of manure right under the roosts of the fowls. Think of the uncomfortable nights those fowls must spend with such a stench coming up to them. Perhaps fowls are not sensitive, perhaps they are, but an energetic, wide-awake man thinks they are. He will see that such things do not exist. And the fowls; they are enough to disgust one with the business! There they stand in the corners on one leg, with their bodies all drawn in. You cannot tell if they are sick or well; certainly not in the best of health, for well fowls do not "shrug their shoulders" when there is a little work to do.

What excuse has a man to offer for all this negligence? you ask. They will tell you that they are over-run with work and cannot possibly attend to the hens. I always advise a man who is "too busy to give proper attention" to get out of work at once. Poultry will not pay when neglected, and it is this negligence that is bringing about all the failures. The work wants wide-awake men, just as any mercantile branch of trade; it will not do to undertake the industry in any other way. Shiftlessness is rewarded by failure, while enterprise is met by success. The man who begins a farm in size with his experience, and enlarges as his experience grows, is the man who has his wits at work, who never gets beyond his ability, and the man who is making money. It takes "all kinds of people to make a world," but there is but one class that will succeed with poultry, and they are live men. Market poultry is a branch that gives good returns to the right class, and I always welcome the new-comer when I know he is constructed from the right material.—M. K. Boyer, in Germantown Telegraph.

MILK POWDER.

The recent invention of a German agriculturist is attracting attention as a convenient substitute for condensed milk. He claims to have solved the problem of preserving milk in a solid state for an indefinite period. His milk powder, specimens of which have been exhibited at agricultural exhibitions in Germany, is prepared from skim milk, and it is said to contain about thirty per cent of albuminous matter, or about seven per cent more than meat of good quality. The powder is easy soluble in four or five parts of hot water, and can be used with great ease for the preparation of cocoa and other beverages, or incorporated with potato flour for confectionery purposes and the like. In case the invention turns out to be all that is claimed for it, this will create an increased demand for milk and inaugurate a new industry that can not but prove advantageous to the farmer.—American Dairyman.

THE STORAGE OF APPLES.

A room with a good draught of air through it, and with shelves all round the walls, made of laths of wood two or three inches apart, or perforated zinc nailed on a framework of wood, is best

THE BEST

Remedy for colds, coughs, and the common disorders of the throat and lungs, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is universally recommended by the profession. It breaks up the phlegm, soothes inflammation, allays painful symptoms, and induces repose. In bronchitis and pneumonia, it affords speedy relief, and is unrivaled as a prompt and effective in croup, sore throat, and the sudden pulmonary diseases to which young children are so liable.

Emergency Medicine

"Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has had a wonderful effect in curing my brother's children of a severe and dangerous cold. It was truly astonishing how speedily they found relief, and were cured, after taking this preparation."—Miss Annette N. Moen, Fountain, Minn.

AYER'S
Cherry Pectoral

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.
Prompt to act, sure to cure

THE IMAGE OF THE BEAST

A Secret Empire;

Or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy.

By Rev. Richard Horton.

Third Edition. 200 pages. Cloth.

Price, 60 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
221 W Madison St Chicago

AMERICAN HANDBOOK

AND

CITIZEN MANUAL.

BY

MANLOVE N. BUTLER.

CONTENTS:—Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement; Real Prohibition; Poor Man's Bible, and All-Around Reformers. Over 200 pages

Paper, single copy 40c.; per doz. 35c.

CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

for the storage of apples. Do not let them touch each other, and if they have air all round them, they will be in good condition when other fruit is rotten. Of course they must have been carefully picked by hand from the tree, the bruised ones being used first. Some varieties will keep three or four months longer than others, and these should be carefully looked after. By looking over the apples once a week, and taking away any that show symptoms of decay, the winter stock of fruit will amply repay care and attention.

THE POTOMATO.

"Potomato" is the name given to a curious manufactured vegetable which owes its origin to Dr. B. C. Culner, of Atchison, Kan. For more than twenty years the doctor has been experimenting with a view of crossing the potato and tomato vines. It is claimed that this has at last been accomplished and that a species of vine has thus been literally manufactured, and that it will produce both potatoes and tomatoes, both of which grow in their natural elements.—St. Louis Republican.

Disagreeable sensations resulting from cough vanish before Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

TOBACCO USERS SMILE SOME TIMES

when told how tobacco hurts them; sometimes they don't, because shattered nerves, weak eyes, chronic catarrh, lost manhood, tell the story. If you are a tobacco user, want to quit, post yourself about NO-TO-BAC, the wonderful, harmless, guaranteed tobacco-habit cure, by sending for Book titled: "Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke your Life Away," mailed free. Druggists sell NO-TO-BAC—Ad. THE STERLING REMEDY CO.

Box 655, Indiana Mineral Springs, Ind.

STANDARD WORKS

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES.

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Association.

221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

TERMS:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order as a guaranty that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums. A liberal discount to dealers.

ON FREEMASONRY.

Freemasonry Illustrated. A complete exposition of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter. Profusely illustrated. Complete work of 640 pages, in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 75 cents. First three degrees (376 pages), in cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Knight Templarism Illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the Council and Commandery. A book of 341 pages. In cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.

Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated. The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all the Masonic Rites, and are fully and accurately given in "Freemasonry Illustrated." Vol. I. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3rd to 18th inclusive. Vol. II. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 19th to 33rd inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive. Price per volume, paper cover, 50 cents each. In cloth, $1.00 each.

Hand-Book of Freemasonry. By E. Ronayne, Past Master of Keystone Lodge No. 639, Chicago. Gives the complete standard ritual of the first three degrees of Freemasonry. New edition, 274 pages. Bound flexible cloth covers, 50 cents.

Freemasonry Exposed. By Capt. William Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book republished. 25 cents each.

Adoptive Masonry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the five degrees of Female Freemasonry, by Thomas Lowe. 20 cents each.

Light on Freemasonry. By Elder D. Bernard. In cloth, $1.50 each. Paper, 75 cents each.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Baal Worship Identical. explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the lodge. Bound in fine cloth, 420 pages, 75 cents.

Mah-Hah-Bone; comprises the Hand Book, Master's Carpet and Freemasonry at a glance. Bound in one volume. In cloth, 589 pages, $1.00.

History of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. As prepared by seven committees of citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan. 25 cents each.

Ex-President John Quincy Adams' Letters on the Nature of Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties. Price, cloth, $1.00. Paper, 35 cents.

Hon. Thurlow Weed on the Morgan Abduction. This is the legally attested statement of this eminent Christian journalist and statesman concerning the unlawful seizure and confinement of Capt. Morgan in Canandaigua jail, his removal to Fort Niagara and subsequent drowning in Lake Ontario. 5 cents each.

The Broken Seal; or Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. By Samuel D. Greene. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry, as proved in court in the New Berlin trials. The New Berlin trials began in the attempt of Freemasons to prevent public initiations by seceding Masons. These trials were held at New Berlin, Chenango Co., N. Y., April 13 and 14, 1831, and General Augustus C. Welsh, sheriff of the county, and other adorning Freemasons swore to the truthful revelation of the oaths and penalties. 10 cents each.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy. Address of Pres. J. Blanchard. This is a most convincing argument against the lodge. 5 cents each.

Grand Lodge Masonry. Its relation to civil government and the Christian religion. By Pres. J. Blanchard. The un-Christian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is proved from the highest Masonic authorities. 5 cents each.

General Washington Opposed to Secret Societies. This is a re-publication of Governor Joseph Ritner's "Vindication of General Washington from the Stigma of Adherence to Secret Societies," communicated to the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania, March 8, 1837, at their special request. To this is added the fact that three high Masons were the only persons who opposed a vote of thanks to Washington on his retirement to private life—undoubtedly because they considered him a seceding Freemason. 10cts each.

Morgan's Exposition, Abduction AND MURDER, AND OATHS OF 33 DEGREES. Composed of "Freemasonry Exposed," by Capt. Wm. Morgan; "History of the Abduction and Murder of Morgan;" "Valance's Confession of the Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "Bernard's Reminiscences of Morgan Times," and "Oaths and Penalties of 33 Degrees." 300 pages; cloth, $1.00.

Finney on Masonry. The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry. By Pres. Charles G. Finney, of Oberlin College. President Finney was a "bright Mason," but left the lodge when he became a Christian. This book has opened the eyes of multitudes. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper cover, 35 cents.

Narratives and Arguments, showing the conflict of secret societies with the Constitution and law of the Union and of the States. By Francis Semple. The fact that secret societies interfere with the execution and pervert the administration of law is here clearly proved. 15cts each.

Temple of Honor Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of "The Templars of Honor and Temperance," commonly called the Temple of Honor. By a Templar of Fidelity and Past Worthy Chief Templar. 25cts each.

The Anti-mason's Scrap-Book, consisting of 53 "Cynosure" tracts. In this book are the views of more than a score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of secret societies. Postpaid. 25 cts.

Reminiscences of Morgan Times. By Elder David Bernard. This is a thrilling narrative of the incidents connected with Bernard's Revelation of Freemasonry. 10 cents each.

Secrecy vs. the Family, State and Church. By Rev. M. S. Dury. The antagonism of organized secrecy to the welfare of the family, state and church, is clearly shown. 10cts each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. James Williams, Presiding Elder of Dakota District Northwestern Iowa Conference M. E. Church—a seceding Master Mason. 10 cents each.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 DEGREES OF FREEMASONRY. To get these thirty-three degrees of Masonic bondage, the candidate takes half-a-million horrible oaths. 15 cents each.

Pres. H. H. George on Secret Societies. A powerful address, showing clearly the duty of Christian churches to dis-fellow-ship secret societies. 10cts each.

Thirteen Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. W. P. McNary, pastor United Presbyterian church. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Secretism. By Rev. H. Theo. Cross, pastor Congregational church Hamilton, N. Y. This is a very clear arraignment of the objections to all secret societies, and to Masonry especially, that are apparent to all. 5cts each.

Knights of Pythias Illustrated. By a Past Chancellor. A full illustrated exposition of the three ranks of the order, with the addition of the "Amended, Perfected and Amplified Third Rank." 25cts each.

Sermon on Secret Societies. By Rev. Daniel Dow, Woodstock, Conn. The special object of his sermon is to show the right and duty of Christians to examine into the character of secret societies, no matter what object such societies profess to have. 5cts each.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER Absolutely Pure.

A cream of tartar baking Powder. Highest of all in leavening strength.—Latest United States Government Food Report.
ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 106 Wall St., N. Y.

NEWS OF THE WEEK (Continued from 15th page).

The developments of the Panama scandal grow more and more astounding. It is now said that nearly two and a half millions have been expended as corruption money in our own country.

During 1892 the product of the cheese and butter factories at Elgin, Ill., was: Butter, 30,496,284 pounds; cheese, 7,115,735 pounds. Receipts: Butter, $7,725,725 28; cheese, $589,560.94.

In the United States Court at Little Rock, Ark., James S. Fisher, a colored man, was awarded $4,750 damages, Fisher was a convict and leased to Cook & Reinman, contractors. He was unmercifully whipped by agents of the contractors, whom he sued after being liberated from prison.

The final figures on the grain crop of 1892, as compiled by U. S. Statistician Dodge, are as follows: Wheat: Total acres, 38,554,430; bushels, 575,949,000; value, $322,111,881. Corn: acres, 70,626,158; bushels, 1,628,464,000; value, $642,246.630. Oats: acres, 27,063,835; bushels, 661,035,000; value, $209,253,611. No figures are given on wheat for Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, Florida, and Louisiana; on corn for Nevada; on oats for Arizona and Nevada.

In about three months Dr. Nansen, the Arctic adventurer, is to start in search of the North Pole. The ship which is to carry him on that perilous voyage was launched a short time ago. The craft is not large, but is made of strong material and is intended to go on the ice, as well as in the water. The explorer is confident he will accomplish his aim.

A large number of colored people lately arrived at Denison, Tex., from Oklahoma. They were destitute and starved out. They say that Oklahoma is no place for colored people who have no money to make a crop, and that the best lands have been taken by the white people.

The convention of the National Live Stock Association at Omaha, Neb., Friday, was attended by twenty-five delegates from Chicago, three from Sioux City, ten from St. Louis, eleven from South Omaha, eighteen from Kansas City, and three from Peoria. Reports of officers gave a good account of the association's affairs. The election for the ensuing year resulted as follows: President, W. H. Thompson, Jr., Chicago; Secretary, C. M. Baker, Chicago; Treasurer, L. B. Doud, Chicago.

FOREIGN.

A serious famine prevails in Finland, and advices from several sources state that a large proportion of the inhabitants of that country are perilously near starvation. Two hundred thousand persons of a total population of 2,000,000 are entirely destitute, and before the winter ends it is expected that one-fourth of the whole number of inhabitants will be in a similar sad plight. Last summer the potato and rye crops were either destroyed or seriously damaged by constant night frosts in July, August and September. Many districts known to be in great distress are now isolated by snow and ice, and in others the inhabitants are existing on bread composed largely or wholly of birch bark. The Finnish Senate has voted several million marks for the relief of the sufferers.

A dispatch from the British minister to Egypt states that the condition of affairs in Egypt may compel the landing of all the British troops who have been ordered to that country.

London advices report that a receiving order in bankruptcy has been issued against James, the son of Jabez Spencer Balfour, the fugitive ex-member of Parliament for Burnley, who is wanted by the authorities in connection with the Liberator Building Society frauds.

The Banco de Romay la Plata at Buenos Ayres has suspended payment in consequence of the losses sustained in gold speculation by the manager of the concern. These losses amount to $1,000,000.

New plans have been made for the projected bridge across the English Channel, and the promoters will apply to Parliament this session for powers to go ahead with its construction. The engineers are Sir. John Fowler and Sir Benjamin Baker. The length of the bridge has been reduced about three miles, and the number of piers have been from 121 to 72. The cantilever system is proposed. The greatest span will be 1,640 feet. The masonry piers will be 147 feet long and 66 feet broad. The cost is estimated at £32,750,000.

Have You Catarrh?

Send 4c. for sample of my C Cure. Or Asthma? Send 4c. for my A Relief. "Piles"? Send 10c. for my P Cure. "Constipation"? Send 10c. for my C Cure. I do not puff these articles I simply invite you to test and judge for yourself, confident that you will want more.

H. G. COLMAN, Chemist, KALAMAZOO, MICH.
Mention this paper.

IF YOU WANT WORK

that is pleasant and profitable, send us your address immediately. We teach men and women how to earn from $5 per day to $3,000 per year without having had previous experience, and furnish the employment at which they can make that amount. Capital unnecessary. A trial will cost you nothing. Write to-day and address,
E. C. ALLEN & CO.,
Box 1001. Augusta, Me.

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.

EPPS'S COCOA BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure food and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.
Made simply with hot water or milk. Sold only in half-pound tins, by Grocers, labelled thus:
JAMES EPPS & Co., Homoeopathic Chemists
London, England.

JONATHAN BLANCHARD'S

SERMONS AND ADDRESSES.

Select discourses of the late editor of the Cynosure and leader in our reform. Lectures, sermons and speeches given from 1834 to 1892 in leading cities of the United States, discussing topics of

LIVING REFORM.

Secret Societies,
The Sabbath,
National Reform,
Christian Education,
Christian Socialism,
The Bible, Etc., Etc.

A BOOK EVERYBODY SHOULD READ

12mo. Fine Photogravure Portrait.

Price, 75 Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

BEATTY Pianos, Organs, $33 up. Want Agents? Call'g FREE. Dan'l F. Beatty, Washington, N. J.

"WORTH A GUINEA A BOX."

BEECHAM'S PILLS

(Tasteless—Effectual.)

For Sick-Headache, Impaired Digestion, Liver Disorders and Female Ailments.

Renowned all over the World.

Covered with a Tasteless & Soluble Coating.

Ask for Beecham's and take no others. Made at St. Helens, England. Sold by druggists and dealers. Price 25 cents a box. New York Depot, 365 Canal St.

WE SEND FREE

with this beautiful Organ an Instruction Book and a handsome, upholstered stool! The organ has 11 stops, 5 octaves, and is made of Solid Walnut. Warranted by us for 15 years. We only charge $4.50 for this beautiful instrument. Send to-day for FREE illustrated catalogue. OXFORD MFG. CO Chicago.

WHEATON COLLEGE,

WHEATON, ILL.

A School for Men and Women.

SPRING TERM BEGINS APRIL 4th, 1893.

Full College Courses, Preparatory Courses, Stenography, Typewriting, Vocal Music and Blackboard Drawing, without extra charge.

CHAS. A. BLANCHARD, Pres.

BOSTON CRYSTAL GELATINE.

Lady agents wanted everywhere to sell above Gelatine. A good remuneration can be made. For particulars address Crystal Gelatine Co., 216 Lake St., Chicago.

DO YOU WANT

To receive, read, distribute and otherwise aid in the circulation of a large number of Holiness and Reform papers and magazines? If so, send me a SILVER dime, and your name and address will be printed on the Holiness and Reform Mail Exchange List, which is sent to all publishers of holiness and reform literature, who will mail you sample papers and magazines. Write name and address PLAINLY. Address, J. H. PADGETT, Printer, Ennis, Texas.

MY EXPERIENCES

WITH

SECRET SOCIETIES.

BY A TRAVELER.

With a Key to Masonry Illustrated

—O—

A new edition, greatly enlarged, has been issued, embracing chapters on the Language of Numbers, Secret Empires, and Good Men, containing more experiences, and affording a deeper insight into the Hidden Language and Workings of Secret Clans, and of the counterfeit pretences of good men, than ever before published. The Key is an exposition, explanation and verification of modern Baalism, with which all should be thoroughly acquainted. The price of the new edition is

Fifteen Cents,

but copies of the first edition will be forwarded for Ten Cents.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

$2 FOR ONLY 50 cts.

The Home Magazine

FOR ONE YEAR AND (Edited by Mrs. JOHN A. LOGAN)

Five Beautiful Booklets

EACH CONTAINING A HYMN ARTISTICALLY ILLUSTRATED FOR Only FIFTY Cts.

THE HOME MAGAZINE is devoted to household topics; full of interesting stories by the best writers of fiction; illustrated by the cleverest artists. Especial attention will be given to such organizations as

The Christian Endeavor Society The King's Daughters
The Epworth League, Etc.

Home games and amusements will be given space in the winter time, while during the summer months we shall devote much care to outdoor sports of all kinds. The departments cover every topic of interest to women:

MUSICAL DEPARTMENT—Gossip from the world of melody and original composition.

MOTHERS' PAGE—With valuable hints on home life.

CHILDREN'S PAGE—Contains short stories, puzzles, etc.

THE DINING ROOM—With latest and best recipes.

No department of home interest will be neglected, and all will be in the hands of specialists. This magnificent periodical will be sent to any address for only 50 cts. (fifty cents). Silver or stamps taken.

Offer Extraordinary

FOR FIFTY CENTS we will send The Home Magazine one year, and in addition, FREE, Five Magnificent Booklets, entitled "Lead, Kindly Light," "Rock of Ages," "Just As I Am," "Jerusalem the Golden," and "Jesus, Lover of My Soul." These beautiful booklets comprise the words and music complete of the grand hymns mentioned. They are printed upon heavy white paper, each booklet containing from 16 to 20 pages, and an average of 15 beautiful illustrations each. They are executed in the very highest style of art, and, in addition to their great value as devotional books, they are highly ornamental.

To every person sending two yearly subscriptions, with fifty cents each, or ONE DOLLAR, through seeing this advertisement, we will, in addition to sending each subscriber the Magazine for one year and the Booklets, send absolutely free, for sending the club, one copy of our book, entitled:

"The Story of the Christian Endeavor Movement,"

Written by the Rev. Francis E. Clark, the founder of this most wonderful movement. The only authentic work of the kind ever written. Gives a full history of the rise, progress, aims and most wonderful growth of this devoted army of Christian Workers. Gives copies of the Constitution, by-laws, pledges, blanks and forms used in organizing, etc., with portraits of Rev. Francis E. Clark, the founder, and Rev. J. W. Baer and Rev. William Shaw, two of the leading workers in the Society.

We have no hesitation in pronouncing this offer the greatest we have ever made, or ever can make, for a single subscription.

BRODIX PUBLISHING CO. 614 Eleventh St., N. W.,
WASHINGTON, D. C.

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XXV., No. 23

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 16, 1893.

WHOLE No. 1,190.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,
221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PER YEAR..... $2.00
(PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... 1.50)

No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearses paid.

Address all letters for publication to EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, CHICAGO. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed.

Make all drafts and money orders payable to the Treasurer, W. I. PHILLIPS, 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO. When possible make remittances by express money order. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address on Cynosure list always give the former address.

[Entered at the Postoffice, Chicago, Ill., as Second Class Matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:	REFORM NEWS:
Notes and Comments.... 1	Reform Centers; The
Secret Labor Unions and	Clay County Reform
Crime..... 8	Convention..... 5
"Jesuitism a Foe to our	CORRESPONDENCE:
Republic"..... 8	"Jesuitism a Foe to our
The Revolution in Ha-	Republic;" Masonry
wail..... 8	and the Church; Meth-
The Indian Fight at Pine	odism and Masonry...5,6
Ridge..... 8	AGENTS AND LECTURERS... 7
Boys' Brigades Again... 8	THE N. C. A..... 7
CONTRIBUTIONS:	THE HOME.....10
A Sign of these Times... 1	TEMPERANCE.....11
The Secret Empire's In-	BIBLE LESSON.....12
fluence in Excluding	RELIGIOUS NEWS.....12
Christ from Politics... 2	OBITUARY.....13
Echoes of the Illinois	NEWS OF THE WEEK.....13
Convention..... 3	Secret Societies Con-
NEW ENGLAND LETTER.... 4	demned.....13
WASHINGTON LETTER.... 4	MARKETS.....13
LITERATURE..... 6	HOME AND HEALTH.....14
LODGE NOTES..... 7	FARM NOTES.....15

Prayer, which was some time ago eliminated from the program of the opening ceremonies of the Columbian Exposition on the 1st of May next, it is announced, will be restored. It is also publicly stated that the contract for selling unlimited beer on the exhibition grounds (probably 5,000 barrels daily) has been awarded to a Milwaukee firm. The program will open and close with prayer.

Under the auspices of the Pennsylvania Sabbath Association, a State Sabbath convention was called to meet at Harrisburg on the 14th and 15th inst., at which opposition to any change in the prevailing Sabbath law of that State was to be an important topic. At a recent meeting of the pastors of Pittsburgh and Allegheny a protest against such a charge was drawn up, recommending that the penalties for Sabbath infraction be greatly increased; that Sunday newspapers should not be published under the sanction of State laws, and inviting persistent and earnest opposition to Sunday work and amusements, in the Legislature, in the press, and in the pulpit. The State convention was to confirm and strengthen this opposition and make it more general and effective. A copy of the protest was sent to every member of the Legislature.

The long-pending dead-lock in the legislatures of most of the States which elect United States Senators this winter, and the repeated charges of bribery and corruption in some of them where these elections have taken place, give emphasis to the demand for a constitutional amendment authorizing the choice of Senators by a direct vote of the people. True, in a popular election there might exist political corruption, but the opportunities for its exercise would be fewer, and the result would be more speedy and certain. In the memorable contest between Lincoln and Douglas, in 1858, Mr. Lincoln received the popular vote, but Mr. Douglas was elected Senator by the legislature. Minorities often elect. This is evidently the case with the new Senators from Kansas and Nebraska. There is little hope of seeing the proposed amendment soon adopted, but it would be a long step towards a more perfect republicanism.

We love strong-minded women who have a moral and religious bias that will not brook any infraction of divine law, and will persistently advocate human rights under that law. All honor to them! "My father," writes a correspondent in North Dakota, "when he married my mother was a Freemason. As soon as she discovered that he had secrets that she could not know, and that the lodge was held in a public house, she promptly told him that if he continued to be a Mason, they could not live together in harmony, as the laws of the lodge separated man and wife, in violation of the divine law that 'What God hath joined together, let not man put asunder.' Like a wise man, he gave up Masonry, cleaved to his faithful wife, and they prospered. I wonder," he adds, "that so many women can endure this semi-separation, and how, in conscience, men can so far break their solemn marriage vows?" There is a whole sermon in this anecdote.

It does seem to be a shame, just when the public sentiment of the country has gained certainly a temporary, and probably a permanent, victory over those who wished the World's Fair to be opened on Sunday, that a committee on which are many of the leading business men of the national capital should be preparing to publicly desecrate the Sabbath-day here in Washington. It is nevertheless true. The Inauguration committee, not satisfied with having made arrangements to prolong the dancing at the Inaugural ball into the following day, which will be Sunday, also arranged to hold two public concerts in the ball-room on Sunday, March 5, to which an admission fee will be charged. As a sort of salve for their accusing consciences, the committee announces that these Sunday musicales are to be "sacred" concerts. "Sacrilegious" would have been a better word for them to have used. If the American people have condemned the opening of the World's Fair on Sunday, will they not also condemn Sunday dancing and Sunday concerts in connection with the inauguration of a President?

The introduction of a bill in the Illinois Legislature to amend the charter of the city of Evanston, in this county, is an event of unusual interest in temperance circles. The original charter of the village, when it was founded by Hon. John Evans as an educational center for the Methodist Episcopal church in the United States, forbade the sale of intoxicating liquors within a radius of four miles from the Northwestern University; and although previous efforts to overcome this restriction and open the locality to saloons have failed, it is proposed by a bill before the legislature to so amend the charter as to admit the sale of ardent spirits within the now-prohibition district. The measure is, of course, in the interest of Chicago whisky-dealers, to satisfy their own greed and gratify the tastes of an uncanny class of persons who are obliged to go elsewhere to indulge their unhallowed appetites. The fact that the present legislature is made up largely of men to whom beer is dearer than righteousness makes the danger of a charter amendment an imminent catastrophe. If the iniquitous measure should prevail and ruin our esteemed suburb, it is hoped that the entire Methodist church of the Union will mass its forces and vote and pray in favor of universal Prohibition. If so, the disaster will prove a Providential blessing.

A SIGN OF THESE TIMES.

BY REV. NATHAN CALLENDER.

One of the "signs of the times" is that as great men seem to be growing scarce, great women are coming to the front.

Like Deborah, of Bible fame, they are stepping in to speak the prophetic curse resting upon the time-serving and skulking hosts in church and state, doomed to infamy. That we are blessed with a multitude of God's select sons, who "stand; having done all, to stand," must not be ignored. Not as the lower animals, whose spinal columns point to the horizon, but to the mid-heavens, they "stand" and "walk circumspectly," "not as fools" and brutes, and "put on the whole armor of God."

In full view of this inspiring fact, are we mistaken in believing that God means to save this lodge-and-rum-cursed age by the special agency of the brave women of these times, who, despite ridicule and all opposition, are fast walking to the front?

Have not the presence, in these times, of Mrs. Stowe, Miss Willard, Miss Flagg, and Mrs. A. J.

ANTI-SECRET STATE CONVENTION.

Members of the National Christian Association and all friends of Anti-Secrecy Reform are hereby invited to attend and participate in the approaching State Convention in behalf of the cause:

PENNSYLVANIA.

The Annual Convention of the Pennsylvania State Christian Association, opposed to secret societies, will be held in CARNEGIE MUSIC HALL, ALLEGHENY, PA., FEBRUARY 27TH AND 28TH, 1893. The following is substantially the

PROGRAM:

Monday, Feb. 27. 2:00 P. M.—Devotional exercises, by Rev. D. McAllister, D. D. 2:30.—Address of Welcome, by Rev. W. H. McMillan, D. D. 3:00.—Appointment of Committees. 3:15.—Chart Talk: "The Things Done of Them in Secret," by Rev. J. P. Stoddard, Boston, Mass.

Evening Session. 7:15.—Devotional exercises. 7:45.—Address: "The Divine Condemnation of the Secret Lodge System," by Rev. Wm. Dillon. 8:30.—Music. 8:45.—Address: "The Suppressed Question," by Rev. M. A. Gault. Music.—The music of the evening will be furnished by Prof. Liefeld and his celebrated Mandolin Quartette.

Tuesday. Morning Session. 9:00.—Devotional exercises. 9:30.—Treasurer's Report, and Election of Officers. 10:00.—Open Parliament; Questions, and Five-minute Speeches in order. 11:00.—Address: "The Oath," by Rev. M. B. Patterson. 11:30.—Address: "The Development of our Work," by Rev. Chas. E. Temple.

Afternoon Session. 1:45.—Prayer. 2:00.—Address: "Principles Underlying our Work," by Rev. J. S. T. Milligan. 2:20.—Address: "Secret Societies and the Temperance Reform," by Rev. S. Collins. 2:40.—Address: "Secrecy a Temptation to Crime," by Rev. D. C. Martin. 3:00.—Miscellaneous Business, Reports of Committees, and Adoption of Resolutions.

Evening Session. 7:15.—Prayer. 7:30.—Music. 7:45.—Address. 8:30.—Music. 8:45.—Address.

Music for this evening furnished by the Aletheorian Orchestra of Geneva College, Pa. Names of speakers will be announced later.

Gordon, a prophetic trend? Would that I could name scores more of these grand Deborahs, destined to bless the brave, and to pronounce God's curse upon the cowardly minions of both church and state! Let the women, like Deborah, pronounce—even chant—the shame of cowards in the pulpit and halls of legislation. We invoke the women to come to the rescue at the polls, and on the platform, inspired by the holy Bible and the Holy Spirit. This possibility is growing more possible, day by day, before our eyes. Oh, woman! your (would-be) liege lords are toning down—up, I mean—to a sound creed regarding your real mission here. Men who cannot—will not—govern themselves must not make our laws. We have Senators in Congress who carry the bottle with them—the best liquors. In truth, the best is the worst, and the worst is best, and all superlatively bad. I would we had scores of women like Mrs. Gougar in Congress to-day!

Waiving the question of women's rights in the State, I would say this: That where there are certain things to be done that competent men will not do, equally competent women, who are willing, may and should do.

There is, to-day, an awful crisis to be met by us, growing out of saloonism and other great issues. This crisis comes mainly from the misdemeanors of the men now in power. They will not—they cannot—meet this desperate emergency, any more than King Saul or Belshazzar, after years of rebellion against God and equity, could rise to the rescue of themselves and the people whom they represented. In history, and in common experience, thousands of cases are found where women have come to the rescue, to perform duties that would have been more suitably done by men. If men, instead of arresting the conflagration of alcoholism, conspire to light the fires, then let the women organize themselves into a grand fire company and go out with the engine "Truth," and with a hook-ladder ascend the burning mountain of human bodies and souls of fathers, brothers, husband and children.

Montdale, Pa.

THE SECRET EMPIRE'S INFLUENCE IN EXCLUDING CHRIST FROM POLITICS.

A PAPER READ AT THE ILLINOIS STATE ANTI-SECRECY CONVENTION, COULTERSVILLE, JAN. 25, 1893, BY REV. R. C. REED, OF HOUSTON, ILLINOIS.

We are a Christian people. There is, possibly, no nation so thoroughly permeated with Christianity as the nation of the United States. There are, it is true, great and dangerous evils existing in this country, which are threatening its very life; yet the fact remains that we are probably the most Christian people in the world. This is seen: First, by the influence that Christianity exerts on our national life. Our legislators dare not legislate in opposition to the Christian sentiment of the people. Second, by a study of the statistics of the country.

Dr. H. K. Carroll, who supervised the collection of the statistics of all the religious bodies in the United States, for the census of 1890, says there are 20,488,797 professing Christians. According to these returns, nearly one person in every three of our population is a member of a Christian church. Now, if one-third in number of all the men, women and children are church-members, says the New York Independent, it follows that the great majority are to be counted as belonging to the religious populations.

This is seen: Third, from the opinions and decisions of leading jurists. Story, in his inaugural address as the Dane professor in 1829, said: "There has never been a period in which the common law did not recognize Christianity as lying at its foundation."

Professor J. W. Dwight, of the law-school of Columbia College, has said: "It is well-settled by decisions in the courts of leading States of the Union that Christianity is a part of the common law of the State." He adds: "One of the American courts (the Supreme Court of Penn.), in the case of Updegraph against the Commonwealth, states the law in this manner: 'Christianity is, and always has been, a part of the common law of this State—Christianity without the spiritual artillery of European countries—not Christianity founded on any particular religious tenets—not Christianity with an established church and titles and spiritual courts—but Christianity with liberty of conscience to all men.'"

Chief Justice Kent, in the case of The People against Ruggles (8 Johnson, 293), in the State of New York, pronounced the judgment of the Supreme Court. He had the unanimous concurrence of his distinguished associates, Smith Thompson, afterward a justice of the Supreme Court of the United States; Ambrose Spencer, who later became Chief Justice; William Van Ness, a member of the State Constitutional Convention, and Joseph C. Yates, afterward Governor of the State. The decision was thus referred to by Justice Duncan, of Penn., in the case of Updegraph: "In the Supreme Court of New York it was solemnly determined that Christianity was part of the law of the land, and that to revile the Scriptures was an indictable offence."

In the course of the opinion of the New York Supreme Court, Chief Justice Kent quoted the court of the King's Bench in the Taylor case, that Christianity was parcel of the law, and showed that the court would not suffer it to be debated whether defaming Christianity in general was not an offence at common law; for whatever strikes at the root of Christianity tends manifestly to the dissolution of civil government. The Supreme Court said: "We stand equally in need now, as formerly, of all that moral discipline and of those principles of virtue which help to bind society together. The people of the State, in common with the people of this country, profess the general doctrines of Christianity."

Justice Story, in delivering the opinion of the Supreme Court of the United States in Vidal, against Girard's executors, declares that Christianity is a part of the common law of the State; its divine origin and truth are admitted.

Justice Allen, of the Supreme Court of New York, and his associates, Justices Clark and Sutherland, in the case of Lindenmuller against the people, in 1861, held that Christianity was a part of the common law to the extent that entitles the Christian religion and its ordinances to respect and protection as the acknowledged religion of the people.

The Supreme Court of the United States, Feb. 29, 1892, delivered, through Justice Brewer, the unanimous opinion that this is a "Christian nation". That we are a Christian people is seen:

Fourth, from the Christian features of our institutions. Some of these Christian characteristics are, the reading of the Bible in our public schools, the Sabbath laws, the laws regulating the family, the official oaths, prayer in our national and State legislatures, days of fasting and thanksgiving, etc.

While we are a Christian people, yet we are non-Christian in politics. The Constitution of the United States is the "mother of all our laws," and that constitution is Christless.

As Dr. Jonathan Blanchard has said: "Our Constitution knows no difference between Jesus Christ and the smeared log of wood set on end, to which the South Sea Islander sacrifices his hog. It contains no recognition of God except its date, to distinguish us from Africans, who worship a baboon."

Or, as is declared in one of the national treaties, that the "Government of the United States is not in any sense founded on the Christian religion"; and, as Horace Greeley has asserted, "the recognition of God in the Constitution involves a more sweeping and fundamental change than was effected by our fathers' separation from Great Britain."

Not only, however, do we search in vain for the name of Christ in our Constitution, but we find, on examination, that our fundamental law repudiates the law of God. The binding obligation of God's law is ignored. The supreme law of the land is the Constitution, the U. S. statutes made in pursuance of it, and treaties that are or may be made. The Constitution makes no discrimination against any person of any religion. The godless atheist, the scoffing infidel and the Christless Jew, are as eligible to office as is the follower of Christ. The law of God is trampled under foot by our Government in its protecting the liquor traffic. It breaks God's law in reference to the Christian Sabbath, etc.

We are then confronted with a strange inconsistency—the people Christian, the politics Christless. There are a number of ways to account for this anomaly. We discuss but one of them here, viz., the secret empire. We regard the secret empire as one of the greatest (if not the greatest) influences that are operating against Christianity in our politics.

By the secret empire we mean the whole brood of secret institutions throughout the land. Our country is honeycombed with different orders of secrecy.

"Distinct as the billows,
Yet one like the sea,

these deluges of darkness pour along all our channels of life, like the flood from the mouth of the dragon."

We regard the secret empire as influential in excluding Christ from politics: First, because the name of Jesus Christ is almost, if not altogether, excluded from it. In some orders of secrecy the name of Christ is mentioned, but only in such a way as to militate against him. In others, and they the most influential, Christ is not named. This is true of nearly all the degrees of Masonry. In this order we find that Christ's name is omitted from its rituals, its public prayers and its funeral services. Now, being so Christless itself, the secret empire uses its influence to have the Government Christless like itself. In the secret empire are many Christian men. This is a strange inconsistency, yet the fact remains that there are many ministers and churches who worship at the secret empire's altars. By so doing their lips are sealed against the actions of secret orders. This partly accounts for the fact that we are a Christian people and Christless in our politics.

Again, the secret empire antagonizes Christ. Christ's last command to his disciples was to preach the Gospel to every creature. Secrecy swears its members to conceal, in all the world, from every creature, on pain of death. In some orders this threatened death is terrible. It is to "have my throat cut across, and my tongue torn out by the roots,—to have my left breast torn open, and my heart and vitals taken from thence,—to have my body cut in-two and divided to the north and south, and my bowels burned to ashes." Thus its penalty of revelation antagonizes Christ.

Again, it antagonizes our Lord by discriminating between persons. He is impartial, and treats all alike. Secrecy is partial, and bestows favors.

Dr. Blanchard says: "There are men living to-day who survived Libby and Andersonville, who saw Masonic distributing officers, when food was short, give double rations to prisoners who could give Masonic signs, and no rations to boys who could not."

Once more, the secret empire wields an immense power in our body politic. Joseph Cook says: "There are more than 2,000,000 of voters in the United States who are members of secret lodges of various orders. In politics some lodges form political alliances. The solemn truth is, that already three-fourths of our public officials are members of secret orders." In the light of these facts we see a reason by which to account for the Christlessness of our State and national Thanksgiving proclamations, and also for the Christlessness of the political party platforms.

Further, the record of the secret empire leads us to believe that its unseen hand of darkness is back of the lethargy and opposition to Christianize our politics. Reboid, a Masonic writer, in a general history of Freemasonry in Europe, declares that after the death of Charles I., 1649, the local lodges of England worked in secret to restore the throne destroyed by Cromwell; and that Charles II., during the exile, was received as an accepted Mason, and gave Masonry the title of "Royal Art". Now Masonry takes to itself the unenviable honor of restoring to the throne a "libertine, a hypocrite, a disguised papist," a breaker of sacred oaths, a betrayer of Jesus Christ.

Dr. Blanchard, in an Anti-masonic lecture, declared that the Masonic societies, in the hands of the infidels of France, dethroned Christ from the heart of the French nation; took away the Bible and the Sabbath from the living, and proclaimed eternal sleep for the dead.

It is claimed by those who ought to know that the late civil war was hatched in the secret empire, and that the war was prolonged two years through its influence. It is a fact that the meetings of secession and rebellion were held in the lodge, and the leaders of the war of the rebellion were members of the secret empire.

This record leads us to believe that the secret empire is seeking the complete dethronement of Christ. Every lineament and feature, principle and end, of the secret empire manifest that its influence is also given to eliminate the still-existing Christian features of our institutions. If the secret empire is to-day using its influence to exclude Christ from politics, what will be the result "if we allow the deadly upas tree to grow till it attains its full height"? We may look for the complete elimination of every existing feature of Christianity from our political life. This will be death to our free republic.

There are those who claim that popular government has stood the test in this country. But what do they mean by that assertion? Do they intend it to mean that the past is a sufficient guarantee for the future? If so, we cry out, "Beware! beware! the rapids are below you!"

A careful scanning of the horizon reveals to our eye the small cloud that is to be suspected as the center of the approaching cyclone. There is offered sufficient basis that the American people may be called upon to make a great effort, as in the civil war. And we have reason to believe, if that apprehended hour does come, the United States will be called upon to make her supreme effort for continued life. Every loyal citizen of America should desire to avert such a crisis. What is needed to save our nation from disaster? The intellectual and moral life of the people must attain to the very highest standard in truth, in elevation and activity. There is no other way that we can conceive by which the American people will be able to escape national death.

"Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty." May God save our republic from the control of the secret empire.

ECHOES OF THE ILLINOIS CONVENTION.

"THE MISCHIEF SECRETISM HAS WROUGHT IN THE WORLD."—ADDRESS OF MRS. A. R. MCKELVEY, OF THE COULTERSVILLE W. C. T. U.

Although, in its modern development, Freemasonry was organized in London in 1717, yet it was in the garden of Eden when Satan, with our first parents, conspired against the God of heaven, that its evil influence began. We would not have to contend against that influence now if they had not yielded to it then. Estimate, if you can, the evil that first secret society brought upon the race.

In all Bible history you trace every conspiracy for treason and murder to secrecy. Examine the instances of Korah, Dathan and Abiram (Num. 16: 2); of Absalom against David (2 Sam. 15: 10); of Haman against the Jews (Esther 2: 21); of the Jews against Paul; of the princes against Daniel. The dying Jacob expresses his horror of the treachery of Simeon and Levi, who in secret conspired against the children of Heth. He said: "O my soul, come not thou into their secret: unto their assembly, mine honor, be not thou united." (Gen. 49: 6.) Solomon says: "A wicked man walketh with a froward mouth; he winketh with his eye, he speaketh with his feet, he talketh with his fingers." (Prov. 6: 12, 13.)

Paul warns us to have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them. We cannot drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of devils. We should take the Lord as our example, who in secret said nothing, and who was not to be found in the secret chambers. We must let our light shine, that others may see our good works.

Again, we are told to "come out from them and be separate, and touch not the unclean thing, and I will receive you saith the Lord."

The names of the secret orders conspiring against society are legion, for they are many. Among them we must not omit the Brewers' Association, which is carrying sorrow and death to so many homes. They are at war with the Word of God, and with good government, and are used by wicked men to screen themselves from just punishment. They trample upon the rights of conscience and the sacred interests of home, and are undoing the work of the W. C. T. U., whose motto is for God, and home, and native land. What right has the lodge to enter the sacred precincts of home and take away the husband and father, and dig an impassable gulf of secrecy between him and the wife and mother?

If you ask, what can we do? I answer, in the language of the prophet, "Cry aloud and spare not, declare to Jacob his sins and to Israel his transgressions," till the powers ordained of God recognize his law and not the powers of secret societies.

"Then let us join this movement;
For soon we all must stand,
In the last great Day of Judgment,
At the bar of God's right hand;
To answer then if for or 'gainst
This evil we have raised our voice;
If for God and light or darkness and sin,
We have made eternal choice."

ADDRESS OF MISS MARY PATTERSON, PRESIDENT OF THE RANDOLPH COUNTY (ILL.) W. C. T. U.

Miss Patterson spoke without notes, and her address was earnest and practical. The W. C. T. U. has no more devoted worker in the State than Miss Patterson. Mainly through her influence, the Union in her town at Baldwin has built an elegant hall, at a cost of $1,200. Like Mrs. McKelvey, she is strongly opposed to secret orders. In her address she deplored their influence in retarding the work of the W. C. T. U. She claimed that the anti-secret reform should be made a department of their work. In their efforts to reclaim men from drink and to prohibit the saloons, secret lodges were their greatest hindrances. She described how they had raised money and employed legal talent, and used every means to enforce the law, only to see their efforts entirely frustrated by the secret lodge operating behind the screen.

THE ADDRESS OF WELCOME.

Rev. J. L. Chesnut, the newly-settled pastor of the church in which the convention met, greeted the delegates on the first evening, in a very elegant and felicitous address, in which he said he could welcome them with the more assurance because of the very hearty welcome Coulterville had extended to himself and wife. He had once, in the old country, joined a secret temperance society and had attained to the dignity of being elected Worthy Vice Chief Door-keeper, but his mother had gone through his pantaloons, and found a certificate of his membership. She then proceeded to impress upon him the fact that their family was an anti-secret association, and he was obliged forthwith to renounce his secret order, and had never been connected with one since.

RESPONSE BY REV. M. A. GAULT.

Rev. M. A. Gault, of the National Christian Association, responded briefly to the address of welcome. He explained the origin of the anti-secret movement, which began with the excitement caused by the abduction and murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan in 1826, for publishing the secrets of Masonry. The Association was not organized till 1868. It has held many national and State conventions, has a widely-circulated weekly organ, the Christian Cynosure, published in Chicago. The Association has received many large donations—one, of a publishing house in Chicago valued at $30,000. It has many agents and lecturers in the field, and is circulating millions of pages of literature on the danger of secret orders.

ADDRESS OF REV. WILLIAM WEIR.

Rev. Wm. Weir, of Washington, Pa., lecturer of the National Reform Association, then delivered the address of the evening. He showed that every true and prominent reform must center around Christ and his law. He said that all great public evils sought to entrench themselves behind the legislation and protection of government, as instanced the case of slave power. So, strongly was it entrenched in the Constitution and laws of the nation that for years it defied all the bombardment from pulpit, platform and press. It was the same now with the liquor power; and the same was true of the secret lodge system, which was chartered by the State and strongly entrenched in government. Bro. Weir told how the Homestead labor strike, which resulted in the death of 35 men and the destruction of $1,500,000, was the outgrowth of secret society influence which was destined yet to plunge the nation into revolution and conflict. He had come to the conclusion that the minor secret societies were even more dangerous than the major orders.

ADDRESS AND POEM BY MRS. SLOANE.

On Wednesday evening the first address was by Mrs. J. M. Sloane, a prominent W. C. T. U. worker of Oakdale, Ill. Her subject was, "What Loyalty to Christ Demands." She showed that true loyalty to Christ requires that our conduct in every relationship should be squared by the infallible law of Christ.

She closed by reciting impressively the following original lines:

THE POEM.

O Heavenly Muse, my thoughts indite;
In this grand theme my soul delight,
And make me one who swift doth write
In honor of our King.
Our King! Who is the glorious One?
The mighty God, the Father's Son!
Appealing helplessness hath won
For us our Saviour-King.

The chief among ten thousand, he Took manhood to Divinity,
That our true kinsman he might be,
And our Redeemer-King.
This wondrous King, so true and brave—
This mighty King, so strong to save,
Has vanquished Satan and the grave
For us, triumphant King!

His sword's still girded on his thigh;
His right to reign who can deny—
And who his armies dare defy?
He's the almighty King.
For this cause to our world he came,
For this he suffered grief and shame,
And died, and rose, and won the name
He bears, the King of kings.

He cometh to receive his own,
His crown, his sceptre and his throne;
For want of loyalty what can atone
To this omniscient King!
Ye Baptists, haste—prepare his way,
Exalt the vales, the mountains lay,
Palm branches scatter in the way
Of our expected King.

Oh, wise men, see ye not his star?
Then speed ye—speed ye from afar,
To join the grand triumphal car
Of our majestic King.
Ye isles, still waiting for his law,
As in his dream the prophet saw,
Now shout with joy vive le Roi!
To hail your coming King.

Ye bells, ring in earth's jubilee;
Ye trumpets, sound forth joyfully;
Ye nations, swear your fealty
To God's anointed King.
Shout your hosannas, little ones;
More welcome far than peal of guns,
The voice of daughters and of sons,
Is to our loving King.

Fair bride, put on thy bright array,
The glories of thy soul display
On this grand coronation-day,
To meet thy Husband-King.
Oh, angel choirs of Beth'lem's plain,
Come, sing again your joyous strain;
Our hearts would catch the glad refrain;
To welcome back our King.

Thy reign of joy and peace begin;
Free thy domain from grief and sin,
And by thy love each subject win
To thee, our gracious King!

FROM REV. D. S. FARIS, OF SPARTA, ILL.

Our convention was an agreeable surprise to us all. We had gloomy forebodings, but our fears were disappointed. It surpassed any anti-secret convention that we have ever had in this part of the State. There was a good attendance from the beginning, and increasing till the end.

I once heard a Methodist Episcopal minister say that he "never thought a cause was doing any good unless the devil got mad". I have recent evidence to this effect. Last evening I received an envelope containing a nameless, printed paragraph, clipped from some paper, scurrilous in terms, and showing plainly that the convention had hurt somebody.

In the discussion of the resolutions a fact came out that was particularly damaging to the lodge in this county. A member who had hired a colored man to commit a crime was cleared by these Freemasons, while the colored wretch received a sentence of twenty-five years' imprisonment. A Freemason jurymen saved his neck, but could not save him from the penitentiary. This revelation alone demonstrates the value of the convention to the cause. Rev. J. R. Wylie, of Coulterville, and myself, have been asked to deliver a series of lectures against the lodge in this jurymen's neighborhood. At the time of the trial there was a mist of suspicion in the air; but the public did not fix it on the lodge. Now we know what turned the tide against the right.

NEW ENGLAND LETTER.

Antique treasures.—Matters legislative.—Shall we retain Fast Day?—Temperance and the Catholic church.—A Mohammedan missionary for America.—The Turk in Boston.

Anyone willing to be at the trouble to collect old spinning-wheels and send them to Europe might realize quite a fortune, as a correspondent of one of our Boston papers states that two were recently sold on the continent to some English tourists for $250 apiece, it being a prevailing fad just now among the ladies of the British aristocracy to learn to spin. A terrible waste of time, surely, for anybody to whom time is at all valuable; but then it could be employed in worse ways. In America the rage for spinning-wheels and other relics of "ye olden days" takes another form. We deck them with ribbons and consign them to a corner of the parlor, where they look as little at home among their modern surroundings as the original owners would in their caps and homespun gowns. Many an antique treasure may be found in old New England farm-houses, where the summer boarder has not come to covet it for purposes of fashionable decoration. A lady in Dedham, Mass., owns a wash-tub that is known to be over one hundred years old, and is still good for service, and I have in my own possession a rolling-pin and moulding-board, still in use, which have long since passed their centennial. What limitless quantities of delectable pie-crust and rich brown sym-balls, as our grandmothers called them—I was never quite sure of the orthography of that word—they have seen rolled out; and what stories they might tell of long-ago Thanksgiving days, when the larders were full of every imaginable good thing; of joyful occasions and sad occasions, and the everyday level (which, thank God! is the common lot) of small happenings, and mingled cloud and sunshine, but more sunshine than anything else, when we come to count it up. Long ago the hands that wielded that old rolling-pin were folded for their last sleep. Thrones have fallen, institutions have perished; revolutions, moral, social and political, have come and gone, and this humble kitchen utensil has outlasted them all. What a commentary on our changing world, and the frail tenure by which we hold this mortal life, whose thread a single false step or a moment's careless exposure may cut so easily.

"Our Old Man of the Sea"—that is what the Springfield Republican calls our State legislature. The same remark might apply to other legislatures, as well as our national Congress. But if they will only pass those bills now before them, which are in the interests of righteousness and true political economy, we would forgive them if they did not break up before next July. The hearing on municipal suffrage for women came off last week, with but one solitary remonstrant, Mrs. M. E. T. Faunce, of Newton, who made as strong a speech for the opposition as the inherent weakness of her side would admit. But it was neither a fair nor gentlemanly thing for Representative Coakley to cross-question Mrs. Hill on her political preferences, which was quite outside his business, as the subject is, or ought to be, one of abstract justice rather than party politics; while Mr. Rosnosky's gratuitous insult in puffing his cigar during the hearing, only extinguishing it when he saw himself discovered, was not surprising—considering it was Mr. Rosnosky. His action merely emphasized more strongly the great need there is of the reform under discussion. I am glad to say that the Massachusetts farmers ring true on this most important question. At their last meeting in Boston they unanimously, by a rising vote, put themselves on record in favor of municipal suffrage for women on the same terms as men. There is an instinct of justice in the native New Englander, an honest love of fair play, which the author of "Tom Brown" tells us is also an ineradicable trait in the true Englishman; and it is pleasant to see that our farming class, who are so largely sons of the soil, hold fast to their Anglo-Saxon inheritance.

Whether we shall continue to observe Fast Day, or substitute the 17th of April in its stead, is a question on which the House will soon be obliged to take action. It is certain that the day, as now kept, is a farce and a mockery; but I am sure that many, who have looked upon it from their earliest childhood as a firmly fixed institution, will heave a sigh of regret when the change is made. The New Hampshire legislature must also wrestle with the same problem before long, as a bill has been recently introduced to do away with the day altogether, as one that has "ceased to be religiously observed," and "become a useless relic of former times". To let our annual Fast, with all its old-time traditions, pass decently into oblivion is perhaps the best thing to do, under the circumstances; but it is a pity, and the influx of alien immigration into our population has brought about the change. What can men of foreign birth, who take their religion from the Vatican, and their politics from the saloon, care for this old historic day, or understand the love which is felt for it by the true New England heart? The worst of it is, that, unless a clause forbidding the sale of liquor on that day is inserted in the bill, the change will only put more money into the pockets of the rum-seller.

We hear a good deal, by the way, of the good work done for temperance by a few Catholic priests. Far be it from me to impugn their motives or disparage their work; but there are two Irish Catholic rumsellers, who make a certain district in one of our Massachusetts cities notorious for the destitution, crime and suffering, which can be directly traced to their nefarious traffic; yet they attend mass regularly, and their parish priest is quite celebrated as a temperance lecturer. Temperance societies invite him to their platform, and make much of him, as if a Catholic priest who favored prohibition was a kind of rara avis. It is surely no compliment to Rome, however unthinking people may so regard it.

The recommendation of Gov. Fuller, of Vermont, that the liquor laws be modified so as to prevent liquor-sellers from being sentenced on so many different indictments that the aggregate sentence imposed exceeds the natural life of the one convicted, has more than one side to it. Within two or three weeks there have been two executions,—one in Massachusetts and one in Connecticut—for wife murder of the most brutal and aggravated type, the direct result of a rum-maddened brain; while the cases of children tortured by drunken parents, or left to starve and freeze, have been simply heart-rending. For my part, I see no reason why the man who persists in sowing the seeds of arson, murder, and every other nameable or unnameable crime, should not be shut up for life, as a pest to society.

While that grand soldier of Christ, the venerable Dr. Paton, is delighting the Christian people of Boston with his story—more thrilling than any novel or tale of adventure ever penned—of the triumphs of the cross among the cannibals of the New Hebrides, a Mohammedan missionary is preparing to make as many converts in America as he can to the faith of Islam. He is an American, ex-Consul Webb, and was a Presbyterian to start with. Then he became a materialist, drifting from that into Theosophy, and finally into Islamism. He will probably attract more curiosity-seekers than he will make converts; and, in fact, the idea of a missionary of the prophet, in busy, bustling Chicago, is a funny anomaly, to say the least. Think of the muezzin's call to prayer, chanted anywhere else than among the minarets and palm-groves of the enchanted East! But in Boston, at the corner of Bromfield and Tremont streets, might have been seen, last election day—and it may be there now for all I know to the contrary—the statue of a beturbaned Turk, sitting cross-legged among liquor bottles and cigar signs, holding a pipe in his right hand and a drinking cup in his left, and alternately taking a whiff from the one and a drink from the other, while nodding his head in a boozy fashion, as if already half seas over. Of course, there was somebody concealed inside, who managed the whole thing, as in winking statues of the Virgin Mary. As the Koran forbids liquor, it was a travesty on even Turkish civilization, and a real follower of Mohammed mingling in the crowd which it constantly attracted, might well pride himself that his native Turkey was so much ahead of Christian Boston.

ELIZABETH E. FLAGG.

Please renew your subscription now.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 8, 1893.

Reference has been made in this correspondence, more than once, to the difficulty of securing liquor legislation from Congress that is not approved by the liquor-dealers themselves. An additional proof of that difficulty has just been given by Rev. Dr. Corey, of this city, in a public address on "The Liquor Traffic." Dr. Corey made the positive statement that a committee of citizens who were working for legislation to improve the present loose law of the District of Columbia relating to the liquor traffic, were told by Congressmen that no law could be passed by Congress without the approval of the Liquor-Dealers' Association. Was a more disgraceful assertion ever made by legislators of a Christian nation? If so, history does not record it.

Who elect the Congressmen, the people of the United States or the liquor-dealers? Unquestionably it is the people. The question then naturally arises, are the people controlled by the liquor-dealers? Your correspondent does not believe they are, but ventures the opinion that the liquor-dealers obtain control of our legislative bodies largely through the indifference of people who, while themselves temperate, if not for temperance, fail to interest themselves in the great battle which is daily being fought in our midst between the home and the saloon. There are many families the members of which are indifferent on the liquor question simply because none of their loved ones have been seized by the liquor demon. On general principles they favor temperance, and, if you ask them—they rarely bring the subject up themselves—they will tell you that they approve of temperance work and believe that it is doing much good; but they do not lend their names and influence to the cause by publicly attending a temperance meeting and endorsing its objects. Why, I cannot say. Perhaps some of them are afraid of having the stock epithet of the liquor-dealers—"temperance crank"—applied to them. The indifference of this class, and it is a large one in every community, enables the liquor-dealers, always well-organized and supplied with money, to wield the power they do in the primary election, the nominating convention, and in legislative halls.

Dr. Corey also said, in the same address, that this Liquor-Dealers' Association and its kindred interests throughout the country were the most dangerous organizations in existence, and he impressed upon his hearers the necessity for a change in public sentiment in order to counteract their deadly influence. He thought the best way to bring about that change was for each individual to take the pledge, thus constituting himself or herself a prohibition party of one.

The Senate and House of Representatives held a joint session to-day, as provided for by the Constitution of the United States, for the purpose of counting the electoral votes of the several States. Vice President Morton presided and Speaker Crisp occupied a seat by his side. Admission to the galleries was by ticket only, but they were crowded to their full capacity, even the aisles between the seats being full of people standing. The diplomatic gallery was filled by members of the various foreign legations, who appeared to be deeply interested in the proceedings by which the chief executive of a nation of 65,000,000 people is peaceably changed, leaving nothing to be done afterwards except to formally inaugurate the President and Vice President declared by Congress to have been elected to serve for four years from the 4th of March, 1893. The votes of each State were brought into the chamber in the sealed envelopes in which they were delivered by special messengers to the Vice President, and each was opened and counted by a committee appointed for the purpose, consisting of Senators Hale and Blackburn on the part of the Senate, and Representatives Chipman and Lodge on the part of the House, the States being taken in alphabetical order.

The commissioners from the new government of Hawaii have had several conferences with the Secretary of State, in furtherance of the annexation of Hawaii, but the conferences were secret and nothing is positively known of the intentions of the administration, although it is believed that President Harrison will wait until he hears the statement of the representative of the deposed government of Hawaii, who is now supposed to be on his way to Washington, before making any recommendation to Congress.

The first colored Swedenborgian church in the United States was organized here last Sunday under the name of the "First Colored Church of the New Jerusalem." *

REFORM NEWS.

REFORM CENTERS.

MEMORIES OF ABOLITION AND EXPERIENCES IN OTHER REFORMS.

From Peoria to Princeton, Feb. 3 and 4, was a brief journey, made most agreeable by a night's tarry among the steep bluffs of the Bureau valley with my two brothers. Near by the Government engineers are locating the Hennepin Ship Canal, to connect the Illinois river at Hennepin with the Mississippi at Rock Island. This great enterprise will ultimately, by means of the big drain Chicago is cutting through the limestone crest between Lake Michigan and the Illinois, form an outlet for our lake marine to the Gulf.

Princeton will not soon be forgotten as the home of Owen Lovejoy. For years he was pastor of the Congregational church here, and his widow and son yet live on the old homestead, a mile east of the church. As Hannibal vowed eternal hatred of Rome, Owen Lovejoy devoted himself, over the grave of his martyred brother Elijah, to unceasing war with slavery. That vow made an atmosphere of freedom for miles about Princeton, and many a fugitive, for the time, breathed safely in it.

In the vicinity of the Wesleyan churches on either side of Viola, in Mercer county, Ill., where Bro. Pinkney welcomed me a few weeks ago, there was a similar community. I spent a precious half-hour by the bedside of one of the heroes of that elder time, who always welcomed the fugitive and helped him on to freedom. Temporal prosperity followed these reformers, and the thrift, industry and wealth of the neighborhood are widely known. Thus are the promises for this life, as well as the next, made good to those who forsake all for Christ's sake. Let the saints who tremble at the name of the lodge take fresh courage from abundant memories of this kind.

Stormy weather delayed trains and set me down in Princeton late Saturday afternoon, but in time to arrange for three or four meetings, and get notices to most of the pastors before bedtime. Ice beneath and rain overhead were against us, but the Sabbath congregations were good and the interest in the discussion of the one feature of secretism—its altars—was deep.

In the morning I spoke for Bro. Petersen of the Swedish Baptist church, but without special reference to the reform. In the afternoon this congregation joined with others in a union meeting in the Mission church. To them, and to a larger gathering in the evening in the Swedish Lutheran church, the Word of God was opened against the lodge altars.

At the invitation of Bro. Coon, pastor of the Baptist church, I attended the ministers' meeting Monday at the American House. A severe snow storm pelted without, and only about one-half the pastors of the city were present. With most of them I had had previous conference, and was made glad in finding that none of them were connected with the lodge, or apologized for it. Some of the American churches are sadly under control of lodge influence, however, and not all the brethren regretted the fact as they ought. A free and general discussion followed my remarks introducing the subject.

A number of the old friends of the reform are removed,—some to other parts of earth, some to heaven; but Bro. and Sister Hodgman remain, steadfast in every good work. Enthusiasm and faith like theirs would soon carry every good cause to victory.

A number of calls, and I took the Burlington train, model of elegance and comfort, to find, on reaching the Cynosure office about 9 o'clock p. m., the assignment of a space, 8 feet by 10, to the N. C. A. for an exhibit in the great Liberal Arts building of the World's Fair. By the terms of the blank receipt the grant was forfeited by the expiration of the time limit for its return; but, as it has been clear to me from the first, God has been working with us and for us in all this matter. The committee appointed by the Board did all that seemed possible, yet, after all, that was little. So now, hastening to the Administration building at the earliest moment next morning, there was no difficulty in securing our grant. Of the plans for this exhibit the committee will soon give a full explanation.

HENRY L. KELLOGG.

THE CLAY COUNTY REFORM CONVENTION.

DOUGLASS, Kan., Feb. 8, 1893.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—I am now in Butler county, for a ten days' series of meetings. Mr. S. J. Peter and Rev. T. C. Moffatt are arranging meetings for me.

I have just finished an interesting and profitable series of meetings in Clay county, Kansas. We closed with a county convention at Clay Center, on Friday, Feb. 3, in the Free Methodist church.

In my three weeks' tour through the county I announced our convention constantly, and we had excellent prospects of a good gathering. The weather continued so cold, however, that we despaired of a meeting. But, nevertheless, the Lord favored us, and we had a good convention; two dozen present in the forenoon, four dozen in the afternoon, and ten dozen in the evening. Several men and women came eight and ten miles to attend the convention. This fact is encouraging.

We designated this as "The Clay County Reform Convention." Consideration was given to the Sabbath question, the Prohibition question, and the Secret Society question. There was a unity of thought and interest in the convention.

Dr. D. M. Gillespie, of Clay Center, was chosen chairman, and Rev. D. J. White, pastor of the Republican City Reformed Presbyterian church, was chosen secretary and treasurer.

After the appointment of committees, a number of impromptu speeches were made on matters of reform. Rev. S. M. Stevenson, pastor of the Tabor Reformed Presbyterian church, was on the gram to give us an address on Temperance, as was, also, Mr. Hugh L. McClurkin; but both were detained from being with us, doubtless by the cold weather.

In the afternoon an earnest and telling address on the Sabbath question was given by Rev. G. E. Carnahan, pastor of the U. P. church of Clay Center. Bro. Carnahan showed in a convincing manner that "man needs the Sabbath." The whole man needs it. This is shown by the history of the race, and equally by the observance of this law or by its violation. Rome observed one day in seven as sacred. Homer tells us that one-seventh of the time is sacred. France defied the will of God, defied the crying need of man, and appointed one-tenth of time for leisure. It led to her ruin. The speaker showed that there is still higher ground than human need—namely, the will of God. God manifested his will in the matter of the Sabbath by his example and by his command. A timely warning was given to speak of the Lord's Sabbath, not of the "American Sabbath;" to contend for the "Lord's Sabbath," not for the "American Sabbath." Such an address as Bro. Carnahan's will do good in any convention.

A brief and interesting discussion followed. This question is a paramount issue facing the American people, to be settled only when settled right.

Dr. D. M. Gillespie, of Clay Center, followed in an address on "The Lodge in Politics." The doctor showed conclusively that the lodge is in politics. Most of our offices are held by secret society people; not because they are wiser and better than others, but because they have superior methods of manipulation. Look at the officers of your county, of your State, and of the United States, and mark the result of your inquiry. Lodge-men are accustomed to deny that the lodge has anything to do with politics, and yet these stern facts remain. Why is it thus? The doctor closed his able address with a plan of government and some resolutions. He will doubtless give these to the government.

The writer followed in an address on Odd-fellowship. I found my grounds for objection mainly in Mr. Grosh's "Manual of Odd-fellowship." It is quite sufficient. I was given good attention in this presentation.

We had another profitable session in the evening. Rev. J. W. Dill, of Oakland, Kansas, was to have addressed us at the opening evening hour, on the Sabbath question. Bro. Dill could not be with us, and we regretted his absence for two reasons: Because we missed his address, and also his counsel in the convention, and because he was detained at home by personal sickness, an attack of la grippe. Bro. Dill is an earnest champion of true reform, and we are glad to record that he is now better of his illness.

Rev. Thos. M. Chalmers, of Topeka, occupied the evening in a masterly address on "The Masonic System." Bro. Chalmers must be heard to be fully appreciated, though he writes with the pen of a ready writer. He brought the convention to a fitting climax and conclusion. He held an attentive audience for one hour and a quarter.

Some money was raised; several subscriptions for the Christian Cynosure were taken, and some literature sold and given away. In all, we had a good convention. Would have had a larger one had the weather been more favorable; but that is the Lord's doing and we are content.

I have received invitations to return to Clay county and do some further work, and I expect to return early in March. There are many friends of true reform in Clay county. I trust that they may have been strengthened by our work among them.

(Continued on 9th page.)

CORRESPONDENCE.

"JESUITISM A FOE TO OUR REPUBLIC."

[Under this title, President S. M. Hill, of Luther College, read a paper before the State Anti-Secrecy Convention of Nebraska, at Wahoo, October 18, 19, 1892. Its publication in the Cynosures for December 29 and January 5, called forth some severe strictures from the Western Catholic News, of Chicago, and the following letter is President Hill's reply to the criticism of that Romanist organ.—EDITOR CYNOSURE.]

WAHOO, Neb., Jan. 28, 1893.

To the Editor of the Western Catholic News:

In my lecture, "Jesuitism a Foe to Our Republic," I made substantially the same statement that your "Protestant historian," John Lord, makes: "The Roman Catholic church is a tremendous power, entirely removed beyond our influence; it cannot be despised, neither by the most enlightened and cool-headed, nor by the narrowest and most fanatical Protestant." All this I fully admit, and a great deal more. That the Jesuits control 85,000 more members in Illinois than the entire Protestant membership, I fear, is but too true.

That my lecture called forth your denial reveals to me the fact that you were hit in some weak spot. In your attempt to settle the dispute that hitherto has distracted your organization in the United States, namely, the public school question, you found it necessary to pose, as very intensely American, the Irish-Jesuit party styling itself "the progressive party," thus fooling the Protestants to help you in crushing your German parochial schools. This great fact you do not deny. Your officiousness about the Chicago Exhibition, trying to make it practically a Roman Catholic fair; your machinations in getting Mgr. Satolli made a member of the diplomatic corps at Washington; your defiant prophecy that Cleveland would be our next President, and many other things, you do not deny; and these things will, I hope, serve as eye-openers to my fellow-Protestants, while it is yet time.

That the Jesuits "never have been enemies to any legitimate government," is of course true, the way you put it, claiming for yourself the exclusive right to decide what shall constitute a legitimate government. The Vasa dynasty of Sweden and their successors; the reign of Elizabeth, of the Stuarts, and the Hanoverians in England; the reign of the Prince of Orange, in the Netherlands; the reign of Napoleon, and the reign of the French republic, have not been legitimate governments in the estimation of the papal See. It was only last year that the French republic received papal recognition; and has the government at Washington ever been recognized as legitimate? But this I wish distinctly to say to the Italian, as well as to the American Pope, that theirs is not to say what constitutes a legitimate government.

"The mounds of debris of wrecked Lutherans, piled up on all sides these last hundred years," are indeed very great. And what a glorious host they were, "these fallen Lutherans"—these heroic defenders of religious liberty and of liberty of thought! At Breitenfeld and Lytzen I find them hurling back the conquering hosts of that terrible lay-Jesuit, Duke Wallenstein. I am proud of being a lineal descendant of these fallen Lutherans; and I hope when the battles of Breitenfeld and Lytzen have to be fought anew on this continent, I may have some descendants who will, like my forefathers, add to that debris of "fallen Lutherans."

These mounds of debris of wrecked Lutherans are indeed piled up on all sides. The nine hundred massacred by Melendez at St. Augustine, "not as Frenchmen but as Lutherans," the victims of St. Bartholomew—how many thousand were they? the tortures of the Inquisition, the roasting gang of infamous Alba, the glorious three hundred under Bloody Mary—all these you doubtless include among these "fallen Lutherans". I know very well about all of this. My only desire is that all my fellow-Protestants in the United States were equally well-posted. Then it would be utterly needless to state that Jesuitism is a Foe to Our Republic; for then it would be to everybody a self-evident fact.

Yours for light and liberty, S. M. HILL.

MASONRY AND THE CHURCH.

ARCADE, N. Y., Jan. 24, 1893.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—About one and one-half years ago—perhaps two years, or more—a neighbor of mine, named M——, was apparently truly converted to Christ. I had known him, in a general way, as an honorable business man, a moralist. I attend regularly the Congregational meetings. I was much rejoiced when he came to the same evening meetings, and really seemed to be a converted man. He talked and prayed as seeming to show a heart work. He joined that church, and after a while, when one of the deacons died, he was chosen in his place.

At a Bible-class meeting, soon after, we shook hands very heartily, as we had been for some time accustomed to do. I took occasion to remark that that was "a more cordial shake than Masons did or could give." He seemed taken aback. I found, the next day, that he was an adhering Mason, at which I was much surprised.

I then thought that he must be one of the many who had taken three degrees, and had quietly, on account of the horrible oaths, retired from them in silence and disgust.

I sought an opportunity to talk, but he was always too busy to give time.

Last week I determined to sound him. I went to his house and found only his wife and himself at home. By way of introduction I showed him a Butler's Handbook. He took it in his hand, and while reaching for it asked what it was. I replied that it was a work on Masonry that I wished him to read.

He handed it back immediately, with a true Masonic condemnation. That opened the way for a talk. He told me, in answer to inquiries, that he had taken thirty-two degrees; that it was a grand institution, and that in some of the advanced degrees, Christ was acknowledged. I kept cool and asked him about drinking the fifth libation out of a human skull. He flared up and said he was not obliged to tell all he did.

His wife put in the "good men argument," but she saw the confusion of her husband and cordially invited me to call again.

It seems evident that he can't live through the spring. If you know how he may be reached, report. A dose of C. A. Blanchard's "Folly, Expense and Danger" would be good for him; but he will not take it. He is about 70 years old.

We well know that Masonry is a great curse to humanity and an offense to God, and so a crime against divine law, as well as just human statutes. But there is a greater sin even than that; greater because of its own infraction of God's law, and also because it is a bulwark behind which Masonry is shielded from the overcoming power of the attacks made upon it. This particular sin is that of sectarianism. Let me give you a simple example, from among legions of like instances, of succor given to Masonry, which is twin-sister to sectism. The pastor of our Congregational church (who tells me that I am helpful to him in Christian labor, and who tells me that he is decidedly opposed to Masonry) was asked by me why he did not preach against it. His reply was: "I would drive Bro. M—— out of the church!" R. W. LYMAN.

METHODISM AND MASONRY.

DARLINGTON, Mo., Feb., 1893.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—John Wesley, Bishop L. L. Hamline and Bishop Simpson spoke out on the lodge issue. F. E. Willard, Mary Allen West, and many leading Methodists have expressed their opposition to Masonry. On the call of nearly 500 leading college men and clergymen, a conference convened in the First M. E. church building in Chicago, and Rev. Joseph Cook, in that building, fired a cannon-shot at the Christless, un-American lodge.

Pres. C. A. Blanchard lectured to the students of Evanston University against the lodge, and it is the Mecca of Methodism in America and the leading M. E. institution in this country.

Rev. B. Carradine, pastor of the Centenary M. E. church in St. Louis, preached a powerful sermon against lodgery.

At the M. E. quadrennial conference, in Omaha, a strong resolution against the pagan secret orders was presented from the German Methodists of Chicago.

Rev. S. Mathew, an M. E. minister, called a convention against despotic lodgery in Oregon, and wheeled into line over thirty ministers and a local membership of over 400.

The Epworth League papers have been speaking out against the slimy serpent of secrecy that has been so long nursed in the bosom of that powerful denomination.

The one-man power of the episcopacy and of the Masonic lodge are one in sentiment, and the increasing demand for women and lay-representation is a blow at both. Indeed, the rank and file in the old M. E. church, both North and South, are arousing, and the lodge is to find its bitterest struggle for supremacy within the pale of that denomination. Already there is the sound of a going in the tops of the mulberry trees. Almost everywhere the free men in that communion are taking up the great issue that is to rend the denomination as never before. It is the American pew against the Masonic pulpit.

True men and women are tiring of the domineering and favoritism that has faced them at every turn. Gag-law, as applied at Omaha, to suppress the voice of patriotic German Methodists, will not save Masonic clergymen from facing this mightiest religious problem of the ages. How many Methodists, to-day, are actual Masonic sun-worshippers? How will that fact sound on the pages of history a very few years hence? Straws show which way the wind is blowing, and a cyclone is soon to burst in the Methodist ranks that will sweep Masonry as with the whirlwind of God. Hundreds and thousands of M. E. men and women have never in their hearts bowed to this Baal, and now, that the great question must be met, they will not hesitate or falter in the hottest fight. Methodism, to them, does not mean worshipful masters, priests and most excellent grand high priests. Christianity and Americanism mean vastly more than that to them, and they have no use for imperialism and organized paganism when brought face to face with it. God bless the noble men and women who are wheeling into line for truth and light.

M. N. BUTLER.

LITERATURE.

THE BOTTLE. By Rev. B. Carradine, D. D., Pp. 60. Paper covers. A. W. Hall, publisher, Syracuse, N. Y. Price 20 cents.

What seems to be one of the most effective essays on temperance, written by a man of undoubted good judgment and erudition, is embodied in this little work. Not only is its subject-matter full of importance and interest, but the methods of treatment adopted, and its unique illustrations, make it especially attractive. Taking a black whisky bottle, with a wonderful disproportion between the size of its head and body, he passes it through various transformations—making of it a furnace and chimney, belching fumes and flames of passion; inverted, it becomes a cyclone, sweeping all before it, and leaving destruction in its path; then it becomes a club in the hands of a drunken man next, a rifled cannon, slaying thousands; then a car of Juggernaut, rolling over the land, crushing and mangling multitudes; again, inverted, it changes into a wire-glass, symbol of junk-etings and dissipation; then a spade, digging the graves of 100,000 drunkards every year in this country; last of all, despoiled of its head and neck, it serves as a tombstone for those whose destruction it has accomplished. Another pungent illustration is a drunkard viewing the elegant residence of the saloon-keeper, which his own wasted money has assisted in building. The entire book is filled with valuable lessons.

CURRENT PERIODICALS.

The principal papers in the February issue of the re-organized and excellent Home and Country, "an illustrated monthly magazine for the people" (edited by Samuel Jaros, and published at 96 and 98 Maiden Lane, New York City), include: A Visit to the Cloisters on Mt. Sinai, illustrated, by Prof. E. G. Heggner; Saved from Starvation—An Incident from the Life of Ole Bull, illustrated, by Sophia Kane; Citizen or Immigrant? by T. V. Powderly; A Story of Science—Alchemy, Astrology and Astronomy, illustrated, by J. Ross; Zenobia, Queen of Palmyra, illustrated (frontispiece), by Henrietta Bergman; A Persecuted Millionaire, illustrated, by Miss L. L. Whitlock; The Birthday of Geo. Washington, by John C. Ridpath; Peace Congresses and the Peace Flag, illustrated, by Mary Frost Ormsby; From the Sculptor's Studio, illustrated, by Frederick Offerman, R. A., M. A.; The Failings of Our Servants, illustrated; The Wonderful Performances of Yogis and Fakirs—A Condition of Suspended Animation, by Samuel Jaros; with numerous minor matters which will find interested readers. $2.50 a year.

Vick's Floral Guide for 1893 introduces a novel and charming feature in the way of hundreds of beautiful and appropriate poetical quotations from the best authors, making The Poet's Number of Vick's Floral Guide a source of interest and pleasure the whole year. The practical part contains Colored Plates of Alpine Aster, Begonia, Dahlias, Dutchman's Pipe, Clematis, Pansies, Cannas, Corn and Potatoes, hundreds of Engravings; descriptions of the sweetest and most prolific Pea—The Charmer, The Golden Nugget Corn, which was such a favorite last summer, new Roses, new Chrysanthemums, and scores of other grand and good things. Names and prices of everything one could desire in way of Flowers, Vegetables, Plants, Bulbs, etc. Sent for only 10 cents, which can be deducted from the first order; thus it costs nothing. Cash prizes are offered to those who best succeed in raising vegetables from Vick's seeds. Published by James Vick's Sons, Rochester, N. Y.

American Gardening, which comes to us every month, is published in New York City for $1 a year, and during that year supplies its subscribers with more than 800 beautifully printed pages of fresh, bright, readable, practical matter; about 900 choice illustrations that illustrate; the benefit of several large experiment gardens and orchards in widely separate localities; the work of scholarly editors who are skillful horticulturists; a magazine for every lover of nature; the man or woman who owns a geranium, a flower bed, or a costly lawn; every one who "sits under his own vine and fig tree;" the suburban resident and country gentleman; the commercial florist, the fruit grower, and the gardener; artistic plans by landscape architects for laying out grounds, in every issue, such as cost hundreds of dollars in the usual way; and an inquiry department which answers all questions from readers.

The Social Economist for February (New York: School of Social Economics, 34 Union Square East) contains the following papers: The Economic Errors of Trusts, by the editor, Mr. Geo. Gunton; How to Deal with our Immigrants, by Edward Everett Hale; Wages and Profits in Manufacture, by Gen. W. F. Draper; The Standard of Living of English Workers, by Tom Mann, Member of the Royal Labor Commission; An English View of the American Tariff, from the Fortnightly Review; The Month's Doings, by C. S. Robinson; Editorial Crucible; Book Reviews. Published monthly; $2 a year.

The Journal of Hygiene (formerly the Herald of Health), edited and published by Dr. M. L. Holbrook, New York City, in the number for February treats intelligently the topics of Pre-Natal Influences, by Dr. Edward Mann; The Deterioration of Our Food Supply, by Dr. Lewis G. Janes; The Hygienic Treatment of Indigestion (continued), by the editor; Healing by Music (continued), by J. Jay Watson; Notes Concerning Health, No. 19, by the editor; Topics of the Month, and New Books. This is a health magazine for the people, and not in the interest of physicians alone. $1 a year.

Historia, the boys' popular illustrated monthly magazine of historical stories, presents its readers, in the February issue, with the following scenes and events in the world's deeds of heroism: Perkin Warbeck, the English Pretender in the reign of Henry VII.; The Fall of Robespierre; Gen. Morgan's Escape from Prison; An Indian Adventure; Final Victory of the Greeks; The Birth of Day, a poem, by Charles B. Soule; Fighting the Mexicans, concluded, and Tales of the Days of Bruce. Chicago: The Historia Company. $1 a year.

LODGE NOTES.

(From Secret Society Journals.)

MASONIC.

The following curious Masonic paragraphs will show some of the "inwardness" of that order during past years and in foreign lands:

1730. Enacted, that punch will be sold at a profit of five-pence per bottle, and every brother who does not consume half a bottle is to pay a fine of six-pence.

1811. No applicant is to be received without paying the lodge dues in ready money. Carried.

Look at this from the S. C., 1736. "Resolved, That the Stock (funds of the lodge) shall be laid out in Meat," in order that the brethren might provide themselves with the staple article of diet at Cost Price.

Deacons are not mentioned in our records until 1727, when we first find them mentioned in Ireland, on Feb. 2, 1729. The Chairman was first called Grand Master in 1731, and Master in 1735.

Lodge St. Mary, Caledonian and Operative, Inverness, has resolved that the honor of Masonic burial should only be accorded to brethren who have been in active membership for two years previous to decease.

A brother in South Africa, wishing to accompany the Lodge "Star of Africa" to divine service, was refused admittance on the ground that he could not produce a clearance or demit from his Mother Lodge in Melbourne.

The records of some of the lodges dating from the last century, are as amusing as instructive. Take this from the E. C., 1739: Bro. C—on his marriage generously treated the lodge to a gallon of wine.—Chisel in the Keystone, Brisbane.

1753. Bro. — being intoxicated with liquor interrupted our R. W. M. Bro. — in the course of his lectures in Masonry; therefore it was unanimously agreed that he should be fined one bottle of wine for such offence.

—The Connecticut Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons, at New Haven, recently expelled editor B. W. Maples, of the Norwalk Hour, because of "un-Masonic conduct in causing certain articles attacking the Grand Master and the Grand Lodge to be published in his paper." Now why do not the secular papers raise a howl against this narrowness and persecution? If a man will only become heterodox enough in religion to make such attacks against it, and against those who are faithfully trying to maintain it, their cry of illiberality and heresy-hunting is immediately lifted up, and is heard all over the land. A Freemason is dealt with for his unfaithfulness to his lodge and his pledges, and there is only commendation of those who expel him. Why is this thus?—Exchange.

ODD-FELLOWSHIP.

Kirkup Lodge, No. 401, of Cincinnati, Ohio, has been suspended by Grand Master Bowen, for serious violation of the laws of the order, as the following official announcement shows:

WHEREAS, I, W. W. Bowen, by virtue of the authority in me vested as Grand Master of the Independent Order of Odd-fellows of the State of Ohio, did on the 2d day of January, 1893, suspend Kirkup Lodge, No. 401, of the State of Ohio, and all the members of said lodge, from all the rights and privileges belonging to them by reason of their membership in said lodge, for the following reasons, to-wit:

1. For violating sections 206 and 207 of the Constitution of Subordinate Lodges.

2. For initiating candidates and conferring on them the three degrees for the sum of $10.

3. For conferring the first, second and third degrees upon candidates without exacting or receiving any pay for the same.

KNIGHTS OF LABOR.

A delegate to the general assembly of the Knights of Labor, which recently met in St. Louis, is reported in the Republic, of that city, as saying that Negroes do not make good members of labor organizations. He illustrated the point by recalling the organization of the Negroes in the Louisiana sugar district about five

You see the last of Catarrh, if you'll take Doctor Sage's Catarrh Remedy. With the poisonous, irritating snuffs, strong caustic solutions, "creams," balms, and the like—you don't. They may, perhaps, help you for a time. But when Catarrh is driven from the head by such means, something else is sure to suffer. Usually, nine times out of ten, it's the lungs. With Dr. Sage's Remedy, there's a perfect and permanent cure, by sensible methods. The worst chronic cases yield to its mild, soothing, cleansing and healing properties. Not only Catarrh itself, but Catarrhal Headache, Cold in the Head—all the troubles that may cause Catarrh or may come from it. There's either a perfect and permanent cure, no matter how bad your case, or of how long standing—or there's $500 in cash for you. The proprietors of Dr. Sage's Remedy, in perfect good faith, agree and contract to give you one or the other.

The Christian Witness

Is an eight-page undenominational monthly; the official organ of the New Hampshire Christian Association, opposed to secret societies. It advocates Bible Holiness, Church Purity, Sound Morality and Temperance.

Terms: 50 cents a year, or three years for $1.00.

Send stamp for sample copy.

Address S. C. KIMBALL, Box 277, Newmarket, N. H.

THE IMAGE OF THE BEAST

A Secret Empire;

Or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy.

By Rev. Richard Horton.

Third Edition. 200 pages. Cloth.

Price, 60 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
321 W. Madison St., Chicago

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained, and all Patent business conducted for Moderate Fees.

Our Office is Opposite U. S. Patent Office, and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.

Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.

A Pamphlet, "How to Obtain Patents," with names of actual clients in your State, county, or town, sent free. Address,

C. A. SNOW & CO.

Opposite Patent Office, Washington, D. C.

years ago, and the sudden collapse of their organizations during the strike in which, it will be remembered, the State militia and deputy sheriffs took a hand, killing a number of the strikers.

It might be said that the organizations of white men have been known to go to pieces under the same kind of onslaughts also, but what the delegate said is probably true of the Southern Negro. Yet, again, is it not a fact that, generally speaking, the unions and assemblies of white men in the South are weak and unlikely to show staying qualities under stress?

It is certain that the colored man in the North frequently makes as good a union man as his white brother, and in some cases they conduct labor organizations composed exclusively of men of their race very successfully.

No use to deny the fact that Salvation Oil is fast taking the place of all other liniments.

There is no claim made for Ayer's Sarsaparilla which cannot be endorsed by scores of testimonials. This fact plainly proves that the blood is the source of most disorders and that Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best of blood-purifiers. Try it this month.

ANTI-SECRECY TRACTS.

The following numbers are in stock, and can be had at the wholesale price of 25 cents per pound:

4. Freemasonry in the Family.
7. To the Boys who Hope to be Men.
8. Modern Heathenism.
9. Ministers at Rival Altars.
10. A Pastor's Confession.
12. Alexander Campbell's Estimate of the Lodge.
15. Secrecy and Sin.
22. Extracts from Masonic Oaths and Penalties as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.
37. Why a Christian should not be a Freemason (German).
38. Masonic Oaths and Penalties.
39. Should Freemasons be Admitted to Christian Fellowship?
42. Our Duty and Ability to Know the Character of Masonry.
45. Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?

The above are the only tracts in stock in large quantities. There are a few of several other numbers. Remember that these are being retailed at wholesale prices—25 cents per pound. Keep a package of Anti-masonic tracts for use in letters.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,
321 W. Madison St., Chicago.

AGENTS AND LECTURERS.

NEW ENGLAND DEPARTMENT.—Rev. J. P. Stoddard, Agent, 218 Columbus Ave., Hotel Howland, Boston.

EASTERN DEPARTMENT.—W. B. Stoddard, Agent, No. 215, 4½ St., Washington, D. C.

CENTRAL DEPARTMENT.—Rev. M. A. Gault, Blanchard, Ia.

WESTERN DEPARTMENT.—Rev. W. C. Paden, Oakland, Kan.

PACIFIC DEPARTMENT.—, address Rev. S. Mathew, Canby, Oregon.

COLLEGE AGENT, Rev. S. F. Porter Cynosure office.

OTHER LECTURERS.

- C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
Rev. H. H. Hinman, Oberlin, O.
Nathan Callender Montdale Pa.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
T. B. McCormick, Princeton, Ind.
E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
H. A. Day, Brighton, Mich.
J. M. Bishop, Chambersburg, Pa.
A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
W. M. Love, Osceola, Mo.
J. K. Glassford, Carthage, Mo.
Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Minn.
J. S. Perry, Thompson, Conn.
Rev. E. Mathews, Long Island City, N. Y.
E. Barnettson, Haskinsville, N. Y.
D. A. Richards, Brighton, Mich.
A. W. Parry, Evanston, Ill.

SCOTCH RITE MASONRY ILLUSTRATED.

The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all Masonic rites, and are fully and accurately given in

"FREEMASONRY ILLUSTRATED,"

as advertised, but the signs, grips, passwords etc., of these three degrees are given at the close of Vol 2 of

"Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated"

Vol. 1 of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3d to 18th inclusive. Vol. 2 of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 19th to 33d inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive. Price per volume, paper cover, 50 cents each, in cloth, $1 each. Each volume per dozen, paper covers, $4; per dozen, cloth bound, $9.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern. Table of Contents: The Antiquity of Secret Societies, The Life of Julian, The Eleusinian Mysteries, The Origin of Masonry, Was Washington a Mason? Fillmore and Webster's Deference to Masonry, A Brief Outline of the Progress of Masonry in the United States, The Tammany Ring, Masonic Benevolence, The Uses of Masonry, An Illustration, The Conclusion. 50c each.

THE N. C. A. BUILDING
(The gift of Philo Carpenter.)

The Christian Cynosure,

221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO

The National Christian Association

PRESIDENT—Rev. M. A. Gault, Blanchard, Iowa.

VICE PRESIDENT—John Dorcas, Tipton, Iowa.

FIELD SEC'Y and TREASURER—W. I. Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

CORRESPONDING SEC'Y—Rev. H. L. Kellogg, Wheaton, Ill.

REC. SECRETARY—Mrs. E. A. Cook Chicago.

DIRECTORS—T. B. Arnold, C. A. Blanchard, E. A. Cook, J. M. Hitchcock, G. R. Milton, J. P. Richards, E. Whipple, E. R. Worrell, Edgar Wylie, W. M. Howie, H. F. Kletsing.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS.

NEW ENGLAND.—Pres., Rev. J. M. Foster, Boston, Mass.; Sec'y, Miss E. E. Flagg, Wellesley, Mass.; Treas., L. E. Lincoln, Boston.

CONNECTICUT.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Willimantic; Sec., David J. Ellsworth, Windsor; Treas., C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.—Pres., Rev. R. W. Chesnut, Marissa; Sec., Rev. J. R. Wylie, Coulterville; Treas., Rev. W. I. Phillips, Cynosure office, Chicago.

IOWA.—Pres., John Dorcas, Tipton; Sec., Rev. T. P. Robb, Linton; Treas., Rev. L. Mendenhall, Fairfield.

KANSAS.—Pres., Rev. C. H. Strong, Lawrence; Vice-Pres., Rev. J. L. Countermine, Hiawatha; Sec., Rev. D. H. Coulter, Winchester; Treas., Rev. B. B. Paull, Neosho Falls.

NEBRASKA.—Pres., Rev. W. I. Brooks, Pawnee City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. G. Widen, Mead; Sec., Howard P. Young, Wahoo; Treas., Rev. T. H. Dabney, Hooper.

MAINE.—Pres., Isaac Jackson, Harrison; Sec., I. D. Haines, Dexter; Treas., H. W. Goddard, West Sidney.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Pres., S. A. Pratt, Worcester.

MICHIGAN.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec., H. A. Day, Brighton; Treas., Geo. Swanson, Jr., Bedford.

MINNESOTA.—Pres., S. B. Sjoblom, Ferguson Falls; Cor. Sec., Wm. Fenton, St. Paul; Rec. Sec., Mrs. M. F. Morrill, St. Charles; Treas., Wm. H. Morrill, St. Charles.

MISSOURI.—Pres., B. F. Miller, Eagleville; Treas., William Beauchamp, Avalon; Cor. Sec., A. D. Thomas, Avalon.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—Pres., Robt. A. Frohock, Alton; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., James F. French, Canterbury.

NEW YORK.—Pres., Rev. S. R. Wallace, Syracuse; Sec., Rev. W. H. Clark, Binghamton; Treas., Lucius Woodruff, Binghamton.

OHIO.—Pres., J. W. Martin, Mt. Perry; Rec. Sec., A. T. Vestal, Senecaville; Cor. Sec. and Treas., E. Thomson, Senecaville.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Pres., R. J. George, D. D., Beaver Falls; Cor. Sec., J. S. T. Milligan, Pittsburgh; Treas., R. C. Wylie, Wilkinsburg.

WISCONSIN.—Pres., J. B. Galloway, Poyette; Sec., Isaiah Falls, Vernon; Treas., J. W. Wood, Baraboo.

The Christian Cynosure.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 16, 1893.

Woe unto them that seek deep to hide their counsel from the Lord, and their works are in the dark, and they say, Who seeth us? and Who knoweth us?—ISAIAH 29: 15.

SECRET LABOR UNIONS AND CRIME.

A paragraph in the New York Voice of February 2 announces that "Hugh F. Dempsey, who was recently convicted of having poisoned non-union workmen at the Homestead (Pa.) steel works, has been unanimously re-elected Master Workman of District Assembly No. 3, Knights of Labor of Pittsburgh;" and adds: "The Assembly believes implicitly in Dempsey's innocence."

Nothing has been more common than the claim that all the secret organizations, with the possible exception of such as the Mafia and Clan-na-Gael, are always subordinate to civil authority, and are conducted by purely legal methods. The conviction of any criminal by a lawful jury has been supposed to be a bar to membership; certainly, to official position.

That multitudes of well-meaning men in all these organizations have held this view is quite apparent. That this has been the belief of the great majority of the people, including such apologists and defenders as the Union Signal and the Voice, is also evident. Both of these able and excellent journals are committed to the support of these secret labor unions, though they would most earnestly deprecate all injustice that is done in their name.

Such an example, however, ought to teach them that while the avowed purpose of these organizations may be praiseworthy, their methods are such as invariably lead to crime; and that any organization based on sworn secrecy and implicit obedience to the mandates of the organization is selfish in its principles, and is, at least, liable to be used for unrighteous ends.

Men never resort to the use of unrighteous methods without, sooner or later, coming to seek for unlawful objects.

The African slave-trade is an illustration. It was undertaken for two laudable purposes—to preserve the lives of the West Indians, and to give to the African the knowledge of Christianity. But the end did not sanctify the means, and the unspeakable horrors of the middle passage, and the dreadful wickedness of the entire system, were some of the fruits.

There are certain things that can never be carried on in accordance with Christian principles. Among these are war and the secret organizations that are conducted on military principles. When Dr. Rainsford's church-saloon shall have been proved a beneficent institution, it will be time for our reform journals to plead for the secret lodge.

"JESUITISM A FOE TO OUR REPUBLIC."

An interesting letter under this title appears on the 5th and 6th pages of this issue of the Cynosure, from the pen of Pres. S. M. Hill, of Luther College, Wahoo, Neb. It needs no apology or comment.

In this connection, our readers may have noticed in the proceedings of the Illinois State Anti-secrecy Convention, at Coultersville, brief mention of an address delivered by Rev. R. W. Chesnut, now the able President of the Illinois State Christian Association. Bro. Chesnut's address was entitled: "Jesuitism a Foe of Civil and Religious Liberty," and the following is a summary of its principal points:

I. Jesuitism—what is it? It seems to have been a religious order, but Chiniquy's "Fifty Years in the Church of Rome" declares that it is a military organization: "Jesuitism is a military organization, not a religious order. Their chief is the general of an army, not the mere Father Abbot of a monastery. And the aim of this organization is, power. Power in the most despotic exercise. Absolute power, universal power, power to control the world by the volition of a single man." (Page 684)

II. How is Jesuitism the enemy of civil liberty? They are at sworn enmity to all Protestant governments; as is seen from the following extract from the Jesuit oath: "I do renounce and disown any allegiance as due any heretical king, prince or State named Protestant, or obedience to any of their inferior magistrates or officers." Here they have taken a treasonable oath, and their actions show that they mean to do all in their power to carry it out.

Cardinal Manning, speaking in the name of the Pope, said: "I acknowledge no civil power; I am the subject of no prince; and I claim more than this. I claim to be the supreme judge and director of the consciences of men." In order that the Church of Rome may do this the more easily they have organized themselves into secret societies, the principal of which are: "The Ancient Order of Hibernians," "Irish-American Society," "Knights of St. Patrick," "St. Patrick Cadets," "St. Patrick Mutual Alliance," "Benevolent Sons of the Emerald Isle," "Knights of St. Peter," "Knights of the Red Branch," and many others. The most of these are military organizations. They have their headquarters at San Francisco; while the rank and file are scattered all over the United States. Eight or ten years ago they numbered about 700,000 soldiers, who, under the name of United States Volunteer Militia, were officered by some of the most skillful generals of this country. Again we charge them with treason.

III. How is Jesuitism the enemy of religious liberty? We show this, first, from their oath. "I do further declare the doctrine of the Church of England, of the Calvinists, Huguenots and other Protestants, to be damnable, and those to be damned who will not forsake the same. I do further declare that I will help, assist and advise all or any of His 'Holiness' agents, in any place where I shall be, and to do my utmost to extirpate the heretical Protestant doctrine, and to destroy their pretended power, regal or otherwise." Again, the Shepherd of the Valley, a Catholic paper, says: "If Catholics ever gain a sufficient majority in this country religious freedom is at an end." The New York Freeman says: "No man has a right to choose his religion." Hundreds of other quotations could be given to prove these same charges. As a nation, as a church, and as individuals, we must be on our guard against this giant evil, the organization of Jesuitism.

After reading these extracts, in the words of the high priest at the "trial" of the Lord Jesus Christ: "What further need have we of witnesses; behold now ye have heard (their) blasphemy."

THE REVOLUTION IN HAWAII.

The recent deposition of the Queen of Hawaii, and the hasty appeal of the revolutionists for annexation to the United States, is probably not the result of any change of the general convictions of the people, and surely not of the native population. It is rather an outbreak of the foreign element, in which American influence largely predominated. The end in view is not so much the good of the Hawaiians as the selfish gain of the revolutionists.

If this little kingdom of about 90,000 people, whose native population has for many years been slowly waning, could of its own unbiased choice, and without any complications with European nations, become a part of our nation, it might be a benefit to them and to us. Its situation makes it a convenient half-way house on the route to the Asiatic nations, and to the outpost for the vast missionary region in the islands to the south and west. Whenever it shall drop, as a ripe apple, into our national lap, we may do well to receive it.

On Thursday of last week, it was publicly announced, by way of San Francisco, that the Hawaiian islands were on the 1st instant placed under a protectorate established by the United States Minister Stevens. This protectorate is to continue until the negotiations now in progress at Washington have resulted in an additional and more definite disposition of the island. The measure adopted by Minister Stevens met with the cordial approval of Captain Wiltse, commanding the naval steamship Boston, which is stationed at Honolulu to protect the rights and property of American citizens. The stars and stripes were placed over the royal edifice simultaneously with the issue of the minister's proclamation of the protectorate.

It is noteworthy that prior to the establishment of the United States protectorate, all the foreign governments represented on the islands had signified their recognition of the provisional dynasty, subject, however, to the approval of their several home governments.

The government at Washington will, it is likely, be very deliberate in adopting any additional measures looking to the annexation, without their knowledge or consent, of a vast number of Chinese, Japanese, and Europeans, as well as the semi-civilized natives.

THE INDIAN FIGHT AT PINE RIDGE.

There seems to be an inclination, on the part of certain army officers and government officials, to make the recent Indian outbreak at Pine Ridge, South Dakota, appear but a trivial incident. The facts show that four whites (cowboys) were murdered by a party of Sioux, and that the latter were immediately slain by the authorized band of Indian police. Additional particulars indicate, if the press reports may be relied upon, that the trouble is really very serious. Wandering is going on all over the Pine Ridge reservation, and an outbreak, now prevented by the inclemency of the weather, it is feared, will assume dangerous proportions in the spring. It is stated, also, that the settlers in that vicinity are alarmed and are asking for immediate military protection.

Dr. Eastman, the educated Indian who married Miss Goodale, and whose charges of bad faith toward the Indians by the government officials caused his removal recently, declares that an uprising is imminent. This view is taken, also, by Dr. Magillcuddy, so long and intimately associated with Indian affairs.

Behind all this turmoil and alarm are charges of misfeasance and general wrong-doing on the part of government officials, which should be promptly investigated, and, if sustained, as promptly punished.

BOYS' BRIGADES AGAIN.

From a late number of the Boys' Brigade Courier we clip the following:

Strong objection has been taken to the brigade, and the Peace Society of Great Britain has waged war against it, on the ground of its military organization and, as they say, its tendency to make the boys lovers of war and military life. The nine years' experience of the brigade is a complete answer to the objection. The boys are taught to love peace and follow the Prince of Peace. Few, indeed, have become regular soldiers, and a smaller proportion than might have been expected have become volunteers. Nevertheless, the young men trained in the brigade will be ready at their country's call to fight her battles, if needed, and will make all the better soldiers by reason of their early training in the boys' brigade."

We are glad to know that the Peace societies of England are making moral war on this system of folly and sin. So long as they are but boys, and no war calls for them, they may be expected to remain peaceful. But surely if they learn the art of war, and especially learn to love it, they may be expected to engage in any war that may occur. Indeed, this is what is contemplated.

The promoters of these brigades are deliberately training these children to be butchers of men. They contemplate their being made food for bombshells, seeing them impaled on bayonets, or dying in military camps, hospitals, and prisons. They take credit to themselves for wonderful patriotism in that they have so trained our youth that in the event of any war, however iniquitous, they shall be actuated by the law of hate, and shall plunge into all the cruelties and abominations that are inseparable from military operations. They do this as the avowed followers of Him who said: "Love your enemies;" "Resist not evil;" "He that taketh the sword shall perish by the sword."

Away with such perversion of Christianity! The Lord save our boys from all such unholy influences!

—Some clergyman complains that the devil occupies the back seats in his church. We have our opinion of any church that has the devil for a pew-holder.

—Miss Susan F. Hinman, daughter of Rev. H. H. Hinman, won the prize in the recent oratorical contest in Oberlin College. Our brother has our congratulations.

—Rev. M. A. Gault last week addressed six meetings in and around Princeton, Ind. He thinks a State convention can be held there, for several churches are ready to co-operate; but he will not be able to announce definitely until he visits Bloomington and other points.

—The Postmaster-General has issued an order establishing a post-office in the Government Building at the Columbian Exposition. It will be known as "the World's Fair station."

—Messiah's Herald, of Boston, says of the late ex-President Blanchard's "Sermons and Addresses": "It is full of fire, and at times is very eloquent." For sale at this office; price 75 cts.

—The American Citizen, of Boston, recently printed several columns of names of Irish Roman Catholics who hold office in that city. Native Americans seem to be merely a colony in the old Puritan capital.

—Beatty, charged with important participation in the wholesale poisoning of non-union workmen at Homestead, has been found guilty on all the six indictments against him. It was a dastardly crime.

—Rev. William Fenton, February 7, writes from Minnesota that he was well and planning to speak in behalf of our reform at two or three points at an early date, one appointment being for last Monday evening. We look for a report of his success there and elsewhere.

—Cholera already appears in several European localities, and with warm weather its ravages will probably increase. Whether the epidemic will prevail here it is too soon to predict. But the most careful precautions will have to be taken to avert its dangers if it comes among us.

—Rev. J. G. White was arrested and forbidden by the authorities of Waukegan, Ill., to lecture in that city on Romanism. The mob spirit of the Romanists was so strong as to influence the mayor in their behalf, and White narrowly escaped lynching. And yet this is a free country!

—Investigation of the notorious whisky trust by a congressional committee has thus far developed a remarkable amount of crime, including conspiracy, murder and arson. When the details are collected and published, the whole will form an indictment against the whisky traffic that should speedily lead to its utter annihilation.

—The New Republic, the official paper of the Prohibition party of Nebraska, is published at the capital of that State, by Frederick & Hamilton, and presents many strong claims for a liberal patronage. It affords a fine channel whereby the Prohibition party can reach the rank and file with the latest authentic information respecting the progress of the cause in Nebraska.

—The Grand Lodge of Freemasons in Connecticut recently ordered the expulsion of Editor B. W. Maples, of the Norwalk Hour, because of un-Masonic conduct in causing certain articles attacking the Grand Master and the Grand Lodge to be published in his paper. "Discipline must be maintained." Criticism of the lodge, and especially the Grand Lodge, is not to be tolerated.

—The Reformed Presbyterian Advocate remarks that "The National Christian Association has the broadest platform of any reform organization in America." True, and all Christians, whatever their denomination, are invited to seats on this platform, provided that they do not belong to, or favor, secret organizations, or practice immorality; for our constitution does not embrace such membership.

—Rev. S. F. Porter, the college agent, writing from Nottoway Court House, Va., on the 9th inst., says: "People here are more affected by the uncommonly severe winter than they are farther north. This morning the thermometer was 20 degrees above zero, sufficiently cold, if we had a little snow, to stop all outside going here. I have appointments at colored missions for three Sabbaths—February 12, 19 and 26; after which (D. V.) I expect to leave South Virginia."

—Death has been unusually busy in reaping victims by storms and disaster during the past month. By the loss of the Anchor Line steamer Tinacria, on the coast of Spain, thirty of her crew and four women perished. Dreadful floods in Queensland (Australia) inundated several towns and a large district of country, causing damage to the amount of $15,000,000, and drowning more than fifty persons. The island of Zante was shaken by an earthquake. Many houses were wrecked and the dome of the prison collapsed, killing a score of prisoners. Word comes by way of Athens that over 100 natives met death. Fifteen passengers were swept overboard from the deck of an ocean steamship by a gigantic wave which nearly wrecked the vessel. Wise as men are becoming, and numerous as are the inventions to preserve life and secure comfort, God Almighty still holds the reins that guide the elements, and governs the ways of men.

—C. H. Chase, writing to the Free Methodist, of this city, gives a succinct report of the recent State Anti-secrecy Convention of Poynette, Wis., in which occurs this significant sentence: "What struck me most in the convention was the Christ-like spirit manifested. Such conventions can but hasten the coming of the kingdom of Christ." The reports of all our reform conventions of last fall and this winter seem to indicate an encouraging degree of spirituality, which should lie at the base of all true reform work.

—On page 13 of this issue we print an obituary sketch of the late Geo. Thompson, of Oberlin, O., who recently passed peacefully away at a ripe old age, leaving behind him the record of an eventful career, of which any Christian man or woman might well be proud. As one who in early life suffered much tribulation for righteousness' sake, and who remained on earth until his arduous anti-slavery work culminated in the Emancipation Proclamation of 1863, he bequeathes to posterity the practical exposition of Galatians 6: 9.

—Rev. W. B. Stoddard, who is engaged in "working up" the approaching Pennsylvania State Anti-secrecy Convention with his usual ability and industry, writes that as the time for it draws near he finds that the interest increases. This is gratifying news, and there is reason to believe that the convention will be the equal, if not the superior, of any of the Keystone State gatherings in behalf of our reform. At present, in fair health, he is busily circulating programs and arranging details with a view to triumphant success.

—In the Homestead trials, Captain Burt, of the Pinkerton force, described the riot-battle, testifying that his men on the barges restrained their onslaught on the strikers until fifteen shots had been fired at them from the crowd on the shore. When the Pinkertons returned the fire, they aimed at those strikers who had invaded the mill property, scattering them right and left. Then, after more fighting, the Pinkertons were repulsed. What would Homestead have done, had not the State troops been sent to re-inforce the Pinkertons?

—Count Ferdinand de Lesseps, the famous French civil engineer, who planned the Suez canal and other important public works, now eighty-seven years of age, has been found guilty, with his son, of complicity in the recent enormous Panama Canal frauds, and each has been sentenced to a term of five years' imprisonment and to pay fines of 3,000 francs. It is one of the saddest commentaries possible on the insatiate greed of modern speculators, that such a man as De Lesseps should sacrifice his fair fame and liberty, at his age, in so foul a scheme, simply because he thought there was money in it.

—Mr. Moody, during his recent visit to Chicago, determined to enlarge the Women's Department of the Bible Institute at once. Three houses adjoining the present location were secured and were ready for occupancy February 6th. Among those making application as teachers from the South desiring three months' study, thus using their vacation. To assist some of these, scholarships of $45, for three months, are needed. Application may be made to Mrs. S. B. Capron, Supt. Women's Dept., of the Bible Institute, 230 La Salle Avenue, Chicago, Ill. This school is entirely supported by donations, and no charge is made for tuition.

—Six ladies of the Woman's Alliance (supposed to be Protestants) recently called at the "House" (convent) "of the Good Shepherd," in Chicago, with a desire to learn how the "Sisters" managed their charitable work, and with what success. They were refused admittance, however; and the Catholic Review, calling them "a gang," says: "There were six in all, six idle creatures, whose boldness and brazen-cheekedness was only equaled by their bad manners and boorish act. What is wanted at that convent is a couple of sensible dogs to speak to such callers, and save the poor Sisters' nerves." Had they been six Catholic Sisters applying at a Protestant Asylum for information, would they have merited or received this coarse refusal and abuse?

—But a few days remain of the present Republican dynasty. President Harrison retires with the loss of two very near and dear to him, probably with a sigh of relief that he is free again. Mr. Cleveland, dogged at every step by a horde of hungry office-seekers, will at the same time enter upon a second Presidential term, which he has an opportunity to make brilliant and effective in the advancement of his country's best interests. Will he do it?

—The barbarity of pagans and zealots in past ages, when the most diabolical forms of torture were invented, has been recently revived in all its horrors at Paris, Tex. The victim was a Negro murderer—at least such was the alleged crime for which he had been arrested. An angry mob declared that his death must be summary, without the formality of a trial. Ten thousand persons gathered to witness his sufferings. He was tied to a stake and tortured with hot irons for fifty minutes. Then kerosene was poured over him, cotton-seed hulls were placed under him, and he was burned to a cinder. The details are sickening—too revolting to reprint. Better to fight beasts at Ephesus than to encounter a howling, murderous mob actuated by hatred of a despised race, and capable of such heaven-daring deeds of cruelty.

REFORM NEWS (Continued from 5th page.)

A permanent county Christian Association was organized, auxiliary to the State Christian Association. Dr. D. M. Gillespie, of Clay Center, was elected president of the county Christian Association for one year, and Rev. D. J. White, of Clay Center, was elected secretary and treasurer for one year. We hope thus to forward the work more and more. You shall hear from my work down here. Yours in the Lord's work,

W. C. PADEN.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—Bro. Paden has doubtless reported this convention, but I wish to add a few lines.

I have of late attended three State conventions devoted to our reform, but this is the first county convention. It was a success from the start. The attendance was good, especially considering the weather, which was bitterly cold.

My observation has convinced me that it is a good thing for the Anti-masonic cause to combine issues, as was done in this latest convention. Other reforms are pressingly critical just now, and Bro. Paden very wisely gave place to the Sabbath and Temperance reforms. I notice that we secure a larger attendance by these means. Besides, we obtain an opportunity of showing how these various reforms are related and hinder the growth in ourselves of narrow and selfish views regarding the main reform that is now our purpose to push. This broadening of aim and sympathy can be neglected only to our hurt.

On the Sabbath question, we had from Bro. Carnahan the next ablest address to which I ever listened. But to Bro. Paden is due the main credit for the success of this convention. He planned and carried out a vigorous two-weeks' campaign preliminary to our meeting, and enlisted the interest of many over the county. Such work as this pays, and Bro. Paden is well fitted for it. He is able to meet the people so as to win their confidence and support. The N. C. A. will do well to keep him in the field permanently. He has gained much by the experience of the past year, and is now become too valuable to be cast off for some one as yet untried. Experience counts for much in this reform work. Bro. Paden had a new speech on a new topic in this convention, on Odd-fellowship, and showed that the system is most thoroughly anti-Christian. He goes to the original sources of information, as we all should. He is becoming thoroughly posted on the main principles of the Masonic religion, and presents his conclusions in a very kind spirit, so that none need take offence. Some are hurt, but it is the truth that hurts them.

I hope to see Bro. Paden continuing in his present work. He is helping to subsoil the national conscience, a thing that must be done, or the nation will be lost.

Topeka, Kansas.

THOS. M. CHALMERS.

THE HOME.

A TENDER WORD.

A tiny spring sent bubbling forth
Its waters pure and white.
They flowed into a cavern deep,
And soon were lost to sight.
Yet in a valley far below,
A mighty river lay,
Whose source was in the mountain spring,
So many miles away.

A tender word from heart of love,
A King's child spake one day;
Beneath the mighty rocks of sin
It seemed to sink away.
Yet noble was the life of one,
So faithful and so true,
And from the little word of love,
This life of service grew.

—L. E. Jones, in Young Men's Era.

GOD TALKS TO US IN THE BIBLE.

F. B. Meyer says, "No one can live a life of faith without seasons of prolonged waiting on God in the loving study of the Bible and in prayer. . . . And of the two things, the devout meditation on the Word is more important to soul-health than even prayer. It is more needful for you to hear God's words than that God should hear yours, though the one will always lead to the other. To the same effect is Mr. Moody's remark that, if he were to live his Christian life over again, he should "study the Bible more and pray less."

Why do such men as Meyer and Moody say this? There are two reasons given in 1 Thess. 2: 13.

1. The Bible is the Word of God. If we believe that God is speaking to us in his Word, we shall study it—as a railroad man of my acquaintance did to find the 24,994 promises which he had never claimed.

2. It effectually worketh in them that believe (cf. Hebrews 4: 2) as Emerson's essays worked in Tyndall, to make him the scientist that he is. The Bible inworketh:

- (1) To transform, Jas. 1: 18.
- (2) To enlighten, Ps. 119: 105.
- (3) To cleanse, John 15: 3.
- (4) To sanctify, John 17: 17.
- (5) To keep, Ps. 17: 4.
- (6) To comfort, Rom. 15: 4.
- (7) To strengthen, Acts 20: 32.
- (8) To equip for work, 2 Tim. 3: 17.

Is the Bible doing this for you? If not, it's your own fault. You don't give it half a chance. You do not take time to read it prayerfully and "Meditate therein day and night." Ps. 1: 2.—Selected.

THE VALUE OF HOME RELIGION.

Keep the home fires alive. These are the engines that keep in motion life's machinery. When your place of prayer falls into disuse, when the Bible is not consulted daily, when the home-life is below the church-life, things are on a decline. I am satisfied the failures are first in the home-life of the soul. It is true, then, that the private means of grace are of prime importance. In a certain sense, each soul must solve the problem for himself, in the chamber of his own secret living. We live at home before we live in public. The great bulk of moral life is private not public. We cannot long keep the public profession and walk on a higher level than the home living.

Let the home-altar of prayer be kept up. We who have had the benefit of the family altar from infancy can never measure its value. My mind was called to this only a few mornings since, by a sister at the altar, just beginning Christian life, and feeling called to erect the family altar, who asked me plainly what to do at the family altar—how and what was to be done. I had hardly thought till then, how the idea appeared to one who had never known the privilege of living in a family where this was the custom. I tried to tell her what a family altar was, and she seemed satisfied and helped, and glad that she could begin at once. Two or three essential things are always in place—prayer, reading the Word, and a song of praise, if there are those that can sing. There is no set rule. Vary the custom as to length and manner, to suit those present and the circumstances of the day. Above all, keep the service from becoming a dry, dull routine.

Do not be too easily discouraged. It is true the children may not understand the reading. I remember when I did not; but I cannot remember the time when I did not feel the influence, even though the understanding had not come to age. Family worship, where the spirit of worship is, is a true character-builder for the children. But it is no less so for ourselves.

The same may be said of private prayer, and the personal reading of the Word of God. Our personal home worship, in its uniform modes, methods, and tides, gauge what we are out of home. The real spiritual outward endowment is always so proportioned. The measure God reaches with us alone, is the measure of our reach for others. If we are only affected in the head, we shall only affect them in the head. If our heart is reached then God can use us to reach other hearts. If we have reached the kingdom of love, we can be used of God to help others into the kingdom.

While it is true that public meetings have great central elements of power, it is also true, that the exponent of power is correctly represented by the measure of home religion the children of God possess.

Build, then, the family altar. Make a business of having more merchantable home religion. If it will win in the home life, it will win in the outside life.—Isaiah Reed, Editor Highway.

GEORGE MULLER.

The quality of Mr. Muller's faith is very generally misunderstood. Most persons think that he simply believes with an extraordinary confidence when praying, and that this secures all the great results to which he calls attention. This, however, is not the quality of his faith. His whole life is made to harmonize with his faith. It would be impossible for any Christian who did not live constantly in an atmosphere of trust to put forth special acts of faith on special occasions. A man of faith is a man of God who has bid farewell to the feverish ambition of the world, who has learned to desire God himself more than all earthly good, and would be perfectly willing to accept an existence in which there should be nothing left to him except God. Mr. Muller has thoroughly mastered the whole subject of faith; not an abstract principle, but as a practical duty and blessed privilege.

Another striking thing about this good man's faith is the prominence which he gives to persistent, or, in more common phrase, importunate, prayer. His faith looks steadily at its object, as a telescope at its star. Years of waiting may pass; but, though the answer tarries, he is none the less sure that it will come. Here is the weakest point in ordinary prayers. Most people pray as if trying an experiment. It may succeed, and it may not. There may be use in trying it; hence they offer a few petitions, and, if no result is visible, they give it up. Not so with a man of faith. He first enquires if the object is according to the will of God, and, when he is assured on this point, he prays with the confidence of absolute certainty.

One more point in Mr. Muller's teaching has impressed us deeply. It is the emphasis with which he prays "for Christ's sake". We are too apt to use these words as a phrase only, forgetting that the object of our desires is one which our Saviour desires for us far more than we wish it ourselves; we forget that Jesus suffered, not only that we might live, but that we might receive each of the various things which we desire in prayer; and we should ask it for his sake, not for our own sakes. Very, very few Christians ever learn what transcendent power dwells in the words "for Christ's sake"; and until the believer learns how to seek every blessing, not for his own sake, but, for the sake of his Master, can he exercise the faith which takes no denial.

Mr. Muller is a man of spiritual power; and, as such, is worthy of observation and study. His life is quiet, very quiet, like the flow of a mighty river. Smaller streams are noisy and foamy, but quietness is one of the signs of giant might in holy men. He is simple as a child, and as teachable as a child. His methods are simple, and his life free from ostentation. No one can discover, by listening to him, whether he is a scholar or not. He shows no signs of ignorance, and yet makes not the slightest display of learning. He uses the weapons of truth with such absolute confidence that, to those who do not understand the hidings of his power, he seems devoid of energy. It is the quietness of conscious power which makes him go about his work with the utmost simplicity and gentleness. His power is in God. He understands thoroughly his own weakness and the narrow limitations of human weakness in its best state; but he also understands and realizes the boundless possibilities of a Christian believer, when allied with omnipotence in the person of Jesus Christ. The mightiest men of earth to-day are small enough in the eyes of the world, but they are known and loved of God, and are going on with their good work of pulling down strongholds and building up the interests of the kingdom of God on earth.—Bishop Thoburn, in the India Witness.

ONLY MY MOTHER.

A heathen woman said that the Bible must have been written by a woman, for it says so many kind things of women, while their sacred books say nothing of the kind. The degradation of womanhood, throughout the East, is well known, and is as marked as the exaltation where the light of the Gospel shines. Especially among Mohammedans is this contempt for womanhood noticeable. A Mohammedan apologizes with an expression of contempt when speaking of his wife.

The Mohammedan's scorn of women is the logical outcome of his religion, which refuses to recognize their claim as human beings deserving of respect. As they are of use to man, they are worth food and shelter, but they are not in the least entitled to standing-ground at his side. The Countess Cowper, in "A Month in Palestine," gives an instance, far more telling than any sermon, of this dreadful state of things: "I was told by a Christian in Cairo that he was once walking with a well-to-do Mohammedan, with whom he was intimate, and who had often discussed with him the different positions of women in their respective sects. As they passed an old veiled figure in the street, who shrank on one side out of their way, the follower of the prophet delivered a passing kick at her.

"There," said the Christian, "that is what I complain of. You kick a woman as we would not kick even a dog."

"That," said the Mohammedan, with a look of astonishment—"why, that is only my mother!"

And yet infidels will say smooth words of the Mohammedans, who despise womanhood, and of the heathen, who murder their parents and children; and blaspheme Moses, who said, "Honor thy father and thy mother"; and speak with contempt of Jesus, who said, "Suffer little children to come unto me."

POWER OF A LOOKING-GLASS.

Miss Gertrude, a well-reared, and what is called a fashionable girl, had recently joined one of the many modern Christian societies whose object is to reduce the sum of human misery. She now wore a plain silver cross tied with a ribbon to match her dress.

The ten girls that formed the band to which she belonged were enthusiastic, and met once a week in a luxurious home, sewed for the poor, drank tea, and discussed how society could be reformed.

Gertrude said little. She thought more than she talked, and her thought took this form: "Ought I to be satisfied only with encouraging what is merely good morals or good manners?" She was a sincere girl, without cant, and when she began to read the New Testament with the idea of finding an answer to her question, she said nothing about it.

That Christianity demanded a personal sacrifice, the Bible, the pulpit and her education readily told her; but what sacrifice, and how to sacrifice? Her duty eluded the fashionable girl, and she grew morbid over it.

It came to her one day in a very simple form, as most duty does to us all. A ragged, dirty woman jostled against her in the street. Instinctively she shrank; but the repulsive woman put out her hand to stop her.

"What do you want?" asked Gertrude, frightened.

"I want money," said the woman.

Gertrude was a plucky girl, and as it was against her principles to give money to beggars in the street, she stepped back and shook her head resolutely. The woman followed her, and said almost fiercely:—

"If I can't have money, I want a friend. I'm hard up. I'm hungry. My fire's out. My daughter's sick. She's your age. The children are starving. I'm at my wit's ends. I tell you I want a friend."

She spoke as one almost in despair.

"I will try to be your friend," said the young lady impulsively. "Show me where you live."

It was a hazardous thing to do; but the young girl thought she recognized the chance she had been looking for, and accompanied the wretched woman to her home. It was in a tenement both low and foul. Poverty was there, and sickness was there, sin was there, and dirt in mournful abundance.

Gertrude took the filthy family for her share of the work that the little silver cross demanded, and in simple deed and truth made herself what had been asked of her, the friend of the most wretched people she had ever seen.

But the dirt baffled her. In vain she showed them how to be clean, and tried every pretty art of persuasion and of bribe. The family would have done almost anything for her in gratitude, but keep clean they could not, or they would not.

An expedient occurred to her. One day she carried a large looking-glass into the disorderly place, and quietly hung it up on the blackened walls. Curiosity did the rest. The mother and the children had to see how they looked.

The effect was magical. Shame compelled washed faces and hands. Clean aprons followed; in a little while the floors were scrubbed; the beds were made.

The influence of that looking-glass spread throughout the tenement. In a few months Gertrude's family were decent of habit. Water and soap came into favor. Health and good morals followed cleanliness. Christian purpose, a sensible girl, and a looking-glass did it.—Youth's Companion.

SWEET COURTESIES OF LIFE.

Every Christian grace should be cultivated from early childhood. The little words "please" and "thank you," when favors are solicited and conferred, fall pleasantly upon the ear.

One little act of kindness done—
One little soft word spoken—
Hath power to make a thrill of joy,
E'en in a heart that's broken.

In teaching little folks the sweet courtesies of life we must repeat over and over the same lesson, day after day, for the first few years. Some little girls can wait on a visitor in their mother's absence with as much propriety as young ladies; can answer questions put to them clearly and directly, and always politely; and it is a pleasure to be a guest where children thus behave.

Little Alfred's mother had taken pains to instruct her baby boy in some of the simple forms of politeness and hospitality, and, although not three years old, he used to put his lesson in practice. One day a dear friend of his mother's called, and he ran at once to bring a chair for her, inviting her to sit by the fire. Then he brought a footstool for her feet, and asked her to let him take her bonnet. "I wish you would stay to dinner," he lisped; "and stay all day, and forever." Then he looked up into her face with a bright smile, and said, "I try to be polite."

"Thank you, Charlie," said Mrs. Brown, as her little son handed her a paper he was requested to bring. "Thank you, Bridget," said the little fellow a few hours later, as he received a glass of water from his nurse.

"Well, Mrs. Brown, you have the best mannered children I ever saw," said a neighbor; "I should be thankful if mine were as polite to me as yours are to the servants. You never spend half as much time on your children's clothes as I do, and yet everyone notices them; they are so well behaved."

"We always try to treat our children politely," was the quiet reply.

This was the whole secret. When I hear parents grumbling about the ill-manners of their children, I always wish to ask, "Have you always treated them with politeness?"

What sight is more lovely than this pleasant, modest, Christian courtesy in little folks at home and abroad? It is like "apples of gold in pictures of silver."

Hearts, like doors, can open with ease
To very, very little keys;
And don't forget that they are these,
"I thank you, sir," and "If you please."

—Selected.

THE BLESSING OF SONG.

"What a Friend we have in Jesus,"
Sung a weary child one day;
And a weary woman listened
To the darling's happy lay.

All her life seemed dark and gloomy,
And her heart was sad with care;
Sweetly rang out baby's treble,
"All our sins and griefs to bear."

She was pointing out the Saviour,
Who could carry every woe;
And the one who sadly listened
Needed that dear Helper so!

Sin and grief were heavy burdens
For a fainting soul to bear;
But the baby, singing, bid her
"Take it to the Lord in prayer."

With a simple, trusting spirit,
Weak and worn she turned to God,
Asking Christ to take her burden,
As he was the sinner's Lord.

Jesus was the only refuge;
He could take her sin and care;
And he blessed the weary woman
When she came to him in prayer.

And the happy child, still singing,
Little knew she had a part
In God's wondrous work of bringing Peace unto a troubled heart.

—Anonymous.

TEMPERANCE.

THE STATE A SALOON-KEEPER.

That is a strange liquor law which was recently passed by the Legislature of South Carolina. They were expected to pass a prohibitory law, but instead have made arrangements for the State to go into the saloon business. The existing saloons are all to be abolished. Neither clubs nor places of amusement are allowed to dispense any of the exhilarating fluid. Provision is made for what are called State dispensaries, ten of them to be established in Charleston, three in Richland, and one in each of the other counties. A commissioner is to purchase liquor, have it tested, and probably tasted, by the State chemist, and then distributed to the various dispensaries. At these places liquor is to be sold only to such persons as are not minors nor intoxicated, and who are personally known to the dispensers. This law is good enough so far as it goes; but would it not be much wiser to abolish every saloon?

The Due West (S. C.) Presbyterian says: The Evans Dispensary bill is exciting much interest, not only in South Carolina, but in various parts of the country.

The Presbyterian sent out certain questions to its friends, and received the following answers:

QUESTIONS.

MY DEAR BROTHER:—Will you be kind enough to answer at once, in not over twenty (20) printed lines, the following questions:

- (a) Can a Christian man consistently apply for the position of dispenser under the Evans bill?
- (b) If a church member should apply and get the position will he be subject to discipline?
- (c) Should a Christian man sign the application of one who he thinks would make a suitable dispenser?

ANSWERS.

TROY, S. C., Jan. 24, 1893.

DEAR BROTHER:—A Christian man has no more right to sell whisky by the pint, quart or five-gallons, than he has to sell by the drink. The only difference between a private bar-keeper and the State dispenser is, the private bar-keeper's right to sell is unlimited, as to quantity, while the dispenser's right to sell is regulated by the State law. Both are legalized bar-keepers, and both stand on the same platform. A Christian cannot afford to sell whisky under any consideration.

2. If a church member should get the position he would be subject to discipline, and should be dealt with.

3. I cannot see how a Christian man can consistently sign an application to sell whisky.

CLOVER, S. C., Jan. 24, 1893.

MY DEAR SIR:—(a) The dispenser is simply a bar-keeper for the State. Whether a bar-keeper is in the employ of an individual or a corporation does not change the character of the employment. Liquors sold by the State are just as hurtful to the soul and body of the consumer as are liquors sold by an individual. A Christian can no more run a dispensary than a saloon, as they are at present constituted. Morally, the positions are identical.

(b) A church member holding a position as dispenser should be dealt with as one would be who kept an ordinary saloon.

(c) When a Christian signs the petition of an applicant for such a position he makes himself morally responsible for all the consequences of the traffic.

This whole question of the sale of liquor in this State is now practically in the hands of the Prohibitionists. Let them refuse to sign petitions for a dispensary, and there will be none in many places. We trust the "freeholders" of Abbeville will avail themselves of the opportunity to get rid of the demoralizing business.

THE POPULAR VOTE.

From the Voice we take the following figures: The total vote for President in 1892 was 12,058,402, an increase of the vote in 1888 of only 673,231, less than half of the increase of 1888 over 1884, and less by nearly 200,000 than that of 1884 over 1880. Cleveland received 5,552,788 votes; Harrison, 5,171,712; Weaver, 1,042,021; Bidwell, 270,710; Wing, 21,171. Cleveland failed of a majority by 476,413 votes. For the first time since 1860 a third party has secured electoral votes. Weaver owes his votes to the Democrats. No votes were cast for Cleveland in Kansas, North Dakota and Colorado; 2 in Idaho, and only 714 in Nevada. Weaver was second in nine States, five in the South—Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas, and four in the Northwest—Nebraska, So. Dakota, Wyoming and Oregon; and held the balance of power in eight other States—California and Washington on the Pacific, Ohio, Indiana, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Montana in the West, and North Carolina in the South. Eight out of every eleven votes for Weaver were cast beyond the Mississippi, or in the South. Leaving out the fusion States, Cleveland's vote in the North was only 230,000 less than Harrison's. Bidwell held the balance of power in eight States—California, Delaware, Indiana, Michigan, Nebraska, North Dakota, Ohio and Wisconsin. Bidwell led Weaver in fifteen States comprising half our population. In four years the Republicans lost 268,996 votes; the Democrats gained 16,546; but the Prohibitionists gained 20,665.

THE FAILURE OF HIGH LICENSE REFORM.

The advocates of high license are divided into two wings—those who would increase the revenue at the expense of the saloon, and those who would restrict the sales of the saloon. The last element is largely made up of real temperance men. Say they, "One saloon can do less damage than two or more; and if we cannot abolish all, we will reduce the number." This sounds well, and has won many conscientious supporters from the temperance ranks; but, after careful trial, it has been shown that high license does not restrict sales. If it does not, then temperance men who are honest men must desert the ranks of high license and take their stand boldly against license, in any and every form. The following seven high license States have increased their sales of beer within seven years past as follows: Illinois, from 1,317,233 barrels to 2,888,364 barrels; Nebraska, from 84,838 to 138,239; Missouri, from 1,176,882 to 3,014,086; Michigan, from 420,691 to 648,365; Massachusetts, from 880,286 to 1,095,996; Minnesota, from 301,040 to 385,469; Pennsylvania, 2,089,581 to 3,129,733. The gain has been vastly greater than that of the population, and larger in high license than in low license States. While the increase in Illinois and Missouri has been over one hundred per cent, in no low license State has the increase exceeded fifty per cent. The motto with all temperance men should henceforth be, "Not high or low license, but no license," and the conviction should be voiced with a thunder tone that shall waken the world.

BIBLE LESSON.

STUDIES IN THE OLD TESTAMENT.

LESSON IX.—First Quarter, 1893.—February 26.

SUBJECT.—Reading the Law.—Nehemiah 8: 1-12.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Open thou mine eyes, that I may behold wondrous things out of thy law.—Psa. 119: 18.

[Open the Bible and read the lesson.]

DAILY READINGS.—M.—Nehemiah 8: 1-12. T.—Nehemiah 8: 13-18. W.—Ex. 20: 1-17. T.—Matt. 5: 17-20. F.—Psa. 19: 7-14. S.—Deut. 11: 13-21. S.—Psa. 119: 1-16.

COMMENTS BY E. E. FLAGG.

1. A wonderful Bible class.—vs. 1-3. We have in this lesson an account of the largest Bible class of which history gives us any record. It must have numbered 20,000 or 30,000, and perhaps even more; for it took in all the population both of the city and the surrounding country—men, women and children. We note here several important suggestions. (1) It was a voluntary movement on the part of the people. They were eager and anxious for religious instruction. This is the first requisite to a successful study of the Scriptures,—a hunger to know the truths of God's Word. (2) All were represented, the women as well as the men. This was co-education on a grand scale, and something to which no heathen nation could afford a parallel. Even Judaism, centuries before Christ, was, in its treatment of woman, incomparably ahead of the most refined system of paganism that exists to-day. It follows, logically, that if women are equally capable with the other sex of receiving and understanding religious truth, they are equally capable of imparting it, either in a private or public capacity. (3) Children were included; "all that could hear with understanding." Thus we have the ideal Sunday-school, made up of all ages and classes. Parents who find that their children do not love the Sabbath-school, and very early consider themselves "too old to go," do not, as a rule, attend it themselves. Personal example goes a great ways, and nothing so excites a child's interest in anything as to see those whom it loves and reveres interested too. (4) From morning until mid-day, that is, for six hours, the people listened. It did not seem long to them in their famished eagerness to hear the Scriptures. So, in the times of the Reformation, men and women listened for hours to the reading of the Bible, chained to the reader's desk because it was so rare and costly. Those who are really hungry for the Word of life, never grudge the time spent in searching it. What a contrast do these ancient Jews present to many modern Christians, who spend more time on the Sabbath over the Sunday newspaper than they do over their Bibles. (5) One of the most genuine signs of a revival is renewed activity in studying the Scriptures. The Jews were now engaged in a work even more important than building the walls of Jerusalem,—a work which, if left undone, would have rendered all the rest futile. It is right that, by giving our money and personal efforts, we strive in every way to build up God's kingdom here on the earth; but still more important is it that we do not neglect the work in our own hearts, and thus "suffer loss" at the great day of final account.

2. The reading of the Law.—vs. 4-8. The "pulpit" was merely an elevated wooden platform, on which Ezra and his helpers could stand, and be seen and heard by all the people. "When he opened the book of the law all the people stood up." They responded "Amen" fervently when he "blessed God," and they "bowed their heads and worshiped the Lord," with their faces to the ground. Forms need not degenerate into formalism, and will not, if the hearts of the worshipers are right;—free from the spirit of worldliness and self-seeking. "They read in the book of the law of God distinctly." A clear and distinct utterance has much to do with the effect of the Gospel upon the hearers. One of the most desirable of accomplishments in the pulpit is the art of reading the Scriptures well. "They gave the sense and caused them to understand the reading." This may mean that they translated the text from Hebrew into Chaldee, and it may mean that they expounded it as they went along. The probability is that they did both. To make his hearers understand the meaning of Scripture is one of the most important offices of a preacher; but it is too often lost sight of, and he is chosen for other qualifications which are not essential to his high calling. The most successful preachers are not those who have the most grace of manner or charm of oratory.

3. A true repentance.—vs. 9-12. The people wept when they heard the words of God's violated law. The very reading of it was itself a neglected ordinance, so that it came to them with the force of something heard for the first time; and they realized how far they had failed of keeping it, both in spirit and in letter. The comforting words of the Levites were needed; otherwise their sorrow might have changed to apathy, and been fruitless of good works. So the pardoned sinner has a right;—nay, it is his duty to be joyful, for "the joy of the Lord" is his "strength". The happiest Christians do the most good. They commend religion to others. They are stronger to battle against sin. But the conditions must be fulfilled to have this joy. To repent means to turn and go in an opposite direction. The stingy must grow charitable; the worldly, spiritually minded; else they will nurse a false joy that will be weakness and not strength in the time of trial. "Go your way, eat the fat," etc. We have a right to enjoy all the good things God has given us, if we share them generously with others less favored.

RELIGIOUS NEWS.

BAPTIST.

—Anniversaries are to be held in the First Baptist church at Denver, Col., May 22 to 30, 1893. The order of the meetings and the general program are not yet arranged, but will be published as soon as decided upon by the various societies.

—Every Tuesday evening, beginning Feb. 7, at the Memorial Baptist church on Oakwood Boulevard, Chicago, is given one of a series of lectures, or, rather, familiar talks by the chiefs of the great departments of the World's Columbian Exposition. These talks consist of explanation of the character of the departments, the exhibits, and the educational features of the same.

—It is expected that 1,000 students will attend the new Chicago University this term, fully one-third of them being women.

—The Missionary Institute for the Northwest, which was in session at Elgin, Ill., last week, closed on Thursday evening. The next conventions will be held at Boston Feb. 22 and 23 and at Philadelphia March 1 and 2.

CONGREGATIONAL.

—Rev. Dr. Washington Gladden, of Columbus, Ohio, has dismissed his assistant pastor of the First Congregational church, Rev. Geo. P. Bethel, because the latter joined the anti-Catholic movement.

—Prof. William C. Pratt has been selected vice-president of the Armour Institute to aid Dr. Gunsaulus. Mr. Pratt has been a professor in the Pratt Institute of Brooklyn from its inception, and has been a vital factor in the success of that institution. In the Armour Institute he will have special charge of the academic department.

—Prof. W. J. Tucker, of Andover, has thought better of it and will accept the presidency of Dartmouth which he declined a year ago.

—The question of union between the Congregationalists and Presbyterians in Canada was up before the Toronto Presbytery and will come before the next General Assembly. It is reported that a large number of prominent Congregational ministers are anxious for a conference in the matter.

—Another missionary ship is asked for from the children by the American Board for work in the Pacific Ocean. It is to be called Hiram Bingham, and five thousand dollars is needed for the work.

—Good progress is being made by the faculty and trustees of the Chicago Theological Seminary in raising the sum of $400,000, upon which is conditioned Dr. D. K. Pearson's gift of $150,000, made some time ago. The 200 students of the seminary surprised the faculty by handing in their pledge for $6,000 in aid of the movement.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL.

—Bishop Taylor expects to return to the United States about May 1. He will take part in the international missionary congress at Chicago.

—Gov. Wm. McKinley of Ohio has promised to deliver the address of welcome at the International Epworth league convention.

—Rev. B. Carradine, D.D., of St. Louis, writes to the agent: My work is sweeping on under the manifest favor and power of God. My congregation now numbers

700. Third church from being "the least among the cities of Judah" now stands next to the strongest church in St. Louis Methodism. We have conversions and sanctifications constantly.

—Rev. Hugh Price Hughes states that more than 8,000 persons regularly assemble every Sunday for Methodist worship in a quarter of West London, where five years ago Wesleyans had not a solitary service of any kind.

—The Oklahoma Methodist Conference consists of about thirty-five men.

—A Negro Methodist's idea of ministerial qualifications: "De new preacher is more larnt than Mistuh Boles was; but he aint got de doleful sound like Mistuh Boles had. No, indeedy."

—Several pastors of the English Wesleyan church are enforcing the rules with a heavy hand. They have summarily expelled some persons who neglected attendance upon class.

—The Clapton Primitive Methodist mission, in the east end of London, provides about 600 poor children a hot, nourishing breakfast free every day.

—J. H. Johnson, presiding-elder of Chicago district, Norwegian and Danish conference, has been appointed a member of the advisory council of the World's congress of the World's Columbian Exposition.

—A correspondent of the Living Church states that since Advent, 1891, sixteen Methodist ministers have become Episcopalians. The writer does not state in what country they reside, but probably they were all in England or her colonies.

PRESBYTERIAN.

—The trustees of Lane Seminary, Cincinnati, refused to accept the resignation of Prof. H. P. Smith, recently suspended by the presbytery for heresy. Prof. Roberts, one of the prosecutors of Prof. Smith was practically dismissed, the trustees abolishing the chair of practical theology, which he now holds.

—The New York Mail and Express, whose editor is a prominent elder in the Presbyterian church, speaks in a recent number as follows: "The lamentable absence of conversions in Presbyterian churches shows the paralyzing effect of Briggsism as a system of inquiry; and now that the presbytery has sustained him, the coldness may be expected to grow. As a legitimate consequence of this indifference, and the anodyne of Briggsism, this presbytery is about to sell several of its churches, and on the ground that it does not pay; to give up preaching the Gospel to the poor in as many sections of the city, and to join the mad rush for wealth in fashionable districts."

—Rev. Thomas C. Hall of the Forty-first Street Presbyterian church has succeeded to the pastorate of the Fourth church, Chicago, vacated by the Rev. Dr. M. Woolsey Stryker, who is now president of Hamilton College, New York. Mr. Hall will preach his farewell sermon in the Forty-first street church on Sunday, Feb. 26, and will occupy the pulpit in the Fourth church the first Sunday in March. His salary will be $7,000 per annum. Mr. Hall is a son of Dr. John Hall, pastor of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church of New York City.

—Rev. Dr. John Hopkins Worcester, Jr., professor of systematic theology at Union Seminary, dropped dead at Lakewood, N. J., Feb. 6, aged 48 years. Dr. Worcester was elected to the professorship of systematic theology of Union Theological Seminary by the directors of that institution on July 29, 1892. At the meeting of the Presbyterian General Assembly at Detroit in May, 1891, Dr. Worcester headed the Chicago delegation and was one of the most conspicuous defenders of Dr. Briggs.

REFORMED CHURCH.

—The Board of Trustees of the eastern seminary purchased a four-acre site near Franklin and Marshall College for the new seminary building at a cost of $10,000. The new building will possibly be commenced in the early spring. The amount already subscribed is about $30,000, which is a good beginning.

REFORMED PRESBYTERIAN.

—Until recently the Advocate and Ensign, the organ of the "General Synod" (N. S.), was published in Philadelphia by Rev. John Graham. It is now published at Marissa, Ill., by Rev. R. W. Chesnut, who is also the editor with four associates, viz. Rev. J. Y. Boyce, Rev. S. M. Ramsey, Mr. J. L. Chesnut and Miss Mary Murdock. The name is The Reformed Presbyterian Advocate.

—The American Missionary Association employs 45 missionaries and teachers among the Chinese upon the Pacific Coast, mostly in California. The Chinese Christians there have contributed, during the past year, about $6,300 for the support of the local missions.

—Rev. J. R. J. Milligan was given a verdict for the balance due him on salary from the Allegheny City Reformed Presbyterian congregation of which he was pastor previous to his suspension by the Synod.

—The ordination and installation of Rev. J. L. Chesnut, as pastor of the Coulterville (Ill.) congregation, occurred Feb. 9, 1893. The usual discourses and trials were delivered. Rev. R. W. Chesnut delivered the installation sermon, and addressed the pastor. Rev. W. J. Smiley addressed the people.

A Pure Norwegian

oil is the kind used in the production of Scott's Emulsion — Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda are added for their vital effect upon nerve and brain. No mystery surrounds this formula — the only mystery is how quickly it builds up flesh and brings back strength to the weak of all ages.

Scott's Emulsion

will check Consumption and is indispensable in all wasting diseases.

Prepared by Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All druggists.

OBITUARY.

REV. GEORGE THOMPSON.

I have just heard, with deep regret, of the sudden death of Rev. George Thompson, of Oberlin, Ohio, on the 4th inst. Bro. Thompson was born, I think, in New Jersey, in the year 1817. At an early age he became a Christian, and during a long and useful life was remarkable for his self-sacrificing devotion to Christian principles.

When a young man and a student at Mission Institute, Quincy, Ill., he, with two others, Work and Burr, undertook to help some fugitive slaves across the Mississippi river. Although they did not succeed in carrying out their most noble purpose, they were arrested, taken to jail, for a long time kept chained to a post, finally tried, and sent to the Missouri penitentiary for twelve years.

Here, by their most exemplary living, they won the hearts of their keepers and were allowed many privileges and opportunities of doing good. Many prisoners were hopefully converted through their labors.

As the leader of the little band, Bro. Thompson was kept longest in prison, serving a little over five years. All were pardoned before the expiration of their sentences.

On getting his liberty he went to Oberlin, where he spent some time in preparation for missionary work and then went to the Mendi Mission, West Africa, passing in all over six years in one of the most sickly regions of that inhospitable coast. He suffered much, as did his faithful wife, who found it impossible to live in that climate. He did much for the people, and will be long remembered as their friend and benefactor. He wrote several books on Africa, the last of which, "Africa in a Nut-shell," is an excellent compendium of facts in reference to the whole continent.

After his return to America he devoted his life largely to the cause of missions, though he was for a number of years the pastor of a church in Northern Michigan. On the 5th of last November I listened to a most instructive lecture on Africa, given to the colored people of Oberlin and illustrated by large maps. He was so feeble that he had to remain sitting.

Besides raising a large family of their own, nearly all of whom received a classical education in Oberlin College, they brought up others, two of whom were Africans. One of them graduated at Oberlin, and is now a teacher in Florida. The other a minister in Louisiana. Of his sons, one is now a missionary physician in Southeast Africa, and another a professor of music, now in Germany.

Brother Thompson was a stalwart reformer. He never had any complicity with slavery, liquor-drinking, tobacco, or with the license system. He had no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reproved them. Several times he suffered reproach because of his opposition to the lodge system. He was one of the few members of the first church of Oberlin that faithfully adhered to the teachings of Pres. Finney on this question. He will be greatly missed by the large circle of friends that loved and honored him.

H. H. HINMAN,
Waupaca, Wis., Feb. 8, 1893.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

COUNTRY.

William V. Allen, Populist, has been chosen United States Senator from Nebraska.

During a baptismal immersion near Casey, Ill., Sunday, Mr. William Deahl dropped dead near the water's edge ten minutes after being baptized. The deceased was aged 50 and a well-to-do farmer of that vicinity.

Jack Clifford, the Homestead strike leader charged with the murder of P. J. Connors during the famous barge battle on July 6, was acquitted.

The bill repealing the present silver law, requiring the government to purchase virgin silver, was defeated in Congress.

Howell E. Jackson, of Tennessee, successor of Justice Lamar of the Supreme bench, is reported to be a very sensible Democrat, personally known by President Harrison, and abundantly qualified for the position.

Another fierce storm swept over the Northwest. Monday a rain storm changed to snow and the mercury registered from 6 to 16 degrees below zero. The great body of snow on the ground melting by rain threatened heavy floods in various cities, but was averted by a sudden change to severe cold. Much suffering has been caused by the severe storms in Western cities.

Senator Cullom, of Illinois, has been appointed by Vice-President Morton one of the Senate board of visitors to the annual commencement exercises of the United States military academy at West Point.

The cold weather and bad roads have caused a temporary scarcity of potatoes in the towns and cities, and prices have been materially advanced.

(Continued on 16th page.)

SUBSCRIPTION LETTERS.

The following have made remittances of money to the Cynosure from Feb. 6 to Feb. 11:

W N Perrin, Mrs M A Waterman, W Wiley, J Ralston, W C Wilson, J W Modlin, G P Schmidt, E S Ternberg, A S McConnell, Rev S R McClurkin, W Edwards, I Leadbetter, W Gay, T J Yocum, T C Kirkwood, Miss A A Wolcott, J C Miller, R Fraser, Mrs S Mc-Nown, A Bardley, L Landon, T Spalding, N Daniels, W J Pierson, Dr J Mattinly, J Morrow, S D Guengerich, Miss R Fry, J Leeper, W Meredith, O Grant.

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO.

Wheat—Spring No. 2.....	74 3/4 @	75 1/4
Winter No. 2.....	74 3/4 @	75 1/4
Corn—No. 2.....	44 1/4 @	43 3/4
Oats—No. 2.....	32 @	35
Rye—No. 2.....	53 @	55
Bran per ton.....	13 25	@
Hay—Timothy.....	10 00	@ 12 00
Butter, medium to best....	17 @	23
Cheese.....	03 @	11 1/4
Beans.....	1 80 @	2 00
Eggs.....	32 @	32 1/2
Seeds—Timothy, 100 lbs. 4 42 @	4 40
Flax.....	1 16 @	1 22 1/2
Broom corn.....	02 @	05 1/2
Potatoes, per bu.....	58 @	75
Hides—Green to dry flint..	03 1/4 @	06 1/4
Lumber—Common.....	10 00 @	13 00
Wool (washed).....	15 @	32 1/2
Cattle—Choice to extra....	5 50 @	6 10
Common to good....	4 10 @	4 80
Hogs.....	8 10 @	8 70
Sheep.....	5 15 @	5 35

NEW YORK.

Wheat.....	51 @	53 1/4
Corn.....	52 @	54 1/4
Oats.....	38 @	41 1/4
Eggs.....	30 3/4 @	31
Butter.....	18 @	30
Wool.....	17 @	37

KANSAS CITY.

Cattle.....	2 25 @	5 25
Hogs.....	5 90 @	8 30
Sheep.....	4 60 @	5 20

SECRET SOCIETIES Condemned

BY THE PRESS.

United Presbyterian, Pittsburg:—Secret societies are not suited to American society, nor indeed to any society.

The Armory:—Surely the presence of a multitude of secret combinations bodes little good to the church of Christ.

Wesleyan Methodist:—Never say again that Freemasonry has no secrets. It has secrets, dark as ever revealed in the midnight caves of professional banditti, or stalked the deck of a pirate craft.

The Watchman, Boston:—Garrison fought the battle of free speech in behalf of Abolition; Pierpont waged it on the question of temperance; Colver fought it against secret societies.

Christian Standard, Cincinnati:—We know of no good work for God or humanity to the success of which secrecy is essential; and we see dangers in secret associations which every Christian should avoid.

Catholic Review, New York:—It is becoming apparent that secret, oath-bound societies are, in principle, un-American; are contrary to the whole spirit and meaning of our institutions, and are therefore dangerous to the Republic.

Baptist Weekly, New York:—There is no union which men can form, making an inner circle of self-interest and tyrannically dictating to those without it, which is not the grossest violation of every true principle of human brotherhood.

Evangelical Repository:—We charge against these organizations: first, that they contain a system of religion; and, secondly, they are devised and built up after the traditions of men, after the rudiments of this world, and not after Christ.

The New York Witness:—Any society which demands from its members a loyalty superior to their loyalty to the general interests and well-being of the community in which they live, such as the church of Rome, the Nihilists, the Mormons and the Freemasons, is dangerous to the well being of the state and should be shunned by all good men.

Journal, Indianapolis, 1880:—The Democrats are attempting to carry this State by secret societies. They hope to overcome a popular uprising by midnight meetings and by grips and passwords. The loyal men of Indiana will spurn their midnight methods. A State which numbers two millions of people cannot be governed by grips and passwords.

Times, Chicago, Aug. 22, 1880:—Secret societies are dangerous because young men, and others who are not for the moment fully mindful of their public duties, may be led by persuasion, under the peculiar solemnity and impressiveness of an initiation which unseats their judgment, to take oaths which are inconsistent with their duties toward the state and society, and which they may regret, in moments of reflection, that they have taken.

Public Ledger, Philadelphia:—Notwithstanding the presence of thousands of otherwise innocent men in the Masonic lodge, it is well understood that a ring within a ring runs the order, and the order in turn runs such innocent societies as the Good Templars, Red Men and nearly or quite all the so-called secret beneficiary societies. The danger arising from such conspiracies is not imaginary but real. If the truth were known we are suffering from nothing so much as from this evil. And the worst of all is that good men who have gone into the various secret lodges are being used for ends of which they little dream.

The Advance, Chicago:—A Masonic writer in the New York Herald is quoted as saying that Masonry is "an effort to bring all mankind to a common religion; to harmonize the mysteries of Christianity, Judaism and paganism; for the most scholarly Masons hold that there is only one religion, and that religion is the worship of deity under the image of the sun." If the above is a correct enunciation of Masonic doctrine, the less Christians have to do with it the better. Indeed, it would seem to be equally inconsistent for the honest Jew to be identified with these sun-worshippers. The inference is fair that Masonry and Christianity do not harmonize.

Standard Works

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Associat'n

221 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois.

TERMS:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order as a guaranty that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums. A liberal discount to dealers.

Revised Odd-fellowship Illustrated. The complete revised ritual of the Lodge, Encampment and Rebekah (ladies) degrees, profusely illustrated, and guaranteed to be strictly accurate; with a sketch of the origin, history and character of the order, over one hundred foot-note quotations from standard authorities, showing the character and teachings of the order, and an analysis of each degree by ex-President J. Blanchard. This ritual corresponds exactly with the "Charge Books" furnished by the Sovereign Grand Lodge. In cloth, $1.00; paper cover, 50cts.

Anti-masonic Sermons and Addresses. Composed of "Masonry a Work of Darkness;" the Sermons of Messrs. Cross, William McNary, Dow and Sarver, the two addresses of President Blanchard, and the addresses of President H. H. George, Prof. J. G. Carson and Rev. M. S. Drury; "Thirteen Reasons Why a Christian cannot be a Freemason," "Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion," and "Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate?" 287 pages; cloth $1.00.

Secret Societies Illustrated. Containing the signs, grips, passwords, emblems, etc., of Freemasonry (Blue Lodge and to the fourteenth degree of the York rite), Adoptive Masonry, Revised Odd-fellowship, Good Templarism, the Temple of Honor, the United Sons of Industry, Knights of Pythias and the Grange, with affidavits, etc. Over 250 cuts, 99 pages, paper cover. 25cts each.

Between Two Opinions: OR THE QUESTION OF THE HOUR. By Miss E. E. Flagg, author of "Little People," "A Sunny Life," etc., etc. Everyone who loves to read a good story, chaste and elegant in expression, pure in thought, interesting in narrative, should read this book upon the power of secret societies in politics, and the remedy. 389 pages, cloth, postpaid, $1.00.

Sermon on Odd-fellowship and other secret societies, by Rev. J. Sarver, pastor Evangelical Lutheran church. This is a very clear argument against secretism of all forms, and the duty to disfellowship Odd-fellows, Freemasons, Knights of Pythias and Grangers, is clearly shown by their confessed character as found in their own publications. 10cts each.

Holden with Cords. OR THE POWER OF THE SECRET EMPIRE. By E. E. Flagg, author of "A Sunny Life," etc. This is a thrillingly interesting story, accurately true to life because mainly a narration of historical facts. In cloth, $1.00; in paper, 50 cents.

Five Rituals Bound Together. "Odd-fellowship Illustrated" (old work), "Knights of Pythias Illustrated," "Good Templars Illustrated," "Exposition of the Grange," and "Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic," are sold bound together in cloth for $1.00.

College Secret Societies. Their customs, character and the efforts for their suppression. By H. L. Kellogg. Containing the opinions of many prominent college presidents and others, and a full account of the murder of Mortimer Leggett. 25cts each.

Secret Societies. A discussion of their character and claims by Rev. David McDill, Pres. J. Blanchard and Rev. Edward Beecher. In cloth, 35cts each; paper covers, 15cts each.

Rituals and Secrets Illustrated. Composed of "Temple of Honor Illustrated," "Adoptive Masonry Illustrated," "United Sons of Industry Illustrated," and "Secret Societies Illustrated." $1.00 each.

Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic, with signs of recognition, passwords, etc., and the ritual of the Machinists' and Blacksmiths' Union. (The two bound together.) 10 cents each.

Good Templarism Illustrated. A full and accurate exposition of the degrees of the lodge, term's and council. 25cts each.

Odd-fellowship: ITS HISTORY AND WORK. By President J. Blanchard. A new pamphlet with cover. Postpaid, 5 cts.

Adelphi of Labor Illustrated. ("ADELPHON KRUPPOS.") The complete illustrated ritual of the order, including the "unwritten work." 25cts each.

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion. 5 cents each.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate. By Rev. L. A. Post. 5 cents each.

HOME AND HEALTH.

THE DYSPEPTIC.

After examination of a great number of statistics on the subject the inference is drawn that bicycle riding, when properly taken, is one of the best cures for dyspepsia known to the medical profession. Pepsin and other drugs are recommended to be laid aside by the business and professional man, and after business hours every afternoon a short ride on the bicycle should be taken at a moderate speed. The exercise must be stimulating and not exhausting. About one hour daily is recommended for this exercise, and beyond that point there is danger of exhaustion. The pleasure of riding should be taken systematically, and not spasmodically. This will generally cure all forms of dyspepsia—functional, emotional and nervous disorders of the stomach. The man who diligently works at manual labor for his living seldom suffers from dyspepsia, because his system can dispose of all the food put in it; but sedentary workers have to have deliciously cooked and appetizing dishes set before them to make them eat. Consequently there is taken into the system material that is hard to digest, and some strong physical exercise is needed daily to stimulate the stomach in its work. Walking is not sufficient exercise to cure or prevent dyspepsia in such people. The bicycle ride gives the necessary relief and relaxation of the mind. Gout and rheumatism which have been brought on by dyspepsia are also greatly relieved by this form of exercise.—Home Circle.

THE SUN-BATH.

One of the greatest cures for many ills is the simple sun-bath; which very few people really appreciate. The solar heat gives to the whole system a strength and vigor which no nourishing food can impart. It is so essential to our health and happiness that when it is taken away from us we become weak and puny. When winter is over most city people are weak, run-down and pale; but when they go out into the warm sunlight again new strength and health quickly come to them. The sun-bath is absolutely essential. Take it every day. Cut down the trees that are so close to the house that they obscure the sun, and have every living-room flooded with light. If one is forced to stay indoors all day, try to get near the sunny window where the full effects of the sunlight can be felt.—Exchange.

THE MEDICAL USE OF EGGS.

It may not be generally known that there is nothing more soothing for either a burn or a scald than the white of an egg. It is contact with the air that makes a burn so painful, and the egg acts as a varnish, and excludes the air completely, and also prevents inflammation. An egg beaten up lightly, with or without sugar, is a good remedy in cases of dysentery and diarrhoea; it tends by its emollient qualities to lessen the inflammation, and, by forming a transient coating for the stomach and intestines, gives those organs a chance to rest until nature shall have assumed her healthful sway over the diseased body.

A SIMPLE REMEDY FOR HICCOUGH.

After trying all the ordinary measures without avail, Dr. Lobl fell back upon a household remedy as a last resort, and ordered a teaspoonful of pulverized sugar, wet with an equal quantity of wine vinegar, to be taken at one dose. The hiccough stopped immediately, and didn't return for six hours, and then ceased after a second dose of the remedy.—Medical and Surgical Journal.

FRUITS AS FOOD AND MEDICINE.

It is a mistaken idea that no fruit should be eaten at breakfast. It would be far better if our people would eat less bacon and grease at breakfast and more fruit. In the morning there is an acrid state of the secretions, and nothing is so well calculated to correct this as cooling sub-acid fruits, such as peaches, apples, etc. Still, most of us have been taught that eating fruit before breakfast is highly dangerous. How the idea originated I do not know, but it is certainly a great error, contrary to both reason and facts. The apple is one of the best of fruits.

Baked or stewed apples will generally agree with the most delicate stomach, and are an excellent medicine in many cases of sickness.

Oranges are very acceptable to most stomachs, having all the advantage of the acid alluded to; but the orange juice alone should be taken, rejecting the pulp.

The same may be said of lemons, pomegranates and all that class. Lemonade is the best drink in fevers, and when thickened with sugar is better than syrup of squills and other nauseous drugs in many cases of cough.

Tomatoes act on the liver and bowels, and are much more pleasant and safe than blue mass and "liver regulators." The juice should be used alone, rejecting the skins.

The small seeded fruits, such as blackberries, figs, raspberries, currants and strawberries, may be classed among the best foods and medicines. The sugar in them is nutritious, the acid is cooling and purifying, and the seeds are laxative.—The Home.

SLEEP.

Children should not be permitted to cover the head with bedclothes; such a habit is harmful and results in unrefreshing sleep, since they are thus deprived of pure air, and re-breathe that already laden with the carbonic acid of their own exhalations. The child from earliest infancy should sleep alone. Nothing is more subversive of good habits in sleeping and nursing than for the infant to occupy the same bed with the mother; the custom so often followed invariably results in restless, unrefreshing nights to both. The child is easily influenced by habit, and the judicious mother, with a slight hardening of her own heart for a few nights, can readily teach her little one to expect to be put in the crib and to go to sleep without such unnecessary aid as rocking or singing. Much harm has been done by giving to wakeful infants laudanum or morphine under the specious name of "soothing syrups." A well child is not fretful at night, and if sick it needs other treatment.

Bronchitis yields at once to the healing influence of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

People with hair that is continually falling out, or those that are bald, can stop the falling, and get a good growth of hair by using Hall's Hair Renewer.

AMERICAN HANDBOOK
AND
CITIZEN MANUAL.
BY

MANLOVE N. BUTLER.

CONTENTS:—Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement; Real Prohibition; Poor Man's Bible, and All-Around Reformers. Over 200 pages

Paper, single copy 40c.; per doz. 35c.

CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

Disloyal
SECRET OATHS

ADDRESS OF

JOSEPH COOK,
OF BOSTON,
AT THE

Conference of Christians
CHICAGO, 1890.

No better document of its size for general distribution has been printed. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference.

Single Copies 5 cents, or 12 copies for 50 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

Mr. Chas. N. Hauer

Of Frederick, Md., suffered terribly for over ten years with abscesses and running sores on his left leg. He wasted away, grew weak and thin, and was obliged to use a cane and crutch. Everything which could be thought of was done without good result, until he began taking

Hood's Sarsaparilla

which effected a perfect cure. Mr. Hauer is now in the best of health. Full particulars of his case will be sent all who address
C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

HOOD'S PILLS are the best after-dinner Pills. assist digestion, cure headache and biliousness.

The Blue Bell.

The Mountain Daisy.

Daily Text books for a year. Dainty little souvenirs, only 1 1/2 inches square, elegantly and neatly bound in leather, with silk marker, gilt edges, round corners, each net 25
Illuminated paper covers, each 10

Birthday Memorial Text-Book.

An Autograph Text-book. Text for each day and space for autographs. 32mo., Cloth 25

Daily Comfort in Four Fold Links.

The most popular Wall Roll published, and deservedly so. Every page is an effective sermon.

The striking character and particular value of this new Wall Roll is in the remarkable arrangement and selection of the Scripture Texts.

A constant monitor in the Christian household. A silent teacher for the school.

A comforting messenger for the sick-room, as well as being suitable for the office, the store or the shop.

Printed in beautiful large, clear letters, easily discernible at a distance of 10 to 15 feet. Mounted on rollers, with cord, to hang up in usual style. 31 pages, size 14x22in. 75

The Secret of Success; or

Finger Posts on the Highway of Life, by John T. Dale; introduction by Hon. John V. Farwell. 416 pages, 12mo., full cloth $1.50
A book for the aspiring. Written in a fascinating style and full of incidents and illustrations which hold the interest of the reader spell-bound.

"It may be true, as has been said, that 'books are sold, not bought;' but this, at any rate, is a book which, if brought to one's attention, he will wish to own.

Such a book in every intelligent family in the land—how much (in showing so clearly, so wisely, so persuasively the secret of success,) it might do toward helping to solve the countless aching, burning questions of the time."—The Advance.

Prof. Henry Drummond's
Booklets.

The Perfected Life. (The greatest need of the world.) Bound in chaste style, vellum paper 20

Love the Supreme Gift. (The greatest thing in the world.) Uniform with Perfected Life 20

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

United Sons of Industry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the secret tradesunion of the above name, giving the signs, grips, passwords 15cts each.

History Nat'l Christian Association. Its origin, objects, what it has done aims to do, and the best means to accomplish the end sought, the Articles of Incorporation, Constitution and By-laws of the Association. 25cts each.

The New World of Central Africa.

By Mrs. H. Grattan Guinness, with a history of the first Christian mission on the Congo. 12mo., 530 pages with maps, portraits and numerous illustrations. $2.00

A conscientious piece of work, and gives a very clear account of what has been done by the Protestant missions to evangelize the barbarous races of Central Africa. He who wants to know what missionary effort means in these days may well learn from this volume. The reader who goes carefully through will have a good bird's eye view of recent events in Africa, with all the results of modern travel. The work contains solid information of use to all who are interested in the future of this wonderful country. The many illustrations throw light upon savage customs and costumes."—Graphic.

In the Far East.

Letters from China by Geraldine Guinness, edited by her sister, with introduction by Rev. J. Hudson Taylor. Very fully illustrated. Quarto cloth, $1.50

This book was scarcely written—it was lived; for the breath of life is in it from cover to cover. We have never read so wonderful an account of successful missionary effort.—Presbyterian

We easily understand how this edition is the fifteenth thousand. It is a very remarkable book.—The Golden Rule.

Frances Ridley Havergall's Poems.

Author's edition complete. The only unabridged authorized edition published in America.

1. 12mo., 880 pages, cloth, beveled 2.00
2. Beveled boards, full gilt 2.50
3. Half white vellum, gilt top, uncut edges 2.50
4. French morocco padded, roll red under gold edges 4.00
5. Persian calf, padded and embossed, gilt roll and r. g. 5.00
6. Crushed levant, elegant 6.00

7. Full German calf, padded, elegant, gilt, rd. cors. 7.50

Miss Havergall stands without peer in the English language in the department of religious poetry.

"The book in paper and binding is all that could be desired."—Publishers' Weekly.

Small Books by Miss Havergall.

Bound in elegant illuminated board covers.

Kept for the Master's Use. 20

My King; Daily Thoughts for the King's Children. 20

Works of Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

Sermon Notes. Covering all the Bible from Genesis to Revelation. 4 vols. 4.00
Feathers for Arrows. A volume of Choice Extracts, 12mo., cloth 1.00
Twelve Striking Sermons 50
Twelve Soul Winning Sermons, 50
Twelve Sermons on the Resurrection 50
Twelve New Year Sermons 50
Twelve Christmas Sermons 30

Notes by C. H. M.

On Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy.

Mr. D. L. Moody says of these books: "They have been to me a very key to the Scriptures."

Deuteronomy is issued in two volumes, the others complete in one volume each.

Separate volumes may be had if desired. The complete set in six volumes, covering over 2,300 pages, is offered at the reduced price of 75c per vol. or $4.50 per set

A. L. O. E. Intermediate Library.

Selected from the numerous productions of this world-renowned writer as being those of rare merit. 12 vols., 12mo., cloth elegant, each 75c; set 9.00

An Eden in England. Life in Eagle's Nest. Ned Franks. White Bear's Den. Sheer Off. Fairy Spider's Web. Braid of Chords. Lake in the Woods. Silver Keys. Seven Perils Passed. Grace Vernon. Hartley Brothers.

The Jessica Series. By Hesba Stretton. 6 vols., handsome bindings, cloth 50c each, or per set 2.10
Jessica's First Prayer. Friends till Death. No Place Like Home. A Miserable Christmas Under the Old Roof. A Night and a Day.

A. L. O. E. Junior Library. Adapted to the young folks. 7 vols., 12mo., cloth, each 60c; the set 4.20
Claremont Tales. A Wreath of Smoke. Christian Conquests. Pomegranates from Tales Illustrative of Punjab. Parables. Little Bullets from The Battle of Life. Batala.

The Hesba Stretton Series. 8 vols., elegant cloth bound, per set 4.80
Cassy. King's Servant. Lost Gip. Alone in London. Max Kromer. Little Meg's Children. Storm of Life. Crew of the Dolphin.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

FARM NOTES.

TO MAKE HENS LAY.

The Ohio Farmer has the following: Put two or more quarts of water in a kettle and one large seed pepper or two small ones; then put the kettle over the fire. When the water boils stir in coarse Indian meal until you have a thick mush. Let it cook an hour or so; feed hot. Horse-radish chopped fine and stirred into mush as prepared in the above directions, and for results we are getting from five to ten eggs per day, whereas, previous to feeding we had not had eggs for a long time. We hear a good deal of complaint from other people about not getting eggs. To such we would warmly recommend the cooked feed hot. Boiled apple skins, seasoned with red pepper, or boiled potatoes, seasoned with horse-radish, are good for feed; much better than uncooked food. Corn, when fed to hens by itself, has a tendency to fatten rather than produce the more profitable egg laying. A spoonful of sulphur stirred with their feed occasionally will rid them of vermin and tone up their systems. It is especially good for young chickens or turkeys.

PORK POINTERS.

Too many pigs is as bad as too few. Corn and oats make a first-class growing ration.

Feed in one place and gather up the manure and haul it out.

A mistake is often made by having the swine shelter too low.

Good care of the brood sow is necessary to secure thrifty pigs.

In nearly all cases it is the early pigs that are the most profitable.

The pigs, when leaving the sow, should never be allowed to lose flesh.

One of the best plans of management is to breed pigs for summer grazing.

The boar is only half and you cannot expect very fine pigs from an inferior sow.

The age and condition of the pigs should govern the ration that is made up for them.

Raise meat instead of bones; it takes as much feed to make a pound of bone as of meat.

The breeder is rated more by the quality of what he sells than the prices he receives.

While slop is a good summer feed for young pigs, it should not be relied upon too much in winter.

One item in feeding meal is to have it ground fine and then give in connection with something else.

Keep the young pigs' bed dry to prevent the pigs from becoming chilled when the weather is cold.

EXPERIENCE WITH SHEEP.

A Nebraska sheep raiser who has been in the business there for thirteen years recently gave his experience to the Sheep Breeder. He says:

I commenced with two hundred head that sheared 5½ pounds.

I never aim to keep over three hundred head. When I commenced I had only prairie grass to herd on; now I have my farm all fenced and have tame pastures and meadows. Have tried the different breeds to some extent, but am well satisfied with the Oxford Down and Leicester, but I realize there is room for all breeds.

I find my sheep are healthier since I take less thought about disease.

I give them all the feed and water they want each day, with rock salt always where they can get it, and they are all right.

I have my farm all fenced in fields of from five to fifty acres; am out of debt and have very comfortable buildings, and the sheep have been one of the principal means of this state of affairs.

They keep up the fertility of the soil and keep down the weeds where they have a chance.

I winter all my lambs, and after shearing time pick out all wethers and what yearling ewes I do not wish to keep for breeding purposes and sell to the butcher, and then in the fall, after weaning time, I cull out from the old flock all I do not wish to keep and sell them; in this way my flock is getting better all the time.

I get from 3½ to 4 cents a pound. My

Easy to Take

And prompt to cure, Ayer's Pills act on the intestines, not by stimulating, but by strengthening them. They promote the natural peristaltic motion of the bowels, without which there can be no regular, healthy operations. For the cure of constipation, biliousness, jaundice, vertigo, sick headache, indigestion, sour stomach, and drowsiness, are unsurpassed. They are equally beneficial in rheumatism, neuralgia, colds, chills, and fevers. Being purely vegetable, delicately sugar-coated, and quickly dissolved, they are admirably adapted for household use, as well as for travelers by land or sea. Ayer's Pills are in greater demand, the world over, than any other pill, and are recommended by the most eminent physicians.

Ayer's Pills

Every Dose Effective

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.
Sold by Druggists Everywhere.

LE CARON, THE SPY.

A STARTLING REVELATION.

More enticing than a romance, filled with the strongest evidences of the power and evil of sworn secret societies, and plainly revealing the danger to any government growing out of political conspiracies, is the

"Autobiography of Henry LeCaron, the Spy."

who was for years a Clan-na-Gael Center, a Fenian Commander, and a Land-League Orator, but always a British Detective. The book covers his twenty-five years' experiences in this secret service, and contains 205 pages.

Price, in paper covers, 50 cents.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
WM. I. PHILLIPS, Treasurer,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

THE
Folly, Expense & Danger

OF

SECRET SOCIETIES.

BY

CHARLES A. BLANCHARD.
(President Wheaton College.)

5 Cts per Copy; $3 per Hundred.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

The St. Louis Sermon

Are Secret Societies a Blessing or a Curse?

An Address by Rev. B. Carradine
D. D., Pastor of the Centenary
M. E. Church, St. Louis,
Mo., Jan. 4, 1891.

W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's too."

A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover.
Sent postpaid 25 copies $1.00. Single copy 5 cents.

Address - W. I. PHILLIPS,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

sales of wool and mutton average me $3 per head for all I winter over.

I have now 144 lambs that are hard to beat; they are April lambs, and I think one-third or more of them will average 100 pounds.

Reason? BERRHAM'S PILLS act like magic.

STANDARD WORKS

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Association.

221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

TERMS:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order as a guaranty that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums. A liberal discount to dealers.

ON FREEMASONRY.

Freemasonry Illustrated. A complete exposition of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter. Profusely illustrated. Complete work of 640 pages, in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 75 cents. First three degrees (376 pages), in cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Knight Templarism Illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the Council and Commandery. A book of 341 pages. In cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.

Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated. The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all the Masonic Rites, and are fully and accurately given in "Freemasonry Illustrated." Vol. I. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3rd to 18th inclusive. Vol. II. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 19th to 33rd inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive. Price per volume, paper cover, 50 cents each. In cloth, $1.00 each.

Hand-Book of Freemasonry. By E. Ronayne, Past Master of Keystone Lodge No. 639, Chicago. Gives the complete standard ritual of the first three degrees of Freemasonry. New edition, 274 pages. Bound flexible cloth covers, 50 cents.

Freemasonry Exposed. By Capt. William Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book republished. 25 cents each.

Adoptive Masonry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the five degrees of Female Freemasonry, by Thomas Lowe. 20 cents each.

Light on Freemasonry. By Elder D. Bernard. In cloth, $1.50 each. Paper, 75 cents each.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Baal Worship Identical, explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the lodge. Bound in fine cloth, 420 pages, 75 cents.

Mah-Hah-Bone; comprises the Hand Book, Master's Carpet and Freemasonry at a glance. Bound in one volume. In cloth, 539 pages, $1.00.

History of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. As prepared by seven committees of citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan. 25 cents each.

Ex-President John Quincy Adams' LETTERS on the Nature of Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties. Price, cloth, $1.00. Paper, 35 cents.

Hon. Thaddeus Weed on the Morgan ABDUCTION. This is the legally attested statement of this eminent Christian journalist and statesman concerning the unlawful seizure and confinement of Capt. Morgan in Canandaigua jail, his removal to Fort Niagara and subsequent drowning in Lake Ontario. 5 cents each.

The Broken Seal; or Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. By Samuel D. Greene. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry, as proved in court in the New Berlin trials. The New Berlin trials began in the attempt of Freemasons to prevent public initiations by seceding Masons. These trials were held at New Berlin, Chongang Co., N. Y., April 13 and 14, 1831, and General Augustus C. Welsh, sheriff of the county, and other adorning Freemasons swore to the truthful revelation of the oaths and penalties. 10 cents each.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy. Address of Pres. J. Blanchard. This is a most convincing argument against the lodge. 5 cents each.

Grand Lodge Masonry. Its relation to civil government and the Christian religion. By Pres. J. Blanchard. The un-Christian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is proved from the highest Masonic authorities. 5 cents each.

General Washington Opposed to SECRET SOCIETIES. This is a re-publication of Governor Joseph Ritner's "Vindication of General Washington from the Stigma of Adherence to Secret Societies," communicated to the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania, March 8, 1837, at their special request. To this is added the fact that three high Masons were the only persons who opposed a vote of thanks to Washington on his retirement to private life—undoubtedly because they considered him a seceding Freemason. 10cts each.

Morgan's Exposition, Abduction and MURDER, AND OATHS OF 33 DEGREES. Composed of "Freemasonry Exposed," by Capt. Wm. Morgan; "History of the Abduction and Murder of Morgan;" "Valance's Confession of the Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "Bernard's Reminiscences of Morgan Times," and "Oaths and Penalties of 33 Degrees." 300 pages; cloth, $1.00.

Finney on Masonry. The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry. By Pres. Charles G. Finney, of Oberlin College. President Finney was a "bright Mason," but left the lodge when he became a Christian. This book has opened the eyes of multitudes. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper cover, 35 cents.

Narratives and Arguments, showing the conflict of secret societies with the Constitution and law of the Union and of the States. By Francis Semple. The fact that secret societies interfere with the execution and pervert the administration of law is here clearly proved. 15cts each.

Temple of Honor Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of "The Templars of Honor and Temperance," commonly called the Temple of Honor. By a Templar of Fidelity and Past Worthy Chief Templar. 25cts each.

The Anti-mason's Scrap-Book, consisting of 53 "Cynosure" tracts. In this book are the views of more than a score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of secret societies. Postpaid. 25 cts.

Reminiscences of Morgan Times. By Elder David Bernard. This is a thrilling narrative of the incidents connected with Bernard's Revelation of Freemasonry 10 cents each.

Secrecy vs. the Family, State and Church. By Rev. M. S. Dury. The antagonism of organized secrecy to the welfare of the family, state and church, is clearly shown. 10cts each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. James Williams, Presiding Elder of Dakota District Northwestern Iowa Conference M. E. Church—a seceding Master Mason. 10 cents each.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 DEGREES OF FREEMASONRY. To get these thirty-three degrees of Masonic bondage, the candidate takes half-a-million horrible oaths. 15 cents each.

Pres. H. H. George on Secret Societies. A powerful address, showing clearly the duty of Christian churches to disaffiliate from secret societies. 10cts each.

Thirteen Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. W. P. McNary, pastor United Presbyterian church. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Secretism. By Rev. I. Theo. Cross, pastor Congregational church Hamilton, N. Y. This is a very clear arraignment of the objections to all secret societies, and to Masonry especially, that are apparent to all. 5cts each.

Knights of Pythias Illustrated. By a Past Chancellor. A full illustrated exposition of the three ranks of the order, with the addition of the "Amended, Perfected and Amplified Third Rank." 25cts each.

Sermon on Secret Societies. By Rev. Daniel Dow, Woodstock, Conn. The special object of his sermon is to show the right and duty of Christians to examine into the character of secret societies, no matter what object such societies profess to have.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure.

A cream of tartar baking Powder. Highest of all in leavening strength.—Latest United States Government Food Report.
ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 106 Wall St., N. Y.

NEWS OF THE WEEK (Continued from 13th page).

Typhus fever is raging in New York City, and increasing.

Anna E. Dickinson, lecturer, has brought three suits in the Circuit court of the United States directed against eight persons, two of whom are physicians, asking damages in the aggregate sum of $125,000. These suits are directed against the persons who were instrumental in lodging her in Danville asylum for the insane in February, 1891.

The Grand Army of the Republic of Illinois will hold its annual encampment in Springfield on March 16 and 17, probably in the Hall of Representatives.

The Philadelphia correspondent of a morning paper says: "A secret convention of the Universal Order of Telegraphers of North America will be held in Pittsburgh, beginning Tuesday. All the lodges in the United States and Canada will be represented. Special reports on grievances will be made by delegates.

At Waverly, Iowa, the city council agreed to allow a continuance of the "lunch-counter" business or, rather, of the saloon business under that name, provided the dealers were willing to pay to the city $15 a month each, which agreement was at once signed by ten persons in that business.

The contract for selling beer on the World's Fair grounds has been awarded to the Pabst Brewing company of Milwaukee. The firm expects to sell about 5,000 barrels daily of this intoxicating fluid, which will be served at 87 different places. The contract is the largest ever closed in this country.

The "electoral college" (Presidential electors chosen at the last election) met at Washington on the 8th, and Grover Cleveland and Adlai E. Stevenson were declared elected President and Vice-President of the United States, by Vice-President Morton in the presence of both houses of Congress and an assemblage the most distinguished as well as the largest that ever crowded into the House of Representatives since the memorial services on the late President Garfield.

A "Big Four" east-bound train, which left St. Louis on Tuesday evening, was wrecked and totally destroyed one mile east of Pana at a late hour. The wreck was caused by a broken rail. Fire then destroyed the whole train, including two sleepers, the engine only being saved. The baggageman was killed, six passengers seriously and a dozen more slightly hurt.

The jury in the case of Asa P. Potter, ex-president of the bankrupt Maverick bank, Boston, who is charged with false certification of checks, rendered a verdict of guilty. The verdict finds Mr. Potter guilty on fifteen counts, which cover practically five charges of overcertification. The case will now go to the Supreme court.

A western association of wholesale grocers is one of the combinations expected to develop in the near future. The matter has been thoroughly canvassed and envoys have been sent to all the leading Missouri and Mississippi river points to sound the wholesale firms on the subject. The main purpose of the proposed organization is to put in operation what is known as the equity plan. This means that each wholesale dealer shall sell and deliver goods at points tributary to him at a fixed price based upon a combination with manufacturers.

A bill in the Illinois Legislature proposes to cut down sleeping car fare. It limits the charge to $1 for a berth for twenty-four hours, $2 for a section and $3 for a state-room.

On Friday morning last, by the burning of the insane ward of the Stafford (N. H.) poor-farm, forty-four of the forty-eight inmates were burned to death. At Kansas City, Mo., a cabin was burned, and a woman, a girl and two boys perished in the flames. The house of Oliver Pattie, near Bellaire, Mich., burned to the ground. Three children were roasted to death. Their ages were respectively, 12, 10 and 6.

An Alliance, Ohio, dispatch says: Mt. Union College has been badly torn up lately over the conduct of a number of students. Gambling has been indulged in by some of them, and so notorious did the matter become that vigorous action became necessary by the faculty. Thorough investigations have been made resulting in the suspension of seven of the students. The majority of them are ministers' sons.

Gov. Altgeld, of Illinois, has regained his health.

Hundreds of head of live stock have died from the recent blizzard in Kansas. The stock which came in from Southern Kansas was generally in good condition, but from Nebraska and Western Kansas came many animals that were frozen.

Catarrh in the Head

Is undoubtedly a disease of the blood, and as such only a reliable blood purifier can effect a perfect cure. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best blood-purifier, and it has cured many very severe cases of catarrh. Try it.

RUPTURE

A positive radical cure at home. (Sealed) Book giving full particulars sent FREE. Address DR. W. S. RICE, Box 206, Smithville, Jefferson Co., N. Y.

"WORTH A GUINEA A BOX."

Science MEDICAL SCIENCE has achieved a great triumph in the production of BEECHAM'S PILLS which will cure Sick Headache and all Nervous Disorders arising from Impaired Digestion, Constipation and Disordered Liver; and they will quickly restore women to complete health.

Covered with a Tasteless & Soluble Coating. Of all druggists. Price 25 cents a box. New York Depot, 365 Canal St.

BOSTON CRYSTAL GELATINE.

Lady agents wanted everywhere to sell above Gelatine. A good remuneration can be made. For particulars address Crystal Gelatine Co., 216 Lake St., Chicago.

THIS $11 to $17 FREE to examine in any home. Sent anywhere without one cent in advance. Warranted the best sewing machine ever made. Our terms, conditions and everything far more liberal than any other house ever offered. For full particulars, etc., cut this advertisement out and send to us to-day. Address Alvah Mfg. Co., Dpt. C139 Chicago, Ill.

Mention this paper.

DO YOU WANT

To receive, read, distribute and otherwise aid in the circulation of a large number of Holiness and Reform papers and magazines? If so, send me a SILVER dime, and your name and address will be printed on the Holiness and Reform Mail Exchange List, which is sent to all publishers of holiness and reform literature, who will mail you sample papers and magazines. Write name and address PLAINLY. Address, J. H. PADGETT, Printer, Ennis, Texas.

WHEATON COLLEGE,

WHEATON, ILL.

A School for Men and Women.

SPRING TERM BEGINS APRIL 4th, 1893.

Full College Courses, Preparatory Courses, Stenography, Typewriting, Vocal Music and Blackboard Drawing, without extra charge.

CHAS. A. BLANCHARD, Pres.

MY WIFE SAYS SHE CANNOT SEE HOW YOU DO IT FOR THE MONEY.

$12 Buys a $65.00 Improved Oxford Singer Sewing Machine; perfect working, reliable, finely finished, adapted to light and heavy work, with a complete set of the latest improved attachments FREE. Each machine is guaranteed for 6 years. Buy direct from our factory, and save dealers and agents profit. FREE TRIAL and FREE CATALOGUE. OXFORD MFG. CO., DEPT. B34 Chicago, Ill.

IF YOU WANT WORK

that is pleasant and profitable, send us your address immediately. We teach men and women how to earn from $5 per day to $3,000 per year without having had previous experience, and furnish the employment at which they can make that amount. Capital unnecessary. A trial will cost you nothing. Write to-day and address, E. C. ALLEN & CO., Box 1001. Augusta, Me.

JONATHAN BLANCHARD'S

SERMONS AND ADDRESSES.

Select discourses of the late editor of the Cynosure and leader in our reform. Lectures, sermons and speeches given from 1834 to 1892 in leading cities of the United States, discussing topics of

LIVING REFORM.

Secret Societies, The Sabbath, Temperance, National Reform, Christian Education, Christian Socialism, The Bible, Etc., Etc.

A BOOK EVERYBODY SHOULD READ

12mo. Fine Photogravure Portrait.

Price, 75 Cents.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASS'N, 221 W. Madison st., Chicago.

Our High Grade List and Bargain Book sent to any address on receipt of a 2-c stamp.

LORD & THOMAS,
NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING
45 RANDOLPH STREET,
CHICAGO.

Odd-fellowship Judged by its own utterances; its doctrine and practice examined in the light of God's Word. By Rev. J. H. Brockman. This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-fellowship, in the form of a dialogue. In cloth 50cts; paper covers, 25cts.

A Literary Gold Mine.

Book-lovers find "a literary gold mine" in each new issue of our Catalogue of Choice Books, which is published monthly, 128 pages, and sent for a 2-cent stamp. Our publications are not sold by dealers; order direct.

The "nugget" which most surprises people generally is our new, illustrated, unabridged, cloth-bound edition of

The Encyclopedia Britannica, $20.00

The full set is now ready. It is a reprint, in type shown by these lines, of the last (9th) English edition, over 20,500 pages, including more than 10,000 illustrations, and 200 maps; price in cloth, $20.00; half Russia, $24.80.

Specimen pages and full particulars sent free on request. Membership in the Encyclopedia Britannica Coöperative Club costs only $1.00 extra, and secures the encyclopedia on payments of only 5 cents a day or $1.00 every twenty days.

A Pretty Surprise.

Our edition of Longfellow's "Evangeline," is a pretty surprise for book-lovers. It is in good type, with 45 illustrations by Birket Foster and other eminent artists, printed on very fine and heavy paper, gilt edges, remarkably handsome cloth binding, combining the delicate colors, blue and white and silver and gold. We sell it for 19 cents! plus 6c. for postage, if by mail. This covers only about the cost of manufacture by the 100,000 copies, our object being, not profit, but to show what can be done for a little money.

More "Surprise" Bargains.

Sample books in the hands of pleased customers proving to be our best means of advertising, we offer, also, the following, which represent different styles in which we issue a large number of the world's best books; the prices cover only about the cost of manufacture by the 100,000 copies:

J. Fenimore Cooper's "The Pilot," cloth, 20c., postage, 8c.
Scott's "Ivanhoe," half morocco, gilt top, 35c., postage, 9c.
"Herodotus," in Ancient Classics for English Readers, 10c., postage, 4c.

The following are a few titles selected from our last Catalogue. Prices are given for cloth binding, the style and quality of most of them being represented by Cooper's "The Pilot," offered above. We are also just beginning the issue of most of them in the style represented by Scott's "Ivanhoe," half morocco, gilt top, at prices 20 cents a copy higher than for cloth binding.

Please mention this paper when you write.

World's Best Books

Almost fabulously cheap for such excellent editions; nearly all in this or larger type, always fine paper and thoroughly good cloth binding, or half morocco, gilt top, for 20 cents more, when published.

20 cents, postage 5c.
Æsop's Fables, illustrated
Hawthorne's Scarlet Letter
Gwen Meredith's Lucile
Utopia, by Sir Thomas More
Mrs. Caudle's Curtain Lectures
Vatbek, by Beckford

25 cents, postage 6c.
Great American Humorists
Cyril's Heroes and Hero Worship
Schonberg-Cotta Family
Teachings of Epictetus
Franklin's Autobiography
Hawthorne's Grandfather's Chair
Tom Brown at Rugby
Marcus Aurelius Antoninus
Planetary and Stellar Worlds
Prescott's Miscellanies
Todd's Student's Manual
Zenobia, by Wm. Ware
John Stuart Mill on Liberty
McCarthy's History of Ireland
Moore's Lalla Rookh

30 cents, postage 8c.
Adam Bede, by Geo. Eliot
Curious Myths of the Middle Ages
Adventures of Baron Munchausen
Hans Anderson's Fairy Tales
Guillevin's Travels
Hawthorne's Twice-Told Tales
Irvine's Sketch Book
Sir Walter Scott's Ivanhoe
Jane Eyre, by Charlotte Bronte
Kingsley's Hypatia
Bulwer's Last Days of Pompeii
Drummond's Natural Law
Lubbock's The Pleasures of Life
Robinson Crusoe
Geo. Eliot's Romola
Thaddeus of Warsaw
Children of the Abbey
Cooper's Leather Stocking Tales and Sea Tales, 10 volumes, each 30c

35 cents, postage 9c.
Beecher's Lectures to Young Men
Classic Comedies

John Halifax, Gentleman
Creasy's Fifteen Decisive Battles
Lawson's Story of Earth and Man
Ebers' Uarda, A Romance
—An Egyptian Princess
Tom Brown at Oxford
The Lamplighter, by Cummins
Self Help, by Samuel Smiles
Spencer on Education
Bayard Taylor's Views Afoot
Apocryphal Life of Jesus
Word Book of Synonyms

40 cents, postage 10c.
Auerbach's On the Heights
Lorna Doone, by Blackmore
Westward Ho, by Kingsley
Essays by Charles Lamb
Schiller's Thirty Years' War
Spencer's Data of Ethics
Guizot's History of Civilization
Masson's French and Eng. Dictionary
Zabner's German and Eng. Dictionary

50 cents, postage 9c.
Chinese Classics, Confucius, etc.
Confessions of St. Augustine
Darwin's Origin of Species
Favorite American Poems
Ideal Classics, 6 volumes in 1
The Koran, translated by Sale
Footprints of the Creator
Testimony of the Rocks
Plutarch's Illustrious Men
Interwoven Gospels
Shakespearean Quotations
Wallace's The Hesperia in Egypt
—The Land of the Puelios
Webster's Wisdom and Eloquence

60 cents, postage 12c.
Carlyle's French Revolution
Farrar's Early Days of Christianity
Taine's English Literature

75 cents, postage 10c.
Washington and His Generals
Napoleon and His Marshals
Losing's Eminent Americans
Hugo's Les Misérables, 2 volumes

Any Book supplied; the Britannica at one-sixth its former price is a fair illustration of what we are doing for book-buyers all along the line; 128-page Catalogue sent for two-cent stamp.

JOHN B. ALDEN, Publisher, 57 Rose St., New York.

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XXV., No. 24.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1893.

WHOLE No. 1,191.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,
221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PER YEAR..... $2.00
(PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE)..... 1.50

No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearses paid.

Address all letters for publication to EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, CHICAGO. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed.

Make all drafts and money orders payable to the Treasurer, W. I. PHILLIPS, 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO. When possible make remittances by express money order. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address on Cynosure list always give the former address.

[Entered at the Postoffice, Chicago, Ill., as Second Class Matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:	REFORM NEWS:
Notes and Comments..... 1	The Pennsylvania Convention; Rev. M. A. Gault in Indiana; Rev. Wm. Fenton in the Field; The Situation in the Western District; Truth Makes Free; Steam Tug-boat for the Floating Chapel..... 5,9
Our Relations with China..... 8	LITERATURE..... 6
Home Rule for Ireland.. 8	OBITUARY..... 7
The Race Problem in the South..... 8	LODGE NOTES..... 7
Secret Societies Dissected..... 8	AGENTS AND LECTURERS..... 7
CONTRIBUTIONS:	THE N. C. A..... 7
Masonry and its Critics (Concluded)..... 1	THE HOME..... 10
Lean Hard..... 10	TEMPERANCE..... 11
SELECTED:	BIBLE LESSON..... 12
Female Secret Societies in Colleges..... 3	RELIGIOUS NEWS..... 12
NEW ENGLAND LETTER..... 4	NEWS OF THE WEEK..... 13
WASHINGTON LETTER..... 4	HOME AND HEALTH..... 14
CORRESPONDENCE:	FARM NOTES..... 15
National Reform; Conglomerate Freemasonry..... 5,6

The total appropriations of the present Congress, for all purposes, exceed one billion dollars for this fiscal year.

Hawaii is to become an annex of the United States—a new Territory, and perhaps a new star, eventually, in our flag.

The daily press has been for several days largely filled with reports of a bitter war between the rival legislatures of Kansas—the Republican and the Populist—both parties claiming to be right and entitled to the State House for their respective deliberations. In the conflict the Republicans obtained possession, and State troops were ordered out to prevent further hostilities. The Cynosure forbears any comment upon the event beyond that which is made in Rev. T. C. Moffatt's letter, printed on page 6 of our issue for February 9, which we have no reason to doubt fairly shows the reason of this disgraceful affair.

The Congressional committee which is engaged in investigating the doings of the immense whisky trust had before them, last week, Wm. N. Hobart, treasurer of the trust, who "explained the use of essences and other compounds, and Mr. Stockdale asked if the combination of these with spirits was whisky. He replied that it was a hard question to answer. Mr. Stockdale asked if those compounds were not sold for whisky. He replied that they were, being known to the trade as domestic goods. He told how such goods were branded, and said that dealers knew exactly what they were. Mr. Stockdale—Then, if a customer orders such a compound and wants it branded 'Bourbon,' your firm does so? Mr. Hobart said that they did as requested, but he did not think anyone was deceived. About one-half the whiskies sold in the country contained essences. He could not say to what extent foreign goods were imitated." No wonder that 100,000 drunkards die every year in this country, if this is the stuff they drink.

President-elect Cleveland has already announced the names of several members of his prospective Cabinet. It is a little unusual for one in his position to make public such information in advance of his inauguration, but in this case it has tended to relieve the minds of many who were not actuated altogether by curiosity, but naturally felt a deep interest in knowing the character of his advisers. The times are pregnant with schemes of all sorts, many of which bode no good to our national integrity and welfare, and Mr. Cleveland's announcement will do much to allay considerable suspense on this subject. The list of his lieutenants is as follows: Walter Q. Gresham, of Illinois, Secretary of State; John G. Carlisle, of Kentucky, Secretary of the Treasury; Daniel S. Lamont, New York, Secretary of War; Wilson S. Bissell, of Buffalo, N. Y., Postmaster General; Hoke Smith, of Georgia, Secretary of the Interior, and J. Sterling Morton, of Nebraska,

Secretary of Agriculture. It begins to look as if Mr. Cleveland intends to be the President of the whole nation and not of a section or clan. Let us hope so.

The number of car-couplers killed in the United States, during the last fiscal year, while on duty, was 2,660; of those wounded in the same period, 26,140, and a great many of the latter were crippled for life. Investigation shows that no less than forty-seven mechanical car-couplers are now in use, and yet none has proved efficient to prevent this terrible sacrifice of human life and limb. President Harrison has been fully aware of the necessity of competent legislation on this subject, and so strongly urged its importance upon Congress that a bill has been passed in both branches, and both measures were referred to a conference committee. The requirements of each bill will require improved couplings and increased care in this class of work.

MASONRY AND ITS CRITICS.

(Concluded.)

THIRD PAPER—BY A FREEMASON.

Robert A. Padon, Sumner, Iowa.

MY DEAR SIR:—I have read your article in the September number of the Homiletic Review, on "The God of Masonry." Will you pardon me for making the suggestion that you seek out one of the many sincere followers of our blessed Master, who are preaching his Word throughout your State, who are Freemasons, and ask them as to the validity of the five statements with which your article ends?

For fear you will not do so, will you permit me a remark or two in regard to your propositions? I have been a Mason for no inconsiderable term of years, and at the same time a minister at the altars of Christianity. I trust I may be able to speak with some certainty.

1. You say: "Masonry is a religion," and prove it by a quotation or two from writers on Masonic subjects. If you were to prepare an address on the Koran, would you not first read it, or would you read what somebody else said of it?

In order to test its spirit and inherent nature, would you not have to study it as you would in order to speak authoritatively on the De Senecute were you to seek to give your congregation an address on Cicero's ideas of old age?

I make the broad statement that Freemasonry does not claim, nor can it be claimed from its ritual, to be a religion, but simply a sublime code of morals and system of practical benevolence throughout the brotherhood. Any claim beyond this is preposterous. It is not denied that men often give to the lodge the place which ought to belong to the church. But this is only a reason why Christian ministers should seek membership among Masons so as to be of some service in disabusing the minds of their brethren of their misleading and false conceptions of the true function of the lodge, which is an institution for the purely mundane and not celestial relation.

2. No man who rejects the Bible can possibly become, nor can he remain, a Mason, unless he do violence to all his moral nature and perjure his soul.

The Bible is the first, foremost, and ever-present great light of Freemasonry.

3. Every character in Freemasonry has its Biblical counterpart. The Masonic ritual is largely made up of Scriptural phraseology, and the dramatic situations are, almost without exception, from Scripture history. Geo. Wingate Chase, in the quotation cited, simply impeaches his own intelligence when he drops into such extravagances. What he means is that Blue Lodge Masonry is not Christian theism, but simply monotheism.

ANTI-SECRET STATE CONVENTION.

Members of the National Christian Association and all friends of Anti-Secrecy Reform are hereby invited to attend and participate in the approaching State Convention in behalf of the cause:

PENNSYLVANIA.

The Annual Convention of the Pennsylvania State Christian Association, opposed to secret societies, will be held in CARNEGIE MUSIC HALL, ALLEGHENY, PA., FEBRUARY 27TH AND 28TH, 1893. The following is substantially the

PROGRAM:

Monday, Feb. 27. 2:00 P. M.—Devotional exercises, by Rev. D. McAllister, D. D. 2:30.—Address of Welcome, by Rev. W. H. McMillan, D. D. 3:00.—Appointment of Committees. 3:15.—Chart Talk: "The Things Done of Them in Secret," by Rev. J. P. Stoddard, Boston, Mass.

Evening Session. 7:15.—Devotional exercises. 7:45.—Address: "The Divine Condemnation of the Secret Lodge System," by Rev. Wm. Dillon. 8:30.—Music. 8:45.—Address: "The Suppressed Question," by Rev. M. A. Gault. Music.—The music of the evening will be furnished by Prof. Liefeld and his celebrated Mandolin Quartette.

Tuesday. Morning Session. 9:00.—Devotional exercises. 9:30.—Treasurer's Report, and Election of Officers. 10:00.—Open Parliament; Questions, and Five-minute Speeches in order. 11:00.—Address: "The Oath," by Rev. M. B. Patterson. 11:30.—Address: "The Development of our Work," by Rev. Chas. E. Temple.

Afternoon Session. 1:45.—Prayer. 2:00.—Address: "Principles Underlying our Work," by Rev. J. S. T. Milligan. 2:20.—Address: "Secret Societies and the Temperance Reform," by Rev. S. Collins. 2:40.—Address: "Secrecy a Temptation to Crime," by Rev. D. C. Martin. 3:00.—Miscellaneous Business, Reports of Committees, and Adoption of Resolutions.

Evening Session. 7:15.—Prayer. 7:30.—Music. 7:45.—Address. 8:30.—Music. 8:45.—Address.

Music for this evening furnished by the Aletheorian Orchestra of Geneva College, Pa.

Names of speakers will be announced later.

4 and 5. The answers to 1, 2 and 3 render answers to 4 and 5 unnecessary.

I trust you will look into Masonry itself and not judge of it by what some of its ill-advised friends say of it.

Most truly yours, KNIGHT TEMPLAR.

P. S.—Masonry is eminently Christian. Blue Lodge Masonry is not Christian because it is anti-Christian.

I do not address you Rev., as I am not clear that you are a clergyman. If so, pardon me.

FOURTH PAPER—REPLY BY AN ANTI-MASON.

SUMNER, Pa., December, 1892.

Reverend Mr. —,

DEAR BROTHER:—Your letter came to hand the first of September. Ever since I have been very busy. Two Sunday-school conventions, meetings of Presbytery and Synod, and three weeks of a series of meetings in our church, all have crowded out any extra work on my part.

Permit me to write down a few thoughts suggested by your letter.

You make the suggestion that I "seek out one of the many ministers of Iowa, who are Freemasons, and ask them as to the validity of the five statements at the close of my article in the Homiletic Review."

Your suggestion seemed more wise when first read than it did when looked at with the aid of what followed. Why should I ask these Freemasons who are ministers of the Gospel? For information? Why, brother, have you written me your letter? To inform me? At the close of your letter you express the hope that I "will look into Masonry itself, and not judge of it by what some of its ill-advised friends say of it." If one cannot form a just and true estimate of Freemasonry without going into it, why ask these Masons referred to? And why address me your letter?

Let me tell you, brother, what I have done. I have asked Freemasons, and eminent Freemasons, too. I have asked Chase, and Webb and Mackey. I know of no one in the State of Iowa who is regarded by Masons themselves as more competent to speak on the subject of Masonry than Chase, Webb, Mackey or Pierson. These writers are authorities on Freemasonry, as you well know. You, brother, may be authority among Masons—I do not know. If you have published any books or pamphlets on Freemasonry which have been endorsed by the order, I would be pleased to see them. If one were to look into the subject of free trade, he would not take the statements of one who was not recognized as authority upon the subject; but the writings of those men whom the advocates of free trade held up as ones competent to speak, would be read and studied. Freemasonry does not condemn, but it endorses, the writings of Chase, Mackey, Webb and Pierson, on Freemasonry.

Let us here institute a few comparisons.

1. You use these words in your letter: "I make the broad statement that Freemasonry does not claim, nor can it be claimed from its ritual, to be a religion."

From "Webb's Monitor of Freemasonry," by Robert Morris, Past Grand Master, p. 7, I quote the following: "Masonry is a system teaching, symbolically, piety, morality, science, charity, and self-discipline." This prominent and recognized authority on Masonry says that Masonry teaches piety. Worcester, an acknowledged authority on the definition of words, defines the word piety thus: "The filial sentiment felt by man to God, the Father of all; a sense of dependence on the Supreme Being, producing habitual reverence, and a disposition to know and obey his laws; godliness; devotion; religion." According to this eminent authority, piety covers the ground of religion; in fact, he makes piety and religion synonymous terms.

Mackey, in his Manual of the Lodge, states, on page 40: "As Masons, we are taught never to commence any great or important undertaking without first invoking the blessing and protection of deity, and this is because Masonry is a religious institution."

Here we see a second authority on Masonry who states in plain terms that "Masonry is a religious institution." An educational institution is a society or organization formed for the purpose of advancing the interests of education. A religious institution is a society or organization formed for the purpose of advancing the interests of religion. Masonry claims to be a religious institution.

In my copy of Mackey's Masonic Ritualist, I have marked the following sentence, which I take word for word from this book:

"Speculative Masonry, now known as Freemasonry, is, therefore, the scientific application and the religious consecration of the rules and principles, the technical language, and the implements and materials of operative Masonry to the worship of God as the Grand Architect of the universe, and to the purification of the heart and the inculcation of the dogmas of a religious philosophy."

Dear brother, if that institution which claims scientifically to apply and religiously consecrate rules and principles, etc., to the worship of God and the purification of the human heart, is not a religious institution, pray, what is a religious institution? Of course, Masonry does not inculcate the dogmas of Mohammedanism; for many Masons do not believe in that religion—yourself, for example. Neither does it teach the doctrines of Brahminism, for the same reason; nor does it teach Christianity, for Jews, Mohammedans and Brahmins would reject it. It is a religion peculiar to Masonry.

2. You say, again, that Masonry "is simply a sublime code of morals, and a system of practical benevolence throughout the brotherhood."

"A sublime code of morals!"

Again I will quote. Since you and I—so far as I know—are not authorities on this subject, let us call in those competent to speak, and acknowledged as such, and we can judge.

In Webb's Monitor of Freemasonry, p. 285, is found this testimony:

"The Ten Commandments, or their equivalent, embrace the gist of the Masonic religion."

Here are three statements concerning Masonry clearly made by this Masonic authority:

1. Masonry is a religion.

2. The gist of Masonic religion is embraced in the Ten Commandments, or their equivalent.

3. The Ten Commandments may have an equivalent.

Is it in obedience to this sublime code of morals that men will dare offer an equivalent to the moral law of God?

Again, on p. 196 of Webb are found these words: "The first duty of the reader of this synopsis is to obey the edicts of his Grand Lodge. Right or wrong, his very existence as a Mason hangs upon obedience to the powers immediately set above him. Failure in this must infallibly bring down expulsion, which, as a Masonic death, ends all. The one unpardonable crime in a Mason is contumacy, or disobedience."

Why! brother, does not the sublimity of a code of morals which require obedience to a man whose commands may be right or wrong consist in high-handed rebellion against the God of heaven? Who has the right to promulgate and enforce a system of moral laws which, in parts, run directly counter to the moral law of God?

You say you "have been a Mason for no inconsiderable term of years, and at the same time have been a minister at the altars of Christianity."

Christianity says: "The Lord is our judge; the Lord is our law-giver; the Lord is our King." Isa. 33: 22. "Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God and him only shalt thou serve." Matt. 4: 10.

Freemasonry says: "The first duty of the reader of this synopsis is to obey the edicts of his Grand Lodge. Right or wrong, his very existence as a Mason hangs upon obedience to the powers immediately above him."

Masonry tells you your first duty is to obey man; Christianity tells you your first duty is to obey God; more opposite than the poles.

"Right or wrong." The standard of judgment as to whether an act or a course of conduct is right or wrong is the law that God has given us, as found in his Word. But Masonry sets up a standard by which things, judged to be wrong according to God's standard, are declared to be right. Truly "a sublime code of morals!"

3. Again, you assert: "No man who rejects the Bible can possibly become, nor can he remain, a Mason, unless he do violence to all his moral nature and perjure his soul."

I will set over against your statement the statement of another Mason, and one whom Masonry acknowledges as authority.

"Blue Lodge Masonry has nothing whatever to do with the Bible; it is not founded upon the Bible. If it was, it would not be Masonry; it would be something else." Chase's Digest of Masonic Law, pp. 207, 208.

Which of these statements, coming from Masons, would a wise man take as according with the truth? If you are not a recognized authority upon Masonry, surely wisdom would accept Mr. Chase's; because his comes from the pen of one whom Masonry recognizes as authority. If you are authority equally competent to speak as Mr. Chase, yet wisdom would lead one to accept Mr. Chase's statement, because if two great authorities on so vital a point as to whether the Bible is the foundation of their order are in dispute, it is clear evidence that the Bible is not held highly. If I were seeking admission into the Congregational church, and should find in the writings of Dr. Wm. M. Taylor the statement that "the Congregational church had nothing whatever to do with the Bible; if it had, it would not be Congregationalism;" even if I should also read in the writings of Dr. Seeley, of Amherst, the opposite statement, that the Congregational church was founded upon the Bible, the love of Christ, and honor to his name and Word, would keep me from uniting with such a church.

4. "The Bible is the first, foremost and ever-present great light of Freemasonry," are your words.

In "Mackey's Manual of the Lodge," p. 49, you may read these words which, as a Mason, you know to be true: "The furniture of a lodge consists of a Holy Bible, square, and compass."

It is true, a copy of the Bible is found on the altar; but also a hat may be found on the Master's head, and a sword in the hand of the Tyler. The hat and the sword are used just as the Bible, as pieces of furniture. As a minister, you know that some families use the Bible—a costly-bound copy—as a piece of furniture; it ornaments the parlor center table, but as such it sheds no more light than the table.

Again, I quote from the same book, p. 30: "The Bible is the light which enlightens the path of our duty to God; the Square that which enlightens the path of our duty to our fellow-men; and the Compass that which enlightens the path of our duty to ourselves." The three great lights of Masonry are the Bible, the Square, and the Compass. The work of the Square is to enlighten, and the work of the Compass is to enlighten, and the Bible is said to do no more than the Square and the Compass.

By no power, physical, mental or moral, can one bring up an instrument made of metal called a square, or a compass, to the level of the Word of the living God; but one can, in his judgment and treatment, bring the Word of the true and living God down to the level of a lifeless instrument. Masonry does level down.

But you may say, the compass and the square, as used by Masonry, are symbols only. Then so is the Bible used as a symbol only. On this point let us turn to Masonic authority. Mackey, in his "Lexicon of Freemasonry," p. 62, says: "The Bible is used among Masons as a symbol of the will of God, however it may be expressed." What is a symbol, according to Masonry? In the same book as above, p. 466, we read: "Symbol—A sensible image used to express an occult but analogical signification." So we see that Masonry regards the Bible as a symbol only, and a symbol is an image. The Bible is not, therefore, in the judgment of Masonry, the expressed will of God, but an image of his will.

But permit me to make another quotation, as an illustration of the manner in which the Bible is used in Masonry. If you have a copy of Mackey's "Text-Book of Masonic Jurisprudence," please turn to page 33, and note this language: "Landmark XXI:—It is a landmark that a 'Book of the Law' shall constitute an indispensable part of the furniture of every lodge. I say advisedly 'a Book of the Law,' because it is not absolutely required that everywhere the Old and New Testaments shall be used. 'The Book of the Law' is that volume which, by the religion of the country, is believed to contain the revealed will of the Grand Architect of the universe. Hence, in all lodges in Christian countries, the 'Book of the Law' is composed of the Old and New Testaments; in a country where Judaism is the prevailing faith, the Old Testament alone would be sufficient; and in Mohammedan countries and among Mohammedan Masons, the Koran might be substituted."

So we are taught, by Masons themselves, that

"the first, foremost and ever-present great light of Freemasonry" is a "Book of the Law," which may be the Bible from which you preach in your pulpit ministrations, or it may be the Koran. "You pays your money and you takes your choice."

It is astonishing to me, let me say in conclusion, that a minister of Jesus Christ and a Mason can be in ignorance of the true nature of Masonry as taught by her own authors, or if not in ignorance, how he can remain both a Mason and a minister of Jesus Christ? Loyalty to the blessed Saviour should lead one to inform himself of the nature and character of an institution he has sworn to uphold, and, when informed, to abandon the Christless imposition as one would abandon a garment infected with the cholera.

If I have written portions of this letter with some warmth, it is not because I have any bitterness toward you, brother, or toward any man as a Mason, but out of deep jealousy for the honor of my blessed Master, Jesus Christ. How could one do other than write with much feeling when the temple of Christ is being defamed?

I pray that you may take up the authors upon Masonry, whom Masonry endorses, and give them a study in the very presence-chamber of God, and let Christ lead you whithersoever he will.

"He that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life."

Yours fraternally, ROBERT A. PADEN,
Pastor Presbyterian Church, Sumner, Iowa.

FEMALE SECRET SOCIETIES IN COLLEGES.

There are to-day about 6,500 women graduates and undergraduates of higher institutions of learning in the United States who are members of Greek-letter societies. In this number members of societies established at only a single institution are not included, but only those who belong to organizations which are intercollegiate in character. Greek-letter fraternities represent the very essence and spirit of the ideal college life. They embrace not only the intellectual but the social—the champagne as well as the fish of the college menu. No one will taunt the average college fraternity with being dull or prosaic, and the same spirit that prevails in the men's societies prevails in those of the women, its expression being modified only to adapt it to the gentler and more refined instincts of the sex. The development of the fraternity idea among women—and they have adopted the word "fraternity" in spite of its etymology, as well as the idea—has followed closely on the heels of the movement for the co-education of the sexes. Nearly all the higher grade colleges for women exclusively prohibit the existence of secret societies among their students, the new Women's College in Baltimore being a notable exception. But the co-education movement is making steady progress, so that of the 345 colleges and universities reporting to the National Bureau of Education 204 are co-educational. The new Chicago University admits women students to all its privileges and employs women in its faculty. Yale has decided to admit women to some of its courses, and co-education prevails at Michigan, Cornell, Leland Stanford, Northwestern, Washington and other universities and colleges of the first rank.

The admission of young women into the older colleges has generally been looked upon with disfavor by the male students, especially by the members of the fraternities, and the newcomers have been received with scant courtesy. However unpleasant it may have been, the coolness of their reception has not been without its beneficial effects upon the fair invaders. It has aroused their energies and independence and created in them a determination to maintain the right which their presence on the new soil asserted. Some of the women's fraternities have been the result of the necessity felt, under the circumstances, of a centralizing of forces and of aggressive work. To-day these fraternities command general recognition as an established factor in college life, even by the men's fraternities. In the movement for the collective college fraternity exhibit and the Pan-Hellenic Congress at the World's Fair next summer the women's fraternities are represented on the same footing as those of the men and are equally as active.

In their general characteristics the young women's societies are not different from the best of those of the young men. They have their grips and pass-words and mysterious ceremonies behind bolted oaken doors, and there is among them the same esprit de corps, the same lively participation in college politics, the same struggle for supremacy as among the young men. There is nothing of the bas bleu among them, and if anyone doubts that a woman is able to keep a secret let him attempt to learn what the mysteries are that are revealed behind those oaken doors. In some of the fraternities the social element and in others the literary element prevails, but all aim at what they consider a happy combination of the two. Teas, socials and receptions are indulged in to vary the more serious work of the regular meetings, as well as to aid the committees appointed to "cultivate" new members. The ultimate object is, as the editor of one of their magazines states it, "the formation of close, sympathetic and helpful friendships among congenial young women. The three graces of a fraternity girl," it is added, "are scholarship, character and manners."

The Pi Beta Phi fraternity claims the credit of being the oldest as well as the largest of those established by women. This society had its origin in an organization formed in 1867 among the girl students at Monmouth College, Monmouth, Ill., and extended the following year to the Iowa Wesleyan University, under the name of "I. C. Sorosis." During the following fifteen years ten more chapters were organized in various institutions throughout the West. In 1883 the name was changed to Pi Beta Phi Fraternity. Since then active chapters have been established in the order mentioned at Knox College, Galesburg, Ill.; York College, Nebraska; Callanan College, Iowa; University of Colorado, Boulder; Hastings College, Nebraska; University of Denver, Hillsdale College, Michigan; Franklin College, Indiana; University of Michigan, Columbian University, Washington, D. C.; Ohio University, University of Minnesota, Sophie Newcomb College, New Orleans, and Swarthmore College, Pennsylvania. Thus it will be seen that a total of twenty-nine chapters have been established. The parent chapter at Monmouth was legislated out of existence by a decree of the faculty prohibiting secret fraternities among students at that institution. Three other chapters have also gone to untimely graves, leaving twenty-one undergraduate chapters. The total membership is about 1,800. The fraternity is thoroughly organized. Subordinate to the Grand Council, of which Emma Harper Turner, of Washington, is president, are four provincial organizations, with a president over each. The badge of the fraternity is a gold arrow, and a well-edited quarterly magazine, entitled the Arrow is published by the Michigan Beta Chapter at Ann Arbor. The fraternity has adopted wine and blue as its colors and the carnation as its flower. It has also a flag and a yell. The yell is:

Ring, ching, ching!
Ho, hippi, hi,
Ra, ro, arrow,
Pi Beta Phi!

Kappa Alpha Theta is one of the largest of the women's fraternities, and its members dispute the claim to seniority made by Pi Beta Phi on the ground that the Greek letter appellation was not adopted by that society until after the organization of Kappa Alpha Theta. The Alpha chapter of Kappa Alpha Theta was formed at Indiana Asbury, now De Pauw, University in January, 1870. A total membership of 1,300 and nineteen chapters scattered over twelve States, including California, are evidence of the aggressive work the fraternity has done. Three of the chapters, those at Burlington, Vt.; Palo Alto, Cal., and Madison, Wis., own chapter houses. The fraternity magazine, published at Burlington, has entered upon its seventh volume. It contains seventy-six pages of literary matter and fraternity news, and is among the largest of those published by the feminine Greeks. The Kappa Alpha Theta badge is a kite-shaped pin enameled in black and studded with pearls. But for a slight difference in shape it might easily be mistaken at a little distance for a Delta Kappa Epsilon or Psi Upsilon badge.

Next to the Pi Beta Phi in point of numbers comes Kappa Kappa Gamma, which has 22 chapters and about 1,600 members. The Alpha chapter was formed in October, 1870, at Monmouth College, and of course suffered the same fate as the others at that college. This fraternity is also divided into provinces and governed by a Grand Council. The chapters are located at Boston, St. Lawrence, Syracuse, Cornell, Ohio, Wooster, Indiana, De Pauw, Butler, Wisconsin, Illinois, Wesleyan, Northwestern, Minnesota, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska and Missouri Universities, and Buchtel, Alleghany, Hillsdale and Adrian Colleges. A key set with jewels is the Kappa Kappa Gamma badge and The Key is the name of the organ published by the fraternity. The Key is said to have been the first periodical published by a woman's fraternity. Dark and light blue are the fraternity colors. In the list of Kappa Kappa Gamma's distinguished members are found the names of Mrs. Mary A. Livermore and Mrs. Julia Ward Howe as honorary and that of the late Mrs. R. B. Hayes as active alumnae.

The Delta Gamma fraternity is of Southern birth, having originated at the University of Mississippi, at Oxford, in 1872. For some years its membership was mainly in the South. Charters for new chapters were granted rather promiscuously until 1883, and as a result eight of the chapters that had been established had died before that date. With the convention held in 1883, however, a new life in the fraternity began, broader views were taken and the members became inspired with a desire to rise to a more influential position in the Greek world. Since then more discrimination has been exercised and more of the policy of exclusiveness adopted, and there has been not only a steady, but a healthy growth. The fraternity now has fourteen active chapters in eleven different States, with a total membership of between six hundred and seven hundred. The parent chapter at Oxford is now extinct. The chapters at Michigan University and the University of Wisconsin own chapter houses.

The Alpha Phi fraternity was founded at Syracuse University in 1872. It enjoys the distinction of having been the first woman's fraternity to build a chapter house. That fact may have helped to create the impression that has gone abroad that Alpha Phi is the most wealthy of the Greek sororities. The chapter house is situated on "University Hill," Syracuse, New York, within sight of the university buildings, and commands a fine view of the city. It contains, besides the chapter hall, all the rooms necessary to make a refined, tasteful home for a number of young women. Alpha Phi alumnae retain a lively interest in their society and have, no doubt, done not a little to direct the growth of the fraternity in a careful and conservative course. The total membership is now about 500, with active chapters at Syracuse, Northwestern, Boston, De Pauw, Cornell, Minnesota and Michigan Universities and the Woman's College at Baltimore and alumnae chapters in Boston, Chicago and Syracuse.

Alpha Phi was left to rule supreme among the young women at Syracuse until November, 1874, when her first rival appeared in the form of the Alpha chapter of the Gamma Phi Beta fraternity. This chapter was projected and inaugurated while the late Bishop E. O. Haven was Chancellor of the Syracuse University. His oldest daughter was one of its charter members, and he manifested much interest in the new society and gave the fledgling its motto. Ushered into life under such fostering care it is not strange that the new organization achieved immediate success. Gamma Phi Beta has always been very conservative, believing that a few strong chapters are more to be desired than numerous weak ones. As a consequence the fraternity has only five chapters and a total of 377 members. The chapters are located at Syracuse, Michigan, Wisconsin, Boston and Northwestern Universities. No honorary or associate members are admitted.

The youngest of the sororities is Delta Delta Delta, or, as it is familiarly known, "Tri-delta." Born at Boston, on Thanksgiving, 1888, with four charter members, it had an auspicious beginning, as it has since had a vigorous growth. During the four years of its existence six additional chapters have been founded, and the total membership has grown to about 250. These chapters are located at Iowa State University, Simpson College, Indianola, Ia.; Knox College, Galesburg, Ill.; Adrian College, Adrian, Mich.; St. Lawrence University, Canton, N. Y., and the University of Cincinnati, the last mentioned having of leading inebriate asylums and similar institutions been established May 23, 1892.—Philadelphia Times, Jan. 22.

NEW ENGLAND LETTER.

Is Masonry a religion?—Fast Day still lives.—Romanism in the Massachusetts Legislature.—Municipal suffrage in Maine.

Is Masonry a religion or not? This is a question of vital import to the churches; and never have I found it more clearly answered, not even in Mackey or Morris, than in a recent number of the Argus, an East Boston paper, which devotes nearly the whole of its first page to a report of a "lodge of sorrow" lately held, "with solemn and impressive ceremonies," in Masonic Temple. The occasion, so it is stated, was remarkable, as being the first time such ceremonies were ever performed in America by a Blue Lodge. It was remarkable, however, for some other reasons not mentioned. Fancy a company of men, robed in black, standing around a large catafalque, also draped in the same sombre trappings, with four white candles burning on pillars at each corner, listening to strains of solemn funeral music, and words of prayer and discourse, full of allusions to immortality and the life beyond, yet with every expression eliminated that could point in even the remotest degree to Him who alone has "brought life and immortality to light through the Gospel." In Turkey, or Senegambia, this might not seem remarkable. In Christian America it certainly does. With the light of a taper turned full upon it, lay a human skull, which Worshipful Master Smith took in his hand, a la "poor Yorick," and made it the text of his discourse. His philosophy was about on a par with that of the gravedigger in Hamlet; his theology was a great deal worse. I will quote a few passages, and then leave Christian readers to answer the question, "Is Masonry a religion?"

"The pyramids were temples for the dead. Masons are erecting one for the living. The pyramids were only mausoleums in which the bones of the mighty dead might repose in imperial magnificence. Masons are erecting a structure in which the God of Israel shall dwell forever." "Our religion removes the dark shroud, draws aside the sable curtains of the tomb, and bids hope and joy to rouse up to sustain and cheer the departing spirit. It points beyond the silent tomb to the breaking light of a resurrection morn, and bids us turn an eye of faith and confidence on the opening scenes of eternity."

"We shall meet forever there, and never thence depart; There's a mansion, 'tis all ready for each faithful, trusting heart;

There's a mansion and a welcome, and a multitude is there

Who have met upon the level and been tried upon the square."

While Masonry builds her foundations on the heathen "mysteries" she manages to filch enough of the phrases of Christianity to deceive the unthinking who do not see that the slightest allusion to Christ is scrupulously eliminated. Meanwhile the Pope's Encyclical against Freemasonry continues to make a great stir in the fraternity. The British American publishes a wrathful letter from an Odd-fellow and a Knight of Pythias, calling upon all his fellow-lodgemen "to work instead of talk, and vote as is best for our religious interests." This grows entertaining. It looks as if we might be preparing for a Kilkenny-cat show in politics. But those wisecracks who would have us foster Masonry as the enemy of Romanism forget what awkward consequences might ensue if the two should suddenly patch up a peace and unite their forces. The present Pope may die any day and make room for a more politic successor. Then there is also another possibility: That Masonry having conquered Romanism, will not be satisfied, but proceed to conquer Protestantism too. Our manless churches and desecrated Sabbaths show that she has already made considerable progress in this direction.

I am glad to record for the honor of New England that the Legislatures of New Hampshire and Massachusetts have stood firm against the tide of alien materialism that would sweep away our oldest historic day—which in point of age takes precedence even of Thanksgiving—and absolutely refused to abolish Fast. The final debate on the question was both interesting and significant. Some of the members who spoke in favor of its abolition showed considerable heat, one declaring that the "division was on party and religious lines." Parson Brown, of Fall River, whose singular bill for the regulating of the liquor traffic was noticed in a recent letter, argued in favor of giving it up, as a mere form out of which the spirit had departed. A question from Mr. Bliss, of Boston, brought out the fact that he was a native-born Scotchman; whereupon the former, after stating that his ancestors came over in 1637, and he should be false to their memory if he did not advocate retaining the day, added significantly, that in regard to this matter, "we could get along very well without any advice from Scotland, England or Italy;"—with considerable emphasis on the latter word. This roused the ire of an Irish Romanist member, who thought "altogether too much had been said about the descendants of Yankees and Puritans." Then a Mr. Parker—I wish I could write his full name—joined forces with the Irish member by virulently abusing Mr. Bliss. "The gentleman," he said, "does not want to be instructed by a man from Scotland, England, Ireland"—at which point Mr. Bliss corrected him.

"I did not say Ireland."

"No, you didn't," was the retort, "but it was not because you did not mean it. It was because you didn't dare."

Some applause followed, in which it is to be hoped, for the honor of Massachusetts, few native Americans joined. The names in the list of those who voted to abolish the day showed Irish Romanists and their Democratic allies in overwhelming preponderance. Rome hates our old historic landmarks. This movement to do away with Fast is the thin end of the wedge, and every drop of Puritan blood in me thanks God that she has not triumphed.

The people of Boston are making their voice heard against the plan of the railroad vandals who want to take away a portion of the Common for purposes of rapid transit. Perhaps the most effective speech at the hearing in the Green Room came from an old lady who, trembling with feebleness, interjected between the remarks of the other speakers, "You can't touch that Common. The Lord won't let you. I played there when I was a girl, and you shan't touch it." Boston is not quite ready to buy present relief at the sacrifice of any part of her old historic Common.

The burning of the insane asylum at Dover (N. H.), at which forty insane paupers lost their lives, ought to lead to more careful inspection of such buildings. I am afraid that the penny-wise-pound-foolish method prevails with too many of our county boards. A woman is not so apt to accept things on trust and imagine that all is right because nothing wrong appears on the surface, as a man; and for this reason it would be well if women could be largely represented in all such bodies.

Municipal suffrage for women had a grand hearing in the Maine Legislature, Mrs. Hannah J. Bailey conducting the case like another Portia. Here are a few of the facts from her address to the committee: A few weeks ago she wrote to the collector of taxes in each town in Maine, asking him how many women in his township were taxpayers, and the amount for which they were assessed. Two hundred and thirty out of 500 who were written to, have replied, and their answers show that 12,393 women pay taxes on property valued at $12,005,303.16. In North Dakota the enfranchised Indians asked for an abatement of their taxes. They were granted entire release for twenty-five years; but the tax-paying women have to submit to the injustice of "taxation without representation." The ballot in his hands makes the poorest Indian in North Dakota of more consequence than all the women of the State. In spite of a severe storm which was raging at the time, so large an audience had gathered before the close of her remarks that it was necessary to adjourn to the Representatives' Hall, which shows that a very satisfactory degree of interest in this question exists among the thinking men and women of the Pine Tree State. She was followed by other ladies, including Mrs. L. M. N. Stevens, who brought down the house by telling of a letter she received from a town official in reply to a question why women should not vote. The writer said they should not vote because they did not pay a poll-tax. And he spelt the word, "pole."

I am sorry to say that the prospects for this measure in the Massachusetts Legislature look gloomy. Why should Speaker Barrett, a professed friend of the cause, appoint on the hearing a committee largely composed of members adverse to it?

What is the hidden power which transforms such men into secret traitors. When women get the ballot perhaps their eyes will be opened to many things of which their political disabilities now keep them in ignorance.

ELIZABETH E. FLAGG.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 15, 1893.

Good people who considered the United States government committed officially to the arbitration of international disputes were much astonished and more aggrieved early this week when the statement was made in some of the daily papers that the new treaties of extradition with France and Russia, which were recently ratified by the U. S. Senate, contained clauses which bound each of the contracting nations to help either in case of war with any nation outside of the compact. Your correspondent takes pleasure in stating, on the authority of a number of Senators, that the United States has taken no such backward step as such an alliance would be, and that with the exception of a special clause providing for the extradition of any person or persons, who after making an attempt upon the life of the Czar of Russia, may come to America, neither of the treaties named differ materially from those we have with other European countries. The United States is rightly regarded as the leading nation in the great Christian army of peace which is striving to abolish the horrors and butcheries of war by substituting therefor arbitration; and unless our future rulers differ widely from those now in power no alliance will ever be made with a foreign nation that might compel us to take part in a war, against our inclinations and principles.

It is scarcely to be wondered at that the hope of ever getting legislation distinctly favoring moral reform from Congress sometimes grows weak in the hearts of the most sanguine workers.

The House of Representatives has passed a new liquor-license bill for the District of Columbia (one that was not opposed by the liquor-dealers), but before doing so it deliberately voted down numerous beneficial amendments proposed by Representatives Morse, of Massachusetts; Pickler, of South Dakota; J. D. Taylor, of Ohio; Dingley, of Maine, and other temperance men. Among the several amendments which the temperance members succeeded in persuading the House to adopt were the following: Increasing the wholesale license from $150 to $250, and the retail from $250 to $400; forbidding the sale of liquor to a habitual drunkard, if his wife, mother or daughter protests in writing; prohibiting children under 16 years old entering a saloon without consent of their parents; prohibiting the sale of liquor to minors, and prohibiting the sale of liquor within one mile of the Soldiers' Home. Representative Pickler made a strong effort to have the amendment adopted prohibiting the sale of liquor on inauguration day, and after his failure he made another effort to prevent the sale of liquor at the inaugural ball by offering an amendment prohibiting the sale of liquor in any building owned by the government; but he was again voted down, and next inauguration day, like its predecessors, will mark the first step taken towards ruin in the life of more than one young man.

The bill incorporating the American University, which has passed both houses, has been amended, and now provides that two-thirds of the trustees shall be of the Methodist Episcopal faith. It is expected that work on the university buildings will be commenced early in the spring. Work on the Episcopal University buildings will also begin this year.

Justice Brewer of the United States Supreme Court is a firm believer in the duty of American churches to send out and maintain foreign missionaries. At an anniversary meeting of a Sunday-school mission society he delivered an address that was simple in its argument, yet powerful in its effect upon his hearers. He recalled the command of Christ to his disciples—"Go into every land and preach the Gospel to every creature"—and told of his own desire to some day visit Palestine, the land made holy because of its association with the life of Jesus, and review the scenes of that life. In conclusion he said: "It is no small thing to leave home, friends and kindred and go a voluntary exile into the darkness of barbarism and unbelief. . . . It is one of the grand things of this age that there is so much willingness to go forth bearing the message of Christ to foreign lands, and it is the duty of those who remain at home to assist these brave missionaries not only with money, but with our best sympathy."

Rev. Dr. E. S. Todd preached a sermon last Sunday on "The Gospel in the Hawaiian Kingdom," giving a short but interesting sketch of how the missionaries brought the islanders from cannibalism to Christianity and from barbarism to civilization.

Rev. S. A. Mutchmore, of Philadelphia, told a Washington audience of his eleven months' tour of the missionary stations of the world, Sunday evening, and he told it well; and in commenting upon criticisms that have been made upon the expenses of foreign missions he expressed the opinion that no business in the world of the same magnitude was conducted at so small a cost.

Gen. Morgan, whose resignation as commissioner of Indian affairs took effect yesterday, has been appointed a member of the board of counselors of the World's Fair Religious Congress. *

REFORM NEWS.

THE PENNSYLVANIA CONVENTION.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Feb. 17, 1893.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—I have only time this morning to say that we are in the midst of preparation for what is to be, with God's blessing, the best convention our Association has yet held in this State.

Much of my time, during the week past, has been given to securing the funds needed to meet the expenses of our gathering. I am glad to report that more than one-half of the amount needed (two hundred dollars) has been secured. Contributions have not been large, but the response has been general and hearty. One friend, in giving five dollars, said: "If you are short, drop me a card; you know where I live."

I am thus realizing what I have believed—that when God has a work to be done he will provide the means. If in harmony with him, our labors are never in vain.

Letters received are encouraging. Ten thousand programs are being mailed to pastors and others. Friends who can use more to advantage can have them on application.

To any who may be hesitating as to whether they should make the effort and sacrifice necessary to be present, let me say: I do not believe you will regret having made the sacrifice, when you realize the blessing to yourself and others. The lovers of darkness are looking on. They know in the board of trade when corn rises two cents men meet in excited convention. In short, "where a man's treasure is, there will his heart be also." We must show what we believe by our acts. Under God it remains with you to make this gathering a blessing to many. Will you come? Let all who will (D. V.), be in time for roll-call. Write to me, addressing Home Hotel, Pittsburgh, that your entertainment may be provided. Let friends in Ohio, who can, "Come with us and we will do you good."

W. B. STODDARD.

REV. M. A. GAULT IN INDIANA.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Feb. 17, 1893.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—I arrived here last night, and expect to address three meetings in Bloomington. The rain prevented two of my meetings, near Princeton, but, in spite of the excessive moisture and very muddy roads, I addressed six meetings and received in contributions for the cause, including Cynosure subscriptions, upwards of $50.00.

Only one of the Princeton pastors, Bro. Smith, of the Christian church, had the courage to cooperate with me. The U. P. pastor, Bro. A. M. Campbell, wrote me before I came there: "Of late years I have not taken part in such gatherings, and do not want to do so now. It is often the case that a pastor who opens his church for such a gathering is understood as endorsing everything said. At the same time his courtesy may be abused by the speakers, and the pastor cannot, in courtesy, rise and try to limit or qualify the remarks; so that I am the less willing to be put at the mercy of men I do not know, however true it may be that they are bright lights in the State."

I have little hope of having the co-operation of the U. P. pastor here at Bloomington, although he was once my fellow-student at Monmouth. He wrote to me, last week: "I am sure it would not be wise to have any such meetings here now, and my judgment hardly sanctions it at any time. We are just now reaping the fruits of revival work, and in my judgment it would not be wise to introduce anything that might distract public attention from graver concerns."

I well remember when just such arguments were used to suppress the anti-slavery agitation, before the war; and because so many ministers suppressed that agitation, it cost our nation the "graver concern" of a million graves and three billion dollars.

I am glad to say that there are many churches and pastors in Indiana who have the moral courage to stand up and be counted on God's side of the anti-secret question.

After our Coulterville convention, I addressed another audience in the Temperance Hall at Marissa, Ill. This was the third meeting that I held here, and all were arranged by the new State president, Bro. Chesnut. I addressed three excellent meetings at Staunton, and the next night helped in a revival meeting in the M. E. church at Beaucoup, Washington county, where I enjoyed a good visit with that old-time friend of the cause, L. C. Livesay. The next evening I addressed the W. C. T. U. at Olney, Ill. But I will write more of these points again.

I will address a meeting in Cincinnati next Thursday evening, on my way to the Allegheny Convention.

M. A. GAULT.

REV. WILLIAM FENTON IN THE FIELD.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Feb. 16, 1893.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—Glenwood is a popular summer resort, about 130 miles from St. Paul, on the shore of a lake near the junction of the Northern Pacific and Sault Ste. Marie railways. It has a population of 700 to 1,000. Its churches are Episcopalian, Congregationalist and Lutheran; and a Reformed Presbyterian church near the village. There are some zealous anti-secretists, such as pastors Elsey and Ruddock; and no doubt the Lutheran pastor also, who was not at home; Dr. Moore and Mrs. Moore, from Olathe, Kan.; brethren Morrow, Harsh and Sample. The latter was a member of Rev. Mr. McFall's church at Boston in 1880, at the time the Masonic broadcloth mob mobbed the Anti-masons in Music Hall; and he gave us an interesting account of an interview with Hon. Samuel D. Greene in regard to the Masons abducting Capt. Morgan and William Miller.

A meeting was held in the Courthouse Hall on Monday evening last. Rev. E. G. Elsey, pastor of the Reformed Presbyterian church, made some introductory remarks; and Rev. Bro. Ruddock, pastor of the Congregational church at Villard, led in prayer; after which I delivered an address on "The Relation of the Bible to Freemasonry."

There is a Masonic lodge in Glenwood, but no Masons attended the meeting.

In a private conversation with an old acquaintance, who is now a K. of P., he utterly and emphatically repudiated Christ and his resurrection, and likewise any interest whatsoever in Christ's redemption; but confessed his loyalty to his lodge. The Bible truly says, "who is a liar but he that denieth that Jesus is the Christ?" Yet in the initiatory ceremonies of his lodge the Bible is called their book of law as it rests upon the ghastly skeleton of their patron saint, Pythias, while the candidate, kneeling beside the coffin containing that skeleton, and opposite the prelate of the lodge, forswears himself as he kisses the Holy Bible and offers prayer to God. And they sing, "Father, I come to thee." (See "Knights of Pythias, Illustrated," pp. 20-22.)

I remember reading in a periodical of their's an article setting forth the beauties of the Knights of Pythias, by relating how ingeniously one of their brethren, who was a smuggler, was aided by them in defrauding the government and saving himself from public disgrace; and also of another case, in which the culprit, a K. of P., by clapping his hands three times, and pronouncing Damon backwards, nomad, was delivered by his brethren from the custody of military law and saved from death. Is it any wonder that a man shipwrecks faith by joining the Knights of Pythias? I would that they were saved and in Christ; but how can they be without giving up their lodge, and, by breaking their forsworn obli-

(Continued on 9th page.)

CORRESPONDENCE.

NATIONAL REFORM.

BOSTON, Jan. 31, 1893.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—In Our Banner for December, 1892, Bro. Gault writes of the "Christless Lodges," and his article was copied into last week's Cynosure. In it he speaks of National Reform thus:

But why is it that so many have lost confidence in the National Reform movement, so that our own church last year contributed but little more than $3,500 for this work, about one-seventh as much as it contributed to send the Gospel to Syria? I fear one reason is because we have not testified as we should against the greatest enemy of National Reform, this Christless lodge system. We have given the people too much reason to think that we have compromised with this evil. Some of our vice presidents have been Freemasons. A prominent Freemason on the program of one of our conventions spoke in favor of Masonry. One of our lecturers employed by the National Reform Association for years was a member of several secret orders. I was warned last summer by one of the most influential leaders of the National Reform Association that I must not bring the anti-secret question into my National Reform discussions,—that when a man accepted the National Reform platform we had no right to raise the question whether he was a Mason or not. Thus while we testified against Christ rejecting constitutions we failed to testify against its twin evil, if not its mother evil, viz., Christ rejecting lodges.

Permit me to speak a word on behalf of this sorely-wounded Reform Association. The prime object of this association is to secure a recognition of the Lord Jesus Christ as King of kings in the Constitution of the United States, as the nation's pledge to accept his law as the sole and only guide in civil and political life. This involves a recognition of the fact that the state is the divinely-appointed keeper of both tables of the Decalogue. In doing this, the state fulfills the end of its being—"a terror to evil-doers, and a praise to them that do well." The association maintains that the state, as the keeper of the first commandment, should acknowledge God as the source of all authority and power in civil affairs. The second involves the authoritative and judicial suppression of all open and public idolatry, whether practiced in Romish cathedrals, Chinese Joss-houses, or the Mormon Endowment House. The third makes the administration of oaths in secret societies a punishable offence, whether it be in such treasonable orders as the Jesuits, the Mafia, the Clan-na-Gael, the High-binders, and the Endowment House; such insidious and dangerous worshipers of devils as the Masons, Odd fellows and Knights of Pythias, or such harmless dupes of Satan as the Knights of Labor, the G. A. R., and the Orangemen. The fourth prohibits all public Sabbath desecration on the part of the individual, lodge, corporation, municipality, commonwealth or general government. The fifth secures the mutual rights and privileges of parents and children, and says to belligerent employer and employe, "Labor, all its rights; capital, all its rights; equal and exact justice for all." The sixth prohibits murder, either by the knife, revolver or rum. The seventh outlaws free love, polygamy and speedy and easy divorce. The eighth forbids stealing, stock gambling and endowment orders, and secret insurance societies, that rob an unsuspecting public. The ninth punishes perjury. The tenth makes covetous deportment punishable, as Achan in the camp of Israel.

So it is evident that the testimony of the National Reform Association is against every possible evil that afflicts civil society. Accepting the platform would logically involve political dissent from the immoral Constitution of the United States.

The platform of the N. C. A. repudiates all secret, oath-bound orders. But if a member of a secret society is willing to stand on that platform and condemn all lodges, from the deepest depths of Satan to the shallowest orders on the surface, no one would say him nay.

In the New England Convention held in this city last December, Prof. Townsend, one of the program speakers, told us that he belonged to seven secret, oath-bound societies. Bro. Gault would no doubt have arisen in indignation and "hewed him in pieces before the Lord," as Samuel did with Agag. But Samuel's heart yearned after Saul. Let us smite the lodge that we may save its deluded members.

The National Reform Association made a mistake in employing Secretary Mills, while he belonged to three or four secret orders. But it seems to have been done ignorantly. No one seems to have known the fact before he was engaged. Few knew it until he resigned. The executive committee was not infallible. They were like the elders of Israel making a covenant with the Gibeonites. They made a contract without sufficient inquiry. But over against that one mistake, I can place one hundred acts of that committee that were not mistakes. But that mistake was not the cause of the falling off of contributions to National Reform last year. Mr. Mills had left the service long before the year began. It would not be creditable to the good sense of Covenanters to attribute to them such a silly motive. The cause lies deeper.

1. The Covenanter church has been passing through severe trials. She has lost twenty ministers and 1,000 members. Her attention has been occupied with closing up her broken ranks, and her energies and resources have been taxed in repairing the breaches in her walls. Instead of the falling off of contributions being a surprise, the wonder is that so much was given. The fact that $3,500 were given to this cause under the circumstances indicates that the Covenanter church has unbounded faith in National Reform.

2. Kindred associations are being helped. (1.) The National Christian Association is regarded by the Covenanters as "a mighty man of valor" that must be supported. It appears that the deism of Voltaire produced the Reign of Terror in France. Then it went to the German universities and produced the Higher Criticism which is threatening the church in our land. But the religion of the lodge is deism. No wonder New York Presbytery, whose ministers and elders had practiced deism in the lodge so long, acquitted Prof. Briggs whose heresies are the offspring of deism. Covenanters see this and rejoice in seeing the N. C. A. draw out the spear and stop the way against the incoming foe. (2.) The American Sabbath Union is making a grand struggle on behalf of the Christian Sabbath, in their efforts to close the gates of the World's Fair on the Sabbath day. This awakens a deep response in the heart of every Covenanter. The heart and the pocket-book of the Covenanter are joined together. Both are in Christ's hand. If you get the one you get both. Covenanters regard it as a privilege to aid in this great work of saving the American Sabbath.

3. The present indications are that the contributions of the Covenanter church this year for National Reform will surpass those of last year. The Covenanter church is not going backward. The dauntless spirit of two centuries ago still lives in them. They have enlisted for the war. They will not cease until Christ is enthroned as King of kings and Lord of lords in this and all lands.

J. M. FOSTER.

CONGLOMERATE FREEMASONRY.

A strange tangle in India—Gordian knots in Satan's cable—Who can loose the bonds and release these slaves?—"Cynosure" readers to the rescue—A plan—Success certain.

BOMBAY, India, January, 1893.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—The enclosed leaf, from the Hyderabad Directory, gives several Masonic lodge lists. I have marked the Hindu, Mahometan and Parsee names. You see how they are all mixed up with the Christless Christians. All of your readers who have examined Masonry through your books ("Master's Carpet," "Stories of the Gods," etc.) know something of the heathen origin and pagan performances of the lodge. Masonry is indeed a "half-fellow well-met" among these heathen systems. Hence it is very consistent for the godless European Mason, with his anti-Christian lodgery, liquor, and lust, to join with all sorts of Asiatic heathen as "brother" in mystic mummeries.

But alas! some innocent and good people are drawn into these pitfalls of drink and blasphemy. One man, whom I knew as a professing Christian, was enticed by the glamor of plated piety, joined a lodge, grew intemperate through lodge "refreshment," and became a sot. For years his friends tried to reform him. I have watched him at night, followed him to the liquor-shops, dashed to the ground the drink he had paid for, ran after the conveyance into which he got to flee from my watch-care. Finally he was saved by grace, lived eight years a happy and useful Christian, and a few days ago died in the Lord, respected and beloved.

But few of the lodge victims are thus saved. Most of them go on to the darkness of which their blindfolded and enchained state is a fit emblem.

What can be done? A great spread of truth is needed in India. The honor of Christ and the rescue of souls demand that urgent, earnest, aggressive work be done. Our India Watchman and Book Repository are the only clear and continuous testimony against the follies and falsehoods of lodgery in India. Greatly do we need a fully saved man, called, qualified, and sent of God, to come and take up the anti-secrecy campaign in India. How can such a man be chosen, sent, supported and made successful in this great work? Only by God's direct aid and blessing.

The N. C. A. can scarcely be expected to assume such a responsibility at present. But the Holy Ghost can do it, if his children will pray and work under his blessed guidance.

We do not want experimenters, novices, quacks or sight-seers for this work. Men "full of faith and the Holy Ghost," "of good report" and "wisdom," men of purity, piety and spiritual power, could do great things for God and souls in India.

How can we get them? Here is an unfailing method: Let every one who reads this, and who believes strongly in prevailing prayer, take this matter before God, and pray specially, fervently and frequently for God himself to send us such truly qualified and anointed men for this great work. Without any formality, but in determined devotion and faith, let us have a circle of prayer for the India branch of your N. C. A. work. Come, friends, it will help your own hearts and your home work to pray much for our work in India. Pray on till some one is compelled to forsake all and follow Christ's call, "Go ye into all the world and preach." Let such pleadings continue, and God will use this agency for his own glory in the salvation of souls, and in the overthrow of much of this blasphemous lodge trickery and wickedness in India.

I see no way to solve this great problem—to get the right workers and see them go on to success—but faithful prayer. Read the prayer-promises; write "For India" on the margin of your Bible; then go, and prevail. "Every one that asketh receiveth."

For Christ and India,

WALLACE J. GLADWIN.

The following is a summary of the information contained in the Hyderabad Directory, referred to in Bro. Gladwin's letter:

Keystone Lodge, No. 81, of Mark Masters, Secunderabad: The Master, a Parsee; the Junior Warden, a Parsee; the Senior Deacon, a Parsee, and the Guardian a Mahometan; the other nine officers supposed to be English. Of the twenty subordinate members there is one Hindu; five Parsees (fire-worshippers); four Mahometans.

Lodge Morland, 569, Secunderabad: R. W. Master and Tyler, Hindu; Secretary, Deacon, and Junior Deacon, Mahometan; Guardian, Parsee; the other four officers supposed to be English. Of the thirty-six members, there are fourteen Mahometans; three Hindus.

Lodge Mayo, 1406, Secunderabad: Of the officers the P. M. is a Parsee; all the other officers, and all the members, appear to be English churchmen.

St. John's Lodge, 434, Secunderabad: The J. P. M. is a Parsee; all the other officers and seventeen of the twenty members seem to be English; the other three members are Parsees.

LITERATURE.

CURRENT PERIODICALS.

The Cosmopolitan Magazine for February devotes several pages, with a full-page portrait, to a memorial of James G. Blaine. The principal illustrated papers include a description of Monte Carlo, the notorious European gambling town, by H. C. Farnham; The Beet-Root Sugar Industry, by H. S. Adams; Oriental Rugs, by S. G. W. Benjamin; Toki Murata, by Sewell Read; The Evolution of Naval Construction, by S. Eardley-Willmot; June, 1993, by Julian Hawthorne; The Great Railway Systems—The A. T. and S. F., by Chas. F. Gleed; Cachuca Amorita, by Wilson de Meza; Lord Beaconsfield, by Adam Badeau. Other articles are: After Mist in Winter, by Archibald Lampman; The Unilluminated Verge, by Robert Bridges; Democracy and the Mother Tongue, by John C. Adams; Suffrage, by Edw'd E. Hale; Lullaby, by Arthur S. Hardy; A Traveler from Altruria, by W. D. Howells; Dusk, by Wm. W. Campbell; Rebellion and Revolution, by Chas. W. Coleman. A good number. New York: Price 25 cents.

Two great subjects seem to dominate the February number of the Review of Reviews. One is the subject of American cities and their social and industrial functions, and the other is the subject of millionaires and their possibilities of usefulness, particularly in the line of large benefactions for public objects and for the improvement of their own communities. The longest article of the number is Mr. W. T. Stead's character sketch of Jay Gould. Here we have a summing up, by the brilliant London journalist, viewing Gould's life and career from his objective point of view, of what seems to him interesting and significant in the amazing career of this wizard of American finance. Other features of the February Review are: Prof. Edward W. Bemis' article on the recent results of municipal gas-making in the United States, and Mr. Robert J. Finley's article on electric street lighting in American cities.

The Preacher's Magazine for February, designed for preachers, teachers, and Bible students, edited by Mark Guy Pearse and Arthur E. Gregory, printed in England and reprinted in New York, with additions by American editors, has been received. Present-day Preaching; Moses, His Life and Lessons—The Plagues; The Inspiration of the Scriptures (as related to questions concerning their origin); Extempore Preaching and Read Sermons; How Men Get Their Sermons—Thos. Guthrie; Homiletics—several specimens; Notes and Illustrations; Notes on the International Sunday-school Lessons; Outline Addresses on the Golden Texts; Christian Perfection; What Suggestions Can be Offered for Making Secret Prayer a Great Reality? and About Books, make up a varied repertory for the use of those in whose interest it is published by Wilbur B. Ketcham, 2 Cooper Union, New York City.

At the head of popular exponents of medico-hygienic science, none gives a greater variety of useful health hints for all classes of citizens than the Sanitary Era, published by Wm. C. Conant, P. O. Box 3059, New York, N. Y. It is designed to meet the needs of mothers, nurses and invalids, as well as those who are interested in the healing of the sick as a profession. $1.00 a year.

No one can carefully read the successive issues of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. C. Needham's Defence, published monthly by Albert Needham, 1330 Arch street, Philadelphia, without being wiser in Scripture-lore and Christian development. The February number is excellent. Fifty cents a year.

CALENDAR.

The Columbia Cycling Calendar is a highly artistic and practical wall ornament. It begins with February, '93, and ends with February, '94. It consists of a circular piece of cardboard, 47 inches in circumference, the calendar picture being framed with a reproduction of the pneumatic rubber tire. The picture is in fifteen water colors, and represents a country scene with a bicycling couple in the foreground, resting in a cosy nook, after a delightful ride. The original picture is by a celebrated American artist, and the reproduction is so close to the painting that one hardly realizes that the delightful tones and shades are not the true brush mark. This calendar, issued by the Pope Mfg. Co., of Boston, is adapted for the library, dining-room, parlor, or business office.

MUSIC.

Trifet's Monthly Galaxy of Music, for February, contains thirteen pieces of sheet music, both vocal and instrumental, that, if purchased in the usual detached form, would cost $4.50. The collection embraces the following: The Little Canary; Love Divine, All Love Excelling (John Stainer); The Old Red Cradle; Once in a While (violin obligato); Thou Art Lost to Me (Arthur Sullivan); Three Children Sliding; The Whistling Wife. These supply both words and music. Among the instrumental symphonies is one—Melodie, Op. 8, No. 3, by the great Paderewski, and five by less famous composers. Published by F. Trifet, 408 Washington street, Boston. One dollar a year.

NOTES.

Dr. Washington Gladden's serial, "Cosmopolis City Club," now appearing in the Century, is considered particularly timely and useful in communities where a fight for good government happens to be going on. The first article, which appeared a week before the city primary elections in Allegheny, Pennsylvania, is said to have had a decided influence in the campaign conducted by the Citizens' Reform Association of that city.

Talcott Williams, of the Philadelphia Press, contributes an article on "Philadelphia—A City of Homes," to the forthcoming number of St. Nicholas. This is in the series on Leading American Cities, which is now appearing in St. Nicholas.

OBITUARY.

Died, at Marion Center, Indiana county, Pennsylvania, February 5, 1893, ALEXANDER SUTOR, aged 84 years.

The deceased was a life-long and uncompromising foe of secret societies and shams of every sort. He had been a reader of the Cynosure from its commencement, and in his final sickness, as long as he was able to hold up his head, he would sit and slowly peruse its columns.

He was one of the pioneers of the locality, and had lived forty-three years in the house where he died. His father was a staunch Scotch Presbyterian elder, and in that faith he was reared, but united with the Baptist church at Pittsburgh.

In 1839 he married Jane R. Park, and had a family of nine children, six of whom, with his widow, survive.

The funeral was held on the 6th, Rev. A. T. Bell, of Washington Presbyterian church, officiating. He was buried in the Marion cemetery. J. T. S.

LODGE NOTES.

(From Secret Society Journals.)

KNIGHTS OF HONOR.

The prospects for a healthy increase in Massachusetts during the winter looks bright. From different sections of the State we hear of a renewed interest and commendation for the new laws enacted by the supreme lodge.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS.

The new ritual will be printed in the English language only, and the announcement is made that from and after Feb. 19 no work will be legal except that laid down in this new ritual. Knights who have hitherto worked in the German, Scandinavian and other languages realize fully for the first time that they must conduct the work of their lodges in a tongue which will be strange to them in that connection, and they do not, as a rule, relish the idea.

The order of Knights of Pythias is arranging to establish a Pythian castle at the historic city of Mormons, or Latter Day Saints—Nauvoo, Ills.

Now that the supreme chancellor and major general have announced the establishing of the headquarters of the order during the World's Fair, applications for quarters are coming in fast. General James R. Ross has already secured all the rooms in the building for the Indiana brigade when they come in August. The Hoosiers will come over 2,000 strong.

RED MEN.

The membership of the order in New York State last June was 11,110. Present reports should show an increase of at least 1,500 on this.

The question of "parade" or "no parade" is being now discussed, with a majority favoring a turnout next summer.

A. O. U. W.

Making the Mississippi river the dividing line north and south, and including the jurisdiction of Wisconsin and Ontario in the eastern division, we find the following to have been the relative progress made by the two sections during the year from Nov. 1, 1891, to Nov. 1, 1892:

	1891.	1892.	Inc.
Eastern division....	162,604	177,073	14,379
Western division....	104,911	122,816	17,905

Total increase.....32,284

The average membership in the western division for the year was 113,863 and the per cent of increase 15.76. In the eastern division the average membership was 169,883 and the per cent of increase 8.46.

MASONRY.

It is never to be forgotten that proselyting is forbidden in Freemasonry. No effort is permitted to bring over to Masonry any profane who has not of himself manifested a desire to unite with the fraternity.

The tabular statement of the Missouri commanderies shows that 318 were knighted, 79 affiliated, 82 reinstated, 68

Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

First and foremost and above all things, it purifies the blood. Not only in March, April, and May, when the sarsaparilla claim to do good, but all the year round, it cleanses, renews and invigorates the system, rouses every organ into healthful action, and drives out blood-poisons of every name and nature. For the worst forms of Scrofula, the most stubborn Skin and Scalp Diseases, such as Salt-rheum, Eczema, Tetter, Erysipelas, and all diseases or disorders caused by a torpid liver or impure blood, nothing can equal it as a remedy.

If any thing could, it would be guaranteed, just as the "Discovery" is. If that fails to benefit or cure, you have your money back. Is any thing that isn't sold in this way likely to be "just as good?"

See that you get the genuine medicine.

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained, and all Patent business conducted for Moderate Fees. Our Office is Opposite U. S. Patent Office, and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.

Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.

A Pamphlet, "How to Obtain Patents," with names of actual clients in your State, county, or town, sent free. Address,

C. A. SNOW & CO.
Opposite Patent Office, Washington, D. C.

The St. Louis Sermon

Are Secret Societies a Blessing or a Curse?

An Address by Rev. B. Carradine,
D. D., Pastor of the Centenary
M. E. Church, St. Louis,
Mo., Jan. 4, 1891.

W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's too."

A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover. Sent postpaid 25 copies $1.00. Single copy 5 cents.

Address - - W. I. PHILLIPS,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

suspended, 118 dimitted, 42 rejected, and the total membership to be 3,630. Since the organization of the grand commandery in May, 1860, 26 grand commanders have been elected, 23 of whom are now living.

In some Masonic jurisdictions the members when visiting are instructed to refuse an examination until the charter is shown them. In the jurisdiction of Pennsylvania this demand is always refused, the reasons for which must be self-evident to every thinking Mason.

During the recent summer a craftsman died on board a steamship bound for Liverpool. A brother on board, learning he was a Mason, had the burial service of the order recited over the remains ere the body was lowered into the sea.

ODD FELLOWS.

The District of Columbia has 15 lodges and a membership of over 18,000.

Pennsylvania gains about 3,000 members each year. It has now over 1,000 lodges and considerably over 100,000 members.

The grand master of Ontario is pastor of a Methodist church.

You need not be afraid of the twinge of rheumatism when you have Salvation Oil.

An obedience to the simple laws of hygiene and the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla will enable the most delicate man or sickly woman to pass in ease and safety from the icy atmosphere of February to the warm, moist days of April. It is the best of spring medicines.

ANTI-SECRECY TRACTS.

The following numbers are in stock, and can be had at the wholesale price of 25 cents per pound:

4. Freemasonry in the Family.
7. To the Boys who Hope to be Men.
8. Modern Heathenism.
9. Ministers at Rival Altars.
10. A Pastor's Confession.
12. Alexander Campbell's Estimate of the Lodge.
15. Secrecy and Sin.
22. Extracts from Masonic Oaths and Penalties, as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.
37. Why a Christian should not be a Freemason (German).
38. Masonic Oaths and Penalties.
39. Should Freemasons be Admitted to Christian Fellowship?
42. Our Duty and Ability to Know the Character of Masonry.
45. Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?

The above are the only tracts in stock in large quantities. There are a few of several other numbers. Remember that these are being retailed at wholesale prices—25 cents per pound. Keep a package of Anti-masonic tracts for use in letters.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,
321 W. Madison St., Chicago

AGENTS AND LECTURERS.

NEW ENGLAND DEPARTMENT.—Rev. J. P. Stoddard, Agent, 218 Columbus Ave., Hotel Howland, Boston.

EASTERN DEPARTMENT.—W. B. Stoddard, Agent, No. 215, 4½ St., Washington, D. C.

CENTRAL DEPARTMENT.—Rev. M. A. Gault, Blanchard, Ia.

WESTERN DEPARTMENT.—Rev. W. C. Paden, Oakland, Kan.

PACIFIC DEPARTMENT.—, address Rev. S. Mathew, Canby, Oregon.

COLLEGE AGENT, Rev. S. F. Porter
Cynosure office.

OTHER LECTURERS.

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
Rev. H. H. Hinman, Oberlin, O.
Nathan Callender Montdale Pa.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
T. B. McCormick, Princeton, Ind.
E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
H. A. Day, Brighton, Mich.
J. M. Bishop, Chambersburg, Pa.
A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
W. M. Love, Osceola, Mo.
J. K. Glassford, Carthage, Mo.
Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Minn.
J. S. Perry, Thompson, Conn.
Rev. E. Mathews, Long Island City, N. Y.
E. Barnettson, Haskinsville, N. Y.
D. A. Richards, Brighton, Mich.
A. W. Parry, Evanston, Ill.

SCOTCH RITE MASONRY
ILLUSTRATED.

The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all Masonic rites, and are fully and accurately given.

"FREEMASONRY ILLUSTRATED,"

as advertised, but the signs, grips, passwords etc., of these three degrees are given at the close of Vol. 2 of

"Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated"

Vol. 1 of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3d to 18th inclusive. Vol. 2 of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 19th to 33d inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree included. Price per volume, paper cover, 50 cents each, in cloth, $1 each. Each volume per dozen, paper covers, $4; per dozen, cloth bound, $9.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern. Table of Contents: The Antiquity of Secret Societies, The Life of Julian, The Eleusinian Mysteries, The Origin of Masonry, Was Washington a Mason? Fillmore and Webster's Deference to Masonry, A Brief Outline of the Progress of Masonry in the United States, The Tammany Ring, Masonic Benevolence, The Uses of Masonry, An Illustration, The Conclusion. 50c each.

THE N. C. A. BUILDING

(The gift of Philo Carpenter.)

—AND OFFICE OF—
The Christian Cynosure,

221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO

The National Christian Association

PRESIDENT—Rev. M. A. Gault, Blanchard, Iowa.

VICE PRESIDENT—John Dorcas, Tipton, Iowa.

FIELD SEC'Y and TREASURER—W. I. Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

CORRESPONDING SEC'Y—Rev. H. L. Kellogg, Wheaton, Ill.

REC. SECRETARY—Mrs. E. A. Cook Chicago.

DIRECTORS—T. B. Arnold, C. A. Blanchard, E. A. Cook, J. M. Hitchcock, G. R. Milton, J. P. Richards, E. Whipple, E. R. Worrell, Edgar Wylie, W. M. Howie, H. F. Kletsing.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

NEW ENGLAND.—Pres., Rev. J. M. Foster, Boston, Mass.; Sec'y, Miss E. E. Flagg, Wellesley, Mass.; Treas., L. E. Lincoln, Boston.

CONNECTICUT.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Willimantic; Sec., David J. Ellsworth, Windsor; Treas., C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.—Pres., Rev. R. W. Chesnut, Marissa; Sec., Rev. J. R. Wylie, Coultersville; Treas., Rev. W. I. Phillips, Cynosure office, Chicago.

IOWA.—Pres., John Dorcas, Tipton; Sec., Rev. T. P. Robb, Linton; Treas., Rev. L. Mendenhall, Fairfield.

KANSAS.—Pres., Rev. C. H. Strong, Lawrence; Vice-Pres., Rev. J. L. Countermine, Hiawatha; Sec., Rev. D. H. Coulter, Winchester; Treas., Rev. B. B. Paull, Neosho Falls.

NEBRASKA.—Pres., Rev. W. I. Brooks, Pawnee City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. G. Widen, Mead; Sec., Howard P. Young, Wahoo; Treas., Rev. T. H. Dabney, Hooper.

MAINE.—Pres., Isaac Jackson, Harrison; Sec., I. D. Haines, Dexter; Treas., H. W. Goddard, West Sidney.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Pres., S. A. Pratt, Worcester.

MICHIGAN.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec., H. A. Day, Brighton; Treas., Geo. Swanson, Jr., Bedford.

MINNESOTA.—Pres., S. B. Sjoblom, Ferguson Falls; Cor. Sec., Wm. Fenton, St. Paul; Rec. Sec., Mrs. M. F. Morrill, St. Charles; Treas., Wm. H. Morrill, St. Charles.

MISSOURI.—Pres., B. F. Miller, Eagleville; Treas., William Beauchamp, Avalon; Cor. Sec., A. D. Thomas, Avalon.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—Pres., Robt. A. Frohock, Alton; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., James F. French, Canterbury.

NEW YORK.—Pres., Rev. S. R. Wallace, Syracuse; Sec., Rev. W. H. Clark, Binghamton; Treas., Lucius Woodruff, Binghamton.

OHIO.—Pres., J. W. Martin, Mt. Perry; Rec. Sec., A. T. Vestal, Senecaville; Cor. Sec. and Treas., E. Thomson, Senecaville.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Pres., R. J. George, D. D. Beaver Falls; Cor. Sec., J. S. T. Milligan, Pittsburgh; Treas., R. C. Wylie, Wilkinsburg.

WISCONSIN.—Pres., J. B. Galloway, Poynette; Sec., Isaiah Faris, Vernon; Treas., J. W. Wood, Baraboo.

The Christian Cynosure.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1893.

Any society, secret or otherwise, that administers oaths must be dangerous to the well being of the community, if those oaths can be supposed by any one who takes them to be of higher obligation than the laws, or if they can be so far tortured as to allow of such construction.—STONE'S LETTERS ON MASONRY AND ANTI-MASONRY, p. 65.

OUR RELATIONS WITH CHINA.

In the last week of January a religious conference was held in New York City to discuss the Chinese-exclusion law of the United States. After due consideration a committee of seven, consisting of Rev. Dr. H. E. Morehouse, Dr. Josiah Strong, R. R. McBurney, Darwin R. James, John A. King, J. M. L. Curry and Elbert B. Monroe, was appointed to present a protest against the law to Congress, and ask for a repeal of the law for the following reasons: It is "a dishonor to the United States; a breach of faith with China; a hardship and wrong to the Chinese here; a provocation to retaliation by China; a hindrance and menace to Christian missions in China of great proportions and promise." The committee promptly made its plea to Congress, without producing, as yet, any practical important result, and there is little hope of the law being repealed at this session.

In China, where the native secret societies, last year, made war upon the foreigners then in the empire, and a military revolution against the reigning sovereign broke out, a gratifying change has taken place. After temporarily suppressing the insurgents and the native brigands, the Emperor issued a stirring royal proclamation, declaring that Christians and Christianity in China must be protected against further brutal assaults, and instructing his subordinates to stringently carry out his will in this respect. "The propagation of Christianity by foreigners," says the Emperor, "is provided for by treaty, and Imperial decrees have been issued to the provincial authorities to protect the missionaries from time to time. For years peace and quiet have prevailed between the Chinese and the foreigners. How is it that recently there have been several missionary establishments burned out and destroyed, and all happening at about the same time? This is decided strange and incredible. . . . Let the Governor General and Governors. . . issue without delay orders to the civil and military officers under their respective jurisdictions to cause the arrest of the leaders of the riots, try them, and inflict capital punishment upon them, as a warning and example to others in the future. The doctrine of Christianity has for its purpose the teaching of men to be good. Chinese converts are subjects of China, and are amenable to the local authorities. Peace and quiet should reign among the Chinese and missionaries, but there are reckless fellows who fabricate stories that have no foundation in fact, for the purpose of creating trouble."

Now, why cannot our American free government be quite as conciliatory and generous as this heathen emperor, and no longer make war upon his subjects who desire to dwell among us?

HOME RULE FOR IRELAND.

Mr. Gladstone has made public his new plan for giving Ireland a home government, which possesses the important feature of enlarged liberality, as compared with that which he presented to Parliament seven years ago. The following summary of its provisions will suffice to give the reader a fair idea of its character:

Mr. Gladstone's new bill confers upon Ireland all such powers as our States possess for levying of local taxes, for the construction of highways, for the maintenance of local police, for the establishment of a local judicature, for the assembling at stated times of a local Legislature, composed of two branches. And it limits, as our State governments are limited, the powers of the local judicature, executive and legislature. The Irish government is deprived, as our State governments are, of power to levy troops for foreign war, to make war, to form treaties with foreign powers, to levy imports upon merchandise or manufactures sent to it from other parts of the national domain, or, in short, to exercise any attributes of nationality. Like our States, also, Ireland, by Mr. Gladstone's measure, is to send members to the national British Parliament, such members to have as full power as the Representatives and Senators of our States have in voting upon all measures of national importance. The viceroy or governor is appointed by the crown, the governed having no voice in his selection. Our Senators and Representatives of each State in the Union are free to vote upon all measures submitted to Congress. The Irish representatives in the Imperial Parliament will not, if home rule be granted, be free to vote upon all questions; and for a very sufficient reason. The Congress of the United States levies taxes only for national purposes; the Parliament of Great Britain and Ireland legislates upon a great body of taxation that is purely local in its application. At present the Irish members vote on all questions, because the English, Scotch, and Welsh members also vote on all questions, many of which are local to Ireland. But when Ireland regulates its own local affairs, the English, Welsh, and Scotch having nothing to say about them, it will be improper for Irish members to vote upon affairs local to Scotland, Wales or England.

In many respects, the new plan resembles the present governments of Canada, Australia, and other British colonies, with this difference, that to Ireland is granted representation in the national Parliament, which those colonies do not possess.

The bill, it is reported, is favorably received by the friends of Ireland in the British Parliament. What treatment it will receive from the anti-home-rulers remains to be seen.

THE RACE PROBLEM IN THE SOUTH.

One of the most persistent claims made by the white people of the late slave-States is, that the Negro question is solely their concern; that they understand it perfectly, and that they simply ask to be let alone in the management of this vital question. For this reason they resisted the civil rights law and finally secured its abrogation. For this they were thrown into hysterical excitement at the mere mention of a Federal Election bill, and this, more than anything else, has secured a "solid South" in all national elections.

But it is safe to say that during more than twenty-five years they have made no progress in securing a healthful and harmonious relation towards their colored fellow-citizens, and that while the Negro has made a most hopeful progress in the acquirement of education and property, the social antagonism has increased rather than diminished. With some honorable exceptions, there has been no desire or willingness for harmonious citizenship. Instead of this, there has been a persistent cultivation of the spirit of caste, and of mutual antagonism between the white and the colored. The recent heinous crime of a Texas Negro, and his most horrible torture and burning alive, which was witnessed by 10,000 people of Paris, Texas, including the school children that were dismissed that they might behold the horrid scene, surpasses everything in savagery that has ever been recorded in the history of the world. Thenceforth the black king of Dahomey and the red Indian of America must yield the palm in intense cruelty to the Anglo-Saxon of Texas.

Such events tend to put far off the day of peaceful and harmonious relations between sections and citizens, and especially do they give emphasis to the failure of the Southern scheme of dealing with the Negro question.

We are far from desiring to re-awaken sectional antagonism. We of the North have our shortcomings, among which is our long complicity with slavery, and our continued indulgence in race prejudice. But there are certain things that, as a people, we will do well to remember. They are:

1. That the seven or eight millions of colored people are here (not originally of their own choice), and here to stay. They have neither the disposition nor ability to emigrate, and that, both by inheritance and by solemn covenant, they are our fellow-citizens and joint inheritors of our land and liberties.

2. That the ignorance and low moral condition of many, perhaps most, of them is the result of causes for which they are not responsible—their previous heathenism in Africa, the degrading influences of slavery, and the bitter prejudice and hostility they have encountered as freemen.

3. There can be no settlement of the race question except on Christian principles. We must see that the Negro has a Christian education; we must aid him in securing financial independence; and, above all, we must cease to regard him as a hateful alien rather than a fellow-citizen with interests which are in common with our own.

4. We must recognize the paramount authority of the civil law. There is no excuse for mob-violence. Our indulgence in it has already made us a reproach among the nations of the world and a dishonor to republican government. We must insist on the maintenance and the enforcement of civil law. Such scenes as that at Paris, Texas, will do a thousand-fold more to demoralize the public mind, and to promote anarchy and crime, than they can possibly do to suppress them. If there is a possible excuse for lynch law it is when civil law makes no provision for punishment, or the criminal is quite sure to escape. These reasons do not apply to the Negro, and there is possible reason for his being mobbed.

SECRET SOCIETIES DISSECTED.

Our excellent contemporary, The Friend, a religious and literary journal, published in Philadelphia, by Edwin P. Selw, in behalf of the Friends' church, has recently printed an intelligent series of articles on "Secret Societies." They began in the issue of January 7, and closed in that of February 4. To a certain extent they depend for their correctness and interest upon copious extracts from Masonic and Anti-masonic lectures, rituals, lexicons and kindred works, and fairly show up the evils which the lodge system perpetuates by these and similar creditable testimonies.

"The objects for which such societies are organized," says the writer, "are many and various, but all of them professedly good. That men should organize secret societies for the accomplishment of evil objects can readily be understood; but why good objects—charity, temperance, or the reformation of any class of evil-doers—should require the cover of a secret organization is not so clear to many minds.

"A secret society is one having a ceremony of initiation, passwords and grips, or other signs of recognition, and requiring of those who are initiated an oath or promise to conceal these and all secrets of the order from persons who have not passed through the ceremony of initiation.

"Such a society, in the hands of evil and designing men, may readily become a powerful engine for the accomplishment of the basest of purposes. However good the avowed object of such a society may be, it may easily be perverted; so that its very existence becomes a menace to the rights and liberties of all who are not members."

All experience of those who have renounced secret affiliations fully supports these statements.

The Friends, as a church, are with us, heart and hand, in righteous opposition to these social excrescences, and we rejoice in their zealous fellowship.

—Rev. William Weir, of the National Reform Association, has been holding meetings for several weeks in Southern Illinois, and has arranged for a convention at Sparta this week, February 23 and 24.

—Of the fourteen new cardinals created recently by the Pope of Rome, England has one; France, two; Hungary, one, and Italy, nine. The prelate in the United States was slighted on this occasion.

—Bishop Milton Wright, of the Radical United Brethren in Christ, contributes to the Christian Conservator (Dayton, Ohio) a lucid and Scriptural essay on "The Levitical Tithe Law," a subject to which he has seemingly given much study with a desire to have it clearly understood. Without entering into the details of the discussion, we may say that he limits the Levitical tithe law to the land of Palestine only, and only until the beginning of the Christian era, when, under the inspiration of the Holy Ghost, the apostles declared a new regulation for church-giving, as set forth in 1 Cor. 16: 2; 2 Cor. 9: 7, 12, 13, 14, which "puts to shame the exactions and bondage of the then defunct tithe law." The Bishop's article deserves a close perusal.

—President Charles A. Blanchard, of Wheaton College, delivered a telling discourse on "Higher Criticism" from the pulpit of the First Congregational church (Dr. E. P. Goodwin's), last Sunday forenoon. In it he exhibited, with great clearness, the fallacies and agnosticism which distinguish the so-called modern critics of the Bible, reserving his text and his own position for the closing sentences: "The grass withereth, the flower fadeth; but the Word of our God shall stand for ever." Isa. 40: 8. The discourse was listened to with manifest interest.

—One of the "great" Chicago dailies, which cannot be regarded as very favorable to Christian principles, since it issues a Sunday edition and otherwise "liberalizes" religious restrictions, has recently announced that it will no longer report or advertise the races taking place in or near this city. Yet it continues to give daily reports of horse-races, prize-fights and other "sports," column after column, at various places in the United States. Are Chicago methods of conducting field-sports so much worse than elsewhere? If not, why does it stop halfway in its pretended reform?

—Among the devoted colored preachers in the South who are enlisted heart and hand in the warfare against the lodge system, is S. F. Proctor, whose field of labor is in Arkansas. For some time past he has earnestly and persistently attacked the secret societies which infest the Southern States, suffering severe antagonism, bordering upon persecution. A note from him, dated Ellsworth, Ark., on the 15th inst., informs us that he has recently lectured three times in Johnson county, and four times in Logan county; and from former reports received from him but not yet printed in the Cynosure, we have reason to believe that his labors are not in vain in the Lord.

—Discussion of the street-cleaning problem in Chicago casually brought the municipal liquor traffic to the surface. Said one authority: "The total amount derived from licenses in 1892 was $3,908,984.96. Of this the saloonkeepers paid $3,472,618.05, and the wholesale liquor dealers $45,262.18. By an increase of 13 per cent a special fund of more than $500,000 would be obtained, sufficient to thoroughly clean, light and police the business districts, and leave a large surplus to be expended in the resident portions of the city." The city would be richer, no doubt, to the amount of $600,000 a year, but there would be no less liquor sold, no less drunkards, no less misery, crime, degradation and death. Is this license business one whit better than trading in human flesh and blood?

REFORM NEWS (Continued from 5th page.)

gations to the devil, regain their right of private judgment?

Like all other secret societies, it is a system of organized selfishness, with a false religion for a cloak, and that stolen from the Bible. It is dangerous to the commonwealth.

In an interview with the pastor of the Congregational church at Glenwood, Rev. Mr. Preston, he seemed to be wonderfully ashamed, as well he might be, to acknowledge that he had belonged, or did now belong (I hardly know which), to the Masons and other secret societies.

No doubt many in secret societies are like John Bunyan's man in the iron cage, filled with despair when they attempt to get out at their lucid intervals, and can say to others, "all hope abandon, ye who enter here." Right of private judgment is waived in the forsworn obligation, and all else must go with it. Therefore we say, as we preach the Gospel to "every creature," break the obligation, and regain right of private judgment the first thing.

The collection at the meeting amounted to $5. Brother Elsey very kindly entertained me at his home, which is about two miles from the courthouse. After the meeting, in crossing the prairie our faces and eyes were pelted with a fierce and blinding snow storm. Sometimes we were out of the sleigh and lifting it out of the snow drifts by the roadside; but, with gratitude to God, we reached the house in safety.

Sister Elsey made the comfortable spare-bed warm with heated irons, and so we rested soundly and sweetly after the spiritual conflict with the prince of the power of the air. W. FENTON.

THE SITUATION IN THE WESTERN DISTRICT.

BELLE PLAINE, Kansas, Feb. 14, 1893.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—I am now away down in Butler Co., Kansas, coming here February 7. On the evenings of February 7 and 8 I lectured in the Congregational church, Rev. T. C. Moffatt, pastor. Cynosure readers do not need an introduction to Bro. Moffatt. He is an earnest reformer and has written for publication. He gives no uncertain sound in matters of reform. The audiences on both evenings were small, partly because of the severe weather. A number of secret society persons were present on both evenings. On the second evening a half-dozen Masons were present. They gave no sign, but maintained respectful attention. Our prayer is that serious thought may have been awakened. One minister sat through the whole. I have been much gratified to ascertain that but few accessions are now being received from the church; and not only so, but that many church members are very properly withdrawing from the lodges. That is certainly a very hopeful condition of affairs.

The Masonic people stole a march on the Congregational brethren in the matter of a funeral. Without telling them that the person was a Mason, they secured the use of the church for a funeral. The first intimation the pastor had of its being a Masonic funeral was the presence of the Masons in their regalia ready to commence the service, in which he took no part. There were many Masons present, answering the oft-asked: "Where are the men?"

From Douglass I went to Rose Hill, a country town about ten miles from Douglass. I desire to mention, right here, the name of Mr. S. J. Peter, of Douglass. Mr. Peter arranged these meetings for me, and has constantly helped forward the work, in season and out of season. The Lord reward him. Bro. Peter is a reformer of a most pronounced type. May their numbers increase, is my earnest prayer. I lectured three times among the Quaker brethren, in their country church near Rose Hill. On Thursday and Friday evenings I lectured on Secrecy, and on Saturday evening I lectured on Temperance and Prohibition. The people gave respectful and responsive attention.

I heard of a Mason who was handling corn for another man, and had a man in his employ (also a Mason) whom he suspected of stealing some of the corn. To make sure of the matter he secreted himself under the wagon, after dark, and, by so doing, seized the man in the act of theft. The man remarked to him: "You have caught me; but you must say nothing about it. Your obligation will not permit you." The man replied: "I certainly will report you to the lodge." And he did so; but all he got for his pains was a rebuke from the lodge for watching his "brother".

I found the Quakers a very earnest and spiritual people. I gave them two discourses. I found them a very hospitable people in their homes. They are committed to matters of reform. I shall likely return to this community again before many days, for we have really just gotten the work started.

On Monday Bro. Peter and I started across the country to look up some friends of reform, and we found some such. We stopped at Udall, and called upon Rev. W. A. Quick, pastor of the M. E. church at this place. We were glad to find him pronounced on this reform.

In Belle Plaine we enjoyed the hospitality of Rev. W. V. Burns, pastor of the M. E. church in Belle Plaine, and a son-in-law of Bro. Peter. Bro. Burns is an earnest, spiritual man, and is in an inquiring state of mind toward secretism. He is not ensnared.

Bro. Peter and I also called on Rev. G. T. Green, an evangelist from the Come-outer standpoint. Bro. Green is a devout man, and earnestly committed against sin in every form, and secretism among the rest. Neither Bro. Quick nor Bro. Green had heard of the National Christian Association and our movement against secretism and kindred evils. I was encouraged by recollection of the Lord's word to Elijah: "There be yet seven thousand that have not bowed the knee to Baal." There are many that are ripe for this movement.

Bro. Peter and I are planning for a more extensive movement in Butler and adjoining counties in the near future. You shall hear from us. In the Lord's work, WM. C. PADEN.

TRUTH MAKES FREE

FROM LODGERY, RUM AND ALL THE POWER OF SIN.

An invitation, joyfully accepted, was that of Bro. Parry, of Evanston, to come out again to that city on the evening of the 15th and hold a parlor meeting. The circumstances were most interesting. On the evening of my last visit, Jan. 1st., revival meetings were very hopefully begun in his church, and continued for some six weeks. Among those brought to Christ were several young people who were members of the Orangemen, Odd-fellows, and possibly other secret orders. Their hearts were tender with the new love, and Bro. Parry was anxious to gain them wholly from the world. At his request, a notice was read to the students of at least one department of the University, requesting the presence of all who wished to know what the Word of God says against the lodges. The invitation was accepted by several of the young men; and, with others of the Free Methodist congregation, the parlor was filled.

The Lord was with us. The Spirit took of the Word and showed to us the truths that make men free from the entangling pledges of the lodge. It was a season of refreshing and of decision for Christ. Would that all our pastors might see the like.

At each visit to Evanston I have marked with gratitude the influence of Bro. Parry and his church in this notable community. Pre-eminently Methodist in its religious life, the salt of a whole salvation from every form of iniquity, taught by the Free Methodist brethren, is not without its godly savor. Men of prominence in other churches, men of greater wealth than could consort with the self-denial taught in this church on Ridge Avenue, now and then speak of the radical work for God done here, with conviction of its worth.

The Monday previous, after attending the Chicago Pastors' Alliance, meeting quarterly, which gave some private opportunities for our work, I attended a spirited Demorest-medal contest, conducted by Rev. J. A. Mackelvey, of the Ridgeway Avenue Presbyterian Church, Chicago.

Next morning I addressed the inmates of the Washingtonian Home. Rev. Wm. Morrow and his estimable wife have the management of this large institution with its more than 100 inmates. Their labors, though somewhat restricted in scope, are manifestly a blessing to the poor fellows whose appetites have so long been their master. Such testimonies as were given on Tuesday morning to the saving power of Almighty grace thrill the soul and lighten the most arduous labors. *

Our World's Fair plans are not yet ready to put into type. The delays of correspondence and the requirements of the management are somewhat annoying, but the N. C. A. board aims to have an exhibit worthy of our great reform.

HENRY L. KELLOGG.

STEAM TUG-BOAT FOR THE FLOATING CHAPEL.

The friends of the floating chapel will be glad to learn that we have now about $200 in cash in the bank. I went to Bowling Green, Ky., to see the steamer that was offered at $300. It was just what we need; but it would take $300 more to put it in good order; so I did not buy it. One in good order is offered by other parties for $500. This has sufficient power to push the floating chapel up to New York, Minnesota, or Dakota. We need $300 more before we can buy a boat that will do the needed work. I shall then keep several preachers at work, at my own expense, as I have for several months past, with good results. Over fifty conversions on the floating chapel since January 1. Dear friends, shall we be held back from much-needed work for the want of $300 more? Yours for the war, I. R. B. ARNOLD.

Evansville Ind.

P. S.—The floating chapel escaped injury while 1,000 miles of ice crowded past it.

THE HOME.

THE CRUSE OF ALABASTER.

With a cruse of alabaster
Full of spikenard, rich and sweet,
Stands she weeping near the Master,
While her tears bedew his feet.

Her soft hair, a silken towel,
Wipes away the vagrant tears—
Tears her eager heart's avowal
Of a love that hath no fears.

"Knows he not she is a sinner?"
Inly speaks the Pharisee
Who had bidden Christ to dinner,
Where he dwelt in Bethany.

Lost on her the scorn that hisses
Serpent-like within its den;
She, with spikenard, tears and kisses
Laves the weary feet again.

She a sinner—he the Saviour!
Meet it is that she should come;
Who hath greater need of favor
Than a soul that hath no home?

Known to Christ her whole condition,
At its best and at its worst—
She who bends in meek contrition;
She who is of man accursed.

Oh, the mercy of the Master!
Oh, the pity of our Lord!
E'en the cruse of alabaster
Is with grace and pardon stored!

As the glorious bow in heaven
Cheers the earth when tempests cease,
So his words: "Thou art forgiven!"
Faith hath saved thee; go in peace!"

—Thos. MacKellar.

LEAN HARD.

BY GRACE GROWING.

She was a plump, motherly-looking woman, and she stood in a farmer's spring wagon which was drawn up to the sidewalk in a small town. She wrapped her nice cloak closely about her, looked ruefully at the muddy wheels, and hesitated.

A tall young man, her son, and a student—for this was an academy town,—stood on the sidewalk, holding up his arms and saying, "Come, mother, I am waiting."

She put out one foot, and then drew back again and looked down helplessly, for the step was as muddy as the wheel. "I shall get my clothes so muddy, Jimmie."

"No, mother; do just as I tell you and you will not soil a ruffle. Put your foot on the top of the box, and your hands on my shoulders, and I'll lift you down; don't you see?"

"But," objected the mother, "I am so heavy"—
"Nonsense," interposed the son; "just drop into my arms, and you will be on the sidewalk in a second."

Again she gave her cloak a tuck, put her hands on her big boy's shoulders, and sprang out, he taking her weight so completely upon his strong arms that her feet came to the walk without a jar; and as her hands fell from his shoulders, she gave his arm a little loving pat that told more forcibly than words how proud she was of his strength and tenderness.

I knew the boy; knew how practical and sensible he was; knew how he loved his mother, and could see that he almost felt impatient when she hesitated to trust his strength. I knew, too, that this young man had felt sorely burdened with his sins, and had greatly desired to become a child of God, but was waiting for some new light, some wonderful "inner evidence," or experience, before he accepted the Saviour's invitation, "Come unto me;" and my heart went out to him with a great longing that he might drop in simple faith into the arms of love extended to him, just as his mother had into his own.

Again, later in the day, the same couple were coming from the academy grounds, down an icy sidewalk, he carefully guiding her steps, and she clinging to his arm for support. Her foot slipped, but he held her up, and said, "Lean on me, mother; I never fall." Again her feet slipped, and he said, more earnestly, "Mother, lean on my arm; lean hard."

"Why, dear, I thought I was leaning hard," she replied.

"Well," he urged, "if you lean hard enough you can't fall; just throw your weight on my arm, and I can take you safely over the ice; but while you keep trying to walk with your hand just resting on my arm, you are sure to keep slipping."

Again she obeyed his directions, and her feet flew safely and lightly over the ice-walk, beside his, clad in "arctics" that never failed to hold fast.

Again, I thought: "Poor, blind Jimmie! Once, when implored to cast yourself into the arms of divine compassion, you said, 'I am afraid, if I should trust, and try to be a Christian without any further evidence, I would stumble, or fall right away, and then I should never dare try again.'"

O Jimmie! remember your own words to the dear mother: "If you lean hard enough you can't fall." While you keep trying to stand, or walk alone, or with just a little help, He can't help you. Cast your whole weight—not only your sins, but your unbelief, your ignorance, and your helplessness—upon Him. He will hold you safely. He saith: "My grace is sufficient for you;" my "strength is made perfect in weakness."

Letts, Iowa.

A REMARKABLE ANSWER TO PRAYER.

Mr. Slimmon has been greatly prospered in opening up Siang-cheng Hien. A very marked answer to prayer, at a time when drought was threatening famine, produced a profound impression. The natives had exhausted their idolatrous resources, and challenged a native Christian. Mr. Slimmon and the native went out to his village home on a burning day, and a meeting was commenced under a cloudless sky. The native brother visited the houses all round, and collected the people together, telling them they were now going to see what the true God could do. A curious throng they were, and soon became eager listeners to the preaching that preceded the prayer, Mr. Slimmon having thoroughly secured their attention. After prayer he was again speaking to them, when the clouds rapidly collected, and soon the people began to run away to escape a drenching, which our brethren, who had a long journey before them, were unable to do! We may remark here that Siang-cheng is the first and only city that has been occupied by Protestant missionaries in Ho-nan, the other stations of our own and the Canadian mission being market towns, though one, at least, of them has a population of about 150,000 souls.—China's Millions.

LIGHT THROUGH CONFESSION.

In a city I noticed an old man who had remained through the first and second meetings, and was standing as though he were hesitating whether to leave the room, or to tarry in order to confer with others. I asked a gentleman who was then my associate to speak to him, and approaching he said: "Are you a Christian?"

The old man said: "No, sir, I am not a Christian; but I want to be. I have been trying all my life to find out how to be able to receive any satisfaction in connection with my endeavors in that respect. I have been to church all my life, and read the Bible. I have attended meetings like these, and yet have received no light as to what I need to do in order to be a Christian. When Mr. Moody was here, several years ago, I attended almost all his meetings, and talked with him and others personally, and when the meetings were done, I was as far away as ever. Now, I don't suppose it is of any use, but I would be very glad if you would tell me what I need to do in order that I might become a Christian."

My friend said to him: "Have you ever confessed Christ with your lips?"

The old man said: "No, I was waiting to become a Christian before I should do that."

My friend said to him: "That is just the way to become a Christian," and quoted a passage upon that point from the tenth chapter of Romans, and said:

"I believe you need to commence to-night with an open acknowledgment of Christ as your Master."

The old man said: "It is too late to do it to-night, for the service has been dismissed."

My friend looked about the room, where there may have been ten persons tarrying, and said:

"Suppose you confess Christ to these people who are now in this room?"

After a moment's hesitation, the old man walked down the room and held out his hand to a gentleman whom he knew, and said: "Mr. W——, I want to confess Christ to you," and then went to others and said practically the same thing. I think I was the last one to whom he spoke that night, and I told him not to let the adversary make him think that he had not commenced the Christian life that night, but to count the matter settled, and to think of himself as a follower of Christ.

The next morning, when I came in for the ten o'clock service, the old gentleman was seated in the front seat, and with him was another man about seventy-five years of age. The first man came to me and said:

"I have brought a friend to the meeting this morning. He is a little hard of hearing. Will you please speak out so that he can hear, and be sure to say something about confessing Christ."

I said to him: "Has the light come to you?"

And he said: "Yes, and I want my friend here to confess Christ, too."

Before the day was done, the second old man had risen in the meeting to express his intention of being a follower of Christ; and after that it was a joy to see the two old men, side by side, with their faces beaming with the satisfaction that was brought to them by their new life. I believe that what God put first we need to put first also, and that there is no greater aid to the faith of one who would be a disciple than open acknowledgment of his intention to be a follower of Christ.—Golden Rule.

A SMALL BOY IN THE BIG HAYSTACK.

"Well! well! what have we got here?"

Here Samantha, the hired girl at Farmer Gilchrist's, looked at the big haystack and held up her hands in surprise.

Then she cried in low tones: "I must show the farmer this hen's nest."

But when the farmer came out into the yard behind the big red barn, he saw not in the haystack there any hen on her nest, but a small boy fast asleep in the hay.

"Well, well, S'mantha, this beats the Dutch! Fast asleep! Poor little feller!" said the farmer.

Then he laid a big brown hand gently on the sleeper and said, "Come, come, wake up!"

The boy opened a pair of blue eyes hid away under his heavy locks of brown hair, and sleepily murmured, "Just a minute."

"La," exclaimed Samantha, "if that ain't natural. He thinks he's at home. Simon used to —"

Here she clapped her hand awkwardly over her mouth, and behind this strong dam the impetuous flow of Samantha's speech was effectually restrained.

Young Simon Gilchrist had died the previous year.

The boy was now out of his nest and was confusedly rubbing his eyes open.

"Well, sonny, do you know whar you be?" asked the farmer.

"N-n-o, sir."

"Well, do you know whar you come from?"

"From the Children's Home, and on a picnic I lost my way."

"La!" said Samantha, "a lot of 'em out pick-nicking yesterday—"

"Yes, yes," eagerly interrupted the boy, "that is it. I—I thought you'd let me stop here. I—got left. The rest went ahead—and I hunted round, but couldn't find 'em—"

"Oh, that is all right," said Farmer Gilchrist. "What is your name?"

"Andy Pratt, sir."

"You had any breakfast?" asked Samantha, putting a very practical question.

"Not—yet."

"Not yet? Where do you think you'll get any?"

"I don't know," said the boy sorrowfully.

"You give him some, S'mantha," directed the farmer.

"Sartin, sartin!"

It was the very thing she wished to do, but prudently led on the farmer, her master, to suggest it.

The farmer had a conference with Samantha. She was his housekeeper, and had been ever since his wife's death five years ago. While the boy was eating his breakfast this conference was held.

"I—I'm thinking, S'mantha, how it would do to give the boy a home. Ever since Simon died last year—his eyes reddened abruptly—"there has been this very thing on my mind—that I might get a boy to live with me. I'll see the folks at the home where he came from, and fix it there. I s'pose he is poor, and I have been thinking it over that we don't do for poor folks all we ought. We ought to do more."

He waited for an answer.

"The very thing, the very thing! We ought to do more for poor folks. I'm willing with all my heart. I take quite a fancy to the leetle chap," said Samantha.

That settled it.

The next night Andy did not sleep in the haystack, but he might have been found curled up in Simon Gilchrist's cot bed.

Andy Pratt soon established himself in the farmer's household, and his coming was never regretted. One could but notice, though, that Farmer Gilchrist derived great satisfaction from the thought that he was showering his beneficence upon one who was "poor."

"Must help the poor," he told Samantha, giving her money with which to buy Andy clothing.

"Must help the poor," he said again, handing her money with which to buy Andy school books.

"Must help the poor," he declared when he had bought Andy a pair of shoes.

Samantha was rather tired of it.

"The farmer keeps talkin' about helpin' poor folks, a-lookin' down on leetle Andy as a kind of a beggar," she remarked to herself. "Fact is, we are all poor. He may find it out too."

The farmer found it out in a singular way, in part through sickness and in part through Andy Pratt.

One day the farmer was taken ill. That is a time when one begins to feel pretty needy. Houses and lands begin to lose their value when one may be in sore pain and it is unrelieved. Farmer Gilchrist was very sick, and he felt that this world's goods were not the surest of friends and helpers. Alas! he had been laying stress upon them, making more of them than he had made of his God.

He noticed Andy Pratt in his room one day. The nurse wished soon to send Andy off on an errand, and while waiting Andy was sitting at a window.

"Wonder what that boy, that poor leetle chap, has got?" thought the farmer, noticing that Andy had pulled a little book out of his pocket and was reading it.

"Andy," he said, "What—what have you got there?"

"My—my Bible, sir."

"Oh, indeed!"

It flashed upon the farmer that Andy had something which he had not. Was Andy so poor, after all?

"Andy, couldn't you read me something?" begged the farmer in his distress. "I—I'm pretty hard up."

What a confession!

Who was the rich one? Who was the poor one?

"I'm real sorry you are sick," Andy told him.

Andy hunted a few moments among his Psalms, and then read in a clear voice: "Blessed is he that considereth the poor."

"I like that," thought the farmer. "That is what I have been doing to Andy."

Andy read on. Soon he said, "'Thou wilt make all his bed in his sickness.'"

"That is good," thought the farmer. "This poor bed needs making."

But what was the next verse?

"I said, Lord, be merciful unto me; heal my soul, for I have sinned against thee!"

The farmer groaned. Ought not he, poor and needy, to make his confession to God? How very poor he was! And how rich Andy seemed! What a mistake the farmer had been making! What a mistake we all may make when we seem to possess little, and yet own the promises of God!

"Oh, how poor I am! thought the farmer. He said aloud: "Read the last verse again about sinning." Then he cried, "Again!"

"Andy," he groaned, when the boy had finished the last reading of that verse of the Psalm, "couldn't you kneel down here and say the Lord's Prayer?"

Andy knelt. His boyish voice arose to God, pleading in the Saviour's words. The farmer joined in broken syllables, and oh, it was not long before the farmer knew something of the riches that a poor boy had brought into the house. Body and soul were blessed.—Rev. E. A. Rand, in Boston Traveller.

A HYMN FOR THE YOUNG.

"Just as I am," thine own to be,
Friend of the young, who lovest me:
To consecrate myself to thee,
O Jesus Christ, I come.

In the glad morning of my day,
My life to give, my vows to pay,
With no reserve and no delay,
With all my heart I come.

I would live ever in the light,
I would work ever for the right,
I would serve thee with all my might,
Therefore to thee I come.

"Just as I am," young, strong and free,
To be the best that I can be
For truth, and righteousness and thee,
Lord of my life, I come.

With many dreams of fame and gold,
Success and joy to make me bold;
But dearer still my faith to hold,
For my whole life, I come.

And for thy sake to win renown,
And then to take my victor's crown,
And at thy feet to cast it down,
O Master, Lord, I come.

—Marianne Farningham.

TEMPERANCE.

DRUNKENNESS TO POVERTY.

Some weeks ago one of our leading Canadian papers was wrestling with the question of the causes of drunkenness and came to the grave conclusion that poverty is the cause of drunkenness and not drunkenness the cause of poverty! That theory seems to have a good many advocates even among intelligent men, but certainly they cannot be careful observers. Almost any man who notes the history of any half a dozen poverty-stricken drunkards of his acquaintance will surely note this fact that in five cases out of six the drunkenness came first and the poverty followed afterwards as a legitimate consequence.

The New York Voice has recently taken some pains to send out a series of enquiries to managers of leading inebriate asylums and similar institutions asking, among other things, this question: "Does your experience with inebriates indicate that a very large proportion of them take to drink because of poverty?" A large number of replies are published and from men of note and experience, and in but one instance was the answer "yes."

Among those replying are two or three well-known Canadian specialists, whose names are well known to the readers of the Templar. Dr. Stephen Lett, medical superintendent of Homewood Retreat, at Guelph, Ont., replied "No" to the above question and then enumerates some of the causes as shown in his extensive experience with inebriates. These include, "among my patients, too much money, too little or no employment, and among commercial travelers pernicious practice of treat-customers in order to get them to give orders for goods. Drinking at night after completing their day's work." He might well have added the free use of tobacco in almost any form.

Dr. C. Schomberg Elliott, medical superintendent of Deer Park Sanitarium, near Toronto, also answers "No" to the poverty cause of drink, and assigns for causes "the social habit, treating, idleness."

Dr. Albert Day, of Boston, is the father of the inebriate asylum movement and is probably the best posted man in the country in regard to the causes and treatment of inebriety. His opinions, based on long experience and much investigation, are of great value. He replies: "1. I know that poverty is not often the cause of inebriety. I think a very small percentage become drunkards on account of poverty. So far as hereditary inheritance is concerned, some, no doubt, become drunkards. 2. Home influence, homes where liquors are used and the children are allowed to drink, and, even if not allowed to do so, where the example of parents and older members of the family is impressed on the minds of the young. The children of such parents will degenerate into drunkards, for such is the law of inheritance. If the parents are moderate drinkers the children will be drunkards. 3. There is no line of demarcation in drinking habits.

"Some drink because they have too much of this world's goods, while others drink because they have not got enough. My impression is that the latter class are much less likely to become drunkards than the former. The constant use of alcohol will degenerate the whole system, which will always come into a pathological condition which leads to vice and sin."—Hamilton (Can.) Templar.

GOLDEN OPINIONS.

Whisky is at the bottom of more trouble than it gets credit for. It is the devil's anesthetic for sorrow and shame, and it plunges the victim into deeper shame. A whisky bottle is generally part of the effects left by a suicide.—Cumberland Presbyterian.

As no political party that was on its knees to the slave power deserved support from honest, patriotic citizens, so no political party that is on its knees to the whisky power deserves support from men of intelligence, conscience and honor.—Joseph Cook.

High license diminishes the number of saloons, but not the quantity of liquor drunk nor the amount of drunkenness. And then to license is, in a way, to approve, and a wise and good man cannot approve of the liquor traffic. Whatever restrictions may be thrown around its management, the American saloon is, and must continue to be so long as it shall be tolerated, a nuisance. Its influence upon individual, domestic and national life is wholly evil.—Bishop Spaulding.

Why, the history the past fifty years on this temperance question has been as changeable as the weather of the New England spring, and very much less satisfactory. One year we have prohibition. One year we have imprisonment for a first sale. One year we have the seizure and the search, and another year high license and another year low license. We have got to have something besides legislative prohibition, changes of public sentiment and the rising of the thermometer one year and the going down of the thermometer another, to deal with these awful problems.—Hon. Geo. F. Hoar.

The first consideration we put in the scales of the balance against high license is, that it does not deal with this evil; does not smite a single hideous phase of it; does not heal even one of its sore hurts. It neither diminishes drinking, nor lessens materially the saloons, nor changes one iota their vile character. The traffic is as prolific in crime and lust and orphanage and defiance of law and damage to property and waste of resources as ever.—Herrick Johnson, D.D.

I am utterly unable to understand the value of this compromise which you call high license. I don't understand how the taking of license money from a wrong can make it morally or financially right. I feel that the candid moralist is forced to the conclusion that the liquor traffic is wrong; that to license or tax it is to authorize it; that to authorize wrong cannot be right; hence, that all license, high or low, is morally and politically wrong. Believing this, I, for one, cannot accept high or low license under any conditions.—Canon Wilberforce.

Parties, not men merely, are to go into power. As the country was betrayed by the administration just closing in civil service reform, so will it be betrayed in a greater or less degree on present issues, whichever of the two parties shall win. There is not conviction enough in either of them to enable them to order anything like a complete policy against dominant, corrupt influences. . . . No result can be more influential or encouraging than a growth, under existing pressure, of the prohibition vote. It will be like that other fact which altered all our history, the holding fast of a few in the Liberty and the Free Soil parties, till strength and opportunity came to them. This is the one sure thing that can be done.—John Bascom, LL.D., Professor in Williams College, Massachusetts, ex-President Wisconsin State University.

Do you take the Cynosure? Why not? Do you pay for it? Why don't you?

BIBLE LESSON.

STUDIES IN THE OLD TESTAMENT.

LESSON X.—First Quarter, 1893.—March 5.

SUBJECT.—Keeping the Sabbath.—Nehemiah 13: 15-22.
GOLDEN TEXT.—Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy.—Exodus 20: 8.

[Open the Bible and read the lesson.]

DAILY READINGS.—M.—Nehemiah 13: 15-22. T.—Gen. 1: 26 to 2: 3. W.—Jer. 17: 19-27. T.—Ezek. 20: 13-20. F.—Luke 9: 1-11. S.—Luke 4: 14-21. S.—Isa. 58: 8-14.

COMMENTS BY E. E. FLAGG.

1. The desecration of the Sabbath.—vs. 15, 16. A reform may seem very thorough, but if there is not constant watchfulness the tendency with a nation, as well as with an individual, is to slide back into its former habits. Reformers die like Ezra, or have their minds occupied with other matters like Nehemiah, and the opposition party takes the advantage and creeps back, almost imperceptibly, perhaps, into power. We see this fact very clearly brought out in the present lesson. Our last one saw a great national reform inaugurated which seemed to be on a permanent basis; but Nehemiah was recalled to his official duties at court, and though his absence could not have extended over many years it was long enough to give the enemies of the government time to overthrow in a great measure all that he had done. Mixed marriages had grown common, the high priest himself setting the example by marrying the daughter of the Jews' most bitter and powerful enemy, Tobiah, even providing the latter with an apartment in the temple for his own individual use. As a natural consequence of the low state of religion, the temple service was neglected and the tithes withheld, so that the priests were obliged to retire into the country and farm their lands for support. It is noticeable that this second reform was like the first, a consequence of one of those public periodical readings of the law which were commanded for this very thing—in order to call the attention of the people from time to time to God's commands, and any gross violation thereof which might be going on in their midst. Among other abuses which confronted Nehemiah on his return, he found one great and wide-spread evil—desecration of the Sabbath day. From v. 15 we see that what is called the "Continental Sunday" is no new thing. It was known more than two thousand years ago. Then, as now, there were men covetous of gain to which the Fourth Commandment seemed a wearisome encroachment on their constant pursuit of Mammon. They forget in their shortsightedness that they are robbing themselves rather than God; that they would live longer and get more and better work out of their employes by keeping the one day in seven. The beneficent provisions of the law extends even to beasts of burden, whose physical natures require the Sabbath as much as man's; but it is not so generally known that it has been scientifically proved, and stated as a demonstrable fact that inanimate things, the tools of the workman, the machinery of the capitalist, need the periodical season of rest in order to insure the best results. "There dwelt men of Tyre, etc." Tyre and Sidon were great commercial cities on the Mediterranean, inhabited by a highly civilized but idolatrous people, whose loose morals and worship, full of sensual attractions had been a constant snare to Israel since the days of Solomon. Just as to-day there are many Americans who want to follow the example of France and Germany and introduce the European Sabbath; so there were plenty of weak-principled Jews always ready to adopt foreign fashions, however opposed to God's commands. All true patriots should stand as one man against the pressure which the enemies of our country, rum and Romanism, atheism and anarchy, are bringing to bear against our Sabbath, our wall of defence against a flood of evils, which if they succeed in breaking it down will surely overwhelm us in our tide of ruin.

2. Nehemiah expostulates with the authorities.—vs. 17, 18. The heads of the government and the wealthy and aristocratic citizens were most deeply involved in guilt. It lay with them to stop this violation of God's law, yet they were in many cases the grossest transgressors. How often men in the highest official position break the Sabbath, and thus their example infects the whole nation. No Christian should vote for a man who persistently violates God's holy day. Our highest national interests are not safe in such hands. Those who desire a better enforcement of the Sunday laws should follow the example of Nehemiah, and make their appeal to the rulers. Let our legislatures, State and national, be showered with petitions and made to understand that the feelings of the Christian public in this matter cannot safely be disregarded. "Did not your fathers?" etc. A violated Sabbath was the chief cause of their long captivity. There is nothing like an enforced rest of one day in seven to bind society together and induce a reverence for law. Those communities where the day is observed most strictly are the ones where life and property are safest.

3. A lesson to Americans.—vs. 19-22. Nehemiah did not allow foreigners who had no understanding or appreciation of the great features of the Jewish polity to override the national laws. The city gates were shut and guarded, and the merchants and peddlers who lodged without, hoping for a chance to make illicit sales, were threatened with prompt arrest if they did not depart at once. Shall we allow our foreign population to abrogate God's law and trample on that institution so loved and revered by our fathers, the Christian Sabbath? The example of this ancient patriot should forbid the thought, and incite us to renewed efforts for its preservation.

RELIGIOUS NEWS.

BAPTIST.

—The home mission board of the Southern white Baptists has been working among the Negroes of the South since 1845, and 60 colored and white missionaries are now employed; but a writer in Our Home Field says there ought to be 600. Able men hold institutes for colored preachers and deacons; colored missionaries are employed; and aid is given to colored students for the ministry.

—The State convention of German Baptist churches will be held with the Second church, Milwaukee, Wis., Rev. Benjamin Otto, pastor, beginning its sessions the last Sunday of February. A deeply interesting service is expected.

—Rev. Charles G. Hartsock died at Matadi, Congo Independent State, November 19, 1892, of remittent fever, after two weeks' illness. Mr. Hartsock leaves a wife to whom he was married May 10, 1891, in Boma, Congo Independent State. His return to America was precipitated by her sickness, but on his way he was taken.

LUTHERAN.

—The Lutheran Church General Council reports $14,473 received for foreign missions during the year ending September 30th, 1892. The India Mission embraces 4 principal stations and 149 out-stations, with 4 male and 6 female missionaries, 2 native pastors and 91 teachers, evangelists, etc. The number of communicants is 1,205, and of adherents 3,388. In the 84 schools 1,465 pupils are receiving instruction.

—It is estimated by one of the leading pastors of the denomination that there are fully 15,000 Swedish Lutherans in the two cities of St. Paul and Minneapolis alone, while there are other thousands in the rest of the Northwest.

—Three hundred years ago the twentieth day of this coming March, in the city of Upsala, in far-away Sweden, came the culmination of long days of solemn deliberations and the Protestant religion became the belief of these strong-limbed, strong-brained Northlanders. The tricentennial of this great event is to be celebrated in fitting manner in that American home of the Norseman, the city of Minneapolis. Preparations for this important event are now well under way; and that it will be one of the most important religious events of the year seems assured. The celebration will take the form of a jubilee, lasting several days, the twentieth being the most important. Arrangements are being made for the accommodation of 20,000 persons.

—It is stated that, during the year 1892, 300 young men were ordained to the Lutheran ministry in this country. A few of these came from Germany, but the great majority were born and educated here. During the same time there were 75 deaths and 25 withdrawals from the ministry, so that the net gain was about 200.

—Summary of Lutheran missions: 40 societies, 700 stations, 1,000 missionaries, 4,000 native helpers, 204,000 baptized members, 1,600 schools, 60,000 pupils; annual income and expenditure, $1,100,000.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL.

—The decree of the Austrian government for the suppression of the Methodist service issued last year has been enforced.

—The Oklahoma Methodist conference consists of about thirty-five men.

—Bishop Thoburn looks for 25,000 conversions in India during the year.

—The American Methodists have come into possession of a fine site in the city of Rome, the same street as the king's palace and government buildings, and intend erecting a large and commodious building, containing a church, a college, a theological seminary, residences for the faculty, and a printing department.

PRESBYTERIAN.

—The action of Chicago Presbyterian ministers as expressed in a late meeting, if we understand it rightly, deprecates the enforcement of the principles of the church by discipline. They plead for large liberty in the individual. This is understood to refer to the late cases in New York and Cincinnati.

—Dr. McCosh, of Princeton, N. J., has forwarded $1,250 to the East Free Church, Brechin, Scotland, of which he was at one time minister, to assist any deserving young man connected with it in prosecuting his studies with a view to the ministry of the Free Church.

—The Presbyterians are really having a pretty earnest time over the trial of Dr. Briggs. Their religious papers are still full of it. The New York Evangelist is directly opposed to the prosecution of the trial, while the New York Observer stands with the prosecutors. There are clearly three parties in the Presbyterian church in relation to this disturbing trial. Those composing the first party are in hearty sympathy with the views of Dr. Briggs, and are, of course, opposed to the prosecution of the case against him. Those composing the second party regard his teaching as exceedingly dangerous, as subversive of faith in the Bible as a safe guide in religion. Hence, with the view of preventing the spread of his teaching, they desire to have put upon it the seal of ecclesiastical condemnation. The members of the third party, while disclaiming an acceptance of his teaching, claim for him the right and the liberty to teach as he does. They think he has said nothing worthy of death or of bonds.

PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL.

—In Denver the crusade against Sunday night amusements culminated in the arrest of the theater managers and performers. A mob of five hundred attacked the house of the Episcopal dean who has led the movement against Sabbath desecration.

—Dr. Lunn and Mr. Woolrych Perowne, the son of the Bishop of Worcester, according to the Review of the Churches, have organized a Reunion Pilgrimage to Jerusalem, which promises to be of very considerable interest. Archdeacon Farrar, who made a special study of the Holy Land preparatory to writing his great work, "The Life of Christ," will deliver lectures to the pilgrims at Jerusalem and other centres. The Bishop of Worcester and other eminent ecclesiastics of the British churches will, in all probability, accompany the party.

—The statistics of the Protestant Episcopal church, according to the eleventh census, may be summarized as follows: Number of organizations and church edifices, 5,019; seating capacity, 1,336,952; halls, etc., 312; seating capacity, 28,007; value of church property, $81,066,317; communicants, 532,054.

—The Protestant Episcopal church is building a cathedral in the city of New York. They are going to put $10,000,000 into it. It is to be called the Cathedral of St. John the Divine.

ROMAN CATHOLIC.

—According to the Catholic address book there are 2,650 Catholic clergymen in England and Scotland. Many of these, however, are foreigners, who are members of the orders. The diocese of Liverpool is the strongest. The 3,000 Irish priests are under the jurisdiction of 4 archbishops and 25 bishops. England has only one Catholic archbishop and 15 bishops for 2,650 priests.

—A new Catholic church in Copenhagen was dedicated in November. Vigorous efforts are made to spread the Catholic propaganda, not only in Denmark, but also in the other Scandinavian lands.

—The arch-diocese of New York numbers 800,000 Catholic population, 525 priests, 208 churches, 169 parochial schools with 40,524 children in attendance. Brooklyn has 280,000 Catholic population, 219 priests, 116 churches, 105 schools and 28,825 school children.

SEVENTH-DAY ADVENTIST.

—Latest reports from Oklahoma Territory state that there are seven organized churches, with 123 members. Besides these there were some unorganized companies, which would swell the total number to over two hundred.

MISCELLANEOUS.

—Sunday, June 11, has been set apart as temperance Sunday in Chicago. This follows the week of World's Temperance Congresses, and the ablest temperance speakers in the world are expected to be present.

—At Lakeport, Cal., a great revival is said to be in progress, in which the Baptists, Methodists and Presbyterians are uniting their efforts. It is claimed that about ninety conversions were the result up to the 2d inst., and the work was still progressing.

—There are about 180 colporteurs in Scotland working in connection with the Religious Tract and Book Society; it is proposed to establish twenty new agencies.

—The present strength of the Salvation Army in the United States is given as 464 corps, 68 outposts, 1,456 officers, six slum posts, three rescue homes, and one food and shelter depot. The Army's paper, the War Cry, has a circulation of seventy thousand.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

COUNTRY.

At Bloomington, Ill., an epidemic of measles and mumps is raging, and many of the cases are very severe and dangerous. There are nearly one hundred cases of the two diseases among the 600 students of the Illinois State Normal University at Normal, and increasing. The temporary closing of the institution is likely. In some instances the patients have both of the diseases.

A bill will probably pass the Illinois Legislature which prohibits railroads other than street railway companies from collecting more than 3 cents a mile from passengers who fail to purchase tickets before entering the cars. Another bill provides that the railroad and warehouse commissioners shall make a schedule of maximum rates, not to exceed 2 cents per mile, for the transportation of passengers; also, a schedule of maximum rates for the transportation of freight.

Illinois mourns the death of Hon. John Scholfeld, Supreme Judge and ex-Chief Justice of the State.

Experts in Colorado have been raising the denomination of paper money in Denver, and a number of merchants have been caught. The Martha Washington one-dollar bill is the one most commonly raised. The work is executed with a pencil, and the bill readily passes for $10. The banks have stopped a number offered them for deposit.

A plot to blow up the Cincinnati, Indianapolis & Columbus freight depot was discovered and nipped in the bud. A mail carrier saw a package lying under the depot. His suspicions were aroused, and he crawled under and brought it forth. The bundle was taken into the depot and unrolled. Two dynamite cartridges were found. Much stir was caused among the trainmen.

(Continued on 16th page.)

SUBSCRIPTION LETTERS.

The following have made remittances of money to the Cynosure from Feb. 13 to Feb. 18:

J H McGlade, P Beck, Mrs M Stegner, S Rowley, Miss J Hulburt, W D Clay, R A Waldo, A Knox, J Life, A Austin, W C Gaddis, W French, W R Morley, Mrs S Wilder, S R Coyner, Rev J B Gallows, A Lindsay, J Killough, A C Bundy, T H Nichols, R N Miller, Rev M B Patterson, Rev C H Kiracofe, Rev A Dietrich, A Sargent, W Porter, W W Templeton, A Henderson, J Shigley, N Pratt, C D Cappock, Rev J K Glassford, W Beers.

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO.

Wheat—Spring No. 2.....	72 3/4 @	73 3/4
Winter No. 2.....	72 3/4 @	73 3/4
Corn—No. 2.....	41 @	42 3/4
Oats—No. 2.....	31 @	33 1/4
Rye—No. 2.....	52 @	56
Bran per ton.....	13 75 @	15
Hay—Timothy.....	10 00 @	12 00
Butter, medium to best....	17 @	20
Cheese.....	03 @	12
Beans.....	1 50 @	2 10
Eggs.....	28 @	30
Seeds—Timothy, 100 lbs. 4 40 @	4 44
Flax.....	1 19 @	1 24
Broom corn.....	02 @	08 3/4
Potatoes, per bu.....	65 @	75
Hides—Green to dry flint....	03 3/4 @	08 3/4
Lumber—Common.....	10 00 @	13 00
Wool (washed).....	15 @	32 3/4
Cattle—Choice to extra.....	5 60 @	6 20
Common to good.....	4 25 @	4 85
Hogs.....	6 90 @	8 60
Sheep.....	4 40 @	6 15

NEW YORK.

Wheat.....	78 3/4 @	80 1/4
Corn.....	52 @	52 1/4
Oats.....	38 3/4 @	41
Eggs.....	29 3/4 @	29 3/4
Butter.....	17 @	29
Wool.....	17 @	37

KANSAS CITY.

Cattle.....	2 50 @	5 10
Hogs.....	6 25 @	8 20
Sheep.....	4 00 @	5 20

Odd-fellowship Judged by its own utterances; its doctrine and practice examined in the light of God's Word. By Rev. J. H. Brockman. This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-fellowship, in the form of a dialogue. In cloth 50cts; paper covers, 25cts.

SECRET SOCIETIES CON-
'DEMND

BY EMINENT EDUCATORS.

PRESIDENT F. H. M. HENDERSON, Bowdon College, Ga.:—I regard all secret societies as extremely liable to be perverted.

PRESIDENT NOAH PORTER, Yale College:—That there are serious evils connected with them cannot be questioned; that they accomplish some good is equally clear.

PRESIDENT HITCHCOCK, Amherst College:—These, at different periods, have been fruitful sources of excitement, jealousy, and heart burning among the students.

JOSEPH MOORE, President Earlham College:—The fact that Freemasonry often thwarts every effort to enforce the law against an offender who is of the fraternity, shows it to be an obstacle to moral and civil progress.

HOWARD CROSBY, D. D., Chancellor University, New York:—Thirty years ago I was a member of a college secret society, and while I had upright fellow-members, and we encouraged literary culture, I found the association was chiefly a temptation to vice.

PROF. J. R. JACQUES, Illinois Wesleyan University:—Among college students, at an age when most susceptible, secret societies tend to breed that secretive disposition which is the very opposite of the truly candid, generous, and magnanimous character.

DR BEYS FLAG, Professor in the University of Halle:—Never entertain the idea to join the lodge for popularity's sake. It is utterly degrading to imagine pastors, men who have to deal with Christianity, the most universal and opening in the world, wrapped up in the mummeries of Freemasonry.

PRES. J. BLANCHARD:—There have been civil and ecclesiastical pests ever since there was a government and religion; and Freemasonry is one of those pests. The Cains of humanity have rejected Christ and worshiped nature, and Nimrods have denied justice and practiced oppression. But both are combined in the lodge.

PROF. J. R. W. SLOANE, D. D., Reformed Presbyterian Theological Seminary:—But my strongest opposition to Masonry is because of its rivalry with religion. It steps in before the church, and is a false, an idolatrous religion, a religion without a Saviour and, therefore, a delusion and a snare to all who engage in it, or rest their hope upon it.

PROF. BURT G. WILDER, Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.:—I am willing to hazard my position... upon the truth of the proposition that secret societies are unknown in heaven, but that they form a prominent and essential feature of life in the other locality. Light versus darkness; openness versus mystery; mutual confidence versus suspicion and distrust.

PROF. S. C. BARTLETT, D. D., Chicago Theological Seminary:—There are certain other wide spread organizations, such as Freemasonry, which, we suppose, are in their nature hostile to good citizenship and true religion, because they exact initiatory oaths of blind compliance and concealment, incompatible with the claims of equal justice toward man and a good conscience toward God.

PROF. J. G. CARSON, D. D., Xenia, Ohio:—These associations are inconsistent with the genius of Christianity, because the secrecy which they affect, and to which they bind their members by promise or oath, is unnecessary and so unwarrantable, dangerous, and ensnaring to the conscience, and, therefore, utterly opposed to that openness and publicity which Christ enjoins on his disciples both by example and precept.

PRESIDENT C. G. FINNEY, of Oberlin, 1868:—We have, then, the implied testimony of Freemasons themselves, that the Christian church ought to have no fellowship with Freemasonry as thus revealed, and that those who adhere intelligently and determinedly to such an institution have no right to be in the Christian church. In our judgment we are forced to the same conclusion, we cannot escape from it, we wish it were otherwise, we therefore sorrowfully but solemnly pronounce this judgment.

STANDARD WORKS

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Association.

221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

TERMS:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order as a guaranty that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums. A liberal discount to dealers.

ON FREEMASONRY.

Freemasonry Illustrated. A complete exposition of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter. Profusely illustrated. Complete work of 640 pages, in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 75 cents. First three degrees (376 pages), in cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Knight Templarism Illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the Council and Commandery. A book of 341 pages. In cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.

Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated. The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all the Masonic Rites, and are fully and accurately given in "Freemasonry Illustrated." Vol. I. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3rd to 18th inclusive. Vol. II. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 19th to 33rd inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive. Price per volume, paper cover, 50 cents each. In cloth, $1.00 each.

Hand-Book of Freemasonry. By E. Ronayne, Past Master of Keystone Lodge No. 639, Chicago. Gives the complete standard ritual of the first three degrees of Freemasonry. New edition, 274 pages. Bound flexible cloth covers, 50 cents.

Freemasonry Exposed. By Capt. William Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book republished. 25 cents each.

Adoptive Masonry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the five degrees of Female Freemasonry, by Thomas Lowe. 20 cents each.

Light on Freemasonry. By Elder D. Bernard. In cloth, $1.50 each. Paper, 75 cents each.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Baal Worship Identical, explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the lodge. Bound in fine cloth, 420 pages, 75 cents.

Mah-Hah-Bone; comprises the Hand Book, Master's Carpet and Freemasonry at a glance. Bound in one volume. In cloth, 589 pages, $1.00.

History of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. As prepared by seven committees of citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan. 25 cents each.

Ex-President John Quincy Adams' LETTERS on the Nature of Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties. Price, cloth, $1.00. Paper, 35 cents.

Hon. Thurlow Weed on the Morgan Abduction. This is the legally attested statement of this eminent Christian journalist and statesman concerning the unlawful seizure and confinement of Capt. Morgan in Canandaigua jail, his removal to Fort Niagara and subsequent drowning in Lake Ontario. 5 cents each.

The Broken Seal; or Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. By Samuel D. Greene. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry, as proved in court in the New Berlin trials. The New Berlin trials began in the attempt of Freemasons to prevent public initiations by seceding Masons. These trials were held at New Berlin, Chongang Co., N. Y., April 13 and 14, 1831, and General Augustus C. Welsh, sheriff of the county, and other adoring Freemasons swore to the truthful revelation of the oaths and penalties. 10 cents each.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy. Address of Pres. J. Blanchard. This is a most convincing argument against the lodge. 5 cents each.

Grand Lodge Masonry. Its relation to civil government and the Christian religion. By Pres. J. Blanchard. The un-Christian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is proved from the highest Masonic authorities. 5 cents each.

General Washington Opposed to Secret Societies. This is a re-publication of Governor Joseph Ritner's "Vindication of General Washington from the Stigma of Adherence to Secret Societies," communicated to the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania, March 8, 1837, at their special request. To this is added the fact that three high Masons were the only persons who opposed a vote of thanks to Washington on his retirement to private life—undoubtedly because they considered him a seceding Freemason. 10cts each.

Morgan's Exposition, Abduction and Murder, and Oaths of 33 Degrees. Composed of "Freemasonry Exposed," by Capt. Wm. Morgan; "History of the Abduction and Murder of Morgan;" "Valance's Confession of the Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "Bernard's Reminiscences of Morgan Times;" and "Oaths and Penalties of 33 Degrees." 300 pages; cloth, $1.00.

Finney on Masonry. The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry. By Pres. Charles G. Finney, of Oberlin College. President Finney was a "bright Mason," but left the lodge when he became a Christian. This book has opened the eyes of multitudes. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper cover, 35 cents.

Narratives and Arguments, showing the conflict of secret societies with the Constitution and law of the Union and of the States. By Francis Semple. The fact that secret societies interfere with the execution and pervert the administration of law is here clearly proved. 15cts each.

Temple of Honor Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of "The Templars of Honor and Temperance," commonly called the Temple of Honor. By a Templar of Fidelity and Past Worthy Chief Templar. 25cts each.

The Anti-mason's Scrap-Book, consisting of 53 "Cynosure" tracts. In this book are the views of more than a score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of secret societies. Postpaid. 25 cts.

Reminiscences of Morgan Times. By Elder David Bernard. This is a thrilling narrative of the incidents connected with Bernard's Revelation of Freemasonry 10 cents each.

Secrecy vs. the Family, State and Church. By Rev. M. S. Dury. The antagonism of organized secrecy to the welfare of the family, state and church, is clearly shown. 10cts each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. James Williams, Presiding Elder of Dakota District Northwestern Iowa Conference M. E. Church—a seceding Master Mason. 10 cents each.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 Degrees of Freemasonry. To get these thirty-three degrees of Masonic bondage, the candidate takes half-a-million horrible oaths. 15 cents each.

Pres. H. H. George on Secret Societies. A powerful address, showing clearly the duty of Christian churches to disaffiliate from secret societies. 10cts each.

Thirteen Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. W. P. McNary, pastor United Presbyterian church. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Secretism. By Rev. I. Theo. Cross, pastor Congregational church Hamilton, N. Y. This is a very clear arraignment of the objections to all secret societies, and to Masonry especially, that are apparent to all. 5cts each.

Knights of Pythias Illustrated. By a Past Chancellor. A full illustrated exposition of the three ranks of the order, with the addition of the "Amended, Perfected and Amplified Third Rank." 25cts each.

Sermon on Secret Societies. By Rev. Daniel Dow, Woodstock, Conn. The special object of his sermon is to show the right and duty of Christians to examine into the character of secret societies, no matter what object such societies profess to have. 5cts each.

Mrs. Anna Sutherland

Kalamazoo, Mich., had swellings in the neck, or From her 10th year, causing 40 Years Goitre, When she caught cold could not walk two blocks without fainting. She took

Hood's Sarsaparilla

And is now free from it all. She has urged many others to take Hood's Sarsaparilla and they have also been cured. It will do you good.

HOOD'S PILLS Cure all Liver Ills, jaundice, sick headache, biliousness, sour stomach, nausea.

HOME AND HEALTH.

PRAYER AND BREAKFAST.

Some years ago, when the country around Cincinnati was newer than it is now, a pious farmer was busy clearing his lands. He had a number of hands employed, and was anxious to accomplish a large amount of work while the weather was favorable. He called them early, and went out with them before breakfast was ready. A horn was blown, and they came and ate, and returned again to their work.

The farmer had been accustomed to have prayer every morning in his family. But to keep so many men from chopping and log-rolling while he read and prayed was more than he could afford; so Satan suggested, and the good man yielded. His pious wife saw with grief that the family altar was neglected, and her husband, in haste to get rich, was departing from God. She talked with him, pleaded with him, but in vain. At last she determined to try another experiment.

The next morning the farmer and his men went out, as usual, to their work. The sun began to climb up the sky, but no breakfast horn was heard. They grew hungry, and looked anxiously toward the house; they listened, but still the expected summons did not come. After waiting an hour or two beyond the usual time, they went into the house. No table was set, no coffee boiling on the fire, no cook over or before it. The good wife was knitting quietly, with the Bible on her lap.

"What does this mean?" cried the husband; "why isn't our breakfast ready?"

"I thought you were in such a hurry about your work that you hadn't time to eat it!"

"Haven't time to eat it! Do you think we can live without eating?"

"You can live without eating as well as without praying. The spirit needs the bread of heaven as much as the body needs the bread of earth."

"Well, well," said the farmer, "get us some breakfast, and we will have prayer every morning, no matter how busy we are, or how many workmen I have." She got the breakfast, and he kept his word. The lesson was a good one and never forgotten.—Selected.

FAT AS A FOOD.

by the action of the cells, and not in the lungs, as formerly taught.

The use of the fat is now regarded as three-fold. 1. To maintain the body heat. In cold latitudes, where the body is subject to rapid cooling, fatty foods become a necessity, so that the carbon may be easily supplied for combination with oxygen in consumption. Hence the Greenlander consumes large quantities of blubber and oil. 2. To produce force. A muscular tissue is only produced at the cost of oxidation in the tissues; fat is rapidly burned off during exercise. If absent, the tissues themselves would be wasted. 3. To prevent the use of albumen. A purely albuminous diet is wasteful. It has been proved experimentally that a small amount of meat food, taken in combination with bread and fat, suffices to maintain the albuminous structures of the body better than an exclusively lean-meat diet.

Fat stored in the body as adipose tissue is a bank on which the body may draw for supplies of energy and heat when required. It is stated that in the Franco-German war of 1870 the German emperor, acting on the strongly expressed opinion of Ebstein that muscular fatigue could best be supported on fat, gave orders that each soldier should have served out to him 250 grammes of fat bacon. It is also a well-known fact that fat animals bear deprivation of food better than thin ones.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

Skimmed milk makes hardwood floors, stained ones and oilcloths look shiny. A woolen cloth should be used to wipe up the floor with.

Ices are now served in small cups formed of fluted silver paper. The idea is exceedingly pretty and may be carried out at a slight cost.

Soup and dressings acquire a delightful flavor when sprinkled with the roots and tough stalks of celery which have been chopped fine and dried.

An excellent starch for dark clothes—blue calicoes, etc.—is made by using old coffee left from breakfast instead of pure water. Make the starch as usual.

When a person has good health and good common sense he should be happy; for one has said that the possessor of those has nine-tenths of all there is to be had.

Black lace will assume much of its pristine beauty if washed in thick suds made of tar soap. The lace must be allowed to dry without rinsing, as the tar imparts a slight stiffness, which is very desirable.

Why suffer with asthma when the famous Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup will cure you.

BEECHAM'S PILLS are faithful friends.

Have You Catarrh?

Send 4c. for sample of my C Cure. Or Asthma? Send 4c. for my A Relief. "Piles?" Send 10c. for my P Cure. "Constipation?" Send 10c. for my C Cure. I do not puff these articles I simply invite you to test and judge for yourself, confident that you will want more. H. G. COLMAN, Chemist, KALAMAZOO, MICH. Mention this paper.

JONATHAN BLANCHARD'S

—]-oo-[—

SERMONS AND ADDRESSES.

Select discourses of the late editor of the Cynosure and leader in our reform. Lectures, sermons and speeches given from 1834 to 1892 in leading cities of the United States, discussing topics of

LIVING REFORM.

Secret Societies, The Sabbath, Temperance, National Reform, Christian Education, Christian Socialism, The Bible, Etc., Etc.

A BOOK EVERYBODY SHOULD READ

12mo. Fine Photogravure Portrait.

Price, 75 Cents.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASS'N, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Perfect Baby Health

ought to mean glowing health throughout childhood, and robust health in the years to come. When we see in children tendencies to weakness, we know they are missing the life of food taken. This loss is overcome by of Cod Liver Oil, with Hypophosphites, a fat-food that builds up appetite and produces flesh at a rate that appears magical.

Scott's Emulsion

Almost as palatable as milk.

Prepared by Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All druggists.

WE SEND FREE

with this beautiful Organ an Instruction Book and a handsome, upholstered stool! The organ has 11 stops, 5 octaves, and is made of Solid Walnut. Warranted by us for 15 years. We only charge $45 for this beautiful instrument. Send today for FREE illustrated catalogue. OXFORD MFG. CO Chicago.

IF YOU WANT WORK

that is pleasant and profitable, send us your address immediately. We teach men and women how to earn from $5 per day to $3,000 per year without having had previous experience, and furnish the employment at which they can make that amount. Capital unnecessary. A trial will cost you nothing. Write to-day and address,

E. C. ALLEN & CO., Box 1001. Augusta, Me.

DO YOU WANT

To receive, read, distribute and otherwise aid in the circulation of a large number of Holiness and Reform papers and magazines? If so, send me a SILVER dime, and your name and address will be printed on the Holiness and Reform Mail Exchange List, which is sent to all publishers of holiness and reform literature, who will mail you sample papers and magazines. Write name and address PLAINLY. Address, J. H. PADGETT, Printer, Ennis, Texas.

WHEATON COLLEGE.

WHEATON, ILL.

A School for Men and Women.

SPRING TERM BEGINS APRIL 4th, 1893.

Full College Courses, Preparatory Courses, Stenography, Typewriting, Vocal Music and Blackboard Drawing, without extra charge.

CHAS. A. BLANCHARD, Pres.

"Our High Grade List and Bargain Book sent to any address on receipt of a 2c stamp."

LORD & THOMAS, NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING

45 RANDOLPH STREET, CHICAGO.

$100 FOR 4 EARLY TOMATOES!

—THIS WONDERFUL—
"EARLIEST TOMATO in the world" is just what everyone wants. It has proved the earliest and best by those of every variety. It bears abundantly of large bright red tomatoes, very smooth, of excellent quality, extremely solid all through, with only a few seeds and free from rot. My plants set in garden last of May produced full size ripe tomatoes July 2nd, and was pronounced a perfect wonder by all who saw them growing. After you once test them you will grow no others for they grow so rapidly. Seed was sown in hot bed in April. I want a BIG record for this tomato in 1893, and will pay $500 in cash to a person growing a ripe tomato in 75 days from the date the seed is sown. Also $100 to the person growing a ripe tomato in the least number of days from day seed is sown; $125 for next and $75 for next. BEWARE OF IMITATIONS for I am introducer and own all the seed. Never offered before. SURE HEAD CABBAGE is all head and sure to head, very uniform, of large size, firm and fine in texture, excellent quality, and a good keeper. I will pay $100 for the heaviest head grown from my seed in 1893 and $50 for the next heaviest. Single heads have weighed over 60 lbs. GIANT SILVER QUEEN ONION is the largest and handsomest ever offered. Single specimens under sworn testimony, have weighed over 5 lbs. They are of mild and delicate flavor, grow rapidly, ripen early, flesh white and handsome. I will pay $100 for the heaviest onion grown from my seed in 1893, and $50 for next heaviest. They are the largest and most beautiful of colors (many never seen before in pansies) of any pansy ever offered. I offer $300 in cash to a person growing a Blossom of the "Alice Pansy" in 1893, from my seed, 4 1/2 inches in diameter, and $300 for the largest blossom grown, $100 for second, $50 for third, $50 for fourth, $50 for fifth and $50 for sixth. Try this and get some beauties. Full particulars of all prizes in my catalogue. MY CATALOGUE is full of bargains. $4,500 offered in premiums; $200 is offered persons sending me the largest number of customers by July 1st; $500 for the largest club orders; $100 for the largest fan's order; and every one will be paid July 1st. Mrs. T. B. Young, Rock City, Ill., sent largest club order in 1892 and I paid her $500. Her photograph is in catalogue. Don't buy a seed until you see it. Prices low. Customers get 50 cents extra of their selection FREE. MY OFFER I will send a package each of "Earliest Tomato in the World," Sure Head Cabbage, Giant Silver Queen Onion and Alice Pansy with my catalogue for only 25 cts. Every person sending silver, P. N. or M. O. for the above collection will receive free a package Mammoth Prize Tomato, which grows over 14 ft. high, and this year I will pay $500 to any person growing one weighing 4 lbs. It CAN be done. If 2 persons send for two collections together each will receive Free a package of "Wonder of the World" Beans. They originated among a tribe of Indians, stalks grow large as a hen handle and pods 15 in. long. Beans white. It is a wonder, and such a curiosity was never heard of before. Address, F. B. Mills, Rose Hill, N. Y.

AMERICAN HANDBOOK

AND

CITIZEN MANUAL.

BY

MANLOVE N. BUTLER.

CONTENTS:—Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement; Real Prohibition; Poor Man's Bible, and All-Around Reformers. Over 200 pages

Paper, single copy 40c.; per doz. 35c.

CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

The Blue Bell.

The Mountain Daisy.

Daily Text books for a year. Dainty little souvenirs, only 1 1/2 inches square, elegantly and neatly bound in leather, with silk marker, gilt edges, round corners, each net 25
Illuminated paper covers, each 10

Birthday Memorial Text-Book. An Autograph Text-book. Text for each day and space for autographs. 32mo., Cloth 25

Daily Comfort in Four Fold Links.

The most popular Wall Roll published, and deservedly so. Every page is an effective sermon.

The striking character and particular value of this new Wall Roll is in the remarkable arrangement and selection of the Scripture Texts.

A constant monitor in the Christian household.

A silent teacher for the school.

A comforting messenger for the sick-room, as well as being suitable for the office, the store or the shop.

Printed in beautiful large, clear letters, easily discernible at a distance of 10 to 15 feet. Mounted on rollers, with cord, to hang up in usual style. 31 pages, size 14x22 in. 75

The Secret of Success; or

Finger Posts on the Highway of Life, by John T. Dale; introduction by Hon. John V. Farwell. 416 pages, 12mo., full cloth $1.50
A book for the aspiring. Written in a fascinating style and full of incidents and illustrations which hold the interest of the reader spell-bound. "It may be true, as has been said, that 'books are sold, not bought'; but this, at any rate, is a book which, if brought to one's attention, he will wish to own." Such a book in every intelligent family in the land—how much (in showing so clearly, so wisely, so persuasively the secret of success,) it might do toward helping to solve the countless aching, burning questions of the time."—The Advance.

Prof. Henry Drummond's Booklets.

The Perfected Life. (The greatest need of the world.) Bound in chaste style, vellum paper 20

Love the Supreme Gift. (The greatest thing in the world.) Uniform with Perfected Life 20

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N., 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

"WORTH A GUINEA A BOX."STOP THIEF.

Dyspepsia is stealing the roses from many ladies' cheeks, and making many men's faces blank.

BEECHAM'S PILLS

will arrest the rascal, and restore health, vigor and color; they will cure Sick Headache, acting like a charm on the Stomach, Liver and Kidneys. Price 25 cents a box. Covered with a Tasteless and Soluble Coating. New York Depot, 365 Canal St.

FARM NOTES.FARMERS FIFTY YEARS AGO.

Fifty years ago and more the farmers were simply farmers and nothing else. They depended almost wholly on the products of their farms for their living. They raised nearly all the supplies for their own tables, and largely for their clothing, which was manufactured from the raw material in their own homes. Wheat was much more generally sown then than now, but not in sufficient quantities to furnish bread for the household. Flour was rarely bought by the barrel, and barley, rye and Indian corn were extensively used. In those earlier days flour bread was, with large numbers of families, dignified with the name of "cake," and considered a luxury for use on extra occasions, when company was entertained.

A story is told in one of our old Rockingham county towns, which illustrates this fact. A high-toned gentleman, known as the "Squire," called at a farmhouse one day on some business, and when he had finished his errand, and had remounted at the door, the good housewife, wishing to impress the Squire with the dignity and thrift of her family, said to him: "Squire, won't you stop and have flour bread and butter?" thinking it now too late for him to accept the invitation. To her chagrin the doughty Squire replied: "Thank you, marm. I don't care if I do," and promptly dismounted and entered the house. The poor woman could only explain that to her surprise she found the flour bread all out, and offered him the best she had, some Indian bannock.

When a boy, the writer has often seen in the house of a neighbor a string of these bannocks, eight or ten in number, set up on tins in front of the fire in the broad fireplace, there being room then left in one corner for him to sit and look straight up the chimney into the blue heavens.

There was very little market for farm produce in those days, except in the larger towns, and long journeys had to be made, mostly to such as were known as "seaports"—as there were no interior towns of sufficient population to be centers of much trade. Every farmer kept a flock of sheep, and wool constituted a large proportion of the clothing of the family. It was carded, spun, and woven at home, and made into garments for both sexes. The best clothes for the men and boys were made of what was called "fulled" cloth. This was made at home of the finest material, and taken to the mills known as "fulling mills," where it was put through a process of thickening, dyeing and finishing. The women used to wear gowns of cloth which was called "pressed woolen". This was simply home-made flannel, taken to the mills above named, and pressed, so as to present a glossy surface.

Every farmer had a small patch of flax. This was pulled and spread out in rows on the ground, "rotted," and then "broken" and "swingled," and was thus prepared for the combing, carding, and the "little wheel," as the machine was called on which the flax was spun, to distinguish it from the larger machine for spinning wool. It was woven into cloth for table covers, toweling, sheeting and shirting. The "tow," which was the coarse portion combed out on the "hetchel," was spun into a coarse yarn, of which a cloth was made for summer suits for the men and boys. The tow shirt, so commonly worn, was, when new, an instrument of torture to the wearer, as it was full of prickling spines, left from the woody part of the stalk.

The tailor of the old days, with his "goose," traveling from house to house, to make up the clothes for the men and boys,—or to cut and fit them for the gossiping tailoress to complete,—is not known to the present generation. The old-fashioned shoemaker, who used to perambulate the country round with his "kit," taking the families in turn at their homes, and working till the whole household was shod, is almost forgotten. That, however, was a common thing in the olden days. The writer calls to mind an anecdote of one of these ancient cordwainers, who was as noted for his wit and the geniality of his disposition as for the excellent quality of his work. He used to make shoes for all the leading families of the town, and his visits were occasions of much fun and jollity on the part of the youngsters of the households. One of these families had a black woman in their service as a slave, and when her turn came the young people thought they would have some fun at the shoemaker's expense, when he should come to measure the "long heel." Phillis was called in, and all the boys were there to see the sport, but the wily old cobbler was equal to the occasion. He ordered the poor woman to thrust her foot into a tub. She obeyed only after a stern command and a stamp of his foot, when he told her she might go. He then measured the wet track on the floor, and cheated the jolly youngsters out of their fun.—Boston Journal.

A stimulant is often needed to nourish and strengthen the roots and to keep the hair a natural color. Hall's Hair Renewer is the best tonic for the hair.

A Tobacco-Stinking Breath is not nice to carry around with you. If you are tired and want the means of an immediate release, get a box of NO-TO-BAC the harmless, guaranteed tobacco-habit cure. Sold at drug stores. Book called, "Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke your Life Away," tells all about it; mailed free. Write to day. Address The Sterling Remedy Co., Box 655, Indiana Mineral Springs, Ind.

GRATEFUL-COMFORTING. EPPS'S COCOA BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in half-pound tins, by Grocers, labelled thus: JAMES EPPS & Co., Homoeopathic Chemists London, England.

THE IMAGE OF THE BEAST
A Secret Empire;
Or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy.
By Rev. Richard Horton.
Third Edition. 200 pages. Cloth.
Price, 60 cents.
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
321 W Madison St Chicago

The Christian Witness

Is an eight-page undenominational monthly; the official organ of the New Hampshire Christian Association, opposed to secret societies. It advocates Bible Holiness, Church Purity, Sound Morality and Temperance.

Terms: 50 cents a year, or three years for $1.00.

Send stamp for sample copy.

Address S. C. KIMBALL,
Box 277. Newmarket, N. H.

LONG LIFE

Is possible only when the blood is pure and vigorous. To expel Scrofula and other poisons from the circulation, the superior medicine is AYER'S Sarsaparilla. It imparts permanent strength and efficiency to every organ of the body. Restoration to perfect health and strength

Results from Using

AYER'S Sarsaparilla. Mary Schubert, Kansas City, Ks., writes:

"I am convinced that after having been sick a whole year from liver complaint, Ayer's Sarsaparilla saved my life. The best physicians being unable to help me, and having tried three other proprietary medicines without benefit, I at last took Ayer's Sarsaparilla. The result was a complete cure. Since then I have recommended this medicine to others, and always with success."

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.
Cures others, will cure you

LE CARON, THE SPY.A STARTLING REVELATION.

More enticing than a romance, filled with the strongest evidences of the power and evil of sworn secret societies, and plainly revealing the danger to any government growing out of political conspiracies, is the

"Autobiography of Henry LeCaron, the Spy."

who was for years a Clan-na-Gael Center, a Fenian Commander, and a Land-League Orator, but always a British Detective. The book covers his twenty-five years' experiences in this secret service, and contains 205 pages.

Price, in paper covers, 50 cents.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
Wm. I. PHILLIPS, Treasurer,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

THE Folly, Expense & Danger OF SECRET SOCIETIES.

BY
CHARLES A. BLANCHARD.
(President Wheaton College.)

5 Cts per Copy; $3 per Hundred.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

MY EXPERIENCES

WITH
SECRET SOCIETIES.
BY A TRAVELER.
With a Key to Masonry Illustrated

A new edition, greatly enlarged, has been issued, embracing chapters on the Language of Numbers, Secret Empires, and Good Men, containing more experiences, and affording a deeper insight into the Hidden Language and Workings of Secret Clans, and of the counterfeit pretences of good men, than ever before published. The Key is an exposition, explanation and verification of modern Baalism, with which all should be thoroughly acquainted. The price of the new edition is

Fifteen Cents,
but copies of the first edition will be forwarded for Ten Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

History Nat'l Christian Association Its origin, objects, what it has done aims to do, and the best means to accomplish the end sought, the Articles of Incorporation, Constitution and By-laws of the Association. 20c each.

The New World of Central Africa.

By Mrs. H. Grattan Guinness, with a history of the first Christian mission on the Congo. 12mo., 530 pages with maps, portraits and numerous illustrations. $2.00
A conscientious piece of work, and gives a very clear account of what has been done by the Protestant missions to evangelize the barbarous races of Central Africa. He who wants to know what missionary effort means in these days may well learn from this volume. The reader who goes carefully through will have a good bird's eye view of recent events in Africa, with all the results of modern travel. The work contains solid information of use to all who are interested in the future of this wonderful country. The many illustrations throw light upon savage customs and costumes.—Graphic.

in the Far East.

Letters from China by Geraldine Guinness, edited by L. C. sister, with introduction by Rev. J. Hudson Taylor. Very fully illustrated. Quarto cloth, $1.50

This book was scarcely written—it was lived; for the breath of life is in it from cover to cover. We have never read so wonderful an account of successful missionary effort.—Presbyterian

We easily understand how this edition is the fifteenth thousand. It is a very remarkable book.—The Golden Rule.

Frances Ridley Havergall's Poems.

Author's edition complete. The only unabridged authorized edition published in America.
1. 12mo., 880 pages, cloth, beveled....2.00
2. Beveled boards, full gilt.....2.50
3. Half white vellum, gilt top, uncut edges, 2.50
4. French morocco padded, roll under gold edges....4.00
5. Persian calf, padded and embossed, gilt roll and r. g. 5.00
6. Crushed levant, elegant.....6.00

7. Full German calf, padded, elegant, gilt, rd. cors.....7.50
Miss Havergall stands without peer in the English language in the department of religious poetry.

"The book in paper and binding is all that could be desired."—Publishers' Weekly.

Small Books by Miss Havergall.
● Bound in elegant illuminated board covers. Kept for the Master's Use. ●

My King; Daily Thoughts for the King's Children. 20

Works of Rev. C. H. Spurgeon. ●

Sermon Notes. Covering all the Bible from Genesis to Revelation. 4 vols.....4.00
Feathers for Arrows. A volume of Choice Extracts, 12mo., cloth.....1.00
Twelve Striking Sermons. 50
Twelve Soul Winning Sermons. 50
Twelve Sermons on the Resurrection. 50
Twelve New Year Sermons. 50
Twelve Christmas Sermons. 30

Notes by C. H. M.

On Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy.
Mr. D. L. Moody says of these books: "They have been to me a very key to the Scriptures."

Deuteronomy is issued in two volumes, the others complete in one volume each. Separate volumes may be had if desired. The complete set in six volumes, covering over 2,300 pages, is offered at the reduced price of 75c per vol. or $4.50 per set

A. L. O. E. Intermediate Library.

Selected from the numerous productions of this world-renowned writer as being those of rare merit. 12 vols., 12mo., cloth elegant, each 75c; set.....9.00
An Eden in England. Life in Eagle's Nest. Ned Franks. White Bear's Den. Sheer Off. Fairy Spider's Web. Braid of Chords. Lake in the Woods. Silver Keys. Seven Perils Passed. Grace Vernon. Hartley Brothers.

The Jessica Series. By Hesba Stretton. 6 vols., handsome bindings, cloth 50c each, or per set.....2.10
Jessica's First Prayer. Friends till Death. No Place Like Home. A Miserable Christmas Under the Old Roof. A Night and a Day.

A. L. O. E. Junior Library. Adapted to the young folks. 7 vols., 12mo., cloth each 60c; the set.....4.20
Claremont Tales. A Wreath of Smoke. Christian Conquests. Pomegranates from Tales Illustrative of Punjab. Parables. Little Bullets from The Battle of Life. Batala.

The Hesba Stretton Series. 8 vols., elegant cloth bound, per set.....4.80
Cassy. King's Servant. Lost Gipsy. Alone in London. Max Kromer. Little Meg's Children. Storm of Life. Crew of the Dolphin.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Team of tartar baking powder. Highest of all in leavening strength.—Latest United States Government Food Report. ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 106 Wall St., N. Y.

NEWS OF THE WEEK (Continued from 13th page).

On the 16th the mammoth car ferry and ice crusher, Ste. Marie, built by the Detroit Dry Dock Company for the Michigan Central, the Grand Rapids & Indiana, and the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railroads, for transferring cars across the Straits of Mackinaw, was successfully launched into the Detroit river in the presence of several thousand persons. The Ste. Marie is the largest boat of her kind on the lakes, having a keel 269 feet 6 inches in length.

A proposed consolidation of the spring wheat flour millers includes nearly every firm in the business from North Dakota and Duluth to the East. The trust is to be governed by a board of directors and executive committee of three. In all about 90 per cent of the total spring wheat milling capacity of the United States is in the combine. It will be the most powerful trust yet organized in America outside the Standard Oil and the Steel Beam combines.

At the meeting, at Peoria, of the Retail Farm Implement Dealers' Association, of Illinois, over three hundred delegates were in attendance. The principal topic discussed to-day was the matter of boycotting manufacturers who sell their goods to other than regular dealers. It was decided to declare a boycott.

Secretary Rusk has issued a circular to the managers and agents of railway and transportation companies, stockmen, and others, notifying them that a contagious and infectious disease known as splenic or Southern fever exists among cattle in a belt of country which he describes in detail, and which extends from Texas through portions of Kansas, Missouri and Tennessee to North Carolina, Virginia and Maryland. From Feb. 15 to Dec. 1, 1893, no cattle are to be transported from said area to any portion of the United States north or west of the described line, except by rail for immediate slaughter.

The Manhattan News Company, of New York, has established a press censorship for its own business. It declines to expose for sale at its news stands any of the flash periodicals until advance copies have been sent to the Hon. George Bliss, president of the company, for careful examination. Mr. Bliss goes over these periodicals, and if he finds them demoralizing they never appear on the news stands controlled by the company. This is a wise provision.

The new Congressional District apportionment bill in the Illinois Legislature makes, outside of Cook county, twenty-one Democratic, thirteen Republican, and two doubtful districts.

The sundry civil bill, as reported to the Senate carries a total appropriation of $40,350,114, an increase of $924,161 over the bill as it passed the House. The corresponding bill for last year appropriated $27,665,076. These are the provisions for the World's Fair: For Government exhibit, $201,750; for the completion and equipment of the brick ship, $10,000; World's Columbian Commission, $236,375, $98,190 of which is for the use of the Board of Lady Managers and $25,000 of which is made immediately available. It is also provided that $10,000 of this appropriation shall be issued to the ladies' board in the shape of 25-cent souvenir coins. For awards for judges, examiners, etc., there is appropriated $750,880, of which $110,000 is to be devoted to meeting the expenses of the jurors and members of the boards appointed by the lady managers.

The South Carolina United States Court has decided the railroad tax cases against the State. The marshal has been ordered to place the property in possession of the receiver and the county sheriffs have been fined $500 each for contempt. They will be imprisoned until the fine is paid.

A man giving the name of Austin A. Vail, and claiming to be a representative of Knights of Pythias and Odd-fellows' Lodge of Washington, Pa., has been soliciting from the above orders in Marinette, Wis., on a plea of being in straitened circumstances. He succeeded in obtaining considerable money, but was arrested by an officer.

A company has been organized in Iowa to build a railway between Muscatine and Chicago, or some point connecting with Chicago, and from Muscatine west to the Missouri river.

A committee appointed by Equity Lodge, No. 20, Fraternal Order of American Home Protectors, of Flint, Mich., filed a bill in the circuit court asking for the appointment of a receiver to wind up the affairs of the organization.

To-day Hood's Sarsaparilla stands at the head in the medicine world, admired in prosperity and envied in merit by thousands of would-be competitors. It has a larger sale than any other medicine. Such success could not be won without positive merit.

Hood's Pills cure constipation.

United Sons of Industry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the secret tradesunion of the above name, giving the signs, grips, passwords, etc. 15cts each.

Standard Works SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Association

221 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois

TERMS:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order as a guaranty that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums. A liberal discount to dealers.

Revised Odd-fellowship Illustrated. The complete revised ritual of the Lodge, Encampment and Rebekah (ladies) degrees, profusely illustrated, and guaranteed to be strictly accurate; with a sketch of the origin, history and character of the order, over one hundred foot-note quotations from standard authorities, showing the character and teachings of the order, and an analysis of each degree by ex-President J. Blanchard. This ritual corresponds exactly with the "Charge Books" furnished by the Sovereign Grand Lodge. In cloth, $1.00; paper cover, 50cts.

Anti-masonic Sermons and Addresses. Composed of "Masonry a Work of Darkness;" the Sermons of Messrs. Cross, William McNary, Dow and Sarver, the two addresses of President Blanchard, and the addresses of President H. H. George, Prof. J. G. Carson and Rev. M. S. Drury; "Thirteen Reasons Why a Christian cannot be a Freemason," "Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion," and "Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate?" 287 pages; cloth $1.00.

Between Two Opinions: OR THE QUESTION OF THE HOUR. By Miss E. E. Flagg, author of "Little People," "A Sunny Life," etc., etc. Everyone who loves to read a good story, chaste and elegant in expression, pure in thought, interesting in narrative, should read this book upon the power of secret societies in politics, and the remedy. 389 pages; cloth, postpaid, $1.00.

Five Rituals Bound Together. "Odd-fellowship Illustrated" (old work), "Knights of Pythias Illustrated," "Good Templars Illustrated," "Exposition of the Grange," and "Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic," are sold bound together in cloth for $1.00.

Secret Societies Illustrated. Containing the signs, grips, passwords, emblems, etc., of Freemasonry (Blue Lodge and to the fourteenth degree of the York rite), Adoptive Masonry, Revised Odd-fellowship, Good Templarism, the Temple of Honor, the United Sons of Industry, Knights of Pythias and the Grange, with affidavits, etc. Over 250 cuts, 99 pages, paper cover. 25cts each.

Sermon on Odd-fellowship and other secret societies, by Rev. J. Sarver, pastor Evangelical Lutheran church. This is a very clear argument against secretism of all forms, and the duty to disfellowship Odd-fellows, Freemasons, Knights of Pythias and Grangers, is clearly shown by their confessed character as found in their own publications. 10cts each.

Eminent Men on Secret Societies. Composed of "Washington Opposed to Secret Societies," "Judge Whitney's Defence," "The Mystic Tie," "Narratives and Arguments," the "Anti-mason's Scrap-Book" and "Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry as Proved in the New Berlin Temple." 92 pages, cloth, $1.00.

Holden with Cards. OR THE POWER OF THE SECRET EMPIRE. By E. E. Flagg, author of "A Sunny Life," etc. This is a thrillingly interesting story, accurately true to life because mainly a narration of historical facts. In cloth, $1.00; in paper, 50 cents.

College Secret Societies. Their customs, character and the efforts for their suppression. By H. L. Kellogg. Containing the opinions of many prominent college presidents and others, and a full account of the murder of Mortimer Leggett. 25cts each.

Rituals and Secrets Illustrated. Composed of "Temple of Honor Illustrated," "Adoptive Masonry Illustrated," "United Sons of Industry Illustrated," and "Secret Societies Illustrated." $1.00 each.

Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic, with signs of recognition, passwords, etc., and the ritual of the Machinists' and Blacksmiths' Union. (The two bound together.) 10 cents each.

Secret Societies. A discussion of their character and claims by Rev. David McDill, Pres. J. Blanchard and Rev. Edward Beecher. In cloth, 35cts each; paper covers, 15cts each.

Knights of Labor Illustrated. ("ADELPHON KRYPTOS.") The complete illustrated ritual of the order, including the "unwritten work." 25cts each.

Good Templarism Illustrated. A full and accurate exposition of the degrees of the lodge, temple and council. 25cts each.

Odd-fellowship: ITS HISTORY AND WORK. By President J. Blanchard. A new pamphlet with cover. Postpaid, 5 cts.

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion. 5 cents each.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate. By Rev. L. A. Post. 5 cents each.

Two Delightful Books.

Not many books in American literature will receive from book-lovers so nearly unanimous a verdict of "delightful" as Ik Marvel's "Dream Life" and "Reveries of a Bachelor."

The new editions now ready, beautiful, new, large type, nicely printed and daintily bound, reduced in price from $1.25 to 20 cents each, plus 5 cents postage, if by mail, will secure an enormous sale.

But the greatest marvel of the day, to book-buyers is our

The Encyclopedia Britannica, $20.00.

The full set is now ready. It is a reprint, in type shown by these lines, of the last (9th) English edition, over 20,500 pages, including more than 10,000 illustrations, and 200 maps; price in cloth, $20.00; half Russia, $24.80.

Specimen pages and full particulars sent free on request. Membership in the Encyclopedia Britannica Coöperative Club costs only $1.00 extra, and secures the encyclopedia on payments of only 5 cents a day or $1.00 every twenty days.

That Pretty Evangeline.

Our edition of Longfellow's "Evangeline," is a pretty surprise for book-lovers. It is in good type, with 45 illustrations by Birket Foster and other eminent artists, printed on very fine and heavy paper, gilt edges, remarkably handsome cloth binding, combining the delicate colors, blue and white and silver and gold. We sell it for 19 cents! plus 6c. for postage, if by mail. This covers only about the cost of manufacture by the 100,000 copies, our object being, not profit, but to show what can be done for a little money; the sale is immense.

More "Surprise" Bargains.

Sample books in the hands of pleased customers proving to be our best means of advertising, we offer, also, the following, which represent different styles in which we issue a large number of the world's best books; the prices cover only about the cost of manufacture by the 100,000 copies:

J. Fenimore Cooper's "The Pilot," cloth, 20c., postage, 8c. Scott's "Ivanhoe," half morocco, gilt top, 35c., postage, 8c. "Herodotus," in Ancient Classics for English Readers, 10c., postage, 4c.

The following are a few titles selected from our last Catalogue. Prices are given for cloth binding, the style and quality of most of them being represented by Cooper's "The Pilot," offered above. We are also just beginning the issue of most of them in the style represented by Scott's "Ivanhoe," half morocco, gilt top, at prices 20 cents a copy higher than for cloth binding.

World's Best Books.

Almost fabulously cheap for such excellent editions; nearly all in this or larger type, always fine paper and thoroughly good cloth binding, or half morocco, gilt top, for 20 cents more, when published.

- | | | | | | | | | |
|--|---|--|---|--|--|---|--|--|
| 20 cents, postage 5c.
Æsop's Fables, illustrated
Hawthorne's Scarlet Letter
Owen Meredith's Lucile
Utopia, by Sir Thomas More
Mrs. Caudle's Curtain Lectures
Vathek, by Beckford | 25 cents, postage 6c.
Great American Humorists
Carlyle's Heroes and Hero Worship
Schonberg-Cotta Family
Teachings of Epictetus
Franklin's Autobiography
Hawthorne's Grandfather's Chair
Tom Brown at Rugby
Marcus Aurelius Antoninus
Planetary and Stellar Worlds
Prescott's Miscellaneous
Zenobia, by Wm. Ware
John Stuart Mill on Liberty
McCarthy's History of Ireland
Moore's Lalla Rookh | 30 cents, postage 8c.
Adam Bede, by Geo. Eliot
Curious Myths of the Middle Ages
Adventures of Baron Munchausen
Hans Andersen's Fairy Tales
Gulliver's Travels
Irrving's Sketch Book
Sir Walter Scott's Ivanhoe
Jane Eyre, by Charlotte Brontë
Kingsley's Hypatia
Bulwer's Last Days of Pompeii
Drummond's Natural Law
Robinson's The Measures of Life
Robinson Crusoe
Geo. Eliot's Romola
Thaddeus of Warsaw
Children of the Abbey
Cooper's Leather Stocking Tales and Sea Tales, 10 volumes, each 30c. | 35 cents, postage 9c.
Beecher's Lectures to Young Men
Classic Comedies
John Hallfax, Gentleman | 20 cents, postage 5c.
Creasy's Fifteen Decisive Battles
Dawson's Story of Earth and Man
Ebers' Uarda, A Romance
—An Egyptian Princess
Tom Brown at Oxford
The Lamplighter, by Cummins
Self Help, by Samuel Smiles
Spencer on Education
Bayard Taylor's Views Afoot
Apocryphal Life of Jesus
Word Book of Synonyms | 40 cents, postage 10c.
Auerbach's On the Heights
Lorna Doone, by Blackmore
Westward Ho! by Kingsley
Schiller's Thirty Years' War
Spencer's Data of Ethics
Guizot's History of Civilization
Masson's French and Eng. Dictionary
Zalmer's German and Eng. Dictionary | 50 cents, postage 9c.
Chinese Classics, Confucius, etc.
Confessions of St. Augustine
Darwin's Origin of Species
Favorite American Poems
Ideal Classics, 6 volumes in 1
The Koran, translated by Sale
Footprints of the Creator
Testimony of the Rocks
Old Red Sandstone
Plutarch's Illustrious Men
Interwoven Gospel
Shakespearean Quotations
Wallace's The Repose in Egypt
—The Land of the Pharaohs
Webster's Wisdom and Eloquence | 60 cents, postage 12c.
Carlyle's French Revolution
Farrar's Early Days of Christianity
Taine's English Literature | 75 cents, postage 10c.
Washington and His Generals
Napoleon and His Marshals
Losing's Eminent Americans
Hugo's Les Misérables, 2 volumes |
|--|---|--|---|--|--|---|--|--|

Any Book supplied; the Britannica at one-sixth its former price is a fair illustration of what we are doing for book-buyers all along the line; 128-page Catalogue sent for two-cent stamp.

JOHN B. ALDEN, Publisher, 57 Rose St., New York.

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XXV., No. 25.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, MARCH 2, 1893.

WHOLE No. 1,192.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,

221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PER YEAR..... $2.00
(IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... 1.50)

No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrears paid.

Address all letters for publication to EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, CHICAGO. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed.

Make all drafts and money orders payable to the Treasurer, W. I. PHILLIPS, 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO. When possible make remittances by express money order. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address on Cynosure list always give the former address.

[Entered at the Postoffice, Chicago, Ill., as Second Class Matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:

Notes and Comments.... 1
The N. C. A. at the World's Fair..... 8
An International Congress Against the Lodge..... 8
Some Facts about Hawaii 8
Pensions and Standing
Armies..... 8
"The Church and the Fraternalities"..... 8
A Jew's Opinion of Christ..... 9
Lovejoy's Memorials.... 9
Several Masonic Incidents..... 9
Lodge Worship, or Letter and Spirit..... 9

CONTRIBUTIONS:

English Labor Problems 1
Bible Reading: The Sabbath..... 2
NEW ENGLAND LETTER..... 4
WASHINGTON LETTER..... 4
LITERATURE..... 6
LODGE NOTES..... 7

SELECTED:

"A Complete Exhibit of Religions"..... 2
In Secret..... 3
The Thugs of India and America..... 3
REFORM NEWS:
From the Western District; From the New England Agent; Rev.
M. A. Gault in Indiana 5
CORRESPONDENCE:
The "Home Light" and its Good Mission; The Madness of the Lodge;
Education in Illinois... 5,6
AGENTS AND LECTURERS... 7
THE N. C. A..... 7
THE HOME..... 10
TEMPERANCE..... 11
BIBLE LESSON..... 12
RELIGIOUS NEWS..... 12
NEWS OF THE WEEK..... 13
Secret Societies Condemned 13
MARKETS..... 13
HOME AND HEALTH..... 14
FARM NOTES..... 15

be tolerated in a nation whose language is English. Educate the children—educate them intelligently, morally, religiously, but only in the vernacular.

The committee in Congress to which was referred the bill repealing that portion of the World's Fair law providing for the closing of the Exposition on Sundays, last week refused to report the measure to the House. That ended the attempt of the advocates of a seven-day fair to disgrace the Sabbath and insult God and his people. The management of the Exposition fully acquiesces in the decision of the committee, proposing neither to thwart the will of Congress nor desecrate the Lord's day by unnecessary or servile work.

Since the last issue of the Cynosure President-elect Cleveland has completed the list of his constitutional advisers, and even the "stalwart-Republican" Inter Ocean is kind enough to say: "All things considered, this is a good Cabinet." Intelligent criticism will also stamp it with approval, as being in advance of the political party which is soon to become dominant. It is made up as follows: Walter Q. Gresham, of Indiana, Secretary of State; John G. Carlisle, of Kentucky, Secretary of the Treasury; Daniel S. Lamont, of New York, Secretary of War; Hilary A. Herbert, of Alabama, Secretary of the Navy; M. Hoke Smith, of Georgia, Secretary of the Interior; J. Sterling Morton, of Nebraska, Secretary of Agriculture; Wilson S. Bissell, of New York, Postmaster General; Richard Olney, of Massachusetts, Attorney General.

In an article in the Catholic Review for February 11, on "the invincibility and perpetuity of the (Roman) church," it says, significantly: "Experience abundantly proves, at least to those who have an eye to see, that the Catholic church, composed of three hundred million members, in all countries, is a very live body and 'alive like to be,' and the prospect of her perpetuity in confirmed by two considerations—one a matter of fact, the other a matter of principle." That the aggressive character of this church is well understood is well-exhibited in this paragraph from the Canadian Churchman of Toronto: "Our Romanist friends are in too great a hurry to 'run' the American continent, as they once ran the European. They cannot persuade intelligent American citizens, by any hoodwinking on the subject of history, that America owes what religion she has to Columbus, Queen Isabella and the Pope."

Now that the gates of the Columbian Exposition will be closed on the Lord's day, discussion in favor of granting holidays and half-holidays to workingmen and women during the weeks that the Exposition will continue is in order. It may soon be easily arranged. The employers can, by a little concession, readily adopt some system by which their employes, from the lowest to the highest, shall be enabled to visit the Fair often enough to see its objects of special interest. The movement in this direction should be speedy and general. Then the Exposition managers can co-operate in it by arranging half-fare admission fees on certain days, and providing special regulations for the reception and accommodation of this class of visitors, making them feel that they have a vital interest in the success of this great international enterprise, which should not be held exclusively for the benefit of the rich and great.

The reports of officers of the Young Men's Christian Association in Chicago, for the year ending Feb. 7, show great advances over the work of the association during any previous year. The membership of the parent association, owing to a scattering of its forces into various parts of the city, and some other causes, shows a decrease. Yet 1,768 young men joined the association during the year, and there were 218 accessions of members from other places. As to the spiritual work, it is reported that 70,144 was the total attendance at the religious meetings, as compared with 64,417 in 1891. The total average attendance weekly at the Bible classes has been 146. As a result of the work along this line, 840 men have requested prayer, 410 have professed conversion, 684 have been personally dealt with in religious conversion, and 138 are known to have been led into church membership. The record is encouraging.

The recent act of the Legislature of Idaho conferring the elective franchise on women is one of the steps in the progress towards a genuine civilization. In a state of barbarism, woman is virtually a slave. Every step in the advance to Christian liberty and equality is a concession of rights to which she had previously been held to be ineligible. Each right thus conceded has been used for the world's moral and physical improvement. That we shall have unalloyed purity and happiness when woman-suffrage shall be universal is too much to expect; but that it would add immensely to the restraining power of both human and divine law is beyond question. Whatever may be our personal convictions, one thing is certain—this is the era of woman, and, without some unforeseen intervention, the right to suffrage, together with some other measures for practical protection, will everywhere be either cheerfully or reluctantly conceded.

ENGLISH LABOR PROBLEMS.

BY REV. J. BOYES.

The new year is speeding along and unfolding, as it goes, each man's work and mission. The labor troubles and the relation of the masses to Christianity were not settled when the old year departed. These questions have followed us into the new year and seem almost as far away from a settlement as ever.

The committee of the London unemployed, containing philanthropists like the Rev. Hugh Price Hughes, and others of similar democratic proclivities, have recently presented their report, and in it they tell us that in London there is very little distress which might not easily be remedied if men had a mind to work. Strong protests are made in some quarters against these findings, while many are led to ask, "Can it be true that if men would but conform to the laws of their Maker they need neither starve nor beg?" There is a prevailing impression that such is the case.

I was in Nottingham a short time ago, when there was much talk of the sad condition of the people in consequence of 16,000 who were out of employment. An employer of labor in the town told me that at least 10,000 out of the 16,000 would not work, however much work there might be. Such an opinion might not be strictly accurate, while, at the same time, it might contain a large amount of truth.

A few days ago Canon Scott Holland, speaking under the dome of St. Paul's, London, to an immense throng of unemployed, told them that the name of Jesus was the defence of the poor and the pledge of their redemption in temporal as well as in spiritual things. Though he made good his position, yet his message was received with murmurs, and, at times, with loudly expressed dissent. When he told them that thousands are going down to the pit in grim, unbroken silence, without a protest, unpitied and unwept, he was loudly cheered; but when he assured them that the name of Jesus is raising the poor from darkness and degradation to light

A colossal bronze statue of William Lloyd Garrison is to be unveiled at Newburyport, Mass., on the 4th of July next. He deserves this honor, if ever hero did.

We expect for our next issue a full report of the Pennsylvania State Anti-secrecy Convention, which, as we go to press Tuesday morning, is in full blast at Carnegie Music Hall, Allegheny.

The ravages of cholera, last year, in Europe were much greater than reported by the press. A prominent authority telegraphs to our Government that in one town where only thirty-eight cases were reported in 1892, there had been 780 cases, nearly half of which had proved fatal. The duty of our Government is obvious, if we are to avoid the danger of this terrible epidemic next summer.

Within a few days the Free Methodist ministers in the vicinity of Chicago, including several suburban villages, have formed a Ministers' Meeting, which is to assemble in this city once a month to discuss matters important to their work. A new (the Third) Free Methodist church has also lately been established on West Lake street, near Lincoln, in West Chicago, which numbers nearly twenty members, many of whom are devoted colored people.

We give place, to-day, to a communication on the educational laws of Illinois, from the pen of Pres. S. M. Hill, of Luther Academy, Wahoo, Neb., defining the difference between compulsory education statutes and those that require compulsory attendance at schools, as exemplified in European countries and the United States. In Sweden, for instance, compulsory education prevails; but no one will assert that Swedish children are taught in any other than their native tongue. In the United States, there has been a disposition to conduct schools in German, and possibly other foreign tongues, which should not and comfort there were loud calls of "No, no."

On the same day the Archbishop of Canterbury was addressing a concourse of working men, and told them that the Apostle Paul was the founder of trades-unions. In explanation of the statement he said: "The idea of trades-unionism is wrapped up very small, as it were, in one little passage that tells us Paul joined himself to Aquilla and Priscilla because they were of the same craft, i. e., tent-makers." His Grace further said: "The noblest of the apostles associated himself in partnership, and if you work out the idea of partnership when society came to be constructed as it is now, you must come to the partnership of trade-unionism—that fellow-feeling of man for man, promoting the common good of others of the same craft."

The discourse did not lack ingenuity, but it seemed like an effort—and that not very successful—to work out some pet theory, or to win over by a little blarney those to whom he was speaking, to his church. These over-sagacious efforts to win workingmen to the churches are by no means over-successful; indeed, many thoughtful men regard these popular utterances as claptrap for the accomplishment of party ends.

On all hands the poverty is admitted, and almost every one admits that drink in more than 90 per cent of the cases lies at the root of the poverty. We cannot, however, ignore the families of the men who won't work, any more than we can ignore the households of the men who would work if the work was obtainable. The question is naturally asked, What is to be done? Wherein lies the cure for this state of things?

A very serious hindrance to the rectification of this state of things is seen in the fact that the labor market is already influenced by the ever-increasing number of gentlefolks who compete for posts formerly filled by persons of a different order. There are people constantly sinking from affluence to beggary; hundreds of educated men seeking the most menial employments; broken-down baronets and beggared barristers; young fellows who have spent their fortunes in profligacy who are banging the sides of omnibuses, driving hansom cabs, marking in billiard rooms, serving in the police force, and taking checks in places of public entertainment; young ladies who have done their London season working hard in postoffices, telegraph offices, or acting as secretaries and clerks.

Poverty may have its purpose, but it is hard for those upon whom the discipline so sharply falls. There has been a long run of prosperity, and the ease with which money has been got has led to recklessness, loose habits, fast ways of living and other objectionable methods of wasting one's substance. A time of retribution follows the misuse of every God-given opportunity of improvement. Violations of divine law cannot be continued long without accompanying sorrow.

The church of Christ may have her imperfections, and have been in the past apathetic in ministering to the wants of the needy; yet the earnestness and devotion put forth of late years show that she has at last awoken to her duty and is doing her best to overtake the arrears of the past. May no ingratitude and grumblings on the part of the recipients of her help tend to the discouragement and hindrance of the workers.

Stockton-on-Tees, England, Jan., 1893.

BIBLE READING: THE SABBATH.

BY W. H. BAUSER.

1. For whom was the Sabbath made? "The Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath." Mark 2: 27.

2. When was the Sabbath made for man? If the Sabbath was made for man, then it must be co-equal with man. It began with the race. "And on the seventh day God ended his work which he had made; and he rested on the seventh day from all his work which he had made." Gen. 2: 2.

3. Why was the Sabbath made for man? Was it given him as merely a day of rest from physical labor, or was it given him as a day particularly in which to glorify God? "Thy people shall be all righteousness: they shall inherit the land forever, the branch of my planting, the work of my hands, that I may be glorified." Isa. 60: 21. "Wherefore also we pray always for you, that our God would count you worthy of this calling, and fulfill all the good pleasure of his goodness, and the work of faith with power, that the name of our Lord Jesus Christ MAY BE GLORIFIED in you." 2. Thess. 1: 11, 12.

We are required to glorify God, which is done by seeking him with our whole being and by obedience to his laws. He sanctified the Sabbath, and man must honor him in keeping it as a day of rest. By so doing he acknowledges the rest he has prepared for his people.

"For we which have believed do enter into rest, as he said, as I have sworn in my wrath, if they shall enter into my rest: although the works were finished from the foundation of the world. For he spake in a certain place of the seventh day on this wise, And God did rest the seventh day from all his works...."

"There remaineth, therefore, a (sabbath) rest (or keeping of a sabbath) to the people of God. For he that is entered into his rest (not physical rest, but rest of soul), he hath also ceased from his own works, as God did from his." Heb. 4: 3, 9.

4. Why should man observe the seventh day as a sabbath, or day of rest? "Remember the Sabbath day, to keep it holy. For in six days the Lord made heaven and earth, the sea, and all that in them is, and rested the seventh day: WHEREFORE the Lord blessed the Sabbath day, and hallowed it." Ex. 20: 11.

The reason here given for keeping the Sabbath is obligatory upon all people. As a seventh day it is a memorial of creation, and applied to others beside the Israelites.

Another reason was specially given the Israelites for keeping the Sabbath; a reason that did not apply to any other people, except in the antitype.

"And remember that thou wast a servant in the land of Egypt, and that the Lord thy God brought thee out thence through a mighty hand, and by a stretched out arm: THEREFORE the Lord thy God commanded thee to keep the Sabbath day." Deut. 5: 14, 15.

Their redemption from bondage was the special reason for the Israelites keeping the Sabbath (the general seventh-day sabbath) that God gave them. Besides this they were commanded to keep the 15th day of the first month (the day of their deliverance from bondage) as a day of rest, and this day was the special day typical of man's redemption day, the day Christ arose. The rest of this day was typical of the rest received in Christ, the memorial of which is observed by keeping every seventh day from the day of his resurrection, or every first day of the week. If the type must be strictly observed, how much more must it be with the antitype?

5. Is this day a fixed point of time? "Again he limiteth a certain day, saying in David, To-day, after so long a time." Heb. 4: 7. (Read in connection verses 4-9.) "God hath fulfilled the same unto us their children, in that he hath raised up Jesus again; as it is written in the second psalm, Thou art my Son; this day have I begotten thee." Acts 13: 33. "This is the day the Lord hath made; we will rejoice and be glad in it." Psa. 118: 24. These different scriptures evidently refer to resurrection day.

The typical rest day was the 15th of the first month, and the day of the antitype could be no other than the 16th day. Resurrection day is a fixed point of time; it is a fixed day in the week also; it is the first day of the week. The Greek words translated, "first day of the week," are properly rendered "the first of the Sabbath." It is the first of the Sabbaths, as it was on an Adamic Sabbath that Christ arose. He could rise on no other day, because he restores the rest lost in Adam to which the Adamic Sabbath pointed. The day is a distinct one, appointed of God from the beginning. Man cannot choose another day for the Sabbath.

Marion, Ind., Jan. 27, 1893.

"A COMPLETE EXHIBIT OF RELIGIONS."

The humbug of our times is the proposed "Congress of Religions," to be held in Chicago in connection with the big show in September, 1893. From all accounts it is to be a world-surprising blowout, as the manner of the Windy City is; for wind, noise and general bigness, Chicago is matchless.

Having discovered Columbus, the American people now propose to manifest themselves to the world. To meet expenses, to gratify vanity,

"all nations, languages, kindreds and tongues" are levied on for contributions of visitors, show-goods, and cash. That nothing may be lacking, all the "religions of the world" are summoned to appear, make procession, exhibit inventories, give "reasons for the faith that is in them," and leave shekels in Chicago—crying out like the "four daughters of the horse-leech": "Give." Over this "Parliament" of all religions (Anglo-maniacs prefer the English term to Congress) much ado is being made by sundry papers—some infidel and some "inclined to piety". The meeting will be, for the most part, taken up with palaver, tongue-fence and brag. Yet the "Son of man" said: "The kingdom of heaven cometh not with observation." Can even an unbeliever conceive of Him as making out a program for such a conglomeration of orthodoxies and heresies, infidelities and heathenisms?

A marked copy of a paper, standing for the beliefs and history of the sect called Methodists, sent to the writer, gives a brief, broad statement of the great and "Complete Exhibit of Religions". This paper says, and many write the same things:

"It is proposed to have, in connection with the World's Fair, a series of world-conventions, representing the chief departments of human knowledge and effort, and the principal one of these will be the Congress of Religions, extending through the month of September, 1893. Halls and churches that will accommodate 30,000 people will be found ready for this series of conventions, which will give a complete exhibit of the religious forces now shaping human thought and life. The Denominational Congress will come first, and will occupy a week or more. Many of the leading denominations of the country have already planned for these. The Congregationalists and Lutherans, especially, have arranged for these on an immense scale. Then a week has been assigned for the Evangelical Alliance, whose meetings will be of immense interest, etc."

A number of our papers—to say nothing of a conference or two—are in a state of excited sensibility on the subject, as a crowd of school-girls might be if invited to a swell wedding in a much decorated and very "tony" church. The general superintendents of our church are earnestly called on by resolution and editorial assurance of "general approval" to see to it that the Methodist Episcopal church, South, be represented at the great talking match and "general exhibit of the religions" of all the nations.

It is thought by some good people that it would be an irreparable calamity if Southern Methodism shouldn't have a good place in the procession. We also must flaunt banners, beat drums, blow horns, and make other noises to let the world know that we are somewhat ourselves. It is even counted a sort of greenness and narrowness not to see at once that we must be there—making for the eyes and ears of men an "exhibit" of our religion: "To be seen of men."

There was a Teacher once who said terrible things about those who make a show of their piety; but men forget him and his teaching.

The Chicago management is without bias; all are invited, and upon terms of perfect equality: Protestants and Romanists, state churches and free churches, Greek church and Mohammedans, Buddhists and Toubists, Trinitarians and Unitarians, Evangelicals and Universalists, Christians and idolaters, all are invited and begged to come. If any have been overlooked there has been no intention to be unfair. The "medicine man" of the Apaches should be there—as good as some of the rest; also the "rain-makers" Rider Haggard describes (from whom General Dyrrenfurth might get some valuable hints); also the priests of "Darkest Africa". Why not the voodoo Negroes of Louisiana swamps? They could give a trick worth knowing to the Buddhist priests, to say the least of it.

In some way the dead-and-gone religions should be represented. There might be histrionic substitutes (a sort of pious theater for church members; even preachers), for priests and teachers of Egypt and Assyria and Phœnicia. They might at least build a duplicate of Nebuchadnezzar's lofty statue of Bel-Merodach. The Greek and Roman temples should be reproduced; and learned men, personating the soothsayers, should show the moderns how to predict future events by watching the flight of birds or gazing upon the entrails of a sheep. If the false religions are to be honored, give the dead ones a chance. And why not ask Herbert Spencer to make an "exhibit" of "agnosticism"?

A "complete exhibit of religions"! Was such a phrase ever penned before? What will be exhibited? Doctrine? Government? Experience? What is there to show? Will they debate doctrine, or settle disputed questions by arbitration? Will they argue about government? or tell experience? or only brag about numbers? If this last, the game is lost by Protestantism to the Romanists, by Christianity to Mohammedanism, by all to bold and dirty heathenism.

A friend just from China and Japan tells me of a Buddhist priest from Tokio making ready to appear in behalf of his idolatries, and make an exhibit of his religion. Unless he should bring with him the hundreds of millions of his debased people his exhibit at least will be imperfect. The brazen impudence of an invitation to a congress of religions that puts a Christian missionary in Japan, on an equality with a Buddhist priest, is absolutely stunning. And Romanists—following red-hotter cardinals representing the Pope and the horrible history behind him—are asked to palaver with Protestant preachers of the Gospel. The whole conception is preposterous—the gathering of an ecclesiastical menagerie as diverse as that which floated in Noah's ark.

Why should the Methodist Episcopal church, South, care for representation there—in that crowd? Why should we be longing for "recognition" at Chicago—in this congress of all sorts, from Methodists down to Asiatic idolaters?

It is true that the outside world has not recognized this Methodist Episcopal church, South; but God has recognized us, and during the last twenty-five years no church has grown so fast. This itching to be seen and known and recognized of men is not wholesome. If we will only stand by our work of saving souls; if we will only repent of the worldliness that is spreading among us like a (fretting) leprosy; if we will only return to the simplicity and earnestness of our Methodism, we need not worry about being in this Chicago game of brag. A thousand revivals of religion—"pure and undefiled"—between now and September, 1893, will be worth more to us than the recognition of all the world.

P. S.—Because it is a matter of very little consequence it is mentioned in postscript, that many papers say that this writer "has been nominated to make an address" in some connection or other at the Show-Congress of Religions. He hopes he has not been elected.—Bishop Atticus G. Haygood, in the Nashville Advocate.

IN SECRET.

"Thou shalt love the Lord the God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbor as thyself."—Luke 10: 27.

That means so much more than some think. If you will do this, you will not have any room for the love of this world, nor for any of its pleasures. Let those who are of the world seek its pleasures: if we are children of God we have something better. Praise the Lord, we have no desire for them.

God's Word says, "Wherefore, come out from among them, and be ye separate."—2 Cor. 6: 17. So you see that we have no business to mingle with the world in any of its amusements, such as fairs, picnics, shows and festivals. We are to do all we do to the glory of God. "Whether, therefore, ye eat or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God."—1 Cor. 10: 31. "If a soul swear, pronouncing with his lips to do evil, or to do good, whatsoever it be that a man shall pronounce with an oath, and it be hid from him, when he knoweth of it, then he shall be guilty in one of these things. And it shall be, when he shall be guilty in one of these things, that he shall confess that he hath sinned in that thing."—Lev. 5: 4, 5. So you see that we are not to take such an oath. This will exclude us from all secret societies. We are to follow Christ. He says, "I spake openly to the world, I have taught in the synagogue, and in the temple, whither the Jews always resort; and in secret have I said nothing."—John 18: 20. Why, then, should we, as followers of the Lord Jesus, enter into secret places to teach? Again, hear what the Lord God saith, "I have not spoken in secret, in a dark place of the earth."—Isaiah 45: 19. Then why should we get into a room, lock the doors and blind the windows, and then plan in secret against some one? That is not loving our neighbor as ourselves. May God help us to look into these things as in the light of eternity. Again, "The secret things belong unto the Lord our God."—Deut. 29: 29. And again, Christ says, "Love your enemies, do good to them which hate you, bless them that curse you, and pray for them which despitefully use you."—Luke 6: 27, 28. But if we unite in secret to work against some one, that is not loving our enemies. God help us to think of these things rightly!

Then we have no business to go anywhere, or engage in anything that we cannot get down on our knees and ask God, for Christ's sake, to help us and bless us in the thing that we are about to do. To be sure, we have a written form of prayer in our secret order, but we do not take the name of Jesus into it. And why not? Because we take in men that do not believe in Jesus. They do not believe that Christ died for our sins.

Then there is another class of men that do not believe the Bible is the Word of God, written by inspiration. If they believe in the existence of a Supreme Being we take them in. We take these men (who deny that the Bible is the inspired Word of God, and these who deny that Jesus Christ died for the remission of sins) by the hand, and call them "brothers," and then say that this secret society is better than the church! May God awake us out of sleep, for Jesus' sake!

Again, men say that the secret society is a benevolent institution. But their giving is to boast of what is done by themselves or their society. Paul says, "Though I bestow all my goods to feed the poor, and though I give my body to be burned, and have not charity, it profiteth me nothing."—1 Cor. 13: 3. So you see that without the real genuine love of God in the heart it does not amount to anything to us.

Again, they say it is a fraternal society, more so than the church; but let the church members get awake to righteousness and filled with the Holy Ghost, and there will be a friendly feeling; for the love of God draws all men together, and makes us of one family. "The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit that we are the children of God: and if children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint heirs with Christ; if so be that we suffer with him, that we may be also glorified together."—Rom. 8: 16, 17. "I beseech you, therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service. And be not conformed to this world; but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect will of God."—Rom. 12: 1, 2. "Love not the world. If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him."—1 John 2: 15. Let us examine ourselves and see how it is with each one of us for Jesus' sake. Amen.—Henry W. B. Bates, in Earnest Christian.

THE THUGS OF INDIA AND AMERICA.

The following description of the Thugs is taken from an English work. As it exemplifies the indifference to bloodshed of all secret societies and combinations and aptly illustrates the religious superstition which encourages, and the secret and adroit methods of communication which enable, Freemasonry to commit crimes, it will not be inappropriate for the columns of the Cynosure:

"Originally, the Thugs were Hindus exclusively, and of one caste, by whom Mohammedans were first admitted as proselytes, after which restrictions were one by one removed, till all castes, and even the Chandala, were admitted to the association of Thuggee. . . . Like all other callings in India, that of a Thug is hereditary, and little or no difficulty seems to have been found in perpetuating the succession. By a progressive course of initiation, the Thug child is taught to overcome the natural repugnance which exists in the human breast to take the life of a fellow-creature, unless under some great excitement. At first he would be taken with a gang, mounted on a pony, as if on a journey for trade or pleasure, and carefully kept out of the way when the darker scenes of murder were enacted. After a while he is allowed to know that the party is engaged in robbery, to which he is easily won by receiving a share of its profits. By degrees the pupil is allowed further insight into the doings of his companions, and step by step passes through the various grades of scout and sexton, till he is qualified for the high office of a strangler. . . .

"One of the causes which tended to disarm the suspicion of the British authorities was the apparent pursuit of agriculture among the Thugs. They tilled their lands, and sowed seed, and seemed to be depending upon honest industry for subsistence. This acted as a screen to their more questionable pursuits; and during the absence of the men on a marauding expedition the females of the village attended to the fields and harvested the crops. Instances have occurred of a Thug becoming a trader and taking a shop in the bazaar of a principal town, engaging in extensive business, and gaining respect among the merchants and people of the place. Temporary absences on the business of Thuggee would be satisfactorily accounted for on the plea of traveling to purchase cloths in distant districts; and on their return, if any notice was taken, it would be observed that the goods they had brought back came from a distance and were mostly valuable. If asked about them, they would mention the names of cities in which they had purchased them, and, from their knowledge of localities, ran little risk of being detected by chance questions.

The name of "Thug," by which these murderers are best known to Europeans, signifies "deceiver"; their more common appellation, in Southern India especially, is "Phunsigar," or strangler; the former has relation to the insidious arts by which they strive to win the confidence of their intended victims, the latter to the mode of assassination. They usually set out on their expeditions in gangs of fifty to two hundred, subdivided into smaller parties of ten or twenty; travel on parallel lines of road, or at intervals of some miles, prepared to act in concert by means of scouts thrown out from the flanks of parallel parties, or in front and rear if traveling on the same line of road. By these communications they are able to transmit intelligence of the approach of a valuable convoy or wealthy travelers, and concentrate the whole gang at a given point, when necessary. When on the road they usually assume the guise of traders or inoffensive travelers, and, if successful in their early enterprises, travel on horseback and make great pretensions to wealth and station; at such times they will straggle into a village and make their way to the inn, appearing not to recognize or have any connection with each other. One of them then endeavors to win the confidence of any chance traveler who may be staying at the same place, and to find out his intended route and the amount of property he has with him. The Thug will then offer to accompany him, and advise that others, if possible, should be found going the same way for the sake of protection. Companions are, of course, easily obtained who are desirous of the security which numbers usually afford to travelers, and all set out together. If, however, these advances are declined, they follow their intended victim at a little interval, contriving to get ahead of him by diverging from the main road, and lie in ambush until he passes, when he is attacked, a noose or sash thrown round his neck, and suffocated. When allowed to accompany the traveler, they place themselves one on either side, and, when the coast is clear, one adroitly throws the sash, in which a peculiar knot has been tied, over the victim's head, and passes the other end to his comrade, who rapidly draws it tight, while a third accomplice, stationed close behind, seizes the legs of the victim and throws him forward to the ground, when, if not already dead, he is dispatched by kicks in the most vital parts, by which means all tell-tale bloodshed is avoided. During the attack, every possible precaution is taken to guard against a surprise; scouts are thrown out all around, and should anyone approach without having been previously seen, they have recourse to some artifice to prevent discovery. The nearest scout will throw himself on the ground in a pretended fit, and thus endeavor to excite the sympathy of the traveler and detain him until the corpse is disposed of; failing this, they will cover the body with a cloth and feign to be lamenting the sickness or death of a comrade.

(To be concluded.)

NEW ENGLAND LETTER.

A New England blizzard.—"Burning out the witch."—Prohibition in New Hampshire.—A Maine pastor's experience.—A liquor advertisement.—Harvard's windfall.—A hint to wage-earners.—Crinoline again.

"Make an early start." This advice in the "agricultural column" to farmers who want to grow early vegetables for the market, is pleasantly suggestive—especially if the day on which it happens to strike the eye be unusually spring-like. It sets one to dreaming of soft south winds and banks of purple violets, and birds caroling in the budding elms, and similarly poetic images, till rudely awakened by such a veritable Dakota blizzard as now raves outside my windows, the veritable genius of the tempest that only the same weird pencil which drew "the Cumean Sybil" could paint, as enveloped in whirling snow-clouds she strides on, dark and terrible, from her home in the wild regions of the frozen North,

".....The unharvested plains,
The blossomless lands where death reigns."

By the way, did you ever notice what queer, grotesque shapes old trees—especially an old apple-tree, will sometimes take? I remember once, during a summer's drive, noticing one which stood alone by itself on a bleak bit of waste land, and as it stood there sharply outlined against the sky, with its knotted, gnarled limbs, all drawn out of shape and bent to one side through long wrestling with the winds and storms, I thought at once of Elisha Vedder's picture, it looked so weird and witch-like. It was the Cumean Sybil suddenly changed into a tree, as Daphne was changed into a laurel.

Now that we are on the subject of the weird and uncanny, it would be a surprise to many of us to know that a belief in witchcraft still lingered, among more or less of the population in our rural districts, so late as the opening of this century. An old gentleman recently told me that he lived, when a boy, with a maiden lady who carried on a large farm in what is now the near vicinity of Wellesley College, and was considered very shrewd and sensible in all worldly matters; yet, on churning days, when the butter would not "come," she used to go at once and heat the tongs red-hot, and then plunge them into the churn "to burn out the witch," and break her wicked spells. If it was hot weather, the charm would fail to work; but if, on the contrary, it was a bitter cold morning on which this summary measure was resorted to, the butter generally consented to "come," the poor old lady never suspecting that the sole reason was because the cream had been raised by the hot tongs to a higher temperature, and one more favorable to butter-making.

Ex-Governor Goodell, who is always at work for temperance, has presented a bill to the Legislature, this week, prohibiting the manufacture, for purposes of sale, of all kinds of malt and spirituous liquors. The bill makes it a crime punishable by a fine of $1,000 and imprisonment for one year, and any officer of a corporation which is engaged in such manufacture renders himself liable to the penalty. This has the right ring. I think if there is anything that will be likely to brand us as fools in the eyes of coming generations, it is that insane argument, used by so many people who profess to hate the saloon, that such a law could not be enforced. The very argument itself is a strong presumption that they do not care to have prohibition enforced.

Some revelations have been lately made in the Connecticut State Legislature regarding her board of county commissioners, which seem to me to prove not so much the moral corruption which prevails in that particular body, as the fact that the whole business is in itself such a corrupting agency that it is well-nigh impossible to have anything to do with it in any capacity—even a legal one—and keep clean hands. That they should be venal bribe-takers, appointing, in some instances, for prosecuting agents men who themselves have bought and sold licenses for a profit, and granting them to keepers of houses of ill-fame, in direct violation of the statute, is not, when one comes to think about it, a strange thing. The miracle would be, if, touching pitch, they were not defiled; or, if carrying coals in their bosom, they were not burned. It is a business about which must always hang the stench of the bottomless pit. No one can have anything to do with it and not need a moral fumigation afterward; no, not if it be hedged about with every restraint of law, and they only touch it with the proverbial ten-foot-pole. A certain Maine minister tells a story which will go well in this connection, as showing what Frank Jones' breweries have done for that part of New Hampshire in which they are located. A year ago he received a call to Portsmouth, and went; but has recently accepted a call back to Maine with such an alacrity of good-will that he was very naturally asked by a friend if he did not like Portsmouth. He replied that in some respects it was a very nice place, but that there were things about it he did not like. "The place is demoralized by the liquor traffic," he added in explanation. "I saw plenty to annoy and sadden me, which I bore as well as I could, and tried to keep my courage. But when I found that my udders had to go out during the service to get a drink, that was too much. I couldn't stand it, and hailed with joy a chance to get back into Maine." Doesn't such a testimony speak volumes?

In our Massachusetts Legislature, Senator Fitzgerald, of Suffolk, has introduced a bill which shows how utterly regardless of private rights are the men who cater to the liquor party. It is to amend our present law so that licensing boards may grant liquor licenses in spite of the objections of owners of adjoining real estate, if such boards "are of the opinion that the granting of such license will not depreciate the value of such neighboring real estate, nor endanger the social or moral welfare of the inhabitants thereof." It can be easily seen that with such unlimited and autocratic powers granted to a licensing board, property-owners will find their rights overridden, and they themselves left without even the privilege of protest.

Sometimes a liquor advertisement contains food for reflection. Here is one, taking up half a column in a leading Boston paper, of which, at first view, the most noticeable feature is a cut of a hideous baboon, bearing a tray supposed to be filled with glasses, though hidden behind a large advertising placard. After the assurance that the place contains no bar or other objectionable features, we are further informed that "ladies in need of pure whiskies, brandies, gin and wines for medical use can have their wants supplied." There is no doubt that the number of drinking women in this city, not in the lowest class, but in the fashionable upper strata, is fearfully on the increase, however indignantly the statement may be repudiated; and in the majority of such cases the victim begins her downward career with the daily stimulant medically prescribed. A young lady, in one of our suburban towns, bought a bag of oranges and bananas the other day, but when she opened it and put her hand in she felt something moving about, which proved to be a large centipede, that had been shipped with the fruit from its tropical home. It was killed, and is now on exhibition in a glass bottle. If the moral centipedes that lie in wait to sting the unwary could only be as easily dealt with!

Harvard has received another windfall of $100,000, bequeathed absolutely and with no restrictions, from the estate of a Brookline man lately deceased. President Eliot estimates that a quarter of a million must be raised before the university can extend its full privileges to women. What a snug nestegg that hundred thousand would have been had Mr. Weld only seen fit to give his legacy a slightly different direction!

The young women-workers in a shoe-factory, in one of our New England manufacturing towns, are trying a new scheme of co-operation by putting aside all their earnings, above what is needed to support them with strict economy, and investing in real estate. They are said to hold already large and valuable property which brings in a handsome percentage of profit to each investor. Here is a hint for the discontented wage-earners of the other sex. These young women invest none of their hard-earned money in cigars, drink or theater tickets, and it is safe to say that no "walking delegate" will ever have the power to make them loiter about in idleness for weeks, simply because he gives them the word of command to strike.

McAllister approves of crinoline. Let the Princess of Wales and every other sensible woman who disapproves it, hide their diminished heads, now that this arbiter of fashion has spoken. He gives the astonishing reason that crinoline is "more modest" than the present style. Nobody in the country, unless it be Mrs. Partington, has said more foolish things than he; but in making this statement he has fairly exceeded himself. Evidently he would have it supposed that American women, like the Queen of Spain, have no legs; but the sensible part of the sex have their own opinions, and are not likely to adopt McAllister's standard of modesty. If crinoline revives "it will be a great thing for business," says a leading Boston firm, "as it now takes eighteen yards for a dress, when a short time ago only twelve were needed." It will also help the iron-brokers, for they can use over their old iron in making those abominable cages for the encasing of the female form. But will they make our business women so imprison themselves; our W. C. T. U. workers, our women doctors and lawyers, and all the countless host who are longing and praying for a genuine dress reform? Will they, indeed? Times have changed, and women with them, not to be set back thirty years at the decree of fashion despots on the other side of the water.

ELIZABETH E. FLAGG.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 22, 1893.

A new, but very appropriate, way to celebrate the birthday of George Washington was inaugurated here this afternoon by the National Society of the Sons of the Revolution. It consisted of a religious meeting, with appropriate music, prayer and an address by Rev. Dr. Randolph Harrison McKim, chaplain of the society and pastor of the church in which the meeting was held. In addition to the delegates in attendance upon the Second Continental Congress of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution, which began its sessions here this morning, there was an audience which tested the capacity of the church. It is fitting that religious services should be held to commemorate the day upon which the man was born who was in the eyes of the world the founder, by the grace of God and the assistance of his fellow patriots, of what is to-day the greatest Christian nation the world ever saw, and which will continue to grow in greatness so long as it lives up to the rules of Christianity, morality and temperance laid down by our forefathers; and may God forbid the coming of the day when those rules are relaxed by the men selected to rule our country. Why would it not be a good idea for such religious services to be held in every church in the United States upon each recurring birthday of Washington? Who can doubt the good effect upon the young of an annual address by every minister in the land upon the character and career of our first President, the man whose upright life, public and private, has been for generations past and will be for generations to come an incentive to young men to strive for the best, which can only be obtained by cultivating Christian, moral and temperate methods of living.

Congress is devoting its time almost entirely to the Appropriation bills this week, and, owing to opposition in the House to the Senate amendment to the Sundry Civil bill, authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to issue $50,000,000 in 3 per cent bonds should he deem it necessary, to increase the gold reserve, there are fears that this bill, one of the most important of the regular appropriation bills, may fail to become a law before the expiration of the life of this Congress, making an extra session necessary.

Unexpected opposition has developed to the ratification of the treaty for the annexation of Hawaii, now before the Senate, and as it requires a two-thirds vote to ratify, it may not be acted upon at this session.

Washington is full of signs of the coming inauguration. Every available place along the route of the street parade is already occupied by stands erected to seat the spectators. It is noted as a coincidence that Washington was inaugurated for his second term on March 4, 1793, just one hundred years from the day on which Mr. Cleveland will be inaugurated for his second term.

The movement just started in Philadelphia to do away with the slums of that city by erecting model tenement houses to be rented to the poor for the same price they pay for the squalid alley quarters they now occupy, is being watched with much interest by Washingtonians engaged in trying to benefit morally and physically the residents of our own slums. Washington has not so great an area of slums as some of the larger commercial cities, but there is quite enough depravity and suffering in its alleys to wring the hearts of those familiar with it, and to cause them to be interested in any plan which promises to either lessen or eradicate it. Those who have studied the subject carefully claim that the inhabitants of the slums in all cities may be comfortably housed where they will have healthy and good surroundings for the same money they now pay for living where the surroundings all tend to viciousness and unhealthiness, and, what is of more importance to the average capitalist, that it can be done at a fair profit upon the money required to be invested. If these claims are proved to be true by the experiments to be tried in Philadelphia it will only be a question of time when the slums in our large cities will disappear, and with them will go the rumsellers who now thrive upon the trade of those who live in them, while helping to fill the prisons, orphan asylums, and other charitable institutions. It is a subject in which every well-wisher of humankind may well be interested, for disguise it and shirk it as we may, we are, to the extent of our opportunities, responsible for the condition of our fellow beings. Let us all remember the parable of the talents.

Secretary Noble has consented to have a number of Indian children taken from the Romona school in New Mexico, which was founded by Mrs. Helen Hunt Jackson some years before her death, to the World's Fair to assist in illustrating the methods of Indian education. They will be in charge of the board of lady managers and will remain in Chicago during the exposition. *

TAVERNS SEVEN HUNDRED YEARS AGO.

"A tavern is the fountain of sin, the school of the devil; it works wonders fitting the place. It is the manner of God to show his power in the church, and to work miracles; that is to say, to give sight to the blind, to make the lame go, the dumb to speak, the deaf to hear; but the devil doth quite contrary to all this in a tavern, for when a drunkard goeth to a tavern, he goeth uprightly, but when he cometh forth he cannot go at all, and he has lost his sight, his hearing and his speech. The lectures that are read in this school of the devil are gluttonies, oaths, perjuries, lyings and blasphemies, and divers other villanies; for in a tavern are quarrels, slanders, contentions, murders."—Written about 1120.

REFORM NEWS.

FROM THE WESTERN DISTRICT.

WELDA, Kansas, Feb. 24, 1893.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—I am now in Anderson county for a few days, coming here on Tuesday, the 21st. I lectured on Tuesday evening in the Armory Hall in Garnett, the county-seat. But a few were out to hear the address. Though this town has many churches, yet I am sorry to say that it is overrun with secretism. The delusion of secretism has deceived many, and the fear of secretism has fallen upon many others. Secretism has too large a sway in Garnett for the spiritual safety of its citizens. The gloved hand of secretism is everywhere apparent. It was found difficult to advertise our meeting. Our posters were torn down. Some merchants would not allow the posters to be put in their windows. Of course, the pulling down of posters is small and contemptible, yet it is not hard to find persons to do it. What kind of institutions are these that are so jealous of any inquiry? Is the pulling down of posters an argument in their favor?

Why do not the Christian people of Garnett desire light on these things? How many were at the ball in the same room the next evening? How many were at the "Old Folks' Concert" the evening after that? A strange apathy has fallen upon many. God be merciful! There must be a change. Shall we keep silent and permit men and women to go on to ruin in following these delusions and follies?

On Thursday evening we addressed a good and attentive audience in the U. P. church at Welda, six miles below Garnett. Rev. D. E. Magill is the earnest pastor of this church. He opened his church readily to the consideration of this reform. He is wisely desirous of having his young people informed and warned in these matters. I was glad to see so many young persons present. I shall speak to-night in the same place.

On last night an old gentleman, a Mason, arose at the conclusion and asked me if I were a Mason. I replied by inquiring what difference it made whether I were a Mason or not. His profound reply was that if I were a Mason I was perjurying myself, and if I were not a Mason I was talking about something I knew nothing about. I picked up from the table A. T. C. Pierson's Traditions and Mr. Mackey's Lexicon and Mr. Sickels' Manual, and asked him if he knew Mr. Pierson and Mackey and Sickels, and that they are high Masonic authority. Yes, he replied; he knew them. Well, I continued, I have these books right here, and with them in my hands I might be supposed to know something about Freemasonry; and so they are singing that old doggerel yet. Yours in harness,

W. C. PADEN.

FROM THE NEW ENGLAND AGENT.

STEAMER PLYMOUTH,

Fall River Line to N. Y., Feb. 24, '93.

We are four or five hours late, owing to delay for repairs before leaving Fall River. There is no land in sight this morning, but the sea is quiet and the sunrise magnificent.

I left Boston at 6 P. M. yesterday, expecting to reach Pittsburg to-morrow morning, but this delay will probably break connections.

So much space has been kindly given in the Cynosure to addresses at the late convention that I have withheld reports, lest I should trench upon the rights of other portions on the broad field. There is no diminution but a steady increase of interest in New England. Opportunities for addresses are less frequent than seem desirable, but the tract work is unlimited. Boston is pre-eminently a city of conferences, conventions, associations, and religious gatherings, in which the most independent thinkers and conscientious Christians in America gather to conserve the varied interests they represent, and discuss living issues. In most of these bodies the judicious tract-distributor may gain access, with more or less privileges, and in this way reach representative minds from all parts of Christendom.

Joseph Cook is recognized as a leader in thought and fearless utterance of his convictions. Though the elements have been adverse, his Monday Lectures have thus far been well sustained by appreciative audiences. His well-known attitude towards the secret lodge system has strengthened the reform greatly in New England, although he has not directly mentioned it in the three lectures of his present course. He may find it in his line when speaking of the causes which lead to Sabbath desecration.

A recent three-days' convention of Adventists, held in Tremont Temple, brought together a large number of their representative men. I applied for leave to distribute anti-secret tracts, but unfortunately, as it seems to me, Eld. Levi O. McKinstry was at the head of the Committee on Control. When approached he said: "We want only Advent literature distributed here. I was once opposed to secret societies, but since I joined some of them I have changed my opinion." From what I learned in personal conference, I am confident that he did not represent the views of one in ten of the working members of the body. As is often the case in churches, so in this instance a lodge man held the key to the situation. After the final adjournment I used my liberty in distributing freely to the retiring audience.

The same week witnessed a four-days' meeting at the Pitt Street Mission, where information was welcomed, and a number of workers volunteered to distribute tracts at the meeting and at their homes when they return.

A two-days' conference of the Christian Alliance gave permission for a quiet distribution, in which our good Sister Powers participated with a zeal beyond her strength. The Home Light brings an increased number of responses and requests for sample copies of the Cynosure, which we hope is adding to your list of weekly readers. Through this little sheet many have received their first intimation of any united organized effort to oppose and remove the secret works of darkness. By such agencies, blessed of God, the cause is slowly reaching the conscience of conservative New England Christianity, and though the progress is not rapid, it is solid, and will stand.

JERSEY CITY, Feb. 24, P. M.—I fortunately fell in with an officer of Her Majesty Queen Victoria's army, who proved very companionable and intelligent. He believed the Bible and admired the Christ-life, though not himself a Christian. His father, a seafaring man, died in the triumphs of a living faith. He had unbounded confidence in his wife's piety, and had at times been almost persuaded to submit to Christ and accept him as his personal Saviour. He admitted every claim of the Gospel and showed no disposition to cavil, and I trust our meeting, so manifestly ordered of God, may prove mutually beneficial. Finding that we agreed upon so many points, I asked his opinion about secret societies, to which he replied: "I have my application to join the Masons in my pocket." Inquiring for his motives, I found them vague and indefinable, but principally to gratify a friend who, by his own confession, had solicited his name contrary to Masonic rules. I said: "I am not a Mason, and am glad to know that you are not; and with your permission I will give some of the reasons why I never sought membership in the lodge." I need not repeat the objections which I presented, for they are familiar to your readers; but it was a revelation and surprise to him. He listened attentively, and then, of course, referred to the "good men," the ministers and the Good Templars, etc., to which I replied: "Is there anything in the Divine example, or in the Christ-life you so much admire, that requires or justifies such combinations with men and fore-sworn obligations to conceal their words and deeds? Do you really believe that these good men have been made better by swearing to keep the secrets of their brothers in the lodge?" He frankly confessed that it was a new view of the subject, and before we parted he gave me his address and I promised to send him further information on my return to Boston. I devoutly pray that he may be saved from the snare of the "wicked one," and submit to his Divine Lord and Master, and be instrumental in bringing many of his comrades to "join the assembly of the first-born, whose names are written in heaven."

J. P. STODDARD.

REV. M. A. GAULT IN INDIANA.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Feb. 23, 1893.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—Bro. Gault lectured for us in the Covenant church, to a fair audience, night before last, on "Jesuitism and Freemasonry." Many were prevented from attending by the icy condition of the streets, which made walking dangerous. Very few secretists attended. Those opposed to lodge rule are much strengthened; and one man declared that he was convinced of the evils of lodgery; yet he would have joined a lodge in a few days had he not heard this lecture.

We are thinking of having a State anti-secrecy convention held here, if we can secure a suitable house. The location of the State University here makes this a desirable point; besides, we have many supporters here; yet we all need a great rousing. More anon. Yours, A. MAYN.

Do you take the Cynosure? Why not? Do you pay for it? Why don't you?

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE "HOME LIGHT" AND ITS GOOD MISSION.

218 COLUMBUS AVENUE,

BOSTON, Mass., January, 1893.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—Through your columns permit me to have a little chat with my sisters, regarding a matter of great interest to me, and one in which I hope to see a much greater interest among them than heretofore.

In the first place, I wish that every woman who reads these lines, if she has never received a copy of our woman's paper (The Home Guard, first called, then changed to National Home Guard, but now much more appropriately named Home Light), would send a postal to me giving her name and address so that we may mail her one. We want you all to become acquainted with it, as it is, so far as we know, the only anti-secret paper published by women, and it is for women as well.

Secondly, we want every woman to know that small though it be, it has become a mighty factor in awakening an interest among Christian women throughout our land regarding the evils of secret societies.

Thirdly, we feel that the women who are interested in helping to pull down the strongholds of Satan should recognize the Home Light as a factor in this great conflict, and rally to the support of the paper and the women who are bearing the brunt of issuing it monthly.

As samples of the work it is doing we quote from one letter received recently from a W. C. T. U. worker in Manchester, N. H., and another from a friend in Maryland:

MANCHESTER, N. H., Jan. 9, 1893.

Mrs. Anna E. Stoddard,

DEAR MADAM:—I send you postage stamps to pay for two copies of the Home Light. . . . I have some of the sample copies that have been sent to the Manchester W. C. T. U. reading-room, and have circulated them as far as I was able.

Being a sufferer from the lodge system, I am rejoiced to know that there are noble women in the world who dare to help enlighten the public on such subjects. Wishing you God-speed in your noble work, I remain your sister in the W. C. T. U.

ROCK HALL, Md., Jan. 13, 1893.

Mrs. Anna E. Stoddard,

DEAR MADAM:—Your works, which we secured about a year ago, or more, on secret societies have done a blessed work, as many here can testify. About 35 members, out of a total of 83, have come out of the K. of P. order, and about 25 or more out of a total of 80, have left the I. O. O. F. lodge; all through the expositions purchased from you; for which we praise God, with thanks, and blessings upon you and your work. . . . Also send catalogue of tracts, etc.

Yours in the work,

Please note the work done in this one town through first sending a Home Light, then literature ordered, etc.; and these are but two of many that might be quoted, showing what the Lord hath wrought.

The habit of sending the Home Light out each month is nominal, but the printer and the postage have to be paid; and, to you who are already interested must we look for the funds to carry on the work in this line during the present year. Although the office work is done gratuitously, $200 will be required to meet the needs of the paper, and enable us to go forward with efficiency.

Are there not 200 women who will send us $1 each? Perhaps some can send more—some less; however that may be, do not read this with indifference, but think over it and make it a subject of prayer; then decide how much you can donate to this special effort to enlighten the womanhood of the land, and write to us, telling of your sympathy, and co-operation, enclosing whatever you have decided to give; thus helping to bear the burden, and share in the blessing which comes to those who put their shoulder to the wheel and help roll the chariot of reform on to victory.

Yours in the Master's service,

ANNA E. STODDARD.

THE MADNESS OF THE LODGE.

MONTDALE, Pa., February, 1893.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—"Whom the gods will destroy they first make mad." Never were lodge-gods madder than now. The madder they grow, the more they multiply. Madness and multiplication predict their overthrow in the near future. How they rave and increase! Our good men who apologize for some of them will be ashamed when their malignity shall be further developed—as it is sure to be, very soon.

My second son (who has taken fourteen degrees in secret orders) lately told me that he has become sick of them, and is done with them. He is a child of many prayers. He believes that secret societies are utterly repugnant to vital religion, though he does not, himself, profess to have it. He may sometime tell of his experience in the lodges.

By the help of the Lord, we, as a church, hold up the anti-secret banner still. Here, where the Presidents Blanchard, Rathbun, Barlow, and many others of the best and noblest men, helped to inaugurate the conflict against modern demonism, we are yet contending against Satan. The G. A. R. and their cohorts have recently tried their hand on us; but with us a secret society is a secret society, and we are bound to plant our feet on ground broad enough to stand upon. Endorse any oath-bound order, and you endorse them all. A ten-year-old child can see this.

Truly yours for all reforms,

NATHAN CALLENDER.

EDUCATION IN ILLINOIS.

LUTHER ACADEMY, WAHOO, Neb., }
February, 1893. }

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—A great deal of bitter and, I think, useless discussion in connection with this question could have been avoided if notice had been taken of compulsory education laws in the most advanced European countries—Scotland, Sweden and Norway, Prussia, Wurtemberg and other States of the German empire. Compulsory education had been in effect in Sweden for upwards of half a century, and it has been strictly enforced; yet there are thousands of children that never have attended the State schools a single day.

The law of Illinois was a compulsory attendance law. It was a misnomer to call it a compulsory education law; and I think it was this blunder and nothing else that killed the law. The compulsory education laws, the world over, except some passed in the United States, are compulsory education laws, proper, and not compulsory attendance laws. They compel the parents to give their children education; and, in fact, they do even more—they compel the youth to get an education, in order to enjoy the full right of citizenship. When such laws are passed by the Illinois legislators, they will be acquiesced in by all concerned, and they will serve as models for the other States to copy. But compulsory attendance laws are only a new edition of the compulsory church-attendance laws of Elizabeth and James of England. They are unjust, ought never to be enforced, and the blunder of passing them should never be repeated.

Compulsory education laws ought to have been passed in this country fifty years ago; and the sooner we get them the better. But I shall oppose compulsory attendance laws as long as I have breath. Yours for compulsory education,
S. M. HILL.

LITERATURE.

GATHERED GEMS OF SONG AND STORY: Written and selected by H. L. Hastings, Editor of the Christian and other publications. One volume, pp. 222. Boston: Scriptural Tract Repository, 47 Cornhill.

For home reading, nothing except the Scriptures can be better than the 200 "gems" which this dainty volume contains; and as they largely illustrate daily life, morals and Christianity, presented in an attractive form, they will find attentive readers in every well-regulated household.

THE COSMIC ETHER AND ITS PROBLEMS: The Invisible Actor of the World of Matter and Life—A scientific sketch, by B. B. Lewis. One volume, pp. 159. Bridgeport, Conn.: M. A. Sewall, P. O. Box 434. Price $1.00.

Mr. Lewis' application and extension of the theory of a luminiferous ether have attracted the attention of several well-known scientific experts, including Prof. Asaph Hall, LL.D., of the Washington Observatory; Prof. E. E. Barnard, Superintendent of the Lick Observatory, and Prof. A. J. DuBois, of Yale University, all of whom declare it an interesting discussion. By an ingenious grouping of scientific data with resultant logical deduction, he comprehensively presents a modernized view of the Cosmos, in which all the forces and phenomena associated with matter, and, inferentially, matter itself, together with the first origin, and continuous maintenance of material life forms are directly traced to the universal light-transmitting medium. An apparently exhaustive solution is also proffered, from this standpoint of those related problems of the aurora, comets, and the solar corona. The familiarity of modern every-day life with the nature of the ether, through its manifestations shown in electricity, with the demonstrated reference to it of all optical phenomena, thus finding in it the causative source of human knowledge, through the physical faculty of sight, renders this book one of interest to the student of science.

TRACTS AND PAMPHLETS.

From Josiah W. Leeds of 528 Walnut street, Philadelphia, Penn., we have received the following tracts, printed in the interest of social and individual reform: Our Free Institutes for the Promotion of Brutality and Burglary (pp. 12; showing the evils of reading police reports in flashy papers); The Pernicious in Libraries (pp. 8; a caution against novel reading); Some Quiet Ways of Dealing with Pernicious Printings (pp. 8; a blast against the nude in art, in show-bills, etc.); The Dress Parade at West Point (pp. 12; a plea against making the art of war deceptively attractive); Some Helpful Sentences (pp. 8; for encouragement and aid in the Christian life); Simplicity of Attire as Related to the Promotion of Social Purity; The Cigarette—Some Sober Words About It; The Title "Reverend;" The Testimony of Quaker Annals to the Divine Authorization of Woman's Preaching and Writing for the Public. For prices and other information drop a line to Mr. Leeds.

The following come to us from the publishing house of the American Citizen Co., 7 Bromfield street, Boston, Mass., from whom they may be ordered by our readers: Rome's Warfare on Well-known Historic Facts, as Exemplified in Her Condemnation of Certain Standard Books (because they were written by Protestants). Judge Joseph D. Fallon is a member of the Boston school committee, a Roman Catholic, and chairman of the textbook committee, who made sweeping objections to using Protestant histories in the common schools. This tract is a stringent reply to the Judge's zealous criticisms, by Rev. Luther T. Townsend, D.D., and a patriotic and manly defense of Protestant historians and their works. It embodies his address delivered in Music Hall, Boston, June 1, 1890, and its clear-cut arguments and pungent sentences were listened to with earnest attention and elicited much applause. Also another tract—Jesuitical Influences on the Secular Press: An Address Delivered before the Methodist Preachers' Meeting (Boston), December 12, 1892, by Prof. L. T. Townsend. It has already received due notice in these columns. It is a powerful exposition of the baleful power of Rome.

NEW MAGAZINE.

American Young People, a monthly magazine, illustrated, which made its appearance in Chicago with its January number, is a new aspirant for public favor. Its prospectus claims for it a devotion "to the highest interests of the homes and educational work of America, inculcating patriotism, education, good citizenship, rational and healthful amusements;" and is intended to be "the most instructive, the most entertaining, the brightest, the purest and the best magazine for American schools, and American homes, American youth;" designed to create and perpetuate a love and veneration for the spirit of freedom. Its general make-up includes stories; scenes in history; the elements of true citizenship; descriptions of notable parts of our country, and of the various branches of our government; home-talks to boys and girls upon success in life, etc., home science and handiwork; recreations and amusements, etc. The initial number is varied and entertaining. Terms $1.00 a year.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Tenth Annual Report of the Executive Committee of the Indian Rights Association, for the year ending December 15, 1892, has been officially issued in a pamphlet of 76 octavo pages. It covers last year's work of the association among the uncivilized tribes of the Western mountains and plains.

The Indian Rights Association is a non-partisan, non-sectarian organization for promoting the civilization of the Indian and for securing his natural and political rights. To this end it aims to collect and collate facts, principally through the personal investigations of its officers and agents, regarding the Indian's relations with the government and with our own race, concerning his progress in industry and education, his present and future needs. Upon the basis of facts, and of legitimate conclusions drawn from them, the association appeals to the American people for the maintenance of such a just and wise policy upon the part of the executive and Congress in dealing with these helpless wards of the nation as may discourage fraud and violence, promote education, obedience to law, and honorable labor, and finally result in the complete absorption of the Indian into the common life of the nation.

Copies of this report may be obtained at the office of the association, 1305 Arch street, Philadelphia.

The Forty-third Annual Catalogue of the University of Rochester, N. Y., for 1892-93, is at hand. Its contents cover a history and description of the organization of the university; its equipment, buildings, grounds; its museums and cabinets; its laboratories and library; its other collections for the benefit of students; its gymnasium; scholarship and prizes; recent gifts; organization of instruction, and its courses, recitations and examinations; religious exercises, etc. The personal catalogue embraces 158 students—29 seniors, 23 juniors, 42 sophomores, 41 freshmen, 19 eclectics, and 4 pursuing special studies. The catalogue is finely illustrated.

Mr. H. C. Krehbiel, the musical critic of the New York Tribune, supplements the article on Liszt by Saint-Saens in the February Century with a biographical sketch of Saint-Saens himself in the March number of that magazine.

LODGE NOTES.

(From Secret Society Journals.)

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS.

The building selected for the Pythian headquarters at the World's Fair is to be known as "The Damon" and is located in the finest residence portion of the city of Chicago, midway between Grand and Drexel boulevards, two of the most beautiful drives on this continent. In this building will be located the completely furnished and equipped headquarters for the Supreme Lodge and the uniformed rank, with telephone, telegraph and special mail service. The accommodation therein for members of the order will consist of 250 rooms.

The new ritual adopted at the late session of the Supreme Lodge does away with the amplified third.

There are ten lodges of the order in Utah with a total membership of 1,200.

MASONS.

New York State has 75,775 Master Masons, a proportion of one to each 79.15 of its population of 5,997,853. Of this number of Master Masons, 16,182 are Royal Arch Masons, a ratio of one Royal Arch Mason to every 4.68 of Master Masons, equal to 21.35 per cent. In the chivalric order 8,660 are Knights Templars, which is in the ratio of one Knight Templar to every 8.74 Master Masons, equal to 11.42 per cent, or one Knight Templar to every 1.86 Royal Arch Mason, equal to 53.53 per cent. In the Cryptic rite, with a membership of 2,867 we find one to every 5.39 Royal Arch Masons, and that of Knights Templars one in every 2.92 are council members.

Lodges in Norway formerly working under the authority of the Grand Lodge of Sweden have, it is said, formed the Grand Lodge of Norway. Norway has 4 lodges, with 924 members; 1 chapter, with 303, and 1 commander, with 341 members. The lodges work what is known as the Swedish rite.

Lodge Glasgow, St. John, No. 3, of Glasgow, claims an antiquity reaching back to 1057, and professes to have a charter from Malcolm III, King of Scotland. The 834th anniversary was celebrated with great pomp and ceremony.

The official records prove that the jurisdiction having lodges of the largest membership are in the following order: Connecticut, Colorado, Michigan, Illinois, New York, Minnesota, Pennsylvania, District of Columbia, California, etc.

The grand encampment is composed of past grand commanders, the past grand masters, grand commanders, grand deputies, grand generalissimos and grand captains general of the different States, making up a membership of about 400.

"Locust Masons" is the latest designation for that class of non-affiliates who never show up at a lodge except when there is something to be devoured.

KNIGHTS OF MACCABEES.

On the 1st day of December the membership of the supreme tent was 37,530. To reach 40,000 at the end of the year seemed an almost hopeless task, but by hard work of tents and deputies 53 new tents were instituted, 2,992 applications were received by the medical examiner, and a net increase of 2,348 is the result.

A. O. U. W.

Total beneficiary fund disbursed in 1891 to Jan. 1, 1892, as shown by the annual reports, $5,307,588 54. Grand total beneficiary fund disbursed by the order from organization to Dec. 1, 1892, $44,023,875 82. Balance in relief fund Dec. 1, 1892, $4,508 49.

Since the St. Louis A. O. U. W. labor bureau was organized 1,100 members have registered as applicants for work, 700 of whom have secured positions through the fraternal efforts of the bureau.

ODD FELLOWS.

In 1891 the Rebekah initiations in Indiana aggregated over 40,000.

New York State has had 73 Grand Masters, including Charles H. Morgan, the present head of the order in the State.

The name of the Grand Lodge of the Lower Province of British North America

It's money thrown away when a medicine doesn't help you. It's your risk and your loss. But that's the way you have to buy every medicine for woman's ailments, except Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

With that, there's no risk—it's guaranteed. If it doesn't benefit or cure, in all the chronic weaknesses, painful disorders and functional disturbances that afflict womanhood, you have your money back. But you won't ask it—you'll be cured.

Give it time, if your case is obstinate. The troubles that come slowly, have to go slowly. The surest and speediest remedy is the "Favorite Prescription." It builds up and invigorates the system, regulates and promotes the proper functions, and restores health and strength.

For everything that's known as a "female complaint," it's a positive specific.

If you're an overworked or suffering woman, it's a medicine that's made especially to help you—but you pay only for the help that you get.

On these terms it's the cheapest sold.

THIS $11 TO $17 SEWING MACHINE to examine in any where without a warrant the BEST made. Our terms and thing far more liberal ever offered. For full adst. out and send to Alvah Mfg. Co.,

FREE! home. Sent anywhere in advance. sewing machine ever conditions and every than any other house particulars, cut this us to-day. Address C130, Chicago, Ill.

Our High Grade List and Bargain Book sent to any address on receipt of a 2-cent stamp.

LORD & THOMAS, NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING 46 RANDOLPH STREET, CHICAGO.

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained, and all Patent business conducted for Moderate Fees.

Our Office is Opposite U. S. Patent Office, and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.

Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.

A Pamphlet, "How to Obtain Patents," with names of actual clients in your State, county, or town, sent free. Address,

C. A. SNOW & CO.

Opposite Patent Office, Washington, D. C.

ca was changed to the Grand Lodge of the Maritime Provinces by the S. G. L.

Vermont lodge of Montpelier now has 6 clergymen among its membership, the Episcopal rector being the last initiated.

Out of 48 expulsions in Ohio during the past year 16 were for drunkenness and 3 for loitering about saloons. The others were for sundry offenses.

RED MEN.

The suggestion of the great sachem of Massachusetts that a past sachem's association be organized in that State is good. Nearly every past sachem in the State would join, and its possibilities for good are far-reaching.

The great council of the United States has adopted a "veteran badge" for Red Men of over 21 years' membership. This honorable emblem will be a badge of distinction for the older members.

KNIGHTS AND LADIES OF HONOR.

The 68 deaths enumerated on the January assessment call were distributed over the following States: North Carolina, Rhode Island and Wisconsin, 1 each; Alabama, Massachusetts and Kentucky, 2; South Carolina, Mississippi, Ohio and Pennsylvania, 3; Indiana 4; New Jersey, Illinois, Texas and Tennessee, 5; Missouri 9, and New York, 14.

The safest means of getting rid of a bad cough is Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

"I've tried all sorts of blood purifiers," said an old lady to a "cutter," "and you can't persuade me that any other Sarsaparilla is as good as Ayer's." There's where she had him. She knew that Ayer's was the best—and so did he, but it paid him better to sell a cheaper brand.

ANTI-SECRECY TRACTS.

The following numbers are in stock, and can be had at the wholesale price of 25 cents per pound:

4. Freemasonry in the Family.
7. To the Boys who Hope to be Men.
8. Modern Heathenism.
9. Ministers at Rival Altars.
10. A Pastor's Confession.
12. Alexander Campbell's Estimate of the Lodge.
15. Secrecy and Sin.
22. Extracts from Masonic Oaths and Penalties as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.
37. Why a Christian should not be a Freemason (German).
38. Masonic Oaths and Penalties.
39. Should Freemasons be Admitted to Christian Fellowship?
42. Our Duty and Ability to Know the Character of Masonry.
45. Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?

The above are the only tracts in stock in large quantities. There are a few of several other numbers. Remember that these are being retailed at wholesale prices—25 cents per pound. Keep a package of Anti-masonic tracts for use in letters.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION, 321 W. Madison St., Chicago.

AGENTS AND LECTURERS.

NEW ENGLAND DEPARTMENT.—Rev. J. P. Stoddard, Agent, 218 Columbus Ave., Hotel Howland, Boston.

EASTERN DEPARTMENT.—W. B. Stoddard, Agent, No. 215, 4½ St., Washington, D. C.

CENTRAL DEPARTMENT.—Rev. M. A. Gault, Blanchard, Ia.

WESTERN DEPARTMENT.—Rev. W. C. Paden, Oakland, Kan.

PACIFIC DEPARTMENT.—, address Rev. S. Mathew, Canby, Oregon.

COLLEGE AGENT, Rev. S. F. Porter Cynosure office.

OTHER LECTURERS.

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
Rev. H. H. Hinman, Oberlin, O.
Nathan Callender Montdale, Pa.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
T. B. McCormick, Princeton, Ind.
E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
H. A. Day, Brighton, Mich.
J. M. Bishop, Chambersburg, Pa.
A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
W. M. Love, Osceola, Mo.
J. K. Glassford, Carthage, Mo.
Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Minn.
J. S. Perry, Thompson, Conn.
Rev. E. Mathews, Long Island City, N. Y.
E. Barnetson, Haskinsville, N. Y.
D. A. Richards, Brighton, Mich.
A. W. Parry, Evanston, Ill.

SCOTCH RITE MASONRY ILLUSTRATED.

The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all Masonic rites, and are fully and accurately given in

"FREEMASONRY ILLUSTRATED,"

as advertised, but the signs, grips, passwords etc., of these three degrees are given at the close of Vol. 2 of

"Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated"

Vol. 1 of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3d to 18th inclusive. Vol. 2 of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 19th to 33d inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree included. Price per volume, paper cover, 50 cents each, in cloth, $1 each. Each volume per dozen, paper covers, $4; per dozen, cloth bound, $9.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern. Table of Contents: The Antiquity of Secret Societies, The Life of Julian, The Eleusinian Mysteries, The Origin of Masonry, Was Washington a Mason? Fillmore and Webster's Deference to Masonry, A Brief Outline of the Progress of Masonry in the United States, The Tammany Ring, Masonic Benevolence, The Uses of Masonry, An Illustration, The Conclusion. 50c each.

THE N. C. A. BUILDING (The gift of Philo Carpenter.)

—AND OFFICE OF—
The Christian Cynosure,
221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO.

PRESIDENT—Rev. M. A. Gault, Blanchard, Iowa.

VICE PRESIDENT—John Dorcas, Tipton, Iowa.

FIELD SEC'Y and TREASURER—W. I. Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

CORRESPONDING SEC'Y—Rev. H. L. Kellogg, Wheaton, Ill.

REC. SECRETARY—Mrs. E. A. Cook Chicago.

DIRECTORS—T. B. Arnold, C. A. Blanchard, E. A. Cook, J. M. Hitchcock, G. R. Milton, J. P. Richards, E. Whipple, E. R. Worrell, Edgar Wylie W. M. Howie, H. F. Kletsing.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

NEW ENGLAND.—Pres., Rev. J. M. Foster, Boston, Mass.; Sec'y, Miss E. E. Flagg, Wellesley, Mass.; Treas., L. E. Lincoln, Boston.

CONNECTICUT.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Willimantic; Sec., David J. Ellsworth, Windsor; Treas., C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.—Pres., Rev. R. W. Chesnut, Marissa; Sec., Rev. J. R. Wylie, Coultersville; Treas., Rev. W. I. Phillips, Cynosure office, Chicago.

IOWA.—Pres., John Dorcas, Tipton; Sec., Rev. T. P. Robb, Linton; Treas., Rev. L. Mendenhall, Fairfield.

KANSAS.—Pres., Rev. C. H. Strong, Lawrence; Vice-Pres., Rev. J. L. Countermine, Hiawatha; Sec., Rev. D. H. Coulter, Winchester; Treas., Joseph A. Torrence, Denison.

NEBRASKA.—Pres., Rev. W. I. Brooks, Pawnee City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. G. Widen, Mead; Sec., Howard P. Young, Wahoo; Treas., Rev. T. H. Dabney, Hooper.

MAINE.—Pres., Isaac Jackson, Harrison; Sec., I. D. Haines, Dexter; Treas., H. W. Goddard, West Sidney.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Pres., S. A. Pratt, Worcester.

MICHIGAN.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec., H. A. Day, Brighton; Treas., Geo. Swanson, Jr., Bedford.

MINNESOTA.—Pres., S. B. Sjoblom, Ferguson Falls; Cor. Sec., Wm. Fenton, St. Paul; Rec. Sec., Mrs. M. F. Morrill, St. Charles; Treas., Wm. H. Morrill, St. Charles.

MISSOURI.—Pres., J. F. Beauchamp, Denver; Sec., M. N. Butler, Darlington; Treas., Rev. C. G. Cox, Grant City.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—Pres., Robt. A. Frohock, Alton; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., James F. French, Canterbury.

NEW YORK.—Pres., Rev. S. R. Wallace, Syracuse; Sec., Rev. W. H. Clark, Binghanton; Treas., Lucius Woodruff, Binghanton.

OHIO.—Pres., J. W. Martin, Mt. Perry; Rec. Sec., A. T. Vestal, Seneca; Cor. Sec. and Treas., E. Thomson, Seneca.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Pres., R. J. George, D. D. Beaver Falls; Cor. Sec., J. S. T. Milligan, Pittsburgh; Treas., R. C. Wylie, Wilkinsburg.

WISCONSIN.—Pres., J. B. Galloway, Poyette; Sec., Isiah Falls, Vernon; Treas., J. W. Wood, Baraboo.

The Christian Cynosure.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, MARCH 2, 1893.

Come ye near unto me, hear ye this; I have not spoken in secret from the beginning. . . . Thus saith the Lord, thy Redeemer, the Holy One of Israel; I am the Lord thy God which teacheth thee to profit, which leadeth thee by the way that thou shouldst go.—ISAIAH 48: 16, 17.

THE N. C. A. AT THE WORLD'S FAIR.

In his weekly reports the Corresponding Secretary has noticed briefly that the opportunity of giving a lecture six months long to hundreds of thousands of people at the World's Fair was not being neglected by the N. C. A. Board. Though application was made late and its number in the Liberal Arts department was 9,209, a kind Providence directed for us. The application was accepted and the space asked for practically given us; while many are sorely disappointed, either because of a refusal, or their space is cut down one half. In the same gallery are many assignments of only some 25 square feet and less. The N. C. A. has about 85 square feet floor space. At the Centennial in 1876 Bro. E. A. Cook secured only by very persistent and anxious effort a mere nook 2 feet by 3. This he filled with a book case and desk and raised over it the blue Cynosure banner. The effort and expense he never regretted. The section given us is in the gallery in the northwest corner of the main building. Near by are the exhibits of the National Temperance Society, the Epworth League, Y. M. C. A., Christian Endeavor Societies, the Methodist church, etc. Three stairways close by bring the people directly to the spot.

The committee appointed by the Board took into consideration these particulars. The exhibit must be—

1. Attractive.
2. Instructive.
3. An exhibition of the history and work of the Association.
4. Beautiful in design and furnishing, so as to be in harmony with the greatest of expositions and meet the requirements of its managers.

Permit to sell books would not be given—it was even refused the Bible Society—and the giving out tracts may be much restricted. The chief instruction must therefore be by the testimonies of our greatest Americans. Thank God, we have no lack of these. How shall it be made most effective?

The committee considered that a group before the exhibit would be an attraction of the strongest kind, and that some revolving object would help hold people; therefore they plan a cabinet to revolve slowly by clock work, having on each of its five or six sides a portrait of some eminent man, whose testimony against secret societies will be lettered underneath so as to be plainly read twenty feet away. This cabinet will be placed high enough to be seen and read by those on the back side of a crowd. Still higher an elliptical shelf with handsome cornice will reach across the back side of the section, bearing fine busts of Washington, Webster, J. Q. Adams, Seward and Grant. The testimony of these great names will accompany each. Further testimony of the same kind will be by wall charts. There will be room for three or four of these. Thus we will engage the greatest and best-loved men of our nation to speak for us these six months, in words never to be forgotten, proclaiming the evils and dangers of the secret societies.

The history and work of the Association will be shown in its cases of books and publications, a model of the Morgan monument, fine drawings of its buildings, costly portraits of its founders, and the rest can be left to a wall chart and tracts.

God's testimony against the lodge is reserved appropriately for the ceiling, on which handsome and artistic designs can be placed; as, a copy of the trial scene of our Lord and his words, which have always been the motto of the Cynosure—"In secret have I said nothing."

This is an outline of the plan which has so far been uniformly approved. There will, of course, be signs, decorations, a counter, a registry book, chairs for the weary, etc. In some particulars there may be a change, but this is the general plan devised by the committee and approved by the Fair management. It will cost some hundreds of dollars to provide it. It will cost other hundreds to man it. But it will pay. Everybody is being asked to invest in some hotel scheme. The N. C. A. asks its friends to join hands for a Fair fund. Send in contributions for this fund to the N. C. A. treasurer. Who will pray most and give best for this work?

AN INTERNATIONAL CONGRESS AGAINST THE LODGE.

The proposal for an international congress, to be held by the N. C. A. during the World's Fair season, has been favorably regarded ever since its proposal in the Boston convention of 1889. The committee appointed by the Board have endeavored to gain a foothold among the meetings arranged by the World's Fair Congress Auxiliary. A good hall, advertising, prestige and publication would thus be secured without expense to the Association. The arrangement has been hindered chiefly by lodge influence. Still, it is recommended that we hold this congress anyhow,—aside from the Congress Auxiliary management, if we cannot with its co-operation.

Correspondence with gentlemen in foreign countries is encouraging; and a meeting in September, at the time the other religious conferences will be held, would be influential and well attended.

The Scotsman (Edinburg and Glasgow) of the 2nd inst., prints the following excellent notice of our Association and its efforts, from the pen of our friend Dr. Kerr, of Glasgow:

"THE NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION (U. S.)."

"Kindly permit me space to call the attention of your readers to the proposal of an International Congress by the above Association. The National Christian Association of the States was formed to 'expose, withstand, and remove secret societies—Freemasonry in particular—and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved; to redeem the administration of justice from perversion and our republican government from corruption.' In 1874 it was incorporated under the laws of the State of Illinois. This Association proposes to hold an international congress at the time of the World's Fair at Chicago, in promotion of its aims and objects; and the executive requests me to forward the names of some of those known to me in Great Britain who sympathize with the objects of the Association and are favorable to the proposed congress. In papers issued by the Association testimony is presented from a large number of prominent men—past and present—approving of the principles for which the society was organized. Among these are statesmen, philanthropists, clergymen, presidents of colleges, and others of various denominations and world-wide reputation—as, Washington, Lord Beaconsfield, General Grant, Wendell Phillips, John Quincy Adams, Horace Greeley, Daniel Webster, Albert Barnes, Joseph Cook, President Porter of Yale, Moses Stuart of Andover, John Wesley, Pastor Fisch, Chancellor Crosby of New York, Dr. Pentecost, and D. L. Moody. There are, no doubt, many in these countries who will be in full sympathy with the proposed congress."

SOME FACTS ABOUT HAWAII.

The offer of the provisional government of Hawaii, by which the Queen was deposed, tenders the islands to the United States in fee simple, at least in perpetuity, including the ownership of the public or crown lands, and the United States, on its part, agrees to be responsible for the national debt of the country, which is less than the cash value of the public buildings of the general government, and to pay the deposed Queen an annuity of $20,000 a year, and her princess neice and heir apparent a lump sum of $150,000, to be held in trust for her. All else is left for subsequent legislation. The Cleveland administration and the next Congress can arrange the details.

On the 22nd inst, Representative Springer of Illinois made a statement in Congress showing that the proposed treaty with the Hawaiian provisional government, if it is ratified by the parties thereto, will require the government of the United States to pay the public debt of Hawaii and the amounts due depositors in the Hawaiian postal savings banks, which may aggregate $3,250,000, the sum of $20,000 per annum to the late Queen of Hawaii, and the sum of $150,000 in full to the Princess Kaiulani, and which treaty will require the Congress of the United States within one year to extend the tariff and international laws of the United States to the said islands, thus obligating this government to pay to the inhabitants of said islands a bounty upon the sugar which may be produced in said islands.

The Lutheran Standard says that the future of Hawaii is far from bright, either from a financial, political or religious point of view. The sugar industry is paralyzed, there is trouble between rulers and people, and the forces of heathenism and wickedness are intensely active. It is said that in a population of 90,000 there are 55,000 foreigners. The shameless conduct of many of these is the greatest hindrance to the advancement of the kingdom of God among the heathen.

Sereno E. Bishop, editor of the Honolulu Friend, writing to the New York Evening Post, gives the following description of the natives:

There is a large body of Hawaiians of elevated character and progressive civilization; but the mass of the natives have been bedeviled by palace kahunaim (sorcery) and debauched by palace impurity during the past thirty years. The palace had during that period been the breeding nest of the most poisonous influences, debauching and destroying the people with sorcery, lust and drunkenness, which are the three chief causes of the wasting away of the Hawaiians from 150,000 in 1820, and 65,000 in 1860 to 35,000 in 1890. Now, to pull out one of the skeletons, Kalakaua [the late king] was the chief organizer of sorcery and idolatry in his kingdom. He aimed to be himself foremost in the deadly art. He also made himself a god, and caused himself to be habitually worshiped. He caused the Legislature to charter the Hale Nua, a ramified secret organization for the culture and promotion of sorcery, whereby to terrorize and subject the people to himself. Let it be thoroughly understood that the palace party, now headed by the ex-Queen, is the party of heathen revival and sorcerous domination of the kingdom.

Then follows a description of some of the idolatrous practices of the Queen, and the statement that "much of this idolatrous worship is accompanied by the most loathesome and nameless abominations."

From the foregoing it would seem that the people of Hawaii are more in need of conversion and enlightenment than of annexation to our Christian nation.

Late news from Washington indicates that the ratification of the Hawaiian treaty by Congress is very doubtful, as a good deal of opposition to it is manifest, and it will require a two-thirds vote to acquiesce in its provisions.

PENSIONS AND STANDING ARMIES.

The pension appropriation bill, as agreed upon by the appropriation committee in Congress, carried $166,400,000—an increase of $20,662,650 over the appropriation for the year ending June 30, 1893. This is, for the present year, over two dollars for each man, woman and child in the United States. It is nearly fourteen dollars for an average family of five persons. If the head of the family receives fifty cents a day (and many laborers receive no more) it is nearly one-tenth of the cash income of the family. And the indirect mode in which the taxes are collected makes the burden heavier. Twenty-seven years ago, nearly a generation ago, the war closed. Of course no one wishes to see brave soldiers beg. But the expenditure is burdensome.

According to the report of Assistant Secretary Bussey for 1889, "the combined pension rolls of Great Britain, France, Germany, Austria, Hungary and Belgium cost annually only $31,002,150." But it is estimated that 12,500,000 men, under arms, are now busy keeping the peace in Europe, and at an annual cost of about $1,000,000,000. We have not the figures at hand to show the cost of our United States army on its present peace footing of 30,000 men, but added to the pension fund, it swells the total to an enormous sum, expended for "national integrity, honor and safety." Is it necessary?

"THE CHURCH AND THE FRATERNITIES."

We are glad to see in the Methodist (M. E.) Herald of January 18, a communication under the above title. Though we dissent from some of its statements and conclusions, we congratulate our contemporary on breaking the ominous silence of the denominational press on this matter. We trust that it may be an entering wedge which will, ere long, sever the church from its unholy relations to these orders.

The writer says: "Men put them in place of the church and the Lord Jesus Christ, and sometimes satisfy themselves with the thought that because they are members of these institutions there is no necessity of having anything to do with the church. Men tell me so. We have twenty-seven of them in our town. The men in this vicinity are largely in the membership of one or more of them. . . . There is, after all, a selfish interest actuating them that the church of Christ is not to have at all. As a member of one of them, I love them that love me. But Christ says that if 'ye love them that love you what reward have ye? Do not even the publicans so? And if ye salute your brethren only [and this is what all these orders do], what do ye more than others?'"

The writer thinks the growth of these orders is the result of the neglect of the church to do her duty. This is true. Had the church been faithful in her testimony, she would not be confronted by so great a problem. But we are sorry that the writer should say: "I do not oppose them, and you must not. I belong to some of them."

Now, if they have come up as rivals of the church, it is surely not the best way to help the church to join her rival. If our brother is the husband of one wife, and some one should suggest that it would help his wife in her many and perplexing duties if he should join himself to her rival, I think he (or she) would resent it. Oh, that men may be clean from all the evil which they condemn!

A JEW'S OPINION OF CHRIST.

In the course of a lecture on "Lincoln and Darwin," delivered on a recent Sunday evening, in this city, by Rabbi Emil Hirsch, of Sinai Temple, at which nearly 1,500 persons were present, he said:

"Many are there, that in our historical scrolls will be engraved with an inspiration, never to be obliterated, but greatest of all is He, who was in his early days, the poorest of all, poor in his material resources, poor in the opportunities for filling the yearning of his mind and the longings of his soul, poor in consolation, but rich in himself. Such men God occasionally sends to earth to teach humanity the great lesson of the hidden, the slumbering possibilities of humanity. It is not mere accident, it is a fact that the saviours of humanity but rarely come from the palaces of the rich, the pampered surroundings of the wealthy."

"Where one steps down from the royal chamber and exchanges the purple of the priestly garb for the reeking rags of the beggar's robe, the thousand and one come from the stable of Bethlehem, from the log cabin of Kentucky, come from where misery squats and want is a constant guest. Jesus the son of poverty, Lincoln the child of want, are but two of a class through whom humanity has become better and nobler, who show that though man may come from below he rises up toward the heights where God abides and truth wields the scepter."

It is understood, from a daily paper report, that some of the orthodox Jews who heard the lecture were offended at these passages. Others, again, found nothing offensive in them. As one of these expressed it: The speaker "did not credit Jesus with the attributes which orthodox Christians and doubtful traditions have bestowed upon him. I believe that Dr. Hirsch said what every honest and true man would say even regarding those who cannot agree with him in his religious and moral theories. He spoke in eloquent terms of all that was good, noble, and praiseworthy in the founder of the Christian religion, without evincing in the least that he believed in the enthusiastic delusions of this loving character, who probably did indeed consider himself the Son of God, the Messiah of Israel predicted by the prophets. . . . As a man and a moral reformer Jesus may rightly invoke the admiration of even the Jews; as divine, as the Son of God and not of human parentage, he is not accepted by them."

This gentleman declared that, as far as he could see, the remarks of the learned rabbi were in accordance with the teachings of progressive Judaism and perfectly apropos.

LOVEJOY'S MEMORIALS.

The movement to institute a Lovejoy memorial in the form of a museum at the World's Fair is a deserved tribute to the great anti-slavery martyr. The little rickety old stone building at Alton, Ill., in which Elijah P. Lovejoy printed the Alton Observer, has been sold, and unless some action is soon taken to preserve it, it will probably be destroyed by the "march of improvement". Several weeks ago an agent of the World's Fair Commission visited Alton and secured views of the venerable structure, and it is possible that the building itself may be removed to Chicago.

Messrs. Geo. W. Clayton and Jas. W. Edwards, publishers of the Fountain, at Eureka Springs, Ark., claim to own the Washington hand printing-press on which Mr. Lovejoy printed ed the Observer, and they have offered to send it to the Fair for exhibition if a suitable place for it can be secured. It is also suggested that the colored people take charge of it, and with it issue a paper devoted to a description of the exhibits furnished by people of that race.

All these propositions possess peculiar interest as links in the history of the hard battle between freedom and slavery, which culminated in the great Southern rebellion. There is no doubt the Lovejoy museum would attract the attention of thousands, and its contents prove valuable object-lessons to the young. But as to the "Lovejoy press," referred to above, we have some doubts as to its identity.

From the "Library of Universal Knowledge," an American reprint of "Chambers' Encyclopædia," with copious additions by American editors, we gather the following particulars of Lovejoy's several unfortunate printing-presses: The Observer was first owned and printed in St. Louis, and, in 1836, the office was attacked by a mob and destroyed. The paper was then removed to Alton; but his press, on being landed, was broken into fragments by lawless men. This ended its career. Another press was procured. In 1837 a mob invaded the office and destroyed the press and types. A third press was brought to Alton, but before it could be set up it was broken in pieces and the fragments were thrown into the Mississippi. (This press was never used in printing the Observer.) Another press (the fourth) was obtained, and on its arrival was for safety stored in a warehouse and guarded by citizens. Near midnight, November 7, 1837, a murderous mob attacked the guards, set fire to the building, and in defending the press Mr. Lovejoy was shot and killed. He therefore never used this press for printing the Observer.

The story of the press owned by the Arkansas gentlemen is thus related. It must have reference to the third press, which, the "Library" says, was destroyed before it was used: "The press was dumped into the Mississippi, where it remained for several weeks. After a time it was raised and taken to Kansas City, where it did duty for several years. Then it was taken to Independence, Kan., and about eight years ago was removed to Eureka Springs, Ark."

Let us have a Lovejoy memorial, but no Lovejoy relics that are not genuine.

SEVERAL MASONIC INCIDENTS.

J. W. Moss, of Cameron, West Virginia, sends us the following: A friend living in Washington county, Penn., told me that he was once present in Washington, at the trial of a man for high crime, who got off safely, where the judge addressed the jury (eyeing them sharply), in the following words: "Gentlemen—You will now retire and deliberate on the case; but bear in mind that you have elsewhere taken a more binding and solemn obligation than this court is able to administer." Comment is unnecessary.

W. G. Walters, of Glenmore, Ohio, also has an interesting incident to relate: "Sometime since, Mr. Pearce, who was an old man and a Mason, died in the town of Willshire, Ohio. He being a poor man, the lodge of that place buried him after their pompous style, and then, sometime later, handed in a bill of the expenses to the township trustees, of whom my brother was one. The demand was granted, and the expenses were paid from the pauper fund of the county. After the death of Mr. Pearce, his widow, an old and feeble lady, had to fall back on her children for support, until she could get her pension claim adjusted, as Mr. Pearce had been a pensioner, drawing $24. These are facts of record; but where—oh, where is the Masonic charity?" Echo answers, Where?

Another Anti-mason writes:

"My love for your work for Christ and against anti-Christ is about eighteen years old.

"I don't know but God is allowing the Masonic devil to heat his furnace seven times hotter than ever before.

"For eight years he has been working his 'insane' dodge and racket on me.

"He then frightened as noble a wife as ever man had, together with my oldest son, so that I was robbed of home and competence.

"He again repeated it about four years ago.

"In September last he succeeded in getting my whole family away from me; stole my horse, carriage and harness; took possession of my house and furniture and all that I had in the world that had not previously been taken away from me, except just what I stood in.

"I retook possession of my house, the keeper fleeing through fear. Next day I was arrested by order of Judge — (a Mason), who issued a writ in violation of his oath.

"I rescued myself by calling on the authorities of this State and of the United States for protection. I was fully sustained.

"My only offense is my detective service in ferreting out Masons who, by assault, put an old and inoffensive citizen under ground on the 18th day of last August, and are determined to protect the guilty Masons and prevent the case from coming before the courts.

"I find the State judiciary so blocked by Masonic lawyers, judges, etc., that the cost of blood may prevent the case from coming to trial."

LODGE WORSHIP, OR LETTER AND SPIRIT.

We once conversed with a Christian minister, the pastor of a city church in Illinois, who was an adhering Freemason. When pressed with the rejection of the name of Christ from the ritual of the lodge, he explained that for himself he always prayed in the name of Christ, and that the lodge worship, if not Christian in the letter, was at least so in spirit. Lately we have been led to reflect that this attempted substitution of the spirit for the letter of our obligations is far too common. Men who have never professed Christ before men yet hope that they are Christians in spirit, and some who break the letter of their contracts console themselves with the idea that they are keeping them in spirit.

Now the absurdity of all this is apparent when we consider that it is only by keeping our covenants in the letter that we can give any evidence of regarding them in the spirit. We may indeed keep them in the letter and not in spirit, but we can never keep them in the spirit and break them in the letter. A Christian profession may be openly in the name of Christ, and yet lack any true knowledge of God; but a religion that does not acknowledge Christ before men is surely in vain; for not only does the heart believe unto righteousness, but the mouth must confess unto salvation. (Rev. 10:10.)

Prayers may be offered in the name of Christ and yet have nothing of true spiritual worship; but no prayer that excludes Christ can possibly be in the spirit. The Sabbath may be observed in letter and not in spirit, but never (consciously) broken in the letter while it is kept in the spirit.

—A most interesting letter from Rev. J. P. Stoddard will be found on another page.

—After repeated solicitations from Bro. C. R. Hunt, pastor of the Presbyterian church in Keota, Iowa, and other friends in the vicinity, Recording Secretary Kellogg has gone to engage in a week's work in that place and Worthington, returning by Elmira, Ill. Last week was spent by him in World's Fair work and correspondence and in visiting meetings of Free Methodist and Danish Lutheran pastors. His report may be expected in next week's issue.

—Rev. James M. Gray, rector of the First Reformed Episcopal church in Boston, who delivered an address on "Moral and Spiritual Counterfeits" at the annual meeting (in December last) of the New England Christian Association, communicates the following, received from Rev. P. F. Stevens, a bishop in that church, and professor of mathematics in Claflin University: "ORANGEBURG, S. C., Jan. 19, 1893.—MY DEAR BROTHER:—Just read your 'Moral and Spiritual Counterfeits.' You are perfectly right. When a young man I was a Mason, and, as Master of a lodge, used to make my lectures as Christian as possible. I never thought or heard of Masonry as derived from heathen sources. When I entered the ministry and sought to lead men to Christ I became satisfied that Masonry lulled many a conscience with its morality and teachings about God, and deceived them with the thought that a good Mason was as good as a Christian, and the profession of Christ in the church was therefore unnecessary. I gave it up and have not entered a lodge for over thirty years. Yours fraternally, P. F. STEVENS."

THE HOME

LINES ON A SKELETON.

The London Morning Chronicle published the following lines forty years ago. Every effort, even to the offer of a large reward, was made to discover their author. All that was known of their origin was they were found written in a fair scholarly hand, near a skeleton of fine proportions, in the museum of the Royal College of Surgeons, Lincoln's Inn, London. The following, which is given as a true copy of the original, we find in the Philadelphia Press:

Behold this ruin! 'Twas a skull
Once of ethereal spirit full.
This narrow cell was Life's retreat,
This space was Thought's mysterious seat.
What beauteous visions filled this spot,
What dreams of pleasure long forgot.
Nor Hope, nor Love, nor Joy, nor Fear,
Have left one trace of record here.

Beneath this mould'ring canopy
Once shone the bright and busy eye.
But, start not at the dismal void —
If social Love that eye employed.
If with no lawless fire it gleamed,
But through the dew of kindness beamed,
That eye shall be forever bright
When stars and suns are sunk in Night.

Within this hollow cavern hung
The ready, swift and tuneful tongue.
If Falsehood's honey it disdained,
And where it could not praise, was chained,
If bold in Virtue's cause it spoke,
Yet gentle concord never broke!
This silent Tongue shall plead for thee
When Time unveils Eternity.

Say, did these fingers delve the mine?
Or with its envied rubies shine?
To hew the rock or wear the gem,
Can little now avail to them.
But if the page of Truth they sought,
Or comfort to the mourner brought,
These hands a richer meed shall claim
Than all that wait on Wealth or Fame.

Avails it, whether bare or shod,
These feet the paths of duty trod?
If from the bowers of ease they fled,
To seek affliction's humble shed.
If Grandeur's guilty bribe they spurned,
And home to Virtue's cot returned,
These feet with angels' feet shall vie,
And tread the palace of the sky.

HOME CLASSES IN SUNDAY-SCHOOL WORK

[The following is extracted from the report of the "Home Class Conference," held at Chautauqua, N. Y., in August, 1892. Dr. W. A. Duncan, of Syracuse, explained the proposed system to the Conference.]

Dr. Duncan said: "The home class work is simply an addition to the regular Sabbath-school. . . . The home class department is for the benefit of those who cannot come to the main audience room of the school. The classes may consist of one or more individuals, with the teacher or visitor. The scholars, if it be an individual or a family class, study at home; if a neighborhood class, in any place where the teacher may call them together. There are these three distinct kinds of classes: First, the individual class, which consists of single individuals studying under the direction of the visitor who is the teacher and who sees them as often as possible, giving them the lesson helps and all necessary papers, the whole number of such classes in a church being under the supervision of the superintendent of the home class work. The second kind is the neighborhood class, familiar to you all. The teacher gets together half a dozen children or adults in a neighborhood which is near to her home, and teaches them on the Sabbath. The third is the family class, the father and mother with their children. A large number of the students in these classes are adults, and among them many literary people, who for some reason are not able to attend the church services. The time for study is on the Sabbath, if possible, but if not, any time during the week so long as the work of Bible study is accomplished. These students are counted in with the regular membership of the school with which they are connected, and have the same standing as if they were in attendance upon its public sessions. The work done by them is recognized by the school, and the lesson helps, picture cards, and all necessary material are provided for their use, just as for those who attend the regular services. Collections are taken up by all of these classes, and very often the collections more than cover the expenses. . . . The student agrees to devote half an hour a week to the study of the Bible, and to keep a record of his work; he sometimes signs a pledge to this effect, although this is not absolutely required. Record books are provided for them and every three months the report is made to the school. . . . Their names are carried upon the roll just the same as the other members of the school. . . . The teacher makes a round of visits at least once a quarter, once a month, if possible, and should require from every student carrying on the work a record of what has been done. The pastor and superintendent should meet with the visitors once a quarter as a rule, to look over these records, talk over the work, make suggestions and plan for the future. . . . They are always made to feel that as members of the school they are entitled to all the privileges of such membership; that in times of trouble and want the pastor of the church is their pastor, just as though they were in regular attendance; that in times of special joy they have the sympathy of the church, and that at all times the church to which their home class belongs is their church, and has a deep interest in them. This home class work reaches out with the arm of the church for the individual in the home, or wherever he may be. The member may be an engineer, a traveler, a busy physician, a mother whose large family of little ones keeps her at home, a blind or sick person, or some one who lives at a great distance from the church. I travel a great deal, and so am a member of an individual class. When I was traveling on the other side of the water for three months, I kept up my record and studied the lesson faithfully every Sunday; one Sabbath in Paris, one in Venice, two in Rome, one in Dresden, one in Edinburgh, and other Sabbaths in London, Geneva, Florence, etc., and at the end of the three months my family sent in a complete record to the home school. Young ladies in college can in this way keep up their connection with their own church or Sabbath-school.

"Let me give you one or two instances of work that has been done by humble people. Down in northern Minnesota a woman has organized a home class department, traveling miles upon miles along the shores of the lake, until she has 80 or 90 members, while the main school has only about 65. She wrote me a few weeks ago that 13 of these had united with the church, and all the result of the home class work. . . . At Keene, N. H., the First church has a department of over 100 in charge of Mrs. Merrill, and she visits every one of these members every three months." . . .

Question. When there are people of great difference in age, as children and adults, under the care of one teacher, does the school recognize them as belonging to one class?

Answer. They are all considered as members of one class. The class distinction is simply for those under one visitor. The little ones are furnished with lesson helps suited to their age, and the father or mother is expected to teach them the lesson; it is an excellent way of insuring the exercise of the parent's gifts in this direction.

Q. Are the same lesson helps used as are used in the main school?

A. Always, and the same lesson studied; in this way they become interested, and often drop into the main school. . . .

Q. How do you commence this work in families who never attended church and have no interest in religious matters whatever?

A. (By Mr. St. John): "Let the teacher visit the home, and if there are children give them the papers and ask them to study the lesson, going again to see if they are doing the work. The parents will in most cases promise to help the child and do so. . . .

Q. Is it not possible for people to study the Bible for half an hour each week without its doing them the least good?

A. Yes; that is possible, but not probable.

Q. Does this plan reach the non-church goers?

A. . . . A certain irreligious man was asked to join the Sunday-school and attend church, but he replied flatly, "I won't." They urged him to do so, but he was still unwilling, and all they could do was to induce him to join the home class department. That man is now a regular attendant and member of the church. . . .

Q. "Who shall take charge of a home class department?"

A. "The pastor should not, for his duties are sufficient without it, and as has already been said, his official capacity would interfere with the best results in this line of work. The superintendent of the Sunday-school should not, for the same reason that he should not take charge of the primary department. He should have an oversight of it as one of his active aids, but the active management of it should be in the hands of some other person."

Q. "What is the work in the home class department?"

A. The member agrees to spend half an hour each week in the study of the Bible, keeping a record of his work on cards provided for the purpose. The teacher or visitor calls upon the student once a quarter at least, and sees that the work is done. The school with which the member is connected furnishes all needed lesson helps. In organizing a home class, a good way is to secure first the names of several prominent Christian people in the church, and show them when soliciting new members. This will dissipate the idea that many may have that you came to them as to heathen, and which may be fatal to the success of your efforts. The teacher should make her visits oftener than once a quarter if there is need of it, as when members are blind or sick or needy; in such cases a call is often made once a week. In some few cases the members may not be able to read the lesson for themselves, and here of course the visitor will find it necessary to go once a week. In some districts the visitation of the home class worker opens up more avenues for instructing and helping the people than would be imagined. . . .

Q. Is there any way of doing this without being the representative of any church? There are a great many people who object to any mention of the church whatever. This is the case for instance where the head of the family is a Catholic and the rest have no religion at all. Is there a way of working among this class of people?

A. It is better, of course, to have some connection with some church, but you can teach such a class as you speak of in your own home, just as neighborhood classes are formed in places where there is no church. There can be no more objection to the one than to the other.

Q. In such case who would furnish the supplies?

A. Almost any of the State Sunday-school Associations would be glad to furnish them. W. B. Jacobs, of Chicago, Ill., would be glad to furnish helps that are not denominational. New York State visitor's home class outfits and all cards complete for visitation work can be obtained of W. A. Duncan, Syracuse, N. Y.

Q. "The relation of the student to the school?"

A. The relation of a member of the home class department is exactly the same as that of any other member of the school, with the exception that they are not obliged to be present at the regular sessions.

Q. "Records, what shall they be, and how shall they be kept?"

A. Cards are furnished upon which the students themselves keep a record of the work done. These records are reported by the teacher to the school usually once a quarter, though in some schools a report is made every Sunday. If the student feels so inclined a contribution is made each week, although this is never urged, and a record is also kept of this. It is wonderful what pride the members will often take in these records.

Q. "What constitutes a class?"

A. There are three kinds of classes, the individual class, the family class and the neighborhood class. A class includes all who may be under the care of one teacher, be it one or a dozen.

THE OLD TESTAMENT COMPARED WITH THE NEW.

1. In the number of books. Old, 39; New, 27.
2. In the number of years embraced. Old, 4,000 years; New, 70 years.
3. In the language. Old, Hebrew; New, Greek.
4. The Old is a book of prophecy (very largely). The New is a book of fulfillment.
5. The Old is history and legislation. The New, biography and doctrine.
6. The Old has to do with national life. The New deals with the individual life.
7. In the Old we have the Kingdom of Israel. In the New, the Church of Christ.

8. In the Old earthly blessings are promised. In the New, spiritual blessings.

9. In the Old there is one stated place for acceptable worship—Jerusalem. In the New, God is to be worshiped anywhere (John 4: 20-24).

10. In the Old the seventh day is observed as the Sabbath. In the New the first day is designated as the "Lord's Day," and observed by believers.

11. In the Old we have the Ten Commandments, setting forth what God requires. In the New, the Lord's Prayer—what man needs.

12. In the Old we find Law. In the New, Grace. "The law was given by Moses, but grace and truth came by Jesus Christ" (John 1: 17).

13. In the Old Moses is the chief writer. In the New, Paul.

14. In the Old Moses is the great character. In the New, Jesus Christ.

15. In the Old, the first Adam. In the New, the second Adam—"the Lord from heaven."

16. In the Old the history narrows down to one race, the Hebrews. In the New the process is broadening—"Good tidings for all people."

17. In the Old the hope of Israel is the first coming of Christ. In the New the hope of the church is the second coming of Christ.—Young Men's Magazine, Boston.

AN OLD FAMILY FRIEND.

A old man was leading a thin old horse across the commons in the northern part of the city, when a passer-by asked him where he was going.

"I'm searching for a bit of green for the poor beast," he answered.

"I'd send him to the boneyard or the glue factory," said the other contemptuously.

"Would you?" asked the old man in a trembling voice. "If he had been the best friend you had in the world, and helped you to earn food for your family for nearly twenty-five years? If the children that's gone, and the children that's living, had played with their arms about his neck and their heads on him for a pillow when they had no other? Sir, he's carried us to mill and to meetin', an', please God, he shall die like a Christian. Nobody'll ever abuse old Bill, for if I go afore him there are those paid to look after him."

"I beg your pardon," said the man who had accosted him, "there's a difference in people." "Ay, and in horses too," said the old man as he passed on with his four-footed friend.—Philadelphia Times.

HER MILD MANIA.

Every woman is possessed of some mania in a mild form, which, however, is of as pronounced a type, though less aggressive, as that which has sent many a poor mortal to the insane asylum. This is no rash statement, but merely a study from actual life.

Take, in your own family, for instance, do you not say, 'Jessie, or Belle, or Susie, is absolutely crazy on such and such a subject?' and though the topics vary with the woman, the dementia is not lessened one whit thereby.

Look at the number of feminine caretakers who have a passion for hiding away their possessions, and so carefully do they put them out of sight that they themselves forget where the place is when it comes time to find them.

Those people would indignantly resent any insinuations as to their sanity, but does it seem possible that well-balanced minds will stow away a gold thimble or a roll of bills in a pair of rolled-up stockings, or put jewelry or cash in the scrap basket or in the grate, and then, in less than twenty-four hours, give the stockings away to a blind beggar, or sell the contents to the ragman and light a cosy fire in the grate right on top of the most cherished possessions? Yet this is done every day, if the papers speak the truth; and who would have the boldness to doubt the statements of the press?

Then again there are women so morbidly afraid of robbers that it becomes a mania with them, and every night a search begins under beds and into dark closets, which if successful in its object would turn their hair gray in one night. When bedtime comes they load themselves down with the family silver, which they carry up to their sleeping apartments; every window is not only bolted, but tin pans are set at such angles that a burglar's breath would knock them over, and thus throw the timid creatures upstairs into violent hysterics, instead of putting them on guard against the intruders, as is the intention of the wobbly kitchen utensil.

Some women have a mania for bargains, and own yards and yards of remnants in lengths and colors that are simply useless, yet which, because of their craze, they could not possibly resist buying. These are but a few instances, but hundreds of others could be cited; and certain it is that though the writer and the reader of these lines think themselves quite sane on every point, there is some flaw in their mental armor that their friends could probably dilate upon for hours.—New York Morning Advertiser.

A HYMN.

What matters it, if God walks at your side?
No real harm can come through strife and storm;
For in the heart of him whose sweet Son died
To save mankind we all are safe and warm.
The least of us who thinks he walks apart
Through endless night is never quite alone:
He shares a Father's fond and liberal heart;
His hand is held within his Father's own.

What matters it, if God walks at your side?
Man's like a lamb that strays far from the fold;
He thinks he is forgotten when the tide
Of night engulfs him; and his soul grows old.
But when the morning is about to break
The battlements of night, the Shepherd's voice
Is heard across the fields, and his hands take
The lamb close to his breast, to there rejoice.

What matters it, if God walks at your side?
The scars time makes his hands can wash away.
Though by the world and brothers quite denied,
With love and faith will dawn your golden day.
For God is in the heart of all who love
Sweet Charity and Hope and trust in him:
And though he lives and reigns in worlds above,
He walks with us through days and twilight dim.
—John Ernest McCann, in Lend-a-Hand.

TEMPERANCE.

THE PROFIT ON CIDER.

"Come right in; glad to see you. Sit here in front of the fire. Have a glass of cider? Ah!—Ah! What have I said now? Wife looks as shocked as if I'd offered Paris green. I believe my soul you are the new minister. Wall, you see it gets second nature to offer cider to anyone who comes in, it's so plenty here, having a mill you know."

"If I had a cider mill I should put a gallon of molasses and a sheet of brown paper in each barrel of pure apple juice, and let it set in the sun until it turned to vinegar. Vinegar is a household necessity, but cider as a beverage is the devil's delight."

"I don't know as I ever knew any very great harm come from cider drinking! Have you, now?"

"Yes, great harm."

"Give us an instance."

"Do you mean it? A man should never allow himself to be started on a hobby without giving fair warning."

"All right, go ahead; and while you are taking off your overcoat I will carry this mug of cider to the shed, out of respect to your steed."

"Thank you. Perhaps you do not know that for ten years I was chaplain in the — State's Prison. One day I went in to see a poor fellow stricken with pleurisy, and he said:

"As I was lying awake all last night and contrasting this narrow cell with the home I once had, and the home I might have had, I tried to trace the real course of my being here, and I found that it was cider."

"Tell me about it, if it does not hurt you to talk," I said, and he went on.

"My father was a prosperous New England farmer; we had large orchards, and at the foot of the hill by the brook was a cider mill, where, every fall, cider was made for ourselves and for our neighbors."

"This is clear profit," father used to say; 'for the women and children pick up the apples. The horse draws them to the mill, and the water of the brook does the grinding. The trees and the barrels last year after year, so there is very little outgo from first to last.'

"I liked the sweet cider, and was allowed to drink it from the tubs that stood under the press as freely as I drank water from the well. And I drank it more freely; not only as I drank water because I was thirsty, but because I liked the taste."

"One day when I was eight years old I got hold of some that was worked, and drank and drank until I was stretched out on the grass helpless, and I was carried home dead drunk."

"Father made light of it, but mother and grandmother felt badly; and after I came to myself, before I was able to go out, for I was ill for some days, they made me promise not to touch cider again."

"Not until he is a man!" said my father, coming in. "When he is a man he can do as he chooses, and it is to be hoped that he will know enough so that he can drink or let it alone."

"So my pledge was given until I should be a man, but the shame of that excess clung to me."

"Got drunk on cider!" the children at school used to yell at me. And every new teacher and every visitor was informed: "That is the boy who was carried home dead drunk on new cider."

"Although I grew to hate the old cider mill, and the very word cider, as the fall of the year came around, and I was, with the rest of the family, pressed into the work of cider-making, the smell of the pulp and of the juice trickling from the press would revive my love for the taste of the vile stuff, formed in babyhood, and I would think on my torment, for I kept my promise."

"When I am a man I can drink it or let it alone as I choose."

"I knew, however, that I was better off to leave it alone; and for years after I grew up and went from home I held myself aloof from people, as a class, who indulged in intoxicants."

"One evening I went with a party of most respectable young men and women to a peach party, and, as a part of the refreshments, sweet cider was passed around."

"I can now drink it or let it alone," I said to myself, triumphantly; but, although sorely tempted by the smell, I refused to take it. At that they began to tease me, as thoughtless young people will, and at length I said:

"One good thing at a time. When I get enough of the peaches I shall begin on the cider." And, alas! I did so. Before I tasted it I could drink it or let it alone. After I began drinking it I was powerless to stop, and I never did stop until these walls closed behind me."

"The revived taste overpowered me; from cider I went to something stronger. I lost my situation. I went from bad to worse, and then Satan tempted me to buy a saloon with my savings, hoping to quickly double my money. I made the investment; and I was, from the first, my own best customer, although I drank hardly anything but cider."

"At length, one night there was a row and a fight, and a dead man on my steps in the morning. I remember nothing about it, but the law convicted me of manslaughter, and I was sentenced to prison for life."

"My downward career dates from the time when, as a little child, I learned to love cider at my father's press."

"That idea—"You can drink it or let it alone," proved fatal to me. Those young people, in urging me to drink, had no intention of pushing me into a felon's cell for life."

"I tell you, my friends, the cider mill is a drunkard's mill, and some among the children hanging around the village press will fill a drunkard's grave. I shall not do that, and it is my one compensation for being here that I shall be sure to die sober."

"Is that all?"

"All there is to this story."

"Wall, your hobby goes a good pace. Don't you want to come out in the shed with me and see me smash my cider mug? Then perhaps you will go down cellar with me and see me saw the spigots off my cider barrels. Wife, bring some molasses and brown paper; we will set the vinegar to work right away. That is the best temperance lecture I ever heard in my life."—Mrs. Annie A. Preston, in the Christian Safe-guard.

A year's numbers of the Cynosure would make six good-sized volumes of valuable reform literature, containing 550 pages each.

BIBLE LESSON.

STUDIES IN THE OLD TESTAMENT.

LESSON XI.—First Quarter, 1893.—March 12.

SUBJECT.—Esther Before the King.—Esther 4: 10-17; 5: 1-3.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Judge righteously, and plead the cause of the poor and needy.—Proverbs 31:9.

[Open the Bible and read the lesson.]

DAILY READINGS.—M.—Esther 4: 10 to 5: 3. T.—Esther 3: 8-15. W.—Esther 4: 1-9. T.—Esther 7. F. Esther 8: 1-10. S.—Prov. 16: 5-19. S.—Psa. 37: 1-15.

COMMENTS BY E. E. FLAGG.

1. The order to destroy the Jews.—vs. 10, 11. We come now to a crisis in Jewish history. Haman, their mortal enemy, had obtained from the king a decree for the wholesale slaughter of the Jews, young and old, women and children, throughout the empire, and the confiscation of their estates. It may seem strange that he was willing to sign such a decree, even to pleasure a favorite, but the lives of his subjects were of little worth in the eyes of an Eastern despot. Less than four hundred years ago the rulers of the most highly civilized nation in the world ordered the frightful massacre of St. Bartholomew's Day, by which upwards of thirty thousand helpless Protestants perished; and it is not strange that Xerxes, who, according to contemporaneous history, sacrificed five millions of his subjects' lives in the unsuccessful endeavor to conquer Greece, should have looked upon this consignment of the Jews—a people of alien race and religion—to indiscriminate destruction as a very trifling matter. The failure of the humble Jew Mordecai to do homage to the haughty Haman precipitated the crisis. Would it have been better had he waived the point and violated his conscience by paying to a wicked man the homage due only to his Creator? Mordecai must have been fully aware that he was endangering his own life, but he was willing to accept the consequences; and if he had known that Haman would involve the whole nation in his mad scheme of revenge, we have no reason to suppose that Mordecai would have acted any differently. Doubtless he would have trusted in God while doing his best to avert the threatened ruin, but refused as stiffly as ever to compromise his principles. Yet Christian voters bow before the Haman of the liquor traffic, and say of "two evils let us choose the least," as if doing wrong was not always a greater evil than any possible consequences that can come from doing right. In this terrible crisis Mordecai appealed to his adopted daughter, Queen Esther, to save her people by a personal supplication to the king. But even she, in spite of her royal position, was hedged in by a law which doomed to death any one who should intrude into the royal presence uninvited, unless the monarch, as a sign of favor, held out his golden sceptre, while her sex as well as her rank forbade her from taking her place in the outer court and waiting for an audience with the king like a common suppliant. Esther's case has been often likened to that of a convicted sinner seeking pardon, but really there is no parallel between a capricious earthly despot, and a God infinitely righteous and merciful. Nor should it be forgotten that, through our Divine Mediator, we have access at all times to his presence, while Esther had to appear alone, without any advocate to plead her cause.

2. Esther's decision.—vs. 13-17. "If thou altogether holdest thy peace," etc. The position of an Eastern queen, surrounded on all sides by jealous rivals, was a precarious one at best; and though Esther had not revealed her kindred, an enemy might easily discover her secret, thus involving her in the common ruin. They who hold their peace in regard to great national sins can have no guarantee that they or their families will escape when the sword of judgment falls. This was one of the plainest lessons taught by our terrible civil war. Better to perish doing one's duty than to purchase life by an inglorious compromise with evil. This lesson suggests other practical truths. (1) To be ready to seize one's opportunity, "for who knoweth whether thou art come to the kingdom for such a time as this?" Who can know the full scope and grandeur of their own opportunities? (2) Each one of us has a separate mission to fulfill. No other can fulfill it for us. It is true God's purposes will not be thwarted. As Mordecai told Esther, if we hold our peace in view of great wrongs, deliverance will arise from some other quarter, but we shall lose forever the golden chance to strike a blow for God and humanity. (3) Only by doing right, fearless of consequences, can we be always sure of grasping our life's opportunities. Had Esther been as cowardly and vacillating as many of our politicians are to-day, she would never have become immortal as the deliverer of her people. God holds the result of our actions in his own hands. We have nothing to do with it. Our sole concern is with the actions themselves. (4) Fasting and prayer is God's appointed way by which to get the faith and heroism to draw down some especial blessing or do some great work. It is worth considering, whether we might not save ourselves much weary labor, as well as bitter disappointment, if we did more humble waiting on God.

3. Esther finds favor.—vs. 1-3. It is not half a kingdom, but a whole one which the Lord promises us, which is another point where the parallel between Esther and the repentant sinner does not hold good. There are also one or two practical suggestions too important to be passed over. (1) Haman had a government license to slay all the Jews and take their property. Did this make it right? Then does the rumrunner's license to kill and rob, and work moral ruin on every hand, make his traffic right? (2) American women are the queens of our modern life, wielding a thousand times more power than Esther ever did or could. God evidently intends, through the Christian womanhood of the land, to deliver us from the saloon and other great national perils. Ought not every one to apply to herself Mordecai's question, "Who knoweth whether thou art come to the kingdom for such a time as this?"

RELIGIOUS NEWS.

FRIENDS.

—A deputation of Quakers on a visit to Russia in behalf of the persecuted Stundists, Baptists and others in that empire were coolly informed by the Minister of Religion there, M. Pobedanosteff, that "there is no such thing in the whole of Russia as religious intolerance!"

LUTHERAN.

—At the recent reconstruction of the "Schloss Kirche" in Wittenberg, there were present three lineal descendants of Martin Luther, viz.: Pastor Johannes Luther, Dr. Hermann Luther, and Pastor Karl Luther. The German Emperor, in congratulating them, added these words, "We celebrate with you to-day a beautiful festival."

—More than a thousand Lutherans settled in Winnipeg during 1892. The Canada Synod organized a mission in 1888, which, in 1890, was transferred to the General Council, and the German Mission Board of that body has charge of the work.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL.

—The Northwestern Christian Advocate: "It is now explained by the (World's) Fair authorities that early application was made for 60,000 square feet of space for a Roman Catholic educational exhibition, and that one-third of that space, or 20,000 square feet, was awarded. Furthermore, it is explained that Methodists applied for 1,200 square feet and received 400 feet." The Methodists are greatly disgruntled by the award.

—Mrs. Dr. John Davis, president of the Woman's Home Missionary society of the M. E. church, died at her home in Cincinnati, Feb. 10, of typhoid fever. She was converted a Baptist, and joined the M. E. church when she was married to Dr. Davis. She was actively engaged in philanthropic and religious movements for a number of years.

—The London Freeman says: "The Wesleyan Methodists in Great Britain number 478,692 members and 2,302 ministers."

—The Methodist preachers' meeting of San Francisco, Cal., has sent to Congress a strong protest against the Chinese Registration act, passed May 5, 1892, requiring Chinese residents in the United States to register under difficult circumstances in order to remain in the country, and petitions Congress to repeal the law.

—Ninety Methodist chapels have been erected in London during the past thirty years, an average of three a year. In Chicago Methodist churches are being erected at the rate of one a month.

—The first State convention of the Epworth League of Wisconsin was held in Milwaukee on Friday. Permanent officers were elected as follows: President, A. E. Dixon, Ashland; first vice-president, E. M. Bush, Wau-pun; second vice-president, Mrs. Richardson, Sparta; secretary, L. A. Pease, Kenosha; assistant secretary, Mrs. E. L. Oleson, Eau Claire.

PRESBYTERIAN.

—The action of the Presbytery of New York, in the acquittal of Prof. Briggs, will go to the Presbyterian General Assembly. Five reasons of appeal are assigned by the prosecuting committee: 1. Irregularity in presbyterial proceedings. 2. Receiving improper testimony.

3. Declining to receive important testimony. 4. Manifestations of prejudice in the conduct of the case. 5. Mistake or injustice in the decision.

PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL.

—Boston has simply beaten the record in raising $50,000 for the Phillips Brooks monument in the brief time since its beloved preacher's death. Boston churches alone laid upon the contribution plates $26,584.50. Trinity, Brooks' own church before his elevation to the bishopric, putting down $13,515.67.

REFORMED CHURCH.

—Among all the denominations in the United States there is less difference between the Reformed church in the United States, High German, and the Reformed church of America, Lower German (Dutch). On this account the question of confederation was agitated several years, which had for its object a closer union of these two churches. A number of meetings were held, there was much said and written on the subject; at last also a plan was proposed for such a union, which was almost unanimously adopted by the Reformed church of German origin, as also by a large majority of the Reformed church of Dutch origin. However, at present the union is delayed, it is said, "by the stubbornness of a small minority of the Dutch church."

—The Reformed church has had set apart for them one day (September 21) at the World's Fair Parliament of Religion, which is to be held in connection with the Columbian Exposition at Chicago, and arrangements are being made for suitable representation at this meeting.

ROMAN CATHOLIC.

—The prayers of the readers of the Catholic Review are asked for the eternal repose of the soul of Patrick Valentine Hickey, the founder and first editor of that paper, who died on February 21st, 1889.

—The Catholic Review and the New York Sun agree in attributing the strong tendency toward Christian unity among Protestants "to a desire to combine against the Catholic church."

SALVATION ARMY.

—Ballington Booth, commander of the Salvation Army in America, is planning to inaugurate the colonization scheme, which is in operation in England, for the benefit of the destitute of New York and other large cities of the United States.

IN GENERAL.

—According to recent figures, the regular Baptists, North, South, and colored, have made within ten years a net gain of 868,000, or 37 per cent; the Methodist Episcopal church of 522,000, or 30 per cent; the Methodist Episcopal, South, of 488,000, or 57 per cent; the Lutherans of all branches, 487,000, or 68 per cent; the Presbyterians, all branches, 356,000, or 39 per cent; the Protestant Episcopal church, 165,000, or 48 per cent; the Congregational, 128,000, or 33 per cent.

—The number of Roman Catholics in Canada stands foremost, having 1,990,469 members. The Methodists rank second, with 847,469 adherents. The Presbyterians come next, with a membership of 755,199. The Episcopalians are fourth upon the list, numbering 644,106. After this come the Baptists with 203,749 members, the Lutherans with 63,979, and the Congregationalists, with 28,155. While the Romanists are the strongest single religious body, yet they are a minority when compared with the Protestants as a whole. Canada is a country of churches, and religion there is a power among the people. There is more stability, if less aggressiveness, than among us. The lines, however, between Protestants and Romanists are more distinctly and strongly drawn.

MISCELLANEOUS.

—The religious outlook in Chicago is not very encouraging. Of the 1,600,000 people gathered within the city limits only 85,000 are members of Protestant churches, and of the remainder it is estimated that 500,000 have never heard the Gospel.

—It is well known that the French people do not take well to the religion of Christ, and so become the prey of fanatics who do not impose restrictions. Swedenborgianism and Buddhism are freely accepted. Of the latter there are said to be 50,000 in Paris.

—The London (England) Young Woman's Christian Association during twelve months assisted nearly 1,000 convalescent or sick girls to go to the country or seashore, or to have "a fortnight's change in a cottage home."

—The Young Men's Christian building (worth over a hundred thousand dollars) of Peoria, Ill., is built on the spot where Col. Ingersoll formerly lived, and where he wrote some of his infidel lectures. No material, however, that was in the old building was used in the construction of the new.

—There is a very marked religious interest in St. Louis; nearly all the evangelical churches have been holding union meetings since Jan. 1st. On two occasions the pastors have met and spent the whole night in prayer. Evangelist S. Hartwell Pratt is leading the meetings at the Third Baptist church. Last week, on invitation of the committee, he gave daily Bible readings to the united churches. Several evangelists have been called to the city and have commenced meetings.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

CHICAGO.

A strike among switch-tenders and signalmen in the yards of two railroads in Chicago—the Chicago and Western Indiana and the Belt lines—affects the interests of the Monon, the Santa Fe, the Chicago and Eastern Illinois, the Grand Trunk and the Erie. The strike is for higher wages.

An agreement has been reached between the Carpenters' and Builders' Association and the United Carpenters' Council, which is intended to prevent strikes and bring to an end much of the friction that has for some time existed between the two bodies.

Washington's birthday was celebrated with grand patriotic exercises at the Auditorium, at the public schools, by the Union League club, and by the "patriotic" orders. Rev. E. E. Hale, of Boston, delivered a notable address on the occasion at the Auditorium.

COUNTRY.

Many persons have sold their farms near Clinton, Ill., at good prices and emigrated to Nebraska, where land is cheaper. On Wednesday thirty-two freight-cars of lumber and live-stock and three passenger coaches containing over one hundred people left Clinton.

President Harrison has revoked the tolls levied on Canadian vessels and cargoes in the Sault Ste. Marie canal in consequence of the Dominion government adopting an order in council removing the discriminations against American vessels passing through the Canadian canals.

Governor Wm. McKinley, of Ohio, has been unfortunate. Going security in business for a friend, he became involved in heavy indebtedness far beyond his means. He has now surrendered all his property to his creditors, and is a poor man, with the consciousness of being an honest one. There is talk of aiding him by private contributions.

Michigan is to have a new railway, seventeen miles long, which will tap the richest mines of the Marquette iron range.

The coal mine troubles near Centralia, Ill., resulted in a riot at the Big Four mine. The rioters were led by twenty women, armed with clubs, but not much damage was done.

The total receipts for internal revenue for the first seven months of the present fiscal year were $96,414,786, being $7,715,577 more than for the same period last year.

Clothing manufacturers in New York City, representing $50,000,000 invested in the business, met on Thursday, to arrange for a permanent association, and to decide on a line of action for the future. It was intimated that it was probable that steps will soon be taken to disunite many of the factories.

Beauregard, the Confederate general who, at the beginning of the Rebellion, fired upon and destroyed Fort Sumter, and after it ended was a prime mover in the detestable Louisiana lottery, is dead. His record is no credit to the section of the Union to which he belonged.

An Alabama paper informs its readers that "the new election bill just passed and waiting only for the signature of the Governor, will disfranchise 40,000 Negroes."

The appointment of Benton Hanchett, stalwart Republican, of Michigan, to succeed Judge Jackson raised to the Supreme bench, as U. S. judge, in a Southern district, is announced.

In the Indiana Legislature the second and last effort to appropriate $50,000 for the Grand Army national encampment was killed in the House by a vote of 50 to 42, all but two of the votes against the bill being Democratic.

The National Association of School Superintendents was held at Harvard College, N. C., Dougherty, of Peoria, Ill., presiding. Andrew S. Draper, Superintendent of Schools of Cleveland, Ohio, presented a paper on plans of organization for school purposes in large cities. Charles B. Gilbert, of St. Paul, spoke on "The Reconstruction of the Grammar School Course." Richmond, Va., was selected as the next place of meeting.

Rev. Jesse Albert Locke, who, until last November, was one of the assistants of St. John's Protestant Episcopal church, New York, has gone over to the Church of Rome. No cause has been assigned for Mr. Locke's change of religion.

Governor Osborne, of Wyoming, has appointed Ashiel C. Beckwith, of Evanston, to be United States Senator for two years. The vacancy was occasioned by the failure of the recent Legislature to elect, after taking thirty-one ballots in twenty-five days.

Ex-County Treasurer Charles M. Jackson, of Grayling, Mich., has been arrested and lodged in jail on a charge of unlawfully appropriating to his own use $13,000 of the county's funds. Jackson is one of the pioneers of Crawford county.

It is now credibly stated that the bank which failed at Lincoln, Neb., several days ago, has liabilities exceeding $1,200,000 with assets practically nothing. It is not expected that the bank will pay to exceed ten cents on the dollar.

A Des Moines (Iowa) dispatch says: "Prof. John W. Overton and student John W. Shafer, of Drake University Medical College, and three hired assistants were caught by the police stealing the body of William Case from his grave in the potter's field of the cemetery. They were arraigned and gave bonds for their appearance before the grand jury."

Rufus Hatch, the well-known Wall street broker, who founded the Chicago Board of Trade, and was a director of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad, died last Thursday, aged 61 years.

The Atlantic coast was visited by very heavy snowstorms, last week, which impeded traffic and otherwise disagreeably made their effects felt. Snow in Pennsylvania was thirty inches deep.

Postmaster General Wanamaker says that during January, 1892, at 103 first-class offices the sales of stamps amounted to $1,870,483, while in January of this year the amount was $2,254,476, of which $1,708,666 were from the Columbian. The people, from their own choice, have bought three of the new to one of the old stamps.

(Continued on 16th page.)

SUBSCRIPTION LETTERS.

The following have made remittances of money to the Cynosure from Feb. 20 to Feb. 25:

G. Pallister, L. B. Lathrop, T. S. Walter, J. A. Parks, A. Gray, W. G. Walters, H. E. Hunter, J. L. Thomas, W. S. Fulton, W. A. Roblier, W. W. Cheney, W. A. Kindel, R. A. Cullor, P. D. Miller, Mrs. S. J. M. Robison, J. Houston, J. M. Forsyth, Mrs. M. Bryan, Mrs. C. M. Candee, H. C. Spencer, Rev. F. W. Lowenstein, W. T. Wilson, B. M. Smith, C. M. Livesay.

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO.

Wheat—Spring No. 2.....	73	@	73½
Winter No. 2.....	65	@
Corn—No. 2.....	40½	@	41
Oats—No. 2.....	30½	@	35
Rye—No. 2.....	52	@	56
Bran per ton.....	13	@	50
Hay—Timothy.....	9	@	11 50
Butter, medium to best....	17	@	28
Cheese.....	03	@	12
Beans.....	1	@	2 10
Eggs.....	19	@	20
Seeds—Timothy, 100 lbs. 4	00	@	4 67
Flax.....	1	@	1 20½
Broom corn.....	02	@	08½
Potatoes, per bu.....	63	@	76
Hides—Green to dry flint..	03½	@	09
Lumber—Common.....	10	@	13 00
Wool (washed).....	16	@	25
Cattle—Choice to extra....	5	@	6 20
Common to good.....	4	@	4 70
Hogs.....	6	@	8 15
Sheep.....	4	@	6 00

NEW YORK.

Wheat.....	77½	@	83½
Corn.....	52½	@	53½
Oats.....	38½	@	41½
Eggs.....	20	@
Butter.....	17	@	28
Wool.....	13	@	25

KANSAS CITY.

Cattle.....	2	@	5 55
Hogs.....	5	@	7 75
Sheep.....	4	@	5 10

SECRET SOCIETIES CONDEMNED.

BY GREAT MEN IN THE STATE.

George Washington, in a letter written a year before his death: "I preside over no lodge, nor have I been in one more than once or twice during the last thirty years."

President Millard Fillmore, J. C. Spencer and others: "The Masonic fraternity tramples upon our rights, defeats the administration of justice, and bids defiance to every government which it cannot control."

Chief Justice John Marshall: "The institution of Masonry ought to be abandoned as one capable of much evil and incapable of producing any good which might not be effected by safe and open means."

John Quincy Adams: "I am prepared to complete the demonstration before God and man, that the Masonic oaths, obligations and penalties cannot by any possibility be reconciled to the laws of morality, of Christianity, or of the land."

General A. W. Riley: "I hold that the difference between the Christian and a heathen religion is, that one has morality and the other has not. And when our churches refuse to speak of such subjects as slavery, liquor-selling and secret societies, they are becoming heathen religions; that is, religions without morals."

Charles Francis Adams: "Every man who takes a Masonic oath forbids himself from divulging any criminal act, unless it might be murder or treason, that may be communicated to him under the seal of fraternal bond, even though such concealment were to prove a burden upon his conscience and a violation of his bounden duty to society and to his God."

Charles Sumner: "I find two powers here in Washington in harmony, and both are antagonistic to our free institutions, and tend to centralization and anarchy—Freemasonry and Slavery; and they must both be destroyed if our country is to be the home of the free, as our ancestors designed it."

Disraeli, Lord Beaconsfield: In conducting the governments of the world there are not only sovereigns and ministers, but secret orders to be considered, which have agents everywhere—reckless agents, who countenance assassination, and, if necessary, can produce a massacre."

General J. W. Phelps: "All secret organizations are links of one and the same chain which binds men to evil and not to good. The Masonic lodge is the parent source from which all similar modern organizations have emanated and this lodge is now in active operation in every city and considerable village of the country swaying our parties and churches; filling our offices, secular and divine, with its partisans; shaping our political destinies; and teaching a spurious and corrupting morality subversive both of the Christian religion and of free institutions."

Thurlow Weed: "I now look back through an interval of fifty-six years with a conscious sense of having been governed through the Anti-masonic excitement by a sincere desire, first to vindicate the violated laws of my country, and next to arrest the great power and dangerous influences of secret societies."

A. M. Sullivan, Irish Leader: I had not studied in vain the history of secret, oath-bound associations. I regarded them with horror. I knew all that could be said as to their advantages in revolutionizing a country, but even in the firmest and best of hands they had a direct tendency to demoralization and are often on the whole more perilous to society than open tyranny."

Hon. Edward Blake, leader in Canadian Parliament, March, 1884: "I am not in favor of State recognition of any secret societies. I have never joined one, though many of my best friends are members of secret societies. But I believe the tendency of secrecy itself to be injurious. I believe that it brings with it the possibility of evil; I believe that it involves a certain amount of sacrifice of individuality and independence, and gives very great facilities for the misleading of members by designing leaders—very great and mischievous facilities for that purpose." "I believe that a great deal of the trouble, social and political, that has occurred in those countries [Europe and America] is due to secret societies."

Standard Works

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Associat'n

221 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois

TERMS:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order as a guaranty that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums. A liberal discount to dealers.

Revised Odd-fellowship Illustrated. The complete revised ritual of the Lodge. Encampment and Rebekah (ladies) degrees, profusely illustrated, and guaranteed to be strictly accurate; with a sketch of the origin, history and character of the order, over one hundred foot-note quotations from standard authorities, showing the character and teachings of the order, and an analysis of each degree by ex-President J. Blanchard. This ritual corresponds exactly with the "Charge Books" furnished by the Sovereign Grand Lodge. In cloth, $1.00; paper cover, 50cts.

Anti-masonic Sermons and Addresses. Composed of "Masonry a Work of Darkness;" the Sermons of Messrs. Cross, William M'Nary, Dow and Sarver, the two addresses of President Blanchard, and the addresses of President H. H. George, Prof. J. G. Carson and Rev. M. S. Drury; "Thirteen Reasons Why a Christian cannot be a Freemason," "Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion," and "Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate?" 287 pages; cloth $1.00.

Secret Societies Illustrated. Containing the signs, grips, passwords, emblems, etc., of Freemasonry (Blue Lodge and to the fourteenth degree of the York rite), Adoptive Masonry, Revised Odd-fellowship, Good Templarism, the Temple of Honor, the United Sons of Industry, Knights of Pythias and the Grange, with affidavits, etc. Over 250 cuts, 99 pages, paper cover. 25cts each.

Between Two Opinions: OR THE QUESTION OF THE HOUR. By Miss E. E. Flagg, author of "Little People," "A Sunny Life," etc., etc. Everyone who loves to read a good story, chaste and elegant in expression, pure in thought, interesting in narrative, should read this book upon the power of secret societies in politics, and the remedy. 389 pages; cloth, postpaid, $1.00.

Sermon on Odd-fellowship and other secret societies, by Rev. J. Sarver, pastor Evangelical Lutheran church. This is a very clear argument against secretism of all forms, and the duty to disfellowship Odd fellows, Freemasons, Knights of Pythias and Grangers, is clearly shown by their confessed character as found in their own publications. 10cts each.

Five Rituals Bound Together. "Odd-fellowship Illustrated" (old work), "Knights of Pythias Illustrated," "Good Templars Illustrated," "Exposition of the Grange," and "Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic," are sold bound together in cloth for $1.00.

Eminent Men on Secret Societies. Composed of "Washington Opposed to Secret Societies," "Judge Whitney's Defence," "The Mystic Tie," "Narratives and Arguments," the "Anti-mason's Scrap-Book" and "Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry as Proved in the New Berlin Temple." 328 pages, cloth, $1.00.

Holden with Cords. OR THE POWER OF THE SECRET EMPIRE. By E. E. Flagg, author of "A Sunny Life," etc. This is a thrillingly interesting story, accurately true to life because mainly a narration of historical facts. In cloth, $1.00; in paper, 50 cents.

College Secret Societies. Their customs, character and the efforts for their suppression. By H. L. Kellogg. Containing the opinions of many prominent college presidents and others, and a full account of the murder of Mortimer Leggett. 25cts each.

Rituals and Secrets Illustrated. Composed of "Temple of Honor Illustrated," "Adoptive Masonry Illustrated," "United Sons of Industry Illustrated," and "Secret Societies Illustrated." $1.00 each.

Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic, with signs of recognition, passwords, etc., and the ritual of the Machinists' and Blacksmiths' Union. (The two bound together.) 10 cents each.

Secret Societies. A discussion of their character and claims by Rev. David McDill, Pres. J. Blanchard and Rev. Edward Beecher. In cloth, 35cts each; paper covers, 15cts each.

Good Templarism Illustrated. A full and accurate exposition of the degrees of the lodge, temple and council. 25cts each.

Odd-fellowship: ITS HISTORY AND WORK. By President J. Blanchard. A new pamphlet with cover. Postpaid, 5 cts.

HOME AND HEALTH.

FILTER YOUR WATER.

Much is said of bacteria and the danger of infected drinking water, especially in cities where the immense sewerage may possibly mingle with the household fluid. It would be well to filter all water used for beverages or cooking purposes, through powdered charcoal and sharp sand suspended in a clean linen sack, if no better form of filter can be devised. Its cost is trivial, and its benefits great.

COMMUNION WINEGLASSES.

At the Scoville Avenue M. E. church, Ohio, as we learn from an exchange, the communion wine is now administered in small individual glasses. This new custom was adopted after careful deliberation, with the full consent of the pastor and laymen, and for sanitary reasons.

"THE TELEPHONE EAR"

has already been described by Prof. Lannois of the Lyons Medical School. For ears which are not especially sound he considers the telephone to be dangerous, as even with the comparatively robust organ its continuous use is followed by symptoms more or less grave—cephalgia, vertigo, hyperæsthesia, insomnia, and sometimes psychical disturbances of a character which might become chronic.

TO EVACUATE HARD SUBSTANCES

accidentally swallowed, an exclusive diet of plain buckwheat cakes, baked but little (no cathartics to be used), is recommended. The gluten or starch of the buckwheat gathers around the hard substance and protects the stomach and bowels from irritation until they are relieved by purgation.

OPIUM IN IMBECILITY.

A somewhat curious instance is described in the St. Louis Medical Era, by Prof. A. R. Keiffer, M. D., of Barnes Medical College. The case was of typhoid fever (terminating in recovery), in a child of nine years, whom a lightning shock in infancy had arrested intellectually. An extreme condition of the disease induced an enormous dosage of laudanum, continued for ten days, which produced a marked mental awakening, and hopes were excited for her ultimate restoration. But these hopes were disappointed. As soon as the opium was withdrawn she lapsed back into the same mental state that had characterized her before she was taken sick. The opium had merely stimulated her feeble brain for the time being.

A WORD FOR CABBAGE

First to avoid scenting the house, cut the cabbage, if small, into four pieces, removing the heart and the outer leaves. Have a large saucepanful of water, boiling furiously. Into this plunge your cabbage with a tablespoonful of salt and a small saltspoonful of soda. Put on the cover until it boils rapidly again, then remove it and boil for twenty minutes uncovered.

Remember the saucepan should be large, with plenty of boiling water. Cooked in this way the cabbage loses its strong taste and becomes delicate and easily digested. Indeed, persons who cannot possibly eat cabbage cooked with corned beef or bacon can indulge in cabbage boiled in salted water with as much impunity as in coldslaw or sauerkraut.

And it is better without vinegar. Turn the cabbage into a colander while you prepare in a saucepan a cream sauce of one tablespoonful of butter, one teaspoonful of flour, and half a cupful of milk, with pepper and a little salt. Return the cabbage to the saucepan and let all bubble together once.

Or you can serve the cabbage with a simple dressing of butter if you prefer. Or you can add it in the proportion of one-third to two-thirds of mashed potato, moistening with butter or cream, making that good old standby, colecannon.—Evening World.

WHAT ARCHITECTS ARE FOR.

"Look here," exclaimed Brown, entering the office of his architect, "you have made a nice mess of my house, haven't you?"

"Why, what's the matter?" replied the architect.

Hood's Cures

Almost Miraculous
Absolutely Helpless and Hopeless

The Grip, Rheumatism, Debility.

Mrs. Mary Andress
Of Crawfordsville, Ind.

"It is with much gratitude that I tell of the wonderful help received from Hood's Sarsaparilla. For several years I have been a very great sufferer with rheumatism. In the winter of '90 and '91, when I had been obliged to use crutches for a long while, in my unfortunate condition I had a severe attack of the grip, which put me down bedfast, for nearly a year. As I had a severe cough, the doctor thought my lungs affected, and that there was little or

No Hope of My Recovery

In the fall I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and, to my utmost delight found that I had at last obtained a medicine which was doing me good. When I began to take it I was unable to rise from my bed without help. There was severe pain and swelling in my hands, feet, knee-joints, and left ankle. I had become so hopeless of ever being any better that

I Desired to Die

And be out of my great pain. But as I continued with Hood's Sarsaparilla I continued to mend. From an utterly helpless condition I have now reached a good state of health. I do all my work and walk around without crutches. The pain and swelling, caused by the rheumatism, are gone. I have no pain in my hands and wrists, and they are not swollen or drawn any more. The cough and lung trouble and soreness in the chest, which followed the grip, have all gone, and I can sleep comfortably. I am greatly improved in flesh, strength and color. My bowels, hitherto inactive without physic, are, since taking quite regular, and other bodily functions healthful. My relatives and friends are delighted at my remarkable improvement, and join in giving the highest praise to Hood's Sarsaparilla. MRS. MARY ANDRESS, Crawfordsville, Ind.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Hood's Pills cure all Liver Ills, Biliousness, Jaundice, Indigestion, Sick Headache.

IF YOU WANT WORK

that is pleasant and profitable, send us your address immediately. We teach men and women how to earn from $5 per day to $3,000 per year without having had previous experience, and furnish the employment at which they can make that amount. Capital unnecessary. A trial will cost you nothing. Write to-day and address,

E. C. ALLEN & CO.,

Box 1001. Augusta, Me.

"Matter!" returned Brown; "why, the staircase is so crooked that I can't get my furniture upstairs, and there isn't a window in the dining-room that you can look out of without using a step-ladder."

"Well, what of that? Doesn't your house look well from the road?"

"It looks well enough, but, confound it, what does that amount to?"

"Everything, my dear sir, everything. I understand my business, I believe; I am an architect. If you only wanted a house that was comfortable and convenient, why on earth didn't you get a carpenter to draw the plans? Brown, I'm afraid you don't appreciate high art."—Boston Globe.

For rheumatism and neuralgia you can not get a better remedy than Salvation Oil.

Every man having a beard should keep it an even and natural color, and if it is not so already, use Buckingham's Dye and appear tidy.

STANDARD WORKS

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Association.

221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

TERMS:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order as a guaranty that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums. A liberal discount to dealers.

ON FREEMASONRY.

Freemasonry Illustrated. A complete exposition of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter. Profusely illustrated. Complete work of 640 pages, in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 75 cents. First three degrees (376 pages), in cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Knight Templarism Illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the Council and Commandery. A book of 341 pages. In cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.

Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated. The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all the Masonic Rites, and are fully and accurately given in "Freemasonry Illustrated." Vol. I. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3rd to 18th inclusive. Vol. II. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprised the degrees from 19th to 33rd inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive. Price per volume, paper cover, 50 cents each. In cloth, $1.00 each.

Hand-Book of Freemasonry. By E. Ronayne, Past Master of Keystone Lodge No. 639, Chicago. Gives the complete standard ritual of the first three degrees of Freemasonry. New edition, 274 pages. Bound flexible cloth covers, 50 cents.

Freemasonry Exposed. By Capt. William Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book republished. 25 cents each.

Adoptive Masonry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the five degrees of Female Freemasonry, by Thomas Lowe. 20 cents each.

Light on Freemasonry. By Elder D. Bernard. In cloth, $1.50 each. Paper, 75 cents each.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Bad Worship Identical. explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the lodge. Bound in fine cloth, 420 pages, 75 cents.

Mah-Hab-Bone; comprises the Hand Book, Master's Carpet and Freemasonry at glance. Bound in one volume. In cloth, 539 pages, $1.00.

History of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. As prepared by seven committees of citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan. 25 cents each.

Ex-President John Quincy Adams' LETTERS on the Nature of Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties. Price, cloth, $1.00. Paper, 35 cents.

Hon. Thurlow Weed on the Morgan Abduction. This is the legally attested statement of this eminent Christian journalist and statesman concerning the unlawful seizure and confinement of Capt. Morgan in Canandaigua jail, his removal to Fort Niagara and subsequent drowning in Lake Ontario. 5 cents each.

The Broken Seal; or Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. By Samuel D. Greene. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry, as proved in court in the New Berlin trials. The New Berlin trials began in the attempt of Freemasons to prevent public initiations by seceding Masons. These trials were held at New Berlin, Chenango Co., N. Y., April 13 and 14, 1831, and General Augustus C. Welsh, sheriff of the county, and other adhering Freemasons swore to the truthful revelation of the oaths and penalties. 10 cents each.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy. Address of Pres. J. Blanchard. This is a most convincing argument against the lodge. 5 cents each.

Grand Lodge Masonry. Its relation to civil government and the Christian religion. By Pres. J. Blanchard. The un-Christian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is proved from the highest Masonic authorities. 5 cents each.

General Washington Opposed to Secret Societies. This is a re-publication of Governor Joseph Ritner's "Vindication of General Washington from the Stigma of Adherence to Secret Societies," communicated to the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania, March 8, 1837, at their special request. To this is added the fact that three high Masons were the only persons who opposed a vote of thanks to Washington on his retirement to private life—undoubtedly because they considered him a seceding Freemason. 10cts each.

Morgan's Exposition, Abduction AND MURDER, AND OATHS OF 33 DEGREES. Composed of "Freemasonry Exposed," by Capt. Wm. Morgan; "History of the Abduction and Murder of Morgan;" "Valance's Confession of the Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "Bernard's Reminiscences of Morgan Times," and "Oaths and Penalties of 33 Degrees." 300 pages; cloth, $1.00.

Finney on Masonry. The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry. By Pres. Charles G. Finney, of Oberlin College. President Finney was a "bright Mason," but left the lodge when he became a Christian. This book has opened the eyes of multitudes. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper cover, 35 cents.

Narratives and Arguments, showing the conflict of secret societies with the Constitution and law of the Union and of the States. By Francis Semple. The fact that secret societies interfere with the execution and pervert the administration of the law is here clearly proved. 15cts each.

Temple of Honor Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of "The Templars of Honor and Temperance," commonly called the Temple of Honor. By a Templar of Fidelity and Past Worthy Chief Templar. 25cts each.

The Anti-mason's Scrap-Book, consisting of 53 "Cynosure" tracts. In this book are the views of more than a score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of secret societies. Postpaid. 25 cts.

Reminiscences of Morgan Times. By Elder David Bernard. This is a thrilling narrative of the incidents connected with Bernard's Revelation of Freemasonry 10 cents each.

Secrecy vs. the Family, State and Church. By Rev. M. S. Dury. The antagonism of organized secrecy to the welfare of the family, state and church, is clearly shown. 10cts each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. James Williams, Presiding Elder of Dakota District Northwestern Iowa Conference M. E. Church—a seceding Master Mason. 10 cents each.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 DEGREES OF FREEMASONRY. To get these thirty-three degrees of Masonic bondage, the candidate takes half-a-million horrible oaths. 15 cents each.

Pres. H. H. George on Secret Societies. A powerful address, showing clearly the duty of Christian churches to dis-fellow-ship secret societies. 10cts each.

Thirteen Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. W. P. McNary, pastor United Presbyterian church. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Secretism. By Rev. I. Theo. Cross, pastor Congregational church Hamilton, N. Y. This is a very clear arraignment of the objections to all secret societies, and to Masonry especially, that are apparent to all. 5cts each.

Knights of Pythias Illustrated. By a Past Chancellor. A full illustrated exposition of the three ranks of the order, with the addition of the "Amended, Perfected and Amplified Third Rank." 25ct each.

Sermon on Secret Societies. By Rev. Daniel Dow, Woodstock, Conn. The special object of his sermon is to show the right and duty of Christians to examine into the character of secret societies, no matter what object such societies profess to have. 5cts each.

Getting Thin

is often equivalent to getting ill. If loss of flesh can be arrested and disease baffled the "weak spots" in the system are eradicated.

Scott's Emulsion

is an absolute corrective of "weak spots." It is a builder of worn out failing tissue—nature's food that stops waste and creates healthy flesh.

Prepared by Scott & Bowne, Chemists, New York. Sold by druggists everywhere.

FARM NOTES

RAISING ONIONS ON MEADOW LAND.

J. J. H. Gregory, one of Massachusetts' progressive farmers, gives some points on growing onions on meadow or muck soil, gained from his own large experience, in the Country Gentleman. He says: "Success on such lands turns on attention to two important matters—one in the line of drainage, never to allow the land to get either too wet or too dry. This is accomplished by having control of the water up to within about 2½ feet of the surface. If allowed to rise higher than this, the soil becomes too wet. If allowed to fall below this, then it is too dry for the crop."

"The other condition on which success depends is on a heavy application of gritty soil to the surface, at the rate of from 100 to 200 horse loads per acre. This needs to be kept near the surface, and must not, therefore, be plowed under to any depth, the barrow and cultivator being most relied upon. Barnyard or any bulky manure is not the best for such meadows, as they already contain a surplus of humus, and much of the nitrogen needed for the crop will be set free by cultivation. Dissolved bone and unleached ashes are the best fertilizers for them. The caustic potash in the ashes will unlock the food that centuries have been storing in such soil."

LIVE STOCK POINTS.

The story is told that a young tailor died in Bellevue hospital, New York, from "sheep rot." While cleaning woolen clothing he got "some of the stuff" under his finger nails, and blood poisoning set in. It is quite probable that while cleaning the clothing the young tailor got infectious microbes of some kind under his finger nails and so caught the contagion that resulted in erysipelas and death, but it is more than improbable that the poison was sheep rot. It is far more likely to have come from the person who had worn and soiled the clothing before the young tailor took it in hand to clean it.

The Rural New Yorker is authority that dried brewers' grains are an excellent dairy food, in the proportion of eight pounds of brewers' grains to two pounds of cornmeal.

Among the steeds at the New York horse show were a Clydesdale stallion that weighed 2,200 pounds and a Shetland pony that weighed seventy pounds.

AMONG THE POULTRY.

The editor of Farm Poultry feeds his laying fowls five mornings in the week a mash containing a great variety of food elements, an important factor when feeding for eggs. This mash is made up of about a third cooked vegetables, mashed fine, or cut clover, cooked by being brought to boiling heat in water, an equal amount of boiling water added, a heaping teaspoonful of salt to a bucketful; a heaping teaspoonful of Sheridan's condition powder two days, the cayenne one day, condition powder two days, then powdered charcoal one, and into this is stirred mixed meal until the mash is as stiff as a strong arm can make it. The mixed meal alluded to consists of one part each cornmeal, fine middlings, bran, ground oats and animal meal. When he has fresh bones in abundance he omits the animal meal from the mixture.

This morning mash is prepared the afternoon of the day before feeding, when it is covered and set away to cook in its own heat. It is fed in troughs large enough so that fifteen fowls in a pen can get about it at one time; another important factor, because if the trough is small some of the birds have to stand back and wait for second table, and when their chance does come there's nothing left for them. With a trough four feet long by six inches wide there is plenty of room, and if a biddy is driven away from one place she runs around and goes to eating at another, and thus all get a share. The authority quoted considers whole wheat the best grain food for eggs, whole barley next and buckwheat next. He makes barley or buckwheat the noon food five days in the week and wheat the night food five or six days in the week.

Lack of gravel or gritty material is nearly always the cause of the fowls getting crop bound.

Whole wheat is better for fowls than corn. It does not make them so fat, and considering the number of eggs that can be secured by using it, it is altogether a more economical food.

Begin now to cook the vegetables, such as pumpkins, cabbages, apples or onions, in the evening; mix in the meal while hot and put away, covering tightly, so that it will be warm when fed before sunrise.

Now give the hens variety, clean and warm quarters, grit and exercise.

Left over cabbage and celery plants and garden greens should go to the shut-in poultry. These are useful meat and egg producers.

Some experts claim that the best cross in raising poultry for broilers is that of Plymouth Rock hens with Brown Leghorn roosters.

The Solid Truth.

Investigation Invited.

Of course it is proper to inquire about what any man says, is it true?

The most rigid investigation is invited into the testimonials published in behalf of Hood's Sarsaparilla. Special attention is called to the high character of the persons whose testimonials are published by the proprietors of this medicine, as evidenced by their occupations or indorsements.

There is nothing marvelous in the fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla should cure so many diseases. When you remember that a majority of the disorders "flesh is heir to" are due to impure or poisonous condition of the blood, and that Hood's Sarsaparilla is an effective and radical blood purifier, the whole thing is explained.

Besides its blood purifying qualities, Hood's Sarsaparilla also contains the best known vegetable stomach tonics, diuretics, kidney remedies and liver invigorants, and is thus an excellent specific for all disorders of these organs, as well as for low condition of the system, or That Tired Feeling.

Knowing that Hood's Sarsaparilla is most carefully prepared, that it does possess curative powers Peculiar to Itself, we have absolute confidence in it ourselves and cordially recommend it to the people.

Is your blood poor? TAKE BEECHAM'S PILLS.

THE IMAGE OF THE BEAST A Secret Empire;

Or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy.

By Rev. Richard Horton.

Third Edition. 200 pages. Cloth.

Price, 60 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

CURED

"About seven or eight months ago I was attacked by a cough, and at once began to take a medicine much advertised as an expectorant, and continued using it until I had taken about six bottles. Instead of giving me relief, it only made me worse. I tried several other remedies, but all in vain, and I don't think I had three whole nights' rest during my illness. I began to think that had laid hold of me, and my hopes of recovery were all gone. I was a mere skeleton, but a friend of mine, who had been some time away, called to see me. He recommended me to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and kindly sending me a bottle, I took it, but with little hopes of recovery. I am thankful, however, to say that it cured me, and I am to-day enjoying the best of health."—J. Wilmot Payne, Monrovia, Liberia.

Consumption

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.
Prompt to act, sure to cure

MY WIFE SAYS SHE CANNOT SEE HOW YOU DO IT FOR THE MONEY.
Buys a $65.00 Improved Oxford Singer Sewing Machine; perfect working, reliable, finely finished, adapted to light and heavy work, with a complete set of the latest improved attachments. FREE. Each machine is guaranteed for 5 years. Buy direct from our factory, and save dealers and agents profit. FREE TRIAL and FREE CATALOGUE.
OXFORD MFG. CO., DEPT. b34 Chicago, Ill.

A Little Idea FOR WOMEN.

The Woman's Publishing Company of Minneapolis, Minn., publishers of "The Housekeeper" paid 5 per cent as its first semi-annual dividend, Jan. 2, 1893. All

That Grows

stock fully paid up before April 1 will participate in the next semi-annual dividend of at least 5 per cent which will be declared and paid July next. A few shares of the capital stock of this company, par value $10 each, will make a permanent paying present or investment.

While You

Think About It.

A handsome brochure telling all about it is sent free on application.

LE CARON, THE SPY.

A STARTLING REVELATION.

More enticing than a romance, filled with the strongest evidences of the power and evil of sworn secret societies, and plainly revealing the danger to any government growing out of political conspiracies, is the

"Autobiography of Henry LeCaron, the Spy."

who was for years a Clan-na-Gael Center, a Fenian Commander, and a Land-League Orator, but always a British Detective. The book covers his twenty-five years' experiences in this secret service, and contains 205 pages.

Price, in paper covers, 50 cents.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
Wm. I. PHILLIPS, Treasurer,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

AMERICAN HANDBOOK

AND

CITIZEN MANUAL.

BY

MANLOVE N. BUTLER.

CONTENTS:—Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement; Real Prohibition; Poor Man's Bible, and All-Around Reformers. Over 200 pages

Paper, single copy 40c.; per doz. 35c.

CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

The New World of Central Africa.

By Mrs. H. Grattan Guinness, with a history of the first Christian mission on the Congo. 12mo., 530 pages with maps, portraits and numerous illustrations, $2.00
"A conscientious piece of work, and gives a very clear account of what has been done by the Protestant missions to evangelize the barbarous races of Central Africa. He who wants to know what missionary effort means in these days may well learn from this volume. The reader who goes carefully through will have a good bird's eye view of recent events in Africa, with all the results of modern travel. The work contains solid information of use to all who are interested in the future of this wonderful country. The many illustrations throw light upon savage customs and costumes."—Graphic.

the Far East.

Letters from China by Geraldine Guinness, edited by her sister, with introduction by Rev. J. Hudson Taylor. Very fully illustrated. Quarto cloth, $1.50

This book was scarcely written—it was lived; for the breath of life is in it from cover to cover. We have never read so wonderful an account of successful missionary effort.—Presbyterian

We easily understand how this edition is the fifteenth thousand. It is a very remarkable book.—The Golden Rule.

Frances Ridley Havergall's Poems.

Author's edition complete. The only unabridged authorized edition published in America.
1. 12mo., 880 pages, cloth, beveled, $2.00
2. Beveled boards, full gilt, $2.50
3. Half white vellum, gilt top, uncut edges, $2.50
4. French morocco padded, roll red under gold edges, $4.00
5. Persian calf, padded and embossed, gilt roll and r. g., $5.00
6. Crushed levant, elegant, $6.00

7. Full German calf, padded, elegant, gilt, rd. cors., $7.50
Miss Havergall stands without peer in the English language in the department of religious poetry.

"The book in paper and binding is all that could be desired."—Publishers' Weekly.

Small Books by Miss Havergall.
Bound in elegant illuminated board covers.
Kept for the Master's Use. 20

My King; Daily Thoughts for the King's Children. 20

Works of Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

Sermon Notes. Covering all the Bible from Genesis to Revelation. 4 vols., $4.00
Feathers for Arrows. A volume of Choice Extracts, 12mo., cloth, $1.00
Twelve Striking Sermons. 50
Twelve Soul Winning Sermons, 50
Twelve Sermons on the Resurrection. 50
Twelve New Year Sermons. 50
Twelve Christmas Sermons. 30

Notes by C. H. M.

On Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy.
Mr. D. L. Moody says of these books: "They have been to me a very key to the Scriptures."
Deuteronomy is issued in two volumes, the others complete in one volume each. Separate volumes may be had if desired. The complete set in six volumes, covering over 2,300 pages, is offered at the reduced price of 75c per vol. or $4.50 per set

A. L. O. E. Intermediate Library.

Selected from the numerous productions of this world-renowned writer as being those of rare merit. 12 vols., 12mo., cloth elegant, each 75c; set, $9.00
An Eden in England. Life in Eagle's Nest.
Ned Franks. White Bear's Den.
Sheer Oil. Fairy Spider's Web.
Braid of Chords. Lake in the Woods.
Silver Keys. Seven Perils Passed.
Grace Vernon. Hartley Brothers.

The Jessica Series. By Hesba Stretton. 6 vols., handsome bindings, cloth 50c each, or per set $2.10
Jessica's First Prayer. Friends till Death.
No Place Like Home. A Miserable Christmas Under the Old Roof. A Night and a Day.

A. L. O. E. Junior Library. Adapted to the young folks. 7 vols., 12mo., cloth each 60c; the set, $4.20
Claremont Tales. A Wreath of Smoke.
Christian Conquests. Pomegranates from Tales Illustrative of Punjab.
Parables. Little Bullets from The Battle of Life. Batala.

The Hesba Stretton Series. 8 vols., elegant cloth bound, per set $4.80
Cassy. King's Servant.
Lost Gipsy. Alone in London.
Max Kromer. Little Meg's Children.
Storm of Life. Crew of the Dolphin.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure.

A cream of tartar baking Powder. Highest of all in leavening strength.—Latest United States Government Food Report. ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 106 Wall St., N. Y.

NEWS OF THE WEEK (Continued from 18th page).

The sole-leather firms of Boston and New York have combined their interests, which are valued at $45,000,000.

Allen Manvel, president of the Santa Fe railroad, is dead.

Heavy storms at sea and perils of steamships are reported.

An improvement was noted last week in mercantile affairs.

The Republican House in Kansas has been upheld by the Supreme Court of the State.

Cleveland's Cabinet officers conferred with him Saturday at Lakewood.

Popular subscriptions for Major McKinley have been started in Kansas.

The Hawaiian treaty may not be ratified until Cleveland's administration takes the matter up.

A bill has been introduced in the Illinois Legislature providing for a plan to reclaim criminals not habitual.

The Reading (Pa.) railroad combine of coal mines and railroads, in selfishly attacking the Vanderbilt roads in New England, found more than a match, and has been put into the hands of receivers, one of whom is Chief Justice Paxson, of New York, who has, therefore, resigned his judgeship.

At Nashville, Tenn., on Friday, in the criminal court, Harvey Weakly, on trial for murder, fell dead on the witness stand. When asked if he had killed the victim, Weakly said he hoped God would strike him dead if he had. Hardly had he spoken when he fell dead to the floor.

Alexander Russell Webb, the American Mohammedan whom the wealthy Mussulmans of India and the East has sent to introduce the faith of Islam among the "civilized" Christians of the West, was in New York last week. The Mohammedans hope and expect to establish their religion in the United States. The rich Mohammedans of Bombay have guaranteed $150,000 for the erection of a mosque in America.

John W. Mackey, the "bonanza king" of California, was on Friday shot by an old crazy crank, named Rippey, who then fired a fatal shot into his own breast. Mr. Mackey had a very narrow escape from death but will recover.

A broken rail on the P., Ft. W. & C. R. R. caused the wreck of a passenger train, the death of one passenger and the injury of nearly a score of others. At West Philadelphia a passenger train collided with an accommodation train, killing four persons and injuring ten others. Twelve stockmen were injured, near Lincoln, Neb., by a collision of trains. All these casualties occurred on Washington's birthday.

The Nebraska Legislature has passed a joint resolution declaring that the State in the great interior basin should unite in the building of a railroad from Galveston to the Dakotas. The resolution recites the benefits of such a railroad, which it is estimated will cost $27,000,000, and proposes to secure funds by levying a tax of 5 cents per acre on the lands of the States. It calls upon the Governor to consult with the Governors of Missouri, the Dakotas, Minnesota, Iowa, Texas, Arkansas, Kansas, and Oklahoma, proposing a convention of delegates to meet at some central point.

The present emigration of Central Illinois farmers to Nebraska is said by railroad men to be merely a continuation of a move from Illinois and other Middle and Eastern States that began a year ago. Perkins county has been settled so rapidly that during the last six months nine-tenths of the land held by speculators has changed hands, and has been sold to actual settlers. The general cause given by railroad men for the exodus from Illinois is the raising of rent by landlords.

A movement is on foot in Hoboken, N. J., to put the Catholic parochial schools of that city under the Faribault system of Archbishop Ireland. Father Corrigan, who recently had a dispute with Bishop Wigger, is at the bottom of it.

For the first time in the history of Columbus, Ind., all the saloons and gambling houses were closed last Sunday. The Ministerial Association and the Law and Order League have been making a vigorous fight and have raised $1,000 to be expended for the purpose of enforcing the laws already in existence.

A convict war is again threatened to rend Tennessee. Governor Turney has announced his intention of withdrawing the standing army. The miners held a meeting and decided by vote to liberate the 500 convicts in the valley and fire the stockades.

FOREIGN.

The German aristocracy is much alarmed at the prospect for the formation of a great agrarian party. The agrarian conditions while affecting loyalist reverence for the Emperor, practically demand a radical change in the imperial policy. The plan of the new party is to obtain the overthrow of Von Caprivi, protection to the agricultural interests, and a return to bimetalism. The Emperor is following the movement with great attention. Prince Bismarck is in touch with the agrarian leaders.

The feature of the week in Parliament was the debate Thursday night upon the Wales suspensory bill. Mr. Gladstone took part with his customary fire and eloquence.

There is a combination on foot of the Tories and their Mugwump allies to retire Gladstone. It is said that the plan is to prevail upon him to take part in the debate until his strength fails, when he must necessarily retire.

Prof. Dewar, who recently discovered a method for producing intense heat and cold, illustrated his invention Saturday before an audience of the most prominent scientists in London.

The official announcement of the betrothal of the Princess May of Teck and the Duke of York will be made next week.

The labor troubles in Lancashire are at an end. During the trouble 60,000 people were out of work for sixteen weeks.

There is no truth in the rumor that negotiations are being conducted for a German-American commercial treaty.

Cigarette smoking is becoming general among the London ladies, which habit, it is claimed, prevails even in the royal family.

Gladstone's popularity is said to be gaining daily.

An enterprising man has started a sermon factory in Great Britain.

Minister Lincoln was dined by the Prince of Wales last Wednesday.

WHEATON COLLEGE, WHEATON, ILL.

A School for Men and Women.
SPRING TERM BEGINS APRIL 4th, 1893.

Full College Courses, Preparatory Courses, Stenography, Typewriting, Vocal Music and Blackboard Drawing, without extra charge.

CHAS. A. BLANCHARD, Pres.

"WORTH A GUINEA A BOX."

In the family are more often the result of disordered digestion than most people know.

BEECHAM'S PILLS will keep peace in a family, by curing Sick Headache, Weak Stomach, Impaired Digestion, Disordered Liver, Constipation and all Bilious and Nervous Disorders arising from these causes. Covered with a Tasteless & Soluble Coating. Of all druggists. Price 25 cents a box. New York Depot, 365 Canal St.

RUPTURE

A positive radical cure at home. (Sealed) Book giving full particulars sent FREE. Address DR. W. S. RICE, Box 206, Smithville, Jefferson Co., N. Y.

The Christian Witness

Is an eight-page undenominational monthly; the official organ of the New Hampshire Christian Association, opposed to secret societies. It advocates Bible Holiness, Church Purity, Sound Morality and Temperance.

Terms: 50 cents a year, or three years for $1.00.

Send stamp for sample copy.

Address S. C. KIMBALL, Box 277. Newmarket, N. H.

THE Folly, Expense & Danger

OF SECRET SOCIETIES.

BY

CHARLES A. BLANCHARD.
(President Wheaton College.)

5 Cts per Copy; $3 per Hundred.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

JONATHAN BLANCHARD'S

—[00]—
SERMONS AND ADDRESSES.

Select discourses of the late editor of the Cynosure and leader in our reform. Lectures, sermons and speeches given from 1834 to 1892 in leading cities of the United States, discussing topics of

LIVING REFORM.

Secret Societies,
The Sabbath,
Temperance,
National Reform,
Christian Education,
Christian Socialism,
The Bible, Etc., Etc.

A BOOK EVERYBODY SHOULD READ

12mo. Fine Photogravure Portrait.

Price, 75 Cents.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison st., Chicago.

MY EXPERIENCES

WITH

SECRET SOCIETIES.

BY A TRAVELER.

With a Key to Masonry Illustrated

A new edition, greatly enlarged, has been issued, embracing chapters on the Language of Numbers, Secret Empires, and Good Men, containing more Experiences, and affording a deeper insight into the Hidden Language and Workings of Secret Clans, and of the counterfeit pretences of good men, than ever before published. The Key is an exposition, explanation and verification of modern Baalism, with which all should be thoroughly acquainted. The price of the new edition is

Fifteen Cents,
but copies of the first edition will be forwarded for Ten Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

DO YOU WANT

To receive, read, distribute and otherwise aid in the circulation of a large number of Holiness and Reform papers and magazines? If so, send me a SILVER dime, and your name and address will be printed on the Holiness and Reform Mail Exchange List, which is sent to all publishers of holiness and reform literature, who will mail you sample papers and magazines. Write name and address PLAINLY. Address, J. H. PADGETT, Printer, Ennis, Texas.

Disloyal SECRET OATHS

ADDRESS OF

JOSEPH COOK,
OF BOSTON,
AT THE

Conference of Christians CHICAGO, 1890.

No better document of its size for general distribution has been printed. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference.

Single Copies 5 cents, or 12 copies for 50 cents.

CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

The Blue Bell.

The Mountain Daisy.

Daily Text books for a year. Dainty little souvenirs, only 1½ inches square, elegantly and neatly bound in leather, with silk marker, gilt edges, round corners, each net 25
Illuminated paper covers, each 10

Birthday Memorial Text-Book.
An Autograph Text-book. Text for each day and space for autographs. 32mo., Cloth..... 25

Daily Comfort in Four Fold Links.

The most popular Wall Roll published, and deservedly so. Every page is an effective sermon. The striking character and particular value of this new Wall Roll is in the remarkable arrangement and selection of the Scripture Texts. A constant monitor in the Christian household. A silent teacher for the school. A comforting messenger for the sick-room, as well as being suitable for the office, the store or the shop.

Printed in beautiful large, clear letters, easily discernible at a distance of 10 to 15 feet. Mounted on rollers, with cord, to hang up in usual style. 31 pages, size 14x22in. 75

The Secret of Success; or

Finger Posts on the Highway of Life, by John T. Dale; introduction by Hon. John V. Farwell. 416 pages, 12mo., full cloth.....$1.50
A book for the aspiring. Written in a fascinating style and full of incidents and illustrations which hold the interest of the reader spell-bound. "It may be true, as has been said, that 'books are sold, not bought;' but this, at any rate, is a book which, if brought to one's attention, he will wish to own. Such a book in every intelligent family in the land—how much (in showing so clearly, so wisely, so persuasively the secret of success,) it might do toward helping to solve the countless aching, burning questions of the time."—The Advance.

Prof. Henry Drummond's Booklets.

The Perfected Life. (The greatest need of the world.) Bound in chaste style, vellum paper..... 20

Love the Supreme Gift. (The greatest thing in the world.) Uniform with Perfected Life..... 20

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

United Sons of Industry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the secret tradesunion of the above name, giving the signs, grips, passwords etc. 15cts each.

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XXV., No. 26

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, MARCH 9, 1893.

WHOLE No. 1,193.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,
221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PER YEAR..... $2.00
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... 1.50

No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearses paid.

Address all letters for publication to EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, CHICAGO. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed.

Make all drafts and money orders payable to the Treasurer, W. I. PHILLIPS, 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO. When possible make remittances by express money order. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address on Cynosure list always give the former address.

[Entered at the Postoffice, Chicago, Ill., as Second Class Matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:	CORRESPONDENCE:
Notes and Comments..... 1	"Masonry and the Church;" Calling Things by their Right Names; The Silver Purchase Law; Herod's Oath..... 5,6
The Chinese Exclusion Act..... 8	REFORM NEWS:
Africa and the World's Fair..... 8	From Both Sides the Mississippi; Rev. H. L. Kellogg in Iowa; Progress in the Western District; The Waukesha County Convention..... 8,9
The Pythian Knights and the Roman Church 8	WASHINGTON LETTER..... 9
CONTRIBUTIONS:	THE N. C. A..... 7
The Thugs of India and America (Concluded)... 2	THE HOME..... 10
A Southern Experience with Masons..... 2	TEMPERANCE..... 11
"Neither Can They Die Any More" (Poetry)... 10	BIBLE LESSON..... 12
Blood-Money (Poetry)... 11	RELIGIOUS NEWS..... 12
SELECTED:	NEWS OF THE WEEK..... 13
Secret Politico-Labor Societies..... 3	MARKETS..... 13
The Pennsylvania State Anti-secrecy Convention..... 4	HOME AND HEALTH..... 14
LITERATURE..... 6	FARM NOTES..... 15
LODGE NOTES..... 7
AGENTS AND LECTURERS... 7

Somewhat unexpectedly the friends of the late Dr. P. H. Cronin, who was murdered by the Clan-na-Gael, have discovered new evidence in that case which they intend to produce at the approaching new trial of Dan Coughlin. They seem to think that the prisoner will confess to all that he knows of the murder; but this is extremely doubtful. It would be done at the hazard of his life.

Some of the temperance people are preparing to boycott the Columbian Exposition because intoxicating fluids are to be dealt out at eighty-seven stated places within its inclosures. The principle involved in the decision of the Exposition management deserves censure and rebuke; but the boycott will be confined to certain individuals and societies, and of course its effects will be limited rather than universal even among those who detest the mercenary spirit that admits liquor to the grounds.

The Christian Nation, which numbers among its editors John W. Pritchard, Rev. C. D. Trumbull, Rev. W. J. Coleman, and Prof. J. M. Coleman, arraigns the Roman Catholic church as an un-Christian organization, and then proceeds to frame an indisputable indictment against it, drawing abundant evidence from its practices and teachings. The sum of the charges is that the church not only dishonors Christ in its worship, but is inimical to the advancement of his kingdom—a veritable leading of the blind by craftiness.

In the civil appropriation bill passed by the United States Senate, the other day, to meet the expenses of the Government for the next fiscal year, was an item loaning a large sum to the Columbian Exposition. When the bill reached the House some one offered an amendment, making the loan dependent upon keeping the Exposition open seven days in the week; but the amendment was promptly voted down. Congress has been very consistent in its action on the question of Sunday opening, and deserves the thanks of the entire Christian community.

The position of Mons. Satolli, the Pope's vicerent in the United States, may be thus briefly defined: He permanently represents the Pope in the Roman Catholic church. He is empowered to settle all disputes which arise in the church, within his jurisdiction. As the fag of "his holiness," he being only a fallible mortal, the infallibility of the Pope will not be involved in any of the mistakes made by Satolli.

The Federal Administration changed hands in Washington, at noon last Saturday, in a snow storm that marred the brilliancy of the ceremonies of the occasion, which were, however, enthusiastically witnessed by immense crowds from all parts of the country. Mr. Harrison retires from the presidency with more of the public esteem than he enjoyed when he assumed its duties, which is evidence that if his administration was not brilliant he made it reputable in the estimation of his supporters. Mr. Cleveland has at hand an opportunity to make himself an excellent President, and if he will cast off all partisan affiliations and promote the interests of the whole people to the best of his ability, without fear or prejudice, he will serve his country well.

One of the arguments used by those who insist that the Columbian Exposition shall be open on the Lord's day, in spite of Congress and the Christians, is that Jackson Park, where the Exposition will be, belongs to the State of Illinois, and that it having been originally set apart for the free use of the people seven days in the week, Congress has no right to forbid the people entering it on any particular day. This sophistry is best met with another inquiry, quite as pertinent—"By what right do the Exposition managers charge for admission on any day, since that regulation clashes with the law granting free entrance at all times?" We have heard of a country justice of the peace who set aside a decision of the United States Supreme Court. The legal acumen exhibited in these cases is on a par.

Judge Stowe, when he was trying the Homestead riot cases at Pittsburgh, was struck by a remark of the defence, that the Pinkerton men had no right to land there at the time of the strike. The judge's reply was as follows: "I won't allow such questions. These men were going to Homestead on a lawful errand and had a right to go. These rioters had no business there. Even if the Pinkertons had been going there to take that mill by force they were justified in doing so, and no one has a right to dispute it in this court, and you may as well understand that just now. Such ideas as you attempt to advance never have been the law, are not the law, and I hope never will be the law. It is anarchistic to advance such sentiments, and I will allow no one to advance such ideas here." The judge was right, and his expressions may well be heeded.

It is with regret that we learn of the destruction of the Arkansas Baptist Female College (colored) at Little Rock, Ark., by fire on the 2d inst. The upper floor was occupied as a dormitory, and in the panic following the fire, alarm, at 1:30 A. M., in the attempt to escape from the flames, one teacher, three pupils and the cook were severely injured. The office of the Baptist Vanguard, in the lower story, was also destroyed. There is evidence that the fire was the work of an incendiary. President Booker and his family, with the teachers and pupils, were unable to save their personal property. The total loss on building and Vanguard office, we understand, is $11,000—the former insured for $5,000. Other losses: Books, $500; piano and organ, $500; furniture, $1,000. In view of all the circumstances, it was a calamity, and President Booker is entitled to Christian sympathy and material aid.

The value of our anti-secrecy gatherings in creating a genuine revival spirit among the people was excellently illustrated in the Pennsylvania convention last week. At the closing session 700 persons were in attendance. One gentleman, who some time ago discontinued his subscription to the Cynosure, was in attendance and became so enthused with the proceedings that he handed five dollars to the Eastern agent and, besides, renewed his subscription to this paper. The agent reports liberal contributions generally to the convention. Let the good work go on.

Rev. Benjamin T. Roberts, senior General Superintendent of the Free Methodist church, and one of its founders, was suddenly stricken down by apoplexy, a few days ago, while presiding at a conference in the State of New York. He was not only a ripe scholar and a devoted Christian, but the ablest financier and executive officer in the church, and the position left vacant by his death will not be easily filled. In addition to his faithful performance of its duties he was the author of several sterling books—"Why Another Sect?" "Money," "The Ordination of Women," and "Fishers of Men," and was for thirty years editor of the Earnest Christian, of which he was the originator. For several years he was also editor of the Free Methodist. In close harmony with the anti-secrecy reform, the National Christian Association had in him a warm coadjutor. In every department of his labors he always manifested great activity and zeal. In next week's issue of the Cynosure we purpose to print, with his portrait, a life-sketch written by himself, which will be read with interest.

The National Christian Association, in continually and prominently opposing all secret oath-bound societies because they are un-Christian and fraught with evil to the state, the church, and the home, believes that it is engaged in a great and good work, second in importance to no other reform. Notwithstanding the increase in the number and variety of these detrimental fraternities that draw men from church services and church work, and often lead them to drinking intoxicants and gambling, it is gratifying to note the fact that increased activity in our reform work is meeting with marked encouragement and endorsement wherever our anti-secrecy conventions are held. The Pennsylvania State Convention at Allegheny, last week, was no exception, for the attendance was large and the interest in its proceedings was well maintained. This is shown in the report of its proceedings which we print in this issue. And it is a fact that whenever the light of truth is turned upon them, and men see them as they are, these relics of pagan mysteries, fostering social and political evils under the cloak of a sham charity, create at first wonder, and then disgust at their hollow pretensions.

The need of money for current expenses was never more pressing than now. The agents in the field, as a rule, cannot collect enough to supply their traveling expenses and the needs of their families. The National Christian Association guaranteed to them, from the current expense fund, $25 per month, when needed. Will the friends of the Association and the Cynosure make a special effort to send us such sums as they can, either large or small, on or before the tenth instant?

THE THUGS OF INDIA AND AMERICA.

(Concluded.)

The Thugs sometimes send out a handsome woman upon the road, who, with her hair disheveled, seems to be all in tears, sighing and complaining of some misfortune which she pretends has befallen her. Now, as she takes the same way that the traveler goes, he easily falls into conversation with her; and, finding her beautiful, offers her his assistance, which she accepts; but he has no sooner taken her up behind him on horseback than she throws the snare about his neck and strangles him, or, at least, stuns him until the robbers, who lie hid, come running to her assistance, and complete what she has begun.

They have been known to travel for days with the person they have proposed to murder, till an opportunity they deemed sufficiently favorable offered. Having selected a spot, usually near a jungle, or a dry water-course, they destroy their victim, and rapidly dig a hole with a pick-axe, three or four feet in depth, into which the body is thrown, face downwards, after having been stabbed through on each side under the armpits, and gashed deeply in various parts; the double object of this is to guard against any chance of recovery, and to prevent the inflation of the body from the confinement of the gases generated by decomposition, which might cause fissures on the surface and attract wild dogs or jackals, which would disinter the corpse and lead to discovery of the murder. Sometimes, when the booty obtained has not equaled their expectations, they have vented their disappointment by dislocating all the limbs of the corpse, and otherwise outraging it. In some districts of India, as in the Doab, between the Ganges and the Jumna, where wells are numerous in the fields for the purpose of irrigation, the body is thrown down into them; a practice which led to the detection of several bands of Thugs in 1809 and 1810, when as many as thirty bodies were found in different wells. The mode of destruction adopted by the Thugs obviating the shedding of blood, by the stains of which nearly every murder is detected, and at the same time preventing cries for help, throws a veil of mystery over their crimes. Should an intended victim (which rarely has happened) escape from the deadly noose and avoid strangulation, he has little chance of avoiding the scouts of the gang, who are armed with swords, and do not scruple to cut down or stab any one who has slipped through the grasp of the stranglers.

These proceedings of the Thugs are facilitated by the use of a peculiar language called Moor, known only to themselves, and by a code of Masonic signs, by which they are enabled to recognize a member of their fraternity whenever they may meet; also, when on the road, they use a variety of signals to convey intelligence to each other at a distance—drawing the back of the hand along the chin telegraphs the approach of a stranger; putting the hand over the mouth and drawing it gently down, implies that the immediate cause of alarm is past. If the leading party want reinforcements, they make certain marks on the road which informs those behind them of their need; where the roads divide, those in advance intimate to those who are following the direction they have taken by strewing a few leaves by the wayside; and if they wish to hasten their movements, draw a line in the dust, and place two stones at the end, one upon the other; by similar silent signals every necessary information is conveyed.

One of the most curious of the Thug superstitions is connected with the tool they employ to excavate the graves of their victims. Believing themselves to be engaged in the service of a divinity (Kalee), they regard the instruments of murder as holy, and take the greatest care in their fabrication. The pickaxe is held by them in the highest veneration, and is consecrated to its appointed duty with great ceremony. A lucky day is fixed upon, on which the leader of the gang proceeds to the smith forge, where with closed door, and every precaution against intrusion, the instrument is made. After this it must be consecrated, which is done by a man well versed in the traditions of the Thugs. He receives the pickaxe in a brazen dish, and washes it first in water, next in sugar and water, then in sour milk, and lastly in ardent spirits; it is then marked with seven spots of red lead and replaced in the dish with a cocoanut, cloves, sandal wood, and sugar; these articles, with the exception of the cocoanut, are next burned, and the pickaxe passed seven times through the flame, after which, the gang leader takes the cocoanut and endeavors to divide it with one blow of the pickaxe, upon the success or failure of which all depends; failure vitiates the whole of the previous ceremonies; success completes the consecration of the tool. Upon this the spectators prostrate themselves before it, after which it is handed over to the leader, who must be a tried Thug, and he either places it in a well or buries it in a retired spot till wanted for its destined use. On this point the Thugs have a curious belief that the pickaxe will come of itself out of the well at the bidding of the man who placed it there; the informers were most confident in their assertion of its miraculous power, and scorned the suggestion that it was accomplished by sleight-of-hand, or was the result of a clever juggling trick. When employed to dig the grave of a murdered man, should the pickaxe fall from the hands of the sexton Thug, the whole gang is panic-stricken; they regard this as the worst of all evil omens, betokening the death of the man who dropped it within the year, and disasters to the whole gang, who are henceforth regarded as doomed men, and shunned by all true Thugs as having lost their caste. Another use of the pickaxe is to add solemnity to an oath; and the Thugs believe that the most horrible of deaths, within a few days, will be the fate of any one who shall dare to forswear himself on one properly consecrated.

We have already mentioned that the office of a strangler is one of distinction among the Thugs, and only a tried and practiced hand eligible to it. After a long novitiate, during which the Thug has passed through the lower grades of scout and sexton, and given evidence of firmness and ability, he is initiated in the mysteries of his future occupation by an experienced strangler, who selects a favorable opportunity for the beginner's first essay. If the omens are favorable, the tutor or gooroo takes his pupil to the spot, ties a peculiar knot in the sash or roomal, and delivers it to the incipient strangler, who casts it over the neck of the victim (who is surprised if possible in his sleep, that the young beginner may not be embarrassed by difficulties), and with the aid of the older Thug, quickly completes the deed. From henceforth he is bound to his instructor by the strongest ties, and will rather betray his father than the gooroo who instructed him to the honors of his profession.

After the completion of the deed, a solemn feast is held, at which, after various ceremonies, goor (or sugar) is distributed to the higher grades of Thugs, who have been previously initiated, the effect of which is believed by them to give an irresistible taste for bloodshed.

In dividing the proceeds of a robbery, a portion was first set apart for the Rajah, or Poligar, under whose protection they lived; a second was assigned to religious purposes, and the remainder divided among the members of the gang, according to an established scale.

It is impossible to make an accurate estimate of the number of victims who fell by the hands of these murderers during the first thirty-five years of this century; but the following data may enable us to approximate to the truth: Between 1826 and 1835, 1,562 prisoners were tried for the crime of Thuggee, 1,404 of whom were hanged or transported for life. Taking the average time during which each of these Thugs had been employed in murdering to have been twenty years, and supposing that each man of a gang killed one victim a year, which is far below the truth, probably, since some confessed to 200 murders, the conclusion we must arrive at is, that 1,000 to 1,500 people annually lost their lives by Thuggee.

It will be seen that there are many points of resemblance between Thugs and Freemasons. Both swear on their tools, although those of the latter are the phantom ones of the builders of the Middle Ages, whom they represent, or misrepresent. Both are entrenched in superstition, for there is none greater than that which trusts in "a Grand Lodge above" for Masonic saints, and both consecrate, the one pickaxes, and the other buildings, with pagan rites. Both have a Moor language, as appears from the symbolic jargon embodied in the dictionaries of the latter. But, above all, the latter resembles the former in its secret means of communication in courts and assemblies, and in trade, as will appear by reading the concluding chapters, constituting the key to Masonry, in the last edition of "My Experiences with Secret Societies," advertised in the Cynosure, where, alone, it is described and should be read by all to understand the purpose and operation of Freemasonry. Other points of resemblance might be cited, but these are sufficient to excite attention. Both are the offspring of iniquity and the cause or effect of moral darkness.

READER.

A SOUTHERN EXPERIENCE WITH MASONS.

BY REV. S. F. PROCTOR.

I have felt that I was a hearty co-worker in this anti-secrecy reform, ever since last winter, when I began to get acquainted with it by taking the Cynosure.

My Masonic experience, together with my trial and expulsion from the order for acknowledging to the correctness of Morgan's and Ronayne's Expositions of Freemasonry, was published in the Cynosure in April and May. The Lord gave me wonderful liberty in making my defence before the lodge; and while on my way home, feeling like a bird turned out of a cage, singing:

"The Saviour comes and walks with me,
And sweet communion here have we;
He gently leads me by his hand,
For this is heaven's border-land."

The Lord laid upon me this Scripture: "In vain is the net spread in the sight of any bird;" then I promised to do my utmost to discover this Masonic net to the uninitiated; but the care of a large family seems to keep me pretty close at home during the crop season. Then, being a little slow starting out on this mission, the hand of affliction was laid upon me; and while rolling to and fro in my bed, with high fever, the Lord seemed to roll upon me in thunder-tones this Scripture: "Cry aloud, and spare not; lift up your voice like a trumpet; show my people their transgressions, and the house of Jacob their sins. . . . I have set watchmen upon thy walls, O Jerusalem, which shall never hold their peace, day nor night; ye that make mention of the Lord, keep not silence." I said, "Lord, I'll go." I told my wife that it seemed as if the Lord was sounding these Scriptures out through me to the uttermost parts of the earth. I soon recovered.

I made my first two appointments near home, in Logan county, Nov. 25 and 26. The Lord had impressed me with "Open your mouth wide, and I will fill it." I found him as good as his word. I let some friends in Johnson county know at what time I could be there, and they made me four appointments, extending over about 15 miles. I filled three of these Dec. 2, 3 and 4.

The Lord gave me the attention of a good audience for about two hours at each place. I scattered several copies of the Cynosure, and urged the people to take it. I hope they will bear fruit yet in the way of new subscribers.

Members of the Masonic fraternity attended some of these lectures; and, while they squirmed, they never offered to reply, though they had threatened to do so at different places. One of my neighbors that had promised to follow me backed out, but said he would reply through the Paris Times (one of our county papers). He sent up his article and it went to the waste basket.

Our circuit court met on the first Monday in January, I being summoned on the regular panel for petit juror. I began whetting up my sword, to "cry aloud" at the court-house. Soon after my arrival I saw the sheriff and asked permission to lecture in the court-house two nights the second week. He said: "If the court does not use it you can have it." The judge told me he did not expect to hold court at right. I furnished our two county papers the following notice to insert: "Free Lecture.—A free Bible lecture against secret societies, to be given at the court-house, Paris, Ark., Jan. 10, 7 p. m., by S. F. Proctor, who has had thirteen years' lodge experience and eight years getting out. Come now, and let us reason together.

Come one, come all;
Come both great and small,
It is to you I wish to speak,
In neither Latin nor Greek.

A plain old story I'll tell;
It may save some soul from hell.

"Ladies and members of the Masonic fraternity especially invited to attend."

This being an unusual call in this country, quite a crowd came out, consisting of lawyers, doctors, preachers and people. Among these were several Masons. I sang them this very appropriate hymn:

"NO JESUS THERE.

"I saw a neat, well-furnished room,
And many gathered there;
'Midst rites and forms of various kinds,
They had a form of prayer.
God they addressed as he who built
This universe so fair;
But did not own his blessed Son.
They had no Jesus there.

CHORUS:

"Oh, I'd rather be the least of them,
Who are the Lord's alone,
Than wear a royal diadem,
And sit upon a throne."

"Yet in that room a Master sat;
They homage to him paid;
As 'Noble Grand' or 'Worshipful,'
They recognized their head.
And titles which belong to God,
They with a mortal share;
But they ignore the Saviour's blood,
And have no Jesus there.

"A weary stranger halted near;
Wayworn was he, and sad.
For him no fellowship had they,
No word of comfort had:
He did not have their grip, their word;
Their bounty might not share.
A Christ-bought soul, they knew him not.
They had no Jesus there.

"O how sublime! when God's great trump
This universe shall shake;
When stars shall fall, and suns die out,
And all the dead awake.
Many who learned the mystic art,
And had a standing fair,
Will hear the word 'Depart, depart;
You had no Jesus there.'"

I then showed, by their own standard works, that the above poetry was true; also showed that they, claiming to be a religious institution, teach regeneration (or a new birth) by the use of the common gavel, without the remotest reference to the atonement of Christ; noticed the difference between legal and profane swearing, the nature of an oath, and the design of an oath; the history of speculative Masonry and its despotic character, by the kidnapping, carrying away and killing of Capt. Wm. Morgan for no other crime than that of revealing the secrets of Freemasonry.

Having invited the ladies, I showed, from Masonic standard works, that no woman could be made a Mason, and that each member is sworn: "That I will not be present at the initiating, passing, or raising of an old man in dotage, a young man in nonage, an irreligious libertine, a madman, a woman, nor a fool." I called their attention to where Masons classed them, and compared their side-degrees to the side-show in connection to the large circus. I had good attention and good order, considering the crowd. One man, when leaving, said: "Everybody go home."

I announced that I would lecture again the next night and give my lodge experience, including my trial and expulsion, and closed about 9 o'clock.

At half-past six P. M. on the 11th I entered the court-house alone, lit a candle and began reading. Very soon a man approached me, and said, in a whisper, "I want to advise you, as a friend, that you had better not lecture here to-night. The Masons say it must be stopped." I said: "You are a stranger to me; what is your name?" He said: "Campbell is my name; I live east of town." I said: "Do you belong to the Masonic fraternity?" He said: "No, sir; I am just advising you as a friend." He then went out, but seemed very much excited and would hardly speak above a whisper, although there was no one but us two in the court-room.

Next, a young man came in and asked when I was going to open up. I said: "I am waiting for the crowd to gather; it is not time yet." He said: "Are you selling books that expose Masonry?" I said: "I am selling a small, cheap book, entitled 'Freemasonry at a Glance,' by E.

Ronayne; it gives the most important inside workings of the lodge." He said: "Can a man study that book and visit a lodge?" I said: "No, sir; but Ronayne's Handbook of Freemasonry gives the first three degrees in full." He said: "Can a man study that and go into a lodge?" I said: "No, sir; unless he would swear to a lie." He said: "Could he, if he would swear a lie?" I said: "Yes, sir; if he will go where he is not known." I then asked him his name. He said: "Fitzgerald." Some one then called him and he went out.

Then another man came in and said: "I came to advise you that you had better not lecture here to-night; the Masons say it has got to be stopped; and I have heard them saying that a man that would give away the secrets of Masonry ought not to be allowed to live; and if you don't stop it, you will not be able to get away from here; and I would hate to see such as that occur here." I said: "What is your name?" He said: "Modlen." I said: "Do you belong to the Masonic fraternity?" He said: "No, sir; I was just advising you for your own good."

Some one called him out; but as he went out he was met by two of my friends. One of them had lived here in town for many years, and was well acquainted with all those parties. So I soon learned that the first and third visitors were both Masons; that the second was the son of a Mason.

Amidst all this opposition I had a very respectable crowd by a little after 7 o'clock. After the reading of the 91st Psalm, and prayer, I first corrected some statements that were being made by members of the order, that they changed their grips and passwords every four years, to further deceive the people; and that Jesus Christ and George Washington were Masons. This I showed to the contrary; though there were many efforts made to disturb me, some tooting of band horns in the lower part of the court-house, or near-by, on the outside, and there seemed to be some thumping on the outside of the wall at my back. Notwithstanding all this, the Lord enabled me to "cry aloud, and spare not."

After relating my lodge experience, I read part of the contents of two letters which I received from Rev. A. J. Millard, of Little Rock, Ark., dated Apr. 21st, 1892, as follows:

"MR. S. F. PROCTOR, Ellsworth, Ark.:—Dear Sir: I see from an article in the Cynosure that I have one more friend in Arkansas that I knew not of, and here is my hand; but not with the Masonic grips. I wish to ask you some questions. Do you believe that a man can be a Christian while affiliating with all the devilry of the lodge? Do you belong to a Christian church? If so, what denomination? Are there Masons in the church to which you belong? If so, how can you remain with them when, if they keep their lodge oath, they must cut your throat, tear your tongue out by the roots, tear your left breast open, take out your heart and vitals, sever your body in twain, etc.?"

"Several men here have quit the lodge, but they will not say a word against it.

"Many members of the Baptist church belong to the lodge; the deacon is one of the grand lodge officers, and never can be at prayer meeting on account of lodge performances which he has to attend. I had just as soon take the sacrament of the Lord's Supper from Judas himself, as from the hand of one of these fellows.

"Geo. Thornburg, publisher of Sword and Trowel, the organ of the grand lodge, has about a yard of sacrilegious titles attached to his name, enough to make an honest sinner tremble; but these fellows are not as sensitive as devils, for devils believe there is a God and tremble. I think the devil would count himself happy if he could get out of some of these fellows if he had to go into a half-decent hog, run down into the sea and be drowned."

I closed at a quarter past nine.

I communicated (by letter) the conduct, together with the threats made by the members of this fraternity against me, to the circuit judge, and called his attention to the same spirit existing among them to-day that existed in 1826, when they kidnapped, carried away and murdered Capt. Wm. Morgan for no violation of law, but for no other crime than revealing Masonry. I asked him if he could lay aside his prejudice and look down with disdain and contempt upon such conduct, which is not only un-Christian but un-

American; that is, to enforce Masonic law. My letter contained seven pages. I asked him to conscientiously weigh this matter and give me an answer.

After about four days, when I entered the court, on Monday, the 16th, he called me to his stand and handed me my letter back without a word. I found written on the back this short sentence: "Let your own conscience answer your enquiry."

Well, bless God! my conscience has answered this question to my satisfaction, long ago; and, although alone here (as far as human aid is concerned), I tell them that there is a little cloud rising in the North, and it is spreading fast and coming South, that it is to sweep this throat-cutting, tongue-pulling, breast-tearing, heart-plucking, body-severing, bowel-burning, God-dishonoring and Christ-rejecting institution from the face of the globe; when God shall sweep away this refuge of lies and the waters shall overflow the hiding-places.

Ellsworth, Arkansas.

SECRET POLITICO-LABOR SOCIETIES.

At Memphis, Tenn., on the 19th of November, 1892, an organization styled "The Industrial Legion of the United States" was formed by prominent leaders of the People's party, who are also prominent in the Farmers' Alliance, the object of which is to carry out politically the measures embodied in the declaration of principles of the Omaha platform of the People's party, together with "free speech, a free ballot and a fair count."

The Industrial Legion embraces three classes; the first consisting of male members over twenty-one years of age, intended to group together as voters, and regarded as the senior class; the second, the junior class, consists of male members under 21 and over 14 years of age, who are educated and trained to become voters of the People's party; and the third class is the Woman's Aid Corps, which is an auxiliary to the senior legion. The legion is modeled after the Grand Army, and partakes of a secret organization character, while the meetings may be secret or open at the option of the members.

The organization of the Industrial Legion of the United States was perfected by the election of the following officers: Paul Vandervoort, Commander-in-Chief; Frank Burkett, of Mississippi, Vice Commander-in-Chief; J. H. Turner, Adjutant General; George F. Washburn, of Massachusetts, Quartermaster General; Congressman T. E. Watson, National Recruiting Officer; J. F. Willits, Kansas, National Recruiting Officer of the Western Division; W. S. Morgan, National Sentinel; Executive Council: H. E. Taubeneck, Illinois; Marion Cannon, Congressman-elect, of California; Marion Butler, J. H. Davis, of Texas; I. E. Dean, of New York; J. H. Willits, Kansas. These, together with the four highest officers, will constitute the council. Of the officers of the Woman's Relief Corps, two were elected by this body as provisional officers to organize that department—Mrs. Anna L. Diggs, of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. Mary Todd, of Michigan.

An elaborate plan of a cotton combine was formulated by the Farmers' Alliance and Industrial Union, by which it is sought to control the cotton business of the South. Delegates from most of the Southern States held a meeting and elected R. J. Sledge, of Texas, President; General A. M. West, of Mississippi, Vice President, and J. R. Maxwell, of Alabama, Financial Agent. The headquarters are in Memphis, in charge of General West. The new organization proposes to borrow money from the East as cheap as local bankers can secure it, and thus save to the producer the difference in interest. The same plan was tried in Texas some years ago and failed ignominiously. The only new feature in the present plan is that cotton factories over the country are to be admitted to the combine, though not to the alliance.

"As to the question of the attitude of Christians toward the secret orders, two or three things seem to me very plain. One of them is this: that the whole movement of things on the line of secrecy is thoroughly antagonistic to the movement on the line of Scripture and Christianity."—From address of Rev. E. P. Goodwin, D. D., pastor First Congregational Church, Chicago, to Christian Conference, April, 1890.

THE PENNSYLVANIA STATE ANTI-SECRECY CONVENTION.

FROM THE NEW ENGLAND AGENT.

ALLEGHENY, Pa., March 1, 1893.

One of the strongest and most successful "all-around" conventions of the season closed here last evening. Bro. Swartz and Sister Ella Reidy "swept the board" in the closing two addresses. "Women to the front" in reform was illustrated, and her ability to "hold the fort" fully demonstrated. You have a full, and, on the whole, a very creditable report, in the papers sent you. When I say that there was marked ability in the addresses I am not compelled to make any exception. From the first devotional service to the closing benediction, the bright cloud overshadowed us, and the place was filled with light and liberty. To God be all the glory! Not less than 700 were in attendance on the last evening.

J. P. STODDARD.

THE REPORT IN DETAIL.

The annual convention of the Pennsylvania State Christian Association assembled in Carnegie Music Hall, Allegheny, on Monday afternoon, February 27, with an attendance of fifty delegates.

FIRST SESSION.

Rev. David McAllister, D.D., pastor of the Covenant Church, Pittsburgh, and editor of the Political Dissenter, presided at the afternoon session, and also made the opening prayer.

The address of welcome to the delegates was delivered by Rev. W. H. McMillan, D.D., who greeted those present, and proceeded to show that secret societies are one of the greatest enemies of the church.

Rev. J. P. Stoddard, the New England agent of the N. C. A., then took the platform and gave an illustrated chart talk on "Things Done of Them in Secret". In his opening the speaker said that nearly every pastor in Boston and New England was in sympathy with the anti-secret society movement, and that there is among the people a growing mistrust of these societies, and they now see that the time has come when this question must be met face to face and discussed in a spirit of Christianity and kindness.

The speaker further said that a big change had come over the people of New England, and large numbers are withdrawing their membership from those secret organizations. Mr. Stoddard then proceeded to illustrate, with the aid of a highly-colored chart, the mysteries of the initiation into Freemasonry. He took for the purpose of illustration a candidate in the person of a pastor of a country church, who was led to believe that through Masonic connections his power would be greater, and then took him to the Masonic temple on a Wednesday night, thus neglecting prayer meeting.

The lodge rooms were illustrated, as well as the positions of the Most Worshipful Master and other officers of lesser degree. The speaker then brought the candidates, three in number—namely, a Chinaman, a corner grocer and the pastor, and the initiation was gone through, including the oath of secrecy taken. The speaker then told how the members were sworn to such secrecy that even their wives, who had a perfect right to know, were kept in dense ignorance. The initiation was characterized as the first infamous downward step.

Great stress was laid on the alleged fact that the lodge requires the first right from its members, and that they must lay aside everything else for its claims. The speaker then, with the aid of his chart, followed up the different degrees of Masonry to the Scottish rites, thirty-three degrees. The members of secret orders he characterized as law-breakers, and said the sum and substance of Masonry was that men were required to renounce their religion. The forms of initiation, etc., are from paganism and sun-worship, and the members of the organization must therefore, become worshipers of the sun. The husband is compelled, under penalty of having his throat cut and his tongue pulled out, to keep away from his wife that which she has a right to know. The speaker said that one member of a secret society in a church could do more injury to the cause of Christianity than 100 on the outside, and those present were asked to just push the battle and they would finally win.

The session ended with prayer.

SECOND SESSION.

The convention re-assembled in the evening and there was a fair attendance.

Music was furnished by Prof. Liefeld and his Haydn Mandolin Quartette.

Opening devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. Dr. McMillan.

At their conclusion, Rev. William Dillon, editor of the Christian Conservator, Dayton, Ohio, spoke on "The Divine Condemnation of the Secret Lodge System." He used quotations from the Scriptures which he claimed tended to show that the Lord did not favor the secret-lodge plan. Among his readings was the 64th Psalm. Freemasonry, he said, has partaken of the nature of sun-worship. It violates the law of God because selfishness is the foundation of the lodge principle. They don't do a thing for a person because he is a man, but because he can give a certain little sign. As an illustration of this selfishness he cited a case where the United American Mechanics got a capable man removed from his position in order to get it for one of their members. In conclusion he said that Masonry strikes the name of Jesus from the Scriptures, as quoted in the Blue Lodge and other degrees. Christians ought to have no fellowship with such a thing as that.

The Rev. M. A. Gault, of Iowa, spoke on "The Suppressed Question." He said that it is dangerous when in a republic like ours there is an effort to suppress the agitation of any reform question. Slavery was such a suppressed question for years before the war. Continuing, he likened the recent society question to the slavery one in effect. They are similar to idolatrous altars and are false religions, dishonoring and insulting to God. He referred to lodge rooms always being on the top floors of the buildings they occupied, and compared it with the worshipers of Baal, always selecting hilltops for the altars. They never selected valleys; nor are the Masons ever found in basements. Every Masonic rite and ceremony are borrowed from the ancient pagan worshipers of Samaria; every rite of Baal worship and every principle of Freemasonry are similar. Some of the Christian missionaries to China, he continued, have found time to establish Masonic lodges, and thus the church government even is planting in a foreign country a worse evil than they found there in the original. The timidity of many of the churches in dealing with this question because members of the order belong to the church, he said, "is like Francis Murphy's method of saving drunkards: not to interfere with the saloon or the liquor-seller, but simply to persuade the man not to drink." In conclusion he said that the young men of our large cities to a large extent are not in the churches, because they are in the lodges. The lodges are only training schools for Christless politicians. Mr. Gault's address concluded the meeting.

THE RESOLUTIONS.

The Committee on Resolutions reported as follows; and the report was adopted:

Resolved, That the multiplication of secret orders, with their far-reaching network of lodges and vast multitudes of members, organized for the promotion of almost every conceivable end, absorbing much of the time and money and controlling to a great extent the interests of a large proportion of the men of our communities, is a subject that ought to receive public attention and demands the careful investigation of every intelligent Christian and patriot as a system that must in the end exert an immense influence for good or evil on the people and on every institution of our country.

We hold that any voluntary organization requiring an oath or pledge of the concealment of unknown facts as a condition of membership is itself the evidence of iniquity.

We disapprove even of those secret societies which are chiefly devoted to the purpose of life insurance as calculated to beguile the unwary into trusting institutions not open to public inspection nor under State control, and as tending to deceive their patrons by fraudulent operations kept secret again from their own members, leading to the downfall of the institutions upon which rest the hopes of the insured, as illustrated in the cases of the orders of Solon and of the Iron Hall.

We put on record our condemnation of secret orders professing to advance the interests of labor, and also of combinations among capitalists, as of the nature of conspiracies against each other, in that they tend to put the worst elements of each class in control, lead to conflicts, strikes and lockouts, hurtful to both parties and to the community at large, and in the course of their strife incite under cover of secrecy to the use of methods unjustifiable, inhuman and cruel.

We also testify against all minor secret orders, however good their professed purpose may be, as doing damage to their cause by their secrecy, as being training schools for the greater and more objectionable orders and as being unworthy of the support of generous men and women of high character and having noble ends in life.

We declare secret societies to be a menace to the state; a fact proved in history by their expulsion from some kingdoms, and by their being obliged in others to receive a member of the reigning-house into their secret conclaves; and because they secure political support for the unworthy, corrupt the jury system, and in great measure deprive all outside classes, the women, the poor who cannot pay dues and the open-hearted who will not be a party to secrecy of that justice which lies at the foundation of the political structure.

And last, we testify against all secret societies in the name of Him who ever spake openly and in secret said nothing. We cannot but bear witness against those who deceive men to their eternal loss by upholding the morality and religion of the lodge as a means of salvation apart from the atonement of the blood of Christ, who in their prayers ask nothing in the name of the only Mediator between God and man and would blot his name out of his own Book. As a Christian association we boldly assert that the belief in God common to the Christian, the Jew, the Deist and the Mohammedan is not of the nature of saving faith and that the orders which hold and lead their members to hold to such a position are a snare to souls, a peril to the church and are a part of the anti-Christian system which the Lord shall consume with the spirit of his mouth and shall destroy with the brightness of his coming.

THIRD SESSION.

At the Tuesday morning session, devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. J. P. Stoddard.

The treasurer of the State association stated that he could only give an approximate report of $261.62 in regular contributions; that since about $200 had been contributed, and that the balance in the treasury is $92.

Nominations for officers of the State association for the ensuing year were then presented, and the following were elected: President, Rev. Samuel S. Collins, of Allegheny; Vice President, Rev. W. Coleman, of Allegheny; Secretary, Rev. J. S. T. Milligan, of Beaver; Treasurer, Rev. R. C. Wylie, of Wilkinsburg.

An open parliament was instituted, in which speeches were limited to five minutes each, the subject being "Secret and Oath-Bound Societies." The discussion was participated in by John Thresher, Rev. Wm. Dillon, of Dayton, Ohio, Mrs. Ella Reedy of Tyrone, Rev. Mr. Swartz, of Chicago, Rev. Mr. Little, Rev. Mr. Martin, Wm. Steele and others. Dr. Stewart, a retired missionary, said there are many Freemasons in India, most of whom were Hindoos or Mohammedans; but the Freemasonry in India is an American and English graft, and the Mohammedans had joined through English influence. Among other secret societies he mentioned the Dervishes; and all of the assassinations in India, he said, were committed by them.

Rev. M. B. Patterson, of Hartstown, Pa., spoke on "The Oath." He condemned the idea of banding men together and forcing them by an oath to live up to certain principles before they knew whether those principles entirely meet their views.

The session was closed by the address of Rev. Charles E. Temple, of Brockwayville, Pa., who spoke on "The Development of Our Work." The speaker reviewed the work of the Association from the time of its inception, and set forth the intention and object of its members.

FOURTH SESSION.

At the Tuesday afternoon session Rev. J. S. T. Milligan, of Beaver, opened with an interesting address on "The Principles Underlying Our Work." His paper was a discussion of the efforts being directed towards the suppression of the secret association evil and the causes which are calling for their labors.

Rev. Samuel S. Collins, of Allegheny, then addressed the convention on "Secret Societies and the Temperance Reform." He said that, like every other cause, the temperance cause had its secret societies and they had proved a curse. He used figures to prove that temperance has constantly been taking backward steps since the Good Templars, Sons of Temperance, and various other secret societies which were started to assist the cause, had been organized. In speaking of the Masons the speaker said they were sun-worshipers. They trace their origin back for thousands of years and find their name in the Indian "Free Masa," meaning "children of the sun". In religion the secret society has always been a drawback; and missionaries in Africa, and all heathen lands, have found the secret society has been their most serious antagonist. Religion, education, industry, and all other branches of art, science and learning have had their secret societies. The farmers of Iowa formed the grange. They paid $325,000 to join; the grange was disrupted, the money was gone, and 75,000 farmers were "taken in" to the extent of $325,000. He closed with a denunciation of the efforts of the various temperance secret organizations in past prohibition fights at the polls.

Rev. J. C. Martin, of Etna, Pa., was the next speaker, and his subject was "Secrecy a Temptation to the Commission of Crime". His speech was the most remarkable of the day, and at its close the convention was almost thrown into a panic by several outsiders who wished to take the floor in defence of labor organizations.

Mr. Martin admitted the right of any individual to have a secret, or for a firm doing business to have their own secret organizations, but declared that secret societies only shielded criminals, and persons desiring to break the laws of the country had themselves elected to membership in such orders. He cited an instance in a town where he lived. A saloon-keeper killed a tinner because the tinner broke his jaw with a brick. The murder was committed some time after the tinner made his assault on the saloon-keeper. The murderer was a Mason, and, through the connivance of judge, jury and prosecuting attorney, he was acquitted. "All that is wanted," said Mr. Martin, "to induce a man to commit a crime is to be assured that he will have protection from the law; and this he finds in the Masonic order."

"Come down to Homestead," said Mr. Martin. "On July 6 last there was a riot there and men were killed. Several men have been brought to trial, but a secret and oath-bound organization deliberately perjured its members in court in order to clear those men who were undoubtedly guilty. Those trials are evidence of the work of secret societies. A few days ago a woman came into my office. She was dressed in mourning, and she told me her husband had been poisoned in the Homestead mills. Poisoned by inspiration of a secret society which sought to control that mill."

Mr. Martin then sat down, and a little man with gray hair covered with a skull cap arose, and shrieked, "Mr. President," and the chairman asked his name. "Andrew Price," said the little man. "I am a working man, and I want to ask the speaker why he does not give it to the Carnegie Company as hard as he does to its employees?"

Mr. Price became so greatly excited that very little of his speech could be heard.

Mr. Martin replied that he did not think the Carnegie Steel Company a secret organization.

Another workingman on the other side of the hall jumped up and said it was a secret organization, for Chairman Frick had refused to give away its secrets to the congressional committee.

Then followed a spirited discussion on the rights and wrongs of Homesteaders. It all ended suddenly by one lone woman standing up and asking: "Mr. Chairman, is Mr. Frick on trial here?" Everybody quieted down at once when the chairman said "No."

FIFTH AND LAST SESSION.

Tuesday night's session was the concluding one of the convention. Seven hundred persons were present, and much interest was shown. Rev. Dr. Witherspoon presided.

Rev. S. H. Swarts, of Chicago, delivered an address. His subject was: "Are Secret Societies a Blessing to the Laboring Man?"

After classing almost all who earn their living as laboring men, he proceeded to argue against secret societies. He said they establish a false system of religion and a false system of charity. They put forth as charity and benevolence what is simply a right. The insurance feature is not benevolence because every cent of it is paid for. In comparison with this he puts forth what the church does in the way of charity and gets no return. Continuing, he contended that the secret society is injurious to home, church and state. To prove this he spoke of the evil habits contracted through bad associations in the lodge. Men were taken away from their homes.

Touching on the capital and labor question, Mr. Swarts said the capitalists have got to be taught they are not as big as they think they are. They can't get along without the laboring men.

The laboring men's remedy is to stand together at the polls. The most refined and consummate tyranny that is exercised is that exercised by the labor organizations. They are without mercy or justice, and he wondered that sensible men put up with it. Every man who joins such an association gives himself a master, and a hard one. In this direction the speaker related incidents of men whose families were starving because not allowed to work in "scab shops." In conclusion he advised them to stop quarreling with the capitalists and with themselves, but to stand together on a high moral platform and stand shoulder to shoulder at the ballot box and they can do what they will.

During the progress of Mr. Swarts' address two young men arose, and after expressing in a few remarks their disgust at the "bigotry and narrow-mindedness" of the proceedings, stalked out of the hall. Their action created a little stir, and Mr. Swarts said he was sorry for them, and that he would pray for them; they did not know any better.

Mrs. Reid, of Tyrone, was introduced and gave her experience with the Odd-fellows. After detailing her marriage, joining church and home life for several years, she said the first cloud on her domestic sky appeared. Her husband was asked to join the Odd-fellows. She objected, but after much discussion and opposition he was initiated. She was still opposed to it and prayed for light, and an arclight was not to be compared to the light she got. She then distributed anti-secret society literature. Then the Odd-fellows boycotted her husband's feed-store and he had to close up his business, which he did just in time to escape losing anything by the panic. The lodge broke up next, and the skeleton they used, some poor dead man's bones who did not know what was going to become of him when he was hauled away in a hearse, were shipped off. Her husband went to another town, and there was hounded until he was reinstated in the Odd-fellows. Mrs. Reid was still determined in her opposition, and there was not the confidence in the family there should be while the husband kept secrets from his wife. She persisted in going with him on lodge nights and finally made him see he should be ashamed to go to places where he couldn't take his wife. He has seen his error, and happiness is now appearing, and Mrs. Reid will continue to pray for aid in opposing secret societies.

The speaker was heartily applauded at the conclusion of her remarks.

REV. W. B. STODDARD.

To a reporter of the Pittsburgh Commercial Gazette, in reply to inquiries, Bro. Stoddard said:

"The Association takes the ground that the member of the oath-bound society places his oath above the civil oath, and that this makes a person disloyal; and, therefore, secret societies should be put down by law. Our crusade is against all oath-bound societies, and not directed against any in particular. We hold the view that they are sources of jealousy and alarm to society at large; that they are dangerous to civil liberty and just government, and are unfavorable to mutual confidence and harmony among men living together under popular institutions. We hold it that membership in an oath-bound society and in a Christian church are incompatible. The society alienates the heart of the Christian from his allegiance to his church."

"In all secret societies there is a tendency to disrupt religion. Take Freemasonry, for instance. The Masons have a doctrine of their own, a liturgy of their own, oftentimes performed by men whose characters are not consonant with religious teachings. We say that a man can't be a Mason and a good citizen. We are making no attack on Masonry as Masonry, but because it is a leading society. In Prussia, Poland, Russia and Spain Masonry is forbidden by law, and in this country Vermont and Rhode Island have statutes imposing a $200 fine for issuing extra-judicial oaths, but they are not enforced. A similar law existed in Massachusetts, but it has been repealed."

Mr. Stoddard added that the Missouri and Ohio synods of the Lutheran church had prohibited its members from taking oaths, and that the Wesleyan Methodists, the Friends, the United Brethren, the Free Methodists and the Dunkards all have similar testimony. The Reformed Presbyterians and the United Presbyterians also had laws against their members belonging to secret, oath-bound societies, but they were not enforced. There were many prominent secret-order men, he said, who were church members against the rulings of their church.

REV. JOSEPH COOK.

The Pittsburgh Dispatch's reporter said:

One of the chief backers of the National Christian Association is Joseph Cook, of Boston. Rev. J. P. Stoddard, the father, said he had a talk with Mr. Cook last Monday, and the noted lecturer still holds the same views that he always did. This is how Joseph Cook sums up secret societies: "They can be shown historically to have often led to crime; are natural sources of jealousy and just alarm to society at large; are especially unfavorable to harmony and mutual confidence among men living together under popular institutions."

"They are dangerous to the general cause of civil liberty and just government; are condemned by many of the wisest statesmen, preachers and reformers; are opposed to Christian principles; are forbidden in some portions of our Republic by the civil law, and ought to be in all portions; many European governments hold Freemasonry under grave suspicion as a mask for conspiracies against throne and altar. In Prussia, Russia, Poland and Spain Freemasonry is prohibited by law. Secret societies are forbidden to church members by some Christian denominations and ought to be by all."

APPRECIATION.

The editor of the Pittsburgh Commercial Gazette, writes as follows of the convention:

"The exceedingly interesting meeting of the Christian Reform Association in Carnegie Hall, Allegheny, came to a close last evening. In numbers and enthusiasm the convention fully came up to the expectation of its friends. While the antagonism of this association to secret orders may be distasteful to many, no one who has visited this convention will be disposed to question the character, earnestness, honesty or zeal of its members. The charge of fanaticism cannot be brought against men, many of whom are known throughout the land for their good works, and who will go down from this convention to pursue in the spirit of the Master their everyday work. Whatever results the meeting may have, it is certain that the delegates favorably impressed all with whom they associated while here, whether in the convention hall or out of it."

CHARLES P. SUMNER, father of the Senator, and a renouncing Mason: "Masonic engagements, whether they are called oaths, obligations, or promises, ought never to be made. They are not sanctioned by law and are not obligatory. They make it a Masonic crime to divulge that which the good of the community requires should not be concealed."

CORRESPONDENCE.

"MASONRY AND THE CHURCH."

GALVA, Ill., Feb. 21, 1893.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—Brother R. W. Lyman, in his article in the Cynosure of February 16, makes a good point when he says: "We well know that Masonry is a great curse to humanity and an offense to God, and so a crime against divine law as well as just human statutes. But there is a greater sin even than that; greater because of its own infraction of God's law, and also because it is a bulwark behind which Masonry is shielded from the overcoming power of the attacks made upon it. This particular sin is sectarianism;" and then speaks of Masonry as "twin sister to sectism".

Now this allegation I believe to be true.

As for "sectarianism," it is only the legitimate fruit of "sectism"; for it is rather difficult to be "one of a sect" without being "devoted to the interests of that party"; and sectism is certainly no aid in battling the giant evil of Masonry or the rum curse.

I am persuaded that this same sin of sectism is the greatest obstacle in the way of Christianity and reform there is to contend with. What could be a greater hindrance? And is it not a fact that the professed Christian world is making the great mistake of trying to love God with the head instead of with the heart? An intellectual Christianity has taken the place of a spiritual Christianity. The sin of sectism has driven out and destroyed spirituality until a head Christianity is about all that is left. But a head, or merely intellectual, Christianity leaves the heart unchanged, uncleansed and unfortified against Satan and evil, and thereby becomes a bulwark for the lodge and many other evils. Heart Christianity serves but one Master, even Christ, and worships but one God, the Father; but head Christianity will serve different masters, worship at a Christian altar, a lodge altar, and the altar of mammon, and claim to be good Christianity. Thus sectism, with its boasted intellectual Christianity, is giving much "aid and comfort" to the cause of secrecy; standing as a screen and shelter for the lodge, while the lodge serves the saloon in the same capacity. And the ministry are not, as a body, standing in the breach; are not coming up to the help of the Lord against the mighty as they should. Thank God! there are honorable exceptions; but many seem to have only a head Christianity; they preach from the head, and it reaches only the head, while the heart remains unmoved. Such a Christianity, coupled with another error and fruit of sectism, viz., the trying to understand and know God through science and theory, leads and drives the people into conditions where it is almost impossible to reach them with a pure Gospel or a real reform. Some are driven into infidelity, and cast away the good and bad together. Others drift into the lodge, claiming that lodge religion is "good enough for them"; while not a few claim to enjoy both kinds. Howbeit, heart or spiritual Christianity will not intermingle with the lodge or any other false religion. But others stand aloof and seem to think a little morality will save them; while a multitude are drawn under the yoke of this popular Christianity, and into the sect churches, where they, generally, are quite safe from any attacks from Bible Christianity; and are made to feel very secure.

To establish more firmly this condition of things, as it would seem, much is being done through Endeavor societies and similar organizations, to train the young, everywhere, into this intellectual Christianity. Well may the Lord complain of the people now, as he did of Israel: "My people have changed their glory for that which doth not profit." They "have committed two evils; they have forsaken me, the fountain of living waters, and hewed them out cisterns, broken cisterns, that can hold no water." Beloved, let us examine ourselves, and know our true standing with God. Are we gathering with Christ, or scattering? Are we contending earnestly, from true and sanctified hearts, "for the faith once delivered to the saints"?

Oh, for a revival of Bible Christianity!

R. CANNING.

CALLING THINGS BY THEIR RIGHT NAMES.

McCracken, Pa., February 20, 1893.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—I take this opportunity of calling your attention to the way the papers have of calling the Homestead riot and similar murderous strikes "labor troubles," and "the unfortunate differences between capital and labor," etc. What soft names the press has for the treasonable conspiracies hatched by the secret empire, enforced by intimidations of all kinds and degrees, from epithets to murder, assassination and poisoning! What a monstrous lie the press assumes in calling the strikers "the labor"! Instead, they are only a small per cent of labor. I think eight-tenths of the labor of the country would resent the imputation as a vile slander.

The majority of labor is not fighting capital; nor is it true that the chief fight of the strikers is with capitalists and capital. Sometimes they fight them, just as they war with anything they cannot control; but they are always fighting unsworn or free labor. Their quarrel with capital is only an episode in their great fight with free labor. If the press would generally say that it was a fight between slave and free-labor, it would do more to clear the befogged moral atmosphere than anything else.

The savagery displayed at Homestead and elsewhere by the strikers proves that their methods are ancient, even if their orders are not. They are too old for our times. What a devilish malignity the lodge-dupes display! This is shown in the treatment of their own clan brethren. As long as the strikers fought, or even refused to work, their friends in crime elsewhere, in a measure, supported them; but as soon as the Homesteaders were willing to work the lodge charities ceased, and they were left in poverty the tender mercies of a community they had outraged.

If a person could forget their crimes, a more pitiable people could hardly be thought of; in poverty, deserted by their friends; many of them on trial for their lives and liberties; all of these begging for the work they had so wickedly quit, and only a part of them getting it. On all our roads may be seen the pack-peddler and the tramp, the remnant of the army that fought at Homestead in July last.

After the battle the strikers said that it was only the first chapter of the war. Now, if the courts were done with them, we could close the last chapter.

JOSEPH HOUSTON.

THE SILVER PURCHASE LAW.

WAUPACA, Wis., February, 1893.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—The story of the Irishman who had caught a venomous serpent by the tail, and was "waiting for some one to help him let go," illustrates the slowness of Congress in repealing the Sherman silver purchase act that requires $4,500,000 of bullion to be purchased each month, and for which silver certificates are issued. This, together with the constant decline in the price of silver is driving out the gold, there being large exports to Europe, and bringing us nearer and nearer to a single silver standard, which would not be "money" in other nations.

Mr. Sherman sees his great mistake, and, together with others of both the great parties, would be glad to ward off the danger by a speedy repeal.

There are two interests that oppose: the owners of silver mines in the West, who desire, as long as possible, to keep up the price of their product, and the friends of cheap money.

So strong have these influences been that our government still holds the silver serpent in its grasp.

Instead of emulating the wisdom of Solomon, who sought to make silver cheap, and did "make it as stones," we have been trying for years to keep up its price by legislation, while the enormous production has constantly defeated our efforts, and the price has continually declined.

Nor has the silver conference at Brussels at all affected the result. There is manifestly a surplus of silver for coinage purposes all over the world. Even in India, which used to be the great mart, the supply is more than the demand.

The true remedy is to treat silver just as we treat iron and copper, wheat and cotton; let it find its level in the markets of the world, and stop seeking to give it a fictitious value for the benefit of the owners of silver mines.

If it is desired to have a representative money, then paper is cheaper and more convenient; or aluminum, the lightest of all metals, and the most difficult to counterfeit. H. H. HINMAN.

HEROD'S OATH.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., February, 1893.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—I once heard a Baptist minister say that dancing caused the death of John the Baptist; it was on an occasion when he was lecturing to the younger members of his flock against the sinful practice (as he explained it) of "tripping the light fantastic toe." He was evidently mistaken; it was that oath; yet, "nevertheless for his oath's sake and them that set with him at meat he commanded it to be given her." It scarcely needs an argument to prove that Freemasons take a similar, if not a worse oath; and to prove that fact, I quote from the Master Mason's oath: "Furthermore do I promise and swear that I will obey all due signs and summons sent me from a lodge of Master Masons, or given to me by a brother of this degree." Now this is very plain to be understood. He has, previous to this, taken an oath that sooner than reveal any of the secrets of Masonry, he would suffer his throat to be cut across and his tongue torn out by the roots, etc.; and when he takes the oath to obey all summonses sent him from a lodge of Master Masons, he may reasonably expect to receive a summons to go and perform the part of an executioner on some one that violated a like oath, which he had himself taken. Now in this respect Herod was not guilty. "And the king was excusing sorry;" but Masons cannot claim any excuse or reason why they should not obey an order or summons from the lodge to do the bloody deed, for of their own free will have they taken the oath to do it. Herod had no reason to expect that that silly girl would make such a request; and, therefore, it is plainly to be seen that the Master Mason has taken a worse oath than Herod!

A. J. MILLARD.

LITERATURE.

CURRENT MAGAZINES.

The March number of the Century Magazine has for a prominent attraction a remarkable reminiscence of Napoleon I.—the voyage to Elba, described by the English officer in charge, with portraits, by Thos. Usher, R. N. There are also new installments of the serials of An Embassy to Florence, illustrated, by Thos. A. Janvier; Letters of Two Brothers (General and Senator Sherman); Sweet Bells Out of Tune, by Mrs. Burton Harrison; Benefits Forgot, by Wolcott Balestier; The Cosmopolis City Club, by Washington Gladden. Other papers and authors are the following: Violoncello of Jufrow Rozenboom, by Anna E. King, illustrated; Silence, by Maria B. Chapin; Jamaica, by Gilbert Gaul, illustrated; Caprice; Westminster Abbey, illustrated, by Henry B. Fuller; The Rousing of Mrs. Potter, illustrated, by Gertrude Smith; The Present State of Old Testament Criticism, by Edw. L. Curtis; Chicago, by Marion C. Smith; Meridian, by Chas. T. Dazey; Camille Saint-Saens, with portrait, by Henry E. Krehbiel; Have Ye Niver Heerd o' Rose Creagan? illustrated, by Jennie E. T. Dowe; My Sister Lydia, from a painting by Edmund C. Tarbell; The Dead King, by Geo. Horton; Artist Life by the North Sea, illustrated, by H. W. Ranger; One Touch of Nature, by Edgar Fawcett; At the Keith Ranch, by Anna Fuller, illustrated. The Topics of the Times, Open Letters, and In Lighter Vein departments also possess variety and interest. New York: The Century Company.

Scribner's Magazine for March maintains its usual character for interest and literary excellence, with the following papers and authors: Audubon's Story of his Youth, by Maria R. Audubon—introduction by himself, with portraits and drawings; The Jaffa and Jerusalem Railway, illustrated, by Selah Merrill; New Chapters of Mrs. Frances Burnett Hodgson's A Memory of a Mind of a Child—The One I Knew Best of All; A Saharan Caravan, a telling sketch of the great desert, illustrated; The Man in Red, by T. R. Sullivan; The French Symbolists, by Aline Gorren; The Violin, illustrated, by Harriet Prescott Spofford; The Cedars, drawn by C. P. Cranch, illustrating an editorial; The Work of the Andover House in Boston, by Wm. J. Tucker, illustrated—the eighth in the series of papers on "The Poor in Great Cities"; The Tale of a Goblin Horse, by Chas. C. Nott; Ezra Hardman, M. A., by Schuyler Shelton; Wood-Songs—III., by Arthur S. Hardy; Historic Moments—The Death of John Quincy Adams in the Capitol at Washington, by Rob't C. Winthrop; with editorials. New York: Chas. Scribner's Sons.

The March number of Worthington's Magazine opens with a superbly illustrated article upon The Chicago Woman's Club, written by Sara A. Underwood, one of its notable members. Other contents are: Phillips Brooks—A Study, illustrated, by Miss Lilian Whiting, a personal friend of the lamented Bishop; Mrs. Mary A. Livermore's third paper in "Ole Virginia" Fifty Years Ago, is filled with pleasant incidents; a posthumous contribution by the late Amelia B. Edwards—How I Write a Novel; Phenomena of the Desert, by Colonel W. Knox; A Fiery Furnace and Soporifics, by R. M. Manley; Mercy, by Charlotte M. Holloway; The Wish, by Ella Wheeler Wilcox; In March, by Wm. F. Barnard; Thought, by Ninette M. Lowater, and the Touch of Art, by Albert B. Payne. The several capital departments of this magazine—Health Talks, The World Beautiful, Our Young People, and the Shining Hour—are a distinctive and magnetic feature of this very excellent magazine. Hartford, Conn.: A. D. Worthington & Co.

St. Nicholas for March is decidedly entertaining, with copious illustrations and a great abundance of pleasant stories, sketches and verses. Among the most prominent features are: Philadelphia—A City of Homes, by Talcott Williams; The Garret at Grandfather's, by Mary Halleck Foote; A Tournament of Roses, by Chas. Fred. Holder; The Three Caravels of Columbus, by Lieut. John M. Ellicott, U. S. N.—timely and interesting; Inanimate Things Animated, a series of comical pictures. Also continuations of Polly Oliver's Problem; Holly-berry and Mistletoe, and the White Cave. The other contents will also find delighted readers. New York: The Century Co.

The January Century has been out of print for some time, and of the February number the publishers now have unfilled orders for more than five thousand copies awaiting a new edition.

LODGE NOTES.

(From Secret Society Journals.)

DERELICT FREEMASONS.

A paragraph of Grand Master Goodale's recent address to the Masonic Grand Lodge of Ohio contains an interesting revelation: "When I say to you that there is in this jurisdiction a lodge of eighty members, sixty of whom are under suspension for non payment of dues; and when I further remark that in this jurisdiction of 36,000 Masons, there are almost 10 per cent under suspension for non-payment of dues; and when it is known that there are Masters of lodges in this State who do not, and will not, conform to the rules governing delinquent members; and that there are hundreds of Masons in this State who have not paid their dues, and are not suspended—all of which would be prevented if the officers of the delinquent lodges would exercise reasonable energy and attention—you will, I know, pardon me for any over earnestness I may manifest."

ODD-FELLOWS AT THE EXPOSITION.

Grand Sire Campbell, Sovereign Lodge I. O. O. F., refuses to sanction a change of the time fixed for the grand demonstration of the order at Chicago, from the fourth Monday in September to an earlier date in the summer. The time for that affair was fixed by the Sovereign Grand Lodge, in session, and the Grand Sire says he sees no reason for the change. Another reason he should give is that he has no right to change the fixed and final action of the body he serves—not commands.

THE MASONIC ESTIMATE OF WOMEN.

A Mason's contract is complete in all its details and contains an express provision that persons made incompetent by the civil law from making a valid contract are not eligible to membership in the fraternity. Atheists, idiots, infants, imbeciles, insane persons, bondmen and women cannot be made Masons, but the real reasons why not, never seems to have occurred to one Mason in a thousand. Ask any Mason you meet "why can not a woman be a Mason?" and you will invariably receive an answer ascribing some vulgar physical disqualification. "Because she cannot keep a secret" is a sample of the most familiar yet foolish answers ever given to this much mooted question. The true answer, however, is, "because the civil law disqualifies a woman from making contracts." She is not free in that respect like a man. Being classed with infants, insane persons, imbeciles and vassals, there is the "actual or presumed want of mental capacity" to make a contract.—The Trestle Board.

At the Supreme Council of the Ancient and Accepted Rite for the Northern Masonic jurisdiction of the U. S. A., a communication was addressed to that body by John J. Gorman, the head of the so-called Cerneau Supreme Council, asking that a committee be appointed looking to the union of all the Scottish Rite bodies in the United States. Answer was returned that his request could not be entertained, as the body he represented was not recognized as one of the Scottish Rite Councils of the United States. At this rate the union which has been promised so often by the Cerneau leaders is not likely to materialize very soon.

ODDS.

It is reported that Newark, N. J., has an Odd-fellow Lodge composed exclusively of Knights of Pythias. That is rather Odd.

April 26, 1893, the American Order of Odd-fellowship will be 74 years old. April 26, 1819, Washington Lodge, No. 1, Baltimore, Md., was instituted. It is reported that Bro. W. Child, of San Francisco, Cal., was initiated in Washington Lodge, No. 1, of Baltimore, in 1829, and still holds his membership, covering nearly sixty-four years.

The Hartford, Conn., Post says, "There is a hall in Windsor Locks carpeted with a Masonic carpet which shows many of the society emblems. A number of secret organizations meet in the place, and yet, strange to say, not a Masonic body of any kind."

It's ineffective, except for the moment—the ordinary pill. Because it upsets your whole internal economy, you needn't think it's doing you good. It only shocks and weakens your system. Take something that's better. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets do good that lasts. They regulate the system, as well as cleanse and renovate it; mildly and gently, but thoroughly and effectively—no griping, no violence. They're the smallest and the easiest to take, purely vegetable, perfectly harmless, and the best liver pill ever known. Only one little Pellet for a laxative—three for a cathartic. Sick or Bilious Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels are prevented, relieved and cured. They're the cheapest pills you can buy, for they're guaranteed to give satisfaction, or your money is returned. You pay only for the good you get. Can you ask better proof of the superiority of these little pills.

WE SEND FREE with this beautiful Organ an Instruction Book and a handsome, upholstered stool! The organ has 11 stops, 5 octaves, and is made of solid Walnut. Warranted by us for 15 years. We only charge $45 for this beautiful instrument. Send to-day for FREE illustrated catalogue. OXFORD MFG. CO Chicago.

WHEATON COLLEGE.

WHEATON, ILL.

A School for Men and Women.

SPRING TERM BEGINS APRIL 4th, 1893.

Full College Courses, Preparatory Courses, Stenography, Typewriting, Vocal Music and Blackboard Drawing, without extra charge.

CHAS. A. BLANCHARD, Pres.

THE IMAGE OF THE BEAST

A Secret Empire;

Or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy.

By Rev. Richard Horton.

Third Edition. 200 pages. Cloth.

Price, 60 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
321 W. Madison St Chicago

IF YOU WANT WORK

that is pleasant and profitable, send us your address immediately. We teach men and women how to earn from $5 per day to $3,000 per year without having had previous experience, and furnish the employment at which they can make that amount. Capital unnecessary. A trial will cost you nothing. Write to-day and address, E. C. ALLEN & CO., Box 1001, Augusta, Me.

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.

EPPS'S COCOA BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in half-pound tins, by Grocers, labelled thus: JAMES EPPS & Co., Homoeopathic Chemists London, England.

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained, and all Patent business conducted for Moderate Fees.

Our Office is Opposite U. S. Patent Office, and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.

Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.

A Pamphlet, "How to Obtain Patents," with names of actual clients in your State, county, or town, sent free. Address,

C. A. SNOW & CO.

Opposite Patent Office, Washington, D. C.

Knights of Labor Illustrated. ("ADELPHON KRYPTOS.") The complete illustrated ritual of the order, including the "unwritten work." 25c each.

ANTI-SECRECY TRACTS.

The following numbers are in stock, and can be had at the wholesale price of 25 cents per pound:

4. Freemasonry in the Family.
7. To the Boys who Hope to be Men
8. Modern Heathenism.
9. Ministers at Rival Altars.
10. A Pastor's Confession.
12. Alexander Campbell's Estimate of the Lodge.
15. Secrecy and Sin.
22. Extracts from Masonic Oaths and Penalties as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.
37. Why a Christian should not be a Freemason (German).
38. Masonic Oaths and Penalties.
39. Should Freemasons be Admitted to Christian Fellowship?
42. Our Duty and Ability to Know the Character of Masonry.
45. Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?

The above are the only tracts in stock in large quantities. There are a few of several other numbers. Remember that these are being retailed at wholesale prices—25 cents per pound. Keep a package of Anti-masonic tracts for use in letters.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,
321 W. Madison St., Chicago

AGENTS AND LECTURERS

NEW ENGLAND DEPARTMENT.—Rev. J. P. Stoddard, Agent, 218 Columbus Ave., Hotel Howland, Boston.

EASTERN DEPARTMENT.—W. B. Stoddard, Agent, No. 215, 4½ St., Washington, D. C.

CENTRAL DEPARTMENT.—Rev. M. A. Gault, Blanchard, Ia.

WESTERN DEPARTMENT.—Rev. W. C. Paden, Oakland, Kan.

PACIFIC DEPARTMENT.—, address Rev. S. Mathew, Canby, Oregon.

COLLEGE AGENT, Rev. S. F. Porter Cynosure office.

OTHER LECTURERS.

- C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
Rev. H. H. Hinman, Oherlin, O.
Nathan Callender Montdale Pa.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
T. B. McCormick, Princeton, Ind.
E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
H. A. Day, Brighton, Mich.
J. M. Bishop, Chambersburg, Pa.
A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
W. M. Love, Osceola, Mo.
J. K. Glassford, Carthage, Mo.
Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Minn.
J. S. Perry, Thompson, Conn.
Rev. E. Mathews, Long Island City, N. Y.
E. Barnetson, Haskinville, N. Y.
D. A. Richards, Brighton, Mich.
A. W. Parry, Evanston, Ill.

SCOTCH RITE MASONRY ILLUSTRATED.

The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all Masonic rites, and are fully and accurately given in

"FREEMASONRY ILLUSTRATED,"

as advertised, but the signs, grips, passwords etc., of these three degrees are given at the close of Vol 2 of

"Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated"

Vol. 1 of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3d to 18th inclusive. Vol. 2 of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 19th to 33d inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive. Price per volume, paper cover, 50 cents each, in cloth, $1 each. Each volume per dozen, paper covers $4; per dozen cloth bound, $9

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern. Table of Contents: The Antiquity of Secret Societies, The Life of Julian, The Eleusinian Mysteries, The Origin of Masonry, Was Washington a Mason? Fillmore and Webster's Deference to Masonry, A Brief Outline of the Progress of Masonry in the United States, The Tammany Ring, Masonic Benevolence, The Uses of Masonry, An Illustration, The Conclusion. 50c each.

THE N. C. A. BUILDING
(The gift of Philo Carpenter.)

The Christian Cynosure,

321 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO

The National Christian Association

PRESIDENT—Rev. M. A. Gault, Blanchard, Iowa.

VICE PRESIDENT—John Dorcas, Tipton, Iowa.

FIELD SEC'Y and TREASURER—W. I. Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

CORRESPONDING SEC'Y—Rev. H. L. Kellogg, Wheaton, Ill.

REC. SECRETARY—Mrs. E. A. Cook Chicago.

DIRECTORS—T. B. Arnold, C. A. Blanchard, E. A. Cook, J. M. Hitchcock, G. R. Milton, J. P. Richards, E. Whipple, E. R. Worrell, Edgar Wylie W. M. Howie, H. F. Kletsing.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

NEW ENGLAND.—Pres., Rev. J. M. Foster, Boston, Mass.; Sec'y, Miss E. E. Flagg, Wellesley, Mass.; Treas., L. E. Lincoln, Boston.

CONNECTICUT.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Willimantic; Sec., David J. Ellsworth, Windsor; Treas., C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.—Pres., Rev. R. W. Chesnut, Marissa; Sec., Rev. J. R. Wylie, Coultersville; Treas., Rev. W. I. Phillips, Cynosure office, Chicago.

IOWA.—Pres., John Dorcas, Tipton; Sec., Rev. T. P. Robb, Linton; Treas., Rev. L. Mendenhall, Fairfield.

KANSAS.—Pres., Rev. C. H. Strong, Lawrence; Vice-Pres., Rev. J. L. Countermine, Hlawatha; Sec., Rev. D. H. Coulter, Winchester; Treas., Joseph A. Torrence, Denison.

NEBRASKA.—Pres., Rev. W. I. Brooks, Pawnee City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. G. Widen, Mead; Sec., Howard P. Young, Wahoo; Treas., Rev. T. H. Dabney, Hooper.

MAINE.—Pres., Isaac Jackson, Harrison; Sec., I. D. Haines, Dexter; Treas., H. W. Goddard, West Sidney.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Pres., S. A. Pratt, Worcester.

MICHIGAN.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec., H. A. Day, Brighton; Treas., Geo. Swanson, Jr., Bedford.

MINNESOTA.—Pres., S. B. Sjoblom, Ferguson Falls; Cor. Sec., Wm. Fenton, St. Paul; Rec. Sec., Mrs. M. F. Morrill, St. Charles; Treas., Wm. H. Morrill, St. Charles.

MISSOURI.—Pres., J. F. Beauchamp, Denver; Sec., M. N. Butler, Darlington; Treas., Rev. C. G. Cox, Grant City.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—Pres., Roht. A. Frohock, Alton; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., James F. French, Canterbury.

NEW YORK.—Pres., Rev. S. R. Wallace, Syracuse; Sec., Rev. W. H. Clark, Binghanton; Treas., Lucius Woodruff, Binghanton.

OHIO.—Pres., J. W. Martin, Mt. Perry; Rec. Sec., A. T. Vestal, Senecaville; Cor. Sec. and Treas., E. Thomson, Senecaville.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Pres., R. J. George, D. D. Beaver Falls; Cor. Sec., J. S. T. Milligan, Pittsburgh; Treas., R. C. Wylie, Wilkeshurg.

WISCONSIN.—Pres., J. B. Galloway, Poyette; Sec., Isalah Faris, Vernon; Treas., J. W. Wood, Baraboo.

The Christian Cynosure.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, MARCH 9, 1893.

The grass withereth; the flower fadeth; but the Word of our God shall stand forever.—ISAIAH 40: 8.

THE CHINESE EXCLUSION ACT.

That the act of Congress of May 5, 1892, which requires, under penalties of imprisonment and deportation, that every resident Chinaman shall be registered and deposit his photograph with the authorities, was hasty, inconsiderate, and unjust, is now coming to be quite generally believed.

That it ought to be regarded as inoperative and void, is evident from the following considerations:

1. There are about 110,000 Chinese in the United States, many of whom have been here many years, are property-holders, and law-abiding people, and would have been citizens, had our laws permitted. Not a few of them are Christians, and some are preparing for the missionary work in their native land. Not more than one or two hundred have, so far, met the requirements of the law. The great mass of them have quietly ignored it. Its enforcement will be as difficult as it would be unjust. We have not a sufficient number of ships in the Pacific to transport them, nor prisons to hold them. The cost would be great, and the means have not been provided. To some of them a free transportation to China would be a pleasure; to others a great wrong. A partial enforcement would do no good, and but show the inadequacy of the law.

2. The act itself was one of bad faith with the Chinese government; one against which it has protested, and which a recent decision of a Minnesota judge has declared unconstitutional, as in violation of express treaty stipulations.

3. The law itself was needless and uncalled for by any public necessity. We can quite as easily assimilate 110,000 Chinamen as we can the 300,000 Indians, the vast hordes of Europeans, to say nothing of the millions of people of African descent.

4. There is reason to think that its attempted enforcement will not only greatly disparage us in the eyes of the people of China, but will lead to retaliatory measures by that government, greatly to the detriment to the cause of missions, and injurious to our commercial relations.

It should be remembered that the Chinese government has, with much difficulty, restrained the fanaticism of its people and protected our missionaries. We must give them no occasion for withholding that protection. We ought to be at least as tolerant as a heathen nation, and we cannot afford to go to war at all—certainly not for a cause that is unjust.

The Episcopal House of Bishops at its session in New York City, on Wednesday of last week, adopted the following pertinent resolution upon this subject:

"Resolved, That the House of Bishops desires to place upon record the expression of its deep conviction that legislation calculated to bear expressly and harshly upon the Chinese race is not only essentially unjust and in violation of the most venerable traditions of our government, but is also likely to precipitate an antagonism to American citizens residing in China which may lead speedily to the expulsion of all such residents from China and to the ultimate prohibition of the extension of American civilization or any of its benefits to the great empire."

AFRICA AND THE WORLD'S FAIR.

We have received the program of "The World's Congress Auxiliary of the World's Columbian Exposition—Department of Science and Philanthropy; General Division of African Ethnology; the report in behalf of the general committee, by its chairman, Joseph E. Roy, D.D., Secretary of the American Missionary Association."

The consideration of this subject is to have a very wide scope and embrace not less than ninety-three distinct topics, several of which have a number of subdivisions. Each of these topics and divisions is assigned to one or more speakers of eminence in the religious, scientific or political world. The following includes some of the leading topics, all of which have special reference to Africa: Geography, history, arts, language and literature, religion and natural science.

Under the head of Religion the subject of missions will be specially considered. Eminent men, including Bishop Wm. Taylor and the secretaries of the leading missionary societies of Europe and America, are among the speakers. Seven addresses will be devoted to the work among the freedmen in our own land.

Under the head of Natural Science there are twenty-nine divisions, and among the speakers are H. M. Stanley, the great explorer; W. T. Stead, editor of the Review of Reviews; J. A. Kasson, U. S. Minister to Germany; and Joseph Cook, the Boston lecturer.

On the subject of the interests of Afro-Americans there will be much discussion under several heads. The question whether the American Negroes should colonize Africa is to be debated by Prof. Henderson, of Straight University, La., in the affirmative, and Mr. T. T. Fortune, of New York, in the negative. It is expected that the sessions will begin about the 14th of August, and continue eight days, the intervening Sunday being given to the subject of missions. Nearly all of those invited have already accepted the invitations, and others will send valuable papers to be read. It is expected that the entire proceedings, including addresses and papers, will be published. The whole congress will be a matter of profound interest to men of science, to Christian philanthropists and Christians.

THE PYTHIAN KNIGHTS AND THE ROMAN CHURCH.

On Monday of last week, at Washington, a question of considerable importance to the Knights of Pythias was submitted to Mons. Satolli, the Pope's vicegerent in this country. It was whether that secret organization comes within the pale of the Roman Catholic church. On this question, it is stated, the church had not previously made a declaration.

The matter was brought to the notice of the church by the following incident. Quite recently, at Kansas City, Mo., occurred the funeral of the assistant fire chief, Joseph McArdle, who was in life a good Catholic and an active member of the Knights of Pythias. John J. Glennon, rector of the cathedral where the funeral services were held, refused to permit the Pythian lodge of which McArdle was a member to attend the service in regalia as Pythians, and members were permitted to attend only in their individual capacities. The affair created considerable commotion, and Mr. Glennon hastened to Washington to consult Mons. Satolli about it.

To a party in Washington, soon after Mr. Glennon's arrival, he said:

"We reserve the right of refusing admission to all societies except those of a purely civil character. To admit a society in its official character would mean that the church not only tolerates such societies, but gives them a quasi approval. The church regards the Knights of Pythias as a very good society for Catholics to keep out of."

"The society, in so far as it is a benevolent organization, may do a considerable amount of good, but its oath-bound character is something that neither benevolence nor patriotism would appear to require, while its ritual would seem to indicate that it would wish to establish a new religion. It is not, in so far as I know, formally condemned by the highest tribunal of the church, but, while not condemned by name, it appears to be condemnable on principle. I believe the sooner it is decided the better."

"Many members of that organization I know to be very worthy men, who deplore the present condition of affairs. The matter can be decided for the entire order by formally asking a decision from Mons. Satolli, before whom I shall lay the whole subject. He may, or may not, decide it now. He may conclude to wait until the question shall come before him in some more formal way, especially if he concludes that it is a very serious one. It seems to me a very serious one, affecting, as it does, some 400,000 men."

—Owing to the illness of our cherished co-worker, Miss Elizabeth E. Flagg, Cynosure readers will miss her accustomed "New England Letter" this week; and for the same cause it has been necessary to substitute a Bible Lesson by another writer. We pray that her restoration to health may be thorough and speedy.

—Last Saturday, when Grover Cleveland became for the second time President of these United States, was the one hundredth anniversary of the second inauguration of George Washington as President.

—Rev. Alex Thomson, pastor of the Congregational church at Tomahawk, Wis., writing February 24, says: "We are not without hope and thankfulness. We had our first ingathering last Sabbath, when eight united with us on profession of faith."

REFORM NEWS.

FROM BOTH SIDES THE MISSISSIPPI.

NOTES OF A FEW DAYS' WORK IN ILLINOIS AND IOWA.

On Monday, the 20th ult., the Free Methodist pastors of Chicago and vicinity met with Bro. Marsh in the First church on May street, and formed a ministers' association. Including the Fox river cities, Elgin, Aurora, etc., there are some twenty ministers who will meet monthly in this body for prayer, consultation and discussion of matters relating to their pastoral work. A constitution similar to those governing the other like associations of ministers in the city was adopted. The N. C. A. was very kindly recognized by the brethren.

Next day a conference of much importance to the Danish Lutheran church opened in Pastor Neilson's church, corner Bickerdike and Superior streets. Some doctrinal questions have been agitating the pastors of the denomination, which this meeting was to consider. I was present Wednesday and Thursday, but so all-absorbing was the debate that no convenient opportunity was found to present our reform. A memorial was left with Pastor Neilson, who is president of the Danish Synod, and, as one of the oldest of its members, has a wide influence among his people. The church was crowded, and on the last day the people left their seats and stood in aisles and on gallery stairs to hear the discussion.

Thursday night on the train, and at 10 next morning I was in Keota, Iowa. No special effort for our reform was ever before attempted here, but the pulpits have not been silent. Rev. C. R. Hunt, of the Presbyterian church, I found spoken of by all good people as a very able and faithful pastor. Rev. Mr. Mitchell, of the United Presbyterian church, also spoken of with much esteem, has lately resigned and removed. Rev. Mr. Armacost, of the M. E. church, I shall remember for his kindness. The Baptist pulpit is vacant. The two pastors first named have been true in their testimony. Though some members of his church and congregation have been beguiled into the Masonic and other lodges, Bro. Hunt has not held back a warning of their danger. In the Methodist church there are also some who unwisely bow at lodge altars, but Rev. Mr. Kendrick, a former pastor and thirty years a Mason, not long ago testified to them that he had to give up the lodge before he felt the sanctifying power of God's grace; and on the previous Sabbath (Feb. 19) Presiding Elder Kemble spoke faithfully against the orders as destroying the power of the church. Masons, Odd-fellows, etc., have ruled in Keota too long to yield at once to these testimonies, though none could be better. In private conversation many were found who had left the lodge, others were bitter adherents, and the town was much moved at the prospect of a discussion. Brethren Harris, Reed and others in the Presbyterian church, and Leacock and Smith in the U. P., I especially remember for their earnest vindication of the church against the orders.

On Sabbath, the 26th, the United Presbyterian church was full from front to rear, in the morning; and the Methodist crowded and some standing, in the evening, as the principles of lodge-worship were contrasted with the Word of God.

Next evening, in spite of a storm of rain and wind, a fair audience came again to the U. P. church. I trust the effort to bring the members of the lodge present to a decision between their orders and the church, was not in vain. One, at least, was decided in leaving the Knights of Pythias.

It was my plan to hold meetings in Washington, and other points if possible, before returning to Illinois, but the way did not open. A consultation, called at his office by Dr. McClelland of Washington, decided, as every evening was occupied, against a meeting at present; but a day and a-half spent in the city was profitable in reviving an interest which has somewhat lost the fervor of ten years ago. Pastors Logue, of the Second United Presbyterian, and Fowler, of the Baptist churches, invited me to preach in their churches; subscriptions for the Cynosure and annual memberships were handed me, and several very hearty invitations to hospitality were extended. Dr. McClelland and Mr. Knox vied in making my stay a pleasant one. Hon. James Dawson, yet vigorous in his 83d year, is a pillar in the First U. P. church. He has the same faith of years ago, when he owned a branch store at Crawfordsville, and put some Anti-masonic books in the hands of his agent for sale. Masons came with threats of withdrawing patronage. "Sell those books," was Mr. Dawson's reply to the report of the agent. "I will do my duty, and God will take care of my business." And God did. Even the complaining lodgemen traded there more confidently than before. Mrs. Geo. Brokaw lives quietly at her home since the death of her husband. He is remembered as one of the most earnest of the Iowa reformers. A son-in-law, Mr. McConoughey, is engaged by the State Temperance Alliance in discovering and stopping the secret sales of liquor, and seems well qualified for his difficult task. Mrs. Brokaw has been for years an invalid, but is a most patient and cheerful sufferer.

A visit to Washington Academy is one of the pleasant memories of the city. Prof. Mathews is in charge of the institution, assisted by Miss Glenn and Prof. McKee. Some 120 young men and women attend, and the course of study takes them to the junior year at Monmouth. An invitation from Prof. Mathews to speak to the students at their weekly prayer meeting was accepted, and the opportunity I will long remember as a providential one.

Thursday, at Rock Island, I had a short conversation with President Olson, of Augustana College, as he took the train; and a longer one with Prof. Foss, who very kindly conducted me over the fine new building, and assisted me in enlisting the students, in a private way, to co-operate with their Chicago comrades in the Students' Bureau of Correspondence.

That night I rapped late at the door of Dr. Dickinson, of Galva, an old school-mate and friend, whose fidelity endures the test of years and of opprobrium. In a short time next morning I found several friendly pastors, while some were from home. Revs. Nordgren and Andseen, of the Swedish Lutheran and M. E. churches, respectively, were especially interested in our reform.

HENRY L. KELLOGG.

REV. H. L. KELLOGG IN IOWA.

KEOTA, Iowa, February 3, 1893.

The Knights of Pythias organized recently in Keota, and enjoyed, doubtless, the royal chivalry of jumping bravely upon the "spikes" and thus becoming transmuted into one of the worthies of higher sphere and nobler blood than any of the non-initiates the world over. By some of the citizens the genuineness of this nobility and prestige attained unto PER SALTUM was questioned. It seems that even prior to their organizing Rev. H. L. Kellogg had been consulted, by correspondence, concerning giving light upon the subject of the false claims of the lodge. Bro. Kellogg accordingly came on Saturday, February 25, and delivered a sermon the next morning in the U. P. church, which, though mild in manner, was comprehensive and weighty in matter. It was the privilege of your reporter to listen to the evening sermon, which was delivered in the Methodist church.

I wish those sermons could be delivered in every church in Iowa; and I would herein recommend to every anti-lodge pastor that he secure the services of Bro. Kellogg to that important end.

A lecture followed these sermons, on Monday night, and, unfavorable as was the weather, yet an audience came to hear more about these organizations which they had considered as "ancient," "honorable" and "charitable."

This ended the public services upon the subject; and while several of the lodge members say that he did not know any thing about it, yet there were those who have once been members who said that "he did know well what he was talking about," and that he uttered the truth. Those who had convictions against lodge-worship and braggadocio are enlightened and edified. Everything seems quiet at present.

C. R. HUNT.

PROGRESS IN THE WESTERN DISTRICT.

OAKLAND, Kansas, March 3, 1893.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—We had a good meeting at Welda, Anderson Co., Kans., on Friday evening. An attentive audience was present. I was glad to see a number of young people present. No Masons were there; or, at least none asked questions, as on the previous evening. As I came away from Welda, on Saturday afternoon, a man asked me if I had finished up my work here. I replied that I had gotten something done. He then took up the argument in favor of Masonry. I firmly insisted on the Christless character of Freemasonry. I did not inquire whether the man was a Christian or not; nor does it change the force of the argument. He showed, very soon, that he was not acquainted with Masonic deception and fraud in the direction of religious claims.

I am at home this week, mapping out work for March and April, and perfecting that in hand. I go to Cloud and Clay counties next week.

As I read your account of the "Parliament of Religions" at the "World's Fair," the thought came to me that a pillar should be erected on the grounds, in a prominent position, "TO THE UNKNOWN RELIGION," lest any religion might be omitted and somebody affronted!

Yours in harness, WM. C. PADEN.

THE WAUKESHA COUNTY CONVENTION.

WAUKESHA, Wis., March, 1893.

We had an unpretentious convention at the Lisbon United Presbyterian church, February 23 and 24, consisting of three sessions; during which the following program was carried out:

Address of welcome by Rev. J. T. Tate, of Washington, Ia., who for the present is supplying at Lisbon. Response by Rev. J. B. Galloway, president of the Wisconsin State Christian Association.

Then followed an address by Rev. S. G. Huey, of Rock Prairie, Wis., on "The Church and the Lodge Antagonistic." This was followed by an address by Rev. I. Faris, our State secretary. Subject: "Objections to Secret Societies." These addresses were well worthy a place in your columns, but were both delivered without manuscript.

On the next afternoon we had a question-box and free parliament, which proved to be both lively and profitable.

The weather was somewhat cold and stormy, hindering many from being present; but there was quite a good turnout, especially on the last evening, when Bro. Faris made a telling address on "The Relation of Secret Societies to Christ and the Bible."

Rev. J. B. Galloway spoke on the oath, and recited his new song with good effect.

We had fine singing by the Lisbon choir throughout the meetings, from "Bible Songs."

It would be a grand thing if such meetings could be held from time to time in every church in the land; but like the Gospel itself, these things must be pressed upon men; and that, too, by those who love true worship and a pure church.

CULDEE.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 1, 1893.

"Drink is the dynamite of civilization, and the dynamite must go," said Rev. F. D. Power, secretary of the Congressional Temperance Society, when making his annual report to the sixtieth annual meeting of the Society, held in the Garfield Memorial church. It must be said in all candor, though, that if other temperance workers make no more headway than the Congressional Society, which mustered less than a score of members at its sixtieth meeting, the prospect of getting rid of the "dynamite of civilization" could hardly be considered encouraging. Representative Dingley, the president of the society, said, in his opening address, that he regretted his inability to report the accomplishment of any temperance work by this Congress, which closes its career at noon on Saturday. Representative Morse, of Massachusetts, said he thought the principal drawback to the success of the temperance cause was the absence of perfect harmony among its friends and advocates. Ex-Representative Price, of Iowa, made a stirring speech, which contained some ugly facts about the increase of drunkenness, which he said was greater than that of any other evil. Said he: "Crime comes from the grog-shops, and grog-shops exist because public sentiment is not strong enough against them. It is impossible to get a resolution through the House of Representatives even to investigate the business. Some progress has been made; there is a host against the liquor traffic; but it is a sad fact that the majority is on the other side. There are 100 churches in Washington, and every church is surrounded by ten saloons. Congress is debating whether it should spend $5,000,000 to civilize the Indian tribes, talking loudly, learnedly and lengthily over it; yet $5,000,000 is spent for whisky in Washington every year. The money expended in running the churches is but half a million." Here is an idea worth thinking about: for every dollar spent on the churches of the national capital, $10 are spent on the saloon. Mr. Price concluded by advising his hearers to boycott every grocer who sells liquor. The secretary's report called attention to the facts supported by statistics that the United States ranks first in crime among the nations of the world; that forty years ago there was one criminal to every 3,500 inhabitants, while now there is one to every 700 inhabitants, and the number of institutions for the shelter of criminals and paupers are increasing in a like ratio. Yet our legislators can find no time to consider the temperance question.

The proposed desecration of the Sabbath by the committee having charge of the arrangements for the inauguration of President Cleveland, first mentioned in this correspondence some weeks ago, by the giving for an admission fee three concerts in the hall of the U. S. pension office, on Sunday, March 5, has aroused a storm of indignation among the Sabbath-observing citizens of Washington, and tardy but vigorous steps are being taken to prevent these concerts. Committees of clergymen have appealed to President Harrison, in person, and to President-elect Cleveland by telegraph; and a petition has been presented to the Senate by Mr. Quay, of Pennsylvania (who has, during this session of Congress, proven himself to be a staunch friend of Sabbath-observance), signed by ministers, members of the W. C. T. U., and others, which sets forth the belief that to permit such concerts by a band of music connected with one of the great departments of the Government (U. S. Marine band), in a building occupied by another department of the Government, and as a part of the ceremonies in connection with the inauguration of a President of this great Christian nation, would be a national sin, and that such desecration is unprecedented and would result in incalculable harm. After presenting the petition, Mr. Quay offered a resolution, which was adopted by the Senate, calling upon the Secretary of the Interior for information as to whether permission had been granted for such concerts, and, if so, by what right. Meanwhile the committee have advertised the programs for the Sunday concerts, and its members say they will give them, unless stopped by the Secretary of the Interior, who has control of the pension office building. It is hoped that an order forbidding the opening of the building on Sunday can be obtained from Secretary Noble.

The city is already rapidly filling up with visitors to the inauguration; and, in order to prevent a recurrence of the disgraceful spectacle of open bar-rooms on the Sabbath, which was presented to our own citizens and visitors on the Sunday preceding the Grand Army Encampment, last September, a delegation of temperance people called on the district commissioners yesterday, and requested them to issue such orders to the police as might be necessary to keep the laws from being violated.

THE HOME.

"NEITHER CAN THEY DIE ANY MORE."

Luke 20: 36.

BY REV. JOEL SWARTZ, D.D.

Oh, how the heart leaps up to hear
That somewhere lies a happy shore,
A blissful and immortal sphere,
Which they who reach can die no more,
But equal to the angels are!

If no more death, then no more pain;
No parting sighs, no sad farewells;
No waiting graves, no funeral train;
No mourners' tears, no tolling bells:
Ah, dying thus is naught but gain!

To part with earth is not to die—
'Tis but a glorious going home;
'Tis but to close the tear-dimmed eye,
And cease a pilgrim here to roam,
And take our mansions in the sky.

Nor shall we pass through death alone,
But go with bright angelic bands;
Perhaps the friends whom we have known
Shall bear us in their happy hands—
Our loved ones lost, but still our own.

Grieve not that in the grave must lie
The earthy clasp of wedded love;
No need of that frail bond or tie
In those immortal realms above,
Where God's own children cannot die.

In Christ our Bridegroom and our Head,
Shall own redeemed and glorified
His each to each and him be wed,
His chosen, stainless, white-robed bride,
The risen and immortal dead.

—Gettysburg, Pa.

DEPRESSION.

The occasional mood of depression which overtakes the most light-hearted of us women, is as much to be dreaded as an east wind. While it lasts, it has the effect of an east wind, chilling us to the marrow and putting into our manner that which chills our children and our friends. Almost as if it were a sensate thing, a living, hostile influence, the demon of depression broods over our hearts, blotting the sun in the noonday and the stars in the midnight sky.

Nothing in our circumstances may be more distressing or more threatening than usual. Our affairs may not be in the shape most desirable, and we may be menaced by some very tangible calamity, but we have weathered such storms before, and God helping us, we hope to do so again. Perhaps our struggle is with limited means, and our effort to keep up appearances, to educate a son or daughter, to dress in the style of our neighbors, or to indulge some favorite taste, keeps us in debt, and never lets us draw a free breath. The singular thing, however, is that our moods of depression are not consequent upon actual poverty, or upon real trouble of any kind. Depression is quite as likely to pounce upon its victim when, apparently, there is no reason for anything except cheerfulness and gayety.

It does not invariably follow bereavement, either. The house of mourning is often a place of blessed tranquility, of a sort of heavenly exaltation. One who had lately parted with the dearest soul on earth was described to me the other day as having a light in his face which was like a revelation from the other world. A widowed mother last year buried her only son and sole support and comfort. Left solitary in her desolate house, a friend went to see her in fear and trembling; but lo! heaven had been beforehand with wonderful consolation, and the word of condolence died on the sympathetic lips ere it was uttered. Depression does frequently supervene on physical fatigue, a disordered liver, or worn-out nerves. Change of scene, a night's rest, an hour of listening to music, or a nourishing, restorative diet will often banish the evil demon, and brighten the world once more.

What one can do, one should, if menaced by any state of feeling which interferes with the comfort and well-being of one's family, to say nothing of one's own mental balance. It is exceedingly selfish, if it can be avoided, to inflict one's mood of depression upon husband, wife, child, sister, comrade or servant. If it can be avoided before it comes, or cured when it appears, or vanquished in its baleful battle, by all means let the Christian rally the forces at hand, and gather strength by prayer and fare onward cheerfully. In our wrestle, not with flesh and blood only, but often with principalities and powers, envoys from the unseen spiritual world which so closely environs us, we need to summon help from above. And we need, also, common sense as an ally to faith.—Margaret E. Sangster, in Christian Intelligencer.

PATIENCE FOR THE ERRING.

"God has a mother's patience for the erring. If one does wrong, first his associates in life cast him off; if he goes on in the wrong way, his business partner casts him off; if he goes on, his best friends cast him off—his father casts him off. But after all others have cast him off, where does he go? Who holds no grudge, and forgives the last time as well as the first? Who sits by the murderer's counsel through the long trial? Who tarries the longest at the windows of a culprit's cell? Who, when all others think ill of a man, keeps on thinking well of him? It is his mother. God bless her gray hairs, if she be still alive; and bless her grave if she be gone. And bless the rocking-chair in which she used to sit, and bless the cradle that she used to rock, and bless the Bible she used to read! So God, our mother, has patience for all the erring. After everybody else has cast a man off, God, our mother, comes to the rescue. God leaps to take charge of a bad case. After all the other doctors have got through, the heavenly Physician comes in. Human sympathy at such a time does not amount to much. Even the sympathy of the church, I am sorry to say, often does not amount to much. I have seen the most harsh and bitter treatment on the part of those who professed faith in Christ toward those who were wavering and erring. They tried on the wanderer sarcasm, and billingsgate, and caricature, and they tried tittle-tattle. There was one thing they did not try, and that was forgiveness. A soldier in England was brought by a sergeant to the colonel. 'What,' says the colonel, 'bringing the man here again? We have tried everything with him.' 'Oh, no,' says the sergeant, 'there is one thing you haven't tried. I would like you to try that.' 'What is that?' said the colonel. Said the man: 'Forgiveness.' The case had not gone so far but that it might take that turn, and so the colonel said: 'Well, young man, you have done so and so. What is your excuse?' 'I have no excuse, but I am very sorry,' said the man. 'We have made up our minds to forgive you,' said the colonel. The tears started. He had never been accosted in that way before. His life was reformed, and that was the starting-point for a positively Christian life. Oh, church of God, quit your sarcasm when a man falls! Quit your irony, quit your tittle-tattle, and try forgiveness. God, your mother, tries it all the time. A man's sin may be like a continent, but God's forgiveness is like the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans, bounding it on both sides.'—Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D.D.

HOME-LIFE AND EDUCATION OF THE INDIANS.

Mrs. Dorchester, wife of the superintendent of Indian schools, in an address in Philadelphia, gave an interesting account of the tribes in Arizona and New Mexico. She has visited all the tribes located there; and she dwelt at length upon the home-life of the Indian women, their degradation and the dawning upon them of a better life. She showed that the fetters of superstition and ignorance were loosening, and would, ere long, at the command of Christian light and knowledge, drop forever. Schools are opened in Arizona; and some of the pupils who attend these schools come with their babies strapped to their backs, and diligently pursue their studies with the baby crowing and clamoring to help with the task. The tribes in Arizona are more accessible and more easily influenced to send their children to school and adopt civilized ways than the Pueblos of New Mexico, of whom there are nineteen distinct tribes. The Pueblos, or village Indians, are the descendants of the old cliff-dwellers, whose history antedates the exploration of Coronado in 1517.

They are nominally Roman Catholics, but in reality pagans or sun worshippers. They are religiously inclined; and when the old and false religion is swept clean away, and the simple forms of Christian worship take root, it will be "life from the dead". They live in adobe houses, one resting on top of another, till there are sometimes as many as five flats in terraces; the upper ones reached by means of ladders. They are peaceable, industrious, frugal, hospitable; but generally opposed to any change in their mode of life. Especially is this so of the women, perhaps because they have an easier life than the roving Indians. However, the light is breaking and work among them is encouraging. The Presbyterians have missions at Laguna, Zuni and Teran, which are doing good work, and more than half of the children are in schools. Mrs. Dorchester, as does Captain Pratt, of the Indian school, at Carlisle, Pa., strongly disapproves of sending home the Indian children under training at schools at the East till they are established in culture and of sufficient age to resist the home influence and able to prepare the way for a Christian life among their people.

The Indian Rights Association during its existence has established forty schools or mission points among the Indians of the United States. During the last eight years twenty-five of these missions have been transferred to different churches as they are able to take the care of them. It is the aim of the Association to do pioneer work and aid the churches, as they are prepared to enter the field, to plant the good seed of Gospel truth and cultivate the Christian graces that spring up after good seed is sown, to grow up we know not how; "first the blade, then the ear, after that the full corn in the ear."—Christian Instructor.

A CRYING EVIL.

The astonishing prevalence of the senseless vice of profanity has doubtless caused every thoughtful person to wish that the law might step in with penalties where Christian persuasion has failed to effect a cure. One might almost welcome with joy the re-enactment and enforcement of the rigorous "blue laws" of hallowed memory—so outrageous and shameless has the practice become; and it is with no small pleasure that one hears of the revival in England of an old statute of George III, according to which a laborer must pay a shilling for every oath uttered in public, a man above the grade of laborer must pay two, and a "gentleman" five. Recent reports go to show that these penalties are being energetically imposed, and that the choice expressions so frequently dropping from the "gentlemen's" lips are being converted into coin at a rate that is likely to make quite a material addition to the public revenues. If the effect shall also be to check the practice and extinguish it altogether, the final result will be worth all that it has cost and a great deal more.

Profanity is the national vice of America, and it is growing with a rapidity that is positively painful. Our own community, free as it was for a long time from the infection, is now most grievously afflicted. The city ordinances on the subject are a dead-letter, for those who ought to enforce them are themselves violators. The busier streets can scarcely be traversed at any hour when coarse, brutal oaths do not fill the air. On some of the sunnier corners, crowds of loafers congregate and utter forth in common conversation imprecations that are shocking to the ear. Old and young vie with each other in the variety and ingenuity of their swearing, and the sacred name of Deity is hourly profaned by mouths too foul to be permitted in decent society. For the sake of civilization and Christianity, for the sake of refined womanhood and pure childhood, for the sake of the law of both God and man, a sharp lesson should be taught the wretches who thus give offense.—Deseret News.

THE DEATH DANCE.

Although it is a fact that many have gone and are going from the dance hall down to ruin, there are those who are still willing to defend it. And among them are some professors of religion. They are mere professors—nothing more, for earnestness in Christian service and dancing do not go together. It is not those who are most loyal to Jesus that are constantly craving the giddiness and excitement of the ball-room. Dancing should be condemned by every lover of Christ and good morals. We commend the following from one of our exchanges to the attention of our readers: "A dancing master at Santa Paula, California, recently came under the influence of the church, got soundly converted, and has written a letter to the Southern California Advocate, giving notice that he will give no dancing lessons this coming winter. Thus religion corrects his heart, levels his head, and holds down his heels. It does more; it prevents him from initiating others into a form of amusement which is as dangerous to spiritual religion, if not to morality, as diphtheria is dangerous to physical health. The dance can never be successfully defended while its customs and accompaniments remain. The round dance, the masquerade ball, the 'german' and other similar dances are evil, only evil; and that continually. They make flirtation easy, and pave the way for seductions, assignations and other diabolical crimes. They are strongholds of seducers, and other sensualists. They never helped one soul into the kingdom of heaven, but have dragged millions down to bottomless perdition. They are excellent traps for fools, and not infrequently catch those who ought to know better than to step in. They are Satan's devices from first to last, and they break more hearts, ruin more homes, and blast more lives than any other form of amusement tolerated in civilized lands. The Christian pulpit should sound an alarm. Better to wound some, if you can save any, than to please all and let them be hopelessly ruined. Pity the fathers and mothers professing religion who suffer their children to attend the dancing academy. 'He that soweth to this wind shall reap the whirlwind.'—Messiah's Herald.

A GLEAM OF SUNSHINE.

A writer in the Southwestern Presbyterian, recalling the memories of the battle of Franklin, Tenn., Nov. 30, 1864, relates how he, as chaplain, secured a place for a division hospital on the wide galleries and broad grounds of the estate of an old acquaintance, where for a considerable time he labored to minister to the needs of the sick and wounded. From the surrounding towns and country came supplies of delicacies, bandages, blankets, and comforts to relieve the sufferers.

"It was bitter winter weather. Among those who came on these angel errands, one comes vividly to mind. A slender girl, the bloom of seventeen years sweetening her cheeks, made bright by the cold, driven by a small Negro boy in an open buggy, its occupants half hid by baskets and bundles, with boxes in front and rear, had come over the ice and snow. I received her and her stores at the largest of our town wards. And when thanks had been given her, added: 'You have one other office to perform.' The story of the soldiers in the Crimea, who kissed Florence Nightingale's shadow as she passed by their cots, was recalled. Said I: 'You must walk with me through this ward.' She drew back—'I cannot.' 'But you must,' I replied, 'for their sakes; it will be as dew and sunshine to them.' At length she yielded and assented. Going into the room and preparing the men that all things might be in order, I returned and she went with me. Heads were lifted, eyes moistened, faces lighted, and as she slowly walked along and out, a tinge of maidenly embarrassment flushing her young face, 'God bless you!' broke from fifty suffering lips. When I came back again, 'Thank you, parson; you've done us more good in bringing her in than all the surgeons,' was my greeting."

How many souls there are to day, smitten and stricken in the fierce, hard fight of life, who need not merely the comforts which others can bring, and the paid service of religious officials, but they need to look upon loving faces, and hear loving voices, and catch the sunshine of immortal hope as it beams in the countenances of those who are redeemed through grace divine. The word of command is "Go ye." "Go teach all nations." "Go ye into all the world." "Go out into the highways and compel them to come in." And there are hearts that are so hungry for sympathy, for fellowship, for love, that nothing else will satisfy them.

How many are ready to hear the Saviour's voice and go themselves and do his will? How many are willing not only to give their money, but to give themselves, hand and heart, love and sympathy, kindness and compassion, everything with which God has so richly endowed them? Cold and distant teachings and denunciations will never reach such hearts. There must be warm sympathies; there must be kindly glances; there must be winning words, if they are to be brought to behold the Lamb of God. Let us pray that He who came from heaven to seek and save the lost will give to us hearts full of sympathy and compassion, and make our feet swift to run in the way of his commandments, as we go about doing good, and seek to save the lost.—The Common People.

TEMPERANCE.

BLOOD-MONEY.

BY REV. ALEXANDER THOMSON.

Gather the precious dollars in!
What if they come as the price of sin?
What if for every dime is a damn,
And the famishing wife and the suffering lamb
Cry out against it as blackest sin?
Yet gather the precious dollars in!

Give them a license, for money, to draw
The knife of crime o'er the throat of law;
We must have money; and don't you see?
Come they by right or deepest sin,
In the hands of trade, or of misery,
We'll gather the precious dollars in!

At No. 5, in the chill and gloom
Of a cheerless and almost fireless room,
A sick wife lies on her pallet of straw,
While her husband, minding the license law,
Spends his money. It cannot be sin,
For it brings the precious dollars in!--

Spends his money, and gets, instead,
A blighted soul and a broken head;
While out of the meager public purse
His three little children as paupers begin
Their life in the world;—but what of the curse,
Since it brings the precious dollars in?

Out with the license, and up with it, too;
There are thousands and thousands of dollars in view;

For light, and water, and walks, and ways,
Will be ours for naught, if the license we raise;
For the more men drink, it is plain to see,
The better provided and richer are we.

Then hail to the god of the barrel and bottle!
He brings us wealth with his roystering din;
And down with the knaves who the trade hope to throttle,

That brings us the beautiful dollars in!

Tomahawk, Wis.

LIQUOR AT THE WORLD'S FAIR.

Not only party Prohibitionists, but, with them, a great multitude of persons who hate the saloons but do not believe in making the liquor traffic a political issue, will be scandalized and grieved by the decision of the World's Fair commissioners to permit the sale of liquors on the Fair grounds. And there is cause of grief.

Yet it cannot be denied that there is much force in the arguments put forth on behalf of the sellers and drinkers of liquors in this matter.

The Commercial Advertiser, for instance, points out that the American people take rank among the foremost nations in the production of spirituous, vinous and malt liquors, and are also among the greatest consumers of these beverages. It argues that to prohibit the orderly and moderate consumption of some of our own and most important products would be absurd.

"More than that, it would be a condemnation not only to our Government, which obtains a revenue from the alcoholic products of this country, but to the millions of our own people who consume them."

And, these things being so, the Commercial Traveller holds that "the prohibitionist sentiment must learn how to bow with a good grace to the vast, overpowering majority's will."

We confess that it would be more than a little difficult to pick a flaw in the logic of this argument on the basis of existing facts. The fundamental theory of republican institutions is the rule of the majority, the idea being that, in the main, the greatest good of the greatest number will thus be secured. And it cannot be denied that, according to the only evidence known to the law—the election returns—an "overpowering majority" of the voters of this country are in favor of a continuance of the liquor traffic.

We do not believe that the election returns tell a true story in this case. We are convinced that if voters could be prevailed upon to close their ears against all the subterfuges invented by scheming politicians to mislead them, a majority of the voters of America would condemn the saloons on any day of the year.

But when the time comes to vote on any question affecting the continuance of the liquor traffic, there are so many "wise saws" flying around that the voters lose sight of the direct issue. They are told that prohibition means free rum; that "men cannot be made moral by law;" that "it is foolish to make laws that cannot be enforced," or "throw away votes on candidates who cannot be elected," and so on; and the effect of these plausible fallacies is that about nine out of ten temperance men walk up to the polls and vote for license in some form.

Thus they lose the opportunity of registering themselves as foes of the saloon, and give the advocates of liquor a right to count them as forming a part of the "vast, overpowering majority" which favors the saloon—a majority which will not probably have any existence without their votes.

We do not see how voters who belong to this category can consistently find fault with the decision of the commission, seeing that it is their own votes that have made that decision possible,—and, indeed, have almost made it inevitable.—Witness.

A JUDGE'S POWERFUL WORDS.

Judge White, of Pittsburgh, Pa., who presided over the Allegheny county license court at its session in the spring of 1888, wrote, after the court's adjournment, a letter relating the impressions made upon him by his observations of the character of the liquor business. He said:

From thirteen years' experience in the criminal court, I am thoroughly convinced that there are far more evils resulting from the use of beer in this country than from whisky.

The liquor traffic in this country has become a most gigantic evil. From my experience at the bar and on the bench, I believe it is the cause, directly or indirectly, of four-fifths of all the crime, poverty and misery in our midst. The license fees received by the county do not equal the expenses incurred in the prosecution of criminals and the support of the poor.

The traffic has had a most demoralizing effect in every department of the social fabric. The immoral and lawless character of many engaged in the business has, to a certain extent, demoralized the whole business. The open and notorious violation of law in this business has led to a disregard of law in other respects. The frauds and trickery resorted to to escape punishment for a violation of the liquor laws led to fraud and trickery in other matters. Associations and combinations were formed to protect each other in illegal acts and defend the guilty from just punishment.

Perjury and subornation of perjury were the common expedients. This practice has so often succeeded in the criminal court that the judicial oath lost its sanctions and encouraged the parties to a bolder step. They sought to control the selection of jurors, and get men in the jury box who had no regard for their oaths. In this they were too often successful. Grand juries have ignored bills, and petit jurors have acquitted where the evidence of guilt has been positive, clear and palpable. As a further illustration of the utter demoralization of the lower class of saloon-keepers, it is only necessary to refer to their examinations before the court on their application (for license).

A large majority of those in the liquor business were of foreign birth; many of the applicants could scarcely speak English intelligibly, and some had to have an interpreter. They confessed to utter ignorance of the law on the subject. They were not in sympathy with the institutions and usages of our country. They had extravagant and erroneous ideas of a free country. They claim rights and privileges here which were never granted to them in their native lands, and which are inconsistent with any well-regulated government. They care for nothing but to make money. They array themselves against the Sabbath because it deprives them of one day's profits. They oppose churches and church-goers because of the moral influence they exert.

Emboldened by their success in other respects, the saloon element undertook to control the politics of the country. An army of nearly 3,000 such characters was a power not to be despised by politicians. They knew their power, and exerted it. They bled unmercifully all candidates for nomination or election. They exacted pledges for personal favors, and not to interfere with their business. Candidates were afraid of them. Both political parties were afraid of them.

BIBLE LESSON.

THE QUARTERLY TEMPERANCE LESSON.

LESSON XII—First Quarter, 1893.—March 19.

SUBJECT.—Timely Admonitions.—Proverbs 23: 15-23.

GOLDEN TEXT.—And be not drunk with wine, where in is excess; but be filled with the Spirit.—Ephesians 5: 18.

DAILY READINGS.—M.—Prov. 23: 15-23. T.—Psalm 1. W.—Psalm 141. T.—Prov. 1: 10-17. F. 2 Cor. 6: 14-18. S.—Psalm 119: 57-64. S.—Eph. 5: 6-20.

COMMENTS BY REV. F. N. PELOUBET, D. D.

15. My son, if thine heart be wise, my heart shall rejoice, even mine.

16. Yea, mine reins shall rejoice, when thy lips shall speak right things.

17. Let not thine heart envy sinners; but be thou in the fear of the Lord all the day long.

18. For surely there is an end; and thine expectation shall not be cut off.

19. Hear thou my son, and be wise, and guide thine heart in the way.

20. Be not among wine-bibbers; among riotous eaters of flesh:

21. For the drunkard and glutton shall come to poverty; and drowsiness shall clothe a man with rags.

22. Harken unto thy father that begat thee, and despise not thy mother when she is old.

23. Buy the truth, and sell it not; also wisdom, and instruction, and understanding.

This lesson belongs to all times, and teaches us the best way of living.

Verses 15, 16 and 22 admonish us to yield obedience to parents.

Verses 17, 18, 19 lead us to observe the results of the good and bad ways of living.

In this connection read Ephesians 6: 1, 2; Colossians 3: 20; Proverbs 1: 8, 9; 6: 20-22; 13: 1; Psalm 73: 3; Psalm 92: 7; Luke 16: 25; 2 Thessalonians 1: 8, 9.

15. "If thine heart be wise:" If in your inmost soul you desire the best things. "My heart:" The heart of parent and teacher is rejoiced when his children do well. Children should understand that their conduct affects others besides themselves. Wrong-doing breaks their parents' hearts. Right-doing fills them with joy.

16. "My reins:" My inmost nature.

17. "Not envy sinners:" Imagine that they are happy and prosperous, for they are not in the end. Watch the course of bad men and take warning.

18. "Surely there is an end:" A future, something beyond the present. Only fools look at to-day and are blind to to-morrow. We must judge of a tree not merely by its blossoms, but by its fruit.

20. "Be not among wine-bibbers:" Keep out of bad company; for whosoever goes into bad company willingly is already half-fallen. No one can go with such people with impunity. "Among riotous eaters of flesh:" Feasting and revelry, where, for the sake of pleasure, men give up life, health and immortality.

21. "Drowsiness:" The lethargy, weakness, sleepiness, which naturally follow drunkenness and revelry. The larger portion of poverty comes from self-indulgence and the pleasures of appetite.

23. "Buy the truth:" Truth of intellect, of heart, of life; true principles, true living. The truth is free. Everyone has the means wherewith to purchase it; but it costs self-denial, diligence, labor, to obtain it. No one can have it without the price. "And sell it not:" By yielding to temptation, for the pleasure of the wine-cup, for the attractions of sin. Whatever leads one to give up true principles and right living is the price for which the truth is sold.

The conclusion of the whole matter:

The Wise Man Speaks. He has watched the course of many young people, and seen where the different ways lead. He now speaks to the young people as to his children.

To Listen to the Experienced is Wise. The young people are like persons walking in the Labyrinth near London, made by high hedges on either side; walking the paths one cannot see where they lead. But the man in the center who overlooks all, and who has seen thousands walking in the paths,—he is wise to show the way.

The Two Ways. Before every person are different ways of living. Some of them lead up; some of them lead down. Some of them are pleasant at the beginning, but are wrong, and lead to great sorrows at last. Some of them are difficult at first, but lead to every good.

The Choice. Every one must choose. Most people choose by going in one way or the other, often without thinking where the way will lead.

Obedience to Parents is one way that leads to virtue, goodness, joy, and heaven.

Temperance is a way that leads to good, and only good.

The Central Truth.—He that would succeed in life must obey his parents, let intoxicating drink alone, shun evil companions, and seek with all his heart after the best things.

Further.—Every Christian and moral man should have a conscience that will always lead him to give his voice or his vote for all needed reforms, as he would do if he knew that he was the next moment to be called to account for that act at the bar of God.

RELIGIOUS NEWS.

BAPTIST.

—The minutes of the Wisconsin State Convention show that the total amount raised for State missions, including chapel fund and for student missionaries, was $15,809.28, which is certainly a good year's work. There are in the State 209 churches, with a membership of 13,563. The number of baptisms were 976; Sunday-school membership 17,219; aggregate contributions $208,330; value of church property, $778,294. During the year there have been fifty-two changes in the pastorates of the State; seven ministers have died, eleven ordinations have taken place, five churches have been organized, and sixteen meeting-houses have been dedicated.

—The Baptist Young People's Union of the Chicago Association held its March rally at Immanuel church in this city on the 7th inst.

EVANGELISTIC.

—The West Division Christian Endeavor Union, Chicago, has arranged a series of union Gospel temperance meetings, beginning March 5, and lasting four weeks. The meeting the first week assemble in the Third Presbyterian church; the second week in the Second Baptist; the third probably in the Western Avenue Methodist; and the fourth in the Tabernacle Congregational church. The services of Mr. P. A. Burdick, the great temperance evangelist of New York, have been secured to conduct the meetings. He will speak every night of the week except Saturday.

—During the last quarter of Colportage for 1892 123 colporteurs of the American Tract Society labored in thirty-three States and Canada. Their combined time equaled 165 months of labor. They circulated by sale and grant 33,427 volumes of Christian literature; addressed 1,564 meetings; found 3,557 families destitute of all books except the Bible, and 2,404 families without the Bible. They visited 4,819 Roman Catholic families; found 9,461 Protestant families, who rarely ever attended evangelical preaching; visited a total of 42,243 families, in most of which they engaged the persons in religious conversation or prayer.

LUTHERAN.

—The house in which Luther died in Eisleben is to be restored to its former condition, and to be enriched with appropriate decorations.

—Milwaukee, Wis., has twenty-one German Lutheran churches, nine of which belong to the Missouri Synod, and twelve to the Wisconsin Synod. The former number 3,008 members; the latter 3,039; while 5,531 children attend the parochial schools. There is also an English Lutheran church (General Council).

—In 1750 there were but two Lutheran pastors in the Southern Colonies, both of whom resided in Georgia. A small Lutheran congregation was organized at Charleston, S. C., in 1750. The first religious organization in the South of which Lutherans formed an integral part was the Corpus Evangelicum, composed of Lutherans and Calvinists, organized at Lexington, S. C., in 1787. The first Lutheran synod in the South was the Synod of North Carolina, organized in 1803. The next was the Synod of South Carolina, organized in 1824. The latter eventually extended her jurisdiction over Georgia and all the Gulf States. The Synod of Mississippi was organized in 1857 and the Synod of Georgia in 1860. All three bodies were in connection with the General Synod until 1862, and now form part of the United Synod, which now includes, in addition to them, the Synods of Virginia and Tennessee and the Holston Synod.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL.

—Rev. Dr. William Sprague Studley died at Evanston, Ill., Feb. 26. This useful man came from Michigan two years ago last autumn to take the pastorate of the First Methodist church in Evanston, where he won universal respect and affection.

—The Hanson-place Methodist church in Brooklyn, N. Y., has what is called a "Church army," the object of which is to induce children to attend church. The method adopted is for the children to be organized into companies and regiments like an army. Over each company a captain is appointed. A reward is given to well-behaved soldiers whose attendance is up to the standard. In each service they have a hymn to sing, a psalm to read, or Scripture to recite.

—The Christian Witness of Boston says: "The latest fad in religious sensationalism is on at Grace Methodist church, in this city. As an inducement to get people out to the weekly prayer-meeting it is advertised that coffee and cake will be served to all at the close of the brief service."

—There are 1,323 Wesleyan local preachers in London, and it is a serious problem how to make the best use of them.

—The New York Advocate criticises severely a recent entertainment in a small town, of which the following was the announcement: "The Epworth League of the Methodist Episcopal church will hold an auction social at Union hall on Tuesday evening, Jan. 17. Forty beautiful ladies will be sold at auction, and the gentleman who bids the highest will escort to partake of a sumptuous repast which will be prepared for the occasion. One of the most enjoyable times of the season is anticipated."

—An Epworth league has been organized in Singapore, Malaysia, and is in a flourishing condition.

—The income of the British Wesleyan church the past year was $580,030, an increase of over $40,000.

—The Epworth Hotel company has tendered the Methodist World's Fair commission a building seventy-five feet square in which to make a Methodist exhibit. The building, if accepted, will be erected beside the hotel, and will be prepared without reference to expense.

PRESBYTERIAN.

—The Genesee New York Presbytery recently refused to ordain a young man to the ministry because he was a Christian Scientist. He declared that he would not teach his peculiar views from the pulpit, but that in his intercourse with his people he would commend it. If any were sick he would ask them to send for a Christian Scientist instead of a physician. This plea was not successful.

—A new young men's society, called the Brotherhood, is gaining popularity and strength. Its design is Christian work in churches, something after the manner of the Y. M. C. A. "yoke-fellows," but with more formality, each church organization being known as a "chapter." Its ostensible principle is to make each member in reality a keeper of brethren.

THE WALDENSES.

—A Paris dispatch of Feb. 27 says that "the Waldenses, descendants of the famous sect which was cruelly persecuted for centuries on account of their religious opinions, and who still inhabit the mountain tract on the Italian side of the Cottian Alps, where their ancestors held out against their persecutors, propose to emigrate to America. Their staple business of cloth-making has become much depressed, and even with their frugality they find it difficult to live. The pastors of the Waldensian congregations convened in a synod to consider the situation, and resolved to send two delegates to North Carolina to inquire regarding the prospects of settlers in that State. The Waldenses are a hardy and thrifty people, retaining in a remarkable degree the virtues of their heroic ancestors. If the reports from the delegates should be favorable, 2,000 Waldenses will emigrate to North Carolina in the spring."

MISCELLANEOUS.

—The 20th annual report of the Jerry McAuley Mission says that the attendance on the meetings during the past year has been 34,957 larger than ever before. Of this number 2,475 have knelt and asked for prayers. Five thousand lodgings have been given at 15 cents a night, 10,000 meals have been provided, and 500 men have obtained employment from the mission.

—A woman has been put on trial as a local preacher in the Swaffham (England) circuit. It is thought by some Methodist leaders that there is nothing illegal in this course.

—Many Epworth Leaguers wish the great national convention next July to be held in Chicago. The cabinet of the board of control, which meets in Chicago this week, will consider the matter.

—The best presentation of the religious systems of the world is probably that of the Church Missionary Society, which gives to the heathen faith 874,000,000 adherents; to Mohammedans, 173,000,000; to the Roman Catholics, 195,000,000; to the Greek church, 85,000,000; to the Jews, 8,000,000; and to Protestant communities, 135,000,000.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

CHICAGO.

By the falling of the wall of a large business block on South Halstead street, which had been previously burned, two dwellings were crushed and seven persons killed. The Coroner's jury held the architect of the building, the contractor for the building, its owner, and the Commissioner of the Building Department of the city to await the finding of the grand jury of Cook county.

COUNTRY.

The manufacturers of sole-leather have formed a gigantic trust, which represents $70,000,000 capital. Only the manufacturers of union or of hemlock-tanned leather will be in the trust.

Several senators and representatives in the Missouri legislature are to be arrested when that body adjourns to await the action of the grand jury for playing gambling games.

In the trial of union workmen for poisoning non-union men at Homestead, Pa., Judge Stowe passed sentence on the convicted participants in the Homestead poisoning case as follows: Dempsey and Beatty each seven years; Gallagher five years, and Davidson three years in the penitentiary.

President Harrison commuted the sentence of Edward L. Harper, ex-president of the Fidelity National bank, Cincinnati, who was convicted of a violation of the federal banking laws and sentenced Dec. 12, 1887, to ten years' imprisonment in the Ohio penitentiary at Columbus. The commutation provides for Harper's release on May 1, 1893.

Melville E. Stone has been elected General Manager of the Associated Press. He was editor of the Chicago Daily News for several years.

The White Star Line steamship Naronic, valued at $500,000, carrying a cargo worth some $350,000, and having a crew of over seventy men bound for New York has been either delayed by storms or an accident at sea, or foundered with all on board.

President Harrison signed the immigration restriction bill, and it is now a law.

Formal complaint has been made of the cruelties practiced by Warden Briggs at the Wyoming State prison. The specific charge is that a prisoner who was under discipline was strung up by the wrists for allowing his chains to clank. A powerful stream of water was turned on him for half an hour, and during this ordeal he fainted three times. Two guards who protested against such treatment were discharged. It is also charged that Briggs has been severely punishing the female convicts.

Evidence shows that County Clerk E. D. Fenly is $16,000 short in his accounts with Ashland county, Wis. The clerk was present when the disclosure was made, and admitted that he was $9,000 short. He wrote out his resignation then and there.

It is stated that the Chinese residents of McKeesport, Pa., will not argue the constitutionality of the act of 1891, but will obey the law first and settle legal questions afterwards. Acting on the principle that discretion is the better part of valor, they, it is said, will within the required time file with the Internal Revenue Collector the certificates required by law.

Peter Corran, a Chippewa Falls lumberman, was robbed Friday night of $5,000 at the St. Paul (Minn.) union depot. Corran had the money sewed inside the lining of his coat. He fell asleep in his seat at the depot, and when he awoke his coat had been cut open and the money taken. The thieves had evidently followed him from Chippewa Falls.

The car-coupler bill which has been so fully discussed by Congress passed finally and has become a law. It provides that after Jan. 1, 1898, it shall be unlawful for any "common carrier engaged in inter-State commerce" to use on its lines any car not equipped with automatic couplers, which will do away with the necessity of employes going between the cars to make or break their connections. Penalties are attached to the violation of the law. Employes of railroads heartily indorse this law, as a prolific source of accidents will be removed. The right of the employes to protection has been recognized. Objections to the bill were urged by railroad companies on the score of economy, but the higher consideration of the safety of employes prevailed. In the five years allowed for the introduction of the new coupling system the change can be made without embarrassment to the companies concerned.

Electricians to the number of five hundred assembled in convention at St. Louis to discuss the electric interests of the country. Many eminent men who are devoted students of the science of electricity and skilled in the practical application of the subtle fluid were present and gave the convention the benefit of their researches and experience.

(Continued on 16th page.)

SUBSCRIPTION LETTERS.

The following have made remittances of money to the Cynosure from Feb. 27 to March 4:

J W McPherson, D Quick, H W Ogilbee, Mrs A Banks, J R Alcock, J Crawford, I Millburn, Rev O O Sando, T Hodge, W D Lowrey, J F Icke, J Gourley, M L Worcester, Rev J N Bedford, Rev J Brewer, D D Tower, Mrs C K Wood, Mrs W E Walston, H Gilmore, B Fuller, Rev D W Sherman, Mrs M B Park, J L Wadsworth, D S Dean, Rev L A Hocanzan, G Goodell, E F Perry, J R Thompson, Rev E P Harbo, H Olson, H W Goddard, D J Prince, Rev W H Turkinton, Rev M T Hollis, J C Berg, J Grey.

A General Favorite.

Now Prepare for Spring Changes.

Of all the seasons in the year, the Spring is the one for making radical changes in regard to health. During the winter, the system becomes to a certain extent clogged with waste, and the blood loaded with impurities, owing to lack of exercise, close confinement in poorly ventilated shops and homes, and other causes. This is one of the causes of the sluggish, tired feeling so general at this season, and which must be overcome or the health may be entirely broken down. The old-time domestic remedies are generally discarded in favor of the standard blood purifier, Hood's Sarsaparilla, which has attained the greatest popularity all over the country as the favorite Spring Medicine. Hood's Sarsaparilla soon expels the accumulation of impurities through the bowels, kidneys, liver, lungs and skin, and gives to the blood the purity, quality and tone necessary to good health. It gives nerve, mental, bodily and digestive strength.

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO.

Wheat—Spring No. 2.....	74 1/2 @	75 1/2
Winter No. 2.....	66 1/2 @	75 1/2
Corn—No. 2.....	40 1/2 @	41 1/2
Oats—No. 2.....	30 1/2 @	35 1/2
Rye—No. 2.....	52 @	54
Bran per ton.....	13 50 @	14 00
Hay—Timothy.....	9 00 @	11 25
Butter, medium to best....	16 @	26
Cheese.....	03 @	12
Beans.....	1 85 @	2 05
Eggs.....	17 @	17 1/2
Seeds—Timothy, 100 lbs. 4 20 @	4 34
Flax.....	1 22 @	1 23
Broom corn.....	02 @	08 1/2
Potatoes, per bu.....	63 @	73
Hides—Green to dry flint..	03 1/2 @	09
Lumber—Common.....	10 00 @	13 00
Wool (washed).....	16 @	25
Cattle—Choice to extra....	5 60 @	6 15
Common to good.....	4 20 @	4 90
Hogs.....	7 40 @	8 40
Sheep.....	4 25 @	5 90

NEW YORK.

Wheat.....	78 1/2 @	83 1/2
Corn.....	51 1/2 @	55 1/2
Oats.....	37 1/2 @	40
Eggs.....	19 @
Butter.....	17 @	28
Wool.....	13 @	25

KANSAS CITY.

Cattle.....	1 90 @	4 50
Hogs.....	5 50 @	8 05
Sheep.....	4 00 @	4 05

STANDARD WORKS

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Association.

221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

TERMS:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order as a guaranty that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums. A liberal discount to dealers.

ON FREEMASONRY.

Freemasonry Illustrated. A complete exposition of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter. Profusely illustrated. Complete work of 640 pages, in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 75 cents. First three degrees (376 pages), in cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Knight Templarism Illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the Council and Commandery. A book of 341 pages. In cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.

Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated. The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all the Masonic Rites, and are fully and accurately given in "Freemasonry Illustrated." Vol. I. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3rd to 18th inclusive. Vol. II. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 19th to 33rd inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive. Price per volume, paper cover, 50 cents each. In cloth, $1.00 each.

Hand-Book of Freemasonry. By E. Ronayne, Past Master of Keystone Lodge No. 639, Chicago. Gives the complete standard ritual of the first three degrees of Freemasonry. New edition, 274 pages. Bound flexible cloth covers, 50 cents.

Freemasonry Exposed. By Capt. William Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book republished. 25 cents each.

Adoptive Masonry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the five degrees of Female Freemasonry, by Thomas Lowe. 20 cents each.

Light on Freemasonry. By Elder D. Bernard. In cloth, $1.50 each. Paper, 75 cents each.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Baal Worship Identical. Explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the lodge. Bound in fine cloth, 420 pages, 75 cents.

Mah-Hah-Bone; comprises the Hand Book, Master's Carpet and Freemasonry at a glance. Bound in one volume. In cloth, 589 pages, $1.00.

History of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. As prepared by seven committees of citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan. 25 cents each.

Ex-President John Quincy Adams' LETTERS on the Nature of Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties. Price, cloth, $1.00. Paper, 35 cents.

Hon. Thurlow Weed on the Morgan Abduction. This is the legally attested statement of this eminent Christian journalist and statesman concerning the unlawful seizure and confinement of Capt. Morgan in Canandaigua jail, his removal to Fort Niagara and subsequent drowning in Lake Ontario. 5 cents each.

The Broken Seal; or Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. By Samuel D. Greene. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry, as proved in court in the New Berlin trials. The New Berlin trials began in the attempt of Freemasons to prevent public initiations by seceding Masons. These trials were held at New Berlin, Chenango Co., N. Y., April 13 and 14, 1831, and General Augustus C. Welsh, sheriff of the county, and other adhering Freemasons swore to the truthful revelation of the oaths and penalties. 10 cents each.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy. Address of Pres. J. Blanchard. This is a most convincing argument against the lodge. 5 cents each.

Grand Lodge Masonry. Its relation to civil government and the Christian religion. By Pres. J. Blanchard. The un-Christian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is proved from the highest Masonic authorities. 5 cents each.

General Washington Opposed to SECRET SOCIETIES. This is a re-publication of Governor Joseph Ritner's "Vindication of General Washington from the Stigma of Adherence to Secret Societies," communicated to the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania, March 8, 1837, at their special request. To this is added the fact that three high Masons were the only persons who opposed a vote of thanks to Washington on his retirement to private life—undoubtedly because they considered him a seceding Freemason. 10cts each.

Morgan's Exposition, Abduction AND MURDER, AND OATHS OF 33 DEGREES. Composed of "Freemasonry Exposed," by Capt. Wm. Morgan; "History of the Abduction and Murder of Morgan;" "Valance's Confession of the Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "Bernard's Reminiscences of Morgan Times," and "Oaths and Penalties of 33 Degrees." 99¢ pages; cloth, $1.00.

Finney on Masonry. The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry. By Pres. Charles G. Finney, of Oberlin College. President Finney was a "bright Mason," but left the lodge when he became a Christian. This book has opened the eyes of multitudes. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper cover, 35 cents.

Narratives and Arguments, showing the conflict of secret societies with the Constitution and law of the Union and of the States. By Francis Semple. The fact that secret societies interfere with the execution and pervert the administration of law is here clearly proved. 15cts each.

Temple of Honor Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of "The Templars of Honor and Temperance," commonly called the Temple of Honor. By a Templar of Fidelity and Past Worthy Chief Templar. 25cts each.

The Anti-mason's Scrap-Book, consisting of 53 "Cynosure" tracts. In this book are the views of more than a score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of secret societies. Postpaid, 25 cts.

Reminiscences of Morgan Times. By Elder David Bernard. This is a thrilling narrative of the incidents connected with Bernard's Revelation of Freemasonry 10 cents each.

Secrecy vs. the Family, State and Church. By Rev. M. S. Dury. The antagonism of organized secrecy to the welfare of the family, state and church, is clearly shown. 10cts each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. James Williams, Presiding Elder of Dakota District Northwestern Iowa Conference M. E. Church—a seceding Master Mason. 10 cents each.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 DEGREES OF FREEMASONRY. To get these thirty-three degrees of Masonic bondage, the candidate takes half-a-million horrible oaths. 15 cents each.

Pres. H. H. George on Secret Societies. A powerful address, showing clearly the duty of Christian churches to dis-fellowship secret societies. 10cts each.

Thirteen Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. W. P. McNary, pastor United Presbyterian church. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Secretism. By Rev. I. Theo. Cross, pastor Congregational church Hamilton, N. Y. This is a very clear arraignment of the objections to all secret societies, and to Masonry especially, that are apparent to all. 5cts each.

Knights of Pythias Illustrated. B. a Past Chancellor. A full illustrated exposition of the three ranks of the order with the addition of the "Amended, Perfected and Amplified Third Rank." 25ct each.

Sermon on Secret Societies. By Rev. Daniel Dow, Woodstock, Conn. The special object of his sermon is to show the right and duty of Christians to examine into the character of secret societies, no matter what object such societies profess to have.

Looking Better

feeling better—better in every way. There's more consolation in that than well people stop to ponder. To get back flesh and spirits is every thing.

Scott's Emulsion

of pure Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites is prescribed by leading physicians everywhere for ailments that are causing rapid loss of flesh and vital strength.

Scott's Emulsion will do more than to stop a lingering Cough—it fortifies the system AGAINST coughs and colds.

Prepared by Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All druggists.

HOME AND HEALTH.

MUTTON SUET AS A REMEDY.

It is very vexing and annoying, indeed, to have one's lips break out with cold sores, but, like the measles, it is far better to strike out than strike in. A drop of warm mutton suet applied to the sores at night, just before retiring, will soon cause them to disappear.

This is also an excellent remedy for parched lips and chapped hands. It should be applied at night in the liquid state and well rubbed and heated in before a brisk fire, which often causes a smarting sensation, but the roughest of hands, by this treatment, will often be restored to their natural condition by one application.

If every one could but know the healing properties of so simple a thing as a little mutton suet no housekeeper would ever be without it. Get a little from your butcher, try it out yourself, run into small cakes and put away ready for use. For cuts and bruises it is almost indispensable, and where there are children there are always plenty of cuts and bruises. Many a deep gash that would have frightened most women into sending for a physician at once I have healed with no other remedies than a little mutton suet and plenty of good castile soap.

A wound should always be kept clean and the bandages changed every day or every other day.

A drenching of warm soap suds from the purest soap that can be obtained is not only cleansing but healing; then cover the surface of the wound with a bit of old white muslin dipped into melted mutton suet. Renew the drenching and the suet every time the bandages are changed, and you will be astonished to see how rapidly the ugliest wound will heal.

TOOTHACHE AND EARACHE

The cure for toothache, says one, is to go and have the tooth pulled out. Perhaps; but I know of women who under certain circumstances go and have one tooth out only to have another and an apparently sound one begin to ache in a few weeks more. And as many of us are too cowardly to have our teeth all pulled out, and as there are various circumstances under which it seems impossible to have them out, I want to talk a little about the affliction, and suggest some simple helps for it when one is really afflicted with it. There are two kinds of toothache—one from the nerve and one after the nerve is dead, and an ulcer begins to form or has formed at the root of the tooth. The first is usually caused by the exposure of the nerve to the air, or it may be that the nerve is about to die. This pain is a very sharp, darting pain, which is more or less spasmodic in character, and it often takes the form of neuralgia and flies about from place to place in the head and face. The other pain comes on usually with gradually increasing force, until the dull heavy pain drives out every thought and emotion but that of intense suffering.

If you are sure that the ache is caused solely by diseased nerves, quiet, hot water applications and some simple nerveine, as a bowl of catnip tea, or a bit of assa-fetida, will soon cause relief. If it is cold, which is only another name for a bad stomach and blood, you can take your choice of several remedies. If you like to dose, take two or three pills, or some physic, preferably the pill of cascara, and keep your face warm, and if possible, sweat it in some way. A hot bath is good in any case, and if you have a syringe, a full enema of tepid water, or one of a teaspoonful of glycerine will help in the clearing out of the stomach and bowels and you will soon obtain rest. Proceed exactly as if you had a so-called bilious attack, and you will succeed. Of course, I should strongly recommend you to fast for at least one day, and to live on dry toast and gruel for three or four days more. Rest is what the stomach is crying out for, and it will be wise for you to heed its cry.

If it is the earache, proceed precisely the same as regards a good clearing out of the system, and for local treatment, a few drops of warm purified oil poured into the ear, and more added from time to time, with warm flannels and the drinking of plenty of hot water will sooner or later cause the pain to cease. I must tell a story of my friend the doctor, who loves the truth so well that he asserts people don't love him for telling it. One day a good woman came to him for a prescription to heal the running at the ear which afflicted her child. "Oh," said the doctor in his plain, cheery way, "go home and wash it out several times a day with hot water and castile soap." Indignant at such treatment the lady hurried out to find a doctor who knew enough to give her a proper prescription. Back she came to the same drug store an hour after with a Latin prescription for soap suds and water for which she had paid $2.50, the soap and water costing her another 50 cents. She went home satisfied and left my friend the doctor chuckling merrily at the credulity of humanity who pay any price to be humbugged.—Deseret News.

TO TEST DRINKING WATER.

Pure water can always be told from impure by a few very simple tests, says the Indianapolis News.

To judge of the color, fill a colorless glass bottle with the water, look through it at some black object, and the distinctness with which this can be seen gives an idea as to the proportion of clay or sand it contains. Then pour out one-half the water, cork the bottle tightly and set it in a warm place for a day.

Remove the cork and smell the air in the bottle. If there is an offensive odor, however slight, the water is unfit for domestic use, and should be rejected. It often happens that well water, no matter how bright and sparkling, contains large quantities of putrescent matter.

When this is the case, decomposition is sure to take place in a few hours when the water is put in a warm place, and decomposition is always attended by an unpleasant odor.

You can't make a new arm with Salvation Oil, but you can cure the bruises with it. 25c.

If out of order, use BEECHAM'S PILLS.

A Strictly Woman's Investment.

Women should learn the particulars of the Women's Publishing Co., of Minneapolis, Minn., publishers of the Housekeeper. This Company paid a semi-annual dividend of five per cent last January, and stock paid up before April 1st will participate in the semi-annual dividend of at least five per cent to be paid in July next. The shares are only $10 each.

Have You Catarrh?

Send 4c. for sample of my C Cure. Or Asthma? Send 4c. for my A Relief. "Piles?" Send 10c. for my P Cure. "Constipation?" Send 10c. for my C Cure.

I do not puff these articles I simply invite you to test and judge for yourself, confident that you will want more.

H. G. COLMAN, Chemist, KALAMAZOO, MICH. Mention this paper.

Rev. E. H. Stewart
New Milford, Pa.

Excels all Others

A Popular Clergyman's Opinion

Indigestion, Skin Disease—Permanent Benefit.

The following statement is from a well known clergyman, and it will be read with interest by his thousands of friends throughout Pennsylvania, and also in New Jersey, and Kansas, where he spent twelve years of his life as a pastor, and took very active part in the great temperance work there as well as in G. A. R. matters. He served in the war in Co. B, 6th New Jersey Regiment, and is past chaplain of the 2d New Jersey Brigade association, and now a member of Lafayette Post G. A. R., 217, of Easton, Pa.

"During three years' service in the army I contracted indigestion and disease of the liver that caused me great distress and resulted in varicose veins in my legs, and a skin disease that made my limbs and hands running sores. I have for many years tried various remedies and some excellent treatment from physicians, but of the medicines I have ever taken Hood's Sarsaparilla excels them all for indigestion and skin disease. I have been greatly, and I think permanently, benefited by it." E. H. STEWART, Pastor of the Baptist Church, New Milford, Pa.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

Hood's Pills are purely vegetable, and do not purge, pain or gripe. Sold by all druggists.

THE Folly, Expense & Danger OF

SECRET SOCIETIES.

BY

CHARLES A. BLANCHARD.
(President Wheaton College.)

5 Cts per Copy; $3 per Hundred.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

MY EXPERIENCES

WITH

SECRET SOCIETIES

BY A TRAVELER.

With a Key to Masonry Illustrated

A new edition, greatly enlarged, has been issued, embracing chapters on the Language of Numbers, Secret Empires, and Good Men, containing more experiences, and affording a deeper insight into the Hidden Language and Workings of Secret Clans, and of the counterfeit pretences of good men, than ever before published. The Key is an exposition, explanation and verification of modern Baalism, with which all should be thoroughly acquainted. The price of the new edition is

Fifteen Cents,

but copies of the first edition will be forwarded for Ten Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

$1100 FOR 4 TOMATOES!

This Wonderful "EARLIEST TOMATO IN THE WORLD" is a perfect success. It has proved the earliest and best and bears abundantly of large bright red tomatoes, very smooth, of excellent quality and free from rot. My plants set in garden last of May produced full size ripe tomatoes July 2nd. I want a great record for it in 1893, and will pay $500 Cash to a person growing a ripe tomato in 75 days from day seed is sown, also $400 to the person growing a ripe tomato in least number of days from day seed is sown. $125 for next and $75 for next. Beware of imitations. I own all the seed. Never offered before. SURE HEAD CABBAGE of large size, firm and fine in texture, excellent quality and a good keeper. I will pay $100 for heaviest head grown from my seed in 1893, and $50 for next heaviest. Single heads have weighed over 60 pounds.

GIANT SILVER QUEEN ONION is large and handsome, single specimens under sworn testimony have weighed over 5 lbs. They are of mild and delicate flavor, grow rapidly, ripen early, flesh white and handsome. I will pay $100 for heaviest onion grown from my seed in 1893, and $50 for next heaviest.

ALICE PANSY has created a sensation everywhere. They grow larger and contain the greatest number of colors (many never seen before in pansies) of any pansy ever offered. I offer $500 to a person growing a Blossom measuring 4 1/2 in. in diameter, and $300 for largest blossom grown, $100 for second, $50 for third, $50 for fourth, $50 for fifth and $50 for sixth. Full particulars of all prizes in catalogue.

MY CATALOGUE is full of bargains. $900 is offered persons sending me largest number of customers, and $500 for largest club orders. $1.00 customers get 50 cents extra FREE.

MY OFFER I will send a packet each of Earliest Tomato in the World, Sure Head Cabbage, Giant Silver Queen Onion, Alice Pansy and Bargain Catalogue, for only 25 cents. Every person sending silver P. N. or M. O. for above collection will receive Free a packet Mammoth Prize Tomato, grows 14 ft. high, and I offer $500 for a 4 lb. tomato grown from this seed. If two persons send for two collections together each will receive Free a packet Wonder of the World Beans, stalks grow large as broom handle and pods are 18 in. long. It is a perfect wonder. F. B. MILLS, Rose Hill, N. Y.

The Blue Bell.

The Mountain Daisy.

Daily Text books for a year. Dainty little souvenirs, only 1 1/2 inches square, elegantly and neatly bound in leather, with silk marker, gilt edges, round corners, each net 25
Illuminated paper covers, each 10

Birthday Memorial Text-Book. An Autograph Text-book. Text for each day and space for autographs. 32mo., Cloth..... 25

Daily Comfort in Four Fold Links.

The most popular Wall Roll published, and deservedly so. Every page is an effective sermon. The striking character and particular value of this new Wall Roll is in the remarkable arrangement and selection of the Scripture Texts. A constant monitor in the Christian household. A silent teacher for the school. A comforting messenger for the sick-room, as well as being suitable for the office, the store or the shop.

Printed in beautiful large, clear letters, easily discernible at a distance of 10 to 15 feet. Mounted on rollers, with cord, to hang up in usual style. 31 pages, size 14x22 in. 75

The Secret of Success; or

Finger Posts on the Highway of Life, by John T. Dale; introduction by Hon. John V. Farwell. 416 pages, 12mo., full cloth.....$1.50
A book for the aspiring. Written in a fascinating style and full of incidents and illustrations which hold the interest of the reader spell-bound. "It may be true, as has been said, that 'books are sold, not bought;' but this, at any rate, is a book which, if brought to one's attention, he will wish to own. Such a book in every intelligent family in the land—how much (in showing so clearly, so wisely, so persuasively the secret of success,) it might do toward helping to solve the countless aching, burning questions of the time."—The Advance.

Prof. Henry Drummond's Booklets.

The Perfected Life. (The greatest need of the world.) Bound in chaste style, vellum paper..... 20

Love the Supreme Gift. (The greatest thing in the world.) Uniform with Perfected Life..... 20

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

United Sons of Industry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the secret tradesunion of the above name, giving the signs, grips, passwords, etc. etc. each.

FARM NOTES

Co-operative creameries have stimulated our dairy industries; co-operative canning factories would do the same for our vegetable and fruit interests.

To procure success in farming for young or old more depends upon the man and his inclinations than upon the advantages offered by any region of country.

Check black-knot of the plum by sawing off diseased wood and painting wound with linseed oil containing a few drops of carbolic acid and enough oxide of iron to give color.

Procure the affection of your horses, and you have taken the most important step to procure their best services. Some men never speak kindly to a horse, and so never have a kind horse.

The cross fertilization of raspberries and blackberries has received much attention the past season at the Illinois Experiment Station. Results are, of course, problematical as yet, but it is hoped to produce fruit having less seeds and more flesh.

One advantage in breeding and raising stock to maturity is, the farmer, if he gives them proper attention, will understand the condition of them better than those he purchases, and he could be able to feed and manage so as to derive a large amount of profit.

The conditions required for the profitable feeding of swine are (1) clean, dry, warm quarters, protected from winds and draughts, (2) as much wholesome feed—if grain, preferably, ground fine—as they will eat clean, three times a day, and (3) free access to a mixture of salt and ashes.

All dealers in poultry supplies and nearly all country store-keepers keep crushed oyster shells. If your store-keeper does not keep them he can tell you where to get them. Keep a box of the shells where the fowls can help themselves. They will not eat more than they need.

The organization for good roads is spreading. It should. Good roads by the farms to the nearest railway station will put money in the pockets by reducing the cost of transportation from the home, whatever the distance may be to the railway. Would it not be a good plan for farmers to figure this out for themselves, to see that good money will come out of good roads?

A man may succeed on fifty or a hundred acres, and double the size of his farm, but he receives little more income than his smaller acreage had formerly given him. However, there are exceptions to all rules, and if a man should take up stock raising—sheep, cattle or horses—he might be able to do a more extensive and profitable business with very large farms; but not so if he is engaged purely in limited agriculture.

Buff Cochins are fond of range and do better when given daily freedom in the meadow or orchard. A large fowl needs room to move about and stir his blood by action, which is often impossible if penned up closely in a run. Buffs are pretty fowls, easily handled, and wonderfully steady layers, for large fowls are not usually steady in this respect. As a farm fowl Buff Cochins are constantly growing in favor. The young chicks grow rapidly, feathering nearly as quickly as the Brown or White Leghorn.

A good deal of nonsense is talked and written about farmers' debts. Some would have us believe that under no consideration ought a farmer to incur a debt of any sort, yet many of the best farmers that we know commenced by going in debt for their land, and have often assumed further debt for the purpose of making needed improvements. It depends wholly upon what the debt is incurred for as to its wisdom. It is foolish to go in debt for a fast horse, or for any needless luxury; but when the debt will help one to make more money, and so become independent the sooner, it is a very different thing.

The general rule should be to plow to a depth sufficient to make land mellow where the roots of the grain will pro-

AYER'S Sarsaparilla CURES

HUNDREDS of Physicians
SAY SO
THOUSANDS of Druggists
SAY SO MILLIONS of Patients
SAY SO TAKE IT and you will
SAY SO

Ayer's Sarsaparilla, better than any other Spring Medicine, fully prepares the system to resist the ailments and epidemics peculiar to March, April, May. It purifies, vitalizes, and enriches the blood, quickens the appetite and imparts real and lasting benefit to every tissue and organ of the body. Positive proof of this statement may be had from anyone who has faithfully taken this wonderful medicine.

Read the statement of NATHAN S. CLEAVELAND, whose father was for 60 years Professor in Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me.: "I believe that Ayer's Sarsaparilla has no equal as a blood-purifier and Spring medicine. For Loss of Energy, That Tired Feeling, for Debility, Dizziness, Indigestion, or Dyspepsia, or for Loss of Appetite, this remedy has to me always been an unfailing specific. It gives tone to the stomach, aids digestion, overcomes restlessness, irritability, and nervousness, and exerts a beneficial and healthy action as a brain and nerve restorative. My father believed in the great medicinal value of this remedy, and never failed to recommend it, whenever opportunity offered. Some years ago, he urged my youngest sister to take it for debility, and a low state of the blood, and the result of her following his advice was very gratifying. She improved in health and strength from the first and was soon as well as ever. Whenever any one asks me, 'What do you consider the best blood-purifier?' my answer is, 'Ayer's Sarsaparilla.'"—NATHAN S. CLEAVELAND, 376 Centre St., Jamaica Plain, Mass.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Cures others, will cure you

DO YOU WANT

To receive, read, distribute and otherwise aid in the circulation of a large number of Holiness and Reform papers and magazines? If so, send me a SILVER dime, and your name and address will be printed on the Holiness and Reform Mail Exchange List, which is sent to all publishers of holiness and reform literature, who will mail you sample papers and magazines. Write name and address PLAINLY. Address, J. H. PADGETT, Printer, Ennis, Texas.

trude. This is a rule of prime importance. Some crops, however, need special preparation, as wheat, which needs but a few inches of surface soil made fine, but very compact. Corn, on the other hand, needs depth of soil for the roots, and there is no limit within the bounds of possible plowing to the depth given for the roots of this excessively robust plant. The plow may, therefore, be put down seven, eight, or even ten inches if the land permits it, and it is the business of the corn grower to get his land into such a condition that the corn roots may go as deeply as they may and find food wherever they go, down or sidewise.

The chief dependence of those liable to sudden colds is Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

Neglect of the hair often destroys its vitality and natural hue, and causes it to fall out. Before it is too late apply Hall's Hair Renewer, a sure remedy.

You Don't Have to Swear Off
using tobacco, if you will take NO-TO-BAC, the wonderful, harmless, guaranteed tobacco-habit cure: it costs but a trifle, and the man who wants to quit will find in NO-TO-BAC a permanent cure. Sold by druggists. Send for book titled "Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke your Life Away," mailed free. Address The Sterling Remedy Co., Box 655 Indiana Mineral Springs, Ind.

The St. Louis Sermon

Are Secret Societies a Blessing or a Curse?

An Address by Rev. B. Carradine D. D., Pastor of the Centenary M. E. Church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891.

W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's too."

A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover. Sent postpaid 25 copies $1.00. Single copy 5 cents.

Address - - W. I. PHILLIPS, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

JONATHAN BLANCHARD'S

SERMONS AND ADDRESSES.

Select discourses of the late editor of the Cynosure and leader in our reform. Lectures, sermons and speeches given from 1834 to 1892 in leading cities of the United States, discussing topics of

LIVING REFORM.

Secret Societies, The Sabbath, Temperance, National Reform, Christian Education, Christian Socialism, The Bible, Etc., Etc.

A BOOK EVERYBODY SHOULD READ

12mo. Fine Photogravure Portrait.

Price, 75 Cents.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASS'N, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Odd-fellowship Judged by its own utterances; its doctrine and practice examined in the light of God's Word. By Rev. J. H. Brockman. This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-fellowship, in the form of a dialogue. In cloth 50cts; paper 25cts.

The New World of Central Africa.

By Mrs. H. Grattan Guinness, with a history of the first Christian mission on the Congo. 12mo., 530 pages with maps, portraits and numerous illustrations. $2.00. "A conscientious piece of work, and gives a very clear account of what has been done by the Protestant missions to evangelize the barbarous races of Central Africa. He who wants to know what missionary effort means in these days may well learn from this volume. The reader who goes carefully through will have a good bird's eye view of recent events in Africa, with all the results of modern travel. The work contains solid information of use to all who are interested in the future of this wonderful country. The many illustrations throw light upon savage customs and costumes."—Graphic.

and the Far East.

Letters from China by Geraldine Guinness, edited by her sister, with introduction by Rev. J. Hudson Taylor. Very fully illustrated. Quarto cloth, $1.50.

This book was scarcely written—it was lived; for the breath of life is in it from cover to cover. We have never read so wonderful an account of successful missionary effort.—Presbyterian

We easily understand how this edition is the fifteenth thousand. It is a very remarkable book.—The Golden Rule.

Frances Ridley Havergall's Poems.

Author's edition complete. The only unabridged authorized edition published in America. 1. 12mo., 880 pages, cloth, beveled, 2.00. 2. Beveled boards, full gilt, 2.50. 3. Half white vellum, gilt top, uncut edges, 2.50. 4. French morocco padded, roll red under gold edges, 4.00. 5. Persian calf, padded and embossed, gilt roll and r. g., 5.00. 6. Crushed levant, elegant, 6.00.

7. Full German calf, padded, elegant, gilt, rd. cors., 7.50.

Miss Havergall stands without peer in the English language in the department of religious poetry.

"The book in paper and binding is all that could be desired."—Publishers' Weekly.

Small Books by Miss Havergall.
Bound in elegant illuminated board covers.

Kept for the Master's Use. 20
My King; Daily Thoughts for the King's Children. 20

Works of Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

Sermon Notes. Covering all the Bible from Genesis to Revelation. 4 vols., 4.00.
Feathers for Arrows. A volume of Choice Extracts, 12mo., cloth, 1.00.
Twelve Striking Sermons. 50
Twelve Soul Winning Sermons. 50
Twelve Sermons on the Resurrection. 50
Twelve New Year Sermons. 50
Twelve Christmas Sermons. 50

Notes by C. H. M.

On Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy.
Mr. D. L. Moody says of these books: "They have been to me a very key to the Scriptures."
Deuteronomy is issued in two volumes, the others complete in one volume each.
Separate volumes may be had if desired.
The complete set in six volumes, covering over 2,300 pages, is offered at the reduced price of 75c per vol. or $4.50 per set.

A. L. O. E. Intermediate Library.

Selected from the numerous productions of this world-renowned writer as being those of rare merit. 12 vols., 12mo., cloth elegant, each 75c; set, 9.00.
An Eden in England. Life in Eagle's Nest.
Ned Franks. White Bear's Den.
Sheer Off. Fairy Spider's Web.
Braid of Chords. Lake in the Woods.
Silver Keys. Seven Perils Passed.
Grace Vernon. Hartley Brothers.

The Jessica Series. By Hesba Stretton. 6 vols., handsome bindings, cloth 50c each, or per set, 2.10.
Jessica's First Prayer. Friends till Death.
No Place Like Home. A Miserable Christmas Under the Old Roof. A Night and a Day.

A. L. O. E. Junior Library. Adapted to the young folks. 7 vols., 12mo., cloth each 60c; the set, 4.20.
Claremont Tales. A Wreath of Smoke.
Christian Conquests. Pomegranates from Tales Illustrative of Punjab.
Parables. Little Bullets from The Battle of Life. Bataia.

The Hesba Stretton Series. 8 vols., elegant cloth bound, per set, 4.80.
Cassy. King's Servant.
Lost Gipsy. Alone in London.
Max Kromer. Little Meg's Children
Storm of Life. Crew of the Dolphin.

CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER Absolutely Pure.

A cream of tartar baking Powder. Highest of all in leavening strength.—Latest United States Government Food Report. ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 106 Wall St., N. Y.

NEWS OF THE WEEK (Continued from 13th page).

Lionel Sartoris, a cousin of the late husband of Nellie Grant, proposes to colonize with English farmers a tract of about 80,000 acres in Central Wyoming. He secured the land for a ranch several years ago and failed in the range business.

Thirty-nine hundred dollars in gold was found in a crock buried in the cellar of the old Fagin hovel, near Holly, Oakland county, Mich. The latest date on the coins was 1857. Many coins are of great value on account of their age. Four certificates of deposit issued by the First National Bank of Pontiac, amounting to $7,000, were found in a book cover.

George P. Lord, of Elgin, Ill., has presented the Young Men's Christian Association of Elgin with land on the west side of the river worth about $25,000. The association will sell the property and apply the money on its new block, to be located on the site given by Mr. and Mrs. Lord several months ago.

Reports from different points in Michigan indicate that small fruits are in excellent condition and that the prospects for an abundant crop are good. Peach trees are in unusually fine condition. The severe weather of the past month has not been as damaging as was first reported.

A Stillwater (Minn.) dispatch, March 5, says that an accident occurred on the Northwestern Road near Baraboo, Wis., at 11:30 o'clock Saturday night, in which John Glaspie, the well-known millionaire lumberman, was instantly killed.

The representatives of the Hawaiian provisional government will at the earliest favorable moment call the attention of the administration to the pending treaty of annexation. They do not expect that the treaty will be withdrawn.

By a cyclone that swept through Georgia, last Friday night, eighteen persons were killed and a great many injured. About 150 houses at Greenville were either destroyed or badly damaged.

At Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., two freshmen were rigorously "hazed" on Saturday. At 3 A. M. they were dragged out of bed and, in turn, compelled to sit down in a punch-bowl full of snow and icewater, and then made to imitate rowing a boat. They were further soaked with cold water by wet towels, which they were compelled to throw at each other. Four oak doors were broken and nearly all the windows in the suite of rooms occupied by the freshmen. The consequences are likely to prove serious.

FOREIGN.

English coal miners have asked Mr. Gladstone to have an 8-hour day established for their labor. Mr. Gladstone favored the movement, but suggested local option as the best method of securing it.

At Rome, last Friday was celebrated as the anniversary of the date on which Leo XIII. was crowned as Pope in St. Peter's Basilica, March 3, 1878. The Pope attended state mass in the St. Peter's Basilica. A brilliant gathering of members of the sacred college, patriarchs, prelates, and foreign envoys added to the splendor of the occasion.

The authorities of the African Congo Free State have decided to adopt active hostilities against Arabian slave-traders and put an end to their nefarious operations.

Parliament will take measures to repress the superabundance of crime that exists in County Clare, Ireland, where life and property are terribly insecure.

Charles de Lesseps and Cottu will be imprisoned in the historical fortress of the Island of St. Marguerite, wherefrom Bazaine escaped. The prisoners will be permitted to retain the beds and ordinary clothing.

Austria announces an electric locomotive which is to travel 125 miles an hour. The Independence Belge follows with the statement that the North Belgian Company and the North France Company are constructing a line for locomotives, operated by electricity, on which the journey from Brussels to Paris, about 192 miles, will be accomplished in 80 minutes.

Campidan valley, Guatemala, has been flooded. Six villages have been swept away and hundreds of people are reported drowned.

Elderly people remember their spring bitters with a shudder. The present generation have much to be thankful for, not the least of their blessings being such a pleasant and thoroughly effective spring medicine as Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It is a health-restorer and health-maintainer.

Our High Grade List and Bargain Book sent to any address on receipt of a 2-c stamp.

LORD & THOMAS,
NEWSPAPER ADVERTISERS
45 RANDOLPH STREET,
CHICAGO.

"WORTH A GUINEA A BOX."

SPECIAL NOTICE

Complying with general request,
BEECHAM'S PILLS
will in future for the United States be covered with A Tasteless and Soluble Coating, completely disguising the taste of the Pill without in any way impairing its efficacy.
Price 25 cents a Box.
New York Depot 365 Canal Street.

LE CARON, THE SPY.

A STARTLING REVELATION.

More enticing than a romance, filled with the strongest evidences of the power and evil of sworn secret societies, and plainly revealing the danger to any government growing out of political conspiracies, is the

"Autobiography of Henry LeCaron, the Spy."

who was for years a Clan-na-Gael Center, a Fenian Commander, and a Land-League Orator, but always a British Detective. The book covers his twenty-five years' experiences in this secret service, and contains 205 pages.

Price, in paper covers, 50 cents.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
WM. I. PHILLIPS, Treasurer,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

Odd-fellowship: Its History and Its Work. By President J. Blanchard. A new pamphlet with cover. Postpaid, 5 cts.

MUTUAL HOME IMPROVEMENT CO.

CAPITAL FULL PAID $100,000.

Your Idle Money Will Earn We issue Trust Certificates guaranteed by assets amounting to more than $2.00 in assets for every $1.00 in certificates. On these certificates we pay 6 per cent per annum, payable semi-annually. The certificates are issued for terms of 3, 6, 9, or 12 years, as investors may elect. The interest is paid semi-annually during the term for which the subscription is made, and at the end of the term the principal sum, together with its Large Returns if sent to us, PRO RATA share of one half of the profits, is returned on the surrender of the certificates. Address

WALTER THOMAS MILLS, Pres.
MUTUAL HOME IMPROVEMENT CO.,
161 LaSalle Street, CHICAGO.

The Christian Witness

Is an eight-page undenominational monthly; the official organ of the New Hampshire Christian Association, opposed to secret societies. It advocates Bible Holiness, Church Purity, Sound Morality and Temperance.

Terms: 50 cents a year, or three years for $1.00.

Send stamp for sample copy.

Address S. C. KIMBALL,
Box 277. Newmarket, N. H.

Revised Odd-fellowship Illustrated. The complete revised ritual of the Lodge, Emphasis and Rebekah (ladies) degrees, profusely illustrated, and guaranteed to be strictly accurate; with a sketch of the origin, history and character of the order, over one hundred foot-note quotations from standard authorities, showing the character and teachings of the order, and an analysis of each degree by ex-President J. Blanchard. This ritual corresponds exactly with the "Charge Books" furnished by the Sovereign Grand Lodge. In cloth, $1.00; paper cover, 50cts.

The Great Encyclopedia Britannica, for only $20.00.

Specimen pages and full particulars sent free on request. The full set is now ready. It is a reprint, in type shown by these lines, of the last (9th) English edition, over 20,500 pages, including more than 10,000 illustrations, and 200 maps; price in cloth, $20.00; half Russia, $24.80.

"A Library in itself," a trite phrase, often mis-applied, has meaning when applied to the Britannica; the product of the combined labors of nearly 1,200 of the most eminent scholars of the world, it places the richest stores of the world's knowledge fairly within the reach of every school-boy—it may be had for the trifling payment of five cents a day, through the "Britannica Co-operative Club."

Other Cyclopedias.

Alden's Cyclopaedia of History, 2 volumes, about 1,000 pages; the set in cloth, $1.25; half morocco, $1.75; postage 20 cents.

Ancient History back to B.C. 5004, and Modern History down to 1892. The cheapest historical work ever published; the equivalent of its contents can be found nowhere else for less than many times the price.

Alden's Cyclopaedia of Natural History, profusely illustrated, 2 volumes, about 1,000 pages; cloth, $1.50; half morocco, $2.00; postage 20 cts.

The most complete, popular, and at the same time thoroughly scientific, work on natural history ever compiled for general use.

Alden's Cyclopaedia of Universal Literature, 20 volumes, nearly 10,000 pages, cloth, gilt top, $7.50; half morocco, $9.00.

Over 2,000 of the most famous authors of the world, of all times and all languages, are represented, with biographical sketches and choice selections.

Pretty Evangeline Leads!

Our edition of Longfellow's "Evangeline," is a pretty surprise for book-lovers. It is in good type, with 45 illustrations by Birket Foster and other eminent artists, printed on very fine and heavy paper, gilt edges, remarkably handsome cloth binding, combining the delicate colors, blue and white and silver and gold. We sell it for 19 cents! plus 6c. for postage, if by mail. This covers only about the cost of manufacture by the 100,000 copies, our object being, not profit, but to show what can be done for a little money; the sale is immense.

More "Surprise" Bargains.

Sample books in the hands of pleased customers proving to be our best means of advertising, we offer, also, the following, which represent different styles in which we issue a large number of the world's best books; the prices cover only about the cost of manufacture by the 100,000 copies:

J. Fenimore Cooper's "The Pilot," cloth, 20c., postage, 8c.
Scott's "Ivanhoe," half morocco, gilt top, 35c., postage, 8c.
Herodotus, in "Ancient Classics for English Readers," 10c., postage, 6c.

The following are a few titles selected from our last Catalogue. Prices are given for cloth binding, the style and quality of most of them being represented by Cooper's "The Pilot," offered above. We are also just beginning the issue of most of them in the style represented by Scott's "Ivanhoe," half morocco, gilt top, at prices 20 cents a copy higher than for cloth binding.

Please mention this paper when you write.

World's Best Books.

Almost fabulously cheap for such excellent editions; nearly all in this or larger type, always fine paper and thoroughly good cloth binding, or half morocco, gilt top, for 20 cents more, when so published.

20 cents, postage 5c.

Esop's Fables, illustrated
Hawthorne's Scarlet Letter
Owen Meredith's Lucele
Utopia, by Sir Thomas More
Mrs. Caudle's Curtain Lectures
Vathek, by Beckford
Ik Marvel's Dream Life
—Reveries of a Bachelor
Hughes' The Manliness of Christ

25 cents, postage 6c.

Great American Humors
Carlyle's Heroes and Hero Worship
Jane Eyre, by Charlotte Bronte
Teachings of Epictetus
Franklin's Autobiography
Hawthorne's Grandfather's Chair
Tom Brown at Rugby
Marcus Aurelius Antoninus
Planetarium and Stellar Worlds
Prescott's Miscellaneous
Zenobia, by Wm. Ware
John Stuart Mill on Liberty
McCarthy's History of Ireland
Moore's Lalla Rookh
Young Folks' History of Scotland

30 cents, postage 8c.

Adam Bede, by Geo. Eliot
Curious Myths of the Middle Ages
Adventures of Baron Munchausen
Hans Anderson's Fairy Tales
Gulliver's Travels
Living's Sketch Book
Sir Walter Scott's Ivanhoe
Jane Eyre, by Charlotte Bronte
Kingsley's Hypatia
Bulwer's Last Days of Pompeii
Drummond's Natural Law
Lubbock's The Pleasures of Life
Robinson Crusoe
Geo. Elliot's Romola
Thaddeus of Warsaw
Children of the Abbey
Cooper's Leather Stocking Tales and Sea Tales, 10 volumes, each 30c.

35 cents, postage 9c.

Beecher's Lectures to Young Men
Classic Comedies

John Halifax, Gentleman
Creasy's Fifteen Decisive Battles
Dawson's Story of Earth and Man
Ebers' Uarda, A Romance
—An Egyptian Princess
Tom Brown at Oxford
The Lamp-lighter, by Cummins
Self Help, by Samuel Smiles
Spencer on Education
Bayard Taylor's Views Afoot
Apocryphal Life of Jesus
Word Book of Synonyms
The Wide World

40 cents, postage 10c.

Auerbach's On the Heights
Lorna Doone, by Blackmore
Westward Ho!, by Kingsley
Schiller's Thirty Years' War
Spencer's Data of Ethics
Guizot's History of Civilization
Misson's French and Eng. Dictionary
Zahner's German and Eng. Dictionary
Wood's Natural History

50 cents, postage 9c.

Chinese Classics, Confucius, etc.
Confessions of St. Augustine
Darwin's Origin of Species
Favorite American Poems
Ideal Classics, 6 volumes in 1
The Koran, translated by Sale
Footprints of the Creator
Testimony of the Rocks
Old Red Sandstone
Mutareh's Illustrious Men
Interwoven Gospels
Shakespearean Quotations
Wallace's The Repose in Egypt
—The Land of the Pueblos
Webster's Wisdom and Eloquence

60 cents, postage 12c.

Carlyle's French Revolution
Farrar's Early Days of Christianity
Tulne's English Literature

75 cents, postage 10c.

Washington and His Generals
Napoleon and His Marshals
Losing's Eminent Americans
Hugo's Les Miserables, 2 volumes

Any Book supplied: the Britannica at one-sixth its former price is a fair illustration of what we are doing for book-buyers all along the line. Our publications not sold by dealers or agents—order direct. 128-page Catalogue sent for 2-cent stamp.

JOHN B. ALDEN, Publisher, 57 Rose St., New York.

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XXV., No. 27

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, MARCH 16, 1893.

WHOLE No. 1,194.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,

221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PER YEAR..... $2.00
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... 1.50

No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrears paid.

Address all letters for publication to EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, CHICAGO. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed.

Make all drafts and money orders payable to the Treasurer, W. I. PHILLIPS, 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO. When possible make remittances by express money order. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address on Cynosure list always give the former address.

[Entered at the Postoffice, Chicago, Ill., as Second Class Matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:	REFORM NEWS:
Notes and Comments..... 1	From the New England
Secret Societies Moved.. 8	Agent; A Home of the
Masonic Rhodomontade. 8	Gael; Anti-secrecy Re-
How may it be Remedied?..... 8	form in the South; Rev.
Repeal of the Fifteenth	Wm. Fenton in Minne-
Amendment..... 8	sota; From the Eastern
Christian Patriotism..... 9	Agent; Work in the
The Sacredness of Hu-	Western District..... 4,5
man Life..... 9	CORRESPONDENCE:
The Orangemen, Again. 9	Geo. W. Clark on "Sun-
The Gospel of Dirt..... 9	day Opening"; Mem-
CONTRIBUTIONS:	bers of the Lodge in
The Oath..... 1	Class-meeting..... 5,6
SELECTED:	AGENTS AND LECTURERS..... 7
A Running Sketch..... 2	THE N. C. A..... 7
Lynch Law—An Appal-	THE HOME..... 10
ling Record..... 3	TEMPERANCE..... 11
The Sandwich Islands.. 3	BIBLE LESSON..... 12
WASHINGTON LETTER..... 4	RELIGIOUS NEWS..... 12
LITERATURE..... 6	NEWS OF THE WEEK..... 13
LODGE NOTES..... 7	HOME AND HEALTH..... 14
	FARM NOTES..... 15

A bill in the Wisconsin legislature, regulating "installment" sharks, is likely to become a law.

A few responses to the Appeal in last week's Cynosure have been received. It is hoped that it is an earnest of an abundant shower. Among the first to reply were our old and valued friends M. L. Worcester and W. R. Morley.

Mr. Gladstone and his new plan of Home Rule for Ireland are meeting with vigorous, not to say vicious, opposition from the Orangemen at large and the Tory leaders in Parliament. Not only do they denounce the measure in round terms, but on a recent Sunday they openly hissed and derided Mr. Gladstone as he was leaving the church where he attended service. These are not the people on whom it is safe to bestow self-government, in any nation.

The Auditor of the Columbian Exposition, in his statement up to the first instant, reports total receipts from all sources, $15,952,448 56 and total expenditures, for general and construction purposes, of $15,584,310.16. Total available cash on hand, $247,445 03. One can get a small idea, from these figures, of the immensity of this great undertaking. Foreign exhibits are now rapidly arriving, and the prospects are that the Fair will be in excellent condition for the opening, May 1.

The illness of our esteemed New England correspondent, Miss Flagg, to which reference was made in these columns last week, has apparently become more serious. A note from her bedside, dated March 7th, announces that she was not then able to sit up, much less write her accustomed "New England Letter." From another source we learn that she has been suffering from pneumonia, with symptoms of the grippe. Let prayers be offered for her by all to whom her letters are welcome weekly visitors. We hope to be able to announce her early recovery.

In a civil suit brought against the management of the Columbian Exposition with reference to transportation facilities on Lake Michigan and the right to land passengers at certain points on the fair grounds, the friends of Sunday opening made a special effort to force the gates to be kept open seven days in the week. The court, however, decided against the prosecution as to this feature of the suit, as not coming within its jurisdiction. It was another victory for the friends of the Christian Sabbath.

Rev. M. A. Gault contributed to the Christian Statesman of the 11th inst. a concise report of the Allegheny anti-secrecy convention, in which the interests of our reform were ably advocated. Of Rev. W. B. Stoddard, who spent many weeks in Pennsylvania arduously promoting the success of the convention, Bro. Gault says: "He has developed remarkable talent as an organizer." This is true; and Bro. Stoddard is entitled to the congratulations of all concerned for the successful results of his earnest labors.

Ex-President Harrison, who left Washington on Saturday, after Mr. Cleveland's inauguration, reached Pittsburgh at midnight, and proceeded no farther on his journey to Indianapolis until after "low twelve" Sunday night. His example in this respect should have a wide influence, especially as he never travels on the Lord's day. His reception at his old home was marked by many tokens of esteem and a hearty welcome. He will reside at Indianapolis, although he has accepted a position as lecturer on law in the Leland University of California.

President Cleveland, on Thursday last, sent a message to the United States Senate, withdrawing from legislation the treaty presented by the Harrison administration for the annexation of Hawaii. The message was not made public, and there is much uneasiness in political circles as to the object and the outcome of this action. Apprehensions are rife among the representatives, at Washington, of the Hawaiian provisional government that it will be fatal to annexation. In the meantime it is predicted that another provisional government will be formed in the islands, which will advocate annexation to Great Britain. The situation is one of suspense and dissatisfaction.

On the third page of this issue of the Cynosure we reproduce a striking portrait of our lamented brother reformer, Rev Benjamin T. Roberts, Senior General Superintendent of the Free Methodist church, and one of its founders. In connection with this portrait, we print "A Running Sketch" of his career up to January, 1865 (written by himself), as a worthy memorial of one who, through faithfulness to Christ and his cause, was enabled to leave behind him, for our example and emulation, a record that could only end in an eternal weight of glory. Fully appreciating the evil tendency of secret societies, he ever freely opposed them with voice and pen; and for this reason he will be missed and his loss deeply lamented. His remains rest peacefully at his late home, North Chili, N. Y.

The United Presbyterian, referring to the recent anti-secrecy convention at Allegheny, Pa., judiciously remarks: "There were some attempts at apology for the lodge; almost always accompanied by disparaging comparisons with the churches as to the care taken of the unfortunate. These deliverances were paltry in argument and facts, and ill-tempered in spirit. It appears to be regarded as the acme of presumption and impertinence to apply to the system of lodgery the principles which the wisdom and experience of the past have shown to be sound." It is always so. Silence and secrecy form the capital stock of each and all of these societies, and as soon as the seal of these is removed, as it was at that convention, disturbance is sure to follow. Professedly the lodge members are seeking "light," but as soon as the light is turned on, an uproar ensues.

The keynote of a discussion of Jay Gould, his wealth and methods, which appears in the Review of Reviews for February, is the idea that the modern millionaire, however unobjectionable his conduct may be as a citizen and a man, must to a considerable extent be judged as a millionaire—that is, by the use which he makes of his great instrument of power. The editor of the Review holds that the greatest need of our day is a mission to (or among) millionaires which shall convert them to a sense of their social obligations; and he might have consistently added, to the requirements of the Gospel, for the promulgation of its teachings and the suppression of vice.

Before its adjournment Congress passed a law restricting immigration from infected countries and providing for a strict quarantine of immigrants. Abroad it provides for the inspection of ships, consular certificates, and details of a medical officer to be kept in the consul's office. In this country it provides for the promulgation of regulations by the Secretary of the Treasury, governing all quarantines. So long as the State quarantine will abide by these regulations and perform all the duties required by them they can continue to conduct the business. But should they fail in the performance of the duties, the Secretary of the Treasury can remand the vessel to the nearest National quarantine station, where the quarantine can be performed. Another section of the act authorizes the President of the United States to suspend immigration from time to time in cases where quarantine defenses are found to be inadequate. These precautions would be good at any time, but in this Columbian year they are doubly important.

THE OATH.

ADDRESS DELIVERED BEFORE THE PENNSYLVANIA STATE CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION IN THE CONVENTION AT ALLEGHENY, TUESDAY, FEB. 28, 1893, BY REV. M. B. PATTERSON, OF HARTSTOWN, PA.

It is scarcely necessary to say that any discussion of the lodge system is incomplete which does not take into account the oaths by which its obligations are enforced. I verily believe that if these oaths and the penalties attached were abolished the whole institution of organized secrecy would soon be a thing of the past. It would seem that the members of secret fraternities find themselves in much the same position as did Herod when the daughter of Herodias desired the head of John the Baptist. It is said that the king was sorry; "nevertheless, for the oath's sake and them which sat at meat, he commanded it to be given her." But was Herod any the less censurable because of the oath which he had taken? By no means. Neither do we say that members of so-called oath-bound societies are bound by the profane oaths which they are made to swear when taking a degree in the lodge. While we affirm that these oaths have no binding obligation, that did not save the life of William Morgan or of many others who have been made the victims of plots conceived behind the closed doors of the lodge room.

Just here it may be proper to inquire as to the meaning of an oath. Webster defines it to be "a solemn affirmation or declaration made with an appeal to God for the truth of what is affirmed." By another it is said to be "a declaration or promise, made by calling on God to witness what is said, with an invoking of his vengeance, or a renunciation of his favor, in case of falsehood."

But it is often said that in many so-called secret societies the obligation is not an oath, but is of the nature of a promise. This, however, is a distinction without a difference, since the sinfulness of an unlawful oath in distinction from that of an unlawful promise is a difference in degree rather than in kind. In all such cases the sin incurred in taking such an obligation greatly preponderates over that incurred in breaking it. To the sin of taking a rash and unwarranted oath, Herod added the crime of murder. It would have been far better for him to have broken his oath and so have saved the life of an innocent man. And herein lies the guilt of those who for the sake of what they suppose to be a binding obligation will continue in a society even after they are persuaded that membership therein is inconsistent with the higher obligation which they are under to God and his law. Such persons are committing a sin against light and knowledge so long as they remain in an association after being convinced that it is wrong.

Since we say that secret societies have been able to perpetuate their existence largely by means of the obligations imposed upon their members, the question may arise, wherein consists the sin and crime of these obligations? We say "sin" and "crime," since it can be shown that both elements are included. To the foregoing inquiry various answers may be given. In the first place we say that it is a travesty upon the sanctity of the oath. An oath is only to be administered upon just occasion, and then by lawful authority. It is likewise to be regarded as an act of worship, since, as Dr. A. A. Hodge says, "it recognizes the omnipresence, omniscience, absolute justice and sovereignty of the Person whose august witness is invoked, and whose judgment is appealed to as final." Now we ask, in all seriousness, what right has any man or set of men, many of whom, it may be, are profane and immoral in their lives, to administer an oath to their fellowmen? I am fully persuaded that one reason why men so often disregard their oaths on other and more important occasions is because they have become familiar with the farce so often enacted in the secret conclaves of their fraternities. Did you ever think of it? By the time a man passes through all the degrees of Masonry, up to and including that of Royal Arch, he has said, "I promise and swear" sixty-eight times. If it is ever true that familiarity breeds contempt, it certainly is true in this case.

But, again, the taking of these oaths or obligations is ensnaring to the conscience. While God alone is Lord of the conscience, every man who takes a degree in the lodge-room is placing himself in a position where, for aught he knows, he may be compelled to do something which will put him in a position of antagonism to the law of God. This whole system of organized secrecy is held together by a promise to obey something that will be revealed hereafter. But who knows what will be the character of these revelations? Certainly not the man who stands hood-winked in the presence of the "Grand Commander," "Most Excellent Prelate," "Generalissimo" and other high dignitaries and chief estates presided over by the prince of this world.

In the degree of Entered Apprentice the candidate is made to swear that he will "ever conceal, and never reveal, any part, or parts, art, or arts, point, or points of the secrets, arts and mysteries of ancient Freemasonry, which he has received, is about to receive, or may hereafter be instructed in, to any person or persons in the known world, except it be a true and lawful brother Mason." But what is the penalty affixed to a violation of this so-called oath? "Binding myself, under no less penalty than to have my throat cut across, my tongue torn out by the roots, and my body buried in the rough sands of the sea at low-water mark, where the tide ebbs and flows twice in twenty-four hours; so help me God, and keep me steadfast in the due performance of the same."

We will now suppose that our Entered Apprentice has advanced to the Royal Arch degree. Imagine his surprise when, in the obligation of this degree, he swears: "Furthermore do I promise and swear, that a companion Royal Arch Mason's secrets, given me in charge as such, I knowing them to be such, shall remain as secure and inviolable in my breast as in his own, murder and treason not excepted." No matter how revolting such an obligation may be, the candidate is bound by the code of Masonic honor to keep this one also. Bernard says that in the degree of Knight Templar and Knight of Malta the candidate seals, as it were, his obligation by a libation drunk from a cup made from the upper part of a human skull.

We are now prepared to advance one step farther, and to affirm that the oaths imposed by these associations are utterly subversive of all good government, while at the same time they undermine the foundations of civil society. The Royal Arch Mason, as we have seen, swears to screen his fellow-Mason in acts of murder and treason. In the light of history no one needs to be told that this oath does not mean anything. The fact that not one of the conspirators engaged in the abduction and murder of Morgan was ever brought to justice is proof-positive that fraternity men consider their obligations binding under all circumstances. Does any one doubt that the murderers of Dr. Cronin were acting by authority of the lodge? Let the testimony given at the trial make answer. And just here I cannot refrain from quoting the warning words of Joseph Cook: "The absolute infernality which lies in the principles that led to the murder of Dr. Cronin may grow to a serpent, twining around our Republic as the serpent twined around Laocoon of old. Our duty is to seize that serpent by the throat while he is young, and unwind his coils from the body politic and social and religious, and then hurl the viper back into the chaos where he belongs."

And what shall we say of the oaths of the Mormon Endowment House? The Mormon church teaches that the Congress of the United States has no right, under the Constitution, to pass any law interfering with the practices of the Mormon religion, and that acts of Congress against polygamy, and the consequent disfranchisement of those who practice it, are unwarranted interferences with their religion. One of the tenets of this church is that the doctrine of "Blood Atonement" is of God, and that under it certain sins, which the blood of Jesus Christ cannot atone for, may be remitted by shedding the blood of the transgressor. There is no escaping the conclusion that the oaths of the Endowment House have a striking resemblance to those taken by members of the Masonic fraternity. If any one doubts this let him read the testimony taken in the District Court in Salt Lake City during the trial held there in November, 1889. The issue was this: Certain persons had made application for citizenship; there were those who opposed the granting of this privilege, on the ground that the aforesaid persons had taken an oath in the Endowment House, which was inconsistent with citizenship in the United States. In this connection we quote from the ruling of Judge Anderson in the case. He says: "The evidence in this case establishes, unquestionably, that the teachings, practices and aims of the Mormon church are antagonistic to the government of the United States, utterly subversive of good morals and the well-being of society, and that its members are actuated by a feeling of hostility toward the government and its laws; and therefore an alien who is a member of said church is not a fit person to become a citizen of the United States."

When I read this decision, the inquiry arose in my mind: If the oaths of the Endowment House unfit a man for citizenship, will not the same logic apply to those who take similar obligations in a Masonic lodge? But there are other sources of danger. In connection with the assassination of Chief of Police Hennessey it was shown conclusively that this dastardly outrage was perpetrated by the sworn abettors of a secret oath-bound society—the Mafia.

Another danger to our free institutions lies concealed in the secret intrigues of the Jesuits. Speaking of this order, a writer in the Schaff-Herzog Encyclopedia says, "The informing idea of this finely articulated organism is not the perfection of the inner life, but simply the performance of some external task. All that the order does for the education of its members and the elevation of their souls is done merely with an eye to some practical end. Science and art, religion and morals, are considered and employed only as so many tools or weapons for the rehabilitation of mediæval Catholicism and the establishment of the reign of the church over the state."

Mr. Cook sounds the note of warning again when he says that the power of Jesuitism is in its secret oaths, and every one knows that this order is the sworn enemy of free schools, free speech and a free ballot. Again he says, "It is beyond controversy that the arm of the most powerful ecclesiastical organization known to history is lifted with that Jesuit sword in its hand for the purpose of cutting to pieces the historic, absolutely priceless American common school system."

And now do you ask what connection the foregoing has with a discussion of the oath? Well, it is this: The systems of Masonry, Mormonism, Mafiaism, Jesuitism, Clan-na-Gaelism and other like "isms" are permeated and held together by a chain of oaths and penalties so utterly revolting that we instinctively shudder at the mere mention of them. It is hardly possible to overestimate the power exerted by the secret lodge system as it exists in our country to-day. It enters into all the relations, pleasant and otherwise, of labor and capital. Sometimes we fear that it sits as arbiter in our courts of justice, so that the language of the prophet Isaiah is fulfilled: "And judgment is turned away backward, and justice standeth afar off; for truth is fallen in the street and equity cannot enter."

At the same time, however, there are hopeful signs for the future. The light is breaking. Our cause is sure to triumph; for have we not inscribed upon our banner that name which is above every name, even though it is never spoken in the lodge-room? Under the leadership of Him who spake openly to the world, and who, as the Captain of our salvation, has been made perfect through suffering, we may expect to win the victory and at last to wear the crown.

A RUNNING SKETCH.

BY B. T. ROBERTS.

I have nothing good to say of myself. But the praise of God shall be continually in my mouth. What do I not owe to divine grace? I am a debtor to the boundless mercy of God to a degree that can never be expressed. My inclinations by nature are to evil. My early associations, many of them, went to ruin. But God's Spirit from my earliest recollections strove with me and restrained me. I never drank wine but once, and that was at a New Year's call. Tobacco I never used, and profanity I abhorred. It was all of grace.

A Presbyterian minister came to me one day when a boy and invited me to go to Sunday-school. I went. I committed many chapters of the Bible to memory. At one lesson I recited the whole of the epistle of James. Years after, I studied law. Many of my associates openly rejected the Bible, but my knowledge of its contents not only kept me from infidelity, but enabled me to expose and refute their sophistical objections. Yet I was far from being a Christian. I was ambitious, proud and worldly. At times I was powerfully convicted, but I thought it was the part of manliness to resist as long as possible. Conviction left me and my heart became hard.

At length it pleased God to answer the prayer of my friends in my behalf. He awakened me to a sense of my lost condition. The instrumentality was very humble. A pious, illiterate cooper—a very bad stammerer,—gave his testimony at a regular Sabbath afternoon prayer meeting. I was there by invitation of friends, and his testimony found way to my heart. There was no special religious interest but I felt that it was my duty to become a Christian. I commenced to pray. It was hard work, but God encouraged me to persevere. As the light of the Spirit shone, I gave up one thing after another, but I clung to my profession. For three weeks or more, I plead with the Lord to convert me; but to let me have my choice in the business I would follow. Many who had power with God prayed for me, but I had to yield. Christ demanded an unconditional surrender. I made it. The joys of pardon and peace flowed in my soul. My cup was full, my happiness was unspeakable.

The study of law was abandoned. I completed the college course at Middletown, Conn., in 1848, receiving one of the honors of the class. The same fall I joined the Genesee conference of the

M. E. church, and was stationed at Caryville. The society was weak, and the church edifice small. By the blessing of God, there was a good accession to the church, and the house of worship was enlarged. In May of the next year I was married to Miss Ellen M. Stow, of New York. At the close of the year we were stationed at Pike, Wyoming county, N. Y. Here we labored two years, and God gave us a precious revival. A camp meeting held at Collins, in the year 1849, was made a great blessing to my soul. The subject of holiness received special attention. Rev. Eleazar Thomas, presiding elder of the district, was then a flame of fire. Mrs. Palmer attended the meeting and labored for the promotion of holiness with great zeal and success. While I was at Middletown, Dr. Redfield held a protracted meeting in the Methodist church. Such scenes of spiritual power I never had witnessed. The convictions I there received never left me. At the camp meeting they were greatly increased. Two paths were distinctly marked out before me. I saw that I might be a popular preacher, gain applause, do but little good in reality, and at last lose my soul. Or I saw that I might take the narrow way, declare the whole truth as it is in Jesus, meet with persecution and opposition, but see a thorough work of grace go on, and gain heaven. Grace was given to make the better choice. I deliberately gave myself anew to the Lord, to declare the whole truth as it is in Jesus, and to take the narrow way. The blessing came. The Spirit fell upon me in an overwhelming degree. I received a power to labor such as I had never possessed before. This consecration has never been taken back. I have many times had to humble myself before the Lord for having grieved his Spirit. I have been but an unprofitable servant. It is by grace alone that I am saved. Yet the determination is fixed to obey the Lord and take the narrow way, come what will.

Our next appointment was Rushford, N. Y. The Spirit of the Lord was with us all the year, and good was done. The next year we were stationed at Niagara street, Buffalo. We found the congregation run down—the state of spirituality low, and the people greatly discouraged. The temptation to lower the standard was strong, but God kept us from compromising. Dr. Redfield was with us several weeks, and held a protracted meeting. A great interest in the community was excited; but we met with unexpected opposition from ministers occupying a high official position in the church, and the progress of the revival was stayed.

While here, my attention was drawn to the evils of the pew system. I saw that the house of God MUST BE FREE for all who choose to attend, if the masses would be reached and saved. I began to write and preach upon the subject. The Niagara Street church was in debt, and I offered to see the debt paid off if they would make the house free. The offer was declined. Thousands of dollars were afterwards expended in rebuilding and beautifying it—all the modern expedients for raising money—such as re-selling the pews, holding fairs and festivals, and giving popular lectures, were resorted to in order to pay the indebtedness, but all these efforts were unavailing—the church has passed into the hands of the enemies of Jesus, and is now owned and occupied as a place of worship by the lineal and religious descendants of those who put the blessed Saviour to death. It has become a Jewish tabernacle.

From Buffalo we were appointed to labor in Brockport. The Lord favored us here with a thorough and extensive revival. Many precious souls were brought into the enjoyment of the justifying and sanctifying grace of God. At the close of two years we went to Albion. We followed that man of God, Wm. C. Kendall, under whose labors there had been a most powerful revival. We entered into his labors, and the church enjoyed a good degree of prosperity. While at Albion I wrote an article for the "Northern Independent" entitled "New School Methodism." There was already a strongly marked division among the preachers of the conference—some of them being committed to the doctrines of holiness and the "old paths" of spiritual religion generally—and others sympathizing with the more popular forms of worship; the leading ones of the latter class belonging generally to the Masons or Odd-fellows. Ministers belonging to the latter class had published what we considered very unkind and unjust things against us. To correct the impressions they were making, I published in the "Northern Independent" the article referred to. I endeavored to write with the utmost fairness. I have looked over the article since with all the impartiality I could command, and can see in it nothing to condemn. One of the bitterest opposers we ever had, said "your article is written in as mild and candid a tone as such facts can be stated in." A bill of charges was brought against me for writing that article. I will not enter into details. But I was voted guilty of "immoral and un-Christian conduct," for writing that article. Sentence, "Reproof by the Chair." I received the reproof, and was sent to Pekin. The Lord again favored us with a gracious revival. The work of God went on the entire year. The action of the conference did not appear to cripple my influence. At the next session of the conference I was charged with "contumacy" in publishing a second edition of "New School Methodism." On the trial it appeared that I had no part on getting out the second edition; and had no knowledge that its publication was intended.

REV. BENJAMIN T. ROBERTS.

One preacher testified that I handed him a package. On this charge and testimony I was turned out of the church. Six other preachers were subsequently excluded from the church on frivolous pretexts. We appealed to the General Conference. Our appeals, with one exception, were disregarded. The General Conference refused to investigate these matters.

Here was a trial such as I never anticipated. But Jesus did not forsake me. I never felt his girding power as on that occasion. Satan told me I would have nothing to do. But his suggestions have all proved false. I have been most sorely assailed; it seemed as if hell would overpower me at times, but Jesus has proved victorious. Bless his name! In him will I trust and he has promised to keep me to the end.

The experiences through which I have passed have had a good effect in many ways. They have cured me of sectarian bigotry. I have lost my denominational zeal. I feel a deep sympathy with every enterprise that has a tendency to promote the kingdom of Christ in its purity.—Earliest Christian, Jan., 1865.

LYNCH LAW—AN APPALLING RECORD.

Judge Lynch was very busy during 1892. The record is a dark one for this country, and if steps are not soon taken to check the blood-thirsty fiends in the South the people of the United States will be looked upon, and rightly too, as a nation of murderers. The judgment of the remainder of mankind all over the civilized world cannot be otherwise, when it is honestly rendered. I watched carefully, all during 1892, in my travels, and gathered all the information possible as to the number of persons lynched in the several States in 1892. I have just finished going over 194 clippings which I gathered from Jan. 1, 1892, to Dec. 31, 1892. I dislike very much to bother the good reader with figures, but they are necessary in this case to explain the truth and to convey an everlasting idea. A large number of colored men were lynched during 1892, and the record is the most brutal, the most savage and the most hellish the world has ever seen. I made many personal investigations of the lynchings and many of them surpass the hotpotting ceremonies in the story of "She" by H. Rider Haggard.

Of the many colored men, women and children that were lynched and murdered in cold blood by the Christian (?) white people of the South, there were several cases that no white man or woman in the North would believe.

On February 20, 1892, a colored man, Coy, was tied to a stump of an old tree, a great pile of sticks and small brush was piled on and around him. Coal oil was then poured all over the sticks, and a civilized white woman struck a match, and 10,000 (estimated) white men stood around and saw the victim burn up to a small pile of ashes! Mrs. Jewell applied the match and the citizens of Texarkana supported her in doing so. She is still living at Texarkana, Arkansas.

At Jonesville, Louisiana, lived a small family consisting of father, son and young daughter. On Nov. 1st. a white man was killed. It was laid on the Hastings family, which is the family referred to above. The father only was accused, but on November 2d, the best white citizens took the 14-year girl and a boy 16 out and swung them up to the nearest limb and shot their bodies full of holes. Nov. 5, Mr. Hastings was served likewise. So the whole family was wiped out without judge, trial, jury or witnesses; two of them were not even accused of any offense. Here is the record: Alabama, 22; Arkansas, 22; California, 5; Florida, 11; Georgia, 17; Idaho, 8; Illinois, 1; Kansas, 3; Kentucky, 9; Louisiana, 29; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 16; Missouri, 6; Montana, 4; New York, 1; North Carolina, 5; North Dakota, 1; Ohio, 3; South Carolina, 5; Tennessee, 28; Texas, 15; Virginia, 7; Wyoming, 9; Arizona, 3; Oklahoma, 2; West Virginia 5.

There were 241 persons lynched in 1892. There were 159 Afro-Americans among the victims. Four of this number were lynched in the North. One at Oxford, Ohio, one at Port Jervis, New York, one at Larned, and one at Hiawatha, Kan. One was reported as being lynched at Millersburg, Ohio, but that was evidently an error.

The South claims 206 of the victims, and the North 35. There were 80 whites, one Indian and 5 women. The South has claimed that they only lynched colored men for committing rape upon the white women of that section. But unfortunately the record is against them. Here it is: Rape, 40; murder, 58; rioting, 3; race prejudice, 6; no cause given, 4; incendiarism, 6; robbery, 6; assault, 1; attempted murder, 2; attempted rape, 9; suspected robbery, 4; larceny, 1; alleged rape, 1; self-defense, 1; insulting women, 2; suspected rape, 1; for being desperadoes, 6; no offense, boy and girl, 2; fraud, 1.

The above figures do not include the four colored men lynched in the North. Louisiana lynched 29. The population of the State is 1,118,587; dividing that by 29, it shows that one person in every 38,572 in that State took part in a lynching, although the whites have entire control of the machinery of the law....

Probably 190 of the number murdered by mobs in the South were entirely innocent of any crime. Mobs are not organized to find out whether a man or woman is guilty or innocent, but they are organized for the sole purpose to condemn and kill.

There is no doubt that not less than 400 colored persons were murdered in the South in 1892. In many cases it is worth a man's life to send one line from certain sections in the South about an ordinary or a private killing, especially when the victim is a colored man.—M. W. Caldwell, in the Plaindealer.

THE SANDWICH ISLANDS.

It was in 1820 that the first American missionaries, Bingham and Thurston, went forth in the spirit of the sublimest faith to that far-off and strange part of the world, the Sandwich Islands, to Christianize that people. The story of missions there for the next twenty or thirty years constitutes one of the most unique and wonderful chapters in the history of Christianity. Scarcely anything has happened during the present century that did more at the time to stir the heart and the hope of the churches and to make the Christianization of the heathen world seem to be within the range of possibility.—Advance.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 8, 1893.

"A man who honors his mother is a man who can always be trusted," used to be a maxim of one of the best men I ever knew, and it was recalled to my mind by the fact that the two men—President Cleveland and his private secretary, Mr. Thurber—who will, divine providence sparing their lives, have the most to do with the executive business of this great nation for the next four years, both took the oath of office upon Bibles which each of them cherishes as his most precious possession because it was once the property of his mother. Mr. Cleveland's Bible has been twice used for the "swearing in" of a President of the United States. The example of these two officials ought to be brought to the attention of every young man in the land.

The last administration was often jokingly referred to as a "Presbyterian administration," but that denomination was not then so strongly represented as it is in the present one. With one exception every member of President Cleveland's Cabinet is a Presbyterian. The exception is Secretary Carlisle, who is not a church member, but who is, like Mr. Cleveland, rather inclined to the Presbyterian church. Surely it is a matter for congratulation that so many of the men who will direct the government for four years to come are God-fearing church-members.

A committee, consisting of Bishops Hurst and Newman and Rev. Drs. Lanaban and Naylor, will, in accordance with a resolution unanimously adopted by the Baltimore Conference of the M. E. church, endeavor to get President Cleveland to take some action to secure the release of Rev. J. H. Nelson, a missionary, who was recently sentenced by a Brazilian court to four months' imprisonment for having taken the ground, in a book written and published by him, that the worship of the Virgin Mary was idolatry. A similar request was a few weeks ago made of the last administration, but if any action was taken it was not made known to those interested.

Bishop Hurst stated, at a public meeting held in this city, that the new American University already has assets amounting to $800,000. This is generally considered to be a remarkable showing for the short period in which active work has been going on in behalf of the project.

Another glaring case of the absence of needed laws in the District of Columbia was brought to light when a committee of local ministers waited upon the Commissioners for the purpose of securing an order from them to prohibit the advertised opening of the theaters of Washington last Sunday. The Commissioners informed the ministers that there was no law in this District under which the theaters could be made to close on Sunday; consequently a number of them were open on Sunday, and, according to the Commissioners, their proprietors can continue to have Sunday performances whenever they please, until such time as Congress may be persuaded to enact a law against it. Nevertheless, there are a number of people, among them your correspondent, who believe that an order from the Commissioners would have been sufficient to have prevented the Sunday opening of the theaters.

Once more the rum-sellers, by advice of their lawyers, have defied public opinion and the authorities, and kept their bar-rooms wide open on Sunday for the purpose of helping to demoralize the thousands of strangers who came to the inauguration and remained in the city over Sunday. The Commissioners have ordered that cases be made against all of those who sold liquor last Sunday, but their lawyers claim (and, strange to say, the prosecuting attorney of the District appears to admit it) that the new license law, which went into effect Saturday, repealed the old law under which these bar-rooms were licensed, and that they consequently cannot be prosecuted under the new law. If this be good law, which I am loth to believe, every bar-room licensed under the old law may continue to keep open every Sunday until its license expires, without making its proprietor liable to punishment.

The expected order was secured which prevented the giving of Sunday concerts by the U. S. Marine band in the U. S. Pension office last Sunday, but the same band gave a concert in a theater on Sunday night, and the Sabbath was desecrated in the Pension office building by a continuation of the dancing at the inaugural ball well into Sunday morning, just as I stated weeks ago would be done.

The W. C. T. U. held a praise or jubilee service Sunday afternoon in honor of the stand maintained by the last Congress against opening the World's Fair on Sunday and of the order preventing the use of the Pension office for Sunday concerts. Among the speakers was Col. Elliott F. Shepard, of New York, president of the National Sabbath Union.

At a meeting held by the other W. C. T. U.—the non-partisan—a resolution was unanimously adopted thanking the Senators and Representatives in Congress who defended the cause of temperance by preventing the striking out or changing of the Soldiers' Home Mile-limit clause of the new liquor license law. *

REFORM NEWS.

FROM THE NEW ENGLAND AGENT.

BOSTON, Mass., March 7, 1893.

The convention at Allegheny will be fully and officially reported by others, and I need only say that it was a wide-awake, successful and deeply devotional gathering, that has left a lasting impression on all who attended.

Returning, I found Washington in the early throes of a Presidential inauguration, and hastened on to escape what to me is a very unpleasant experience in such hilarious crowds. I reached home without noteworthy incident, and found that the "angel of the covenant" had kept all in safety and peace.

Word came to-day that your New England correspondent was quite seriously ill, and Mrs. Stoddard went to ascertain the facts and render such assistance as she might be able. I hope the case will not prove as serious as might be feared from Dea. Leadbetter's card; but as Mrs. S. is spending the night at Wellesley I infer that her assistance is needed. I shall likely know more of the facts in the morning.

The Central Congregational church of this city is at present supplied by Prof. L. T. Townsend, of the Boston University. His discourse, last Sabbath morning, was a reply to the inquiry, "Is the world saved by the teachings, the example, or the death of Christ?" The former two, though unparalleled in every perfection and absolutely faultless, could bring no hope to a sinful fallen race, and can only fill the soul with bitter remorse and unutterable despair. Comparison with such an "Example," and tested by such holy teachings, must inevitably discourage and terrify the guilty, and provoke the agonizing cry, "who shall deliver me from the body of this death?" From the cross of Christ comes the first gleam of hope which expanded into a complete redemption through his blood in the immaculate vicarious Offering, "who bare our sins in his own body on the tree," "by whose stripes we are healed." The Professor's solemn warning against trusting in other gods or means of salvation, if heeded, would destroy every lodge-worship in the universe; and his closing appeal to the moralist and self-righteous, if accepted, would bring all who are not "past feeling" to confess him as their only and all-sufficient Saviour and Lord. I wish the sermon could be printed and circulated as widely as skepticism, deism and Unitarianism extend.

The interest in Joseph Cook's Monday Lectures is unabated. Like Dr. A. J. Gordon, in his Sabbath services, Mr. Cook is demonstrating on the platform that plain, solid Bible-truth will "draw" and "hold" the most intelligent and appreciative audiences that "cultured Boston," or any other city, can furnish, and that it is safe, even in these days of "higher criticism," to have convictions and fearlessly to maintain them. Between the Prelude and Lecture, Bro. J. M. Foster was introduced by Mr. Cook as a representative of staunch Covenant principles, and spoke briefly in his accustomed and forcible and felicitous style, on the Sabbath question.

Rev. Addison P. Foster, D.D., resigns a pastorate of seven years in Immanuel Congregational church to accept the broader field of New England editor of the Advance, and secretary of the Sabbath-school Union, a position for which he is pre-eminently qualified. His headquarters will be in Boston, and the city is to be congratulated on retaining one of her most aggressive and earnest, level-headed, conscientious men of advanced thought, who has not got beyond the Bible, or outlived his usefulness to the true church of Christ. The readers of the Advance have already had enough from his pen to "whet their appetites" for the "better further on."

March 8.—A letter just handed me from Mrs. Stoddard, at Wellesley, says: "It is clearly my duty to remain a few days; I cannot tell how long. Miss Flagg is the sick one." Her father has a severe cold. The trouble seems to be pneumonia, with symptoms of la grippe." Mrs. S. is hopeful that with careful nursing relief will soon come. Let all who have long read Miss Flagg's letters with interest and profit, pray for her speedy restoration. Should she be unable to fill her accustomed space, I know you will greatly miss the weekly "New England Letter;" but I shall try to fill, in some slight degree, the gap; and when she resumes her pen, you will better appreciate her efforts, by comparison with those of your brother in Christ, J. P. STODDARD.

A HOME OF THE GAEL.

HIGHLAND AND LOWLAND FOR OUR REFORM.

Something more than fifty years ago a colony of sturdy Scotchmen settled on the rich prairie slopes of Stark county, Illinois, adjoining the southeast corner of Henry. They were men of courage, thrift, industry, integrity and religious conviction,—the best of principles to be cemented into the foundation of a new settlement. Of course they prospered, and small farms grew to great, with dwellings, barns and other buildings in proportion. To-day there are few farm districts of the country, outside old Chester county, Pennsylvania, where the evidences of good management and good living are more manifest. "This is a good land," said one of these pioneers the other day as we looked across the miles of fine country gently sloping and converging its streams toward the south and east.

There were large families among the colonists. Some are scattered, some are dead; but the Olivers, Armstrongs, Murchisons, Turnbells, Rules, and others will not soon be forgotten. They were Presbyterians of the fellowship of Knox and Melville and Erskine, rather than of Briggs. The old church, as I remember, was called the Knox church. Out of it came the present Presbyterian and United Presbyterian churches. In the old church service was held for years every Sabbath morning in the Gaelic tongue—the only place where it could be so heard in their country (though frequently used in Canada). Rev. D. McDiarmid was the last preacher in the old church. He left some years ago; and as time has nearly obliterated the Highland and Lowland distinctions, the other churches are ample for the congregations.

Rev. A. S. Clark of the Presbyterian church is at present the only clergyman on the ground and is highly esteemed by all classes. By arrangement with him and William Oliver, an elder of the U. P. church, a union meeting was arranged for Sabbath evening, the 5th inst., at which our reform should be presented. It was an unexpected pleasure to find Dr. Wm. Wishart of Monmouth supplying the U. P. pulpit on that day, and his cordial assistance in the evening was most welcome.

The church was well filled with an intelligent and animated congregation, mostly of young people, whose acceptance of the Word of God against secretism was sincere and, let us hope, permanent. They are accustomed to give for missions, and the National Christian Association conducts a mission for the neediest heathenism in the world—the young men of America who, more than nine in ten of them, are being lost to Christianity largely through the lodge. Our reform was, therefore, generously remembered.

In visiting next day to better acquaint the people with our work I was surprised and gratified to find these farmers talking as intelligently of Spurgeon and Beecher and Briggs as a majority of our ministers, and with a degree or two better sense. Our Association needs a large life-membership of such men.

I learned with regret of the death of D. McDonald, one of the most cordial of the friends of our reform. Mrs. McDonald, now tarrying in the home of a sister, contributed generously and has no abatement of her interest. William McBride, another hearty supporter, has been some years removed. At the home of Mr. Henry Oliver I had the kindest entertainment, and formed a very agreeable acquaintance. Burns must have conceived some lines of his "Cotter's Saturday Night" after observing the sincere household worship of such a home.

Friends and relatives in Kewanee bade me God-speed, and Tuesday morning I was in Mendota. Bro. Bender of the United Brethren church was at a distant appointment, and the building formerly used by the Wartberg Seminary of the Iowa Synod Lutherans is now in charge of the Adventists. The latter intend making Mendota their western headquarters, with a press and a school. The latter, just begun, is small, but growing. The professors greeted me kindly, and I spoke briefly in the morning devotional service.

Peter Bilhorn, our warm-hearted Chicago evangelist, had been conducting a union revival service in the Baptist church. Some 150 signified their desire to unite with the people of God, and the effort is to be continued by the different pastors. Bro. Bilhorn spoke earnestly against the towering evils of the saloon, the lodge, the dance, and his testimony found a warm response. Bro. Swartwout, the Baptist pastor, is a hearty approver of our reform, and will be faithful in his instruction respecting secretism. Rev. Mr. Lintner, of the Evangelical Association, has had some experiences that should convince any candid man of the need of entire separation of the lodge from the church. The full history of the late division of the Evangelical Association may never be written. We know enough to be confident that the churches of that interesting denomination will be spiritually and really no weaker because of it.

HENRY L. KELLOGG.

ANTI-SECRECY REFORM IN THE SOUTH.

NEW ORLEANS, March 10, 1893.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—Your readers may think I am either dead or have lost interest in the reform; but thanks to a kind Saviour, it is neither.

The twenty-eighth annual session of the First District Baptist Association of Louisiana closed its session March 3. The writer was honored, for the third year, with his election to the responsible position of Recording Secretary of the Association. We also preached the Annual Doctrinal Sermon, in which we dwelt at length upon the evils of oath-bound secrecy as a stumbling-stone in the way of the progress of the church of Christ. The sermon incited much enmity, and on the following Friday the writer sternly opposed the reception of a minister whom we knew to be addicted to the drink habit. The association refused to receive him into its fellowship, and as a consequence he had me arrested on Saturday on a charge of slander and abuse. On Sunday at 3:30 and 7:30 P. M. I preached special sermons on God's plan of separating his church from the world to my congregation.

My trial came up yesterday, and I was, through the efforts of my attorney, acquitted and discharged by the court. I can say, Thank God!

Our little church, the St. Matthew's Baptist, is doing as well as could be expected. Our following is few but earnest. We need your prayers and sympathies. I don't believe there is another city in this country where licentiousness of all kinds exists and is so zealously protected by the law as here in New Orleans.

A kind word, by letter or postal, from friends in the reform work will be encouraging to me occasionally. Fight on, dear brethren, the good fight of faith. "Ye shall reap the harvest by and by." Your brother in Christ,

FRANCIS J. DAVIDSON.

518 Philip Street.

REV. WM. FENTON IN MINNESOTA.

NEW PAYNESVILLE, Minn., March 9, '93.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—This town is located on the Soo line, near its junction with the Great Northern, and 93 miles from St. Paul.

The Norwegian Lutheran church is "far out upon the prairies," seven miles away. On Tuesday evening last, a large audience assembled within its walls to hear a discourse on the relation of God's Word to lodgery; and I think that that township is a very uncomfortable place for a Freemason, for they appreciate the truth very keenly, perceive very clearly the commercial and spiritual rascality of Masonry, and hate it most cordially. This hate of Masonry is not at all mitigated by the fact that one of their pastors, Rev. Mr. Gunild, of Wilmar, has received an anonymous threat of murder if he does not desist from his pulpit demonstrations against Masonry.

It seems to me that no greater insult can be offered to the Lord Jesus Christ than to say to one of his true ministers: "Why do you not preach the Gospel, and let Masonry alone?" For if the holy and inspired Apostle Paul did not preach against Masonry, he did not preach anything; and he added: "Though we, or an angel from heaven, preach any other Gospel than that we have preached, let him be accursed."

When the apostle says: "Ye cannot drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of devils," the context in the same chapter shows that he had reference to Baal-Peor worship, which Masonic authors identify with Masonry. Many other texts might also be mentioned, all showing in the clearest manner that prophets and apostles preached against Masonry.

I am advertised to speak to-night in the German Evangelical church of this town. The editors of both newspapers here are Masons, and they have said enough to convince me that they mean to carry out their lodge instructions; namely, to "divert a discourse and manage it prudently for the good of the worshipful fraternity."

Our trust is in God. Yours truly,
W. FENTON.

FROM THE EASTERN AGENT.

ON TRAIN EN ROUTE FOR PHILADELPHIA, }
March 10, 1893. }

As our train whirls on toward "the city of brotherly love," I improve the opportunity to write.

The report of the Commercial Gazette, copied in the last Cynosure, purporting to be a statement made by myself to a reporter of that paper, contains many statements which I did not make. Those who are familiar with reporters' reports will know that it is their custom to fill in what they think the one consulted should have said. It is not necessary for me to go into detail, but I trust Cynosure readers will consider that report with a great deal of allowance.

A few days previous to our Allegheny Convention, it was my privilege to visit Beaver Falls and address the students of Geneva College. The President, Dr. Johnston, in his introduction, alluded to my noted ancestry and the fact that I married a Covenanter, which in his judgment was evidence in my favor. I had the closest attention while I spoke longer than the time allotted me. A meeting having been arranged to follow the lecture, Dr. H. H. George made some forcible remarks regarding the needs of our work and the collection showed an appreciation. The contribution ($11.14), considering all things, was very liberal. The hearts of this people and their pocket-books are so closely allied that, getting the one, you affect the other. As has always been the case, the heart and home of Dr. H. H. George was open for my entertainment. How little I thought, as I bade good-by to the occupants of this lovely home, that the death-angel was so near. The wife and mother has gone. Mrs. George has not enjoyed the best of health for some time. Her zeal in the reform that her husband so nobly championed led her to attend that notable Harrisburg convention. The travel and exposure proved too much; and after a brief illness, she passed, as we are assured, to the company of the redeemed who have gone before. She was of a sweet, unassuming disposition. While her husband battled with the destructive elements in the government, she kept the altar fires burning. The center of affection in the home, beloved by those who knew her best, she nobly filled the mission in life.

While the report of the Allegheny Convention, as copied from the Gazette, was very good for a paper whose editor is not an enthusiastic anti-secretist, yet it lacked much in giving an adequate knowledge of the good things enjoyed by those in attendance. The music of both evenings was thought by good judges to be of the best. On both evenings were the players called back to give more of their sweet melody.

The Alethorian Orchestra of Geneva College is especially to be commended for the great sacrifice of its members for our entertainment. Being students, and in the midst of examinations, it was at no little sacrifice they returned to their homes long after midnight. Votes of thanks were heartily given to the musicians of both evenings.

With such a beginning the friends in the Keystone State should make great advancement all along the line in the year to come. A good start has been made in securing the funds needed to prosecute the work. Those who wish to aid in this line should send money or pledge to Rev. R. C. Wylie, Treasurer, at Wilkesburg, Pa. His report will be duly published in the Cynosure.

At home during the inauguration, I had relaxation from work and the pleasure of entertaining friends who honored us with a call. There appeared to be an unusually large number intoxicated at this gathering. Whether the Democratic party, or President Cleveland, is responsible for the condition of things might be a matter of debate. Some one is responsible. May God soon deliver us from the liquor curse! An intoxicated soldier, found in the entry of our building amusing himself by smashing the glass with his gun, was put where he will cool off and think on the error of his ways.

I am in correspondence with friends regarding lectures which I expect (D. V.) to give in Chambersburg, Pa., and vicinity, later this month. In the meantime I shall try and hit the lodge-devil in another part of the State. Let us stand shoulder to shoulder, friends, for we are in the conflict. The King will soon come to reign. If faithful to him, we shall behold him in his beauty, putting all enemies under himself.

W. B. STODDARD.

WORK IN THE WESTERN DISTRICT.

CHARITY, Kansas, March 10, 1893.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—I am again up in Clay county for a few days. I lectured last night on temperance and prohibition in Melville school-house, in Ottawa county. This was under the auspices of the local W. C. T. U.; Mrs. Eva Gentry, president. This union is of recent organization, but is doing a good work in this community. This meeting was arranged for me by Mrs. M. A. Tippin, president of Clay County W. C. T. U. We had an interesting and attentive audience last night.

To-night I expect to give a Bible-reading on Secretism, in the Tabor Reformed Presbyterian church in Clay county.

At the first of this week I distributed some tracts and sold some literature in Oakland; and had an interesting conversation with a gentleman, upon giving him a tract by Pres. J. Blanchard on "Freemasonry a Christ-Excluding Religion". The man remarked to me that that man, in Western phrase, had "bitten off more

(Continued on 9th page.)

CORRESPONDENCE.

GEO. W. CLARK ON "SUNDAY OPENING."

DETROIT, Mich., March 3, 1893.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—The following paper was written in reply to an article in the Detroit Tribune, demanding the opening of the World's Fair on Sunday; but after keeping the paper for over a week, it was returned to the writer without a word of explanation. Perhaps it was presumptuous in the writer to expect its insertion in a Sunday journal that regales its readers every Lord's day with all sorts of secular, week-day gossiping, political bickerings, business speculations, real estate booms, spectacular theatricals, betting sports, beastly prize-fighting trainers for bloody body-bruising, etc. What a demoralizing hodgepodge with which to entertain the people on the Lord's day, and then seducing little boys to desecrate the Sabbath by bawling and peddling such papers all over the city on Sunday! How can such papers rebuke the saloons for violating the Sabbath? How can the pot call the kettle black?

G. W. C.

Editor Detroit Tribune:

DEAR SIR:—I read in a recent issue of your paper an article headed, "Open the World's Fair on Sunday," in which you say, "Congress should not be guided by religious considerations but by considerations of public welfare and public morality." These last-named "considerations" are most emphatically strong reasons for Sunday closing. But, pray, where do you, or where would you have Congress, get its highest sense of duty on this important question involving "public morality and the public welfare" but from "religion?" Religion consists in and teaches the performance of the obligations and duties we owe to our Creator and to our fellow-men.

The whole superstructure of "morality and the public welfare" rests upon a religious basis. Religion furnishes the only standard of public as well as private morality, and the only security and safeguard of the "public welfare." This it is which constitutes the marked and characteristic difference between Christendom and heathendom—between civilization and barbarism—between this and many of the old countries. Would you convert or turn the United States over into such as some of the effete old countries, with their demoralizing Sunday newspapers, Sunday theatricals, Sunday cock-fights, Sunday races, beastly slugger bruising, gross and shocking fights, and other base and horrid orgies?

If the "religious element should be eliminated altogether," as you say, "and have no place in our legislative or secular affairs," our country would soon relapse into anarchy and wild, irremediable chaos. But by what authority do you separate what "God has joined together?" You differ widely from the inspired apostle Paul. He was a man of no little erudition and had some experience and wisdom in "secular affairs," as well as in spiritual matters, and was a man likewise endowed with authority. He taught us to "do all to the glory of God, whatever we do, whether we eat or drink." This most certainly includes "secular affairs," especially political, governmental, legislative, and judicial, as immediately connected with and responsible for the enactment and enforcement of laws for the protection of the rights and vital interests of society—the morals and the welfare of the people; a "terror to evil-doers and a praise to them that do well." The wisdom of the inspired apostle Paul would not suffer much, probably, in comparison with any of our modern politicians or editors.

You seem as much at variance, Mr. Editor, with our most eminent and leading statesmen and jurists as with the moralists. George Washington, called the "father of his country," declared that "Reason and experience forbid us to expect that morality can prevail in exclusion of religious principles," adding the significant words: "It is impossible to govern the world without God." "Religion and morality being the great pillars of human happiness—the firmest props of the duties of men and citizens," it seems Father Washington thought "religion" had something to do with "secular affairs," and ought not to be "eliminated." So did another somewhat distinguished character; and as he dates somewhat further back than Washington I might call him the "grandfather" of this country. The renowned Mr. "Christopher Columbo"—as Mr. Mark Twain would call him—when starting on his perilous enterprise, and when his daring adventure was crowned with success, in the discovery of this continent, went down upon his knees, as did the pilgrim fathers when they landed at Plymouth Rock, kissing the ground and devoutly thanking God they had been so providentially led to and safely landed and permitted to plant their feet and raise their standards on the long-sought and newly-discovered world. Many of our most able and distinguished historical statesmen, agreeing and affirming with the Supreme Court of the United States that "this is a Christian nation—that where there is no Christian Sabbath there is no Christian morality; and without this free institutions cannot long be sustained."

As to closing the World's Fair on "ecclesiastical grounds, or from ecclesiastical reasons," as you say, nobody asks or expects any such thing. This is far-fetched.

Before all ecclesiasticism or sectarianism or world's fairs, was the Sabbath.

God, who created all, knew all the physical, mental, social and spiritual needs of man and human society, and ordained the Sabbath as the needed day of rest, contemplation and adoration. That ordination has never been repealed or abrogated, and never can be, because it was established by God himself, and founded on the needs of human nature, in the nature of things. God himself set the example of Sabbath observance for all the world, and then bade its perpetual observance.

"In six days God made heaven and earth and all that in them is, and rested on the seventh day; wherefore the Lord blessed the seventh day and hallowed it"—sanctified—that is, set it apart to the purpose for which he had designed it; saying, "Remember the Sabbath-day to keep it holy. Six days shalt thou labor and do all thy work, but the seventh day is the Sabbath of the Lord thy God; in it thou shalt not do any work, thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, thy man-servant, nor thy maid-servant, nor thy cattle, nor thy stranger that is within thy gates."

If the "gates" of the Columbian Exposition should be open on the Sabbath to the conglomerated mass of good, bad and indifferent from all parts of the world, especially the criminal classes from all the great cities, who are already gathering in Chicago, it is said, in great numbers, and preparing to ply their vile and nefarious occupations on that occasion, the result would be the disgrace of the State and the nation, and the demoralization of the world to the extent it shall be represented here.

The plea of opening on Sunday "for the benefit of the poor laboring people" is specious, and probably not put forth in the interest of that class, but from other and mercenary consideration. There is not, very likely, an employer in the country who would not as readily give "off-time" to his employees to visit the World's Fair on week-days, as he does to go to circuses, caravans, 4th of July excursions, holiday festivals, etc, on week-days. And if many of these so-called "poor laborers" would save the time and money they worse than waste in deadly saloons and on pernicious liquor and tobacco, they would have ample means to take their families to see and enjoy and be profited by what will undoubtedly be the most wonderful and magnificent exhibition of human genius, human skill and workmanship—the developments and the progress in agriculture and mechanism, in mineralogy and meteorology, and in philosophy and the fine arts—that this old world has ever yet seen.

The preparation and artistic arrangement of the grounds and the immense and costly buildings constructed for the occasion exceed all the old fairy tales, and will alone furnish the most gorgeous and dazzling sight probably ever yet beheld by mortal eyes. So I say, by every "sacred" and every "secular" consideration, let us show our profound veneration and gratitude to the Author and Giver of all these wondrous developments of human thought and human work—of human hearts and human hands—by a God-honoring, quiet, restful Lord's day that all will need, all are entitled to, and will be benefited by—mindful that "Righteousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people."

Yours respectfully, GEO. W. CLARK.
Detroit, February, 1893.

MEMBERS OF THE LODGE IN CLASS-MEETING.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Feb. 27, 1893.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—Having been in Corn Street Mission last night I gave my experience, and spoke of secret societies. After I had finished, a man named Bowers arose and stated that he had formerly belonged to these societies, at which time he was always on the sick list, and sometimes had a hard time in getting his "benefits" from the lodge; but after he left the orders and put his trust in God, he regained his health and had kept it ever since.

About six weeks ago I was in a class-meeting at which about sixty, men and women, were present, and when I gave my experience, I severely scored the secret societies. This was more than the devil and some of those in the class could stand, and several arose and showed their true colors. One old brother said that I was a devil; I ought to be kicked out; and a man like me ought not to be allowed to come into a meeting like that, where nearly every one belonged to the secret orders.

I told him after the meeting closed, that he ought to read his Bible more. Then his teeth went together like a mad-cat's, and he told me that he read two lines in it to my one. I merely replied: "Well, thank God! it is not the reader but the doer of the Word that wins."

This was on Monday night, and on Thursday evening, when I went into his class, he arose and apologized, saying that he sometimes mani-festes such an evil temper that he cannot restrain it, but, that night, he said, he loved everybody. I replied, "Praise the Lord!" After meeting he told me that he was glad to see me, and invited me to come again. Well, praise the Lord!

B. K. H.

LITERATURE.

CURRENT PERIODICALS.

The Social Economist for March has for a leading article the editor's "Solution of the Silver Problem" in connection with the recent change of Presidents. "A War against War," by Johannes H. Wisby, is an able presentation of the reasons—which should not need demonstration in this nineteenth century—why war should be no more resorted to by civilized peoples. "The Presidency of the United States," by Charles Frederic Adams, proposes a wild amendment to the Constitution. "An Educator on the Failure of Education," by Edward P. North, is plea and argument for an educational system that shall fit itself to present needs. "Liquor and Politics," by Kemper Bocock, presents his private reasons why the liquor question should have no place in politics. "A Hint to Social Reformers," by Norris Jackson, is a hint that will bear repetition. "The Economics of Advertising," by Emerson P. Harris, considers the scientific necessity for an essential industrial factor; and current literature and the events and potential possibilities of the month are passed in review in "Among the Magazines," Book Reviews, and the Crucible. New York: Published by the School of Social Economics, 34 Union Square, East.

The Review of Reviews for March embraces the usual variety of personal and general topics, copiously illustrated, so that it presents a very fair reflex of prominent men and events that have figured in American and foreign affairs during the past month. "The Progress of the World" records the actions and opinions that the history of nations has developed, when taken in connection with the "Record of Current Events" and "Current History in Caricature". Harry Pratt Judson contributes "A Study of Four Careers"—James G. Blaine, L. C. Q. Lamar, Rutherford B. Hayes, and Benj. F. Butler. Phillis Archdeacon receives an "English Estimate and Tribute" from Archdeacon Farrar, and his power as a preacher is analyzed by Chas. F. Thwing. "America in Hawaii" and "England in Egypt" receive special mention; the "Leading Articles of the Month" comprise about fifty titles and topics. Interest pervades Mr. Stead's report of the adoption of Mr. Gouin's "royal road to learn languages"; and reviews of current publications, etc, close a very attractive miscellany. Published at 13 Astor place, New York.

A bright story of Washington social life, entitled "A Diplomatic Checkmate," opens the March number of the Cottage Hearth, and is followed by "The Strike at Armstrong's," a tale of a California lumber camp. The unexpected turn events take in the story of "A Belated Proposal" is both dramatic and interesting. Sophie E. Eastman gives, in a travel sketch, an account of "Five Days on Kilauea, Hawaii." The present interest in these islands in the Pacific makes this account of one of the wonders of nature especially interesting. "A Dangerous Pilot" is the leading story in the Young People's Department. Interest in "Erastus Faulkner" (the third part of which appears in this number) increases. The series of articles on "Our New Navy" ends in this issue. These three articles are of especial interest in connection with the Hawaiian question, now engaging public attention, and also in view of the approaching naval parade in honor of the Columbian year. Fine illustrations abound. W. A. Wilde & Co., Boston.

American Gardening, one of the brightest and best of our American horticultural periodicals, has the following contents in its March number: John Johnston, by L. H. Bailey; The Ancient Britain Blackberry, by a Number of Fruit-Growers; Two New Chrysanthemums, by H. Yoshiike; Tuberous-Rooted Begonias, by E. C. Powell; Tea-Culture in North America, by C. U. Shepard; Damson, Native and Japanese Plums—Notes from Different Orchards; The Narrow Local Range of Our Apples, by T. H. Hoskins; A Review of the Season, by Alfred Barron; Horticulture at the World's Fair, by Fanny Copley Seavey; Taste and Tact in Arranging Ornamental Grounds, by E. A. Long; Slime-Molds and Club-Root, by A. B. Seymour; Vines for Summer Decoration, by E. C. Powell; The Western New York Horticultural Society. Departments: Sub-Rosa, Clons, Varieties, The Month, New Lines in Books and Bulletins, Questions Asked and Answered. New York: The Rural Publishing Company.

Dr. M. L. Holbrook's excellent monthly Journal of Hygiene for March informs us How Paris is Cleaned; continues the series of Hygienic Treatment of Indigestion, by the editor; treats of Health and Beauty, by Dr. C. H. Shepard, and Jennie Chandler writes freely about our American abomination of long skirts on the street, and their cost. The best part of this number, however, is contained in the editor's Notes Concerning Health and Topics of the Month. The common-sense and usefulness of this magazine are highly commendable. $1.00 a year. Published at 46 East 21st street, New York.

LODGE NOTES.

(From Secret Society Journals.)
MASONIC.

According to the Berlin Latonia, a candidate for the privileges of the craft in that country has to answer the following questions, and his admission depends upon his replies:

1. To which religious persuasion do you belong? and do you consider it the only true one, or do you profess it only from habit?

2. We also profess a religious belief. Will you accede to it, even though it prove to be contrary to your convictions?

3. A poor widow needs assistance. Will you afford it her? and, if so, will you do so this very evening, or to-morrow?

The attack by the Vatican upon Masonry was sharply repelled by a prominent Sicilian, Adriano Lemmi, at a banquet in Palermo. He asserted that Freemasonry had done much to improve the moral, intellectual and material condition of the people of the lower classes especially, and closed with a fervid appeal to 15,000,000 Freemasons of the world to "enlist under the banner of civilization against the Vatican".

Clarke, one of the "literary gentlemen" recently sentenced at the Old Bailey, in London, when addressing the jury, appealed to "the Great Architect of the Universe to enable them to temper justice with mercy". Was this phrase meant to show that he was a Freemason, in the hope that some of the jury might also have been "brethren of the mystic tie"?—Pall Mall Gazette.

Practically the artisan is excluded from the blessings of Freemasonry in the city lodges of England, and is seldom seen in the rural lodges. In Germany he is positively excluded.

Gen. Ludwig Kossuth is an ardent Freemason. On the occasion of his 90th birthday recently he received from many Hungarian lodges congratulatory letters.

A foreign Masonic paper says that "among the side degrees in America they have one called the 'Degree of Adam and Eve,' which is a travesty on chapter work." The whereabouts of the location and working of this paradisiac degree is unknown to us.

Subordinate to the Grand Commandery of Missouri are 3,630 Knights Templar. ODD-FELLOWS.

The increase in membership in 1892 in Minnesota has been more than 13,000.

Australia has a Colfax lodge, named for the author of the Rebekah branch of Odd-fellowship.

The A. O. F. in New Zealand number 8,150, and have in their benevolent fund nearly $75.00 per member. The M. U. I. O. O. F. have 10,708 members and about $117.00 per member.

It is said that the Michigan Odd-fellows will outwit the Chicago hotels by having a large steamer they have secured anchored in the lake, and its patrons will be carried to and from the shore on a steam launch. It is to be known as "The Odd-fellows' Floating Palace Hotel". It is intended to fix a uniform rate of $15.00 for six days' board and lodging, including six admission tickets to the exhibition.

At the close of 1891 the jurisdictions of Indiana, Illinois, Ohio, Massachusetts, New York and Pennsylvania came within about 2,000 of having one-half of the whole number of Odd-fellows in the sovereign jurisdiction.

"An 'Ancient Odd-fellow' is one who has been regularly initiated into the order and retired therefrom in good standing, either by taking his 'permanent' or 'withdrawal card,' or by resignation. If done by resignation, he at once becomes an 'Ancient Odd-fellow,' and if by taking a permanent card, he becomes so at the expiration of one year from the date of his card."

A "Veteran Odd-fellow" is one who has been in good standing in the order for twenty-five consecutive years or more. The condition for obtaining "The Veteran Jewel" is based on this twenty-five consecutive years' membership in good standing.

The Rugged Child is largely an "outdoor" product.

Fresh air and exercise usually produce sound appetite and sound sleep. Sickly children obtain great benefit from

Scott's Emulsion

of cod-liver oil with Hypophosphites, a fat-food rapid of assimilation and almost as palatable as milk.

Prepared by Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All druggists.

BICYCLE TO ANY BOY OR GIRL under 18 years of age who will work for us for 10 days. NO MONEY NEEDED. Send this ad. to A. CURTIS & CO., 40 WEST QUINCY ST., CHICAGO, ILL.

RUPTURE A positive radical cure at home. (Sealed) Book giving full particulars sent FREE. Address DR. W. S. RICE, Box 206, Smithville, Jefferson Co., N. Y.

MY WIFE SAYS SHE CANNOT SEE HOW YOU DO IT FOR THE MONEY. Buy a $65.00 Improved Oxford Singer Sewing Machine, perfect working, reliable, finely finished, adapted to light and heavy work, with a complete set of the latest improved attachments FREE. Each machine is guaranteed for 5 years. Buy direct from our factory, and save dealers and agents' profit. FREE TRIAL and FREE CATALOGUE. OXFORD MFG. CO., DEPT. b-3-4 Chicago, Ill.

WHEATON COLLEGE,

WHEATON, ILL.

A School for Men and Women.

SPRING TERM BEGINS APRIL 4th, 1893.

Full College Courses, Preparatory Courses, Stenography, Typewriting, Vocal Music and Blackboard Drawing, without extra charge.

CHAS. A. BLANCHARD, Pres.

IF YOU WANT WORK

that is pleasant and profitable, send us your address immediately. We teach men and women how to earn from $5 per day to $3,000 per year without having had previous experience, and furnish the employment at which they can make that amount. Capital unnecessary. A trial will cost you nothing. Write to-day and address,

E. C. ALLEN & CO., Box 1001, Augusta, Me.

THE Folly, Expense & Danger

OF

SECRET SOCIETIES.

BY

CHARLES A. BLANCHARD.

(President Wheaton College.)

5 Cts per Copy; $3 per Hundred.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N, 221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained, and all Patent business conducted for Moderate Fees.

Our Office is Opposite U. S. Patent Office, and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.

Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.

A Pamphlet, "How to Obtain Patents," with names of actual clients in your State, county, or town, sent free. Address,

C. A. SNOW & CO., Opposite Patent Office, Washington, D. C.

ANTI-SECRECY TRACTS.

The following numbers are in stock, and can be had at the wholesale price of 25 cents per pound:

4. Freemasonry in the Family.
7. To the Boys who Hope to be Men.
8. Modern Heathenism.
9. Ministers at Rival Altars.
10. A Pastor's Confession.
12. Alexander Campbell's Estimate of the Lodge.
15. Secrecy and Sin.
22. Extracts from Masonic Oaths and Penalties as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.
37. Why a Christian should not be a Freemason (German).
38. Masonic Oaths and Penalties.
39. Should Freemasons be Admitted to Christian Fellowship?
42. Our Duty and Ability to Know the Character of Masonry.
45. Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?

The above are the only tracts in stock in large quantities. There are a few of several other numbers. Remember that these are being retailed at wholesale prices—25 cents per pound. Keep a package of Anti-masonic tracts for use in letters.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION, 321 W. Madison St., Chicago.

AGENTS AND LECTURERS.

NEW ENGLAND DEPARTMENT.—Rev. J. P. Stoddard, Agent, 218 Columbus Ave., Hotel Howland, Boston.

EASTERN DEPARTMENT.—W. B. Stoddard, Agent, No. 215, 4½ St., Washington, D. C.

CENTRAL DEPARTMENT.—Rev. M. A. Gault, Blanchard, Ia.

WESTERN DEPARTMENT.—Rev. W. C. Paden, Oakland, Kan.

PACIFIC DEPARTMENT.—, address Rev. S. Mathew, Canby, Oregon.

COLLEGE AGENT, Rev. S. F. Porter Cynosure office.

OTHER LECTURERS.

- C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
- Rev. H. H. Hinman, Oberlin, O.
- Nathan Callender Montdale Pa.
- J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
- T. B. McCormick, Princeton, Ind.
- E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
- H. A. Day, Brighton, Mich.
- J. M. Bishop, Chambersburg, Pa.
- A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
- J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
- W. M. Love, Osceola, Mo.
- J. K. Glassford, Carthage, Mo.
- Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Minn.
- J. S. Perry, Thompson, Conn.
- Rev. E. Mathews, Long Island City, N. Y.
- E. Barnetson, Haskinville, N. Y.
- D. A. Richards, Brighton, Mich.
- A. W. Parry, Evanston, Ill.

SCOTCH RITE MASONRY ILLUSTRATED.

The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all Masonic rites, and are fully and accurately given.

"FREEMASONRY ILLUSTRATED,"

as advertised, but the signs, grips, passwords etc., of these three degrees are given at the close of Vol. 2 of

"Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated"

Vol. 1 of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3d to 18th inclusive. Vol. 2 of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 19th to 33d inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive. Price per volume, paper cover, 50 cents each, in cloth, $1 each. Each volume per dozen, paper covers, $4; per dozen, cloth bound, $9.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern. Table of Contents: The Antiquity of Secret Societies, The Life of Julian, The Eleusinian Mysteries, The Origin of Masonry, Was Washington a Mason? Fillmore and Webster's Deference to Masonry, A Brief Outline of the Progress of Masonry in the United States, The Tammany Ring, Masonic Benevolence, The Uses of Masonry, An Illustration, The Conclusion. 50c each.

THE N. C. A. BUILDING (The gift of Philo Carpenter.)

—AND OFFICE OF—

The Christian Cynosure, 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO

PRESIDENT—Rev. M. A. Gault, Blanchard, Iowa.

VICE PRESIDENT—John Dorcas, Tipton, Iowa.

FIELD SEC'Y and TREASURER—W. I. Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

CORRESPONDING SEC'Y—Rev. H. L. Kellogg, Wheaton, Ill.

REC. SECRETARY—Mrs. E. A. Cook Chicago.

DIRECTORS—T. B. Arnold, C. A. Blanchard, E. A. Cook, J. M. Hitchcock, G. R. Milton, J. P. Richards, E. Whipple, E. R. Worrell, Edgar Wylie W. M. Howie, H. F. Kletsing.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

NEW ENGLAND.—Pres., Rev. J. M. Foster, Boston, Mass.; Sec'y, Miss E. E. Flagg, Wellesley, Mass.; Treas., L. E. Lincoln, Boston.

CONNECTICUT.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Willimantic; Sec., David J. Ellsworth, Windsor; Treas., C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.—Pres., Rev. R. W. Chesnut, Marissa; Sec., Rev. J. R. Wylie, Coulterville; Treas., Rev. W. I. Phillips, Cynosure office, Chicago.

IOWA.—Pres., John Dorcas, Tipton; Sec., Rev. T. P. Robb, Linton; Treas., Rev. L. Mendenhall, Fairfield.

KANSAS.—Pres., Rev. C. H. Strong, Lawrence; Vice-Pres., Rev. J. L. Countermine, Hiawatha; Sec., Rev. D. H. Coulter, Winchester; Treas., Joseph A. Torrence, Denison.

NEBRASKA.—Pres., Rev. W. I. Brooks, Pawnee City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. G. Widen, Mead; Sec., Howard P. Young, Wahoo; Treas., Rev. T. H. Dabney, Hooper.

MAINE.—Pres., Isaac Jackson, Harrison; Sec., I. D. Haines, Dexter; Treas., H. W. Goddard, West Sidney.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Pres., S. A. Pratt, Worcester.

MICHIGAN.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec., H. A. Day, Brighton; Treas., Geo. Swanson, Jr., Bedford.

MINNESOTA.—Pres., S. B. Sjoblom, Ferguson Falls; Cor. Sec., Wm. Fenton, St. Paul; Rec. Sec., Mrs. M. F. Morrill, St. Charles; Treas., Wm. H. Morrill, St. Charles.

MISSOURI.—Pres., J. F. Beauchamp, Denver; Sec., M. N. Butler, Darlington; Treas., Rev. C. G. Cox, Grant City.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—Pres., Robt. A. Frohock, Alton; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., James F. French, Canterbury.

NEW YORK.—Pres., Rev. S. R. Wallace, Syracuse; Sec., Rev. W. H. Clark, Binghamton; Treas., Lucius Woodruff, Binghamton.

OHIO.—Pres., J. W. Martin, Mt. Perry; Rec. Sec., A. T. Vestal, Senecaville; Cor. Sec. and Treas., E. Thomson, Senecaville.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Pres., Samuel S. Collins, Allegheny; Sec., J. S. T. Milligan, Beaver; Treas., R. C. Wylie, Wilkinsburg.

WISCONSIN.—Pres., J. B. Galloway, Poyette; Sec., Isiah Faris, Vernon; Treas., J. W. Wood, Baraboo.

The Christian Cynosure.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, MARCH 16, 1893.

They that trust in the Lord shall be as mount Zion, which cannot be removed, but abideth forever.—PSALM 125: 1.

SECRET SOCIETIES MOVED.

The introduction into the Legislature of Illinois, last week, of a bill to classify and license, for pay, all the "benevolent" (so-called) secret societies as insurance companies, created a remarkable sensation among the latter, and no time was lost in sending a formidable lobby to Springfield to combat the measure. Those who were represented in the lobby were the following:

American Legion of Honor, Ancient Order of Foresters of America, Ancient Order of United Workmen, Select Knights of America, Benevolent Protective Order of Elks, British American Association of the United States, Grand Army of the Republic, Improved Order of Red Men, Independent Order of Foresters, Independent Order of the Free Sons of Israel, Independent Order of Knights and Ladies of Honor, Independent Order of Red Men, Knights of Honor, Knights and Ladies of Honor, Knights of Pythias, Loyal Orange Institution, National Union, Order of the Iron Hall, Order of Mutual Protection, Order United American Mechanics, Patriotic Order Sons of America, Progressive Benefit Order, Royal Arcanum, Royal League, Sons of St. George, Sons of Veterans, United Ancient Order of Druids, Order of Scottish Clans, Sons of Hermann, Catholic Order of Foresters, Odd-fellows, Patriarchs Militant, Junior Order United American Mechanics, The Daniel H Brotherhood, Select Knights of America, Ancient Order of Hibernians, Masonic Benevolent Associations.

The influence of such an array of oath-bound lodgemen was at once felt in the Legislative halls; and it is safe to say that the bill will never become a law. The lodges form a secret empire, to which their members owe a stronger allegiance than to civil government; and it is notorious that whatever they want they insist on having, without reference to the claims of other citizens. This is one great reason why they should be persistently and vigorously opposed, as the enemies of the church, family and state.

MASONIC RHODOMONTADE.

"Speculative Masonry was represented by wisdom, in the person of King Solomon, and operative Masonry by strength, in the person of King Hiram, while Hiram Abiff, or beauty, was the personification of both united. From the beautiful union of three of the greatest men of antiquity, personating the three great elements of a true, manly life, proceeded the harmonious organization, the splendid symbolism, and sublime precepts of Freemasonry," etc.—Rev. Bro. Cone, in the Voice of Masonry for March.

Says Bro. Parvin, than whom there is no wiser Freemason living, and no more thorough member of the fraternity: "'Tis true, 'tis pity: and pity 'tis 'tis true,' that even Solomon was no Mason. With all his wisdom, great as it was, he knew no more of the mysteries of Freemasonry than did the... beautiful Queen of Sheba." "Nor is there any evidence to prove that either of the St. Johns... were Masons." "It is amusing to note how they [the Masons] always enroll among their numbers the noble and good of all nations, all the time as carefully excluding the opposite class."—Oration in 1875.

"Masonry cannot be known from a perusal of the eulogistic books which adhering Masons have written... As anyone may know who will examine them, they are silly, and, for the most part, little better than twaddle. If we read their orations and sermons that have been published in support of Masonry... we shall find much that is silly, much that is false, and a great deal more that is mere bombast and rhodomontade." So wrote Rev. Chas. G. Finney, who, before his conversion from Masonic paganism, was himself a "bright" Mason.

Yet, month after month, year in and year out, Masonry perpetuates its historic, unscriptural falsehoods—perhaps deceiving even Masons, but certainly with the design of making the ignorant believe that the institution is "the handmaid of religion" and the greatest institution ever introduced into the world for the benefit of mankind. Stripped of its tinsel and its secrecy, it is nothing but a despicable humbug, born of the devil.

HOW MAY IT BE REMEDIED?

There is a great object-lesson in the story (Mark 5: 25-29) of the woman who had suffered from disease for twelve years, and had employed many physicians without securing restoration to health.

In spite of all our national and state legislation, and our systems of education, the social and political condition of our country is far from what it should be. There is a steady increase in crime. Our penitentiaries overflow. Murders increase faster than the population. The percentage of the insane increases. The number of suicides is most astounding. Divorces bear an alarming proportion to the marriages. The annual consumption of alcohol grows faster than the population, and the drink traffic has become a dreadful incubus upon the prosperity of the world. Men are, in our own land, shot down and poisoned for working for such wages as they can obtain. Other men, whose crime is that they have a dark skin, are subject to death by violence, often to horrible tortures, on the merest suspicion that they have gone wrong.

This is the state of the body politic, and there are many physicians, and many remedies are proposed. In the main, they are like those which the poor woman endured. Society suffers much from them, and is nothing better, but rather worse. All human remedies are alike in one respect. They all appeal to human selfishness, as though it were the proper and rightful condition of the human soul. There is a wisdom of the world which says, "love thyself first"; "blessed are ye rich"; "blessed are ye when all men shall speak well of you"; "be careful and troubled for everything, and let your wants be made known to men"; "bless them that bless you, and do good unto them from whom ye hope to receive as much again"; "hate your enemies, and if a man smite you on the one cheek, smite him back with all your strength." This wisdom is highly esteemed among men, but is an abomination in the sight of God. It is surely not the wisdom from above.

The most common application of these principles of worldly wisdom is in the formation of secret societies. They all propose to benefit the individual man; and, to benefit the world, Freemasonry proposes to teach piety, morality, science, charity and self-discipline. Odd-fellowship claims that its fundamental principles are "friendship, love and truth". The secret temperance orders would reform the world on temperance lines. Trades-unions propose mutual help, and secret insurance companies promise economy in providing for the future. They all seek to reform the outward man. The Masonic idea of a perfect character is the "perfect ashlar," the hewn stone, that is outwardly perfect. They never regenerate the heart, nor restore it to the likeness of God.

All these remedies, like those prescribed for the poor woman, must utterly fail, because they are founded on a wrong diagnosis. They all appeal to, and tend to build up, human selfishness, which God proposes to destroy.

The divine remedy is in the Gospel of Christ. It proposes to reform the individual man, and to reform society by the elimination of human selfishness. It says: "Ye must be born again." "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved." "If any man will come after me [Christ] let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow me;" and "he that forsaketh not all that he hath cannot be my disciple." It says, "Love your enemies; do good to them that hate you, and pray for them that despitefully use you and persecute you."

God's plan is directly the reverse of the world's. Their remedies have always failed. His have always succeeded, when, like the poor woman, we have come to him in simple faith.

It is plain, then, that as Christians we should have no fellowship with these earthly remedies.

1. They are not God's plan. Divine wisdom is better than means. "Every tree that the Father hath not planted shall be rooted up."

2. They are rivals of the church of Christ.

They all seek to justify their existence by disparaging the church, and by telling of its shortcomings. Christ said of his church: "Ye are the light of the world;" "ye are the salt of the earth." Paul said of it: "Christ loved the church, and gave himself for it, that he might sanctify and cleanse it with the washing of water through the Word, that he might present it unto himself a glorious church, without spot or wrinkle, or any such thing, that it might be holy and without blemish." Eph. 5: 25-27.

3. They do not honor Christ. They do their deeds of so-called charity in the name of the lodge. The Word of God says, "Whatsoever ye do, in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus." Col. 3: 17.

4. They unequally yoke God's people with unbelievers. As the principles and the wisdom of this world are directly the reverse of the principles and wisdom of God, so God's people are to be a separate and peculiar people. Christ said: "I have chosen you out of the world." Paul said: "Be not unequally yoked together with unbelievers; come out from among them and be ye separate, and I will be a Father unto you, and ye shall be my sons and daughters, saith the Lord Almighty." (2 Cor. 6: 14-18.)

Let the men of the world, if they will, follow the ways of the world; but let not the people of God be entrapped by their sophistries. The wisdom of the world shall perish; but if we come to Christ, and but touch the hem of his garment, in true faith, we shall be whole, both as individuals and as a people.

REPEAL OF THE FIFTEENTH AMENDMENT.

Mr. J. C. Wickliffe, a lawyer of New Orleans, in the January number of the Forum, declares in favor of a repeal of the Fifteenth Amendment of the Constitution, which says that "the right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States, or any State, on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude".

He says that Negro suffrage has proved a failure, and has tended to general demoralization. He holds: "The moral sensibilities of the people have unquestionably been blunted by the practices towards the Negro, into which they have been forced by dire necessity," of which bulldozing and ballot-stuffing have been samples. He concedes that Louisiana would lose two or three Representatives in Congress, and a similar number in the electoral college, but thinks that she would gain, as the result.

To us it seems as impossible as it would be impolitic and unjust to make such a change. Whatever may have been the wisdom or folly of enfranchising those who were then just emerging from slavery, the great majority of whom had absolutely no knowledge of the principles of our government, it surely would not now do to withdraw a franchise that has been exercised for more than twenty-five years, and especially since a vastly greater proportion can now vote intelligently. Besides this, such a repeal would be a concession to the spirit of caste, which is utterly foreign to the spirit of Christianity or the principles of our government.

Distinctions in the social scale we doubtless recognize; but such distinctions are based on character and capacity. It will be a sad day when we recognize any other ground of political or social standing.

But the failure to enforce the constitution in Louisiana reminds us strongly of what is called "failure" of prohibition in some of the prohibition States. Laws against gambling, liquor-selling and licentiousness are sometimes but imperfectly enforced; yet the fault is not in the law, nor in the beneficence of its purposes, but in those who violate and those who fail to enforce it. Had the white people of Louisiana maintained a kind relation to their Negro fellow-citizens; had they sought to be their leaders rather than their enemies, there would have been no race antagonism, and the evils of an illiterate constituency would have been comparatively small. The trouble with Louisiana, and much of the South besides, is that they have never accepted the idea of joint citizenship; and, instead of seeking to placate the race feeling, they have sought to perpetuate and increase it.

To our mind, a wiser solution of the race-problem, and one entirely practical, is, to restrict the right of suffrage to those who are capable of an intelligent exercise of that right, be they either white or black. No person who is incapable of reading his ballot can safely be entrusted with its use. Ignorant voters will always (as they have been in Louisiana) be either bought or driven into compliance with the strongest party. In any case they will be oppressed.

Such a restriction in the right of suffrage would be a strong incentive to acquire an education, and would eliminate the dangerous element in our national elections and State politics. If, by reason of such change, Louisiana should lose something in her voice in our national elections, it would soon be regained. Next to this, let the statesmen of Louisiana seek to divide, rather than unify, the Negro vote, and she need not fear it.

CHRISTIAN PATRIOTISM.

It is both an impulse and a duty to love our country. This sentiment is universal. It was both patriotism and religion that led the ancient psalmist to exclaim: "By the rivers of Babylon, there we sat down; yea, we wept, when we remembered Zion. . . . How shall we sing the Lord's song in a strange land? If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, let my right hand forget her cunning. If I do not remember thee let my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth; if I prefer not Jerusalem above my chief joy." Psalm 137: 1, 4-6.

It is remarkable, however, that in the entire New Testament there is a profound silence about the duty of patriotism, except, possibly, the weeping of Christ over the city, when he foresaw its doom. Everywhere in the New Testament Scriptures the paramount obligation is impartial love. "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and thy neighbor as thyself." In the beautiful parable of the Good Samaritan we are taught that our neighbor is not simply our fellow-citizen, but our brother in humanity. The heathen idea, and, to a great extent, the ancient Jewish nation, was, that the obligations of fraternity were, at least, restricted by national boundaries. It was an astounding declaration which a heathen once made, when he declared that "whatever concerns humanity concerns me; for I, too, am a man."

And since this great law of love is the paramount obligation, it follows, therefore, that patriotism is not what the heathen conceived it to be, but is to be held as entirely subordinate to the higher interests of humanity. We ought to love our country so much that we would sacrifice personal interests, and even life itself, for its well-being, but we ought not to love it so much as to consent to a single wrong to the poorest of our human brethren, or to seek to accomplish any end except by means that are intrinsically righteous. It was a noble sentiment of Daniel O'Connell that "no political change, however important, is worth the commission of a single crime or a single drop of human blood." Those principles ought to apply to our national legislation. Tariff laws that shut off natural sources of supply, like the tin mines of Cornwall, and thereby bring unwonted distress on English tin-miners, are not demanded by any true law of patriotism. It is safe to say that there was no patriotic obligation to have fought in the needless war of 1812-15 or in the Mexican war, if, indeed, there was ever any right to engage in any war. It is quite time that the Christian world should have found out that the old rule, "thou shalt love thy neighbor and hate thine enemy," has been set aside by the Great Lawgiver, and that patriotism, noble as it is, is limited by love to humanity.

THE SACREDNESS OF HUMAN LIFE.

The recent murder of two Mormon elders, while they were preaching to a small congregation in Lewis county, Tenn., and whose only offence was that they had not left the country when commanded to do so by an irresponsible mob, is quite in keeping with many similar events in other States, but especially in the South.

Quite generally the victims of lawless violence are Negroes; but in the mountain districts, where black men are scarce, the white people prey on each other. This condition of society is largely the result of the combined influences of slavery and war. It was slavery that drove the poor white people into the mountain districts and deprived them of the advantages of education. It was slavery that led to a general disregard of natural rights, while the late war made human life seem cheap, and violence and strife commendable.

But whatever may have been the causes of such a state of society, it ought to cause a wide-spread alarm and lead to renewed efforts to not only secure the enforcement of law, but especially a higher regard for human life as the sacred gift of God.

1. Every good citizen ought more earnestly to contend for the paramount authority of civil law, even though it may be defective, and sometimes oppressive. It is a thousand-fold better than anarchy and violence.

2. Every good citizen should seek the suppression of the liquor-traffic, since drunkenness is usually the immediate and exciting cause of those scenes of violence and crime. It is quite probable that "moonshine" whisky was the prominent factor in this murder of these Mormons.

3. Citizens generally, especially those of the South, should learn to exercise a more tolerant spirit. It should be remembered that the best way to overcome error is not by violence, which rather promotes it. Had not the Mormons been driven from their first settlement, and in their early history everywhere subjected to persecution, it is quite probable that their superstition would have long since died out. The blood of the martyrs is not only the seed of the true but of the false church. Jefferson said that "it is always safe to tolerate error, so long as reason is left free to oppose it." Until we cease to mob and murder men for difference of opinion, we are unworthy the name of republicans, much less of Christians.

4. The Christian press, and especially the Christian ministry, have a great duty to perform in insisting on the sacredness of human life. "Thou shalt not kill" is God's unalterable law. Nothing so tends to its disregard as the spirit and practice of war. It has for centuries been a recognized principle in English law to exclude a butcher from a jury when a man was on trial for his life. It was held that familiarity with blood would lead to a lower appreciation of the right to live. With much greater reason should those who delight in war and glory in the destruction of their enemies be excluded from positions of honor and responsibility. With equal propriety we should teach our youth to abhor war and to regard a military education as essentially uncalled-for and un-Christian.

THE ORANGEMEN AGAIN.

The Western Catholic News refers to an incident in the British Parliament, the other day, when a Tory member who had the floor tore up a copy of the new Home-Rule bill and trampled it under his feet. Of course the destruction of a single copy of the measure by this member could not eliminate it from the archives or prevent its ultimate success in Parliament. It was merely an ebullition of temper in an excited individual, and carried weight accordingly. But when he added that he has offers from America and other countries to send 100,000 Orangemen and other active opponents of the bill to Ireland to resist its operations, he indicates clearly what the Cynosure has always urged upon its readers, the lawless, murderous character of the secret political orders.

The hatred of the Orangemen, whether in the United States, Canada, or Ireland, to the dominance of the Roman Catholics is proverbial and has been fiercely perpetuated ever since the battle of the Boyne, in 1690; and in all that time no one ever knew the order to perform a reputable deed.

THE GOSPEL OF DIRT.

The Advance of last week has an editorial monograph which might consistently have borne the above title. It said:

"The newest pastors preach most about the smoke, dirt and vices of the city. They seem to get a great sniff of bad things right away. Older pastors—and a pastor who has been here a half-dozen years is old—take their recreation on the boulevards and in the parks, but some of the new men seem to wander along the Chicago river or ramble up and down the alleys, and they strike up an astonishing acquaintance with gambling dens and other bad places in very short time. Some of the sermons preached have the odor of garbage boxes about them. 'The audience gave a sigh of relief when he closed,' was the comment made by one of the Monday morning dailies, after describing a long sermon during which the ladies sometimes hid their faces and the men moved uneasily in their seats. It was a sermon which spread out all the vices. But then 'the house was crowded.' It is doubtful whether it would be again, by the same crowd."

It is certainly the province of an earnest Christian pastor to go out and preach the Gospel of God in the alleys and byways as well as the highways of the city; to reform the intemperate and vicious by personal contact with them; but it is certainly no part of a preacher's duty to "go-a-slumming" for the sole purpose of gathering disgusting subjects for a sensational sermon. The picture of such an unprofitable servant is not overdrawn by our contemporary.

—Rev. M. A. Gault preached in the Vernon, Wis., Reformed Presbyterian church on the 5th instant, and last Sunday at Oakdale, Ill. During the rest of March he expects to remain in Indiana, hoping to organize a State anti-secrecy convention at Bloomington about April 4th and 5th.

—Misled by the misspelling of the Pittsburgh daily papers, the name of Mrs. Ella Reidy, of Tyrone, Penn., who made a sterling address at the Pennsylvania Convention, February 28, appears in our report as Mrs. Reid. This lady's remarks on that occasion have been received in manuscript, and will be printed in the Cynosure.

—While the Allegheny convention was in session, a telegram was received announcing the sudden death of Mrs. Dr. H. H. George, at Beaver Falls. This news cast a pall of gloom over the convention, and prayer was tenderly offered for the bereaved family and for the father who was absent from home in his Sabbath-reform work. Resolutions of condolence were passed for him, and also for Rev. C. A. Blanchard and wife, the latter being so long under affliction.

REFORM NEWS (Continued from 5th page.)

than he could chew". I inquired, "How is that?" His reply was that that man could not make that out. I made the counter reply that that was not hard to do; that I could do that myself. Yes; he replied, you can easily make the declaration. I, of course, made the further reply that I could prove it from Masonic works in my possession, and that Odd-fellowship did the same. Oh, no, he returned; you cannot make that out. I am not a Mason; but I have been an Odd-fellow for forty years. I inquired if he knew the prominent Odd-fellow author, Rev. A. B. Grosh. No, he did not know him. I gave him the information, then, that Mr. Grosh is high authority in Odd-fellowship; his Manual has the sanction of State Grand Lodges and the United States Grand Lodge, and that Mr. Grosh, in this same Manual (of which I have a copy), tells us very plainly that Odd-fellowship does leave out Jesus Christ and argues for several pages for the propriety of doing so. Mention was made of Christ and his sacrifice. He did not take any stock in the atonement and sacrifice, and the shedding of blood. I replied to him that that was good Masonic and Odd-fellow doctrine; that I did not wonder at his making such declarations. But Masonry and Odd-fellowship, upon occasion, make great boast that they are founded on the Bible. Yet they say, because they are so taught by these institutions, that they do not take any stock in sacrifice and shed blood. "Without the shedding of blood there is no remission of sins." True Masons, at their corner-stone layings, pour on "corn, wine and oil," and Odd-fellows, "water, flowers and wheat,"—all fruits of the ground. They are after the offerings of Cain and not after the acceptable offerings of Abel, who offered of the flock a bloody sacrifice.

Is there nothing here to cause a Christian to pause when he is asked to enter these institutions? Is there nothing here to lead the ministry of the Word to lift up their voices in earnest warning against these things?

We expect to lecture and labor in Clay county next week also.

Yours in the work.

WM C. PADEN.

THE HOME.

RETROSPECTION.

O life, I turn on thee a backward gaze,
Before my sun has set;
I mark the windings of a tangled maze
Of paths I'd fain forget.

I see my footprints in the tell-tale sand,
Nor time nor death can hide;
I see where straightest I my pathway planned,
There most I turned aside.

And sharpest sting of my regretful pain—
What deepest I deplore—
The path I made must ever so remain;
I'll pass that way no more.

I dare not 'gainst a straying brother cry,
Nor his intent malign,
Lest looking backward there I may descry
His path more straight than mine.

I may not over him in judgment stand,
Nor ask how he has striven;
I only clasp in peace his proffered hand
As I would be forgiven.

May there not be hid, by his smiling face,
A troubled heart and sore?
I humbly whisper, Jesus, give us grace;
I'll pass that way no more.

—Margaret Holmes Bates.

STORIES OF TWO FAVORITE HYMNS.

Mrs. H. T. Stephens, in the Methodist Recorder, tells Mr. Sankey's own story of how he came to write what is, by many, considered his finest song, "The Ninety and Nine."

It was in 1874. Mr. Moody and he had been holding a three months' meeting in Edinburgh. They had gone to Glasgow, and on their way back to Edinburgh to hold a three days' farewell meeting, Mr. Sankey bought a newspaper before starting, wanting to hear the latest American news. In one corner of the little paper he found the words of the "Ninety and Nine." Mr. Moody was sitting by him in the chair.

"Mr. Moody," he exclaimed, "I have found what I have been looking for for several years—a shepherd song!"

"Read it," Mr. Moody answered, at the same time commencing a home letter from Chicago. Mr. Sankey began it, but found Mr. Moody so engrossed in his letter that he concluded to wait.

They reached Edinburgh, and had a grand meeting. The third evening, Mr. Moody, Dr. John Brown, and some others, had addressed the crowded house. There was a deep silence, the stillness of deep religious feeling.

"Sing your hymn!" a voice seemed to say to Mr. Sankey.

"I can't! it has no music."

"Sing your hymn!" came again. He said he never disobeyed such a voice in a great meeting, but he gave himself to the guidance of the Spirit.

Seating himself at a small organ, he began, not knowing how he might close. It was born of that hour. No note has ever been changed. The twenty-third Psalm is familiar to every Scotchman; he usually sings it at least once a day. A shepherd song peculiarly appeals to them.

Mr. Moody came down from the pulpit, leaned over the organ, and with tears in his eyes, asked: "Mr. Sankey, where did you get that hymn?" The day before he had not heard it, for his interest in his Chicago letter.

The sister of the author of the words was up in one of the galleries, but the press was too great for her to reach Mr. Sankey when the meeting closed.

She wrote him after he had gone to the Highlands to hold another meeting. And so he discovered the authorship. The lady had been dead some years. Afterwards he visited her sisters, and they showed him her little room where "Ninety and Nine" had been written. As he stood in the room he could but pray that God would continue to use the song to show the lost ones his tender shepherd-care and love.

Twenty years or more ago a New York lawyer was sitting in his office, when a Brooklyn Sunday-school superintendent called on business. As the latter turned to go, a printed page fell from a package in his hand. Picking it up he exclaimed: "Ah, this is a hymn I have had printed for my Sunday-school. If it only had music I'm sure they would sing it." The lawyer took it, read the first line, "What a Friend we have in Jesus!" and asked: "Can you wait fifteen minutes?" He caught up a sheet of letter paper, ruled it, and dashed down the music to which that familiar hymn has since been sung the world around.

The author of the words is unknown. Attributed to Dr. Bonar, he has disclaimed them. The composer of the tune, which has become as well known as "Old Hundred" or "America," is Charles C. Converse, Esq., a successful business man, a facile writer, and an accomplished musician. His youthful compositions were very popular. He mastered the science of music in the famous school at Leipzig, and won the highest commendations of the leading musicians there. On his way home he played before Prince Albert; the Prince also played for him; but after his return he decided upon a business career. Many of his hymn-tunes and songs, jotted down in leisure moments, perhaps in the cars upon backs of letters, have become the common possession of the singing world. Some of his more elaborate compositions have been played by the Thomas orchestra in New York and Chicago. Two hymnals of the Southern Presbyterian church, he edited gratuitously in the days of its impoverishment by the civil war. His last work for the same body, "Songs of the Covenant," has recently been published.

But it is the history of the hymn referred to, with the music, which has made it familiar and dear to millions, to which this article would call attention. Over fifty million impressions of the piece are known to have been made. Mr. Sankey says that it is the favorite with more people, wherever he has sung, than any other. The hymn has been translated into many languages and sung to the same tune in all parts of the globe.

A neighbor of Judge Converse returning from Europe heard singing in the steerage of the steamer. He went down and found that the motley company were singing: "What a Friend we have in Jesus," in various languages. One foreign tongue after another joined the commingled strain, even some Chinese, who had learned the hymn in their own language, adding their voices, till it seemed as though a musical Pentecost had visited the steerage. The effect upon singers and listeners was most impressive, for all seemed to feel that Jesus was indeed among them to hear, protect and save.

This is one of the tunes which the people make their own—a sacred folk-song. Bands and hand-organs play it. More than one criminal has asked to have it sung as he faced death upon the scaffold. It was the favorite of Jesse James, and was sung by his request, at his funeral. As its familiar strains were heard, tears rolled down the cheeks of his hardened associates. Lost women, hearing children sing its lines in the streets of Chicago and other cities, have been known to weep and resolve to lead a better life, in the hope that such a Friend would not cast them out, but receive them and save them.

At the recent anniversary of the Bowery Mission a well-dressed, good-looking man told this story of his conversion: Eleven years before he was walking in the Bowery in despair, a penniless drunkard. His family were scattered, and no one would give him work. As he passed the open door of the mission room he heard the hymn, "What a Friend we have in Jesus," sung heartily as though it were true. "I said to myself," he testified, "I have no friends, not one. I'll go in and see if there's any hope for me." At the close of the meeting I lifted my hand for prayer, and then in the after-meeting, a Christian lady pointed me to Christ. I went out that night happy in my new-found Friend; and now I have as good a home as anybody, with all my family around me, a responsible business position, and I have an organ of my own, with which I love to sing: "What a Friend I have in Jesus!"

Mr. Van Meter was once telling of his Vatican Mission in a meeting at which the composer of this tune was present, unknown to the speaker. He said: "Right under the walls of the Vatican we sing in the sweet Italian tongue: 'What a Friend we have in Jesus!' so that the Pope himself can hear it if he will." A Catholic monk who, like Luther, unhappy in the monastic life, had been found of God in his cell, and led by the Spirit into a soul-renewing trust in Christ, left the monastery and wandered about without home or friends. One day in New York City his eye was attracted by a sign, "Carmel Chapel," and he went in, thinking it a station of the Carmelite friars. He was puzzled at the plainness of room and service, and began to think it a rather ridiculous attempt at worship, when, for the second hymn, "What a Friend" was given out and sung vigorously. In relating the experience he says: "While that might seem nothing to people who had no cares, it was a whole compendium of theology to me who had been just rescued from the brink of despair. How that hymn led my mind back to years of torture and forfeited peace, all because I did not know where to seek for peace and God as the fountain of all grace that was hidden from me by the pagan system which, under the name of Christian religion, cheats millions of people out of their eternal happiness by the delusive snares of superstition and man-worship. 'What a Friend we have in Jesus' brought the delights of paradise to my soul, when I thought how I had been bringing my griefs and pains to those who could not relieve, and bearing needless pain because of their impositions. That hymn so seemed to apply in every detail to my own case, that I sat entranced under its influence, and it never afterwards left my memory. It brought inspiration from the Spirit of God, and new light on his relationship with me." After a sermon, which carried out the theme of the hymn by dwelling upon the sole mediatorship of Christ, the ex-monk joyfully arose and announced his new faith. He is now doing faithful service as a fearless preacher of the Gospel in a Reformed Catholic church.

When the secrets of hearts and the full history of Gospel triumphs are published at the last day, what a story of inspiration, comfort and help will be that of this simple hymn by an unknown author, as it has sung its way to millions of human souls in the stormy passage through life! "I would rather have written that tune," said the chairman of the International Y. M. C. A. convention at Atlanta, "than possess all the money of a Gould or a Vanderbilt." Heaven alone will disclose the value of the ministry of consecrated songs.—Rev. J. H. Edwards.

A RAINY SABBATH'S WORK.

"Are you going to church this morning, Mary?" said mother.

"Well, I guess not," Mary answered. "You know I am always expected to be at Sunday-school. And then," she added with a lazy sigh, "our pastor is away, and I have a notion that that tiresome Dr. Brown will preach. And it is raining too: I cannot afford to get my clothes damp."

"Where is Lou?" said brother James, yawning from his place on the lounge.

"Getting ready for church," answered Mary, discontentedly. "It never pours too hard to keep Lou at home. I try to reason with her, but to no avail. I do not see why we should not be allowed a vacation as well as the pastor, who takes his regularly enough."

"At any rate, you always manage to get yours, sister," said James, laughing.

Lou at this moment entered, dressed for her walk in the rain.

"Daughter," said mother, anxiously, "had you not better stay in to-day?"

"Ob, mother," Lou said, "I am well protected, and it is really not so bad as it was last night when we went to the concert. There are so many absent when it storms that I feel that I must be in my place."

"Dr. Brown will preach," said Mary, with a wry face.

"And will deliver a message from God's own Word, Mary. No, sister, forbear; it must be something more than a dull morning and a sermon by Dr. Brown to keep me home from Sabbath worship."

Lou found the wet pavements almost deserted. "Not much like the throng and press of last night," she sighed as she hurried on.

The last bell ceased ringing just as she reached the church door. Pausing a moment to regain her breath, she thought she recognized a trim, boyish figure turning the corner. Another look reassured her, "Why, good morning, Harry," she said, brightly. "Are you coming to our church to-day?" The boy's face flushed as he removed his hat.

"The fact is, Miss Lou, I am not going anywhere to church. I am on my way to the clubroom to meet the boys." Feeling an apology was needed, he added, "You know no one goes to church when it rains."

"But I do, Harry," she gravely replied, while her hold on his hand tightened. "There is no one out from home to-day but myself; won't you come and sit with me and help to fill our pew?"

The boy's face flushed anew. What would they say at the club if they knew that the young artist, Miss Lou Grayam, Dr. Grayam's elegant daughter, was actually inviting him to a place beside her in the family pew! He hesitated a moment. "There is no particular reason why I should not," he said.

"Then come," she gladly answered. And side by side they seated themselves in Dr. Grayam's pew.

As had been predicted, Dr. Brown occupied the pulpit. If Lou had any misgivings, they were soon lost, for the message he delivered was one of peculiar worth. The heart of the Christian girl beat with new zeal beneath the zealous flow of words, and the boy beside her showed by certain silent movements that he was not an indifferent listener.

"I am glad that you came in with me," said Lou, at the close of the service, as she again extended her hand.

"And I am glad too," was the half-whispered answer.

And the following week Lou received a note written in a bold, boyish hand:

"DEAR MISS LOU:—Through your help I have given my heart to the Saviour. When I met you last Sunday, I had just resolved to break away from all religious influences. I said, 'They are only sham.' But, thank God, I am brought to the light. May he bless you forever, is the prayer of your friend, HARRY LINTON."

And Lou laid the note carefully away and bowed her head in silent prayer, thanking God anew for the gift of grace which he is ever ready to bestow.—Sallie V. Du Bois, in Christian Intelligencer.

Do you take the Cynosure? Why not? Do you pay for it? Why don't you?

MRS. LOCKE'S CATS.

You know there is quite a fashion in these days for Angora cats. They have very long hair, large bushy tails, and are very much more intelligent than common cats. There is quite a cat kennel in Chicago, owned by Mrs. Clinton Locke. She has a dear little house divided into three rooms by heavy wire, and each room has a door and window opening into a little yard, which is also enclosed and roofed by wire, so the cats cannot get out and associate with common cats.

Mrs. Locke owns six of these fine creatures. She has one white, two jet black, one gray, one tortoise shell, and one a reddish yellow. Their names are Bettina, Wendell, Nero, Marigold, Vashti, and Grover. They are superb! Every year she raises a number of kittens and sells them for the benefit of St. Luke's Hospital and missions and the poor. She gets $15 apiece for these beautiful kittens.

The kittens have been sent all over the United States and to Europe, they are so interesting and magnificent. (Grover is named for the President-elect; Vashti was given to the late Miss Booth (of Harper's Bazar) and was well known in her salon, amongst her literary friends. She was named Vashti, because she would not come when she was called. At the death of Miss Booth, Vashti was returned to her former mistress.

The cats have all been imported from Spain, England, Germany and France. They take turns in going into the rectory for visits of days and weeks and are very ornamental and amusing. They are very devoted to their kind mistress, and run to meet her when she enters the house, and know their names and come when they are called. They eat out of plates which have pictures of cats on them, and they are combed and brushed almost daily, as their long hair becomes matted unless it has good care.

In this way, you see, even kittens may be made to help in the good work of providing for the sick and poor.—Ledger.

A year's numbers of the Cynosure would make six good-sized volumes of valuable reform literature, containing 550 pages each.

A WOMAN'S EPITAPH.

"She was so pleasant."

Ye toiling ones, who take your life
With many a fret and frown,
Read the sweet legend that above
One life was written down.

I seem to see that woman dear
About her household ways,
With now a gentle, warning glance,
And now a word of praise.

With ready laughter bubbling up,
Instead of scathing speech,
When heavy hand or brain have failed
Some purposed end to reach.

Thoughtful for others' loss and pain,
The secret of her own
Hides in the music of a voice
Untuned to sigh or groan.

A comely face, whose wholesome charm
Startles no envious pride—
The face for which a man might live,
Though none for it have died.

Green be the grasses on the grave
That closed such worth above;
We have her portrait in a phrase;
And she, the meed of love.

—Charlotte Wellen Packard.

TEMPERANCE.

MISS WILLARD'S WORK IN ENGLAND.

Remarkable as has been the power of our trans-Atlantic friends to attract immense audiences and awaken British enthusiasm, none, perhaps (John B. Gough and Dwight L. Moody not excepted), have evoked more universal interest or received a greater ovation than has Miss Frances E. Willard during her three months' stay in England. In this age of great conveniences, it is not often that a single meeting marks an epoch, even though it be in the interest of a reform that has now forged its way to the front in the politics of England's regnant party, and, mirabile dictu, finds a place in the Queen's speech to Parliament. This is a statement noteworthy, indeed, but it is true of the national welcome (for it was nothing less) accorded to America's White Ribbon leader at the recent great meeting in Exeter Hall.

There is perhaps no better gauge of the state of public sentiment towards a cause or an individual than the attitude of an Exeter Hall audience. This famous auditorium has been so long the battleground of all religious movements and reforms, that to the accustomed eyes of its habitues the unprecedented character of that assembly was a marvel. Even in the city of London it is not difficult to rally the adherents of a single reform; but to convene fifty distinct lines of religious, philanthropic and reformatory work is something which, so far as I know, has never before occurred in the greatest metropolis of the world.

On the huge platform were seated men and women whose names are household words throughout the English-speaking race—members of Parliament, dignitaries of the church, and ladies of society, side by side with the leaders of the labor movement and the Salvation Army. A delegation appointed from the Methodist church, the Baptist, the Congregational, the Society of Friends, the Independent Order of the Rechabites, the Anti-Opium League, Women's Anti-Opium Emergency League, Church of England Temperance Society, Total Abstaining section of the Young Women's Christian Association, Young Men's Christian Association, Band of Mercy, Salvation Army, International Christian Police Association, Church Army, West London Wesleyan Mission, Woman's Suffrage Society, Peace Society, Vegetarian Society, the Rev. Armstrong Bennetts, B. A., and six ministers, a deputation from the Wesleyan church; Tower Hamlets Mission, Baptist Total Abstinence Society, Congregational Total Abstinence Society, Women's Liberal Federation, National Union of Women Workers, National Vigilance Society, Prison Gate Mission, Friends' Temperance Union, Presbyterian Temperance Union, Students' Total Abstinence Association, New Church Temperance Society, Catholic Total Abstinence League of the Cross, National Temperance Federation, Phoenix Orders, London Temperance Hospital Board, Railway Temperance Union, Templar and Temperance Orphanage Board, English Sunday-Closing Association, East London Mission Institute, Workingwomen's Teetotal League, Butchers' Total Abstinence Society, Bakers' Total Abstinence Society, General Postoffice Total Abstinence Society, Women's Trades' Union Association.

The speakers, twelve in number, were each one equal to filling Exeter Hall in the strength of individual reputation; but they gladly limited their speeches to five minutes each, rejoicing to be among those who did honor to the distinguished guest whom the crowds had assembled to greet in numbers so large that the tickets could have been sold twice over; and some fortunate possessors, more sordid than enthusiastic, were disposing of them at three times their original value at the entrance, where they were eagerly purchased, even for the overflow meeting which had speedily to be organized, so great were the crowds demanding entrance.

Nothing could exceed the enthusiasm with which the speaker of the evening was greeted. The vast audience rose with a cheer on their lips, and waving white handkerchiefs in hand, and for several minutes the expression of their admiration seemed as though it would never subside. A thrill of pleasure comes to our hearts when one is thus recognized who has toiled so long and patiently for others' weal; for it is good, indeed, to pour out the fragrance of our welcome, affection and praise, and place our tribute in the warm clasp of living hands rather than lay it on the cold marble of a tomb.

After such a greeting as has been described, it is not an easy task to organize a demonstration worthy to be compared with that of Exeter Hall, but the United Kingdom Alliance, the strongest temperance society in Great Britain, proved equal to the undertaking. Five thousand persons assembled on consecutive evenings in the great Free Trade Hall in Manchester, the second city in England and the headquarters of the Alliance. Canon Wilberforce and Sir Wilfrid Lawson were the chairmen. Testimonials were presented by the Alliance and other temperance societies, and the entire audience rose to receive Miss Willard, a greeting which was perhaps excelled only by the enthusiasm which brought them to their feet again and caused a hearty British cheer to echo through the historic hall that had witnessed the triumphs of Cobden, Bright and Gladstone, as she closed her speech.

"A wonderful address," said a veteran leader, who has gauged every speaker on the temperance platform for the last forty years. "I have never heard it excelled, and perhaps not equaled."

Similar demonstrations have been held in Charrington's great hall in the heart of the east-end of London; in Liverpool, where Miss Willard was welcomed by the Women's Liberal Federation—in Birmingham and Leeds, Nottingham and Sunderland, and in St. James' Hall, London, by invitation of the indefatigable Rev. Hugh Price Hughes, on temperance Sunday.

The Methodist churches of London, not to be outdone, have already given a social reception to the most prominent figure among Methodist women of America, and on the 27th of February they accorded a formal public greeting in John Wesley's famous City Road Chapel.

Scotland has added her quota to the universal enthusiasm; and, indeed, in the judgment of some of our temperance workers, has succeeded perhaps in demonstrating a more expressive sympathy, in harmony with their well-known national hospitality. St. Andrew's Hall, Glasgow, which accommodates 5,000 persons, was packed on the evening of January 29, and the great Synod Hall in Edinburgh witnessed the remarkable exhibition of the presentation of a testimonial by Dr. Blaikie of the university, signed by the official representatives of every denomination in Scotland.—Lady Isabel Somerset, in the New York Witness of March 1.

BIBLE LESSON.

STUDIES IN THE OLD TESTAMENT.

QUARTERLY REVIEW.—First Quarter, 1893.—March 26.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Thy Word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path.—Psalm 119:105.

[Open the Bible and read the lesson.]

DAILY READINGS.—M.—Ezra 1. T.—Ezra 3. W.—Hag. 2:1-9. T.—Zech. 4:1-10. F.—Neh. 1. S.—Neh. 8:1-12. S.—Neh. 13:15-22.

LESSON I.—Returning from the Captivity.—Ezra 1:1-11. Golden Text.—The Lord thy God will turn thy captivity, and have compassion upon thee.—Deuteronomy 30:3. Points of Interest.—The proclamation of Cyrus; the call for volunteers; the proclamation obeyed; the sacred vessels restored. Central Truth.—God is the Redeemer of his people. They that sow in tears shall reap in joy.

LESSON II.—Rebuilding the Temple.—Ezra 3:1-13. Golden Text.—They praised the Lord, because the foundation of the house of the Lord was laid.—Ezra 3:11. Points of Interest.—The first work of the returned exiles; days of thanksgiving; the workmen paid; the foundation laid. Central Truth.—It is a privilege and a joy to have part in building God's spiritual temple.

LESSON III.—Encouraging the People.—Haggai 2:1-9. Golden Text.—Except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it.—Psalm 127:1. Points of Interest.—The message of Haggai; the encouragement to continue; He is faithful who has promised. Central Truth.—Unnumbered blessings and assured success come to those who labor for the upbuilding of God's kingdom.

LESSON IV.—Joshua the High Priest.—Zechariah 3:1-10. Golden Text.—We have a great high priest, that is passed into the heavens, Jesus the Son of God.—Hebrews 4:14. Points of Interest.—Joshua and his adversary; Satan rebuked; the priesthood of Joshua; Christ's advent foretold. Central Truth.—Jesus, our great High Priest, brings to us the cleansing from sin necessary to prepare us for dwelling in his presence forever.

LESSON V.—The Spirit of the Lord.—Zechariah 4:1-10. Golden Text.—Not by might, nor by power, but by my Spirit, saith the Lord.—Zech. 4:6. Points of Interest.—The vision of the golden candlestick; the true source of power; the promise of completion. Central Truth.—We can do all things through Christ who strengtheneth us.

LESSON VI.—Dedicating the Temple.—Ezra 6:14-22. Golden Text.—I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go into the house of the Lord.—Psalm 122:1. Points of Interest.—The temple finished; the temple dedicated; the duty of separation; what affiliation hath Christ with Belial? Central Truth.—The temple was a type of the Christian church and of the soul separated from the world and consecrated to God.

LESSON VII.—Nehemiah's Prayer.—Nehemiah 1:1-11. Golden Text.—Lord, be thou my helper!—Psalm 30:10. Points of Interest.—The afflicted state of Jerusalem; Nehemiah's solemn address to God, his confession of sin, and his pleading of God's promises and mercies; prevailing prayer is definite prayer. Central Truth.—God helps his people in answer to prayer.

LESSON VIII.—Rebuilding the Wall.—Nehemiah 4:9-21. Golden Text.—We made our prayer unto our God, and set a watch against them.—Nehemiah 4:9. Points of Interest.—Setting a watch; watching and praying; meeting with both opposition and encouragement; rebuilding the wall, with arms in one hand and working with the other; working in close union with each other; working in families; men and women working zealously together. Central Truth.—The city of God is built through earnest zeal, careful planning, fighting, working, watching and praying in Christian love and union.

LESSON IX.—Reading the Law.—Nehemiah 8:1-12. Golden Text.—Open thou mine eyes, that I may behold wondrous things out of thy law.—Psalm 119:18. Points of Interest.—A wonderful Bible-class; the reading of the law; its exposition to the people; it leads to repentance; faith, also cometh by hearing the Word. Central Truth.—Blessed are they who study, and understand, and obey God's Word.

LESSON X.—Keeping the Sabbath.—Nehemiah 13:15-22. Golden Text.—Remember the Sabbath-day to keep it holy.—Exodus 20:8. Points of Interest.—The desecration of the Sabbath in that day; Nehemiah's expostulation with the civil authorities; his reform successfully carried out; a lesson for our own age and nation. Central Truth.—To keep the Sabbath holy pleases God and brings the blessing upon it and us.

LESSON XI.—Esther before the King.—Esther 4:10-17; 5:1-3. Golden Text.—Judge righteously, and plead the cause of the poor and needy.—Proverbs 31:9. Points of Interest.—The enmity of Haman towards Mordecai and the Jews; the order to destroy the Jews; Esther besought by Mordecai to interfere; her appeal to the King; the destruction of Haman; the Jews preserved. Central Truth.—"American women are the queens of our modern life, wielding a thousand times more power than Esther ever did or could. God evidently intends, through the Christian womanhood of the land, to deliver us from the saloon and other great national perils. Ought not every one to apply to herself Mordecai's question to Esther?"—Miss Flagg.

LESSON XII.—Timely Admonitions.—The Quarterly Temperance Lesson.—Proverbs 23:15-23. Golden Text.—And be not drunk with wine, wherein is excess; but be filled with the Spirit.—Ephesians 5:18. Points of Interest.—This lesson teaches us the way to a successful life; some things to be earnestly avoided, other things for which we should zealously seek. Central Truth.—We should shun sin and intemperance; seek after only the best gifts; watch and pray lest we enter into temptation; pray earnestly against the saloon influence, and vote in opposition to it as zealously as we pray for its downfall.

LESSON XIII.—This Review.—What have we learned from the quarter's lessons? Central Truth.—Faithful labors for God's kingdom are sure to win success for it at last.

RELIGIOUS NEWS.

CONGREGATIONAL.

—Rev. N. I. Rubinkam, Ph. D., has begun work as pastor of the University church, Chicago. Coming to Chicago in connection with the University Extension Department of the University of Chicago, his power as a preacher was quickly recognized, and his call to the University church followed.

—The Bowmanville, Ill., church recently closed a very successful series of special meetings, under the lead of Rev. J. D. McCord, State evangelist. Mr. McCord well sustained his reputation as a wise and successful leader.

—The Minutes for 1893 will report nine churches in Ohio with a membership in excess of 500: Oberlin First, 1,245; Second, 946; Columbus First, 897; Akron First, 895; Cleveland Euclid Avenue, 803; Mansfield First, 656; Cleveland Plymouth, 602; Toledo First, 571; Painesville, 504.

—Three of the original members of the Denmark, Iowa, church, which was organized in 1838, yet survive, and are still members of that church, two of them being able to attend the morning service and the Sunday-school almost every Sunday. This church is now one of 303, and these surviving members are in fellowship of more than 25,000 Congregational Christians in the State.

—Missouri has her statistics ready for the next Year Book. She reports one church, Central of St. Louis, as added and four dropped. Twenty-four of the eighty-five are without pastors. Church members, 8,294; three of every eight are male; 619 have been added by confession and 525 by letter; total, 1,174, against 888 removals. Baptisms count 209 adult and 223 infant. There are 11,213 Sunday-school members, who gave $2,783 in benevolence. The Christian Endeavor Society has fifty-seven chapters, with 2,182 members. The total benevolence of the State was $46,992.

—Wayzata, Minn., has been wrought up to considerable excitement over an attempt to introduce a saloon. A few years ago the town had three saloons and no church. Now it has one church and no saloon. The citizens will probably keep their record undiminished.

LUTHERAN.

—The call for a special meeting of the board of directors of Wittenberg College, to be held Tuesday, April 4th, at 2 P. M., has been issued by the president and secretary of the board. The only business to be transacted, as specified in the request for the meeting, is "to hear testimony and to take action on the charges preferred against Rev. L. A. Gotwald, D. D., professor of practical theology".

—The General Council reports $14,473 received for foreign missions during the year ending September 30th, 1892. The India Mission embraces 4 principal stations and 149 out-stations, with 4 male and 6 female missionaries, 2 native pastors and 91 teachers, evangelists, etc. The number of communicants is 1,205 and of adherents 3,388. In the 84 schools 1,465 pupils are receiving instruction.

—In the Missouri Synod, during the year 1891, there were collected $25,678.01 through missionary festivals alone. Besides this sum, and simply by means of collections in the congregations, there were raised, during the same year, for home missions, $34,214.94; for foreign missions, $16,992.38; for immigrant missions, $1,666 14, making a total of $78,554.47.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL.

—The celebration of the beginning of Methodism in the State of Illinois in 1793 is to be celebrated this year with appropriate ceremonies. The date is to be announced hereafter.

—Mr. Frederick H. Rindge gave $49,000 to Epworth M. E. church, Cambridge, Mass., which was dedicated on Washington's birthday.

—Pastor T. J. Wood preached a sermon at the twenty-ninth anniversary of the Knights of Pythias of Colchester, Ill.

—Sunday and Monday, Feb. 26 and 27, will be remembered in Chicago as days in which was held the largest convention in the interest of the Freedmen's Aid and Southern Education Society, and with the largest results financially of any similar gathering since the organization of that society.

—Dr. Carradine, in writing about his great revival, says: "The history of First M. E. church proves that holiness solves every problem in the church."

—The total income of the Roman Catholic propaganda, in 1891, with all the world to collect from, was $1,271,947. The income of the missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church for 1892 was $1,269,483. Only about $10,000 of this came from foreign missions. An increase of $3,000 more in income and the Methodist missionary society will pass the Roman propaganda.

—The Methodist churches of various name, all over Australia, are conferring with a view to union. In Sidney the representatives of the several bodies have resolved, by practically unanimous votes, that union is desirable. The name is to be the United Church of Australia.

UNITED PRESBYTERIAN.

—A dispatch from Freeport, Ill., March 6, says: "Miss Sadie Spielman, eighteen years old, has been lying in a trance since last Thursday, and her condition resembles very strongly that of Miss Grace Gridley, of Amboy, Ill., who was in a trance for a number of months. The story is that Miss Spielman was at the altar during the revival services at the United Brethren church last Thursday night, and that she confessed religion. Shortly afterwards she fell into a trance in the church and was taken to her home in a sleigh. All efforts to revive her have been fruitless, and local physicians are unable to account for her strange condition. She lies on her back on a lounge, and her condition is extremely critical; her eyes are closed and her mouth partly opened. She takes but little nourishment, and it is with difficulty that it can be given her."

WHEATON COLLEGE MISSION BAND.

—In 1890 some of the students of Wheaton College organized themselves into "The Student's Volunteer Mission Band of Wheaton College". That they might do something to help on the cause while they were preparing themselves for direct work in foreign lands, they resolved to raise as much money as possible and send it to the missionary boards of various churches—sending $25.00 at a time. A few days ago a letter from their treasurer, Miss Martha Jenks, who, by the way, is a member of our church, inclosed a draft for that amount for our board, a like sum having been already sent to the boards of five other churches. Besides this, they have purchased a missionary library consisting of about thirty volumes, maps, etc. In behalf of the board, I wish to express thanks to this mission band, and especially to Miss Jenks, through whose influence, very largely, it was secured for us. I also wish to commend the example of these students to the students in our own colleges. Our colleges ought to be centers of missionary zeal and activity. The first foreign missionary organization in America was at Williams College, at whose head was Samuel J. Mills, a student. We are glad to note that a professorship of missions has been established in the Chicago University.—Christian Conservator, March 8, (U. B.)

MISCELLANEOUS.

—Mr. Moody finds young Irishmen from the old country so especially valuable, when trained for evangelistic toil, that in closing his work in that island recently he offered to depart from his usual rule of requiring candidates to bear a portion of the expense of their training; and if twenty-five young men were sent from Ireland, he would put them through their course in the Chicago Institute without any charge.

—The Free church calls on the young of the 1,100 congregations to supply $10,000 for a hospital at Tiberias upon the Sea of Galilee, in the very region where the Great Healer wrought so many wondrous cures!

—The Y. M. C. A. at Jerusalem is reported as showing signs of much activity. The secretary, Mr. F. T. Ellis, is establishing associations at Joppa and Nazareth.

"WORTH A GUINEA A BOX."

BEECHAM'S PILLS

CURE SICK HEADACHE, Disordered Liver, etc.

They Act Like Magic on the Vital Organs, Regulating the Secretions, restoring long lost Complexion, bringing back the Keen Edge of Appetite, and arousing with the ROSEBUD OF HEALTH the whole physical energy of the human frame. These Facts are admitted by thousands, in all classes of Society. Largest Sale in the World.

Covered with a Tasteless & Soluble Coating. Of all druggists. Price 23 cents a Box. New York Depot, 365 Canal St.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

CHICAGO.

Carter H. Harrison, who was mayor of Chicago for eight years, has been nominated for re-election by the Democrats. The Labor party has nominated ex-Mayor DeWitt Cregier for re-election. The Republicans favor the nomination of Lyman J. Gage for mayor.

The number of saloon-keepers prosecuted by the Chicago Citizens' League during February was sixty-four, and the charges against them numbered ninety-four; sixty for selling liquor to minors, twenty-six for selling liquor to drunkards, and eight for keeping disorderly houses. The fines and costs imposed amounted to $945.

Aid is solicited for the Chicago Relief and Aid Society. In January 3,515 applications were made for relief; and of the 4,625 made in February 3,500 were approved, the society paying out $4,952 in cash, besides giving other relief.

James J. Hastings has been appointed postmaster at the World's Fair. His headquarters will be in the Administration Building at Jackson Park.

A number of Evanston theological students have been discovered stealing metallic letters from business signs of citizens and appropriating them to their own use. Arrests and fines followed, and the nuisance has been checked.

The strike of the engineers of the Toledo, Ann Arbor & North Michigan railroad is not likely to affect Chicago, as the line has no connection with the roads coming into this city.

The whisky trust investigation, instituted by the Illinois Legislature, began in Chicago last Friday at the Sherman House.

Davis & Co., one of the greatest manufacturing concerns of Great Britain, will establish a plant for the manufacture of galvanized ironware at or near Chicago. Hammond will be the favored spot, in all probability. The firm will employ at least 1,000 men.

The Supreme Court of the United States refused the request of the attorneys of the Illinois Central Railroad Company to reopen the Lake Front case, and directed the clerk to notify those gentlemen of its decision. The Lake Front is finally out of the clutches of the great railway corporation.

An entire German lager beer brewery has been shipped to this country for exhibition at the World's Fair.

The International Brewers' Congress will be held in Chicago the first of June.

Mrs. Harriet Hubbard Ayer, a lady well-known in Chicago, has been declared insane by New York physicians.

After several months of neglect the Chinese residents of Chicago are beginning to apply for certificates under the government regulations of May, 1892. Up to date not a dozen of the 2,500 Chinamen in the city have taken out the necessary papers. More activity is now manifest in this direction.

President Thos. W. Palmer, of the National World's Fair Commission, was interviewed by a reporter in New York City, to whom he said: "I see no reason why the Exposition should be closed next October; that is, I see no reason for closing the fair if the exhibitors are willing to remain another year, and the people want it to remain open."

Sunday, June 11, 1893, has been set apart for temperance Sunday in Chicago. This follows the week of World's Temperance Congresses, and the ablest temperance speakers in the world will be in the city.

COUNTRY.

The new United States Senate (Fifty-third Congress) contains 38 Republicans, 45 Democrats, 4 Populists, and 1 doubtful. Among them are 4 Roman Catholics, the largest number of that denomination that ever held seats in the Senate at once.

The prospects for early prohibition of the liquor traffic in Manitoba are flattering. The legislature has accepted the proposal of the local government to memorialize the Dominion government asking for power to pass a prohibitory law. The vote stood 28 to 10.

(Continued on 16th page.)

SUBSCRIPTION LETTERS.

The following have made remittances of money to the Cynosure from March 6 to 11:

T Ruth, J Lindsay, W S Titus, J T Osborn, S S Finley, Mrs M Good, A A Johnston, R Peebles, J Marks, J Forbes, Rev J P Richards, H M Woodford, T H Nichols, Rev J Excell, J Shup, F W Moore, Mrs M R Berry, J M Adair, E A Whiting, Mrs E F Enlow, Rev J J Smith, C N Peterson, Mrs J McDonald, Rev M D Doermann, C Coleman, S Jackson, F Byrers, H S Curtis, Mrs H Rumery, E Houchin, J Bradford, J Hodson, Mrs I A Hurlburt, J Stahl G Shryock.

People Are Not Slow.

They Quickly Recognize Genuine Merit.

The people will not buy, over and over and over again, an article which is of little or no value, however extravagantly it may be advertised.

Beginning with a small local sale in a retail drug store, the business of Hood's Sarsaparilla has steadily increased, until there is scarcely a village or hamlet in the United States where it is unknown, while without any advertising on the part of its proprietors in foreign countries, there are constantly increasing demands for this medicine from across the seas.

To-day Hood's Sarsaparilla stands at the head in the medicine world, admired in prosperity and envied in merit by thousands of would-be competitors. It has a larger sale than any other medicine before the American public, and probably greater than all other sarsaparillas and blood purifiers combined.

Such success proves merit. If you are sick, is it not the medicine for you to try?

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO.

Wheat—Spring No. 2.....	73 @ 75
Winter No. 2.....	64 1/2 @ 73 1/2
Corn—No. 2.....	41 1/2 @ 41 1/2
Oats—No. 2.....	35 1/2 @ 37
Rye—No. 2.....	52 @ 54
Bran per ton.....	12 50 @ 13 00
Hay—Timothy.....	9 50 @ 12 00
Butter, medium to best....	16 @ 27
Cheese.....	03 @ 12
Beans.....	1 85 @ 2 05
Eggs.....	16 @ 16 1/2
Seeds—Timothy, $ 100 lbs. 2 00	@ 4 34
Flax.....	1 20 @ 1 21 1/2
Broom corn.....	02 @ 08 1/2
Potatoes, per bu.....	63 @ 75
Hides—Green to dry flint....	03 1/2 @ 09
Lumber—Common.....	10 00 @ 13 00
Wool (washed).....	16 @ 25
Cattle—Choice to extra.....	5 70 @ 6 25
Common to good.....	4 25 @ 4 95
Hogs.....	7 50 @ 8 00
Sheep.....	f 25 @ 5 40

NEW YORK.

Wheat.....	77 @ 77 1/2
Corn.....	52 1/2 @ 54 1/2
Oats.....	40 1/2 @ 44 1/2
Eggs.....	18 @ 23 1/2
Butter.....	13 @ 25
Wool.....	13 @ 25

KANSAS CITY.

Cattle.....	2 00 @ 4 25
Hogs.....	5 25 @ 7 05
Sheep.....	2 95 @ 4 50

SECRET SOCIETIES CONDEMNED.

BY GREAT MEN IN THE STATE.

Charles Francis Adams: "A more perfect agent for the devising and execution of conspiracies against church and state could scarcely have been conceived."

Thaddeus Stevens: "By Freemasonry, trial by jury is transformed into an engine of despotism and Masonic fraud."

Judge Pliny Merrick (a seceded Mason). —If ever a Chapter or a lodge shall establish laws in conflict with those of the state the Masonic requisition is obedience to the lodge and conflict with the state; and if a member hesitates at this humiliating obedience, his heart must be "torn from his bosom," his "vitals plucked from his body," and Masonic vengeance, not satisfied with this bloody immolation, denies a resting place to the motionless remains, but they are to be "burnt to ashes and scattered to the winds."

Samuel C. Pomeroy, in an address, 1883:—"There may be a broad distinction between the good and the bad in secret societies, but as they all alike have oath bound obligations to complete oblivion of all they do or say, I have no means of judging the good from the bad. So I turn away from them all to the great Teacher who said, "In secret have I said nothing."

Judge Daniel H. Whitney, (renouncing Mason): While professed ministers of the Gospel and members of churches are permitted to associate themselves with these organizations, the task to apply a remedy will be a hopeless one; and just so long will the declaration made to me not long since by a high Mason and a worthy man prove true, that "a Masonic lodge is the strangest medley of priests and murderers—deacons and whoremasters—church members and gamblers—decent men and loafers—drunkards and rowdies, that the All Seeing-Eye ever looked down upon."

Hon. Samuel Dexter, in an open letter to the Grand Master of Mass., 1798: "If there be no very important reason for upholding Masonry at a moment like the present, there is a reason against it. The system of the destroyers of human virtue and happiness is to undermine in the dark the castle that cannot be carried by storm. Secret agency has overthrown all the republics of Europe, and an extended, secret, leveling, self-created society, without any valuable object of pursuit, and embracing bad characters as well as good, cannot be the subject of approbation of an anxious patriot."

Hon. Ezra Butler, ex-Governor of Vermont:—One Masonic obligation requires that a Mason shall vote for a brother in preference to any other person of equal qualifications. Is not this political Masonry? The Masons in Vermont are about one-twentieth part of the freemen, and they hold about three-fourths of all the important offices in the State. Is this owing to their superior fitness, or to political Masonry?

William H. Burdett: "Before I would place my hand between the hands of other men in a secret lodge, order, class, or council, and, bending on my knee before them, enter into combination with them for any object, personal or political, good or bad, I would pray to God that that hand and that knee might be paralyzed, and that I might become an object of pity and even the mockery of my fellow-men."

Wendell Phillips: "I wish you success most heartily in your efforts to arouse the community to the danger of secret societies. They are a great evil; entirely out of place in a republic, and no patriot should join or uphold them. Considering the great forces which threaten the welfare of the nation in the next thirty years, and how readily and efficiently they can use any secret organizations, such should not be allowed to exist."

George Washington's Farewell Address: "The very idea of the power and the right of the people to establish government presupposes the duty of every individual to obey the established government. All obstructions to the execution of the laws, all combinations and associations, under whatever plausible character, with the real design to direct, control, counteract, or awe the regular deliberation and action of the constituted authorities, are destructive of this fundamental principle, and of fatal tendency."

Standard Works

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Associat'n

221 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois

TERMS:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order as a guaranty that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums. A liberal discount to dealers.

Revised Odd-fellowship Illustrated. The complete revised ritual of the Lodge, Encampment and Rebekah (ladies) degrees, profusely illustrated, and guaranteed to be strictly accurate; with a sketch of the origin, history and character of the order, over one hundred foot-note quotations from standard authorities, showing the character and teachings of the order, and an analysis of each degree by ex-President J. Blanchard. This ritual corresponds exactly with the "Charge Books" furnished by the Sovereign Grand Lodge. In cloth, $1.00; paper cover, 50cts.

Anti-masonic Sermons and Addresses. Composed of "Masonry a Work of Darkness;" the Sermons of Messrs. Cross, William McNary, Dow and Sarver, the two addresses of President Blanchard, and the addresses of President H. H. George, Prof. J. G. Carson and Rev. M. S. Drury; "Thirteen Reasons Why a Christian cannot be a Freemason," "Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion," and "Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate?" 287 pages; cloth $1.00.

Secret Societies Illustrated. Containing the signs, grips, passwords, emblems, etc., of Freemasonry (Blue Lodge and to the fourteenth degree of the York rite), Adoptive Masonry, Revised Odd-fellowship, Good Templarism, the Temple of Honor, the United Sons of Industry, Knights of Pythias and the Grange, with affidavits, etc. Over 250 cuts, 99 pages, paper cover. 25cts each.

Between Two Opinions: OR THE QUESTION OF THE HOUR. By Miss E. E. Flagg, author of "Little People," "A Sunny Life," etc., etc. Everyone who loves to read a good story, chaste and elegant in expression, pure in thought, interesting in narrative, should read this book upon the power of secret societies in politics, and the remedy. 389 pages, cloth, postpaid, $1.00.

Sermon on Odd-fellowship and other secret societies, by Rev. J. Sarver, pastor Evangelical Lutheran church. This is a very clear argument against secretism of all forms, and the duty to disfellowship Odd-fellows, Freemasons, Knights of Pythias and Grangers, is clearly shown by their confessed character as found in their own publications. 10cts each.

Five Rituals Bound Together. "Odd-fellowship Illustrated" (old work), "Knights of Pythias Illustrated," "Good Templars Illustrated," "Exposition of the Grange," and "Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic," are sold bound together in cloth for $1.00.

Eminent Men on Secret Societies. Composed of "Washington Opposed to Secret Societies," "Judge Whitney's Defence," "The Mystic Tie," "Narratives and Arguments," the "Anti-mason's Scrap-Book" and "Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry as Proved in the New Berlin Trials." 324 pages, cloth, $1.00.

Holden with Cords. OR THE POWER OF THE SECRET EMPIRE. By E. E. Flagg, author of "A Sunny Life," etc. This is a thrillingly interesting story, accurately true to life because mainly a narration of historical facts. In cloth, $1.00; in paper, 50 cents.

College Secret Societies. Their customs, character and the efforts for their suppression. By H. L. Kellogg. Containing the opinions of many prominent college presidents and others, and a full account of the murder of Mortimer Leggett. 25cts each.

Rituals and Secrets Illustrated. Composed of "Temple of Honor Illustrated," "Adoptive Masonry Illustrated," "United Sons of Industry Illustrated," and "Secret Societies Illustrated." $1.00 each.

Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic, with signs of recognition, pass words, etc., and the ritual of the Machinists' and Blacksmiths' Union. (The two bound together.) 10 cents each.

Secret Societies. A discussion of their character and claims by Rev. David McDill, Pres. J. Blanchard and Rev. Edward Beecher. In cloth, 35cts each; paper covers, 15cts each.

Good Templarism Illustrated. A full and accurate exposition of the degrees of the lodge, territory and council. 25cts each.

Odd-fellowship: ITS HISTORY AND WORK. By President J. Blanchard. A new pamphlet with cover. Postpaid, 5 cts.

HOME AND HEALTH.

(From the Journal of Hygiene, for March, edited by Dr. M. L. Holbrook, New York City)

DANGER FROM CELULOID COMBS.

A woman stood in close proximity to a gas-jet in order to read a paper, when suddenly she perceived a scent of something burning in the room, and turning she noticed in the looking-glass that the comb in her hair had caught fire from the heat of the flame. It was only after her hair was singed and her hands and face burned that she pulled the comb from her hair. Her wounds were of such a nature as to demand her removal to the hospital.

The second case was that of a woman coming in close contact with a light. She heard a cracking sound and saw a bright light above her; and, raising her hand to her head, succeeded in pulling out the burning comb in pieces, with the singed hair attached to it.

The third case of similar nature occurred to a young lady while leaning over a kerosene lamp to blow it out. In attempting to do this the comb in her hair caught fire, and she almost lost her entire hair from the upward-shooting flame.

Celuloid combs are highly inflammable, and should never be worn in the hair by women when there is the slightest danger of their being exposed to a heat sufficient to set them on fire.

LIME JUICE BETTER THAN VINEGAR.

Lime juice is very similar to lemon juice in its nature, and is sold in the market by the bottle. It is generally acknowledged to be an antidote to scurvy, and by English law it is rendered compulsory for every ship to take on board lime or lemon juice. For the Navy, the Admiralty use lime juice only. The constant use of lime or lemon juice of good quality will greatly discourage a variety of complaints—such as tumor, cancer, dyspepsia, bilious disorders, etc., which the present luxurious state of living on liberal flesh, alcoholic diet, without its corrective aid, greatly fosters. This vegetable acid should be placed on the dinner table instead of the vinegar bottle, and as regularly as salt; while, as an ingredient for sauce, for almost every kind of food, it has no equal. As a salad dressing, to mix with oil, it is more wholesome than vinegar.

PROMOTING INTELLECTUAL VIGOR.

Dr. Lander Brunton has made a discovery of doubtful value. It is nothing less than the secret of how to have ideas at will. One night, after a long day's work, this eminent physician was called upon to write an article immediately. He sat down with pen, ink and paper before him, but not a single idea came into his head; not a single word could he write. Lying back, he then soliloquized: "The brain is the same it was yesterday, and it worked then; why will it not work to day?" Then it occurred to him that the day before he was not so tired, and that probably the circulation was a little brisker. He next considered the experiments on the connection between brain circulation and mental activity, and concluded that if the blood would not come to the brain he would bring the brain down to the blood. So, laying his head flat upon the table, his ideas began to flow and his pen to run across the paper." By and by Dr. Brunton thought, "I am getting on so well I may sit up now; but the moment that I raised my head my mind became an utter blank; so I put my head down again flat upon the table and finished my article in that position." We have tried this experiment several times, but it does not succeed with us. Being an unnatural attitude we do not believe it has any great value.

NOTES.

Stockings.—A very good way of using cotton stocking legs, when the feet are worn out, is to knit new feet of woolen and sew the two together. With woolen drawers coming to the ankle, the stocking leg may well be of cotton. If the joining is nicely made, the seam will not be troublesome. This method has been

Rev. W. R. Puffer
Of Richford, Vt.

I Vote for Hood's Forty Years in the Ministry

Rheumatism, Dyspepsia and Insomnia—Great Benefit From Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"I have been taking Hood's Sarsaparilla for four or five months, and am satisfied that it is a very excellent remedy. I have been troubled with rheumatism more or less for a number of years. My back and hips, and indeed my whole body at times, have been afflicted. The rheumatism has been especially severe in my right arm between the elbow and shoulder, which has been so lame that I sometimes feared

I Should Lose the Use of it entirely. I was in this condition when I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, but I had not taken more than a bottle or two when I began to feel better, and when I had taken four bottles, my rheumatism had entirely left me. I have been more free from rheumatism this season than for years. Besides the rheumatism, I, like many others of sedentary habits—for I have been a minister of the Methodist Episcopal church forty years—have been troubled with dyspepsia, but while taking the medicine my

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

Appetite has Been Good, food digested well and I have gained several pounds. I have also been troubled with insomnia, but since taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, sleep much better." REV. W. R. PUFFER, Richford, Vt.

N. B. Be sure to get Hood's Sarsaparilla.

HOOD'S PILLS cure liver ills, constipation, biliousness, jaundice, sick headache, indigestion.

DO YOU WANT

To receive, read, distribute and otherwise aid in the circulation of a large number of Holiness and Reform papers and magazines? If so, send me a SILVER dime, and your name and address will be printed on the Holiness and Reform Mail Exchange List, which is sent to all publishers of holiness and reform literature, who will mail you sample papers and magazines. Write name and address PLAINLY. Address, J. H. PADGETT, Printer, Ennis, Texas.

tried, with most satisfactory results. Cashmere stocking legs may also be added to in this way, if desired.

Veal Croquettes.—Chop veal very fine, add a very little chopped onion and parsley. For two cupfuls veal take one-half a cup of milk, mix with two teaspoonfuls flower and butter the size of a walnut. Cook this until it thickens, then stir into the meat. Roll into balls, dip in egg and bread crumbs, and fry like crullers.

Tapioca Cream.—Two tablespoons of tapioca dissolved in water till very soft. Yolks of three eggs beaten and sweetened to taste. Boil one quart milk; when cool stir in the tapioca and a teaspoonful of flour mixed with a little water. Beat the whites light and mix all together. Let boil ten minutes and pour into molds.

The days of colds and Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup are at hand. Better buy a bottle.

Ho! Traveller, take BEECHAM'S PILLS with you.

A Little Idea

FOR WOMEN.

The Woman's Publishing Company of Minneapolis, Minn., publishers of "The Housekeeper" paid 5 per cent as its first semi-annual dividend, Jan. 2,

1893. All stock fully paid up before April 1 will participate in the next semi-annual dividend of at least 5 per cent which will be declared

While You next. A few shares of the capital stock of this company, par value $10 each, will make a permanent paying present or investment. A handsome brochure telling all about it is sent free on application.

Think About It.

The St. Louis Sermon

Are Secret Societies a Blessing or a Curse?

An Address by Rev. B. Carradine D. D., Pastor of the Centenary M. E. Church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891.

W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's too."

A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover. Sent postpaid 25 copies $1.00. Single copy 5 cents.

Address - - W. I. PHILLIPS,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

The Blue Bell.

The Mountain Daisy.

Daily Text books for a year. Dainty little souvenirs, only 1½ inches square, elegantly and neatly bound in leather, with silk marker, gilt edges, round corners, each net 25
Illuminated paper covers, each 10

Birthday Memorial Text-Book. An Autograph Text-book. Text for each day and space for autographs. 32mo., Cloth..... 25

Daily Comfort in Four Fold Links.

Printed in beautiful large, clear letters, easily discernible at a distance of 10 to 15 feet. Mounted on rollers, with cord, to hang up in usual style. 31 pages, size 14x22in. 75

The Secret of Success; or

Finger Posts on the Highway of Life, by John T. Dale; introduction by Hon. John V. Farwell. 416 pages, 12mo., full cloth.....$1.50
A book for the aspiring. Written in a fascinating style and full of incidents and illustrations which hold the interest of the reader spell-bound.
"It may be true, as has been said, that 'books are sold, not bought;' but this, at any rate, is a book which, if brought to one's attention, he will wish to own.
Such a book in every intelligent family in the land—how much (in showing so clearly, so wisely, so persuasively the secret of success,) it might do toward helping to solve the countless aching, burning questions of the time."—The Advance.

Prof. Henry Drummond's Booklets.

The Perfected Life. (The greatest need of the world.) Bound in chaste style, vellum paper..... 20

Love the Supreme Gift. (The greatest thing in the world.) Uniform with Perfected Life. 20

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

The New World of Central Africa.

By Mrs. H. Grattan Guinness, with a history of the first Christian mission on the Congo. 12mo., 530 pages with maps, portraits and numerous illustrations, $2.00
"A conscientious piece of work, and gives a very clear account of what has been done by the Protestant missions to evangelize the barbarous races of Central Africa.
He who wants to know what missionary effort means in these days may well learn from this volume. * * * The reader who goes carefully through will have a good bird's eye view of recent events in Africa, with all the results of modern travel. * * * The work contains solid information of use to all who are interested in the future of this wonderful country. The many illustrations throw light upon savage customs and costumes."—Graphic.

in the Far East.

Letters from China by Geraldine Guinness, edited by her sister, with introduction by Rev. J. Hudson Taylor. Very fully illustrated. Quarto cloth,$1.50

This book was scarcely written—it was lived! for the breath of life is in it from cover to cover. * * * We have never read so wonderful an account of successful missionary effort.—Presbyterian

We easily understand how this edition is the fifteenth thousand. It is a very remarkable book.—The Golden Rule.

Frances Ridley Havergall's Poems.

Author's edition complete. The only unabridged authorized edition published in America.
1. 12mo., 880 pages, cloth, beveled.....2.00
2. Beveled boards, full gilt.....2.50
3. Half white vellum, gilt top, uncut edges,2.50
4. French morocco padded, roll red under gold edges.....4.00
5. Persian calf, padded and embossed, gilt roll and r. g.5.00
6. Crushed levant, elegant.....6.00

7. Full German calf, padded, elegant, gilt, rd. cors.....7.50
Miss Havergall stands without peer in the English language in the department of religious poetry.

"The book in paper and binding is all that could be desired."—Publishers' Weekly.

Small Books by Miss Havergall.

● Bound in elegant illuminated board covers.
Kept for the Master's Use. ● 20
My King; Daily Thoughts for the King's Children..... 20

Works of Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

Sermon Notes. Covering all the Bible from Genesis to Revelation. 4 vols.....4.00
Feathers for Arrows. A volume of Choice Extracts, 12mo., cloth.....1.00
Twelve Striking Sermons..... 50
Twelve Soul Winning Sermons..... 50
Twelve Sermons on the Resurrection..... 50
Twelve New Year Sermons..... 50
Twelve Christmas Sermons..... 30

Notes by C. H. M.

On Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy.
Mr. D. L. Moody says of these books: "They have been to me a very key to the Scriptures."
Deuteronomy is issued in two volumes, the others complete in one volume each.
Separate volumes may be had if desired.
The complete set in six volumes, covering over 2,300 pages, is offered at the reduced price of 75c per vol. or $4.50 per set

A. L. O. E. Intermediate Library.

Selected from the numerous productions of this world-renowned writer as being those of rare merit. 12 vols., 12mo., cloth elegant, each 75c; set.....9.00
An Eden in England. Life in Eagle's Nest. Ned Franks. White Bear's Den. Sheer Off. Fairy Spider's Web. Braid of Chords. Lake in the Woods. Silver Keys. Seven Perils Passed. Grace Vernon. Hartley Brothers.

The Jessica Series. By Hessa Stretton. 6 vols., handsome bindings, cloth 50c each, or per set.....2.10
Jessica's First Prayer. Friends till Death. No Place Like Home. A Miserable Christmas Under the Old Roof. A Night and a Day.

A. L. O. E. Junior Library. Adapted to the young folks. 7 vols., 12mo., cloth, each 60c; the set.....4.20
Claremont Tales. A Wreath of Smoke. Christian Conquests. Pomegranates from Tales Illustrative of Punjab. Parables. Little Bullets from The Battle of Life. Batala.

The Hessa Stretton Series. 8 vols., elegant cloth bound, per set.....4.80
Cassy. King's Servant. Lost Gip. Alone in London. Max Kromer. Little Meg's Children. Storm of Life. Crew of the Dolphin.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

FARM NOTES.

FEEDING LAMBS AND PIGS

is the title of Bulletin 47, just issued by the Experiment Station, at Cornell, New York. The work is indeed interesting, and summarized is as follows:

1. Ensilage fed with hay to lambs gave equally as good results as where all hay had been fed; and the ensilage had the advantage of being the cheaper food, four pounds of ensilage being equivalent to one pound of hay.

2. Lambs fed on ensilage drank less water than lambs fed wholly on dry food, but the lambs fed ensilage consumed more water in the food and the water drank than those fed dry feed.

3. Where nitrogenous and carbonaceous rations were compared as food for lambs, the individuals of the lot of lambs receiving the nitrogenous ration made a more uniform gain in live weight than the lot fed a carbonaceous ration.

4. Results have not been uniform as regards the growth of pigs where carbonaceous and nitrogenous rations have been compared. In one experiment there was no marked difference in gain in live weight, and no marked difference in the chemical composition of the meat. The results from another experiment showed a marked difference in the gain in live weight and also a great difference in the relative proportion of fat and lean meat.

ABOUT HENS.

Keep hens well, but not too fat, or you will get no eggs. But they want plenty to eat and good water. If you have it, give them milk to drink. Barley, oats, wheat, or a mixture of all three, makes a good morning feed. If thrown down in straw, where they will have to scratch for it, it is good exercise for them. At night a good feed of shelled corn is best for them in cold weather, as it is more heating and will keep them happy till morning if they have a good place to roost in.

Don't let hens on the farm roost wherever they can—in the barn, in sheds, or in trees—but make them a good place with plenty of low roosts and room for all without crowding. It does not matter about an air-tight place. Hens are not easily frozen. A place with plenty of air, but where the cold winds will not strike in, and where the snow will not sift in, is all that is needed.

Hens are a neglected race on many farms, but with the least care they will pay as well as anything on a farm. From a flock of forty we sold eggs to amount to $40 in 1892, besides $20 worth of chickens, and had all we wanted to use, both of chickens and eggs. In February and March we sold a dozen eggs for every day in each month, besides all that we used in a family of four—and that was a good many.

It pays to have hens on a farm in more ways than one. Our hens are mostly Plymouth Rocks, with a few Light Brahmas and Black Leghorns. Plymouth Rocks are our favorites for both eggs and market.—Selected.

One spring we threw away some partially-decayed onions, which the hens ate. Shortly after we found some eggs so strongly flavored with onions that we could not use them. We feed our cabbage and apple parings, which leave no disagreeable flavor. Once when moving we packed a few eggs in a can containing coffee, where they were left a short time, and when used they tasted very much like coffee.

We have always had good success in keeping poultry, as our hens lay nearly or quite the year round. We never keep old hens, as there is no profit in them. We usually exchange eggs with our neighbors, as we think they do better. We now have mostly Plymouth Rocks, as they lay well, and there is something of them to eat or sell.—Mrs. C. T. Cummins.

Last summer all at once I found the hen-house all swarming with lice. I used kerosene and everything I could read of or was told to do without an apparent diminishing of the pests. Some half-grown chickens died, and I had a mind to burn the whole establishment.

Ayer's Pills

the best remedy for Constipation, Jaundice, Headache, Biliousness, and Dyspepsia,

Easy to Take

sure to cure all disorders of the Stomach, Liver, and Bowels.

Every Dose Effective

AMERICAN HANDBOOK

AND

CITIZEN MANUAL.

BY

MANLOVE N. BUTLER.

CONTENTS:—Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement; Real Prohibition; Poor Man's Bible, and All-Around Reformers. Over 200 pages

Paper, single copy 40c.; per doz. 35c.

CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

LE CARON, THE SPY.

A STARTLING REVELATION.

More enticing than a romance, filled with the strongest evidences of the power and evil of sworn secret societies, and plainly revealing the danger to any government growing out of political conspiracies, is the

"Autobiography of Henry LeCaron, the Spy."

who was for years a Clan-na-Gael Center, a Fenian Commander, and a Land-League Orator, but always a British Detective. The book covers his twenty-five years' experiences in this secret service, and contains 205 pages.

Price, in paper covers, 50 cents.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
WM. I. PHILLIPS, Treasurer,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

About this time a friend of ours from Ohio visited us. He said we should take boughs from elder bushes and strew them all over the floor, hang them on the walls and place them in the nest boxes. I did so, and saw no more lice. I think the way they got so plenty was from Phebe birds being allowed to nest in the roof of the hen-house. At any rate, I shall not allow them to nest there another year.—N. Y. Witness.

COWS.

Cows that are fed on a level floor get down on their knees to clean up their food, causing great callous bunches to grow on them. As a remedy, I lay down a 2x4-inch joist three feet from the cow; on this lay boards, making an inclined plane. This obviates all the difficulty.

Why is it that people use Salvation Oil? Answer: Because it is the best liniment.

If the care of the hair were made a part of a lady's education, we should not see so many gray heads, and the use of Hall's Hair Renewer would be unnecessary.

STANDARD WORKS

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Association.

221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

TERMS:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order as a guaranty that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums. A liberal discount to dealers.

ON FREEMASONRY.

Freemasonry Illustrated. A complete exposition of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter. Profusely illustrated. Complete work of 640 pages, in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 75 cents. First three degrees (376 pages), in cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Knight Templarism Illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the Council and Commandery. A book of 341 pages. In cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.

Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated. The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all the Masonic Rites, and are fully and accurately given in "Freemasonry Illustrated." Vol. I. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3rd to 18th inclusive. Vol. II. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprised the degrees from 19th to 33rd inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive. Price per volume, paper cover, 50 cents each. In cloth, $1.00 each.

Hand-Book of Freemasonry. By E. Ronayne, Past Master of Keystone Lodge No. 639, Chicago. Gives the complete standard ritual of the first three degrees of Freemasonry. New edition, 274 pages. Bound flexible cloth covers, 50 cents.

Freemasonry Exposed. By Capt. William Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book republished. 25 cents each.

Adoptive Masonry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the five degrees of Female Freemasonry, by Thomas Lowe. 20 cents each.

Light on Freemasonry. By Elder D. Bernard. In cloth, $1.50 each. Paper, 75 cents each.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Bad Worship Identical, explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the lodge. Bound in fine cloth, 420 pages, 75 cents.

Mah-Hah-Bone; comprises the Hand Book, Master's Carpet and Freemasonry at a glance. Bound in one volume. In cloth, 539 pages, $1.00.

History of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. As prepared by seven committees of citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan. 25 cents each.

Ex-President John Quincy Adams' LETTERS on the Nature of Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties. Price, cloth, $1.00. Paper, 35 cents.

Hon. Thurlow Weed on the Morgan Abduction. This is the legally attested statement of this eminent Christian journalist and statesman concerning the unlawful seizure and confinement of Capt. Morgan in Canandaigua jail, his removal to Fort Niagara and subsequent drowning in Lake Ontario. 5 cents each.

The Broken Seal; or Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. By Samuel D. Greene. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry, as proved in court in the New Berlin trials. The New Berlin trials began in the attempt of Freemasons to prevent public initiations by seceding Masons. These trials were held at New Berlin, Chenango Co., N. Y., April 13 and 14, 1831, and General Augustus C. Welsh, sheriff of the county, and other adhering Freemasons swore to the truthful revelation of the oaths and penalties. 10 cents each.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy. Address of Pres. J. Blanchard. This is a most convincing argument against the lodge. 5 cents each.

Grand Lodge Masonry. Its relation to civil government and the Christian religion. By Pres. J. Blanchard. The un-Christian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is proved from the highest Masonic authorities. 5 cents each.

General Washington Opposed to SECRET SOCIETIES. This is a re-publication of Governor Joseph Ritner's "Vindication of General Washington from the Stigma of Adherence to Secret Societies," communicated to the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania, March 8, 1837, at their special request. To this is added the fact that three high Masons were the only persons who opposed a vote of thanks to Washington on his retirement to private life—undoubtedly because they considered him a seceding Freemason. 10cts each.

Morgan's Exposition, Abduction AND MURDER, AND OATHS OF 33 DEGREES. Composed of "Freemasonry Exposed," by Capt. Wm. Morgan; "History of the Abduction and Murder of Morgan;" "Valance's Confession of the Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "Bernard's Reminiscences of Morgan Times," and "Oaths and Penalties of 33 Degrees." 300 pages; cloth, $1.00.

Finney on Masonry. The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry. By Pres. Charles G. Finney, of Oberlin College. President Finney was a "bright Mason," but left the lodge when he became a Christian. This book has opened the eyes of multitudes. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper cover, 35 cents.

Narratives and Arguments, showing the conflict of secret societies with the Constitution and law of the Union and of the States. By Francis Semple. The fact that secret societies interfere with the execution and pervert the administration of law is here clearly proved. 15cts each.

Temple of Honor Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of "The Templars of Honor and Temperance," commonly called the Temple of Honor. By a Templar of Fidelity and Past Worthy Chief Templar. 25cts each.

The Anti-mason's Scrap-Book, consisting of 53 "Cynosure" tracts. In this book are the views of more than a score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of secret societies. Postpaid. 25 cts.

Reminiscences of Morgan Times. By Elder David Bernard. This is a thrilling narrative of the incidents connected with Bernard's Revelation of Freemasonry 10 cents each.

Secrecy vs. the Family, State and Church. By Rev. M. S. Dury. The antagonism of organized secrecy to the welfare of the family, state and church, is clearly shown. 10cts each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. James Williams, Presiding Elder of Dakota District Northwestern Iowa Conference M. E. Church—a seceding Master Mason. 10 cents each.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 DEGREES OF FREEMASONRY. To get these thirty-three degrees of Masonic bondage, the candidate takes half-a-million horrible oaths. 15 cents each.

Pres. H. H. George on Secret Societies. A powerful address, showing clearly the duty of Christian churches to disfavor secret societies. 10cts each.

Thirteen Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. W. P. McNary, pastor United Presbyterian church 5 cents each.

Sermon on Secretism. By Rev. I. Theo. Cross, pastor Congregational church Hamilton, N. Y. This is a very clear arraignment of the objections to all secret societies, and to Masonry especially, that are apparent to all. 5cts each.

Knights of Pythias Illustrated. By a Past Chancellor. A full illustrated exposition of the three ranks of the order, with the addition of the "Amended, Perfected and Amplified Third Rank." 25ct each.

Sermon on Secret Societies. By Rev. Daniel Dow, Woodstock, Conn. The special object of his sermon is to show the right and duty of Christians to examine into the character of secret societies, no matter what object such societies profess to have.

A cream of tartar baking powder. Highest of all in leavening strength.—Latest United States Government Food Report.
ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 106 Wall St., N. Y.

NEWS OF THE WEEK (Continued from 13th page).

John W. Twiggs, of West Superior, and W. W. Paddock, of Duluth, Minn., have planned to build a railroad in the natural gas belt, to extend from Union City, Ind., to Chicago. The route has been twice surveyed and articles of incorporation have been filed with the Secretary of State.

Princess Kaiulani, the heir claimant to the throne of Hawaii, has come to this country to press her claims against the parties who so unceremoniously, several weeks ago, dethroned her queen-mother and offered her possessions to the United States. The young lady is good-looking and intelligent, and promises to become an important feature in the pending Hawaiian complication. Congress failed, before its adjournment, to complete the treaty between the United States and the present possessors of the islands, and it may be many months before this affair will be settled.

One of the patents of the Bell telephone expired on the 7th inst. It covered transmission of speech by an undulating current of electricity. Another will expire next January. Several others will expire later on.

The American Bank-note Company, which has the contract for printing the admission tickets for the World's Fair, has struck off the first sheets. A million will be sent to Chicago April 1, and the rest will follow at short intervals.

Democrat John Martin has been sworn in as a United States Senator from Kansas, without opposition.

At Lancaster, Penn., much excitement and indignation were caused when it became known that the steeple of one of the leading churches had been utilized as a cockpit while the pastor was holding services in the auditorium below. It is said that a number of cocking mains have been held there.

It is reported from Washington that free coinage advocates control the Senate finance committee, and are not in harmony with President Cleveland's financial policy.

E. B. Brown, one of the editors of the Dubuque (Iowa) Ledger, has been arrested on two charges of criminal libel, and placed in jail for writing scandalous letters to a Chicago newspaper.

Samuel C. Cousins, a paper-cutter, 23 years old, living at Toronto, Can., claims that he is the little Charlie Ross whose abduction, years ago, created universal sympathy for his bereft parents. Mr. Ross, the father of the stolen boy, does not recognize the claim of Cousins.

The military order of the Loyal Legion will take measures, in conjunction with patriotic citizens of Illinois, to repair the Lincoln monument at Springfield, Ill., which has fallen into a condition of dilapidation.

Four large stove factories at Evansville, Ind., recently had trouble with their union men, and by agreement all closed at one time, locking their employees out until they could reach an agreement which would settle all differences. Since then non-union men, headed by a man named Ellis, of Louisville, were secured. The strikers' places were filled and the foundries resumed operations. Last Thursday the non-union men quit work in a body, expressed their sympathy for the locked-out men, and asked to be taken into the union. This will be done.

The Grand Army State encampment in Wisconsin, last week, was attended by about 900 Veterans and 400 of the Woman's Relief Corps. E. A. Shores, of Ashland, was elected Department Commander.

The strike of engineers and firemen employed on the Toledo, Ann Arbor & North Michigan railway blocked all freight trains and only mail trains were running on Thursday of last week. The situation was not encouraging.

The Illinois-Elgin Condensing Companies have contracted for about fifteen thousand gallons of milk daily for six months, beginning April 1. The price averages 9 cents per gallon, which is half a cent a gallon more than was paid last spring. The Elgin Butter Company has engaged 25,000 gallons at nearly the same price, paying 1 cent a gallon more for June milk.

Open warfare has broken out between the settlers on the newly-opened portion of the Crow reservation, in Montana, and the Indians; and the wildest excitement exists at the new town of Wilsey and the adjoining country. Ranchmen around Wilsey are moving their wives and children to places of safety, and are preparing to defend their claims with their lives, if necessary.

It is said that a large meeting of colored men was held in Atlanta, Ga., several days ago, in the interest of a momentous migration of Negroes from the South. Accounts are to the effect that 100,000 colored people will go to the West during the coming few months.

An alleged real estate swindle, in which L. H. Cole, of Minneapolis, appears to be the central figure, has been made public at St. Paul. Cole was indicted by the grand jury, and arraigned on the charges of fraudulently procuring signatures to deeds. Cole's operations involve people and property in Minnesota, Illinois, Kentucky and New York.

After taking 101 joint ballots, the Washington Legislature adjourned sine die without choosing a successor to United States Senator John B. Allen, whose term expired March 4. The Governor will now have to appoint a Senator.

J. W. Reinhart, first vice president of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad, has been elected president of the road, to succeed the late Allen Manvel, deceased.

Two cases are now in the courts for damages for being "shut up in patent folding beds,"—one in Portland, Oregon, and one in Wood, Texas, where a lady demands $5,000 from the man who sold her the bed.

The status of the woman suffrage reform, in the Central and Western States of the Union, is this: Arizona has by this date probably adopted it in full. Kansas is to submit the question, by constitutional amendment, to the people in 1894. South Dakota rejected woman-suffrage; so did Manitoba.

The City of New York and City of Paris, two large ocean steamers, are hereafter to sail under the American flag.

A lager beer trust is to be organized, with a capital of $300,000,000.

The people of New Jersey have vigorously declared against the licensing of race-track gambling.

By the burning of a business block in Boston, on Friday, four persons were killed, thirty others injured, and about $3,000,000 worth of property was destroyed.

By order of Mgr. Satolli, on Sunday last, at Swedesboro, N. J., "Father" Leahy excommunicated two acting Catholic priests named Treacy and all their adherents. These formed quite a large party, who, in open rebellion, sustained EXPULSED—every poison and impurity of your blood, by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Then there's a clear skin and a clean system. Tetter, Salt-rheum, Eczema, Erysipelas, Boils, Carbuncles, Enlarged Glands, Tumors and Swellings, and all Blood, Skin, and Scalp Diseases, from a common blotch or eruption to the worst scrofula—these are perfectly and permanently cured by it.

In building up needed flesh and strength of pale, puny, scrofulous children, nothing can equal it.

Unlike the ordinary spring medicines or sarsaparillas, the "Discovery" works equally well at all seasons. All the year round, and in all cases, it is guaranteed, as no other blood medicine is. If it ever fails to benefit or cure, you have your money back. It's not only the best blood-purifier, but it's the cheapest. You pay only for the good you get.

Buy of reliable dealers. With any others, something else that pays them better will probably be urged as "just as good." Perhaps it is, for them; but it can't be, for you.

MUTUAL HOME IMPROVEMENT CO.

CAPITAL FULL PAID $100,000.
Your Idle Money Will Earn

We issue Trust Certificates guaranteed by assets amounting to more than $200 in assets for every $1.00 in certificates. On these certificates we pay 6 per cent per annum, payable semi-annually. The certificates are issued for terms of 3, 6, 9, or 12 years, as investors may elect. The interest is paid semi-annually during the term for which the subscription is made, and at the end of the term the principal sum, together with its Large Returns if sent to us. PRO RATA share of one half of the profits, is returned on the surrender of the certificates. Address WALTER THOMAS MILLS, Pres. MUTUAL HOME IMPROVEMENT CO., 161 LaSalle Street, CHICAGO.

their pastors in opposition to Satolli. In the rumpus which ensued the sheriff was called in to lock out the insurgents, and it is probable that they will form a new congregation with their priests and worship as Roman Catholics, but independent of the Satollian dynasty.

The notorious "Father" Corrigan preached at Hoboken, N. J., last Sunday evening, in favor of the public school fund being divided with the Roman Catholics. The sermon grew out of a decision of the Attorney General of New Jersey, that such a division would be unconstitutional. He laid the blame largely upon the Catholics for being intimidated by the Protestants.

Frederick Douglass has organized a company for the purpose of establishing a large manufacturing enterprise near Newport News, Va., building a town and giving employment to young Negro men and women.

During the four years of President Harrison's administration Congress passed but one bill over his veto. That was a bill affecting the internal revenue service for the Middle district of Alabama.

The Fifty-first Congress appropriated public moneys for expenditures to the amount of $988,417,183. The Fifty-second, which expired on March 3d, appropriated much more—$1,026,522,049. The country is growing, and its demands are consequently increasing.

FOREIGN.

The Panama corruption trials in France continue to create intense excitement by the immensity of the interests involved in the disclosures.

The Tories (opponents to Irish home rule) in Great Britain are exhibiting a maddening excitement, amounting almost to brutality.

A list of the British war vessels that are to take part in the New York and Hampton Road naval review was made up on Saturday. It includes no battle-ships, and is composed of four cruisers and one gunboat.

"March to search" is the old adage. It searches out any weakness of the system, resulting from impure blood. Those who use Ayer's Sarsaparilla find March no more searching or even disagreeable than any other month. This medicine is a wonderful invigorator.

THE IMAGE OF THE BEAST

A Secret Empire;

Or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy.

By Rev. Richard Horton.

Third Edition. 200 pages. Cloth.

Price, 60 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
321 W. Madison St. Chicago

The Christian Witness

Is an eight-page undenominational monthly; the official organ of the New Hampshire Christian Association, opposed to secret societies. It advocates Bible Holiness, Church Purity, Sound Morality and Temperance.

Terms: 50 cents a year, or three years for $1.00.

Send stamp for sample copy.

Address S. C. KIMBALL,
Box 277. Newmarket, N. H.

JONATHAN BLANCHARD'S

—]oo[—

SERMONS AND ADDRESSES.

Select discourses of the late editor of the Cynosure and leader in our reform. Lectures, sermons and speeches given from 1834 to 1892 in leading cities of the United States, discussing topics of

LIVING REFORM.

Secret Societies, The Sabbath, Temperance, National Reform, Christian Education, Christian Socialism, The Bible, Etc., Etc.

A BOOK EVERYBODY SHOULD READ

12mo. Fine Photogravure Portrait.

Price, 75 Cents.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison st., Chicago.

MY EXPERIENCES

WITH

SECRET SOCIETIES.

BY A TRAVELER.

With a Key to Masonry Illustrated

—o—

A new edition, greatly enlarged, has been issued, embracing chapters on the Language of Numbers, Secret Empires, and Good Men, containing more Experiences, and affording a deeper insight into the Hidden Language and Workings of Secret Clans, and of the counterfeit pretences of good men, than ever before published. The Key is an exposition, explanation and verification of modern Baalism, with which all should be thoroughly acquainted. The price of the new edition is

Fifteen Cents,

but copies of the first edition will be forwarded for Ten Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Disloyal SECRET OATHS

ADDRESS OF

JOSEPH COOK,

OF BOSTON,

AT THE

Conference of Christians CHICAGO, 1890.

No better document of its size for general distribution has been printed. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference.

Single Copies 5 cents, or 12 copies for 50 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago

*Our High Grade List and Bargain Book sent to any address on receipt of a 2-c stamp.

LORD & THOMAS,
NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING
46 RANDOLPH STREET,
CHICAGO.

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XXV., No. 28.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, MARCH 23, 1893.

Whole No. 1,195.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,
221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PER YEAR..... $2.00
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... 1.50

No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearses paid.

Address all letters for publication to EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, CHICAGO. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed.

Make all drafts and money orders payable to the Treasurer, W. I. PHILLIPS, 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO. When possible make remittances by express money order. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address on Cynosure list always give the former address.

[Entered at the Postoffice, Chicago, Ill., as Second Class Matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:	NEW ENGLAND LETTER..... 4
Notes and Comments..... 1	WASHINGTON LETTER..... 4
About the Columbian Exposition..... 8	REFORM NEWS:
Inhumanity in Morocco..... 8	Rev. Wm. Fenton's Work at Home; Secret Societies and Temperance work; From the New England Agent..... 4,5
Woman Suffrage in Illinois..... 9	CORRESPONDENCE:
Freemasonry in France..... 9	The Political Troubles in Kansas; The Duty that the State Owes to God..... 5,6
The Church and Secret Societies..... 9	LITERATURE..... 6
Cabot vs. Columbus..... 9	IN BRIEF..... 7
In Memoriam..... 9	AGENTS AND LECTURERS..... 7
CONTRIBUTIONS:	THE N. C. A..... 7
Her Experience with Odd-fellows..... 1	THE HOME..... 10
The Suppressed Question..... 2	TEMPERANCE..... 11
Another Masonic Mystery Revealed..... 3	BIBLE LESSON..... 12
When to be a Daniel (Poetry)..... 10	NEWS OF THE WEEK..... 13
A Nameless Hero..... 10	HOME AND HEALTH..... 14
SELECTED:	FARM NOTES..... 15
A Faithful Witness..... 3	DONATIONS..... 16

The great pressure upon our columns this week has compelled us to leave over several articles.

The recent National Reform Convention at Sparta, Ill., is reported to have been the best ever held by that Association in this State.

Owing to a difficulty in obtaining speakers, it has been deemed proper to postpone the proposed State anti-secrecy convention in Indiana.

Rev. M. A. Gault, who finished his appointments last Sabbath at Oakdale, Ill., lectured on Tuesday evening at Nashville. He begins, next week, another series of appointments in Indiana. Let all in that State who can arrange lectures for him write to him at Princeton, Ind.

A note from the principal of the Bible and Normal Institute (Peter Howe School), Memphis, Tenn., says that the Living Way, one of our bright exchange papers conducted by and in the interest of colored Christians, has passed into the control and management of that institution. The change promises to be beneficial to all concerned.

Cynosure readers will be pleased to learn that Miss Flagg has so far recovered from her recent serious illness with the grip as to resume her correspondence with them. Her usual New England Letter appears in another column. After this week, it is expected that her comments on the current Sunday-school lessons will be regularly continued.

Rev. J. P. Stoddard having determined to retain his present connection with the New England anti-secrecy work in connection with the district Association and the N. C. A., Rev. S. Mathew, of Portland, Oregon, will (D. V.) arrange with clergymen in harmony with our work to press its claims along the Pacific coast. One of the ablest among them has already been engaged for this service. Particulars will be given hereafter.

A letter from an old subscriber, Mr. James H. Jones, of Lansingburg, N. Y., now in his eighty-seventh year, in a private note says: "I know all about the Morgan affair; was a voter at the time of Anti-masonry"—immediately following the murder of William Morgan. These old veterans are growing scarcer day by day, but every day their testimony for the truth and the necessity of our reform grows more precious.

Our readers will kindly remember that although the cash donations for the work of the N. C. A. during the past four and a half months have reached the sum of over $300, for which thanks are hereby heartily returned to the donors, our needs are still very great, and we have to plead for prompt additional contributions. We have overdrawn on our foreign fund, and our responsibilities cannot be too soon or too liberally met.

An article in the London Christian of February 23 makes the statement that "in a Cantata entitled, 'Le Noel des Ouvriers,' dedicated to Leo XIII, in commemoration of the French workmen's pilgrimage to Rome last autumn, the Pope has been addressed and referred to as 'New Christ' and 'New Saviour!' (Nouveau Christ... Nouveau Sauveur)." This species of blasphemy is not unusual in Roman Catholic countries. God forbid that it shall ever become common in these United States!

Bro. I. R. B. Arnold writes from Evansville, Ind., on the 18 inst. that the Floating Chapel is now moored at that river port. Mail may be sent to him there or at Shawneetown, Ill. For three months past the chapel has been so beset with ice and hindered by the condition of winds and water that it could not have been profitably removed. He now proposes to leave the river for a few weeks and pursue his work in churches, hoping to raise sufficient money, in connection with outside donations, to secure a steam-tug, which is an absolute necessity. At Henderson, Ky., he held revival services, at which over fifty souls were converted.

A bill recently passed the lower house of the Wisconsin Legislature which repeals the law that prohibited the sale of liquors at such agricultural fairs as are aided by the State. It also materially reduces the licenses of all saloons. It is also proposed to abolish local option, and make the licensing of saloons obligatory all over the State. This not unexpected action of a Democratic Legislature shows its profound subservency to the saloon interest, and that the only difference between the two old parties is, that while the Republicans submissively obey the liquor-dealers, the Democrats serve them with alacrity and delight. Perhaps a day is coming in which the moral sense of the people will be aroused and will find expression in an entire reversal of the present order of affairs.

It gives to the future of society a decided pessimistic outlook, to see our daily papers giving column after column to the details of prize fights, and telling us how readily $40,000 were wagered and won in a conflict between two Australians. One would think from the attention given to the matter by Milwaukee papers, that pugilism is one of the most important concerns of the people, and that the exact size, build and weight of these human brutes is a matter of vital moment. When will these editors learn that they owe something to the moral well-being of society, and that this hideous iniquity, which all right-thinking people deplore, lives and thrives by the advertising that it obtains through the daily press. It will be a great boon to the world when such encounters are not only prohibited, but when the publicity given to their details in the newspapers shall be wholly suppressed. If we should treat pugilism as we treated the Louisiana lottery, it would speedily disappear.

We publish in this issue a letter from Bro. Hinman on "The Duty that the State Owes to God." With it, in general, we heartily agree. His remark that the State has a right to require a rest-day, and to protect persons in an undisturbed observance of the Sabbath, is, as it seems to us, entirely inconsistent with his further remark that the State cannot say whether one day or another shall be so observed. If the State is to protect people in the right to the Sabbath, it must, as it seems to us, tell them when they can have it. We do not make this remark for the purpose of entering on the discussion of the Sabbath question. The Cynosure believes that all men have a right to rest one day in seven, and that the law of men, as well as the law of God, should insure this right. While two millions of our fellow-citizens are deprived of it by the greed of corporations or the pleasure-loving of citizens, we consider it almost a sin to be as busy as our seventh-day friends are, in undertaking to convert Christians to the observance of a day not at present recognized by Christendom. Of course we do not question their conscientious motives, nor their legal right to do as they are doing. But for our own part, we do not purpose to spend precious time in debating the question what day men should observe when there are two millions of persons about us who are not permitted to observe any day whatever, and when their number is constantly increasing. How good men can be satisfied to spend their time, as a few of them are now doing respecting this matter, we do not at all comprehend. We simply decline to spend time in discussion with them here or elsewhere. As Bro. Hinman is a valuable fellow-worker, and as his article is, in general, entirely sound so far as we are able to understand it, we insert it, but do not wish to have it understood that we are to take up and discuss that question.

HER EXPERIENCE WITH ODD-FELLOWS.

REMARKS OF MRS. ELLA REIDY, BEFORE THE PENNSYLVANIA STATE CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION IN THE CONVENTION AT ALLEGHENY, TUESDAY EVENING, FEB. 28, 1893.

Twenty-one years ago I was forced into this fight between light and darkness, truth and error, by my husband being persuaded by a professed minister of the Gospel to join the Odd-fellows. Although I entreated, with earnestness and tears, that no breach be brought between us that would destroy our confidence, or cause a cessation of the open frankness that had always been a source of trust and comfort to each, my pleadings were of no avail. An Odd-fellow he would be, no matter at what cost.

In due time he went to be initiated into the mysteries of that order. I shall never forget the lonely feelings I experienced as I took my three little children and went to bed with them, choking back the rising lump in the throat, and brushing away the tears, lest the little ones should see the sorrow of their mother, and it would sadden their little tender hearts. The night passed in wakefulness and thoughtfulness, asking over and over again, "Lord, canst not thou let me see the spirit of this evil that has fallen across my once happy path?"

Near noon on the following day my husband entered the door of the room where I was at work, and, without fully entering the room, endeavored to exalt Odd-fellowship by saying that it was all the religion anyone needed, if lived up to, and that it would be the means of bringing upon the earth the reign of Christ's peaceable kingdom recorded in Isaiah 11:5-9. How well that lesson in Odd-fellowship was drank in and remembered! Yet in my inmost soul I knew it to be wrong and desperately wicked. Hoping to find some light and comfort, I went to the church to which I belonged to report the doings of one of its ministers and get some comfort; but, to my sorrow, found the church which I had loved so much corrupted by secretism from center to circumference, and many feared I was on the eve of losing all the little common-sense that I had, in condemning so good and grand a thing as Odd-fellowship.

Not knowing one being on earth to whom I could go to get wisdom and understanding, I asked earnestly, pleadingly, and longingly that God would make me to understand the spirit that actuated the establishing and continuing of that which required sworn oaths to ever have a closed mouth as to everything that transpired inside of guarded doors, darkened windows, on upper floors; and upon such Scripture as Ephesians 5:11-13; John 18:20; 2 Corinthians 6:14-18, such divine light was thrown that I could no longer doubt but that the whole system of secrecy was of its father, the devil, and his works it would do. Being in opposition to Christ, it is an anti-Christ of these last days that will deceive the very elect, if it were possible.

In the conflict with darkness I was told of the Association opposed to secret societies. Oh, how I felt that I had found a friend! I subscribed for the Cynosure, obtained tracts, and felt such a burning zeal for the cause of Christ and poor, lost, benighted men who were being drawn into these things that take them farther and farther from the true and only Saviour of the world, that I thought I must cry aloud and keep not silent. This brought upon me a siege of persecution, through which I realized that it was necessary to get inside of the whole armor of God to withstand it. Intimidations were made by threats, by the concealment of some persons in the dark under the windows, when I was alone, and the firing of guns. When these things failed to quiet down opposition to the accursed secret order system, my husband's business (although he was in the snare, yet he failed to quiet me) was closed out by boycotting him. However, God overruled it for our good, and some who planned the gallows for me were hanged on their own construction.

Oh, that men who profess Christianity would swing clear of these claptraps and be satisfied with the blessed Christ as he has revealed himself to us through his Word, and they who have rejected him would turn to him and be saved; for soon he will come and right all wrongs; will bring to light the hidden things of darkness, and make manifest the counsels of the heart; and then shall every man have praise of God. For that glad day I wait, watch and pray.

Tyrone, Pa.

THE SUPPRESSED QUESTION.

AN ADDRESS BEFORE THE ALLEGHENY, PA., ANTI-SECRETORY CONVENTION, MONDAY EVENING, FEB. 27, 1893, BY REV. M. A. GAULT.

MR. CHAIRMAN AND FELLOW-CITIZENS:—It is a dangerous symptom in a republic like ours when there is a disposition to suppress the agitation of any reform issue. This was the alarming condition in the South, and even in many parts of the North, before the war, on the slavery question. That issue was a suppressed question for many years. Men were mobbed and driven from their homes, and killed, because they would not join the conspiracy of silence. If free speech and liberty of the press had not been suppressed, the civil war would not have been possible. It would have spared this nation a million graves and three billion dollars; because, in a government like ours, every great question must be fought out and settled by a war of words, or a war of bullets; and I would always rather take mine out in words.

This disposition to suppress agitation has characterized all moral reforms. The bloody persecutions that have crimsoned the pathway of Christianity are illustrations of this truth. How strikingly is this fact illustrated in the history of the Hebrew Republic. The reefs on which that nation went to pieces are the most dangerous rocks in the pathway of our republic today.

Their great national sin, which gathered storms of judgment over their land, and sent them into slavery for seventy years in Babylon, was the fact that upon so many hilltops were erected heathen altars to false gods.

Against no sin did God pronounce such withering condemnation as against this. Hear what he said in Deuteronomy 12:2: "Ye shall utterly destroy all the places wherein the nations which ye shall possess served their gods; upon the high mountains, and upon the hills, and under every green tree. And ye shall overthrow their altars, and break their pillars, and burn their groves with fire: and ye shall hew down the graven images of their gods and destroy the names of them out of their places." Again, God says, in Exodus 34:13: "But ye shall destroy their altars, break their images, and cut down their groves." Why does God so severely condemn this sin? Listen to the answer in the next verse: "For thou shalt worship no other God, for the Lord whose name is Jealous is a jealous God."

During the corrupt administration of Rehobam we read (1 Kings 14:22): "And Judah did evil in the sight of the Lord, and they provoked him to jealousy with their sins which they had committed, above all that their fathers had done." What was the nature of this sin? Listen! "For they also built them high places, and images, and groves on every high hill, and under every green tree."

What I wish you to notice as of special significance is, that the reform in Israel against this false religion was a suppressed question, even under the administration of their best kings. It appears that they engaged in every other reform, but on the question of removing the high places they joined the conspiracy of silence. Of even the good King Asa it is said (1 Kings 15:14): "Asa's heart was perfect with the Lord all his days; but the high places were not removed." Of Jehoshaphat it is said (1 Kings 22:43): "And he walked in all the ways of Asa his father; he turned not aside from it, doing that which was right in the eyes of the Lord. Nevertheless"—here comes in the secret lodge question, as the great exception—"Nevertheless the high places were not taken away, for the people offered and burnt incense yet in the high places." Of the reign of Jehoash we read (2 Kings 12:3): "And Jehoash did that which was right in the sight of the Lord all his days, wherein Jehoida the priest instructed him; but"—here you find the suppressed question again—"the high places were not taken away; the people still sacrificed and burnt incense in the high places."

Again, in the reign of Amasia, we read (2 Kings 14:4): "He did that which was right," etc. "Howbeit"—there was the suppressed question again—"the high places were not taken away; as yet the people did sacrifice and burn incense in the high places."

Again, in the reign of Azariah, we find (2 Kings 15:4): "He did that which was right in the sight of the Lord, save"—oh, there is that suppressed question again!—"save that the high places were not removed."

And also in the reign of Jotham (2 Kings 15:35): "He did that which was right," etc. "Howbeit"—the same suppressed question again—"Howbeit, the high places were not removed; the people still sacrificed and burnt incense in the high places."

But what was this suppressed question that these good kings were afraid to agitate? Have we anything corresponding to it in our day? Ah, yes; in every city, and in nearly every town and village in our land, we have established and our government has chartered such heathen altars, not on hilltops and in groves, but in halls in the upper stories of buildings. These secret lodges are false religions, as dishonoring and insulting to God as were the altars of Baal. Let us compare our modern, with these ancient altars of Baal: No one will deny but that the worship of Baal was a religion; and Dr. Mackey, one of the highest Masonic authorities, says: "All the ceremonies of our order are prefaced and terminated with prayer, because Masonry is a religious institution." The religion of Baal was undoubtedly a Christless religion. It professed to worship the true God, and to save men, but to do so without Christ. So does the religion of Freemasonry. It excludes Christ from its prayers, and service, and strikes his name even out of texts quoted in its ritual. Sickels' Monitor, pages 97 and 98, says of the first three degrees of Masonry: "These three degrees thus form a perfect and harmonious whole; nor can we conceive that anything can be suggested more which the soul of man requires."

Dr. Mackey says in his Lexicon of Freemasonry, page 315, of the worship of Baal, or the Ancient Mysteries: "This is the name given to the religious assemblies of the ancients, whose ceremonies were conducted in secret, whose doctrines were known only to those who had obtained the right of knowledge by a previous initiation, and whose members were in possession of signs and tokens by which they were enabled to recognize each other." Where can you find a better description of modern Freemasonry than is given in these words?

Again, Dr. Mackey says, on the same page of his Lexicon, that in the ancient Mysteries, or Baal worship, "subordination of degrees was instituted and the candidate was subjected to probation, varying in their character and severity"—another pointed description of the degrees of Freemasonry. Again he says: "The rites of these Ancient Mysteries were practiced in the darkness of night;" so are those of Freemasonry. General Ahiman Reson, by Sickels, says, page 75: "Lodge meetings at the present day are usually held in upper chambers; and the reason for this custom is, that before the erection of temples, the celestial bodies were worshiped on hills." The altars of ancient Baal worshipers were never in valleys; they were always on mountains or hilltops; so the lodge-rooms of modern Baal worshipers are never in basements but always on the highest floor. The Manual of the Lodge, by Albert G. Mackey, page 55, prescribes that every lodge must be situated due east and west, and says: "The primitive reason for this custom undoubtedly is to be found in the early prevalence of sun-worship; and hence the spot where that luminary first made his appearance in the heavens was consecrated in the minds of his worshipers as a place entitled to peculiar reverence. Freemasonry, retaining in its symbolism the typical reference of the lodge to the world, and constantly alluding to the sun in his apparent diurnal revolution, emphatically requires, when it can be done, that the lodge should be situated due east and west, so that every ceremony shall remind the Mason of the progress of that luminary."

So we can prove, almost with the force of a mathematical demonstration, that every rite and ceremony through which the Masonic candidate is made to pass on the night of his initiation, are all borrowed from the secret worship of the sun-god of the ancient pagans; and that the religious philosophy of Freemasonry, and the religious philosophy of the Baal-worship of Samaria, are identically the same.

The fact is, we need not go back into the twilight of antiquity in Samaria to find the altars of Baal. They are here in Allegheny, under the very shadow of your churches, in this age of Gospel light and popular evangelization. If the old prophet Elijah was here in your city to-night, he would testify as loudly against these secret lodges as he once did against the Baal-worship that brought judgments upon Israel. We do not need to go to Syria, or Africa, or China, to find work for missionaries.

"If you cannot cross the ocean,
And the heathen lands explore,
You can find the heathen nearer;
You can find them at your door."

I have somewhere read that some of our American missionaries to China have found time to organize Masonic lodges among the Chinese, thus planting a worse form of heathenism than any in those dark lands. The experiences of those missionaries may be illustrated by that of a scientific Boston fisherman which I heard related by Brother Chalmers. While fishing in some of the rivers in Maine, he used dynamite bombs, which he exploded in the water to kill the fish. But his fool-dog swam in and brought out the bomb. The fisherman ran, but the dog followed close at his heels, with the dangerous machine in his mouth, and all that saved the poor fisherman's life was that when he scaled a fence his dog got stuck; and hearing an explosion, he turned and saw installments of both the dog and the fence going skyward. So it will be fearful to contemplate the reaction of trying to save heathen souls by organizing Masonic lodges.

But the truth I wish to emphasize is that in an important respect we are repeating Israel's history. Almost everywhere this modern Baal worship is the suppressed question. There is no subject on which the public mind is so sensitive. There are very few editors who do not tremble when they put pen to paper in writing on this question. Dr. Strong in his book, "Our Country," gives a remarkable array of ecclesiastical and political forces combining to endanger our country's safety, but it is significant that he never once alludes to the secret society system. Are the two hundred and twenty-five secret orders in this land, with their five million members, wielding an influence perhaps greater than all our churches, too insignificant to mention? Is it not true, as Orator Brainard said of Masonry when it was only one-tenth as strong as it is today, that it comprises "active men, united together and capable of being directed by the efforts of others, so as to have the force of cement throughout the civilized world. They are distributed, too, with the means of knowing each other, and the means of keeping secret, and the means of co-operating in the dark, in the legislative hall and on the bench, in every gathering of business, in every party of pleasure, in every enterprise of government, in every domestic circle, in peace and in war, among enemies and friends, in one place as well as another." More than ninety-five churches out of a hundred are afraid to open their pulpits for the discussion of this question. Many pastors are in sympathy with this movement, but dare not identify with it. They sometimes tell me if they were in my place they would speak out, but some of their members belong to the lodge and have money, and they cannot offend them, for the people say we must be a unit in order to support the pastor. They say they are like boys pulling a sled up hill on slippery ice; when they begin to pull their feet fly, and down they come. The members give the pastor to understand that he must not touch this question; that his business is to preach the Gospel and save souls; and the purest Gospel, in their estimation, is that which does not interfere with a man's secret societies, with his politics, his business or his religion. And their idea of saving souls is like Francis Murphy's idea of saving drunkards, by not interfering with the saloon-keeper, but only by persuading the people not to drink. It would be more rational to permit batteries to shell this town and then try to save people by teaching them how to dodge.

Why do so few of our Christian reform organizations venture to take up this question? The W. C. T. U., with its forty or more departments of work, comprising nearly every phase of reform, strangely omits this. Many of their workers are beginning to see that one of the strongest hindrances to their work is the secret lodge, with its influence to neutralize prohibition legislation, and drag men down by evil association. It may be said of them, as of the good kings of Israel, they do that which is right in the sight of the Lord, but the high places are not yet removed.

The American Sabbath Union is doing a great work in securing legal protection for the Lord's day. It is doing that which is right in the eyes of the Lord; howbeit the high places are not yet removed. It needs to learn that one of the most dangerous enemies of the Sabbath is the secret lodge system, with its Sunday parades, and Sunday funerals, and Sunday brass-bands and excursions, and conclaves, inducing not only their own members but the thousands of railroad men and tens of thousands of others to travel on the Lord's day. Nothing for many years has tended so much to break down the sacredness of the Sabbath as the Knight Templar Conclave at Denver, last summer, pouring hundreds of excursion trains into that city on the Lord's day.

The Y. M. C. A. and the Y. P. S. C. E. organizations are doing much to bring the young people of our land under the influence of the Gospel. They are doing that which is right in the eyes of the Lord; howbeit the high places are not removed. They need to learn that there is no such influence in operation to lead young men away from the church, and to absorb the interest, time, talent and means that should be devoted to the church, as the influence of the secret lodge.

The National Reform Association has accomplished a great and good work in lifting up a standard of divine law for the people, and in laboring to secure Christ's right to a voice in this government. But may it not be said of this association, also, it is doing that which is right in the sight of the Lord, "nevertheless the high places were not removed." My ten years' experience in field work under the National Reform Association convinced me that the greatest obstruction in the way of a recognition of Christ in civil government is the secret lodge system. They are operating more to exclude Christ from politics and from national and State constitutions, and Thanksgiving proclamations and political platforms than any other influence. The millions of members in these secret lodges are trained by Christless rituals and prayers to exclude Christ from government. These lodges are training schools for Christless politicians. For a long time in the reform field I was trying to whip the devil around that secret lodge stump, but oh, it did make me so tired! Now I am at work with the National Christian Association as a stump-puller, removing the stumps, so that the National Reform Association, and all other Christian reform associations, may have an open field and fair fight.

The question that is ringing all around the horizon is, how can we enforce law? and law and order leagues are the order of the day. But it is time for us to learn that we may have the best legislation that can be framed; and yet if the judges who are to execute it, the sheriffs who are to select the juries, and the mayor and aldermen who are to select and control the police, and the police, themselves, who are elected from the ranks of those who are members of secret societies, sworn and pledged to obey each other's signs and grips and passwords,—with the law in the hands of such officials, we cannot secure its enforcement. Thus the issue against secret societies cannot be ignored by the faithful reformer, because it has a vital relation to all moral reforms. The train and locomotive may be complete in all their equipments, but if entrusted to the control of an unfaithful engineer, its destruction is inevitable.

While in a sense reformers may treat different reforms as specialties, yet in the body politic, as in the human body, there are fundamental derangements, such as blood-poisoning, which must be treated because of their vital relation to special derangements. So the secret society evil, like blood-poisoning, has diseased the whole social system, and this evil must be eradicated before any reform can be made fully effective.

Moral reforms cannot be carried in sections any more than levees on the lower Mississippi can be secured in sections. A break in the levee at one point will endanger it at every point. In giving the Ten Commandments at Sinai, Christ did not give them one at a time. He did not withhold the second, or third, or fourth until men were trained to keep the first; but the commandments were all given in a bunch. God's law is a unit. He that offendeth in one point is guilty of all. Let us close up the lines and present a solid front and thus greatly strengthen our position, and avoid the danger of being flanked in the great reform conflict that is so near at hand.

ANOTHER MASONIC MYSTERY REVEALED.

The Clan-na-Gael was founded by a Freemason, in imitation of Freemasonry, and a member of both says that a Mason will be surprised, on initiation into the former, by the resemblance. The same is true of most or all of the minor orders, as they were created by men from the older society, and are copies, more or less complete, of the original. They usually consist of three degrees, and the novitiate is led 'around in the course of the sun and successively presented to the three principal officers of the lodge, who in the original represent the morning, noon and evening sun—or Baal, Moloch and Tammuz or Osiris, according to Kerry in the "Dawn of History."

It is not only in initiations that they copy the original, but also in principles and operation, for they demand submission to superiors, and punish recalcitrants by expulsion, repulsion and persecution, or death, as in the Cronin affair. They also exalt society oaths above those of the state, and perpetrate, or justify, murder for infractions. They all are inheritors of a system of murder from the poisoners of Rome, seven thousand of whom were executed (paralleled by the Thugs in strangulation as sculptured in an ancient cave), which denotes unity and a single progenitor. In particular lines they also demand the submission of others under death penalties, as at Homestead, like the parent society in sun-worship, as shown with its secret language of numbers in the added chapters of the last edition of "My Experiences with Secret Societies," advertised in the Cynosure. Individuals may be members of a particular organization for an ostensible purpose, and also, through secret agents, parts of another for a different one—as its supports or coadjutors.

As the parent society invents and supplies devices, it may be betrayed by their bungling application by its progeny. At Homestead, for example, the Knights of Labor attempted to disable their contumacious proxies in the shops with poison, and it was reported that thirty-two men had already died, and others were dying on their feet. A year ago the Cynosure published a series of Masonic murders, in which one victim was removed with sudden, and another with slow, poison, causing, perhaps, ulceration of the bowels. Now, in the first series, croton oil, one-fourth drop of which is a powerful purgative, was employed, and this suggests the agent in the last; and in this way another mystery of Freemasonry—a favorite poison—has been revealed. Freemasonry may strengthen itself by buttressing with minor societies, but it may, also, be weakened by their criminating deeds and exposures. Does it merit the tolerance and protection of the state by incorporations and otherwise as a training school for assassins and croton-oil brotherhoods? It is chargeable with the anarchy and bloodshed of all secret societies. They but reflect the deeds of the progenitor.

A READER.

A FAITHFUL WITNESS.

Mr. John Bennets-Bailey, writing from Opechee, Mich., to the readers of the Gospel Trumpet, Grand Junction, in that State, gives them the straight testimony of an anti-secrecy reformer as follows:

As a servant of God, I respectfully call your attention to the following facts in respect to secret societies—institutions which have obtained, and are now exerting, a wide and powerful influence in our churches, in all our civil institutions and on all our social relations:

1. Secret societies strip man of his manhood.
2. They enslave men.
3. They take away from man liberty of conscience and liberty of speech.
4. They profane the ordinance of the oath. There is not an oath taken by secret societies but what involves a breach of the third commandment. (See also Matt. 5: 33-37; Jas. 5: 12; Lev. 5: 45.) Hence it follows that the oath, in itself, is sin.
5. Secret societies recognize no religion but the universal religion of nature.
6. All societies which impose an oath or obligation of secrecy are directly opposed to the teachings of our Saviour. (See Matt. 5: 16; John 18: 20.)
7. They are dangerous to society.
8. Christ, the King of kings, the world's Redeemer, is excluded from the secret lodges, etc.
9. They are condemned by God's holy Word, and we are warned not to join with them. (See Eph. 5: 11-13; 2 Cor. 6: 14-18.)
10. Secret societies originated with the devil and must end with him.

Therefore, come out from among them. Have no fellowship with them. If you remain in any of them after reading these facts, then you sin willfully, deliberately and presumptuously, because you sin with your eyes open.

GEN. HENRY SEWELL, a Companion of Washington: "I was initiated an Entered Apprentice to the Masonic rites in October, 1777, at Albany, soon after the capture of Burgoyne, being then an officer in the American army. . . . I was led by the influence of this 'Perfect Rule of faith and practice,' during the year 1784, to view speculative Masonry in a shape still more deformed. Its character appeared to be selfishness, because restricted to its own members; its religion, deism, because entirely devoid of the Gospel. Its history appeared fabulous; its claims to antiquity, unsustainable; its titles, insouciant; its rites, barbarous and absurd; its oaths, extra-judicial, unlawfully imposed and blindly taken; and the penal sanctions annexed, horrid and impious."

NEW ENGLAND LETTER.

A generally received falsity.—La grippe.—“All the Puritans danced.”—Fast Day and the ministers.—The recent fire at the Hub.—Divers matters.—Children’s Day in the lodge.—New England’s neglected graveyards.

There is a general belief that the coldest winters are the healthiest. The winter of '93 ought to be a standing demonstration of the falsity of any such opinion. The warmer the season, the lower the death-rate. It is when the mercury sinks into the neighborhood of zero, and stays there, that diphtheria and scarlet fever abound, and grippe and bronchitis and pneumonia do their evil worst on young and old.

Speaking of the grippe, the writer, having just recovered from an attack of this singular disease, which medical authorities say is the same thing as the epidemic known in the Middle Ages as “the sweating sickness,” profuse sweats being a symptom of convalescence, is inclined to call it, with Marion Harland, “a form of demoniac possession”. It seems to bind with its evil spell every faculty of mind and body. The victim loses all courage to battle with life, and only longs to creep away into a corner and die. Perhaps it was the grippe fiend that attacked our forefathers on the threshold of this New World, though they, in their simple chronicle, called it only “a cold and cough”. How quietly these heroic men and women have rested in their nameless graves, while the flowers they never saw and the birds they never heard, have bloomed and sung for their posterity for nearly three hundred springs. Would their sons and daughters hold so lightly the inheritance they won for us, if they realized the price they paid for it?

On the evening of the day of Phillips Brooks’ funeral, a grand masked ball, of which the Herald gave very full details under the caption, “The Puritans All Danced,” demonstrated the vast difference in manners and morals between the ancient and modern Puritans. One of the characters personated King Solomon, and took six of his wives to the ball with him, which, as a dear old friend who brought the item to my attention—himself a Puritan of the Puritans—very justly observed, was so much like Sodom that it was enough to make our forefathers turn over in their graves. If Shakespeare found it a mad world in his time, it has surely grown no less so; and what is to be the end of it all? There will be a bitter crop by-and-by, or all the warnings of history go for nothing.

Gov. Russel finds some of the ministers of Massachusetts—and those among the most noted—vigorously opposed to the abolishing of Fast Day. At the recent meeting of the Evangelical Alliance, Drs. Miner and Plumb gave some ringing utterances on this subject, while Rev. E. E. Hale sent a letter, in which he wrote: “I will confess that I have had a cold shudder come over me when I observed the unanimity with which the clergy of Massachusetts have seemed to clutch at the suggestion that one of their regular, time-established duties should be abandoned.” He alluded to the great responsibility of the church in the matter of public administration, and the fact that the chief purpose for which Fast Day was established was to call the attention of Christian people to their public duties, adding: “In my own experience I have never known a Fast Day come around when there was not some public duty—by which I mean some duty to the citizen of the State—to which I was glad to call particular attention. Let our clergy preach rousing sermons on Fast Day, and handle without gloves the great questions of Rum, Romanism and Secret Societies, thus giving the public a counter-attraction to base-ball, and I am sure that neither Governor Russel, nor any of his successors, will find it an easy task to do away with this old historic heir-loom of Pilgrim days.”

The recent fire in Boston has called attention to the fact that certain portions of the city are mere fire-traps, and the underwriters will hereafter charge higher rates of insurance. Only two or three perished in the flames, but the appalling list of sufferers from broken bones and internal injuries, the result of jumping from the upper stories, represent suffering more long-drawn out, if less sharp, than would have been the fiery death they thus avoided by this dreadful alternative. Such a fire makes one thankful that Boston is too conservative to follow the example of New York and Chicago, and put up twenty-story sky-scrapers. Think of confronting death from a height so appalling! It fairly curdles the blood in one’s veins.

The people who think Massachusetts soil too poor to make a living from, had better think twice before they move West. With reports of petroleum, and phosphate beds, and anthracite coal, who knows what hidden treasures may be concealed in the bosoms of some of her abandoned farms? New Hampshire and Vermont have as wonderful mineralogical specimens as the West can boast. A friend gathered some beautiful specimens during a summer sojourn in the latter State, which only needed a skilled lapidary to bring out their hidden veins of color, and make them worthy of a rich setting.

The testimony of Joseph Cook against secret societies, at his last Monday Lecture, and the vigorous manner in which it was applauded, shows what a stride public sentiment has taken in this direction. The Lord has not suffered the self-denying labors of Bro. Stoddard and his noble helpmeet to fall to the ground.

There is a movement on foot to introduce Children’s Day into the Odd-fellows’ organization. “We favor the movement,” says an organ of this society, “to the end that the sons and daughters of Odd-fellows may be thoroughly indoctrinated with our principles, and more readily find the way, when they attain the proper age, into the subordinate and Rebekah lodges.” If Odd-fellowship sets the fashion of a Children’s Day, other secret societies will doubtless follow suit. There is a deep-laid scheme on the part of the grand master of all these fraternities of darkness to rope in the children. Let us not be ignorant of his wiles, but give at least as much effort to keep the young and innocent from the snare as we expend in trying to liberate those already in.

Senator Lyman has introduced a bill into the New Hampshire Legislature for the care of neglected burial places. Who has not been impressed by their utter forlornness—the toppling head-stones, the long grass, the weed-grown walks? It must have been through such a New England graveyard that Miss Susan B. Anthony strolled years ago, and noticing how many inscriptions were “Sacred to the memory of Sarah,” or “Hannah,” or “Lydia,” “relict” of the late so-and-so, registered a mental iron-clad oath, without equivocation or reservation, to remain forever single rather than have it recorded on her tombstone that she was simply “the relict” of some man! So runs the story; and if it is true, who can blame her?

ELIZABETH E. FLAGG.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 15, 1893.

Nothing in the future seems more certain than that Washington is to become a great educational center; many believe, the greatest in America. Indications of this are seen on every side, in the increased interest displayed in educational and kindred subjects. In the near future three great church universities will be in operation; and from the tendency of the talk among Senators and Representatives it seems probable that the necessary steps towards the establishment of a National University under government auspices will soon be taken, if indeed, they have not already been, in the favorable report on the project which was made a few days ago by a Senate committee. This project was a hobby with ex-Senator Edmunds for many years, but while he was in the Senate the time was not ripe and he never could get his colleagues sufficiently interested in the matter to make any progress towards its accomplishment. The honor of having secured the favorable report referred to belongs to Senator Proctor, who succeeded Senator Edmunds.

Nothing could give a more forceful idea of the growth of the higher educational sentiment in Washington than the “Directory of the Scientific Societies of Washington,” a book just issued. There are six of these societies, with the following names and membership: The Anthropological, which aims to encourage the study of the natural history of man, especially with reference to America, 222; The Biological, for the study of the biological sciences, 195; The Chemical, for the cultivation of chemical science, pure and applied, 97; The Entomological, for the promotion of the study of entomology in all possible bearings, 109;

The Geographic, for the increase and diffusion of geographic knowledge, 682; The Philosophical, for the free interchange of views on scientific subjects and the promotion of scientific inquiry, 250. Among the 1,555 members of these societies are many with world-wide reputation, not only as scientists, but as Christians, men constantly laboring to sweep away the barriers that ignorant and ungodly men have raised between science and Christianity, and now they are well-nigh crowned with victory, as the number of those who consider science antagonistic to religion are few and constantly growing fewer, as education, the hand-maiden of religion, becomes more generally diffused.

President Cleveland, after consultation with his Cabinet, has decided to send a commission to Hawaii to make a thorough investigation of the situation before deciding what disposition he will make of the annexation treaty, which he withdrew from the Senate last week.

The rapid accumulation of gold in the Treasury during the last week has been very gratifying to the new administration. There is now more than $5,000,000 of gold in excess of the $100,000,000 held as a reserve fund.

Secretary Carlisle has issued a new set of rules governing immigration, in accordance with the new law, which went into effect on the 3d inst. It is expected that the new law will be beneficial, inasmuch as it will have a tendency to improve the class of immigrants, morally as well as physically, who will come to our shores.

Senator Jones, of Arkansas, now chairman of the Senate committee in Indian Affairs, at a farewell dinner given this week to his predecessor in that position, ex-Senator Dawes, who retired from the Senate March 4, spoke feelingly of the good and Christian work done in behalf of the Indians by Mr. Dawes during his long career in the Senate. It is no exaggeration to say that Mr. Dawes has been one of the best friends the Indians have ever had in Congress.

It almost necessarily follows that hurried legislation has defects, and the new liquor license law for the District of Columbia, enacted during the rush of the closing hours of the last session of Congress is no exception to the rule. Already one of our local courts has decided that all prosecutions for violations of the old law—there were a number of such—against the liquor dealers must be abandoned. The rum-sellers are jubilant and they say there are other defects in the new law.

The Sabbath-breakers, like the rum-sellers, are always ready to take advantage of the absence of specific laws, and of defects in laws. Since the Commissioners stated that there was no law under which they could prevent the opening of the theaters on Sunday, several of the theaters have given Sunday performances, styled in the advertisements “sacred concerts,” but none the less objectionable on that account to those who believe in a Christian observance of the Sabbath-day. These performances are likely to grow more frequent until the Sabbath-observing people of the country shall bring their influence to bear upon Congress, as they did in the closing of the World’s Fair, to stop it by legislation. The good people of Washington are helpless without their aid.

REFORM NEWS.

REV. WILLIAM FENTON’S WORK AT HOME.

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 17, 1893.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—On Thursday evening, March 9, the lecture was delivered to a large audience in the German Evangelical church. Five ministers were present; one, the pastor of the M. E. church, is an enthusiastic Odd-fellow. Both Masons and Odd-fellows were well represented in the audience, but they utterly refused to offer one word of denial to the awful charges made against them by comparing the fundamental principles of their institutions with the Bible and common honesty, knowing that the charges are absolutely true so far as they know anything about Masonry.

The editor of one of the newspapers, who is a thorough-bred Mason, devotes about a quarter of a column to a misrepresentation of the lecture and a degradation of the character of the lecturer, just as was predicted in my last letter to the Cynosure.

Yesterday, observing the Odd-fellow badge upon a prominent Roman Catholic, I expressed my surprise to him. He said that the Romish church had no objection to its members joining secret societies such as Odd-fellowship, A. O. U. W., and Woodmen; and that this has been the case for about eight years. Do not the rulers of the Romish church, the Pope and his cardinals, know that Odd-fellowship is a false religion—paganism revived? Of course they do. But in union there is strength. If that church does not now receive Masons, it is not because Masonry is a lying fraud. Because it is written, "These have one mind, and give their power and authority to the beast. These will make war with the Lamb, and the Lamb will overcome them; because he is Lord of lords, and King of kings, and they who are with him are called, and chosen, and faithful." Rev. 17: 13, 14.

The immediate context of this Scripture refers to kings. But its application, by analogy, to the false religions of the lodges is, I think, fair. At all events, lodge-worship is spiritual harlotry, and belongs therefore to "the mother of the harlots and of the abominations of the earth." Rev. 17: 5. When the Romish church does receive Masons to her confessional, it will be taking home her own child.

"In 1758, the Chapter called 'The Emperors of the East and West,' of which the members gave themselves the titles of Sovereign Prince Masons, Substitutes General of the Royal Art, and Grand Wardens and Officers of the Sovereign Grand Lodge of St. John of Jerusalem—a chapter created by the Jesuits of Lyons, was adopted in France." So says Rebold (page 84), the best and highest Masonic authority in the world. W. FENTON.

SECRET SOCIETIES AND TEMPERANCE WORK.

Boston, March 14, 1893.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—I think that, had I been an old-fashioned Methodist, I should have said "Praise the Lord!" so that it would have startled some of the good W. C. T. U. sisters, yesterday afternoon; as it was, it rang in my heart and is still ringing there.

I am sorry to chronicle the fact that many of them seem startled in another way, the subject for the meeting being, "Secret Societies, and their Relation to the Drink Problem."

Oh, how it rejoices our hearts when we find here and there Christian leaders who are not afraid to have any evil discussed in their meetings, and who themselves give no uncertain sound.

Such, we rejoice to say, are to be found in our conservative city of Boston; among whom are Joseph Cook and Mrs. A. J. Gordon, president of the Boston W. C. T. U. Would to God we had more such men and women in the land, fearless to oppose the wrong or to espouse the right.

When Mrs. Daniel Powers approached our president in regard to presenting this topic before our W. C. T. U., did she say, I agree with you perfectly, but I rather think it would not be policy to bring it into our meeting, as it is foreign to our work and might do harm? Oh, no, not she; but willingly and gladly consented, giving perfect freedom in arranging the program for the following Monday afternoon.

Elizabeth E. Flagg, our "New England Letter" writer, and editor of "Home Light," was to have been with us and present a paper on this occasion, but was prevented by severe illness; so the publisher responded in her name.

Devotional exercises were led by Hattie A. Smith, Sup't of evangelistic work in Connecticut, also secretary of the Christian Workers, who after the singing of "Rescue the Perishing," read from 2 Corinthians, and gave a strong testimony on secret societies in general. Mrs. Rice, a former missionary to Prussia, and Mrs. E. Trask Hill, editor of the "Woman's Voice," followed in prayer; and then Ella Carter, one of our sweet-voiced, consecrated singers, rendered the song: "If God be for us, who can be against us?" with great effectiveness.

The paper on "Secret Societies as Promoters of Intemperance" was then presented by the writer; and was followed by a very touching, earnest, and tender appeal to the sisterhood of the W. C. T. U., especially those who were mothers, to investigate this subject; and how she went to work to save her boy from the snare of secrecy, by Mrs. Powers.

Mrs. Gordon then called on Mrs. Whitmore and Mrs. Morrison to read some extracts from Joseph Cook's speech, which she had handed them; after which Miss Carter sang the following song:

AN APPEAL TO MOTHERS.

AIR—"Wandering Boy," "Gospel Hymns, No. 55.
BY MRS. DANIEL POWERS.

"As the fishes that are taken in an evil net, and as the birds that are caught in the snare, so are the sons of men snared in an evil time."—Ecc. 9: 12.

Masonry calls for boys, mother,
The brightest of yours and mine;
Not one of the weak, the lame, the halt,
Will do for the mystic shrine.

CHORUS—

O, Masonry calls for boys,
The fairest of yours and mine:
Will you give them up, to drink of the cup;
Prepared by the mystic shrine?

Masonry calls for boys, mother,
Two hundred thousand more,
To bear the yoke of the secret pope,
And swear at this heathen door.

Masonry calls for boys, mother;
That dreaded call means more
Than leaving wife, and mother dear,
With Christ outside the door.

Go plead with your boy, mother;
Go, in the breath of prayer;
Don't let him stray this dark secret way,
A prey to the fowler's snare.

As she sang, the Spirit of God rested upon her, illumining voice, face and figure. Surely, it must have touched some mother's heart present and set it to thinking.

Then Mother Rockwood (our benediction, we sometimes call her) read extracts from Mother Blanchard's letter to Miss Frances E. Willard, corroborating them from her own experience, and related some of her memories; how she was taught by her mother about the killing of Morgan, and of a teacher in the school which she attended reading these extracts from Wayland's Moral Science, a testimony against secret societies, and telling them of his brother, who was a member of the same lodge as Morgan, and who, during that excitement, moved to Ohio to get rid of his conscience; also to avoid testifying; but his conscience went with him, and he finally moved back and gave his testimony. The entire session was given up to the question; and then there was not time for near all to be said that might have been with profit. Our good Bro. E. T. McIntire was there and would have been glad to have testified from experience; and J. P. Stoddard was ready with a word; but the Lord be praised that the truth was heard in a measure.

There were fully 125 present, I should think, our usual attendance being over 100 each Monday.

Do you wonder, dear sisters, that I felt like praising the Lord? and can you not see the necessity of awakening the Christian womanhood of our land to the dangers that beset the path of the sons they are rearing?

It is for this very purpose that I have appealed to you, my sisters, to give your dollars to sustain the "Home Light," that we may send it forth to the Christian mothers and sisters, many, nay, most, of whom are looking upon these secret orders as good, and advising their sons and husbands to join them.

Only one response has come to date to the appeal in the Cynosure of March 2, and that from a W. C. T. U. worker in Nebraska. Several have sent for sample copies, I am pleased to say; but where are the 199 who should answer the call to make up the $200 needed? Where, oh, where?

If you are interested in your sisters, and in the saving of their loved ones from this snare of secrecy, will you not respond speedily, telling what you will do, and sending in the money during the year? Yours for all reforms,

ANNA E. STODDARD.

FROM THE NEW ENGLAND AGENT.

Boston, Mass., March 15, 1893.

Our city has had another destructive fire, involving the loss of two or three lives and $4,500,000. As I saw the flame, first from the State House, and later from the roof of our hotel, leaping above the reach of all human control, and melting the solid structures in the fire-proof district in the business heart of the city, I recalled the Word of the Lord (2 Peter 3: 10), descriptive of the Judgment, and felt unspeakably grateful that a Refuge is provided in Christ from the terrors of the final and universal conflagration, coming "as a thief in the night" upon all the earth.

On the 8th inst. Rev. I. J. Lansing, formerly pastor in Worcester, was examined and installed pastor of "Old Park Street" Congregational church in this city. The council was large, and composed, in part, of the best known D.D.s. of New England. The examination was highly creditable to both council and candidate. Opportunity was allowed for a presentation of views by the candidate in his own way, in which he gave a most admirable account of his Christian experience, his call to the special work of the ministry, his doctrinal views, and his conceptions of what a soul-winner should be. Numerous questions followed, to which the replies were given in the frankest, most unequivocal manner. The audience, which was large, entered most heartily into the spirit of the occasion, and I doubt if there was a single dissenter from the opinion of the council that he was the man, above all others, for the place. I feel that Park Street church has a pastor worthy of her honorable record, and that she may safely confide in the "under-shepherd" whom she has chosen to lead in her moral and spiritual conflict. It is safe to say that every worthy cause has a faithful ally in Bro. Lansing, and that every reform, whether popular or otherwise, will find in him a judicious and fearless champion.

Our good sister, Mrs. E. Trask Hill, returned on Saturday last from a ten-days' campaign in Detroit, where she went to aid in organizing and instructing the forces of that city in their efforts to resist foreign aggression and preserve our free schools from the insidious secret foe. She speaks of her reception and treatment in the highest terms of commendation, and prophesies good concerning Detroit in the future. Sister Mary Carnes was among those who stood nobly at her

(Continued on 12th page.)

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE POLITICAL TROUBLES IN KANSAS.

NORTON, Kan., March 5, 1893.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—I send you the supplement of a Topeka paper, which contains a history of the troubles there, which intelligent, well-informed and sober people say is correct. You should have the opportunity of knowing the merits of the case, whatever be your prejudices respecting the so-called "People's party movement."

They are neither socialists nor anarchists, and none of these is a leader of them. They are simply an association of men in revolt against the domination of the irredeemable old parties, which are no holier in Kansas than elsewhere. The Republican party has shown itself, in the temperance struggle. To retain office has been its only and vital principle.

In Kansas it is the paw of a great railroad system, which will stop at no limits of order and decency to prevent the anticipated defensive legislation which the people intend to have.

Your Douglass informant does the cause of anti-secretism very little good by overlooking all the merits of this twenty-five-year-old movement under various names. It is a pity that so many ministers seem to the masses to be indifferent to their condition, and incapable of discharging a party when it has ceased to be anything but an obstacle to the kingdom of righteousness. The secretism practiced in a moderate form by a percentage of these revolting electors, seems to be, in some of our minds, a greater crime than the iniquitous system which these people are struggling to break up. It is nothing that should surprise any one, if mistaken methods are tried, and a good cause injured by the needless veil of secrecy. What then? Is it all wrong because the methods of some are objectionable in part? Will God pardon the sins of the oppressor and his allies because they find fault with the oppressed and their methods? Can we hoodwink the All-seeing One with a white handkerchief of mock piety? We have the Know-nothings, who resist Catholic rule in America. Are all those who resist Catholic rule to be berated with defamatory epithets, because the methods of a part are secret? We have Good Templars and Sons of Temperance. Is prohibition, therefore, a mistake, or its advocates damnable without distinction? I protest against any indiscriminate repetition of the devil's cant that repeats "crank," "anarchist," "demagogue" and "fanatic," instead of spending the requisite time for informing ourselves about the greatest revolution of the century.

What if the Israelites, despairing of relief, had organized in their own way to make a strike for freedom; would God and Moses have left them to the ridicule of the Pharaohs on that account? Or would he—as he did—take pity on them in their ignorance and smite the oppressor? Moreover, is a thing to be astonished at, if the people, not having been trained to the special functions of government, should make some mistakes when they first gather up the reins of runaway steeds? What if the reins get crossed? They will right the reins, and the wreck will be avoided.

Another thing I wish you to notice. Where did the Prohibition platform of the last campaign get its monetary, transportation and general industrial reform sentiments?

It has "out-Heroded Herod" in its demands for these reforms. Eight years ago, the platform was as shy of those things as either of the dead parties. For these sentiments—even to the very verbiage—they are indebted to the people now called Populists, who have had as many names as there have been Presidential elections. It is this unconscious leavening of the public mind that promises the victory; and we do well to have a modest respect for those who have performed the thankless task of enlightening and protesting.

If we do not have something in the form of a people's party we shall certainly have national ruin before our children have all become voters.

As to the double Topeka Legislature, you will notice,

1. That there is a grave doubt as to the precedent of allowing three men to undo the acts of the people by a strictly party vote among themselves. We have Supreme Court history enough already to argue the abolishment of that part of our system, even in its more legitimate sphere. The Dred Scott decision will do to go with several other very fallible deliverances from that branch of our government. So the Republican House were unwilling to wait even for that, and became the mob.

2. The governor and the popular party exhibited most commendable moderation when they were in possession of abundant proof of fraud.

3. If the Supreme Court had any place in the contest it should have been in hearing the evidence of these frauds.

4. The dissent of Judge Allen deals in a candid and masterly manner with broad principles, while the counter decision has the style of an attorney making a case out of conventionalities and dates of assumption—arguing, in effect, that possession, in spite of election, is ten points of law and makes the government.

No, the people are neither sick of the struggle, nor will they retreat. They must go ahead, for Pharaoh's army is behind them. Perhaps they need a Moses. (Rev.) A. J. CHITTENDEN.

THE DUTY THAT THE STATE OWES TO GOD.

WAUPACA, Wis., March 6, 1893.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—The obligation of human governments to recognize and obey God is both in natural and revealed law. It grows out of the relation of man to his Maker, and is as truly binding on men in their collective as in their individual capacity. "He that ruleth over men must be just, ruling in the fear of God." 2 Sam. 23: 3. The duties of the state and of the individual widely differ, but that they are equally binding is evident from our Saviour's command to "render unto Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's, and unto God the things that are God's." Cæsar, as a type of human government, had his rights and his responsibilities, both to man and to God.

The purposes for which human governments are instituted are well defined by the preamble of our national Constitution, "to provide for defence, to establish justice, and to secure the blessings of liberty." There are certain things that they may not do. They may not decree injustice, or establish iniquity. "Woe unto them that decree unrighteous decrees, and that write grievousness which they have prescribed; to turn aside the needy from judgment, and to take away the right from the poor of my people, that widows may be their prey, and that they may rob the fatherless." Isa. 10: 1, 2. This woe is quite sure to follow on all oppressors. Governments have no right to require of their subjects to disobey God, nor is the subject bound by such act of government. "We ought to obey God rather than men;" and hence governments have no right to engage in international war. For since no man has a right to kill his unoffending fellow-men, and has no right to promise unconditional obedience to his commanding officer, so the government has no right to require him to do so. The right and duty of the government to secure the protection of its people, includes only the right to protect them by legitimate means. As it is the duty of every individual to forgive injuries, to "follow peace with all men," and to suffer wrong rather than to disobey God, so it is the duty of governments to settle all international differences by peaceful methods and to submit to aggression rather than to resort to the nameless atrocities of war.

The state has no right to "establish religion, or to prohibit the free exercise thereof," nor to impair the rights of conscience, with this possible exception—that if the individual shall plead his conscientious obligation to do that which is contrary to fundamental morality—for example, practice polygamy, or offer human sacrifice—then such supposed rights of conscience may be denied. No government has a right to interfere with the preaching of any religion, or to define any question in theology or determine who may or may not perform religious rites.

While it is the right and duty of the government to protect all persons in an undisturbed observance of the Sabbath, it has no right to enter the field of the theological controversy and determine whether such Sabbath shall be observed on the first or the seventh day of the week. Nor is it the right of governments to punish men for not religiously observing any day, since it is not in the power of human authority to enforce religious obligation.

With these and some other limitations, we may safely affirm that it is the duty of the government, both State and national,

1. To recognize the existence and paramount authority of God, and to humbly reverence his name.

2. That divine law is the source of, and authority for, all human enactments.

3. To recognize the fact that this is a Christian, as distinguished from heathen nations, and that it is Christian and not heathen or Mohammedan morality that we are to recognize and conserve.

4. That all departments of business that impair the general well-being, such as the liquor traffic, gambling, prostitution, and the production and sale of tobacco, ought to be prohibited by law. This is a duty that the government owes both to God and to man.

5. That the charters of all institutions, into the esoteric character of which the government is not permitted to inquire, shall be withdrawn and withheld, and as such prohibited and suppressed.

There are doubtless many other duties which civil rulers owe to God and to the people; but, first of all, we ought to recognize and insist on the duty of the government to acknowledge the existence and the authority of the Almighty.

H. H. HINMAN.

LITERATURE.

THE CREDIBILITY OF THE CHRISTIAN RELIGION; or, Thoughts on Modern Rationalism. By Samuel Smith, M. P. One volume, pp. 96. Boston: H. L. Hastings, 47 Cornhill. Twelfth thousand. Cloth, price 35 cents; paper, 25 cents.

This excellent little work embraces the substance of two lectures, by a plain, practical man, and is designed to counteract the soul-destroying influence of unscriptural thought and the infidel teachings of irreligious persons and the secular and agnostic press. It has received unqualified approval for its intelligent grasp of important subjects, its vindication of the Bible as a divine revelation, its recorded miracles, and its doctrines in relation to the spiritual needs of mankind. The rationalistic objections to the truths of the Scriptures are ably met, and not only may the young find in it an antidote to the anti-Christian dogmas now so rife on every hand, but pastors and teachers who have had their minds disturbed by the fallacies of the "higher critics" may profit by its perusal. It is salutary, timely and deservedly popular.

The same publisher is also the editor of a well-known series of evangelical books known as "The Anti-infidel Library," printed in quarterly numbers, each strongly designed for the refutation of infidelity and the defense of the Gospel. We have at hand one of these booklets, entitled "Infidel Testimony Concerning the Truth of the Bible," by H. L. Hastings. It exhibits, in parallel columns, many passages of Scripture verified by the ancient inscriptions of Sennacherib and Nebuchadnezzar, and more than one hundred and seventy quotations from the writings of the prophets which are shown to have been fulfilled by seventy quotations from the works of skeptics like Volney and Gibbon; and these are confirmed by one hundred and fifty extracts from the writings of other historians and travelers. These have been selected with care from "The Demonstration of the Truth of the Christian Religion," by Dr. Alexander Keith, combined with comments and arguments by the compiler. The value of such a compilation of stern facts in support of the divine character of the Bible and its Author cannot be too highly estimated in bringing honest skeptics to understand and appreciate "the truth as it is in Christ Jesus". Price, in paper, 10 cents.

CURRENT PERIODICALS.

The March number of the American Sabbath, the official organ of the American Sabbath Union, is just from the press. The special features of this valuable paper will attract attention. The contents include articles on Sunday closing at the Columbian Exposition by Hon. John Bigelow, Bishop A. Cleveland Coxe, Dr. A. H. Plumb and others; also addresses by Prof. Herrick Johnson, Dr. W. W. Atterbury, Dr. T. A. Fernley, Dr. Joseph Cook, Dr. Mackay-Smith and Col. Elliott F. Shepard, delivered at the late hearing in Washington, D. C., on that subject. These papers and addresses are all choice reading. Excellent portraits of Bishop J. F. Hurst, of Washington, D. C., Drs. MacArthur and Elmendorf of New York City, and Col. Elliott F. Shepard, President of the American Sabbath Union, adorn its pages. Rev. J. H. Knowles, D. D., editor. Subscription price per year 50 cents. Any one enclosing 10 cents will receive a sample copy. Address the American Sabbath Union, 203 Broadway, New York.

The list of contents and contributors of the Arena for March is as follows: A Religion for All Time, by Louis R. Ehrich; The Social Quagmire and the Way Out—The Farmer, by Alfred R. Wallace, D. C. L.; Life After Death (with a full-page portrait), by Prof. S. P. Wait; A Pilgrimage and a Vision, by B. O. Flower; Women Wage-earners—Present Wage Rates in the United States, by Helen Campbell; A Defense of Shakspeare, by Dr. F. J. Furnivall; Does Bi-Chloride of Gold Cure Inebriety? by Leslie Keeley, M. D., LL. D.; Christ and the Liquor-Seller, by Helen M. Gougar (with a full-page portrait of the author); The Money Question, by John F. Clark; The Woman's Part, by Cora Maynard; Under the Arctic Circle, by John Keatley; The Leper of the Cumberlands, by Will Allen Dromgoole; Two Men, by Hattie Horner; What of the Morrow, by the editor, and Books of the Day. The Arena Publishing Co., Copley Square, Boston, Mass.

Demorest's Family Magazine for April presents a brilliant array of illustrations, including a full-page oil-picture (colored, "Poverty's Sacrifice," a full-page crayon head of the Christ, and 230 other engravings, embellishing, among others, the following letter-press attractions:—Society Leaders of Illinois, by Francis Loomis, with many portraits; The Foreign Legations at Washington, by Francis B. Johnston, with views and portraits; The Hawaiian Islands, by E. G. Chester, with scenes and portraits; En Route for Chicago—Hints for Women Traveling (illustrated), by Harriet C. Wilkie; A Debutante's Winter in New York, by Margaret Besland (continued), and a great variety of minor articles, poems, games; home, social and fashionable departments, etc., embracing much that is tasteful and entertaining. New York: W. Jennings Demorest. $2.00 a year.

The March number of the Sunny Hour, edited and published by Tello d'Avery (a boy sixteen years old), is received. This lad is the founder of a successful mission for destitute children at No. 59 West Twenty-fourth street, New York City. It is known as the "Sunny Hour Permanent Barefoot Mission," and was opened in January last, although Tello's good work in supplying destitute children with shoes had its origin two or three years ago. He has many friends and patrons, whose names are recorded in his magazine, including sovereigns, princes and noted literary and social kings and queens in foreign countries and the United States. His mission has branches in Athens, Greece; Paris, France, and Newark, N. J., and he seems to be very successful in the work which he controls. His address is at the above number.

IN BRIEF.

There are 575 churches in Philadelphia.

Thirteen hens in Niles, Mich., laid 1,159 eggs last year.

The United States chewed eighty-five tons of tobacco last year.

Printing in raised characters for the blind was invented in 1827.

There are over seventy miles of tunnels cut in the solid rock of Gibraltar.

Ten days per annum is the average amount of sickness of human life.

The progeny of two rabbits will amount in two years to 70,000,000.

The saloons of London if set side by side would reach a distance of 75 miles.

A signal passes through the Atlantic cable, 2,700 miles in 31.100 of a second.

The temperature of the planet Neptune is estimated to be 900 degrees below zero.

Seven thousand persons a day are added to the population of the United States.

There are 1,275 millionaires in New York City. In the entire country there are 4,204.

The famous dish of Vitellius was of pheasants' brains, nightingales' tongues and fish liver.

There are fourteen canneries on the Columbia river and twenty-three in the State of Oregon.

Denmark has a system of insurance that provides for honest poor who are over sixty years of age.

Three fresh recruits in the garrison at Strasburg committed suicide rather than serve in the German army.

British India has 10,417 shops licensed for the sale of opium. They supply a population of 228,000,000.

Jerusalem is still supplied with water from Solomon's pools through an aqueduct built by the crusaders.

Try it. As a rule, the length of the face is the same as the length of the hand, unless you are very cheeky.

In the southern provinces of Russia a drink resembling brandy is obtained by distilling the juice of watermelons.

Pole-axes were first used in the ninth century; the short, heavy-headed battle-ax was employed in very early times.

Kentucky will try the experiment of permitting three-fourths of a jury in civil cases (nine jurors) to render a verdict.

The blood of dogs fatigued by long racing, when injected into other dogs, makes them exhibit all the symptoms of fatigue.

An Englishman has invented a new system of electric mains whereby one wire of the present three-wire system can be saved.

A young woman in England has been convicted of administering pins to a baby under her charge. The culprit's name was Cushion.

The Simplon road, from Switzerland to Italy, was built by Napoleon's engineers in 1807. Over 40,000 workmen were employed at one time.

An acre grows 500 mulberry trees; each tree has twenty pounds of leaves; from twenty pounds of leaves one pound of cocoons is produced.

The cocoon of a well-fed silkworm, it is said, will often yield a thread 1,000 yards long, and one has been produced which contained 1,295 yards.

Philadelphia is entitled to be known as the city of sisterly love. According to the recent police census the city boasts of 23,000 more women than men.

A man was boasting that he had been married for twenty years, and had never given his wife a cross word. Those who know him say he didn't dare to.

The custom of placing crape on the door of a house where there has been recent death had its origin in the ancient English heraldic customs, and dates as far back, at least, as the year 1,100 A. D. At that period hatchments or armorial ensigns were placed in front of houses when the nobility and gentry died. The hatchments were of diamond shape, and contained the family arms, quartered and colored with sable.

How much money is there in circulation? $1,611,321,753, says the Director of the Mint, in his recent report. Of this about $500,000,000 is in gold and gold certificates. This is nearly one-third of the the total. There are but $346,000,000 of greenbacks.

Positive Proof.

A Strong Claim to Make, and a Claim to Make Strong.

The marked benefit which people in run down or weakened state of health derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla, conclusively proves the claim that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant, imparting fictitious strength from which there must follow a reaction of greater weakness than before, but possessing just those elements which the system needs and readily seizes. Hood's Sarsaparilla builds up in a perfectly natural way, all the weakened parts, acts upon the blood as a purifier and vitalizer, and assists to healthy action those important organs, the kidneys and liver.

"I can hardly estimate the benefit received from using Hood's Sarsaparilla. Last summer I was prostrated for nearly three months, from poor circulation of blood, as I thought, although my physician treated me for nervous trouble. This spring the same symptoms returned, and I concluded to be my own physician, and began using Hood's Sarsaparilla. I have not lost one day from my work, and feel like a different person since using it.

"My daughter, age nine years, has always complained of her stomach hurting her, and she has had treatment for that ailment, by my physician, without benefit. Since using Hood's Sarsaparilla I have not heard one complaint from her, and her appearance surely indicates a decided change for the better. Consequently, from personal and family use, I cannot say too much in praise of Hood's Sarsaparilla." R. J. REILEY, Business Manager Gazette, St. Clairsville, Ohio.

WE SEND FREE

with this beautiful Organ an Instruction Book and a handsome, upholstered stool! The organ has 11 stops, 5 octaves, and is made of solid Walnut. Warranted by us for 15 years. We only charge $45 for this beautiful instrument. Send to-day for FREE illustrated catalogue. OXFORD BFG. CO Chicago.

WHEATON COLLEGE, WHEATON, ILL.

A School for Men and Women. SPRING TERM BEGINS APRIL 4th, 1893.

Full College Courses, Preparatory Courses, Stenography, Typewriting, Vocal Music and Blackboard Drawing, without extra charge.

ORAS. A. BLANCHARD, Pres.

IF YOU WANT WORK

that is pleasant and profitable, send us your address immediately. We teach men and women how to earn from $5 per day to $3,000 per year without having had previous experience, and furnish the employment at which they can make that amount. Capital unnecessary. A trial will cost you nothing. Write to-day and address, E. C. ALLEN & CO., Box 1001. Augusta, Me.

GRATEFUL-COMFORTING. EPPS'S COCOA

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many a heavy doctor's bill. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette. Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in half-pound tins, by Grocers, labelled thus: JAMES EPPS & Co., Homoeopathic Chemists London, England.

ANTI-SECURETY TRACTS.

The following numbers are in stock, and can be had at the wholesale price of 25 cents per pound:

4. Freemasonry in the Family.
7. To the Boys who Hope to be Men.
8. Modern Heathenism.
9. Ministers at Rival Altars.
10. A Pastor's Confession.
12. Alexander Campbell's Estimate of the Lodge.
15. Secrecy and Sin.
22. Extracts from Masonic Oaths and Penalties as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.
37. Why a Christian should not be a Freemason (German).
38. Masonic Oaths and Penalties.
39. Should Freemasons be Admitted to Christian Fellowship?
42. Our Duty and Ability to Know the Character of Masonry.
45. Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?

The above are the only tracts in stock in large quantities. There are a few of several other numbers. Remember that these are being retailed at wholesale prices—25 cents per pound. Keep a package of Anti-masonic tracts for use in letters.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION, 321 W. Madison St., Chicago.

AGENTS AND LECTURERS.

NEW ENGLAND DEPARTMENT.—Rev. J. P. Stoddard, Agent, 218 Columbus Ave., Hotel Howland, Boston.

EASTERN DEPARTMENT.—W. B. Stoddard, Agent, No. 215, 4½ St., Washington, D. C.

CENTRAL DEPARTMENT.—Rev. M. A. Gault, Blanchard, Ia.

WESTERN DEPARTMENT.—Rev. W. C. Paden, Oakland, Kan.

PACIFIC DEPARTMENT.—address Rev. S. Mathew, Canby, Oregon.

COLLEGE AGENT, Rev. S. F. Porter Cynosure office.

OTHER LECTURERS.

- C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
- Rev. H. H. Hinman, Oberlin, O.
- Nathan Callender Montdale Pa.
- J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
- T. B. McCormick, Princeton, Ind.
- E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
- H. A. Day, Brighton, Mich.
- J. M. Bishop, Chambersburg, Pa.
- A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
- J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
- W. M. Love, Osceola, Mo.
- J. K. Glassford, Carthage, Mo.
- Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Minn.
- J. S. Perry, Thompson, Conn.
- Rev. E. Mathews, Long Island City, N. Y.
- E. Barnetson, Haskinville, N. Y.
- D. A. Richards, Brighton, Mich.
- A. W. Parry, Evanston, Ill.

SCOTCH RITE MASONRY ILLUSTRATED.

The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33d inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all Masonic rites, and are fully and accurately given in

"FREEMASONRY ILLUSTRATED,"

as advertised, but the signs, grips, passwords etc., of these three degrees are given at the close of Vol 2 of

"Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated"

Vol. 1 of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3d to 18th inclusive. Vol. 2 of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 19th to 33d inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive. Price per volume, paper cover, 50 cents each, in cloth, $1 each. Each volume per dozen, paper covers, $4; per dozen, cloth bound, $9.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern. Table of Contents: The Antiquity of Secret Societies, The Life of Julian, The Eleusinian Mysteries, The Origin of Masonry, Was Washington a Mason? Fillmore and Webster's Deference to Masonry, A Brief Outline of the Progress of Masonry in the United States, The Tammany Ring, Masonic Benevolence, The Uses of Masonry. An Illustration, The Conclusion. 50c each.

THE N. C. A. BUILDING

(The gift of Philo Carpenter.)

—AND OFFICE OF—

The Christian Cynosure, 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO

The National Christian Association

PRESIDENT—Rev. M. A. Gault, Blanchard, Iowa.

VICE PRESIDENT—John Dorcas, Tipton, Iowa.

FIELD SEC'Y and TREASURER—W. J. Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

CORRESPONDING SEC'Y—Rev. H. L. Kellogg, Wheaton, Ill.

REC. SECRETARY—Mrs. E. A. Cook Chicago.

DIRECTORS—T. B. Arnold, C. A. Blanchard, E. A. Cook, J. M. Hitchcock, G. R. Milton, J. P. Richards, E. Whipple, E. R. Worrell, Edgar Wylie W. M. Howie, H. F. Kletsing.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

NEW ENGLAND.—Pres., Rev. J. M. Foster, Boston, Mass.; Sec'y, Miss E. E. Flagg, Wellesley, Mass.; Treas., L. E. Lincoln, Boston.

CONNECTICUT.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Willimantic; Sec., David J. Ellsworth, Windsor; Treas., C. T. Odins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.—Pres., Rev. R. W. Chesnut, Marissa; Sec., Rev. J. R. Wylie, Coulterville; Treas., Rev. W. I. Phillips, Cynosure office, Chicago.

IOWA.—Pres., John Dorcas, Tipton; Sec., Rev. T. P. Robb, Linton; Treas., Rev. L. Mendenhall, Fairfield.

KANSAS.—Pres., Rev. C. H. Strong, Lawrence; Vice-Pres., Rev. J. L. Countermine, Hlawatha; Sec., Rev. D. H. Coulter, Winchester; Treas., Joseph A. Torrence, Dehison.

NEBRASKA.—Pres., Rev. W. I. Brooks, Pawnee City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. G. Widen, Mead; Sec., Howard P. Young, Wahoo; Treas., Rev. T. H. Dabney, Hooper.

MAINE.—Pres., Isaac Jackson, Harrison; Sec., I. D. Haines, Dexter; Treas., H. W. Goddard, West Sidney.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Pres., S. A. Pratt, Worcester.

MICHIGAN.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec., H. A. Day, Brighton; Treas., Geo. Swanson, Jr., Bedford.

MINNESOTA.—Pres., S. B. Sjoblom, Fergus Falls; Cor. Sec., Wm. Fenton, St. Paul; Rec. Sec., Mrs. M. F. Morrill, St. Charles; Treas., Wm. H. Morrill, St. Charles.

MISSOURI.—Pres., J. F. Beauchamp, Denver; Sec., M. N. Butler, Darlington; Treas., Rev. C. G. Cox, Grant City.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—Pres., Robt. A. Frohock, Alton; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., James F. French, Canterbury.

NEW YORK.—Pres., Rev. S. R. Wallace, Syracuse; Sec., Rev. W. H. Clark, Binghamton; Treas., Lucius Woodruff, Binghamton.

OHIO.—Pres., J. W. Martin, Mt. Perry; Rec. Sec., A. T. Vestal, Senecaville; Cor. Sec. and Treas., E. Thomson, Senecaville.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Pres., Samuel S. Collins, Allegheny; Sec., J. S. T. Milligan, Beaver; Treas., R. C. Wylie, Wilkinsburg.

WISCONSIN.—Pres., J. B. Galloway, Poyette; Sec., Isalah Faris, Vernon; Treas. J. W. Wood, Baraboo.

The Christian Cynosure.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, MARCH 23, 1893.

OUR QUARTER CENTENNIAL.

Twenty-five years ago (May 5-7, 1868) the National Christian Association was organized in Dr. A. M. Milligan's church in Pittsburg. Bishop David Edwards, of blessed memory, was its first president. The Cynosure began in a few weeks. Spite of vituperation, scorn, opposition and persecution which attempted to obscure and hide it, as clouds do its Pole Star prototype, it gleams above earth's darkness still, a beacon to multitudes groping in the shadow.

It is fitting that this anniversary year should be honored with some noble effort for our reform. The World's Fair is a happy coincidence. For the opportunity it gives us, let us thank God that '93, instead of '92, was the year chosen for this great exposition.

LET US MAKE IT AN EPOCH.

Such a conjunction of affairs will not soon again occur. We are not wise if we let the occasion slip.

"There is a tide in the affairs of men,
Which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune."

Now, while we must maintain the steady flow of literature from our reform headquarters, and keep our lecturers on their feet doing their utmost, the hour calls for an unusual effort.

OUR PLAN

is thus far developed. The N. C. A. Board is providing:

1. For the World's Fair Exhibit in the northwest gallery of the main building, in connection with the churches and other religious and reform societies. The plan of this exhibit has been already described. We have "devised liberal things" to the utmost degree consistent with the economy due to our cause. To keep this exhibit manned for six months after it is in place, and provide for a generous distribution of literature, will cost not a cent less than $1,000. Bro. Stoddard has agreed, if necessary, to come on for a few weeks from Boston to shake hands with his hosts of friends in the N. C. A. alcove. We want so attractive a place that two men will be needed the whole six months.

WHAT AN OPPORTUNITY

this will be for our reform! Never in the twenty-five years have we had anything like it.

2. For a conference by the churches and for the churches in connection with our annual meeting, which it is proposed to hold in June (the Board has not yet fixed the time). This will be a bona fide conference,

A MEETING TO CONSIDER FACTS, and not to make speeches. Delegates to this meeting are appointed by the church assemblies. It will be their meeting. We hold there are questions relating to the lodge which the church is bound to consider, and which it will consider if it has a chance. We hope much from this meeting, in bringing the churches forward into line on these questions. Until they do so our cause will not succeed. This meeting is being planned with rigid economy and will not be expensive. The Board has voted only to furnish entertainment.

THE CONGRESS.

3. The managers of the World's Fair Auxiliary, who have arranged a series of congresses covering a vast range of topics relating to politics, business, the social, civil and religious life of mankind, have accepted at last the proposition of our Association. A day and a hall is promised, probably in October. This will be a meeting for speeches, AND THE BEST OF THEM. We must spare no pains or expense to make this a crowning meeting of the season. Representatives from the governments of Christendom will be present. The addresses will be published by the managers of the Auxiliary and given to the world, but we must give them something worth printing.

PARTNERS WANTED.

Now the N. C. A. Board wants to make partners of a hundred or more of its good friends. To speak personally,—your business, possibly, cannot have an exhibit at the Fair,

BUT YOUR PRINCIPLES CAN.

Now twenty-five dollars from each of you, as a quarter-centennial investment, is not asking too much. Take a share in this exhibit, allowing the Board to be your agents in providing for an economical and useful investment.

It is an opportunity not again to occur. Let us "strike while the iron is hot;" and may God bless our cause.

Let an early response be made to our treasurer for this "Columbian fund," and when you visit Chicago next time you will have the satisfaction of having a share in the greatest of expositions, in the worthiest of reforms, and your money will be where it can't be picked from your pockets. HENRY L. KELLOGG, Cor. Sec'y.

ABOUT THE COLUMBIAN EXPOSITION.

Those who have read the press reports concerning the Columbian Exposition of 1893 during the past two years must have conceived a tolerably fair idea of its inception, progress and greatness, for no World's Fair has ever enjoyed a more liberal or wider advertising than this.

At its organization stock was issued and sold to individuals and companies, in sufficient quantities and at prices that indicated the popularity of the proposed exhibition, and aided it in presenting its claims to Congress for munificent appropriations of the public money, thus procuring for it a national indorsement.

The sums which it received in this manner amount, in the aggregate, as free gifts, to many millions of dollars.

Every effort has been made to advertise it throughout the civilized globe, until it is certain that it will surpass in magnificence, variety, and wealth, any previous exposition.

In consequence of this universal advertising, hundreds of thousands of people, from all parts of the world, are expected to visit the Exposition and witness its grandeur.

This popularity at home and abroad, however, has had a bad influence upon the owners and managers of the Exposition; and it is matter for sincere regret that so great an enterprise should at this time, within a few weeks of the opening ceremonies, develop a greed and meanness in its management unworthy of anything larger than a pawnbroker's shop.

But it is nevertheless true that this spirit of selfishness and rapacity abounds at Jackson Park. Here is the evidence:

At the outset a strong demonstration was made by numerous persons of all classes, including some professed Christians, to open the gates of the Exposition on Sunday, in the alleged interest of wage-workers, against the divine command to keep holy the Lord's day, against the expressed desire of hundreds of thousands of Christians, and against the wishes of numerous exhibitors who decided to cover their exhibits on that day, and will do so. It is a significant fact that some of these exhibitors reside in Europe, whose "Continental Sunday" visiting, feasting, and sports the enemies of the American Sabbath so loudly praise.

But the voice of the Christians, and their prayers in behalf of keeping the Lord's day holy at the fair grounds, were heard and heeded in Congress; and when the Exposition managers applied for more money, in the shape of a $5,000,000 loan, that body generously gave them $2,500,000 on condition that the gates of the Exposition should be closed on Sunday. To enhance the value of the gift, Congress enabled the Exposition managers to sell half-dollar souvenirs (containing only 32 cents' worth of silver) for one dollar each, thus making the donation equal to $5,000,000.

The Exposition buildings were dedicated in October last, and ever since then the Exposition gates have been thrown open every Sunday to admit all visitors, at 25 cents a head. No attention whatever, up to this time, has been paid to the Congressional contract with the management in this respect, although they have received the souvenir half-dollars and sold them—the first one bringing $10,000.

As if this were not enough, the management again applied to Congress for more money, and received another sum of $570,880, as a loan, for the payment of jurors, etc. Yet, on Sunday, the 12th instant, 14,560 persons were admitted to the park on payment of 25 cents each at the gates.

Still worse, the Inter Ocean of last Thursday made this statement, which will probably prove true in every particular:

Commissioner J. W. St. Clair has a scheme, which will be presented to the members of the board of directors, whereby he is confident the gates of Jackson Park may be opened to the public on Sundays during the period of the Exposition. He holds that when Congress made the appropriation of $570,880 to be paid out of the appropriation of $2,500,000 previously made for the benefit of the Exposition, to enable the National Commission to defray the expenses of the judges of awards, it violated the agreement made when the sum of $2,500,000 was appropriated, and thereby released the directory from its obligation to close the fair on Sunday. He proposes that the directory put up the bond for the $570,880 as demanded by Congress, and then rescind its action ordering the fair closed on the Sabbath. The commission will indorse the action of the directory, and the will of the majority of the people will be done.

Another thing: It is due to this insatiable rapacity which abounds at Jackson Park that unlimited quantities of beer are to be sold at nearly 100 stands within the grounds during the existence of the Exposition—the actual amount, as estimated, exceeding 5,000 barrels a day; and this in defiance of State and township ordinances.

To this same unhallowed spirit of greed and meanness is due the concession of the management to a syndicate of plumbers of the right to erect 3,000 water closets on the Exposition grounds to which no visitor is admitted except on the payment of five cents.

A more picayunish regulation was never established by any corporation to whom the interests of so mighty an undertaking were confided. Nothing like it dims the record of any previous world's fair.

With billions of gallons of good fresh water laving the shores of the Exposition grounds, the thirsty visitor (says the Chicago Mail) must pay five cents for a drink of nature's element; and, if tired, he can obtain a seat in the grounds for ten cents.

If visitors attempt to enter certain departments to view special exhibits they will have to pay an extra admission fee. The Chicago Tribune has figured up the cost of seeing the Exhibition at one visit, at about $12.50.

It is now announced that the Exposition grounds are to remain open to the public every Sunday until the installation on the first of May. Last Sunday the price of admission to the grounds was advanced from 25 cents to 50 cents per head.

These statements are easily verified; and, if the present policy of the management is maintained, the city of Chicago will be more greatly injured by their rapacity than it can possibly be benefited by the Exposition.

INHUMANITY IN MOROCCO.

The Howard Association of London, Eng., was instituted under the patronage of the late Lord Brougham, for the promotion of the best methods of penal treatment and crime prevention. It labors to indoctrinate the public mind with the importance of a reformatory and radically preventive treatment. During the past few years two members of the executive committee of this Association have more than once visited Morocco, where they were painfully impressed by the shocking treatment received by prisoners and others in that country. In many instances they endeavored to afford temporary relief to these poor sufferers; but they are desirous that European, and especially British, influence should be brought to bear, if possible, upon the Moorish government, with a view to the general mitigation of these asperities. The statements of the visiting members of the committee, as published in the London Times of January 7, 1893, reveal a series of terrible abuses, among which slave-trade is included. The following will faintly indicate the barbarity to which the people are subjected: "A Moor may be seized at the will of the Sultan, or of a governor, and may remain all his life in prison without trial, or indeed without knowing the nature of his offence. The guilty are not usually sent to prison. It is the innocent person possessing means who is pounced upon and made to pay debts he never contracted. The Sultan's army is formed for collecting taxes, and carrying out all kinds of oppression against defenceless people. The highest official in the State is never secure in his position. To-day he may be in favor; to-morrow may find him a prisoner in a filthy dungeon, or poisoned by a cup of coffee."

WOMAN SUFFRAGE IN ILLINOIS.

In Jefferson county, Illinois, Martha E. Plummer and Mary M. Moss, of Mt. Vernon, were elected members of the school board, but a local court declared their election illegal and removed them from the board. The case was appealed to the State Supreme Court, and quite recently its opinion was made public. It construes the law of 1891, and holds that in Illinois women may vote for all school officers in the State except two; that is the State superintendent of schools and the county superintendent of schools. "This opinion," says the Chicago Legal News, "is of great importance, as the construction placed upon this statute shows that it is within the power of the legislature to pass a law allowing women to vote for any officer not named in the constitution but created by the legislature." By this decision the ruling of the lower court was reversed, and the ladies were reinstated in the board of education.

In addition, the editor of the Legal News proposes the passage of a law granting that "the women of the State of Illinois shall have the same right that men have to vote for candidates for any office created by the General Assembly, in any county, city, town or village."

Such a law would greatly aid in the suppression of the saloons and the lodge system, and several other social reforms, for which there is now a great necessity.

FREEMASONRY IN FRANCE.

From French sources, reproduced in the Catholic Review, it is learned that the contest between the adherents of the Roman church and the Freemasons, in France, continues with unabated ardor. The Catholics, claiming to represent Christianity, are a majority in the religious element of the nation, and profess the necessity of maintaining the national honor in behalf of their hierarchy. The Freemasons of France, on the other hand, several years ago, expunged the name of God from their rituals and records, and are nothing more or less than confirmed atheists. These circumstances give color of a religious war to the contest.

Germany and other European sovereignties long ago expelled the Jesuits from their realms as a dangerous foe to their national peace.

Even in France, Romanism finds it difficult to combat the influences that oppose it. "Its real enemy," says the Catholic Review, "is Freemasonry. . . . It divides Frenchmen of the thinking classes into two camps—Christians and Freemasons. Up to the present the latter have had their own way in the war being waged against religion in France. They have had it, too, in the present bankruptcy of honor and credit which displays the unwonted sight of the severest penalties falling on the least culpable, while fraudulent ministers escaped unscathed." With this there is a prevailing impression that there yet remains an amount of turpitude to be revealed in connection with the government and the Panama scandals, or which perhaps will never be revealed, for the sake of public credit. How to combat Freemasonry now rampant in France and the cause of all the mischief, is a question which the Catholic party is trying to settle in view of the approaching elections. The Gazette de France and the Soleil each gives its views on the subject, though they quarrel in so doing. The Soleil, in a rather remarkable article, says: The Masonic lodges are the fortresses where the enemy are concealed. We must take these fortresses by assault if the work of national deliverance is to be accomplished. The mot d'ordre of the party which gave us the Panamist Republic was 'Clericalism is the enemy.' Therefore the rallying cry of the opposite party should now be 'Freemasonry is the enemy.' The Gazette de France says:—If the Catholics of different parties are sincere they can easily refuse their votes to any candidate affiliated to Freemasonry. They have only to agree among themselves to reject any candidate who will not have signed the following declaration:—"I affirm on my honor before God and before men that I am not a Freemason."

We shall watch the progress of this contest with considerable interest, forbearing comment until another time.

THE CHURCH AND SECRET SOCIETIES.

At a recent meeting of bishops of the Roman Catholic church, it was resolved to investigate the internal character of the I. O. O. F. and the K. of P. Accordingly Bishop Katzer addressed a letter to the Grand Secretary of the Wisconsin Grand Lodge of the I. O. O. F., requesting a copy of their ritual containing their esoteric work. It is said that the matter has been referred to the Grand Lodge, with a moral certainty that the request will not be granted.

We need not say that we have no admiration for, or sympathy with, the Roman hierarchy. We deplore their opposition to our public school system, and that so large a percentage of the saloon-keepers are members of that church. We have also very little hope of any real opposition they may make to the secret lodge system, since it is quite obvious that they are willing to accept to their fellowship any order with which they can make terms.

Nevertheless, we should be unjust not to recognize the righteousness of the principle involved in this inquiry. It is manifestly the right and duty of every religious organization to have reasonable evidence that the obligations which its members have taken in other societies are not in violation of the principles of Christian morality. If they have reason to fear that there is anything in the usages or obligations of a secret order that are out of harmony with the duties which their members have assumed, they ought to know what are those usages and obligations, and if a member of the church refuses to make them known, they should at once withdraw their fellowship. This right of inquiry is inherent in all societies, and it is only by its exercise that the moral purity of the church can be maintained. Yes, we thank the Roman Catholic bishops for asserting this principle.

CABOT VS. COLUMBUS.

Rt. Rev. Wm. S. Perry, Episcopal Bishop of Iowa, recently delivered a lecture at Baltimore, Md., on "The Struggles Between the Latin Faith and the American People," in the course of which he said:

To John Cabot, an Englishman, and not to Columbus, a Genoese adventurer, belongs the credit of the first discovery of North America. It was for the English crown and the English church that the daring Cabot took possession of this territory. In raising the cross of Christ on the continent on which he was the first to set foot, Cabot laid claim by priority of discovery of England's first right to rule and control against that set up by Rome. Strangely different would have been our Christianity and our history had the crown of Castile and the Roman cross been first planted here. But God directed their course otherwise, and led us into the hands of the Anglo-Saxon and into a faith founded on Magna Charta. It gave us a civilization that is broad and liberal and human, and not such as is fastened upon Mexico. Let us thank God that Columbus did not discover the North American continent, and that we neither owe country, faith, history, literature nor civilization to Spain or Rome.

The records of American discovery furnish the following statements:

John (Giovanni) Cabot, of Spanish nativity, whose business compelled him to reside much at Bristol, was appointed by Henry VII. of England to the command of a squadron of five vessels to make a voyage of discovery, and on the 24th of June, 1497, he sighted the coast of Labrador, N. A. In 1499 he made a voyage in the Gulf of Mexico.

The discoveries of Columbus were as follows: 1492, the Bahama Islands, Cuba and San Domingo; 1493, the Caribbee Islands and Jamaica; 1498 (a year after Cabot discovered North America), Trinidad and the mouths of the Orinoco, landing at Paria, in South America; 1502, he sailed to discover a passage, between Paria and Honduras, from the Atlantic to the Pacific Oceans. It is very doubtful whether Columbus ever caught a glimpse of North America.

Bishop Perry was right.

IN MEMORIAM.

The Pennsylvania State Anti-Secrecy Convention, Allegheny, Feb. 27 and 28, appointed a committee to frame an appropriate memorial on the death of Mrs. George, the wife of Rev. H. H. George, D.D. The committee reported as follows:

We, the members of the Pennsylvania Christian Association Convention, have been startled and pained by the announcement of the sudden death of Mrs. George, wife of Rev. H. H. George, D.D., a brother dear to us for his devotion to the cause of Christ and all Christian reforms. This sad event has the added element of sorrowfulness in that it occurred so suddenly and unexpectedly, and that from the dying wife and bereaved children the husband and father was so far away.

Resolved, 1. That we deeply lament the early death and ended labors of our sister in the field, when such workers are so greatly needed in the home, the church and the world.

2. That while we sincerely sympathize with the bereaved husband and motherless children in their terrible loss, we would remember ourselves and remind them that it was God who did it, and that "God is love;" and we pray that as their sorrows abound their comfort may abound also. We ask them to think not only of the earthly home desolated, but of the heavenly home promised by our Lord Jesus.

3. That the calling of another laborer to enter into rest admonishes us all to work while the day lasts.

4. That a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to the family.

D. S. LITTELL,
MRS. J. S. COLLINS,

—Rev. T. J. Allen, of Mercer, Pa., has recently been called to the pastorate of the Covenant church at Sterling, Kan., and is expected soon to enter upon the work there. He is a wide-awake friend of reform, and the prayers of Cynosure workers will go with him to his new field.

—Among the first acts of Mr. Cleveland's new administration was his veto of the plan to have "sacred concerts" on Sunday in his honor, at the Pension Building in Washington. When our rulers respect the Lord's day, and shield it from desecration, there is hope that God will continue to bless our nation.

—Rev. S. H. Swarts, who has already shown himself an approved worker in the anti-secrecy cause in several of our State conventions, in a private note expresses himself as follows: "I am glad if God will help me in any way to aid the great work for the home, the church and the nation against the lodge." We need many such earnest and efficient co-workers among the pastors of Christian churches.

—Rev. W. B. Stoddard, in a private letter, makes this pleasant allusion to a former well-known student of Wheaton College: "I returned home last evening from a short trip. I spent Sabbath with Rufus L. Park, 719 Tremont street, Philadelphia. We went together, on Saturday evening, to Morristown, N. J., where he gave a prohibition chalk-talk, and did grandly. He expects to go West in June."

—Messiah's Herald, of Boston, announces that a new story, "A Prisoner of Hope," by Miss Elizabeth E. Flagg, author of "Between Two Opinions," and "Holden With Cords," and our own esteemed New England correspondent, will be begun in the columns of that paper, in its issue for April 5, running through several numbers. "The heroine of the story is a cripple, who has been advised to try different methods of healing. The story tells how she was at last healed, but while showing how this was accomplished, the author also deals with certain erroneous ideas concerning bodily infirmities. The story will be of interest to all, and especially to all those who are shut in." Those of the Cynosure readers who read Miss Flagg's graphic letters last summer, from Newark, N. J., where she sought and found relief from infirmities brought upon her by an accident, will remember the peculiar charm with which she related her experiences. The new story, we opine, is founded upon that interesting episode.

THE HOME.

WHEN TO BE A DANIEL

BY REV. A. J. CHITTENDEN.

O, it's safe to be a Daniel
 When the people are agreed
 That the very thing you argue for
 Is just the thing they need;—
 When the world is very willing,
 And the bad are very good,
 You may safely be a Daniel:
 You'll be always understood.

You may dare to be a Daniel—
 When you've figured out the chance,
 And the people like the music,
 And will join you in the dance;
 But if anybody's knees begin
 To weaken in the play,
 Then lay away the fiddle
 Till a favorable day.

You may dare to be a Daniel
 When the people are so kind
 That they wouldn't hurt a Daniel
 Should he want to speak his mind;
 When the Daniels are so plenty
 That you never would be known,
 Then, dare to be a Daniel; yes,
 And dare to stand alone!

It will do to be a Daniel,
 When they have a 'Daniel's band',
 And the street is full of Daniels,
 And they're crowding on the stand,
 And the drums beat up for Daniel,
 And the horns blow off your hat;—
 O, I'd like to be a Daniel, too,
 In such a time as that.

Then we'll all be little Daniels,
 When not otherwise engaged;
 When our wives have 'killed the bear',
 And the lions are all caged:
 When the wise are all converted
 And the 'fools' have won the fight,
 Then we'll all be brave as Daniel,
 And as valiant for the right.

Yes, Dare to be a Daniel—
 Is very fine to sing,
 If t'will only raise a regiment
 Of Daniels for the King:
 But I'm thinking it were better
 If we'd show the people how
 It would sanctify the singing more
 TO BE A DANIEL NOW.

A NAMELESS HERO.

BY MRS. VICTORIA ALEXANDRA STONE.

Bang! crash! bang! All day long the bullets had crashed, hissed and exploded around the little log hut in the woods where John Wilson and his family were concealed. They were Union refugees, and it was the second day of the battle of the Wilderness. They were on their way to the Federal camp when they were overtaken by the roar of the battle and were compelled to take shelter in the little log hut.

The company consisted of Wilson, his wife, three children and a Negro servant. They had been concealed in the hut for twenty-four hours, and in all that time no food or drink had passed their lips. It was now sunset, and there was a lull in the firing. John Wilson lifted his head from the floor where he had been lying, and said: "If I could only get word to the Federal pickets I am sure they would send an escort to take us to their camp. It will be a dark night, and I think I shall go."

"But the rebel sharpshooters are concealed everywhere, and your life would pay the forfeit," said his wife; "and, besides, you do not know what direction to take, and you might be captured by the rebel pickets."

"That is so," he said; "but what shall we do?"

At this the Negro, who was crouched in a corner, apparently asleep, arose and said: "I will go. I can find the Union pickets, and I am not afraid. I will go."

"But do you know it will be almost certain death, Sam?"

"Yes, but I will go."

As he rose to his feet you saw that he was a splendid specimen of his race, coal-black, over six feet tall, with a noble head and an intelligent face. It was now dark, and, opening the door, the Negro disappeared into the silent night.

All day long next day, under a tropical sun, and with the roar of battle all around them, the refugees crouched in their little hut, waiting for the help that did not come. As the long afternoon wore away, hope changed to dread, and dread to despair. It grew dark, and Sam had not returned. Hours passed away, and, at last, just as the refugees were composing themselves to sleep, a gentle rap was heard at the door. Wilson opened it, and there stood three Federal soldiers. How the hearts of the poor refugees rejoiced! How cheering was the sight of the Federal blue!

"We have come to take you to our camp," they said.

"But where is Sam?" said Mrs. Wilson.

"Sam? your Negro? Oh, he is dead," they said. Then, amid the silence that followed, one of the soldiers spoke suddenly, saying:

"What a brave fellow that Negro was! It seems he captured a rebel horse in the ravine, just below here, and at a late hour last night he came galloping into our camp. The rebel sharpshooters fired at him from all sides, and he must have been struck by at least a dozen bullets, for his black hide was literally riddled with balls; but he sat his horse like a general, and we did not he even know he was wounded until he had delivered your message, when he dropped from his horse and died in a few moments. What a brave fellow he was!"

Mrs. Wilson wept silently, while her husband bowed his head and said nothing.

It was about two miles to the Union camp, and it was near morning when they started on their journey, threading their way silently and cautiously by a blind footpath. Day was just breaking when they emerged from the woods and saw the white tents of the Federal camp gleaming through the darkness. As they crept cautiously along beneath the trees, wet with dew, Mrs. Wilson spoke, saying how sweet and fresh the green earth smelt.

"It is a grave," one of the soldiers said; "your Negro Sam; we buried him there last night."

Mrs. Wilson looked and saw a mound showing darkly in the dim light. She stepped from the path and knelt beside it, burying her face in her hands.

"Poor Sam! he died to save us; poor, brave boy!"

The soldiers did not speak, but removed their caps and looked silently on. Then Mr. Wilson, removing his cap, stood at the head of the grave and said: "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."

Many years have passed since that morning. The birds have sung their songs above that lonely grave on the battle-field of the Wilderness; the summer rains have drenched it; the sweet magnolias have dropped their petals upon it, baptizing it with fragrance, but the dark sleeper underneath does not heed; and thus will he sleep until the archangel's trump shall shatter the stillness of the last day, when our nameless black hero will rise from the dead to receive his reward.

Steamburg, N. Y.

WHERE TO PUT THE EMPHASIS.

Most young people regard some things as essential. This is as it should be. An indifferent air regarding life is a condition of failure. It is pitiful to see youth careless and hopeless. The world demands to-day as it never has before men and women who are dominated by principles. The point of importance is this: What shall we make the important things of life?

Some people regard fashionable clothes as the desirable need of life. How the human form is arrayed is of great moment to them. Vast industries are carried on to meet this demand. Others believe popularity is of priceless worth. To be thought well of by one's fellows, to go with the crowd, to be in the mode, to be sought by others—all this brings with it an intoxicating atmosphere that many believe the elixir of life. Still others think the possession of wealth is the golden key to open the door to happiness. They see what a commanding and powerful force it is in life, and they make it their goal. Another believes in the kingship of intellect. Ideas rule the world. They will lead the minds of men by force of mind if possible, and thus conquer life.

Now young men and women are governed by one or more of these ruling passions. They determine the habit and course of life. The thoughts of youth are long, long thoughts. They reach into the years. They touch another generation. It matters much what ideals control the life of young people. They should have commanding motives. They should be possessed with a supreme desire. They are to read life's sentences for themselves. It is of the utmost importance where they put the emphasis.

Let us suggest where we should put it if we were truthfulness the book of life anew.

1. Truthfulness. This is an age of deception. It is becoming the habit of the hour. It is penetrating to every form of life. It affects the family, society, business. It has regard not merely to speech, but to the very fibers of life. Many of the evils of the age may be traced to a habit of deception. Such a habit may give polish to manners, but it removes the beauty from the soul; the white radiance of the heart is dimmed. Let us emphasize this truthfulness of life. Let us be honest in thought, speech, action. It pays even in this world to be truthful. No young person can afford to have doubtful views regarding this.

2. Industry. There are too many who despise work, who are looking for genteel industries, who are afraid of calloused hands. The heritage of power we enjoy to-day has not come from such opinions. 'Days' works' have made this country what it is. Let us be willing to work for results, and not expect them as the gift of chance. There is an impatience with toil, a restlessness under difficulty, that argues badly for the supremacy of this land in future years. Young people who are content to work possess one condition of victory. Let us emphasize the duty of faithful service.

3. Loyalty to God. This above all else is of importance. Believe in him, accept his Word, obey its precepts. Place his requirements before all other demands. The knights of the nineteenth century are to win a great victory, those who have the shield of faith and the sword of the Spirit. If we serve our God we shall best serve our country and ourselves.

Let us place the emphasis where it will tell. Life's sentences mean much or little as we lay stress upon the pivotal words or fail to find them. Rightly read, the divine meaning will appear, word by word, sentence by sentence, until the majestic meaning shall be clear.—American Messenger.

GETTING MARRIED.

"I never knew before that it is so solemn a thing to get married," said the young girl as she stood in the open door and watched the bride and groom drive away in the October sunshine.

To this young girl had come a revelation; she had seen the marriage obligation in a new light. The solemnity of the promises made had left a serious impression upon her mind. "For better, for worse, for richer, for poorer, in sickness and in health, to love and to cherish till death do us part, according to God's holy ordinance." These are indeed words of the greatest significance; would that every man and woman who gave assent to them realized the import of their promises. Were this the case there would be fewer mistakes in making the marriage tie.

There is no more touching and beautiful sight in the world than that of the old couple who have traveled "the long path" together, and are so dependent upon each other's love and sympathy that they watch the sunset sky with a holy light in their faces, and pray that they may both enter into that land beyond the gates together.

Happy effects in the married life are the results of a thorough understanding of the causes. The young lovers who have been plighted to each other for some length of time, think they know each other's failings and good qualities. But during a courtship, whether a long one or a short one, it is quite natural for each to idealize the other. The world has always been surprised at the choice of life-companions. As soon as an engagement is announced, remarks are made by acquaintances which indicate that from their standpoint it is to be an unsuitable match. It is rumored that John is to marry Mary, and some one immediately puts the question why he does not take Martha, she being so much more appropriate for him. Or Sarah, who has chosen James, when she might just as well have had Henry, is the object of the wagging tongues of her neighbors. Society would like to pair us off according to their estimates of our fitness, but there is another law of love that gives us the privilege of making our own selection. It is so strange to the average man and woman that two young people, who are just the opposite of each other in temperament or characteristics, should be drawn towards each other and join hands for a life-walk together.

Their preferences cannot be accounted for, oftentimes. It is a mysterious suitableness or adaptability that the two recognize in their respective personalities. This is generally speaking; there are exceptions, of course, where everybody unites in pronouncing a marriage perfectly suitable, looked at from all standpoints.

In married life this is true, as of every other situation: "On what various trifles hang the momentous things that make our lives worth the living." The everyday routine of home keeping, the quiet arrangement of all its details, are causes that lead to happy results. The young husband who has nourishing food placed before him in a neat and appetizing way will be able to do his work in life with more heart and strength than his neighbor who must make his own coffee and put up with the left-overs of a poorly-cooked dinner of the day before, for the early breakfast which is a necessity to his work in a business way. The wife who takes no pains to look attractive in the morning, but goes about with slipshod shoes on her feet, her hair in crimps or curl papers, and her dress in ill-repair because "only John will see her," may keep John's respect for a time, but she cannot for long. The wife in her neat calico morning dress, with her clean white apron on, her hair arranged neatly, will minister to her husband with a hundred-fold more of good influence, because of the attention given to make herself attractive to him, even when she has to do her own breakfast getting in the early morning.

Idiosyncracies begin to show themselves in the first few months of married life that are apt to cause annoyance and irritation, but the discreet husband or wife who has the good judgment and wisdom not to give weight to them by argument or attempts at regulation in a disapproving way, is indeed a fortunate person. "Discretion," says Giborne, "is not a robe of state to be drawn forth from its recess on some day of festivity. It is to the mind what everyday clothing is to the body." So many things—minor defects in themselves—we are so prone to magnify, and oftentimes make ourselves and those whom we love best on earth unhappy over "aggravations that are so aggravating."

Getting married, dear young people, is no light matter. Love is the greatest thing in the world, and marriage an ordinance of the Lord. In choosing a life-companion in the closest tie of earth, wisdom should be asked of the Lord, and the two who have promised to share each other's joys and sorrows should ask for his daily guidance and blessing, that they may be to each other all that he would have them be, always having that trust in each other's love that is as unfailing as a law of nature. The trials of life will come, sudden calamities, perhaps, but the love that reveals its fidelity and fortitude in the time of trouble will enable you to carry the burdens together, and you will say, "Two are better than one."

"The way we tread may not be smooth,
Nor always fine the weather;
But stones don't trip, nor storms upset,
When two stand firm together."

—Susan Teall Perry.

NO "IF."

There was a knock at the door of Aunt Fanny's pleasant kitchen one morning, and on the steps stood a little girl with a basket on her arm.

"Don't you want to buy something?" she asked as she came in. "Here are some nice home-knit stockings."

"Surely you did not knit these yourself, little girl?" said Aunt Fanny.

"No, ma'am; but Grandma did; she is lame, and she sits still and knits the things, and I run and sell them; that's the way we get along. She says we are partners, and so I wrote out a sign and put it over the fireplace: 'Grandma and Maggie.'"

Aunt Fanny laughed, and bought the stockings; and as she counted out the money to pay for them, Maggie said: "This will buy the bread and butter for supper."

"What if you had not sold anything?" asked Aunt Fanny.

But Maggie shook her head. "You see we prayed, 'Give us this day our daily bread,' and God has promised to hear when folks pray; so I guess there wasn't any 'if' about it. When he says things, they're sure and certain."—Selected.

BEAUTIFUL THINGS.

Beautiful faces are those that wear—
It matters little if dark or fair—
Whole-souled honesty printed there.

Beautiful eyes are those that show
Like crystal panes where hearth fires glow,
Beautiful thoughts that burn below.

Beautiful lips are those whose words
Leap from the heart like song of birds,
Yet whose utterance prudence girds.

Beautiful hands are those that do
Work that is earnest and brave and true,
Moment by moment the long day through.

Beautiful feet are those that go
On kindly ministries to and fro,
Down lowliest ways, if God wills so.

Beautiful shoulders are those that bear
Ceaseless burdens of homely care
With patient grace and daily prayer.

Beautiful lives are those that bless—
Silent rivers and happiness
Whose hidden fountains but few may guess.

Beautiful twilight at set of sun;
Beautiful goal, with race well won;
Beautiful rest, with work well done.

Beautiful graves, where grasses creep,
Where brown leaves fall, where drifts lie deep
Over wornout hands—oh, beautiful sleep!

—Ellen P. Allerton.

TEMPERANCE.

A SURE REMEDY.

How shall we get rid of the saloon? How shall we destroy the drink traffic? How shall we reform the drunkard? How shall we secure absolute and universal prohibition? These are questions which are often asked and variously answered. One says that the only proper and effective way to deal with the drunkard is by moral suasion. Another declares that prohibition is the best remedy. And yet another, who believes in prohibition, affirms that this can only be secured by a political party. "Let us," says this one, "elect governors, judges and legislators who will see that every State constitution is amended so as to prohibit the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors."

If we could persuade every drinking man to give up his cups, that would certainly be an effective remedy; for if there was no market for liquor it would not be manufactured and sold. If we had prohibition in all the States, and then had it strictly enforced, we would at least get rid of the saloon, and a very effective check would be put on the drink habit; and the temptation of the saloon out of the way, our young men would not become addicted to the use of drink, and the evil would, in good measure, disappear from every Christian community.

The man who is persuaded to reform, give up drink and become a sober man, has taken a very important step in the right direction; but it is only a step. If he stops there, he is liable soon to go back to his old habit, and will certainly still be without the "one thing needful". Prohibition is good, and ought to be sought everywhere. No restriction, however rigid, will meet the case, or satisfy the Christian conscience as an ultimate remedy. We have, in this State, laws which prohibit profanity and blasphemy. But every unconverted, godless man is allowed usually to indulge in profanity, without let or hindrance.

There is only one thing which will produce universal and complete temperance, and that is "the grace of God that bringeth salvation". That grace which "teaches us that, denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously, and godly in this present world". When a man becomes a subject of divine grace and is truly converted, he will be able to give up every vice to which he may have been addicted. If he has been given to drink, he may not lose his appetite for liquor (though some say they have had no desire for drink after their conversion), but he will at least be enabled by the grace of God to be "temperate in all things," and to "walk worthy of the vocation wherewith he is called".

We like to hear of the drinker, even the occasional or moderate drinker, breaking off from this peculiarly dangerous vice. We are rejoiced to hear of a profane man ceasing to curse and swear; and we are more hopeful of that man's complete reformation who abandons the society of the wicked, than of the one who continues to walk in their counsel. But when one turns, not only from one sin but from all sin, and turns unto God, yields himself to the Lord Jesus Christ, and becomes his faithful follower, we rejoice with him as one completely reformed, regenerated and renewed. His body and soul are saved. He is saved for time and eternity. This great spiritual change, in which the Gospel of Christ, "the truth as it is in Jesus," is the instrument, and the Holy Spirit the agent, must be the result sought by everyone who understands the power of the Gospel. It is only when, in the use of appropriate means, we aim at this great transformation, that we may expect divine help, without which all human effort will be unavailing.—United Presbyterian.

WHAT HAVE THE SALOONS DONE?

1. They have taxed the people many thousands of dollars to build jails, enlarge courthouses, and provide for the needy.

2. They have largely increased the taxes for the support of the poor, and to bury those who have died.

3. They have largely increased municipal expenses for boarding criminals, and for trying them in our courts.

4. They have caused many thousands of murders—thus hurrying men, unprepared, into eternity, leaving orphans to weep and kindred to mourn in hopeless sorrow.

5. They have snatched young men from what might have been honorable life, and consigned them to the penitentiary.

6. They have hurried thousands of our fellow-citizens into untimely graves, who would have been, in all probability, but for the saloon and the drink habit, valuable citizens and respectable members of the community.

7. They have made poor men poorer, and rich men richer and meaner.

8. They have taken the bread out of the hands and mouths of poor, hungry, starving children, and left them to suffer and die.

9. They have taken the money that should have been used to furnish decent clothing for hard-working women, and left those women to toil and suffer in rags.

10. They have disregarded the tears and agony of women whose lives have been wrecked, and whose hearts have been broken by the saloon business.

11. They have pursued with relentless persistence the poor, stupid, idiotic drinker, until his body has been consigned to a drunkard's grave, and his soul to a drunkard's hell.

12. But by far the worst effect produced by the saloons of these United States is the stupefying, benumbing, narcotizing influence which they have produced, and are still exercising, on the moral sense of many in the community. This is seen in the case of those who are ready to tolerate the saloon for the sake of the money it brings into the municipal treasury. We have, say, twenty saloons in a city of 8,000 inhabitants, which pay $500 each, making $10,000. This, they say, builds our sewers, paves our gutters, cleans our streets, repairs our sidewalks, pays our city officials, and greatly reduces our city taxes; and hence saloons are voted for by professed Christians, and men who are supposed to fear God.

But is it true that this ten thousand dollars reduces city taxes? Not a bit of it. It costs the city say $20,000 per annum to meet all demands, and this ought, in equity, to be paid by the citizens in proportion to the property owned by each. If Mr. A, who owns $100 worth of property, should pay ten cents, Mr. B, who is worth

$1,000, should pay one dollar; Mr. C, who is worth $10,000, should pay ten dollars; Mr. D, who is worth $100,000, should pay one hundred dollars. This is fair and right, as all must admit; and if $20,000 was raised in this way, no one would have a right to complain. The money would be raised, the city government would go on, and each would pay in proportion to the protection offered. But when the half of this $20,000 is paid for license to sell intoxicating liquors, the change is not in the amount collected, but in the mode of collecting it, and in the persons who pay it. In this last case he who should have paid one hundred dollars now pays but fifty dollars, while the poor dupe of the drink habit, who should not have paid more than ten cents, now pays anywhere from twenty dollars to one hundred dollars, through the saloon-keeper, into the treasury.—Rev. Chauncey Hobart, D.D., in California Christian Advocate.

BIBLE LESSON.

OLD TESTAMENT TEACHINGS.

LESSON I.—Second Quarter, 1893.—April 2.

SUBJECT.—The Afflictions of Job.—Job 2: 1-10.

GOLDEN TEXT.—The Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord.—Job 1: 21.

[Open the Bible and read the lesson.]

COMMENTS BY THOMAS WILLIAMS.

[The author of the Book of Job is unknown; the absence of all reference to the Mosaic law, the temple and Jewish history, indicates an early date, perhaps before the time of Moses. Its design is to show that afflictions come not only to punish the wicked and chastise the erring, but also to reveal the power of grace in all circumstances. In this lesson Satan undertakes to show that Job was a hypocrite, and fails.—U. P. Handbook.]

Read the entire first chapter of Job for a better understanding of Job's condition.

1. A great enemy.—vs. 1-3. The sons of God, as the holy angels are called here, and in chapter 38: 7, for the second time assemble in the divine presence; and Satan, doubtless in the disguise of an angel of light (2 Cor. 11: 14) [and as the Adversary and accuser of the righteous], presents himself again among them; and to a repetition of the same questions, the Almighty adds, concerning Job, "and still he holdeth fast his integrity, although thou movest me against him to destroy him without cause." On this we may remark, (1) That Job sustained all his losses, not only of his property, but his children, without murmuring or repining: "In all this he sinned not, nor charged God foolishly." (2) That though Satan may tempt without sufficient cause, God has a wise and important reason for permitting him; "the trial of our faith being much more precious than [that] of gold which perisheth." (1 Peter 1: 7.) Thus Job, when he came forth out of the furnace of affliction, was humbled, and thereby prepared to bear the redoubled felicity of his latter days, and afterwards the higher enjoyments of another world.

2. A sore affliction.—vs. 4-9. Satan now pleads that it wanted only the addition of personal feeling to render Job an apostate, and discover his hypocrisy. To prove the falsehood of this charge, and to advance the character of Job to all posterity, the enemy is permitted to add this farther trial; and, with judgment equal to his malignity, Satan selects the elephantiasis, or black leprosy of the Arabs, as the most loathsome and distressing of all diseases. It is difficult to ascertain the exact import of the ancient proverb here quoted, "skin for skin"; Dr. Good thinks that, supposing the skins of animals to have been a staple article of trade in that day, then "skin for skin," or all the skins a man possessed, even his own, to preserve his health or life. But Job still retained his integrity. Satan, therefore, found it necessary to employ an accomplice, and that accomplice he found in the patriarch's wife, to whom he suggested the temptation most exactly suited to his wishes. He had predicted that, as his sufferings became more intense, Job would curse his Maker to his face; and this, strange to think! is the very thing she advises, showing us how easily mankind may be "instigated by the devil." To Job she said: "Dost thou still retain thy integrity?"—as if she had said, "Wilt thou still serve that God who thus tormenteth thee? Curse him, and then die; for die thou evidently must!" Or, perhaps, the temptation was still more desperate, and pointed to suicide:—"Why wilt thou thus continue to suffer, when thy suffering might so easily be terminated by thine own hand? Curse him for his cruelty, and fly from it!" Were this woman an idolater, as is not improbable, this is easily accounted for; for the heathen often cursed their gods, and had, in general, no expectations of a life beyond the grave.

3. A triumphant faith.—v. 10. Job's reply to his wife indicates a knowledge of her heathen belief; for it plainly ranks her among foolish (that is wicked) women; and from that hour it is likely that she deserted him, as we infer from his complaint, in chapter 19: 17; and perhaps she never lived to see his happy restoration. Job's reply to this temptation is no less admirable than his conduct in the former instance: "Shall we receive good at the hand of God, and not receive evil?" "In all this did not Job sin with his lips." The lesson to be derived from these striking passages is an important one. From whatever source our troubles may arise, we should regard them as coming from God, since they cannot come without his permission, and are never inflicted unless for some valuable purpose in which we have the greatest interest. "All things," wrote the apostle, "work together for good to them that love God." (Romans 8: 28.)

A minister was recovering from a dangerous illness, when one of his friends addressed him thus: "Sir, though God seems to be bringing you up from the gates of death, yet it will be a long time before you will sufficiently retrieve your strength and regain enough of vigor of mind to preach as usual." The good man answered: "You are mistaken, my friend; for this six weeks' illness has taught me more divinity than all my past studies, and all my ten years' ministry put together." Sanctified afflictions are blessings to the true Christian.

REFORM NEWS (Continued from 5th page.)

right hand in almost every hour of conflict. Sister Hill finds no occasion to awaken criticism and suspicion by employing covert methods in her work, but steps right out into the sunlight, where her enemies, as well as her friends, can see her on every side, and then, with "the sword of the Spirit" in hand, fights like a Christian warrior, and not like a savage or a Jesuit, from "behind the bush". She is to give an account of her work next Sabbath in Music Hall, and, if fortunate enough to hear it, I may want to add a "postscript".

Rev. Wilbur F. Crafts is spending the week here in the interest of a better observance of the Sabbath. By his earnestness, his eloquence, his facts and appeals, he is arousing the public conscience and winning for the cause he so ably represents, and for himself, many friends. I hope to see more frequent mention in the Statesman of the views he so frankly avows in conversation concerning the nature and influence of secret societies.

At the Clarendon Street Baptist church (Dr. A. J. Gordon's) they made their closing effort for missions for this centennial. The entire contributions for missions during the year was $16,000; and although many of the people are poor, yet I have no doubt but that each feels richer and happier for the part taken in making this magnificent offering to the Lord's cause.

Last Monday completed Joseph Cook's present series of six lectures in Tremont Temple. He was confronted by a fine audience, and greeted with hearty cheers when he stepped upon the platform. His words are so fully reported that I need not say more than that "the Boston lecturer" is nearer to the people, and better appreciated, and held in higher esteem and greater admiration, at the close of 234 lectures in this city than at any previous time in his history. It was the unanimous wish of the committee, and I am sure of the entire audience, that he should continue the course another season. My arrangement to distribute Mr. Cook's Chicago speech to the retiring audience prevented me from hearing his fearless expression on secret societies, but through the courtesy of Mr. Cook, I am permitted to give a report by his own stenographer:

He said: "Has Sunday any rival? I am thinking, here, of secret societies that some men regard as the equivalent of churches. 'You need not be anxious about religious sentiment. We are leading lives that are very orderly. Honor is our principle. The societies to which we belong are practically our churches.'

"I fear that this is the way in which many men talk who really have not lifted their heads from their ledgers long enough to penetrate the depths of this complex theme. The best men do not talk in this way; but men of more or less careless habits of reflection are often led astray by endeavoring to form substitutes for churches. Now I do not know of any secret society that teaches religion enough to save the soul. I am not talking, in an unguarded way, of that of which I know nothing, for I say deliberately that there are some secret societies, such as the Mafia, of New Orleans, the Clan-na-Gael, the Mormons and the Jesuits, that teach error enough to ruin the soul. Many secret societies employ assassination as a weapon in executing their will in society. I do not now talk of the gilt-edged societies, which are not to be discussed in a mood as serious as we are now in. The societies that take disloyal oaths, and of course all societies that are not merely gilt-edged, but guilty-edged, deserve to be improved off the face of the earth. I do not speak against them because they are in some sense rivals of the church, for I hold that the church has no rival. But their use of their peculiar opportunities is such as requires us to be on our guard lest we accept a stone for bread, and for a fish a serpent."

Those of our friends who heard his remarks were highly gratified, and I am told that they were received by the audience with hearty applause.

The Boston W. C. T. U. had for their afternoon topic, on Monday, "The Effect of Secret Lodges on the Drink Habit," Mrs. A. J. Gordon presiding. As Mrs. Stoddard has prepared a report of this highly important and deeply interesting meeting, I will waive my right and "give her the floor".

Through correspondence with Bro. John G. Fee, I learn that President Frost has been quite ill, but is much improved, though his wife is still prostrated. Under date of the 19th inst. he writes: "I have been hoarse for nearly three weeks, yet have preached every Lord's day so far. I preached three times last week; last Sunday evening, also, and nineteen persons came forward and individually confessed Christ. Tuesday night I preached, and ten more came. D. V., I preach again this evening." This is the once "despised Abolitionist," who, in ante-bellum times, was seven times in the hands of infuriated mobs, and who never compromised his principles or shunned to declare the whole counsel of God. Where now are his accusers? But this saint lives to lead many of the emancipated bondmen to the Lamb of God, and into that liberty of perfect deliverance before the great white throne and Him that sitteth upon it.

The latest intelligence from Sister Flagg indicates that your readers will not long be deprived of the pleasure and profit of her brilliant and newsy communications. God does wonderfully hear and heal and help in answer to prayer, and I should not be surprised if this communication is not already rendered tedious to your readers by one of her inimitable "New England Letters".

Echoes from the recent convention in Allegheny have reached me through the press in New Hampshire, to which I had purposed to give some attention; but I am admonished that there is a limit even to the forbearance of editors and readers of reform papers, and so will defer for the present. Very sincerely,

J. P. STODDARD.

—Dr. H. P. McClurkin has moved to Denison, Kan., where he is preaching in the U. P. church. Rev. Wm. Littlejohn, of Mediapolis, Iowa, has been called as pastor of Rev. J. S. T. Milligan's former Covenanter congregation at Denison. Both these brethren are strong friends of the anti-secret reform, and will much strengthen the cause in Kansas.

—Prof. H. A. Fischer, of Wheaton College, occupied the pulpit of Millard Avenue Congregational church, Chicago, for the morning service March 12. He spoke on Higher Christian Education, with special reference to Wheaton College. The effort to raise $100,000 is progressing slowly but constantly; nearly one-fourth of the amount has been pledged.

WHEN IT LOOKS DARK

to any weak or ailing woman, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription comes to her help. For "female complaints" of every kind, periodical pains, internal inflammation or ulceration, bearing-down sensations, and all chronic weaknesses and derangements, this is the remedy. It's the only one so sure that it can be guaranteed. If it doesn't benefit or cure, in the case of every tired or afflicted woman, she'll have her money back.

The "Prescription" builds up and invigorates the entire female system. It regulates and promotes all the proper functions, improves digestion, enriches the blood, dispels aches and pains, brings refreshing sleep, and restores health and strength.

Nothing else, though it may be better for a tricky dealer to sell, can be "just as good" for you to buy.

Use the great specific for "cold in head" and catarrh—Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

CHICAGO.

Dan Coughlin, the Cronin-murder suspect, who was granted a new trial by the Illinois Supreme Court, was arraigned before Judge Brentano, but asked for a continuance until the April term, which was granted.

By the falling of a brick wall in a burned factory on the West Side, an adjoining cottage containing five persons was crushed. Two were killed and the others seriously injured. Two firemen were also badly bruised. By the falling of another wall in a new building, a carpenter was crushed. These casualties have resulted in action by the authorities to prevent similar results, growing out of incompetency, greed or carelessness.

Jung Jack Lin, the Chinaman charged with killing his cousin, Jung Din Kok, Jan. 7 last, was found guilty of murder in Judge McConnell's court, and his punishment fixed at death. None of the prisoner's fellow countrymen were present. When the verdict was explained to him, he said, in "pigeon-English"—"All right; I don't care." A new trial was asked.

More than 50 in a class of 100 Freshmen in the Northwestern University failed in their examination in algebra. They are to be granted another examination.

H. C. Fox, a collector for the First National Bank, was waylaid on the stairs of the county building, and robbed of $1,200, which he had collected from the city and county treasurers. The act was committed in broad daylight, but the robber escaped with his booty.

The coroner's jury in the case of Carpenter Briggs, who was crushed to death by the falling walls of an old house being torn down, recommended that Contractors, Towner and Burchard, and E. L. Brand, owner of the building, be held to the grand jury to answer for Briggs' death.

The Democrats nominated Carter H. Harrison for mayor. The Republicans will vote for Samuel Allerton. The election will be held April 4. Harrison was for eight years mayor. Mr. Allerton is the eminent packer.

COUNTRY.

Active preparations are about to be begun by Secretary Hoke Smith for opening the Cherokee strip under the provisions of the Indian appropriation act ratifying the agreement with the Cherokees.

A fast passenger train on the Georgia Central railroad jumped the track. The engine and three coaches were almost completely demolished, but although the train was running at a high rate of speed, nobody was killed. The accident was caused by a broken axle.

The Supreme Court of the United States has decided that letter-carriers are entitled to extra pay for all labor performed beyond the 8-hour limit of their work.

Mrs. Ellsworth Miller of Cold Spring, N. Y., on the 15th inst., became the mother of her third set of triplets—two boys and a girl. Mrs. Miller has been married less than ten years, during which time she has had sixteen children, nine of whom have died.

A. P. Sturtevant, one of the largest manufacturers in the country, died at Norwich, Conn. He owned $2,000,000 of property in New York, including the Sturtevant House.

President Cleveland has appointed William McAdoo, of New Jersey to be Assistant Secretary of the Navy.

Hyattsville, Md., the only place in the United States where Henry George's "single tax" scheme was ever established, has repudiated it, the State Supreme Court deciding that it conflicted with the bill of rights.

Carelessness in the use of the convenient and slightly folding-bed resulted in the death of fifty-six children in the one city of New York last year.

At Tyler, Tex., Mattie Clark, a Negro, committed suicide by saturating her clothing with kerosene, applying a match, and roasting herself to death. No cause is given for the act.

An ice gorge in the Mohawk river, three miles above Schenectady, N. Y., caused a flood in that city on Monday. The great plants of the Edison Electric Co. were flooded and 4,000 men were laid off work.

(Continued on 16th page.)

SUBSCRIPTION LETTERS.

The following have made remittances of money to the Cynosure from March 13 to 18:

J K Freeland, Rev J G Nelson, C M Strickler, S Bingham, H A Kenyon, H J McMasters, A Austin, A J Millard, J C Templeton, L Baldwin, Mrs W O Shaw, I N Jack, W T Carothers, R D Nichols, Mrs J A Milligan, W Hamlyn, R W Kirkwood, Rev R E Rose, Rev T G Opsahl, Rev W G Waddle, G Hiner, C Reynolds, L M Samson, Mrs S S Hamilton, W Parson, K J Moore, S Dekker, J R Latimer, Rev J S Colvin, Rev B F Worrell, A Stone, Rev J W Logue, W Amidon, J S Baldwin, Rev J F Hanson, J A Jarvis, N R Weede, J C Card, W Johnson, I D Fergus, I Ganoung, S Grover, E A Cook, D Glaspie, Mrs A C Higgins, J P Dops, A Krum.

LAND FOR SALE.

The undersigned offers for sale the northwest quarter of the northeast quarter of section 2, town 25, north range 12, west, in the township of Grant, and county of Grand Traverse, Michigan, containing 43½ acres, on which there is no incumbrance. On each side of this property is timbered land that can be bought for a reasonable price. My terms are $1,500—all cash down. Address

ORIEL Z. WOODARD,

Interlachen, Grand Traverse Co., Mich.

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO.

Wheat—Spring No. 2.....	73½@	73¾
Winter No. 2.....	63 @	73¾
Corn—No. 2.....	41½@	42¾
Oats—No. 2.....	31¼@	36½
Rye—No. 2.....	52 @	54
Bran per ton.....	12 50	@13 00
Hay—Timothy.....	9 50	@12 00
Butter, medium to best....	18 @	28
Cheese.....	03 @	12
Beans.....	1 85 @	2 05
Eggs.....	15 @	15½
Seeds—Timothy, 100 lbs. 1	1 15 @	4 45
Flax.....	1 20 @	1 21½
Broom corn.....	02 @	08½
Potatoes, per bu.....	63 @	79
Hides—Green to dry flint..	04½@	09
Lumber—Common.....	10 00	@13 00
Wool (washed).....	16 @	25
Cattle—Choice to extra....	5 50	@ 6 05
Common to good.....	4 10 @	4 75
Hogs.....	6 75 @	7 85
Sheep.....	5 20 @	5 60

NEW YORK.

Wheat.....	75 @	81
Corn.....	53 @	54½
Oats.....	40½@	44
Eggs.....	17 @	18
Butter.....	18 @	28½
Wool.....	13 @	25

KANSAS CITY.

Cattle.....	1 65 @	4 35
Hogs.....	4 50 @	7 45
Sheep.....	2 95 @	4 50

STANDARD WORKS

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Association.

221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

TERMS:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order as a guaranty that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums. A liberal discount to dealers.

ON FREEMASONRY.

Freemasonry Illustrated. A complete exposition of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter. Profusely illustrated. Complete work of 640 pages, in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 75 cents. First three degrees (376 pages), in cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Knight Templarism Illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the Council and Commandery. A book of 341 pages. In cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.

Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated. The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all the Masonic Rites, and are fully and accurately given in "Freemasonry Illustrated." Vol. I. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3rd to 18th inclusive. Vol. II. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 19th to 33rd inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive. Price per volume, paper cover, 50 cents each. In cloth, $1.00 each.

Hand-Book of Freemasonry. By E. Ronayne, Past Master of Keystone Lodge No. 639, Chicago. Gives the complete standard ritual of the first three degrees of Freemasonry. New edition, 274 pages. Bound flexible cloth covers, 50 cents.

Freemasonry Exposed. By Capt. William Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book republished. 25 cents each.

Adoptive Masonry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the five degrees of Female Freemasonry, by Thomas Love. 20 cents each.

Light on Freemasonry. By Elder D. Bernard. In cloth, $1.50 each. Paper, 75 cents each.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Baal Worship Identical. Explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the lodge. Bound in fine cloth, 420 pages, 75 cents.

Mah-Hah-Bone; comprises the Hand Book, Master's Carpet and Freemasonry at a glance. Bound in one volume. In cloth, 589 pages, $1.00.

History of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. As prepared by seven committees of citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan. 25 cents each.

Ex-President John Quincy Adams' Letters on the Nature of Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties. Price, cloth, $1.00. Paper, 35 cents.

Hon. Thurlow Weed on the Morgan Abduction. This is the legally attested statement of this eminent Christian journalist and statesman concerning the unlawful seizure and confinement of Capt. Morgan in Canandaigua jail, his removal to Fort Niagara and subsequent drowning in Lake Ontario. 5 cents each.

The Broken Seal; or Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. By Samuel D. Greene. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry, as proved in court in the New Berlin trials. The New Berlin trials began in the attempt of Freemasons to prevent public initiations by seceding Masons. These trials were held at New Berlin, Chenango Co., N. Y., April 13 and 14, 1831, and General Augustus C. Wolsh, sheriff of the county, and other adhering Freemasons swore to the truthful revelation of the oaths and penalties. 10 cents each.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy. Address of Pres. J. Blanchard. This is a most convincing argument against the lodge. 5 cents each.

Grand Lodge Masonry. Its relation to civil government and the Christian religion. By Pres. J. Blanchard. The un-Christian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is proved from the highest Masonic authorities. 5 cents each.

General Washington Opposed to Secret Societies. This is a re-publication of Governor Joseph Ritner's "Vindication of General Washington from the Stigma of Adherence to Secret Societies," communicated to the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania, March 8, 1837, at their special request. To this is added the fact that three high Masons were the only persons who opposed a vote of thanks to Washington on his retirement to private life—undoubtedly because they considered him a seceding Freemason. 10cts each.

Morgan's Exposition, Abduction and Murder, and Oaths of 33 Degrees. Composed of "Freemasonry Exposed," by Capt. Wm. Morgan; "History of the Abduction and Murder of Morgan;" "Valance's Confession of the Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "Bernard's Reminiscences of Morgan Times," and "Oaths and Penalties of 33 Degrees." 300 pages; cloth, $1.00.

Finney on Masonry. The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry. By Pres. Charles G. Finney, of Oberlin College. President Finney was a "bright Mason," but left the lodge when he became a Christian. This book has opened the eyes of multitudes. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper cover, 35 cents.

Narratives and Arguments, showing the conflict of secret societies with the Constitution and law of the Union and of the States. By Francis Semple. The fact that secret societies interfere with the execution and pervert the administration of law is here clearly proved. 15cts each.

Temple of Honor Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of "The Templars of Honor and Temperance," commonly called the Temple of Honor. By a Templar of Fidelity and Past Worthy Chief Templar. 25cts each.

The Anti-mason's Scrap-Book, consisting of 53 "Cynosure" tracts. In this book are the views of more than a score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of secret societies. Postpaid. 25 cts.

Reminiscences of Morgan Times. By Elder David Bernard. This is a thrilling narrative of the incidents connected with Bernard's Revelation of Freemasonry 10 cents each.

Secrecy vs. the Family, State and Church. By Rev. M. S. Dury. The antagonism of organized secrecy to the welfare of the family, state and church, is clearly shown. 10cts each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. James Williams, Presiding Elder of Dakota District Northwestern Iowa Conference M. E. Church—a seceding Master Mason. 10 cents each.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 Degrees of Freemasonry. To get these thirty-three degrees of Masonic bondage, the candidate takes half-a-million horrible oaths. 15 cents each.

Pres. H. H. George on Secret Societies. A powerful address, showing clearly the duty of Christian churches to disfavor secret societies. 10cts each.

Thirteen Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. W. P. McNary, pastor United Presbyterian church. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Secretism. By Rev. I. Theo. Cross, pastor Congregational church Hamilton, N. Y. This is a very clear arraignment of the objections to all secret societies, and to Masonry especially, that are apparent to all. 5cts each.

Knights of Pythias Illustrated. By a Past Chancellor. A full illustrated exposition of the three ranks of the order with the addition of the "Amended, Perfected and Amplified Third Rank." 25cts each.

Sermon on Secret Societies. By Rev. Daniel Dow, Woodstock, Conn. The special object of his sermon is to show the right and duty of Christians to examine into the character of secret societies, no matter what object such societies profess to have.

HOME AND HEALTH.

WORTH REMEMBERING.

The very best and newest remedy for frosted feet or chilblains, is alum water.

The white of an egg, with a little sugar and water, is good for a child with an irritable stomach.

Clear, black coffee, diluted with water and containing a little ammonia, will cleanse and restore black clothes.

A large slice of potato in the fat when frying doughnuts will prevent the black specks from appearing on the surface.

By rubbing with a flannel cloth dipped in whiting, the brown discoloration may be taken off of cups which have been used for baking.

Palatable meatcakes may be made of cold roast, chopped fine, moistened with the gravy and seasoned with summer savory, and then baked in muffin rings. They serve prettily.

For sandwiches, cut home-made bread a day or two old in slices and trim off the crust. Pound chicken to a paste or mince it fine and dress it with a little mayonnaise. Spread this mixture on the bread and then roll it in a firm roll and place a slight weight upon it. When a sufficient number is prepared wrap them lightly in a napkin and put them in a cool place.

To prevent potatoes bursting in the oven, prick them before baking. Before frying raw potatoes slice them and let them stand in cold water for an hour. If boiled potatoes are done a little too soon, place a towel over the kettle, instead of the cover. A nice way to cook potatoes is to cut cold boiled potatoes into cubes and fry them in fat until they turn light brown. Drain and season with salt and pepper. Turn them into a hot dish, and sprinkle fine-chopped boiled ham over them, using about two tablespoonfuls of ham to a quart of potatoes. Raw potatoes may be cut into cubes and fried, and served in the same manner.

A CLEAR SKIN.

Don't bathe in hard water; soften it with a few drops of ammonia or a little borax.

Don't bathe your face when it is very warm, and never use very cold water for it.

Don't attempt to remove dust with cold water; give your face a hot bath, using plenty of good soap; then give it a thorough rinsing with water which has the chill taken off it.

Don't rub your face with a coarse towel; just remember it is not made of cast-iron, and treat it as you would the finest porcelain, gently and delicately.

Don't use a sponge or a linen rag for your face; choose instead a flannel one.

Don't believe you can get rid of wrinkles by filling, in the crevices with powder. Instead, give your face a Russian bath every night; that is, bathe it with water so hot that you wonder how you stand it, and then, a minute after, with cold water, which will make it glow with warmth; dry it with a soft towel, and go to bed, and you ought to sleep like a baby, while your skin is growing firmer and coming out of the wrinkles, and you are resting.—Ladies' Home Journal.

THE WAY TO TREAT SERVANTS.

A servant hates to be always watched. "I left her," said one girl, "because she was always prying around, and coming out in the kitchen very softly, like a cat, to see if I was working all the time." That isn't necessary, and it is sure to create ill-feeling. Shortcomings can be discovered without constant espial, and it lowers a woman in her servant's eyes when she shows a suspicious disposition. The great master at Rugby made his boys great by putting them on their honor. If a servant has any sense of honor, trust to it. If she hasn't, discharge her after a fair trial, and get one who has. It does people good to be trusted, unless they are utterly destitute of moral fiber; it does them good to be commended, to be advised, to be approached like human beings and not like machines.—Selected.

From the North to the South Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is the preventive of cold.

BEECHAM'S PILLS will save doctor's bills.

James P. Smith
Tappan, Ohio.

Three Great Enemies

Rheumatism, Catarrh, Dyspepsia

Mr. James P. Smith is a highly respected farmer in Tappan, Ohio, whom all in the neighborhood look to as a criterion. He says: "For the benefit of others I wish to state that for 15 years I was

A Terrible Sufferer

From Rheumatism, Catarrh and Dyspepsia; unable to do work of any amount. I could not work my farm and became entirely discouraged. Two years ago I commenced taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and have followed it up faithfully, with the most satisfactory result. Soon after I began taking it I began to get relief, and gradually I have come to

A Good State of Health

I am now able to do as good a day's work as I could in my younger days. I have no Rheumatism and no Dyspepsia now; and have not one-quarter the trouble from Catarrh that I had before taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. I know it has spared or saved my life. The above is a bare outline of the facts. I have not made the statement strong enough; in fact, I do not think it could be made too strong." JAMES P. SMITH, Tappan, Ohio. N. B. Be sure to get Hood's.

HOOD'S Sarsaparilla CURES

Hood's Pills are the best after-dinner Pills, assist digestion, cure headache. Try a box.

BICYCLE TO ANY BOY OR GIRL FREE

MUTUAL HOME IMPROVEMENT CO.
CAPITAL FULL PAID $100,000.
Your Idle Money Will Earn We issue Trust Certificates guaranteed by assets amounting to more than $2.00 in assets for every $1.00 in certificates. On these certificates we pay 6 per cent per annum, payable semi-annually. The certificates are issued for terms of 3, 6, 9, or 12 years, as investors may elect. The interest is paid semi-annually during the term for which the subscription is made, and at the end of the term the principal sum, together with its interest, is returned on the surrender of the certificates. Address WALTER THOMAS MILLS, Pres. MUTUAL HOME IMPROVEMENT CO., 161 LaSalle Street, CHICAGO.

The St. Louis Sermon

Are Secret Societies a Blessing or a Curse?

An Address by Rev. B. Carradine, D. D., Pastor of the Centenary M. E. Church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891.

W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's too."

A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover. Sent postpaid 25 copies $1.00. Single copy 5 cents.

Address - - W. I. PHILLIPS, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

$1100 FOR 4 TOMATOES!

This Wonderful "EARLIEST TOMATO IN THE WORLD" is a perfect success. It has proved the earliest and best and bears abundantly of large bright red tomatoes, very smooth, of excellent quality and free from rot. My plants set in garden last of May produced full size ripe tomatoes July 2nd. I want a great record for it in 1893, and will pay $500 Cash to a person growing a ripe tomato in 75 days from day seed is sown, also $400 to the person growing a ripe tomato in least number of days from day seed is sown. $125 for next and $75 for next. Beware of imitations. I own all the seed.

SURE HEAD CABBAGE is all head and sure to head, very uniform, of large size, firm and fine in texture, excellent quality and a good keeper. I will pay $100 for heaviest head grown from my seed in 1893, and $50 for next heaviest. Single heads have weighed over 60 pounds.

GIANT SILVER QUEEN ONION is large and handsome, single specimens under sworn testimony have weighed over 5 lbs. They are of mild and delicate flavor, grow rapidly, ripen early, flesh white and handsome. I will pay $100 for heaviest onion grown from my seed in 1893, and $50 for next heaviest.

ALICE PANSY has created a sensation everywhere. They grow larger and contain the greatest number of colors (many never seen before in pansies) of any pansy ever offered. I offer $500 to a person growing a Blossom measuring 4 1/2 in. in diameter, and $300 for largest blossom grown. $100 for second, $50 for third, $50 for fourth, $50 for fifth and $50 for sixth. Full particulars of all prizes in catalogue.

MY CATALOGUE is full of bargains. $900 is offered persons sending me largest number of customers, and $500 for largest club orders. $1.00 customers get 50 cents extra FREE.

MY OFFER I will send a packet each of Earliest Tomato in the World, Sure Head Cabbage, Giant Silver Queen Onion, Alice Pansy and Bargain Catalogue, for only 25 cents. Every person sending silver P. N. or M. O. for above collection will receive Free a packet Mammoth Prize Tomato, grows 14 ft. high, and I offer $500 for a 4 lb. tomato grown from this seed. If two persons send for two collections together each will receive Free a packet Wonder of the World Beans, stalks grow large as broom handle and pods are 18 in. long. It is a perfect wonder. F. B. MILLS, Rose Hill, N. Y.

The Blue Bell.

The Mountain Daisy.

Daily Text books for a year. Dainty little souvenirs, only 1 1/2 inches square, elegantly and neatly bound in leather, with silk marker, gilt edges, round corners, each net 25
Illuminated paper covers, each 10

Birthday Memorial Text-Book. An Autograph Text-book. Text for each day and space for autographs. 32mo., Cloth 25

Daily Comfort in Four Fold Links.

The most popular Wall Roll published, and deservedly so. Every page is an effective sermon.

The striking character and particular value of this new Wall Roll is in the remarkable arrangement and selection of the Scripture Texts.

A constant monitor in the Christian household.

A silent teacher for the school.

A comforting messenger for the sick-room, as well as being suitable for the office, the store or the shop.

Printed in beautiful large, clear letters, easily discernible at a distance of 10 to 15 feet. Mounted on rollers, with cord, to hang up in usual style. 31 pages, size 14x22in. 75

The Secret of Success; or

Finger Posts on the Highway of Life, by John T. Dale; introduction by Hon. John V. Farwell. 416 pages, 12mo., full cloth $1.50
A book for the aspiring. Written in a fascinating style and full of incidents and illustrations which hold the interest of the reader spell-bound.

"It may be true, as has been said, that 'books are sold, not bought'; but this, at any rate, is a book which, if brought to one's attention, he will wish to own."

Such a book in every intelligent family in the land—how much (in showing so clearly, so wisely, so persuasively the secret of success,) it might do toward helping to solve the countless aching, burning questions of the time.—The Advance.

Prof. Henry Drummond's Booklets.

The Perfected Life. (The greatest need of the world.) Bound in chaste style, vellum paper 20

Love the Supreme Gift. (The greatest thing in the world.) Uniform with Perfected Life. 20

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N., 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

History Nat'l Christian Association Its origin, objects, what it has done and aims to do, and the best means to accomplish the end sought, the Articles of Incorporation, Constitution and By-laws of the Association. 25cts each.

The New World of Central Africa.

By Mrs. H. Grattan Guinness, with a history of the first Christian mission on the Congo. 12mo., 530 pages with maps, portraits and numerous illustrations. $2.00
"A conscientious piece of work, and gives a very clear account of what has been done by the Protestant missions to evangelize the barbarous races of Central Africa. * * * He who wants to know what missionary effort means in these days may well learn from this volume. * * * The reader who goes carefully through will have a good bird's eye view of recent events in Africa, with all the results of modern travel. * * * The work contains solid information of use to all who are interested in the future of this wonderful country. The many illustrations throw light upon savage customs and costumes."—Graphic.

in the Far East.

Letters from China by Geraldine Guinness, edited by her sister, with introduction by Rev. J. Hudson Taylor. Very fully illustrated. Quarto cloth, $1.50

This book was scarcely written—it was lived; for the breath of life is in it from cover to cover. We have never read so wonderful an account of successful missionary effort.—Presbyterian

We easily understand how this edition is the fifteenth thousand. It is a very remarkable book.—The Golden Rule.

Frances Ridley Havergall's Poems.

Author's edition complete. The only unabridged authorized edition published in America.

1. 12mo., 880 pages, cloth, beveled, 2.00
2. Beveled boards, full gilt, 2.50
3. Half white vellum, gilt top, uncut edges, 2.50
4. French morocco padded, roll red under gold edges, 4.00
5. Persian calf, padded and embossed, gilt roll and r. g. 5.00
6. Crushed levant, elegant, 6.00

7. Full German calf, padded, elegant, gilt, rd. cors., 7.50

Miss Havergall stands without peer in the English language in the department of religious poetry.

"The book in paper and binding is all that could be desired."—Publishers' Weekly.

Small Books by Miss Havergall.

Bound in elegant illuminated board covers.

Kept for the Master's Use. 20

My King; Daily Thoughts for the King's Children. 20

Works of Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

Sermon Notes. Covering all the Bible from Genesis to Revelation. 4 vols., 4.00

Feathers for Arrows. A volume of Choice Extracts, 12mo., cloth, 1.00

Twelve Striking Sermons. 50

Twelve Soul Winning Sermons. 50

Twelve Sermons on the Resurrection. 50

Twelve New Year Sermons. 50

Twelve Christmas Sermons. 50

Notes by C. H. M.

On Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy.

Mr. D. L. Moody says of these books: "They have been to me a very key to the Scriptures."

Deuteronomy is issued in two volumes, the others complete in one volume each.

Separate volumes may be had if desired.

The complete set in six volumes, covering over 2,300 pages, is offered at the reduced price of 75c per vol. or $4.50 per set

A. L. O. E. Intermediate Library.

Selected from the numerous productions of this world-renowned writer as being those of rare merit. 12 vols., 12mo., cloth elegant, each 75c; set, 9.00

An Eden in England. Life in Eagle's Nest.

Ned Franks. White Bear's Den.

Sheer Off. Fairy Spider's Web.

Braid of Chords. Lake in the Woods.

Silver Keys. Seven Perils Passed.

Grace Vernon. Hartley Brothers.

The Jessica Series. By Hesba Stretton. 6 vols., handsome bindings, cloth 50c each, or per set 2.10

Jessica's First Prayer. Friends till Death.

No Place Like Home. A Miserable Christmas Under the Old Roof. A Night and a Day.

A. L. O. E. Junior Library. Adapted to the young folks. 7 vols., 12mo., cloth, each 60c; the set, 4.20

Claremont Tales. A Wreath of Smoke.

Christian Conquests. Pomegranates from Punjab.

Parables. Little Bullets from The Battle of Life.

The Hesba Stretton Series. 8 vols., elegant cloth bound, per set, 4.80

Cassy. King's Servant.

Lost Gip. Alone in London.

Max Kromer. Little Meg's Children

Storm of Life. Crew of the Dolphin.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N., 221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

Old Time Methods

of treating Colds and Coughs were based on the idea of suppression. We now know that "feeding a cold" is good doctrine.

Scott's Emulsion

of cod-liver oil with hypophosphites, a rich fat-food, cures the most stubborn cough when ordinary medicines have failed. Pleasant to take; easy to digest.

Prepared by Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All druggists.

FARM NOTES

AGRICULTURAL CONGRESS.

Of all the great series of International Congresses which will form so important a feature of the Exposition, the Agricultural Congresses stand among the highest in interest and importance. Agriculture is the basal industry of the world. In it more men are engaged than in any other calling. On its development and prosperity civilization largely depends. It has been well said that the "test of national welfare is the intelligence and prosperity of the farmer."

In recent times the problem which confronts farmers, as individuals and as a class, have been greatly modified. The calling is feeling the effects of direct, intelligent and persistent care on the part of governments and scientific investigators, as well as the benefits of the accumulated experience of the past. Inventive skill has revolutionized almost all mechanical appliances used in the art of practical farming. The marvelous development of facilities for communication and transportation has made success dependent, not alone on conditions of soil and climate or localized demand. The surplus agricultural products of almost any part of the earth affect the demand of the whole civilized world.

With many evidences of increased intelligence and of prosperity among multitudes of farmers, there is also widespread agricultural depression, and much of unrest and discontent among large numbers of farmers.

It is the purpose of this great International Congress to bring together for conference and discussion from many countries those who, from official position, long continued investigation, or practical and successful experience, shall be best able to report upon the condition of the industry in their own lands, and to suggest the wisest and best means for removing obstacles, securing greater success, and improving the material, social, intellectual and moral conditions of those connected with agriculture as land owners, working farmers or laborers.

The topics to be discussed must, in the necessities of the case, be of broad and general nature; those which concern principles rather than details of practice, and must not include those of partisan political character. Conference and discussion, and not controversy, will be the work of these congresses.

Aside from the general questions of interest to all, the topics of discussion are grouped in seven general divisions, the titles of which sufficiently explain their nature. These are:

1. General Farm Culture.
 2. Animal Industry.
 3. Horticulture.
 4. Agricultural Organizations and Legislation.
 5. Agricultural Education and Investigation.
 6. Good Roads.
 7. Household Economics.
- The meetings of the Agricultural Congresses will be held in the Art Institute building, on the Lake Front park, near the center of the city of Chicago. This building will have two large audience rooms for the principal meetings of the congresses, and more than twenty smaller rooms which can be used for the smaller meetings required for the consideration of special subjects. The Agricultural Congresses are appointed to begin on Monday, October 16, 1893, and are expected to extend through the greater part of the two weeks following.

HINTS.

One of the standard doctrines of modern dairy practice is that disinfectants can never take the place of simple old-fashioned cleanliness.

The plot selected for a garden can be manured now as well as at any other time. Cover the entire surface with fine manure [not litter], and let it remain for the rains to dissolve. If the plot was plowed last fall the effect of the manure will be more marked when the crops are seeded down.

It may not be pleasant work to use a grindstone and sharpen the tools, but nothing will lessen the work on a farm as much as a grindstone if it is used frequently. Sharp tools make work a pleasure instead of a burden, and save time, save animals, and reduce the costs in many respects.

Prune culture is assuming considerable importance as a profitable industry in the Pacific States. In some parts of Oregon it is reported as one of the most profitable crops in the past year or so, and many farmers have lifted heavy mortgages from their farms by the profits of their prune orchards.

A peach grower whose trees were attacked by the "yellows" and who had lost quite a number by the disease, states that he cured the trees by the use of scraps of iron placed in the soil around them, his theory being that the trees were deficient in iron. After practicing the iron treatment, he states that the trees grew vigorously, and bore fruit for years.

THE INDEPENDENT FARMER.

The following picture of a farmer's advantages is drawn by the Mirror and Farmer: There is some consolation in a farmer's life. When his day's work is ended, the farmer may rest in his own home, content in the thought that so long as men work and eat there will be a demand for the products of the farm. And that, until seedtime and harvest fail, he need not suffer for food sufficient for himself and family. Even though away from the haunts of men, he may have the company of the best people who have lived; for books are cheap, and the newspaper and magazine, themselves a source of liberal education, come to him regularly. His children, largely removed from evil associations, have time to study and develop. With his physical wants so well supplied, and time and opportunity for the growth of his mental and moral nature, the farmer should be the most contented of men.

We heard a mechanic say that he would not be without Salvation Oil. It kills pain.

The best way to avoid scalp diseases, hair falling out, and premature baldness is to use the best preventive known for that purpose—Hall's Hair Renewer.

Last Opportunity for Women.

To share in the semi-annual dividend of at least five per cent to be paid July next by the Women's Publishing Co., of Minneapolis, publishers of the Housekeeper. Stock fully paid up before April 1st will receive this five per cent however. It is probable this stock will be advanced July 1st, as stock paying ten per cent dividends yearly is worth more than par.

"Don't Tobacco Spit or Smoke your Life Away."

Is the title of a little book just received, which tells all about NO-TO-BAC, the wonderful, harmless, guaranteed tobacco-habit cure.—Sold at Drug Stores. NO-TO-BAC costs but a trifle, and a man who wants to quit and can't, had better send for it to day; mailed free.

Address The Sterling Remedy Co., Box 655, Indiana Mineral Springs, Ind.

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

Is as important and needful to the average Man, Woman, and Child during the months of March, April, and May, as good digestive organs are to an appetite for breakfast, dinner, or supper. If, therefore, your system has become disordered from any cause whatever, take AYER'S Sarsaparilla, and take it now. It is the best of all Spring Medicines.

TAKE IT IN preference to any other blood-purifier. It is the medicine you need. Hundreds of Physicians say so, Thousands of Druggists say so, and Millions of Patients say so. There is positively no other remedy which will so thoroughly build up your system, strengthen your nerves, invigorate each organ, and help you to resist successfully the stormy, blustering weather of MARCH as Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It will help you because it will purify your blood. Because it will destroy as well as expel from your system the poisons which, unless removed, produce weaknesses and disease. Because it changes the body from a condition of feebleness and affliction to one of health and strength—a change which is both radical and permanent.

TAKE IT IN cases of Scrofula or Scrofulous Humors. It will cure you of Salt Rheum, Eczema, Tetter, and Diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Kidneys, and Bowels. It quickens the appetite and acts upon every vital function, making food nourishing, sleep refreshing, work pleasant, and life enjoyable. There is no medicine that can set a man on his feet so quickly, firmly, safely, surely, and economically as Ayer's Sarsaparilla. If you have not taken it in March, take it in APRIL

The approach of warmer weather brings with it warnings of Cholera, and other ailments which may all be easily avoided by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Take it for Dyspepsia or Indigestion. It never fails. In taking it you lose no time nor deny yourself any food that nourishes. TAKE IT IN cases of Debility, for that Tired Feeling, for Loss of Appetite, for Rheumatism, Old Sores, Chronic Ulcers, or Unhealed Wounds. Ayer's Sarsaparilla has, for 50 years, sustained a reputation for effecting cures, such as cannot be claimed for any other blood-purifier in the world. It is the Superior Medicine—always the same in strength, taste, and effect. This well-known, wonderful medicine is as good for the MAY blood and effects a cure as easily in the pleasant month of MAY as it does if taken in December. It is the best all-round remedy for ailments originating in impure blood. It is the scientific enemy of disease, and is always to be depended upon for just what it is recommended.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Cures others, will cure you

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained, and all Patent business conducted for Moderate Fees.

Our Office is Opposite U. S. Patent Office, and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.

Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.

A Pamphlet, "How to Obtain Patents," with names of actual clients in your State, county, or town, sent free. Address,

C. A. SNOW & CO.

Opposite Patent Office, Washington, D. C.

LE CARON, THE SPY.

A STARTLING REVELATION.

More enticing than a romance, filled with the strongest evidences of the power and evil of sworn secret societies, and plainly revealing the danger to any government growing out of political conspiracies, is the

"Autobiography of Henry LeCaron, the Spy."

who was for years a Clan-na-Gael Center, a Fenian Commander, and a Land-League Orator, but always a British Detective. The book covers his twenty-five years' experiences in this secret service, and contains 205 pages.

Price, in paper covers, 50 cents.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
WM. I. PHILLIPS, Treasurer,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

"Our High Grade List and Bargain Book sent to any address on receipt of a 2-c stamp."

LORD & THOMAS,

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING

48 RANDOLPH STREET,
CHICAGO.

MY EXPERIENCES

WITH

SECRET SOCIETIES.

BY A TRAVELER.

With a Key to Masonry Illustrated

—o—

A new edition, greatly enlarged, has been issued, embracing chapters on the Language of Numbers, Secret Empires, and Good Men, containing more Experiences, and affording a deeper insight into the Hidden Language and Workings of Secret Clans, and of the counterfeit pretences of good men, than ever before published. The Key is an exposition, explanation and verification of modern Baalism, with which all should be thoroughly acquainted. The price of the new edition is

Fifteen Cents,

but copies of the first edition will be forwarded for Ten Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Disloyal SECRET OATHS

ADDRESS OF

JOSEPH COOK,

OF BOSTON,

AT THE

Conference of Christians CHICAGO, 1890.

No better document of its size for general distribution has been printed. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference.

Single Copies 5 cents, or 12 copies for 50 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago

A cream of tartar baking Powder. Highest of all in leavening strength.—Latest United States Government Food Report.
ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 106 Wall St., N. Y.

NEWS OF THE WEEK (Continued from 15th page).

It was thirty-three days on Tuesday since the White Star freight steamer Naronic left Liverpool with a valuable cargo and nearly seventy men on board, and she has not been seen since she left port.

Over 1,500 men and boys are idle in the Hazleton (Pa.) district by reason of the flooded mines, and in the Northumberland county region 1,000 hands were idle.

Chaplain Stephan, of the Illinois State Penitentiary, issued an order that hereafter none but Lutherans and Catholics should teach in the prison Sunday-schools. Gov. Altgeld thereupon issued a proclamation declaring that all religious denominations should be allowed equal rights.

An investigating committee of the Tennessee Legislature has made a report showing "a fearful condition of affairs among the convicts at Coal Creek. They are in the most diseased and filthy condition, and many of them are so poorly fed that they are starving to death."

Hop Gee Wo, the head Chinaman at Cheyenne, Wyoming, announces that his countrymen in the State, numbering about 3,000, will have their pictures and signatures with the Deputy Internal Revenue Collector by May 1. He says they have received orders from China through San Francisco to comply with the laws.

Green B. Raum has resigned his office as Commissioner of Pensions.

It is announced that custom receipts are increasing, and during the month of March it is anticipated that they will foot up $18,000,000. For the first ten days of this month the receipts at the port of New York from customs aggregated $4,206,000 as against $3,905,000 for the corresponding period of last year.

Mrs. Mary E. Lease has been elected president of the Kansas State Board of Charities, and has started on a tour of the State institutions, accompanied by the four male members of the board.

Two expeditions for the North pole, or thereabouts, are to set forth in June, one from Norway, and the other from the United States. Lieut. Peary is to command the latter, Dr. Fridtjof Nansen the former. Dr. Nansen is to make a resolute endeavor to reach the actual pole. Lieut. Peary aims to complete explorations in his late expedition, by reaching and mapping the northeast coast of Greenland, and the islands in that quarter. Nansen, it seems, expects to be absent not less than six years.

Thos. Bryant, a wealthy bachelor living on his farm in Cumberland county, Ky., was attacked in his home by three masked men, who gagged and bound the hired help, and then tortured Bryant, who at first refused to tell where he kept his money. They fired pistols close by his head, choked him, burned his body with rocks heated in his fire, thrust his feet into the fire and burned them to a crisp. He then disclosed the place where his money was hidden. The robbers secured $1,800, and then rode away on three of Bryant's horses. His injuries were fatal.

FOREIGN.

Germany has a law for the suppression of Jesuitical influence in the empire. Last week a bill was introduced in the Imperial Parliament for the repeal of that law. There will be considerable opposition to the measure, but it may prevail.

At Melbourne the trials of certain officers of the Anglo-Australian bank, which failed in 1892, have resulted in Staples, chairman of the bank, being sentenced to penal servitude for five years; Norwood, the auditor, to penal servitude for two years, and Haroldson, the accountant, to six months' imprisonment.

A dispatch from St. Petersburg says: "Advices have been received from the province of Astrachan, in Southeastern Russia, adjoining the Caspian Sea, to the effect that a strange epidemic, whose character is as yet unrecognized, is killing thousands of people in the transcasplan region."

Five hundred leading Protestants have issued a notice summoning a meeting at Barman to protest against the proposed readmission of Jesuits to Germany.

Mr. Gladstone, who has been quite ill, is recovering.

The Chinese authorities in Kashgar are, it is stated, preparing to seize the portion of the Pamier region occupied by Russia and to which China lays claim. With a view to defending Russian occupation two battalions of Russian infantry and two batteries of artillery have been ordered to start in April to resist any Chinese force that may attempt to drive the Russians out.

The London Russo-Jewish committee has sent to every Jewish banker and bank director, bank manager, stock broker, and "agent de change" in Europe a passionate appeal to combine in boycotting Russian loans and in boycotting the trade in Russian securities generally. Sir Julian Goldsmith said that the appeal of the Russo-Jewish committee was issued less for the purpose of retaliation than for the purpose of moving Russia to mitigate the severity of her treatment of the Jews.

"What's in a name?" Well, that depends. For instance, the name of "Ayer" is sufficient guarantee that Ayer's Sarsaparilla is a genuine, scientific blood-purifier, and not a sham, like so much that goes by the name of "Sarsaparilla." Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the standard.

DONATIONS.

FROM NOV. 1, 1892, TO MARCH 20, 1893.

Current Expense Fund:

J Griffin.....	$ 5 00
James Mathews.....	10 00
Rev John Harper.....	5 00
Mrs G Spies.....	8 50
Rev Chs Hedler.....	1 00
John Robison.....	5 00
Miss M L Mitchell.....	2 50
Chas Stewart.....	1 50
W E Killips.....	50
L M Samson.....	10 00
Holland Church, Mich.....	10 30
Walter Lasby.....	3 00
D J Grant.....	55
Mrs A E Amesbury.....	2 00
R M Stevenson.....	5 00
L C Livesay.....	25
T D Anderson.....	2 00
Wm P King.....	2 00
H Holt.....	2 00
Rev W Hazenburt.....	1 30
Mrs E B Clark.....	3 50
C O Russell.....	1 00
Rev I C Weldler.....	1 00
Prof C M Lowe.....	5 00
Mrs A W Schoenhut.....	2 00
Rev C R Hunt.....	78
T Kingsnorth.....	3 50
Covenant Church, Sparta, Ill.....	6 55
Miss Julia Hurlbut.....	5 00
Chas Corrette.....	50
Rev Amos Dresser.....	10 00
W T Wilson.....	50
College Church, Wheaton, Ill.....	17 95
"Friend".....	20 00
J F Icke.....	1 50

"WORTH A GUINEA A BOX."

BEECHAM'S PILLS

TASTELESS—EFFECTUAL

FOR A DISORDERED LIVER

Taken as directed these famous Pills will prove marvellous restoratives to all enfeebled by the above or kindred diseases.

25 Cents a Box,

but generally recognized in England and, in fact throughout the world to be "worth a guinea a box," for the reason that they WILL CURE a wide range of complaints, and that they have saved to many sufferers not merely one but many guineas, in doctors' bills.

Covered with a Tasteless & Soluble Coating. Of all druggists. Price 25 cents a box. New York Depot, 365 Canal St.

DO YOU WANT

To receive, read, distribute and otherwise aid in the circulation of a large number of Holiness and Reform papers and magazines? If so, send me a SILVER dime, and your name and address will be printed on the Holiness and Reform Mail Exchange List, which is sent to all publishers of holiness and reform literature, who will mail you sample papers and magazines. Write name and address PLAINLY. Address, J. H. PADGETT, Printer, Ennis, Texas.

The Christian Witness

Is an eight-page undenominational monthly; the official organ of the New Hampshire Christian Association, opposed to secret societies. It advocates Bible Holiness, Church Purity, Sound Morality and Temperance.

Terms: 50 cents a year, or three years for $1.00.

Send stamp for sample copy.

Address S. C. KIMBALL, Box 277. Newmarket, N. H.

John Shuh.....	5 00
W R Morley.....	25 00
Willets Skinner.....	5 00
John Park.....	5 00
M L Worcester.....	10 00
J Griffin.....	3 00
J W Allen.....	5 00
Rev W G Waddle.....	2 75
I L Buckwalter.....	2 50
Jos Morris.....	5 00
L M Samson.....	3 50
Rev W O Norval.....	5 00
Rev J D Smith.....	1 00
Rufus Park.....	5 00
Wandell Vine.....	5 00
C H Watson.....	5 00
Mrs L B Oliphant.....	5 00
W E Killips.....	2 00
Rev John Harley.....	1 00
Peter C Housel.....	2 00
D Lotzenhiser.....	2 00
Wm O Percival.....	10 00
Chs Kennicott.....	5 00
W McClelland.....	5 00
O W Watkins.....	1 00
Jos H Wilson.....	2 40
J W Suidter.....	5 00
John Hays Gray Estate.....	37 50
	$326 93

Cynosure Extension Fund:

C W Sterry.....$ 10 00

Free Tract Fund:

R F Hurd.....	$ 25
Josiah Shaw.....	50
Wm Evans.....	50
D S Faris.....	50
Mrs M F Carr.....	75
W C Wilson.....	50
Mrs M P Morris.....	65
John Crawford.....	50
	$ 4 15

Southern Ministers' Fund:

B Bond.....	$ 50
O C Blanchard.....	3 00
R P Brorup.....	1 00
J W Allen.....	1 50
Mrs M F Carr.....	75
F F Dresser.....	5 00
Wm Hamlyn.....	3 00
	$14 75

W. I. PHILLIPS, Sec'y and Treas.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

THE IMAGE OF THE BEAST

A Secret Empire;

Or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy.

By Rev. Richard Horton.

Third Edition. 200 pages. Cloth.

Price, 60 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
321 W. Madison St., Chicago

THE

Folly, Expense & Danger

OF

SECRET SOCIETIES.

BY

CHARLES A. BLANCHARD.

(President Wheaton College.)

5 Cts per Copy; $3 per Hundred.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

AMERICAN HANDBOOK

AND

CITIZEN MANUAL.

BY

MANLOVE N. BUTLER.

CONTENTS:—Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement; Real Prohibition; Poor Man's Bible, and All-Around Reformers. Over 200 pages

Paper, single copy 40c.; per doz. 35c.

CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

JONATHAN BLANCHARD'S

—]oo[—

SERMONS AND ADDRESSES.

Select discourses of the late editor of the Cynosure and leader in our reform. Lectures, sermons and speeches given from 1834 to 1892 in leading cities of the United States, discussing topics of

LIVING REFORM.

Secret Societies,
The Sabbath,
Temperance,
National Reform,
Christian Education,
Christian Socialism,
The Bible, Etc., Etc.

A BOOK EVERYBODY SHOULD READ

12mo. Fine Photogravure Portrait.

Price, 75 Cents.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison st., Chicago.

PATRIARCHS MILITANT ILLUSTRATED

THE COMPLETE RITUAL

With Eighteen Military Diagrams

As Adopted and Promulgated by the

SOVEREIGN GRAND LODGE

OF THE

INDEPENDENT ORDER OF ODD-FELLOWS.

At Baltimore, Maryland, Sept. 24th, 1885.

Compiled and Arranged by John U. Underwood,
Lieutenant General.

WITH THE

UNWRITTEN OR SECRET WORK-BOOK,

ALSO AN

Historical Sketch and Introduction

By Pres't. J. Blanchard, of Wheaton College

25 cents each.

For Sale by the National Christian Association

221 W. Madison St., Chicago

Revised Odd-fellowship Illustrated. The complete revised ritual of the Lodge, Encampment and Rebekah (ladies) degrees, profusely illustrated, and guaranteed to be strictly accurate; with a sketch of the origin, history and character of the order, over one hundred foot-note quotations from standard authorities, showing the character and teachings of the order, and an analysis of each degree by ex-President J. Blanchard. This ritual corresponds exactly with the "Charge Books" furnished by the Sovereign Grand Lodge. In cloth, $1.00; paper cover, 50cts.

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XXV., No. 29.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, MARCH 30, 1893.

WHOLE No. 1,196.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,

221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PER YEAR..... $2.00
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... 1.50

No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearses paid.

Address all letters for publication to EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, CHICAGO. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed.

Make all drafts and money orders payable to the Treasurer, W. I. PHILLIPS, 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO. When possible make remittances by express money order. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address on Cynosure list always give the former address.

[Entered at the Postoffice, Chicago, Ill., as Second Class Matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:	SELECTED:
Notes and Comments..... 1	The Mormon Situation... 3
Shall We Keep the Passover?..... 8	That "Religious Congress" Again..... 3
Concentration of Reform Work..... 8	REFORM NEWS:
Joseph Cook on Chicago. 8	From the New England Agent; From the Eastern Agent; New Hampshire Notes; From the Western District....4,5,9
Striking Engineers in the United States Court..... 8	CORRESPONDENCE:
Illinois and the World's Fair..... 9	The Passover; Good Men in Secret Lodges; A Remonstrance.....5,6
Testimony of an M. E. Elder..... 9	LODGE NOTES..... 7
Progress in Electrical Discovery..... 9	AGENTS AND LECTURERS... 7
CONTRIBUTIONS:	THE N. C. A..... 7
Shall We Acknowledge God and His Law in the United States Constitution?..... 1	THE HOME.....10
The Development of our Work..... 2	TEMPERANCE.....11
NEW ENGLAND LETTER..... 4	BIBLE LESSON.....12
WASHINGTON LETTER..... 4	RELIGIOUS NEWS.....12
LITERATURE..... 6	NEWS OF THE WEEK.....13
	Secret Societies Condemned.....13
	HOME AND HEALTH.....14
	FARM NOTES.....15

"One of the functions of the licensed saloon," said Rev. W. C. A. Waller in his recent address at Detroit Lake, Minn., "is that it furnishes the rich men of a community a means of saving in taxes a sum which is extorted, through the temptations of the saloon, from the pockets of the poor." There is a whole temperance lecture, and a strong argument in favor of prohibition, in that one sentence.

Writing from Chambersburg, Pa., Rev. W. B. Stoddard says: "This is a sort of Jerusalem for loyal (radical) U. B. preachers for this section, some seven or eight living in the city and going out to preach. The King Street U. B. church"—where he lectured for three evenings—"has been crowded. Benches were brought into the aisles, and many stood while I spoke. I feel that our work has made quite an advance here." This is cheering news.

A novel cure for strikes among railroad employes is proposed by a prominent official. Briefly it contemplates the hiring of all assistants under a contract for long terms, having them sworn to support the Constitution (and relatively the laws) of the United States, and to render obedience to all orders of the company by whom they are hired. The object is to get them from under the control of labor unions and other outside influences, to secure them continuous and profitable employment, and so make friends and good citizens of them. The plan, in theory, seems plausible; but perhaps it might fail experimentally.

The bill introduced into the Illinois Legislature by Mr. Lyman, repealing so much of the original State charter of the village of Evanston, in this county, as prohibited the sale of intoxicating beverages within four miles of the Northwestern University, has been killed, and the charter remains intact. The measure was an outrage, engineered by and in the interest of the saloon power, which has well-nigh ruined the city of Chicago, and is the cause of untold crime and misery within our limits. The danger was great that this iniquity would prevail, and it required strenuous and persistent effort on the part of the citizens of Evanston to overcome it. It was a grand victory for them.

The secret, and often unreasonable, not to say tyrannical, labor unions have received a severe blow in the recent decision of Judge C. E. Billings, of the United States circuit court of Louisiana, who declares that it is illegal for these societies to order strikes of an interstate character; and with this declaration he issued an injunction in support of his position. The benefit of this decision will be enjoyed by railroad companies whose lines pass through (or intersect others in) two or more States. On the Illinois Central, for instance, striking employes in Chicago would be liable under this decision, since the road, extending to New Orleans, passes through several commonwealths, and forms connections with through lines in this and other States.

Two good brothers and earnest friends of our anti-secrecy work—Philip Kribs and Samuel Bushey, of Lamartine, Penn.,—in sending their united donations in answer to our appeal in behalf of the pressing needs of the N. C. A., have the kindness to say: "We hope that every subscriber will do likewise, as much money will be needed to procure the necessary literature for distribution at the World's Fair, to let other nations know what we are doing in this enlightened country. We have reason to thank God for the knowledge which we have that the anti-secret cause is gaining ground, with the assurance that the Lord is on our side, and that many miracles have been performed by prayer. We read in Leviticus 26 that 'five shall chase a hundred, and one hundred shall put ten thousand to flight, and your enemies shall flee before you.' May God bless all the donors to this cause!"

In view of the renewed and persistent efforts of the enemies of Christianity to have the World's Fair opened on Sunday a committee representing Sabbath-observing organizations throughout the United States has issued an appeal, earnestly requesting the membership of the churches of our land and other friends of the Sabbath to make Sunday, April 2, 1893, a day of prayer that God will give courage to the representatives of the national Government entrusted with the honor of the nation in the management of the affairs of the Exposition, that they may carry out the expressed will of the people, and keep the gates closed on the Sabbath; and that He will confound and put to naught the counsels and devices of those who combine for the destruction of the American Sabbath at this pivotal point in the history of our nation. Let the throne of grace, on which is seated our risen Lord, be besieged on that day!

Colonel Elliott F. Shepard, son-in-law of Wm. H. Vanderbilt, a man of great wealth, and proprietor and editor of the New York daily Mail and Express, who died suddenly at his home in New York City on Friday last, was also a zealous supporter of the Christian religion. Upon assuming charge of his paper, he drew from the contemporary press much sarcastic criticism by placing each day at the head of its editorial column a text of Scripture for the edification of his readers. A rigid observer of the Lord's day, he labored earnestly for its observance by all classes of mankind, and was a prominent promoter of the American Sabbath Union; and it is related of him, that in order to stop Sunday traffic on one of the city elevated roads, he purchased it, and so accomplished his purpose. He was particularly active in his opposition to the opening of the Columbian Exposition on Sunday. During the rebellion he was employed by the State of New York in recruiting, fitting out, and sending regiments to the front, and was thus instrumental in putting nearly 47,000 soldiers in the field. He also held active and prominent positions in private and public organizations, exhibiting a high degree of executive ability. His death, at the age of sixty years, is a national loss.

The following is an extract from an address to the students of Union Theological Seminary—the paradise of the "Higher Critics"—by "Rev." Charles Thompson, of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian church, New York City: "This is an age of common sense. A man of the present says to himself: 'I belong to a lodge. When I get sick the members come to see me. If I need it, nurses are supplied. If I die, my wife is cared for. Take the church; it is dark all the week. There is some fine preaching and elegant singing on Sundays, but what is that to the treatment I get from the lodge? The church does not come into my home. The lodge does. It is more Christian after all. I'll stick to the lodge.' The feeling that stirs such a man is wide-spread here in New York. I know it is general among the middle-classes. It is not wild. It is not socialistic. It is reasonable and truly religious." This expression draws from the Royal Arcanum this comment: "It is certainly refreshing to turn from the senseless ranting of all such narrow, anti-secret-society people as the editors of the Cynosure and that ilk, to the following sensible utterances." The difference is that the Cynosure believes more in the power of Christ and his love for his church than it does in a selfish secret society that takes tribute from its dupes and doles out to them its stunted "benefits." By the way, why did not Christ found a lodge instead of a church, if the former is so much the better institution? Was it a mistake?

SHALL WE ACKNOWLEDGE GOD AND HIS LAW IN THE UNITED STATES CONSTITUTION?

INTERLUDE TO JOSEPH COOK'S BOSTON MONDAY LECTURE IN TREMONT TEMPLE, MARCH 6, 1893, BY REV. J. M. FOSTER.

A writer in the Bibliotheca Sacra has said that "all the lines of history point to America as the place, and the present age as the time, when the true relations between the human and the divine in civil affairs shall be exemplified." It is proposed to amend the Constitution so that the preamble shall read: "We, the people, acknowledging Almighty God as the source of all authority, the Bible as the fountain of all law, and the Lord Jesus Christ as the Ruler of nations, do ordain," etc.

I. To bring that instrument into harmony with the history, character and life of this nation. This country was settled by Christian men with Christian ends in view. The Pilgrim Fathers, before landing on Plymouth rock, while in the cabin of the Mayflower, drafted a constitution. It is engraved on a stone tablet at Plymouth. The passing visitor reads: "In the name of God, Amen. For the glory of God and the maintenance of the Christian faith," etc. All the colonial charters and compacts contained the principle embodied in the famous ordinance of 1787, which gave rise to the settlement of the Northwestern Territory: "Religion, morality and knowledge are essential to good government."

The fact that the constitutions of the thirteen original States recognized God, that the Presidents recognized a superintending Providence in national affairs in their inaugural addresses, and that the Sabbath was observed by State and national governments, justified the decision of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, in 1824, that Christianity is the common law of this land. The fact that forty-two out of forty-four State constitutions to-day acknowledge the higher law; that we have Sabbath laws in all our States save two; that there are chaplains in the army and navy, in Congressional and legislative halls; that the oath is administered in all our courts, etc., all confirm the decree of the Supreme Court of the United States, Feb., 1892, that this is a Christian nation.

Writers distinguish between the nation and its government. The nation is the creature of God, born in his providence, maintained by his bounty, and responsible to him for its character and conduct. The government is the agent set up by the nation to carry out its will. The Constitution is the letter of instruction from the nation to its government. That "letter" should reflect the moral principles and purposes of our Christian nation.

II. A secular Constitution will secularize the nation. If the nation be morally above its government, either the nation must bring the government up to its level at the first, or else the government will bring the nation down to its level at the last. Twenty-three times it is stated in the book of Kings that "Jeroboam, the son of Nebat, made Israel to sin" in worshiping idols. The nation was confirmed in idolatry. Philip II. of Spain was a rank papist. In 1588 he built the Invincible Armada to destroy Protestantism in England and make the papal tiara supreme in Europe. Spain has been a papal nation for three centuries.

In 1534, Henry VIII. repudiated the authority of the Pope and made himself the head of the Church of England. Queen Victoria to-day enjoys that bad eminence.

In 1789 our nation adopted a Constitution which does not contain the name of God. It is as silent as the grave respecting the law of God. This came partly from a desire to avoid the evils of the Establishments of Europe, and partly through the dominance of French infidelity in the convention that framed it; for, as Franklin said, that convention, with three or four exceptions, thought prayers unnecessary. In adopting that instrument, this nation inoculated the political body with the virus of secularism, and the result is a case of national blood-poisoning. Why is it that this Christian nation tolerates the liquor traffic, that costs, directly and consequentially, $2,000,000,000 annually, maintains a standing army of 600,000 drunkards, and sends 100,000 to a drunkard's grave every year? The nation's moral sense has been stupefied by the drug of secularism. Why does this Christian nation allow 2,000,000 unwilling toilers to be compelled to work on the Sabbath on pain of losing their position? The national conscience has been seared with the hot iron of secularism. Why did this Christian nation permit 328,964 divorces in the past twenty years, and twice as many adulterous marriages by the guilty parties? The nation's sense of responsibility has been paralyzed by secularism. Why does this Christian nation allow the unhallowed use of money in political elections? Public opinion has been vitiated by secularism. Why have thirteen colored men been burned alive under President Harrison's administration, and over 500 horribly tortured by mobs in the South, and no national protest? The nation's sense of accountability to God has been deadened by secularism. Why is it that Bismarck points to his Folk laws; Gladstone to his pamphlet on Vaticanism, and our own Ulysses of speakers and thinkers, Joseph Cook, to the Pope's ultimatum by Satolli, and solemnly warn us of the intrigues of the hierarchy, and we remain indifferent? Secularism has produced judicial blindness. Why is it that the Clan-na-Gael, the Mafia, the Highbinders, and the Endowment House members, do not awaken a feeling of danger from the secret empire? Because secularism has produced strong delusions that we should believe a lie.

No President ever recognized the Lord Jesus Christ in his Thanksgiving proclamation. Why? Because the Constitution does not. The Republican, Democratic, Prohibition and People's parties, in their last national conventions, refused to recognize Christ as King of nations in their platforms. The truth is, this nation has been educated away from the King of nations by our secular Constitution. Goethe said: "Plant an oak in a vase, and either the vase must burst or the oak will die." We have planted the tree of our civil and religious liberties in the vase of a secular constitution. Shall the vase give way or the tree perish? Save our Christian nation and amend the Constitution.

III. It furnishes a basis in our fundamental law for moral legislation. Eight years after the adoption of the Constitution Congress made a treaty with Tripoli, which was never called in question as to its constitutionality. It says: "The Government of the United States is in no sense founded on the Christian religion, and makes no distinction between the Christian and the Mussulman." That treaty, according to the Constitution, is common law, and is paramount to the instrument itself. We want an antidote to this.

In 1808, President Jefferson was petitioned to proclaim a fast by New England ministers. He replied: "I consider the Government of the United States as interdicted by the Constitution from intermeddling with religious institutions, their doctrines, discipline or exercises." We want that interdiction removed.

In 1852 Seward declared, in the United States Senate, that "there is a law higher than the Constitution," and slave-holding Senators and their friends from all parts of the chamber demanded, "Take it back!" Seward was like a sword of the first temper. You may thrust it into a twisted scabbard, and when you draw it out it is as straight as before. He used language that seemed to withdraw his utterance, but when examined was found void of recantation. But the Constitution ought to formally recognize the higher law.

In 1858 the Sabbath laws in California were tried in the Supreme Court of that State. Chief Justice Terry held that our Sabbath laws were unconstitutional, because they discriminated in favor of Christians and were a violation of the religious freedom of others. Judge Burnett held, in the same case, that "our constitutional theory regards all religions, as such, equally entitled to protection, and all equally unentitled to preference." Why were the Christian people of this land compelled to go to Washington and on their knees beseech their representatives not to break God's law in opening the gates of the World's Fair on Sabbath? Because God's law is not nominated in the bond of the Constitution.

In 1870 the Bible was tried in the Supreme Court of Ohio because it was in the public schools of Cincinnati. Judge Welch decided against the Bible in our public schools, because "neither the word 'Christian,' nor 'Christianity,' nor 'Bible' is to be found in the national Constitution; and therefore the word 'religion' in that instrument must mean the religion of man, and not the religion of any class of men." Shall we allow the Bible to be put out of our schools, one by one, or shall we place in the Constitution a guarantee for its use? Ex-President Woolsey said in the convention of the Evangelical Alliance, in New York, in 1873: "The Constitution of the United States would require no change to be adapted to a Mohammedan nation."

It is time for us to profess our national fealty to the God of nations. We are attempting to settle moral questions, but beyond a certain limit we do not advance. When the great obelisk was being raised in the East, the King gave orders that no one should speak while it ascended, on pain of death. Amid breathless silence it arose until it reached a certain point beyond which no effort could move it. The master-workman, fearing for the safety of the people witnessing it, mounted a pillar and shouted: "Wet the ropes!" This done, it went to its place. Our government is attempting to deal with moral issues, but they do not come to permanent settlement.

In the hour of the nation's peril in 1863 the United States Senate honored Christ as King, and he gave us the victory over slavery. But the blacks in the South are yet treated worse than slaves, in many instances.

When our nation was threatened by the Mormon cancer of priest-rule and polygamy, the Supreme Court of the United States decreed that all who took the Endowment House oath should be disfranchised. But Utah demands admission as a State, and polygamy is only suspended till then.

When our national honor and virtue were threatened by the octopus of the Louisiana lottery, Congress set the day of its death by the anti-lottery law. But New Jersey has legalized gambling.

When our American Sabbath was imperiled by the proposal to open the gates of the World's Fair on Sabbath, the whole nation lifted up its voice in solemn protest, and both houses of Congress decreed that the Lord's day should be honored by closing the gates. But last summer's battle had to be fought over again this winter in Washington; and next summer it will be again upon us. All because God's law is not in the Constitution. We have mounted this stage to give the cry of the hour, "Wet the ropes!" "Amend the Constitution." Legalize the victory for all time.

IV. It is an act of homage that the nation owes to the King of kings. The nation and kingdom that will not serve the Saviour-King shall perish. Be wise, O ye kings; kiss the Son. Exalt the Lord, O ye people. Honor the King.

V. It is a needed example to set before the other nations. The eyes of the nations are upon us for a model of free government. When this Government was set up there were only three republics in the world. Now, out of the forty-four governments of the earth twenty-three are republics; and of the remaining twenty-one only seven are despotisms, while the other fourteen are limited. This change is due largely to our republic. That is God's providential call upon us to set before them a perfect pattern of a true Christian republic. Alexander Hamilton said: "It is ours to be either the grave in which the hopes of the nations are to be entombed, or the pillar of cloud to pilot them into the glory of the millennial reign. May we not forget our immortal trust." As Matthew Arnold said: "America holds the future."

THE DEVELOPMENT OF OUR WORK.

SUBSTANCE OF THE ADDRESS DELIVERED BY REV. CHARLES E. TEMPLE, OF BROCKWAYVILLE, PA., BEFORE THE PENNSYLVANIA STATE CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION, IN THE CONVENTION AT ALLEGHENY, PA., FEBRUARY 28, 1893.

To the eye of prayerful and patriotic observers the multiplication of secret, oath-bound societies cannot fail to awaken serious apprehension; first, because some of them trench upon the prerogatives of government, by inflicting penalties involving life, liberty, reputation, honor, etc.; namely, Masonry, Molly Maguires, Clan-na-Gael; in proof of which mention may be made of the murder of Captain Wm. Morgan, after being violently kidnapped in Batavia, N. Y.; carried to and confined in Fort Niagara; afterward drowned in Niagara river; all of which is too well established to admit of doubt. The facts in the case are matter of history, and also in the records of our courts; and while Freemasons have been wont to deny them, the order stands convicted before God and the civilized world of this and other like crimes,—very many well-authenticated cases of deep, dark treachery and blood, crying to God for vengeance.

At Leroy, six miles from Batavia, at the time of the abduction of Morgan, one hundred members of Masonic lodges walked over their charter, admitted the fact of his murder, and publicly testified that what Morgan wrote of the awful oaths and secrets of Freemasonry were true. Fifty years after, when the living witnesses were gathered at Batavia to erect Morgan's monument, having inscribed on its granite base "The murder by Masons of Captain Wm. Morgan," no one had the audacity to deny it in the presence of such a cloud of witnesses, all of whom could relate some incident of the abduction, murder, court trial, spiriting away of witnesses, and falsehoods told of his having been seen here and there.

These were a counterpart of the falsehoods told and telegrams sent from all parts, and received by the friends and acquaintances of Dr. Patrick Henry Cronin in Chicago, telling of interviews, to mislead and prevent search for his body, after being foully murdered by the Clan-na-Gael, while his naked, mutilated remains were all this time in the catch-basin.

Neither was this all the crime with which the Irish fraternity was chargeable, as has been very abundantly manifested in their history. The writer was called by business to the coal regions of Eastern Pennsylvania, in the bloody period of the Molly Maguires' history, and spent a night at Mount Carmel, stopping at a hotel where he met a miner who had been raised in Warsaw township, Jefferson county, Pa., the home of the writer; and when talking over the bloody scenes that had been enacted, asked: "What do you do with men who object to going on strike, and thereby make themselves obnoxious?" He unhesitatingly replied: "They go into the mines, but they never come out." The same evening men were carried in with shot and ball wounds, and reports of robberies and murders were frequent, and the land was full of violence and blood.

About the same year, or a little later, the writer spent a night or two with a farmer in Farmers' Valley, in McKean county. His daughter had married a young lawyer in the section of the State infested by the Mollies. He had been instrumental in bringing to justice quite a number of the guilty, and had received threatening letters, but continued on in the discharge of his duty. He left his home, his young wife and child, in the dusk of the evening, to return to his office, and was never seen after. There was but one opinion about his removal, and that was that he was violently abducted and put to death. "That," said the farmer, "is the opinion of the wife and child of the missing lawyer."

Passing over much that might be said of the bloody and awful deeds of the Highbinders, Mafia and other secret fraternities which past years have developed, mention may be made of the recent Homestead difficulties in Pennsylvania, in which the same bloody, fiendish, devilish spirit was manifested; also in Buffalo, New York, last summer, where it was coolly planned to stop work at midnight and go immediately to burning the buildings of their employers and trains laden with merchandise in transit, for which their employers were responsible. Can anyone deny the truth of these statements? Verily not.

In view of all the developments in the past of secret, oath-bound societies and fraternities, we ask, Can the State safely charter or tolerate such combinations in our midst, usurping the functions of government and States, administering oaths, taking up arms, making war, taking life, causing terror and alarm in peaceful communities, artfully, and with devilish intent, seeking positions for their agents where, by administering poison, great industries might be suspended and lives of fathers and brothers endangered, wives made widows, and children beggared and fatherless? Verily, government and the peace of society is menaced. Blood-curdling oaths are at the base of these violent deeds, which startle and alarm the sober, peace-loving portion of our citizens. Men begin to inquire, Who is safe in the possession of life or property? These societies and fraternities flourish emblems of charity, fellowship, brotherhood, virtue, friendship, love and religion, carrying the Bible, cushioned and gilded, and yet develop a spirit of malevolence, anarchy and murder, having received charters from the State under pretext of beneficence, and then manifest a flagrant disregard of the sacred rights of life and property. They pray, but not in the all-prevailing name of Jesus, through whom alone we can approach to God with acceptance. "There is no other name given under heaven whereby we can be saved." They are religious, and lead men to expect salvation without a Saviour, rejecting the world's Redeemer, to whom every knee must bow and every tongue confess of things in earth. Every tongue must confess him Lord.

Again, these fraternities antagonize the church of the Lord Jesus, entrap and ensnare the young men into the secret lodges, the stepping-stone to intemperance, dissipation and final ruin, away from home and the influences of home, to the dark recesses of the lodge, ending in midnight and morning revelry, of which many painful examples could be given. The lodge steals men against the Gospel. The churches are made up mostly of women and children, while fathers and brothers are in the lodges, robbing the church of male members, and consequently of her rightful revenue. "Ye cannot serve God and Mammon; ye cannot be partakers of the table of the Lord and the table of devils." "No man can serve two masters, for either he will hate the one and love the other, or hold to the one and despise the other." It is true that we sometimes see men with the emblems and badges of fraternities and secret societies flaunted in the faces of Christian congregations and around the communion tables and around God's altars, to the disgust of Christians; but such things are rare. The majority of secret society people discard the church and religion, other than lodge religion, and many proclaim the lodge to be all the religion they want; better far than the churches. Their religion is a false religion, without a Saviour and without any well-grounded hope of salvation. This delusion comes in like a soul-destroying flood.

The Spirit of the Lord has lifted up a standard against it in the National Christian Association. May God greatly encourage their hearts and strengthen their hands, enabling them to show the lodge religion to be a sham, and their charity a hollow pretence, which it is.

Another charge I make against the lodge is, that they block the wheels of justice, by combining all their influence to prevent the penalties of violated law from falling upon guilty members of lodges. A judge on the bench, who is a Mason or Odd-fellow, or member of some secret fraternity, has many times been the means of acquitting the guilty. A witness (or witnesses) is corrupted by the sign or signal of distress; jury-men have been tampered with, and the ends of justice many times defeated. "Judgment is turned away backward; truth is fallen in our streets, and equity cannot enter." It has come to be pretty well understood in the country at large that persons not members of secret fraternities must and do suffer the penalties of violated law, while lodgemen escape. Think not, brother Mason or Odd-fellow, or member of other secret, oath-bound association, that these things are unknown. They are well known—almost universally admitted. Lodgemen know these facts. There have been strange things done in our courts that could be explained in no other way. How many become members of lodges with these benefits, among others, in view God only knows.

The great Cincinnati riots, and the lynchings that have become so common, were largely attributed to this cause—the inefficiency of our courts to suitably administer justice and punish the guilty by legal process, until an outraged public opinion, like a mighty tornado, comes sweeping upon us.

Secret, oath-bound fraternities are also many times the means of lifting into high places men who otherwise would not be thought of—men whose ambition has its birth in the fact that they can have as many earnest workers on election days, and indeed throughout a campaign, as there are members of their order or fraternity, enabling them to pack caucuses, and manipulate primaries for their own benefit, to the damage and defeat of better men, until it has become patent that lodgemen get the lion's share of the offices. It is also patent that no man need aspire or start in the race unless he has taken the obligations and can give the signs, grips and passwords of about all the fraternities. No wonder that politics has become a dirty pool, and legislation chiefly in the interest of trusts and monopolies until the foundations of government are felt to be shaking.

Labor organizations have very abundantly demonstrated their power to harm the poor laborer, while they derange the business of the country, and paralyze, or impede, the industries. Their crushing, grinding power is felt by the poor man, whose only capital is his labor. He must not surrender his right to dispose of it; it is his God-given right; he dare not surrender it to any walking-delegate or master workman. He will find himself under worse than Egyptian taskmasters, making bricks without straw, and no flesh-pots at which to allay his hunger, or water to slake his thirst; maddened by enforced idleness, frenzied by beholding the poverty of those whom his strong arms would gladly supply with bread, he must wait the behest of superiors to dictate when and how and for what he dispose of it.

God commands that six days thou mayest labor, restricting you only on the Sabbath (God's day) for rest and worship. Your labor fraternity may command you to months of continuous idleness, to grind in the prison house of want, with eyes blinded and limbs pinioned, while worse than Philistine lords make sport of your wretchedness. Do not relinquish to any man or set of men the path that may lead you to competence, independence and comfort in your declining years.

Lastly, God has constituted the family, the church and the state. These are indispensable to the existence and well-being of our race. All men are, of necessity, members of two of these three. They have divine warrant and authority. You cannot overthrow them. Secret, oath-bound societies have no divine warrant—are mere human devices of men, contrary to the teaching of God's Word. Our Lord ever spake openly to the world; in secret he said nothing. Men professing Christianity enter into lodges, fellowship Jews, atheists, and infidels. The ungodly and the profane mingle in the same lodges, bow at the same altars, recite the same Christless prayers, submit to the same debasing, foolish initiation ceremonies, swear the same horrid oaths! "What communion hath light with darkness; what concord hath Christ with Belial; what part hath he that believeth with an infidel?" "He that doeth truth cometh to the light that his deeds may be made manifest; he that doeth evil hateth the light, neither cometh to the light, lest his deeds should be reproved." "This is the condemnation, that light is come into the world, and men love darkness rather than light, because their deeds are evil." The prophet is shown a hole in the wall, and told to dig. He discovers a door, and looks into the dark chamber: Israel's abominations and idolatries; then the God of Israel forsaking them; then the angel with the writer's inkhorn, to mark those who sigh and cry; then the slaughter weapons; then Israel's irretrievable ruin and national overthrow.

THE MORMON SITUATION.

At present it seems that Utah will not be admitted into the Union as a State. This is just as it ought to be. And yet it is going to be a bitter disappointment to the Mormons. They have been doing everything to convince Congress that Utah should be admitted. They have pretended to give up polygamy. They have pretended to divide upon political lines, but whenever Utah becomes a State, and the president of the church gives the word, it will be found that they are united in politics and that the leaders are in favor of the abomination known as polygamy. I think that many of the younger Mormons will refuse to go back fully under the church yoke; and if statehood is postponed four or five years, many more of them will become freemen. The public school system is working a mighty revolution, quietly but surely, in educating the rising generation. Let this good work go on as it is now conducted and we will have a great change in Utah. History teaches that a people cannot change their convictions in a day. As the Mormons have advocated the supremacy of the priesthood in church and state for sixty-three years, and polygamy for forty-one years, it is too much to expect of them a complete change in these doctrines and practices in a single night, or even in two years. But the day is getting brighter. The dawn is at hand.—Rev. B. F. Clay, in the Christian Standard.

THAT "RELIGIOUS CONGRESS" AGAIN.

Rev. Dr. W. T. Sabine, of New York, has a stirring sermon in the Mail and Express against the proposed Religious Congress, which is expected to meet in Chicago during the progress of the World's Fair. His two propositions are: First, It should be set down as a fundamental principle in this discussion that Christianity is the imperial and exclusive faith. The religion of Jesus Christ tolerates no rival. It brooks no superior. At once and without hesitation it assumes the throne. It is not a religion among religions. It claims to be the one and only religion of mankind. Second, Christianity, occupying by divine appointment this pre-eminent and sublime position, cannot descend to the inferior one—cannot divest itself of any part of its prerogative, or abate a jot or a tittle of its supreme claim, without treason to the truth, faithlessness to its trust, and surrender of its power; that is, without infinite damage to man. It is treason to the truth to appear to be less than it is.

NEW ENGLAND LETTER.

Massachusetts libraries—A young woman Attorney General—Matters legislative—Vandals in the Pequot Burying Grounds—Why Boston is called the Hub—Good news for New England.

Massachusetts, it is said, has one library to each 4,000 of her inhabitants, which gives a book and a half to each man, woman and child in the State. I have no statistics at hand to show the proportion of cigarettes which each individual in her population would have if equally divided according to the annual consumption, but I know it would be a much higher figure than this; and I contend that it is not a respectable showing for the old Bay State. Let her multiply libraries in every town and village till the cost of books for each individual shall at least equal in the aggregate her tobacco and drink bills.

How many people know that Montana has elected a young woman of twenty-eight for Attorney General, or that this young woman, whose name is Ella L. Knowles, was born and bred in New Hampshire and educated in Maine, being a graduate of Bates College? This has demonstrated that the Populists, to whom she owes her election, in spite of their many queer performances, can occasionally do a just and graceful act of which neither of the old parties has as yet shown itself capable. In the Kansas Legislature, spectacle to gods and men though it has been, the Populists have prevented the endowment orders—a worse plague by far than the grasshoppers—from over-running the State, while our Massachusetts honorables still keep the people in a state of delightful uncertainty as to their final intentions in regard to the bill for winding up all these bogus concerns. That bill still trembles in the balance, and the endowment lobby is correspondingly hopeful. The last week has been largely taken up with discussing questions relating to the fishing interests; but, as Lucy Stone pertinently observes in the Woman's Chronicle, "when the question was whether half the people of the State, the women who are denied political rights, should have even so much as municipal suffrage, the House of Representatives gave a part of one session to its discussion and then voted it down." The Connecticut Legislature has just had a hearing on the question whether women shall vote in school meetings. When our women teachers so greatly outnumber those of the other sex, it is certainly a singular inconsistency not to allow them to vote on school matters. All this in 1893! How will it read in 1993?

The Maine Senate has wisely voted against the druggists' bill, which, if passed, would have permitted wholesale liquor-selling under the convenient cover of an apothecary's sign. The law now only permits druggists to sell liquor when compounded with medicine. Prohibition prohibits in Maine, in spite of the many gratuitous lies told by that part of the press which is favorable to license. There is no doubt that liquor can be obtained both in Maine and Kansas, by those who are resolved to get it, and will take the trouble of hunting up the dirty, villainous dens where it is kept concealed. Everybody has heard Portland cited as a dark example of the utter futility of enforcing Prohibition, but Neal Dow, who ought to know, states that the quantity of intoxicants sold there is not a hundredth part so large as it was before the Maine law went into operation, although the city is now twice the size that it was then. Commenting on an article in the Boston Herald on the wickedness of Portland, he says, "I have heard this once before, that Portland is a very wicked place, but it was an ex-urmseller who said it, one whom I had driven into jail." The saloon will be generally found to be the source of most of this kind of talk, but the pity of it is that these bald assertions, unsupported by fact, are swallowed so readily by those who call themselves temperance people.

Isn't it time that we stopped making fun of our English ancestors for using toads and snails as a valued part of their materia medica, when cockroaches, dried and powdered, are recognized nowadays by the medical profession as a remedy for dropsy; and even the potato-bug, that much execrated insect, has been discovered to possess virtues similar to the well-known Spanish flies? But it is needless to say that apothecaries do not sell, nor do physicians prescribe, these things under their real name, but cunningly disguised by some barbarous Latin title that nobody understands. Very few people, however, would care to be wise in a matter like this, where surely, if ever, ignorance is bliss.

A few of the old Pequot race of Indians still remain in Connecticut, and the recent attempts of vandal relic-hunters to rob their ancient burying-ground of the bones and relics entombed there many years ago, has roused among them a most justifiable excitement. The red man holds the burial places of his dead in as sacred regard, at least, as his pale-faced brother, who so often allows the greedy spirit of gain to profane these hallowed spots. I wonder how many times Mammon has cast covetous glances on the old Granary Burying-ground—the same unpatriotic gravity that would have sacrificed the old South Church with all its historic memories had not the patriotism of Boston citizens rallied to save it.

That was a good thing which Dr. E. E. Hale said at a dinner, when some one asked him why Boston was called the Hub. "Because out of it go spokesmen of the wheel of mankind who never tire of doing good." May she always be the Hub in this high and blessed sense. Last Sunday saw her famous auditorium, Tremont Temple, which has echoed to more ringing eloquence from these brave "spokesmen" than any other in the city, consumed by fire for the third time. With true Baptist energy and pluck, the society which owns it proposes to rebuild at once and add two more stories. The office of the Woman's Voice was located in the Temple, but its dauntless editor, Mrs. E. Trask Hill, promptly secured another room and will continue to issue the paper without a break.

Let me end this letter with what I am sure will be a piece of good news, to be received with devout thanksgiving by all the New England friends. Our agent and secretary, Rev. J. P. Stoddard, with his wife, have been providentially led to reconsider their determination of going to the Pacific slope, and will continue to remain among us. Their faithful work has been crowned with a success no less signal than the unexpected manner in which the way was suddenly hedged in after their going was supposed on all sides to be a sure and settled thing. We all felt, as one of our most prominent anti-secretists wrote, that "it would be like a separating of very friends" to have them leave New England. Every year has riveted more strongly the links which bind us to our beloved leader and his wife, whose work among the W. C. T. U. and in other ways has been such as only a woman as "nobly planned" as she, could accomplish. Her portrait and a brief sketch of her life appear in a volume lately issued by Charles Moulton, of Buffalo, comprising portraits and sketches of all the women of America who have distinguished themselves in departments of literature, philanthropy and reform. It will be a help to our cause now, and the earnest of a wider recognition of her work in the future.

ELIZABETH E. FLAGG.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 22, 1893.

Mr. Justice Brewer, of the United States Supreme Court, believes with the distinguished churchmen who called on President Cleveland the other day to request his co-operation in a movement to secure the repeal, or at least a modification, of the Chinese exclusion law, that the law is a very unjust one, and he took occasion this week, at a meeting of a church club of which he is a member, to put his opinion on record. The general subject under discussion was, "Shall we have Restricted Immigration?" and the specific question upon which Justice Brewer spoke was, "Is the nation just in its relative attitude toward the Chinese and other foreigners?" His remarks were brief, but strong and pointed, beginning with an argument maintaining that it was an injustice for Congress to pass laws discriminating against and ostracising the Chinese. "Chinese laborers," said the Justice emphatically, "are not more dangerous as a class than others. I know they do not assimilate with our institutions, but neither do others." He said that in Chicago were miles of streets inhabited by people with no conception of American institutions, American customs, American schools, American churches or American aims, whose only idea of a government was a despotism; and he failed to see the justice of excluding the Chinese and letting such as these come in. In view of the fact that the constitutionality of the anti-Chinese law will almost certainly have to be passed upon by the United States Supreme Court in the near future, the opinion of Justice Brewer is significant.

President Cleveland and Secretary Gresham have taken time enough from their numerous political callers to satisfy themselves that the complaints lodged with the Department of State by the representatives of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, as to interferences with correspondence and other annoyances put upon Americans engaged in missionary work by the officials of Turkey, were well-founded; and as soon as the proper proofs have been prepared and collected it is probable that a strong protest against past ill-treatment of American missionaries, and a demand for its immediate cessation, will be forwarded to the government of Turkey. Rev. C. C. Tracey, stationed at Anatolia College, Marsovan, Turkey, who is at present in Washington, says: "The ladies and gentlemen, subjects of the United States residing in the Ottoman Empire, are educators, evangelists, and laborers in different departments of literature or business connected with these interests. Some, but not all of them, are missionaries. They ask of the Ottoman government nothing that is not freely accorded to any Turkish subject residing in the United States, and of this government nothing that any American citizen engaged in a legitimate business may not properly ask. The institutions of learning carried on by Americans in Turkey are numerous and respectable, involving the rights of 200 United States subjects and $2,000,000 of property." The Turkish minister called at the Department of State yesterday and stated that he had notified his government of the charge made, that the letters of Americans had been taken from the mails by Turkish officials, and requested that an immediate investigation be made. He says he thinks a mistake has been made by those who preferred this charge; but the fact remains that certain letters from the American Minister to the State Department, relating to the persecutions of Americans in Turkey, never reached this country.

The handsomest floral tribute upon the casket of Bishop John M. Brown, of the African M. E. church, whose funeral took place here Monday, was a wreath from the White House conservatory, sent by President Cleveland, who had known and highly esteemed the late Bishop for some years.

The Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections has decided to make two reports on the credentials of the Senators appointed by reason of the failure of the Legislatures of Montana, Wyoming and Washington to elect Senators, the majority in favor of giving them their seats, and the minority against it. The question involved is whether the clause in the Constitution of the United States authorizing governors to fill vacancies in the Senate, caused by "resignation or otherwise," gives them power to appoint Senators to begin a new term. There is precedent both ways, so that it is very uncertain which way the Senate will decide these cases. A protracted debate is expected upon the reports, which will probably be ready next week, and as there are a number of Senators who stand high as Constitutional lawyers, it is expected that it will be interesting to students of the Federal Constitution. It is also hoped that the decision of the Senate be accepted as final as to the powers of governors to appoint Senators. *

REFORM NEWS.

FROM THE NEW ENGLAND AGENT.

BOSTON, Mass., March 22, 1893.

It is instructive to note how men get into intellectual fog and fairly lose their heads when attempting a defence of secret societies.

An article in the New Hampshire Chronicle of the 8th inst., copied from the Pittsburgh Leader, is a specimen. After showing gross ignorance of the objects of the Allegheny convention, or a wanton disregard for truth, the writer proclaims himself an Odd-fellow, and an applicant for initiation into Masonry, and gives his reasons for seeking fraternal associations. "I joined the Odd-fellows, because, years before, my father's life was saved in Richmond, Va., owing to his being a member of the Odd-fellows." After stating his father's mission to that city (which was honorable), he says: "While walking about at his business, he was sun-struck and fell beside the road. He wore an Odd-fellow's pin, and this was noticed by a member of the order, who had him taken to a hotel, where he was cared for by a lodge there;" all of which is perfectly credible.

But what follows needs confirmation: "Scores" says the writer, "had passed him before the Odd-fellow appeared." If we may credit this statement, not one among the "scores" (forty or more persons) were sufficiently compassionate to aid a fellow-creature whose pitiable condition was such that "had he lain there much longer the doctors said he would have died." But when the eye of the passing mystic brother caught a glimpse of the telltale pin, "he paused, and stooped to give relief." (Noble charity, indeed!) "And this," the writer affirms, "caused me to make up my mind to become an Odd-fellow." The inference from this statement is, that had the father left his pin at the hotel, or had he fallen in such a position as to conceal that talismanic emblem of charity, the son might never have joined the order. It seems never to have occurred to the writer that members of a banditti often relieve and show great kindness to one of their own clan. Would even the writer confederate with a band of brigands, because one in misfortune had been "taken to a hotel and cared for" by a brother outlaw?

The father might have been overcome and fallen beside the road, but that more than forty persons should pass by without extending a helping hand, is incredible. As a traveling man for more than sixteen years, I have seen something of country and city life, East, West, North and South; and never have I found a people so lost to all sense of decency, or dead to every feeling of sympathy with the suffering, as to allow any man, stranger or otherwise, to lie helpless "beside the road," while "scores passed him". Such an imputation is a slander on the citizens of Richmond, Va. It is a gross insult to civilized society, and a disgrace to the man who makes it. Does this juvenile Jesuit, who, in imitation of his seniors in the school of Ignatius Loyola, expect intelligent men and women to believe that the citizens of Richmond, Va., are as heartless as the "Thugs" of India, the "Mafia" of Italy, the "Clan-na-Gael" or "Mormon Endowment" lodge of America? Grave charges are sometimes brought against society, the state and the church, but never, except from mystic brothers attempting to defend their secret clans, have I heard such sweeping charges of infidelity, stoicism and brutality. The accusations are false, and those who make them may see their prototype in Gen. 3:4; and, if they care to read their pedigree, let them turn to John 8:44; and, would they know their doom, let them prayerfully consider Rev. 21:8. I speak not in self-defence, but in vindication of defamed humanity, and the wantonly and wickedly-assailed civilization of Richmond and of the nineteenth century. I ask no man's pardon for using such terms as will best express my indignation.

While there are many benevolent members in the secret orders, it is not true that the hearts of the uninitiated are petrified and steeled against cries of suffering, or that their ears are deaf to "the orphan's and the widow's wail".

Look narrowly at this case. What was it that so moved the heart of that typical Odd-fellow? If we may credit the man who poses in the press as a member and exponent of the order, it was not the man, it was not his suffering, or his helpless condition, but the telltale pin, that opened every "lacteal gland" in his bosom and caused the "milk of human kindness" to gush in copious streams. If he had been an orphan, without the pin, or an unfortunate widow who had fallen by the way, we are indirectly informed that the brother would have passed by with the same stoicism which characterized the forty or more inhuman creatures who preceded him. It was to escape neglect and secure attention that he put on the badge of membership. He at least understood that Odd-fellows cared no more for the victims of misfortune than did men in the common relations of human brotherhood, but that it did respond to the magic pin with "brotherly love and relief," which is the exact opposite of Gospel charity and the very quintessence of selfishness.

I will not prolong this article to consider the writer's innuendoes and flings at Christians. They were presumably of that class who frequent lodges more than the church, and find more congenial companionship at the festivities of the social board, or around the coffin skeleton at the initiation of a member, than at the prayer meeting or at the sacramental supper appointed by our Lord, whose very name and every claim is excluded from their system of Cain-worship. A single quotation reveals the writer's heart: "A friend of mine," he says, "who is with me, from Rhode Island, and is a member of the Baptist church and a Sunday-school superintendent, belongs to the Masons. I asked him, to-day, if he was taken sick here among strangers, what he would do. 'Send for a Mason,' he replied. 'Why not a Baptist?' I inquired. 'Because the church cares more for the spiritual than the temporal needs of the body. Secret societies administer to both.'" The oft-repeated cry of, "the lodge better than the church," which means, in simple English, that the god of this world has been more successful in providing for his disciples in the lodge than Christ in the institution and appointments of his church.

If the writer will accompany me, next Sabbath morning, I will take him to a church of Christ that has provided a good substantial breakfast, on every Sabbath for more than six months, for from one to five hundred of Boston's poor, without requiring an initiation fee or asking or receiving rewards, save that bestowed by Him who has said: "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me." Will the writer, whose benefactions are pin-provoked, or any brother of the "three links" give us a parallel case of real charity, as the text of his sermon against the "church of the living God, which is the pillar and ground of the truth," and oblige 218 Columbus Ave.

JAMES P. STODDARD.

FROM THE EASTERN AGENT.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., March 22, 1893.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—My report of last week's work includes visits to Philadelphia, Conshohocken, and Reading.

I found all at Edwin Sellev's (Philadelphia headquarters) in usual health. The reading of Miss Flagg's reform story, "Holden with Cords," had awakened no little interest in that vicinity. Here I met Prof. R. L. Park, a graduate of Wheaton College, and, I scarcely need add, an all-around reformer, preparing to go to Moorestown, N. J., where he was advertised to give a reform chalk-talk. I accepted his invitation to accompany him. The W. C. T. U. hall, in which he spoke, was well-filled with what proved to be an appreciative audience, the applause indicating the general feeling. As I was asked by the leader to make a short address, while the professor rested between scenes, I had an opportunity to look the audience in the face. There were noticeably a number of Quaker bonnets, with honest-looking faces under them. Of course, such people have no use for the lodges. Any who can hear Prof. Park will do well to do so. He is having many calls for his lectures. A consecrated artist has great opportunities for good in this age of pictures. He may be addressed at 719 Fremont Place, Philadelphia.

I found the mission at which I spoke last November in West Conshohocken, divided, part going with Bro. Jones, the former pastor, and part remaining. Bro. Jones kindly invited me to stop over night and attend his meeting. There was much enthusiasm manifest. Evidently this people believe in getting all they can out of religion as they go along, and not, as some, wait until death to get its benefits. Bro. Canfield, who was conducting the other mission in the absence of the pastor, Bro. Hyde, manifested his interest in our work by subscribing for our paper. He speaks out with no uncertain sound, we were told, on the lodge question.

No welcome was more cordial than that extended to your agent at Reading. Bro. Wright, of the mission there, is all right regarding the lodge question. Bro. Ruth, the presiding elder, was assisting in meetings. I have heard much of Bro. Ruth, but never had the pleasure of meeting him. He is rather a young-looking man to be called elder. I was assured that what was lacking in age was made up in piety. He goes in for a full and free salvation. Elder Ruth thought he could arrange to give me a hearing at the camp meeting planned for next summer. Bro. Morrison, of Reading, said he read the Cynosure with great interest. He gave an order for books, as did others whom he had interested. I hope he will write for the Cynosure many interesting experiences which he related. Time did not permit me to see all our friends in any of the places visited.

Chambersburg, like most county-seats, is not lacking in the number or variety of secret combinations. I did not wonder that the King Street U. B. church was crowded for three nights to hear my lectures, when I learned a little of their manifest iniquity here. The arrangements were made and notices published before my arrival, by the brethren most interested. I have never felt more the presence and help of the Divine Spirit than during the past few days as I have been privileged to warn so many of the young of the traps that Satan has set for them in the secret empire. My every need has been supplied by the friends whose hearts and homes have made me welcome. Many have subscribed for the Cynosure. To-morrow evening I speak, by appointment, in the Covenant church at Fayetteville. A lecture is arranged for Salem, U. B. church, four miles in the country, for Tuesday evening. The Farmers' Alliance is said to be working in that vicinity, and it is hoped to counteract any wrong impressions they have made.

I cannot well mention the names of all who have been kind to me during the past week for my work's sake. May the Lord richly bless them all!

W. B. STODDARD.

NEW HAMPSHIRE NOTES.

NEW MARKET, N. H., March 20, 1893.

It may cheer our fellow-laborers in other fields to know that the New Hampshire brethren are at work in the Lord's vineyard, and with blessed results.

Our State Association has been incorporated by the present Legislature, so that we may hold property and receive legacies.

A goodly number of preachers have, during the past year, withdrawn from their lodges and made public confession.

Many heretofore silent sympathizers have come out openly against the lodge system.

Our State Association has for fifteen years stood like a rock for the truth; but it is proper to state that other agencies have been raised up by the Lord to powerfully co-operate with us. The holiness movement in New Hampshire is practically an anti-lodge force. The experience of what is commonly called "entire sanctification," or the baptism of the Spirit, or "full salvation," has led many to see the iniquity of lodgeism and to forsake it. The W. C. T. U. is also a strong anti-lodge factor by its open methods, by the testimony of its leading workers (like Esther Pugh, Mrs. A. J. Gordon, Mrs. Bailey, of Maine, and Mrs. Gleason), and by completely overshadowing the child's play of the secret orders.

The recent convention of the Rockingham County Temperance Association showed clearly the trend of public sentiment. The meeting lasted but one day, and yet a whole session was

(Continued on 9th page.)

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE PASSOVER.

DOUGLASS, Kan., Adar 22, 1893.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—You and I have very little respect for Easter and its observance. The name is that of a heathen goddess; the time is incorrect, and some, at least, of the customs of the celebration are of pagan origin.

It is not easy to discontinue an observance without putting something in its place. What shall we utilize to supplant Easter, and at the same time maintain the cause of pure religion? I think every close student of Scripture will say at once: "Let us keep the Passover." Jesus did so; and with the exception of the things he fulfilled, and in a sense abolished, we should be safe in following his footsteps. It is true that the Passover contained a sacrifice, and that this was fulfilled and thus abrogated by Jesus; but can this be confidently affirmed of any other part of the paschal services? Or if it be said that much of this festival was of a national character and pertained only to the people of Israel, is it not true that much of it is also applicable to all God's children, and not only that, but that the career of ancient Israel is a matter of the deepest interest and moment to the modern Christian?

The Passover is a time of thanksgiving for the first fruits of the year. This is one leading significance of the festival, and perhaps the most ancient. When the Passover comes, we have already, even in this climate, tasted of the growths of the New Year. How fitting a thanksgiving to God for his goodness to us in his provision for our temporal wants!

But the Pesah is also a memorial of the rescue of Israel from Egypt. This is the most momentous transaction in history, save the death of Christ. It was the birth of human liberty; here was the cradle of modern popular government. Here was the birth-place of that nation whose colors were the red, white and blue, and purple, perpetuated in the starry banner of America—all but the purple, disgraced and defiled by royalty. If the Fourth of July, only a little over a hundred yearsold, stir within us such deep emotions of patriotism, who can think without emotion of that greater Independence Day which carries us back through the lights and shadows of thirty-four hundred years?

But to the Christian the meaning of the Passover is yet deeper. It was on the "14th of Nisan, at evening," that Jesus sat with his disciples at the paschal feast in Jerusalem. He had sent two of them into the city, and through them, had purchased a lamb; had had it taken to the temple and killed by the priests; had gone through the accustomed services, and ate the offering according to the law. It was the strange spectacle of the Messiah, the Son of God, offering a sacrifice, an animal sacrifice, the sacrifice of blood-atonement, in the fulfillment of "all righteousness."

And then he went out, after instituting the Lord's Supper, to offer the great sacrifice, even Himself, once for all. Is not "the 14th of Nisan at evening" of the deepest interest to the Christian; yea, vastly more than to the unbelieving Jew? And the 15th, on which he was crucified, and the 16th, on which the Son of God lay in the grave, and the 17th, on which he rose from the dead—are they not anniversaries that rise in significance above all other days of the year? Are they not days for the Christian to note and hold memorable, if only it be done in the spirit of pure religion?

Friday evening, March 31, is the 14th of Nisan, at evening. Who, besides myself, will call a meeting of Christian brethren and sisters for that evening and recount, amid the songs of Zion and the words of Holy Writ, the deliverance of Israel and the truth, the earthly blessings that God is bestowing upon us, and the transactions of the great Passover just before Jesus was lifted up? They are great themes; and then, as he instituted the Lord's Supper, we can find no more fitting occasion for that precious service. Its meaning seems to me doubled on the very anniversary of its establishment. The succeeding evenings are no less rich with interest, until we come to the fourth, the very hour when the disciples were together with the doors shut, for fear, and when lo! Jesus was standing in their midst and they realized that he was indeed risen from the dead.

These four evenings constitute a chain of anniversaries whose significance outweighs all others that can be mentioned; and such themes as the Passover, the Crucifixion, the sorrowful Sabbath when Jesus lay in the grave, the Resurrection, and others connected with them, can never lose their interest. In the interest of genuine Christianity, untainted by pagan dilutions, let us "keep the Passover." T. C. MOFFATT.

GOOD MEN IN SECRET LODGES.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., March 14, 1893.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—To my mind the "good man argument" is one of the strongest pillars of the Masonic fraternity to-day. Take out of the membership those who are indifferent concerning the order, those who are good men in spite of their membership, and those who would like to be free from the binding power of those horrid oaths, and, in my opinion, Masonry would collapse as suddenly as it did following the Morgan murder.

The masses of the membership know nothing, I am sure, of the history of Freemasonry. If some one says in their presence that Masonry really killed Morgan, the older members, who may really believe in the fact, are always ready with joke or ridicule; and there the subject rests.

Let men who are conscientious become convinced that such statements are true; then find themselves in bondage to those terrible oaths which they have taken in secret. This leaves them in a serious dilemma, and they ask, despairingly, how shall they escape from the order and become free men once more; for they cannot see their way out.

Faith in God and his power to deliver is entirely too faint to become a reliance, even though they may be nominally good and earnest Christians.

You see, then, that I hold to the belief that a man may be a Mason and still be a good Christian. If you say a man may be fully enlightened on the subject of Freemasonry, its history, claims and secret workings, then I take issue with you at once, for that is an utter impossibility.

Christianity and Masonry are as much opposed to each other as two systems of religion can be. If, then, these things be true, how can the good men in the order be made to see the peril in which they stand—the terrible influence they are exerting for evil by remaining even nominally members—and be led to take the step that will result in the downfall of this most grievous system of iniquity?

The State Anti-secrecy Convention recently held in this city was a genuine success, from beginning to end; but think of the few in attendance when compared with the thousands passing the door of Carnegie Hall who never give the subject a thought.

The clergy are silent in their pulpits on this subject, as a rule. Even the few churches that profess better things make of it a dead issue. How, then, shall the masses be reached? How awaken the public to a sense of impending danger?

It cannot be by "might" or "power," but by the Spirit of Almighty God it must come. When the time is fully come similar to that described in Isaiah 1, where God expresses his contempt for outward ceremony while the heart is far from him, then, and not until then, I fear will there be a change that all the world may see and know.

May God speed the day! S. S. PALMER.

A REMONSTRANCE.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 9, 1893.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—I have been sorry to note at times in our paper, as elsewhere, what seems to me to be an unkind reference to our German friends who see fit to educate their children in the mother tongue. In a recent issue of our paper I find the following: "In the United States there has been a disposition to conduct schools in German, and possibly other foreign tongues, which should not be tolerated in a nation whose language is English."

I am not pleased with this expression, though it is modified by its connection.

I am glad that we have so many schools where German and other foreign languages are taught. It would be a good thing if we had more.

Were these schools discouraging a study of the English language, I should look at them differently. But with few, if any, exceptions, statistics will bear me out in the statement that a knowledge of the English is imparted with the German. The English missions connected with churches composed of those who have more recently crossed the water are rapidly increasing. Ask any pastor who ministers in a tongue foreign in America, why these English missions? He will reply: "We cannot otherwise hold our young people. They are drifting into other churches." "We want them to practice the teachings of their fathers, and the only way we can keep them is to impart such instruction in the English language."

Self-interest demands a knowledge of the English language. Talk with one who has but partially acquired our language, and, if sensitive, he will express regret that he cannot speak the English plainer. He desires for himself and his children a better knowledge of the English. None can be happier than the parents who have found an interpreter necessary to have their children understand and speak the English language. Let the child study forty languages, if it has the ability. Don't let us interfere with the study of that language that is prompted by love of home and parent. Surely America has nothing to fear in the education of those who come. The future language of this country is fixed. If anarchy, nihilism or treason is taught in any language let the law step in and close the school. But never, never say to those who come among us as honest, industrious citizens: "You shall not instruct your child in the language spoken by father and mother, endeared by a thousand precious and sacred memories." Do we wish our neighbors to adopt our habits and customs, let us, in Christian love, show them the "more excellent way." Let us have more German schools, French schools, any schools that will lead forth the mind in thought and research, but not impart instruction contrary to our Christian liberty.

W. B. STODDARD.

LITERATURE.

CURRENT PERIODICALS.

Worthington's Illustrated Magazine, "a monthly journal for the family," published by A. D. Worthington & Co., Hartford, which has reached its fourth issue in the April number, seems to be steadily gathering literary excellence and taking an enviable place among the popular periodicals of the day. The principal contents of the current number are as follows: American Warships of To-day, by S. G. W. Benjamin, profusely illustrated from photographs and paintings; In "Old Virginny"—Fifty Years Ago, by Mrs. Mary A. Livermore, maintains its interest; The Glaciers of Alaska, by Prof. G. F. Wright, superably illustrated from special photographs; Did Shakespeare Write Bacon's Works? by Arthur D. Vinton. This is a new phase in the Bacon-Shakespeare controversy, and quite unique. The stories of this issue comprise Phoebe, A Double Bow-Knot, and The Duke's Easter Carol, by new contributors. Poems are furnished by Wm. F. Barnard, Geo. C. Bragdon, Mary Bradley, and Edgar Fawcett. The eight domestic and social departments are replete with matters of interest for the home. $2.50 a year.

The leading feature of the April St. Nicholas, The Century Co.'s magazine for boys and girls, will be an article on New York, by the poet-critic, Edmund Clarence Stedman, splendidly illustrated with views of the principal streets and buildings of the great metropolis. This is the third paper in the St. Nicholas series of "Leading Cities of the United States." Boston and Philadelphia have already been treated by Col. Thomas Wentworth Higginson, and Talcott Williams of the Philadelphia Press. Papers on Chicago, Baltimore, New Orleans, Washington, St. Louis, Brooklyn, and San Francisco and other cities are to follow.

PAMPHLETS.

"A Memorial to Congress on the Subject of a Road Department at Washington, D. C., and a Comprehensive Exhibit of Roads, their Construction and Maintenance, at the Columbian Exposition," by Albert A. Pope. The subject of road improvement throughout the country, under a competent governmental supervision, is of the utmost importance to farmers, manufacturers, dealers, and all whose business calls upon them to use public highways remote from towns and cities. It is, too, a necessity which has always existed, as all who have had occasion to travel over country roads in the spring, fall and winter, wading through mud and slush, will abundantly testify. Mr. Pope has devoted much time and money to urging this necessity and importance upon the public; and all who feel interested in aiding him to achieve success in this direction, should write to him at 221 Columbus avenue, Boston.

"Inward Revelation the Primary Rule" (of the Friends' worship), by Cyrus W. Harvey. The individual inspiration of the speakers in this denomination is ably defended as a doctrine of the first importance. Its character may be understood from the following extract from an acknowledged authority on this subject: "The spirit is that alone by which the true knowledge of God can be revealed; by the immediate manifestation and revelation of God, enlightening and opening the understanding; subjectively helping us to discern truths, and objectively presenting them to our minds as the formal object of the saint's faith."—Robert Barclay. Published by the Friend, 116 North Fourth street, Philadelphia.

"Fifth Annual Report of the Nevada Agricultural Experiment Station, for 1892," is received from Director Stephen A. Jones, A.M., Ph.D., at Reno, Nev. It is impossible for an intelligent farmer anywhere to read the reports of practical experiments performed at any of these stations, and their results, without accumulating profitable information and ideas. This one is no exception. All departments of farm work, dairy, etc. receive due attention and are treated upon true scientific and practicable principles. They can be obtained regularly at the stations upon proper application to the Director. In this State, the station is at Champaign; in the State of New York, at Geneva, and their work cannot be too highly valued.

LODGE NOTES.

THE "BENEVOLENT ORDERS."

The following is the list of "benevolent" secret societies and their members as reported to the Fraternal Congress held in Washington last November:

Ancient Order of United Workmen	276,152
Knights of Honor	132,499
American Legion of Honor.	61,355
Royal Arcanum	125,029
Knights and Ladies of Honor.	70,192
Knights of Pythias	357,924
Order of Chosen Friends	37,958
Order of United Friends	21,521
Senate National Union	32,318
Equitable Aid Union	43,785
Knights of Maccabees	57,464
Royal Templars of Temperance	17,571
Knights of the Golden Rule	5,003
Supreme Council Home Circle	6,812
Supreme Lodge Order of Mutual Protection	3,000
Fraternal Mystic Circle	7,869
Royal Society of Good Fellows	11,055
Supreme Camp Fraternal Legion	3,011
Improved Order of Heptasophs	10,040
Northern Mutual Relief Association	1,827
United Order Pilgrim Fathers	13,311
Protected Home Circle	5,770
Artisans' Order of Mutual Protection	2,112
Iowa Legion of Honor	5,830
Independent Order of Foresters	31,667
Order of Golden Chain	8,126
Knights of St. John and Malta	2,642
Modern Woodmen of America	52,085
United Order of Golden Cross	19,059
Legion of Red Cross	2,616
Woodmen of the World	5,648
United Friends of Michigan	3,180
Ancient Order of Foresters of America	2,857
New England Order of Protection	10,053
National Provident Union	6,193
Legion of Justice	1,430
Empire Knights of Relief	830
Royal Conclave Knights and Ladies	716
Free Sons of Israel	13,021
B'nai B'rith, District No. 1	7,680
Catholic Benevolent Legion	26,967
Catholic Knights of America	21,916
Catholic Mutual Benefit Association	34,494
Golden Star Fraternity	2,352
Empire Order Mutual Aid	3,394
National Benevolent Legion	453
Order of Scottish Clans	3,684
Knights of the Golden Eagle	57,230
Order of Canadian Home Circles	6,674
Order of Shield of Honor	8,397

Total 1,642,952

The Liverpool Express believes that the many earnest Roman Catholics, who are also Freemasons, find much to disquiet them in the Pope's latest pronouncement. The full text of that document, or rather documents, has not reached this country, but it is understood to contain a tremendous indictment of that society. His Holiness considers Freemasonry to be antagonistic to Christianity, and given over to the propagation of infidelity. The reason of this scathing attack is supposed to be the recent agnostic speeches of certain Italian professors. These gentlemen are also ardent Freemasons, and the Pope's argument is to the effect that the tree is known by its fruit. The opinion in English Roman Catholic circles, however, is that the Pope has been misinformed, and that the connection between Freemasonry and anti-Christian sentiment is purely fortuitous. We should certainly be much surprised to hear the charge brought against any of our own lodges.—London Freeman.

A paper called the Sovereign Visitor says: "The fraternal orders have paid over two hundred millions of dollars to the beneficiaries during the year 1892." The foregoing is true with the exception that less than fifty millions was the amount paid out. Fifty of the principal fraternal societies in the country reported to Mr. Shedd, secretary of the National Fraternal Congress, that they had paid out for losses and expenses $27,643,821.

60 during the year, and it is safe to say that existing societies not so reporting paid out less than ten millions. It is wonderful with what ease some writers and speakers handle hundreds of millions of dollars.

An exchange says Mr. Somerby was arrested in Philadelphia "in a gentlemanly way." Such an announcement must be extremely consoling to the victims who were deprived of their money by the peculiar methods adopted by the supreme officers of the Iron Hall. This is truly an age of progress. We expect soon to hear of a man working in the chain gang in a "gentlemanly way," or stealing the pennies off a dead man's eyes in a "gentlemanly way." By all means let gentlemanly ways prevail.

The Solid Truth.

Investigation Invited.

Of course it is proper to inquire about what any man says, is it true?

The most rigid investigation is invited into the testimonials published in behalf of Hood's Sarsaparilla. Special attention is called to the high character of the persons whose testimonials are published by the proprietors of this medicine, as evidenced by their occupations or indorsements.

There is nothing marvelous in the fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla should cure so many diseases. When you remember that a majority of the disorders "flesh is heir to" are due to impure or poisonous condition of the blood, and that Hood's Sarsaparilla is an effective and radical blood purifier, the whole thing is explained.

Besides its blood purifying qualities, Hood's Sarsaparilla also contains the best known vegetable stomach tonics, diuretics, kidney remedies and liver invigorants, and is thus an excellent specific for all disorders of these organs, as well as for low condition of the system, or That Tired Feeling.

Knowing that Hood's Sarsaparilla is most carefully prepared, and that it does possess curative powers Peculiar to itself, we have absolute confidence in it ourselves and cordially recommend it to the people.

BICYCLE TO ANY BOY OR GIRL under 18 years of age who will work for us after school. NO MONEY NEEDED. Send three to A. C. SNOW & CO., 221 WEST MADISON ST., CHICAGO, ILL.

WHEATON COLLEGE,

WHEATON, ILL.

A School for Men and Women.
SPRING TERM BEGINS APRIL 4th, 1893.

Full College Courses, Preparatory Courses, Stenography, Typewriting, Vocal Music and Blackboard Drawing, without extra charge.

CHAS. A. BLANCHARD, Pres.

IF YOU WANT WORK

that is pleasant and profitable, send us your address immediately. We teach men and women how to earn from $5 per day to $3,000 per year without having had previous experience, and furnish the employment at which they can make that amount. Capital unnecessary. A trial will cost you nothing. Write to-day and address,

E. C. ALLEN & CO.,
Box 1001. Augusta, Me.

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained, and all Patent business conducted for Moderate Fees.

Our Office is Opposite U. S. Patent Office, and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.

Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.

A Pamphlet, "How to Obtain Patents," with names of actual clients in your State, county, or town, sent free. Address,

C. A. SNOW & CO.,
Opposite Patent Office, Washington, D. C.

ANTI-SECRECY TRACTS.

The following numbers are in stock, and can be had at the wholesale price of 25 cents per pound:

4. Freemasonry in the Family.
7. To the Boys who Hope to be Men.
8. Modern Heathenism.
9. Ministers at Rival Altars.
10. A Pastor's Confession.
12. Alexander Campbell's Estimate of the Lodge.
15. Secrecy and Sin.
22. Extracts from Masonic Oaths and Penalties as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.
37. Why a Christian should not be a Freemason (German).
38. Masonic Oaths and Penalties.
39. Should Freemasons be Admitted to Christian Fellowship?
42. Our Duty and Ability to Know the Character of Masonry.
45. Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?

The above are the only tracts in stock in large quantities. There are a few of several other numbers. Remember that these are being retailed at wholesale prices—25 cents per pound. Keep a package of Anti-masonic tracts for use in letters.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,
321 W. Madison St., Chicago.

AGENTS AND LECTURERS.

NEW ENGLAND DEPARTMENT.—Rev. J. P. Stoddard, Agent, 218 Columbus Ave., Hotel Howland, Boston.

EASTERN DEPARTMENT.—W. B. Stoddard, Agent, No. 215, 4th St., Washington, D. C.

CENTRAL DEPARTMENT.—Rev. M. A. Gault, Blanchard, Ia.

WESTERN DEPARTMENT.—Rev. W. C. Paden, Oakland, Kan.

PACIFIC DEPARTMENT.—, address Rev. S. Mathew, Canby, Oregon.

COLLEGE AGENT, Rev. S. F. Porter Cynosure office.

OTHER LECTURERS.

- C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
- Rev. H. H. Hinman, Oberlin, O.
- Nathan Callender, Montdale Pa.
- J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
- T. B. McCormick, Princeton, Ind.
- E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
- H. A. Day, Brighton, Mich.
- J. M. Bishop, Chambersburg, Pa.
- A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
- J. B. Crossinger, Sullivan, O.
- W. M. Love, Osceola, Mo.
- J. K. Glassford, Carthage, Mo.
- Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Minn.
- J. S. Perry, Thompson, Conn.
- Rev. E. Mathews, Long Island City, N. Y.
- E. Barnetson, Haskinsville, N. Y.
- D. A. Richards, Brighton, Mich.
- A. W. Parry, Evanston, Ill.

SCOTCH RITE MASONRY ILLUSTRATED.

The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all Masonic rites, and are fully and accurately given in

"FREEMASONRY ILLUSTRATED,"

as advertised, but the signs, grips, passwords etc., of these three degrees are given at the close of Vol 2 of

"Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated"

Vol. 1 of 'Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated' comprises the degrees from 3d to 18th inclusive. Vol. 2 of 'Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated' comprises the degrees from 19th to 33d inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive.

Price per volume, paper cover, 50 cents each, in cloth, $1 each. Each volume per dozen, paper covers $4; per dozen, cloth bound, $9.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern. Table of Contents: The Antiquity of Secret Societies, The Life of Julian, The Eleusinian Mysteries, The Origin of Masonry, Was Washington a Mason? Fillmore and Webster's Deference to Masonry, A Brief Outline of the Progress of Masonry in the United States, The Tammany Ring, Masonic Benevolence, The Uses of Masonry, An Illustration, The Conclusion. 50cts each.

THE N. C. A. BUILDING

(The gift of Philo Carpenter.)

—AND OFFICE OF—
The Christian Cynosure,

221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO.

The National Christian Association

PRESIDENT—Rev. M. A. Gault, Blanchard, Iowa.

VICE PRESIDENT—John Dorcas, Tipton, Iowa.

FIELD SEC'Y and TREASURER—W. I. Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

CORRESPONDING SEC'Y—Rev. H. L. Kellogg, Wheaton, Ill.

REC. SECRETARY—Mrs. E. A. Cook Chicago.

DIRECTORS—T. B. Arnold, C. A. Blanchard, E. A. Cook, J. M. Hitchcock, G. R. Milton, J. P. Richards, E. Whipple, E. R. Worrell, Edgar Wylie W. M. Howie, H. F. Kletsing.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

NEW ENGLAND.—Pres., Rev. J. M. Foster, Boston, Mass.; Sec'y, Miss E. E. Flagg, Wellesley, Mass.; Treas., L. E. Lincoln, Boston.

CONNECTICUT.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Willimantic; Sec., David J. Ellsworth, Windsor; Treas., C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.—Pres., Rev. R. W. Chesnut, Marissa; Sec., Rev. J. R. Wylie, Coulterville; Treas., Rev. W. I. Phillips, Cynosure office, Chicago.

IOWA.—Pres., John Dorcas, Tipton; Sec., Rev. T. P. Robb, Linton; Treas., Rev. L. Mendenhall, Fairfield.

KANSAS.—Pres., Rev. C. H. Strong, Lawrence; Vice-Pres., Rev. J. L. Countermine, Hiawatha; Sec., Rev. D. H. Coulter, Winchester; Treas., Joseph A. Torrence, Denison.

NEBRASKA.—Pres., Rev. W. I. Brooks, Pawnee City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. G. Widen, Mead; Sec., Howard P. Young, Wahoo; Treas., Rev. T. H. Dabney, Hooper.

MAINE.—Pres., Isaac Jackson, Harrison; Sec., I. D. Haines, Dexter; Treas., H. W. Goddard, West Sidney.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Pres., S. A. Pratt, Worcester.

MICHIGAN.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec., H. A. Day, Brighton; Treas., Geo. Swanson, Jr., Bedford.

MINNESOTA.—Pres., S. B. Sjoblom, Ferguson Falls; Cor. Sec., Wm. Fenton, St. Paul; Rec. Sec., Mrs. M. F. Morrill, St. Charles; Treas., Wm. H. Morrill, St. Charles.

MISSOURI.—Pres., J. F. Beauchamp, Denver; Sec., M. N. Butler, Darlington; Treas., Rev. C. G. Cox, Grant City.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—Pres., Robt. A. Frohock, Alton; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., James F. French, Canterbury.

NEW YORK.—Pres., Rev. S. R. Wallace, Syracuse; Sec., Rev. W. H. Clark, Binghamton; Treas., Lucius Woodruff, Binghamton.

OHIO.—Pres., J. W. Martin, Mt. Perry; Rec. Sec., A. T. Vestal, Seneca; Co. Sec. and Treas., E. Thomson, Seneca.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Pres., Samuel S. Collins, Allegheny; Sec., J. S. T. Milligan, Beaver; Treas., R. C. Wylie, Wilkinsburg.

WISCONSIN.—Pres., J. B. Galloway, Poyette; Sec., Isaiah Faris, Vernon; Treas., J. W. Wood, Baraboo.

The Christian Cynosure.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, MARCH 30, 1893.

Christ our passover is sacrificed for us: Therefore let us keep the feast, not with old leaven, neither with the leaven of malice and wickedness; but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth.—1 Cor. 5: 7, 8.

OUR QUARTER CENTENNIAL.

Lest some should have failed to read this column last week, the main facts are repeated for their benefit.

The National Christian Association was organized twenty-five years ago (May 5-7, 1868) in the First Reformed Presbyterian church, Pittsburgh, Pa. God has honored the testimony for his Son and given many proofs of his favor. The effort to save our churches, our homes and our country from the corrupting influences of the lodge has not been in vain.

It is fitting that this anniversary year should be honored with some noble effort for our reform. The World's Fair is a happy coincidence. For the opportunity it gives us, let us thank God that '93, instead of '92, was the year chosen for this great exposition.

LET US MAKE IT AN EPOCH.

Now, while we must maintain the steady flow of literature from our reform headquarters, and keep our lecturers on their feet doing their utmost, the hour calls for an unusual effort.

1. The N. C. A. Board is providing for a World's Fair exhibit in the northwest gallery of the main building, in connection with the churches and other religious and reform societies. The plan of this exhibit has been already described. We have "devised liberal things" to the utmost degree consistent with the economy due to our cause.

2. For a conference by the churches and for the churches in connection with our annual meeting, which it is proposed to hold in June (the Board has not yet fixed the time). This will be

A MEETING TO CONSIDER FACTS,

and not to make speeches. Delegates to this meeting are appointed by the church assemblies. It will be their meeting. We hope much from it in bringing the churches forward into line on these questions. Until they do so our cause will not succeed. This meeting is being planned with rigid economy and will not be expensive. The Board has voted only to furnish entertainment.

THE CONGRESS.

3. The managers of the World's Fair Auxiliary, who have arranged a series of congresses covering a vast range of topics relating to politics, business, the social, civil and religious life of mankind, have accepted at last the proposition of our Association. A day and a hall is promised, probably in October. This will be a meeting for speeches, AND THE BEST OF THEM. We must spare no pains or expense to make this a crowning meeting of the season. Representatives from the governments of Christendom will be present. The addresses will be published by the managers of the Auxiliary and given to the world, but we must give them something worth printing.

PARTNERS WANTED.

Now the N. C. A. Board wants to make partners of a hundred or more of its good friends. To speak personally,—your business, possibly, cannot have an exhibit at the Fair,

BUT YOUR PRINCIPLES CAN.

Now twenty-five dollars from each of you, as a quarter-centennial donation, is not asking too much. Take a share in this exhibit, allowing the Board to be your agents in providing for an economical and useful investment.

It is an opportunity not again to occur. Let us "strike while the iron is hot;" and may God bless our cause.

HENRY L. KELLOGG, Cor. Sec'y.

SHALL WE KEEP THE PASSOVER?

We print herewith an article from our esteemed brother and former co-laborer, Rev. T. C. Moffatt, of Kansas. It proposes, our readers will see, the revival of the Passover festival as an institution which might be helpful to Christians. We give it room, not because we think the plan a wise one, nor for the purpose of controversy, but because it is a thoughtful article by an earnest man, and will stimulate thought on an important subject. We are of opinion that the Christian world does not need either Easter or any substitute therefor; that in proportion as churches grow formal and dead, they observe days, and that in proportion as they observe fit for slavery, it observes days. God has established, as we believe, the weekly Sabbath, and requires Christians to observe it faithfully. Those who so do will, in our judgment, have little need for other religious festivals, though we should not feel called upon to object to a few annual festival days.

While the Jewish festivals would, in some respects at least, hardly be the ones which we should advise, there is force in our brother's words respecting the particular time, the keeping of which he commends. But we are of opinion that those days should be few and that at the present time it is needful to diminish rather than to increase their number. Of course, our readers have observed that in Chicago and in New York the city governments have already established St. Patrick's day as a holiday, and there are a crowd of other saints who stand behind waiting for their turn. Of course, also, the Romish church is the great force which seeks to push the holidays upon us. The history of that church should be a warning against not only its own holidays, but the multiplication of holidays of any sort. We give the article to our readers, however, that they may for themselves read it and reflect.

CONCENTRATION OF REFORM WORK.

Not long since, our dear Brother Bancroft, of Monroe, Wis., made a suggestion in the Cynosure, which seems to possess exceeding importance in our reform at the present time. It is a proposition to organize the friends of anti-secrecy and other radical reforms into societies or clubs at every point where half a dozen or more can be gathered.

For some years we have been losing sight of the value of local organizations in our work. The importance of such organizations has often been told. Like coals of fire when brought together, they would kindle one another into a hotter glow of interest in the reform work. They would greatly inspire the faith and courage of the members, by combining and strengthening their influence. Through such organizations plans of work could be devised, open meetings be held, new friends enlisted, literature circulated, and lectures and conventions arranged. They would thus be doing a most significant work, that no other organization is doing.

These societies should combine all the most valuable features of the W. C. T. U. and Christian Endeavor work. For each meeting, wherever held, there could be prepared an appropriate program, consisting of prayers, praise, Scripture readings, recitations, talks, or orations, papers, or essays, and select readings. Care should be taken that these all, as far as possible, bear on the most radical reform lines, and the devotional parts should always be a prominent feature. A religious revival spirit should pervade all the exercises. It would seem that in such organizations lies the secret of perpetuating the lives of many of our reform churches in which the spirit of reform and testimony-bearing is dying out.

If there is among the readers of the Cynosure a discouraged pastor, who is alarmed by seeing the young people in his congregation drifting away from him into the secret lodges and other worldly snares of the devil, and losing the spirit of reform which characterized the church in former times, let him call together his people, and especially his young people, and propose to them such an organization. Let him pray over it, and then organize his society with as little formality as possible. All the work thenceforth should be of a character to interest and call into activity all the latent talent of the young people; keep them at the front, supported by the parents and older members of the church; confine their interest, at all times and in all practicable ways, as much as possible in the channel of radical reform; help them to investigate the lodge evil as freely as they do any other evil, and at all times remind them that Satan's policy is to divert their attention and lead them to forsake the line of reform which they have chosen to weaken his influence.

JOSEPH COOK ON CHICAGO.

At his regular Monday Lecture in Boston, March 13, speaking of the "Perils and Promises of the World's Fair, and Crime and Christianity in Chicago," Mr. Cook made these strong utterances:

"We are approaching in the World's Fair a jubilee of civilization, and it is our duty to see that it is not accompanied by a local carnival of crime.

"The Woman's Christian Temperance Union announces that there is a conspiracy on the part of the houses of infamy to bring 25,000 girls to Chicago within the next few weeks. Representatives of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union have visited the Mayor, and he has promised them all the assistance in the power of his office.

"Maj. Brewer, of the Salvation Army, tells me that there are cases of kidnapping of girls on the right hand and on the left in many of our large towns. Here is a regular trade going on. I say that there is a Minotaur in Boston.

"I might speak of the next peril of drunkenness. I think liquor is not to have perfectly easy sailing at the Fair. I hope Miss Willard will return in time enough to help in the efforts to meet this danger. I think that there were 200 applicants at the newly opened school for instruction in gambling.

"Robberies are committed on street cars and in the crowded streets of Chicago. If such things are done in the green tree, what shall it be in the dry?

"Dr. Edwards says the Mayor has made bids for the support of the worst element, promising indulgence to gambling and will be a friend of the liquor interests. There are now 6,000 saloons open on Sunday against the law. Municipal government is on trial and Chicago is likely to become a national disgrace.

"What is the chief spirit impelling Chicago? Greed. The directors will do anything for money. They think they have lost $5,000,000 by Sunday closing, but more likely they have gained it."

The Chicago Inter Ocean took Mr. Cook severely to task for these statements, as exaggerations; and about that time the collector for one of our city banks, who had been receiving money for his employers from city and county officials, to the amount of $1,200, was waylaid on a public staircase in the City Hall, in broad daylight, near where a hundred people were passing through the corridor, and robbed of all. This is only one of many similar outrages committed every week. The above robbery occurred within a few steps of the city police department! Mr. Cook does not usually speak lightly or unadvisedly in this vein.

STRIKING ENGINEERS IN THE UNITED STATES COURT.

Participants in the recent strike on the Lake Shore railroad were before the United States court at Toledo, O., last week, during the judicial investigation into the causes of the strike. The secret order of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers was present in the person of Engineer Watson, who had been ordered by the court to bring with him all the rules and by-laws of the fraternity relating to the subject of boycotts. He had brought nothing, however, except a set of by-laws that threw no light upon the secret work of the brotherhood. Just after he had stated most emphatically that he knew of no other secret laws governing the strike question, a gentleman remarked that Chief Arthur of the fraternity had furnished a rule which Mr. Watson had neglected to mention.

Whereupon it was read, as follows: "Rule No. 12: That hereafter where an issue has been sustained by the Grand Chief and carried into effect by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers it shall be recognized as a violation of obligation for a member of the brotherhood who may be employed on a railway, running in connection with or adjacent to said railway to handle the property belonging to said railway or system in any way that may benefit said company with which the brotherhood is at issue until the grievance, of whatever nature or kind, has been amicably settled."

The reading of this rule after Watson's positive statement created a sensation in court and greatly embarrassed him. His only explanation was that he had not properly understood the questions of the attorney. Another witness, a member of the brotherhood, when asked why he had refused to run a train to which Ann Arbor cars were attached, after considerable hesitation, replied: "Well, I'm pretty near my grave now, and I didn't want to live the rest of my life a 'scab' engineer." This answer was received with general applause by the two hundred spectators, which called down a severe remonstrance from the court.

The decision of the judge was, in substance, that the brotherhood had no right to take the workmen from the employment of the railroad company by ordering a strike, and he issued a mandamus to that effect. He also issued an order requiring the Grand Masters of the brotherhood to suspend that part of its by-laws in regard to striking. Both of his positions are strongly contested by the fraternity, and the trial will probably be renewed.

ILLINOIS AND THE WORLD'S FAIR.

Congress having refused, under a tremendous pressure brought to bear upon it by the advocates of Sunday opening of the Columbian Exposition, to recede from its righteous decision to close it on that day, the Secular Union of Chicago, which has no interest in Christianity, filed a bill (known as the Mitchel) in the Illinois State Legislature, which is thus explained by the attorney of the Union:

"The State of Illinois is sovereign in the exercise of its police power, and no present or former Legislature could grant or bargain this right away, and the World's Fair Company took its charter and privileges subject to present and future laws of this State like any other corporation. The act of Congress concerning Sunday closing is law only as far as authorizing the expenditure of money under a contract with an Illinois corporation is concerned, and we hold that the present and future laws of Illinois form impliedly the first part of every contract to be executed in Illinois.

"The right to regulate corporations remains with the State, and no existing contract can be used as a weapon against the exercise of the police power of any State; if it were otherwise, a contract with an Illinois brewer for the delivery of beer for ninety-nine years could prevent the State from enforcing prohibition laws for the next century.

"As the State of Illinois has not ceded jurisdiction over the fair grounds to the United States, as is the case with sites for barracks, etc., I think it idle to longer tell lawyers that the State may subject the World's Fair Company, an Illinois corporation, to its general laws. I am not prepared to argue the wisdom or other merits of the Sunday opening movement, but desire to defend the Mitchel bill."

The progress of this prejudicial piece of special legislation will be watched with profound interest.

TESTIMONY OF AN M. E. PRESIDING ELDER.

At Kelseyville, Cal., November 27, 1892 (writes an esteemed correspondent), Rev. W. S. Urmy, of Napa City, a presiding elder of the Methodist Episcopal church, gave his public testimony against Odd-fellowship and Masonry. For fifteen years he had been an Odd-fellow, and he would advise every young man to keep out of the lodge. As an insurance company it was an expensive institution, and not at all a benevolent one. As a rule, you paid in two dollars for the privilege of getting back one dollar. He also said that the lodge was robbing the church of both money and members. His criticism of the secret societies proved quite offensive to the preacher in charge, who is allied to both Odd-fellowship and Masonry; but Mr. Urmy is an earnest preacher of personal holiness and does not hesitate to denounce sin wherever he discovers it. We want a few more such clergymen in and out of California.

PROGRESS IN ELECTRICAL DISCOVERY.

Recent development in electrical discovery and its application to social and business life is hardly less startling and important than that which created the Morse telegraph.

1. First came the announcement that by an ingenious device the employment of young ladies in the central offices of the telephone service, in towns and cities, will be unnecessary. This is one step in advance toward reducing the telephone to an automatic factor of civilization.

2. Prof. Elisha Gray, projector and partial inventor of the telephone, from the use of which he has accumulated an immense fortune, last week informed the city press of Chicago that his invention of the "telautograph" has nearly reached perfection; and, as described in the daily papers, is designed to effect a revolution in the entire system of telegraphy now in vogue. For six years the professor has labored to this end, and the primary experiments have proved wonderfully successful.

"The machine itself," says the Inter Ocean, "is described as a very long pen, just as the telephone is a very long tongue. The telautograph consists of a transmitter and a receiver, each somewhat smaller than a typewriter machine. The receiver and transmitter stand side by side, and, as in typewriting, the operator by striking a certain letter impresses that letter on a sheet of paper, so in the telautograph the writer simply writes his message, and that written message is reproduced in exact fac simile on the receiver at the other end of the line by means of a pen or pencil worked by electrical mechanism."

Messages written in one telegraph office are exactly reproduced in the senders' own handwriting at a distant one. The possibility of making a mistake in their reception, or the impossibility of disputing the authority of the messages sent, is reduced to a minimum. It is a great invention, which will undoubtedly become a public convenience at an early day.

—Several prominent clergymen and mission workers, among whom we notice Ballington Booth, Rev. Josiah Strong and Rev. A. J. Gordon, and Messrs. R. A. Torrey and Geo. C. Needham, have called a convention to organize a National Association of Open Air Workers, April 17, at 2:30 p. m., in the Y. M. C. A. bldg., 23d St., New York.

—John K. Hastings, 47 Cornhill, Boston, Mass., has just issued a beautiful 20x24-inch albertype engraving of Phillips Brooks, late Episcopalian bishop of Massachusetts. It is taken from his most popular photograph. An enlarged fac-simile of Mr. Brooks' autograph is reproduced underneath the picture, which adds much to its value. The price is only $1.00, postpaid, and a free six months' subscription to the well-known paper, The Christian, is given with every picture. It is sold wholly by subscription, and agents are wanted.

—The Executive Committee of the General Conference of the Free Methodist church has arranged for an impressive memorial service to be held in honor of the lamented General Superintendent, Rev. Benjamin T. Roberts, at the May Street F. M. church (between Randolph and Lake streets), in this city on the evening of Tuesday, April 4. General Superintendents E. P. Hart and G. W. Coleman, it is expected, will be present. A general attendance is requested. Bro. Roberts was an able member of the N. C. A., and with us heartily in his opposition to the lodge power.

—A cherished friend and promoter of the N. C. A.'s anti-secrecy work kindly writes: "The volume of 'SERMONS AND ADDRESSES' of your late editor (ex-Pres. Jonathan Blanchard) is not enough advertised, or made known, by specimens of its many valuable and beautiful gems of thought, in prose and poetry, in connection with the wonderfully vital questions which he so ably treated, and are yet so very appropriate. Surely he was one who oft suffered for his adherence to the welfare of our race, amid evil or good report. Let us have frequent words from him, who, though dead, may thus yet speak to the living." The "Sermons and Addresses" are for sale at this office. Price, 75 cents.

—A correspondent of the Philadelphia (U. P.) Christian Instructor, writing from Wisconsin, says of Rev. J. B. Galloway's parody of Burns' "A Man's a Man for a' That," recently printed in the Cynosure, that it is "felicitous, but very incisive; is deservedly exciting considerable attention, and will (he hopes) do much good." The same correspondent adds that he has "not met with anything so calculated to produce conviction and induce conversion to the truth, with respect to secretism, as the admirable address of the Rev. B. Carradine, D. D., pastor of the Centenary M. E. church of St. Louis, entitled, 'Are Secret Societies a Blessing or a Curse?' It is well worthy of a careful reading, by ministers and people everywhere." It is for sale at this office. Price 5 cents.

REFORM NEWS (Continued from 5th page.)

devoted to the discussion of secret methods of temperance work. Rev. Mr. Thompson, of Raymond, opened the subject with an essay which was almost non-committal, but leaned towards the lodge. I followed, citing the position of such men as President McCosh, President Blanchard, Messrs. Gough, Jewett and St. John, and the leading W. C. T. U. workers. I showed that all secret societies were forbidden by the Word of God and sound moral principles; that it is not necessary to borrow the devil's weapons with which to fight the battles of the Lord. An Odd-fellow preacher then attempted a halting and feeble defence of the minor secret orders. He was followed by pastor A. L. Smith, the son of a minister, and one of the noblest young men in the State, who took solid ground that the fundamental principles of all secret societies are unsound and not capable of successful defence.

Pastor S. E. Quimby, whose wife is a daughter of Orange Scott, of blessed memory, said that many years ago he had been through the secret temperance orders and found them not adapted to good work. All lawful undertakings could be better accomplished by open methods.

Miss A. E. McIntire, President of the Rockingham Co. W. C. T. U., said that she was opposed to all secret societies on general principles, but especially to the minor temperance secret orders, because they were made tributary and stepping-stones to the higher and more wicked secret fraternities; adding with pardonable innocence, but with remarkable power, "Of course, none of us would think of approving of such societies as the Freemasons and Odd-fellows."

At that moment a seven-degree Freemason preacher and an Odd-fellow pastor sat writhing under her lash, not three yards distant.

It was a glorious day for the truth on all lines. I gave a temperance address in the afternoon, and ex-Gov. Goodell spoke in the evening.

Brethren, let us push the battle to the gate, not on one line of truth, nor in one rut, but on all lines and at all times, in the name of the Lord, in the name of the Lord, in the name of the Lord, and victory will crown our efforts.

S. C. KIMBALL.

FROM THE WESTERN DISTRICT.

OAKLAND, Kansas, March 25, 1893.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—On Wednesday evening, March 15, I addressed a small meeting among the Wesleyan brethren in Clay county, southern part. I had intended to address them at the same place Thursday and Friday evenings, but the weather continued so cold and windy that we relinquished them. On Thursday evening a few who lived near by came in to Mr. A. C. Hill's, whose generous hospitality I enjoyed, and I talked to them for three-quarters of an hour on the "Religious Claims of Masonry." These home meetings may be made profitable. This week I have not lectured any, as my appointments miscarried. I was out, however, and disposed of some literature and took some subscriptions.

I notice the following, which appeared in a Clay Center paper just after our County Reform Convention there:

The one organization, the I. O. O. F., has soothed more sorrow, sustained more widows, cared for more fatherless families, educated more orphans and relieved more persons in sickness and distress, to say nothing of the Masonic, K. of P., A. O. U. W. and other organizations of like purpose, than all the anti-secret societies from the dawn of time to the present day. Neither has one of either of the above-named organizations ever admitted a single member who did not express himself as a firm believer in the existence of a Supreme Being.

Since we find that these societies take in three, four or five times as much as they expend for "widows, fatherless families, orphans, and persons in sickness and distress," we anti-secret society people warn people against the abounding fraud. Much better for a man to put his five dollars into a secure hole in the wall than in an insecure society, so that when sickness comes he can reach in his hand and bring out five dollars—not a paltry two dollars or a reluctant one.

"No member is admitted who does not express himself as a firm believer in the existence of the Supreme Being." "The devils also believe and tremble;" which is to say that belief in a Supreme Being does not give proof of good character nor evidence of an upright purpose. The deceptions of Satan!

WM. C. PADEN.

THE HOME.

THY KINGDOM COME.

Sometimes a vision comes to me
Of what Thy world was meant to be;
Thy beauty all things shining through,
Thy love in all the works we do.

I shade my spirit's dazzled sight
Before the splendor of that light:
Earth crowned with heaven's pure diadem,
The bride, the new Jerusalem!

For this alone didst Thou descend,
O Son of God, man's glorious Friend,
From Thy dear Father's throne of bliss;—
That human life might be as His.

Thy kingdom come, our souls within!
Where Thou art, is no room for sin:
Oh, show us what our lives may be,
Led home to Him, by following Thee.

—Lucy Larcom.

GOD'S PROMISES.

A promise is like a check. If I have a check, what do I do with it? Suppose I carried it about in my pocket and said:

"I do not see the use of this bit of paper, I can not buy anything with it;" a person would say:

"Have you been to the bank with it?"

"No, I did not think of that."

"But it is payable to your order. Have you written your name on the back of it?"

"No, I have not done that."

"And yet you are blaming the person who gave the check! The whole blame lies with yourself. Put your name on the back of the check, go with it to the bank, and you will get what is promised to you."

A prayer should be the presentation of God's promise, indorsed by your personal faith. I hear of people praying for an hour together; I am quite pleased that they can; but it is seldom that I can do so, and I see no need for it. It is like a person going into the bank with a check and stopping an hour. The clerks would wonder. The common-sense way is to go to the counter and show your check, and take your money and go about your business. There is a style of prayer which is of this fine, practical character. You so believe in God that you present the promise, obtain the blessing, and go about the Master's business. Sometimes a flood of words only means excusing unbelief. The prayers of the Bible are nearly all short ones; they are short and strong.—Methodist Protestant.

WORK OF THE SALVATION ARMY.

Commander and Mrs Ballington Booth jointly contribute to Home and Country Magazine for March a very powerful paper, "From the Depths," which is the first article ever written by them for any magazine in this country except that published by the Salvation Army.

Mr. and Mrs. Booth have something to say about the great work of the Army and have said it with a simple directness of style which adds a peculiar charm to their intensely interesting article. The following are a few extracts taken at random from it:

"It is with the help of these social measures, united with the power of salvation, that has brought a ray of divine comfort and help into the nearly 40,000 homes visited by our slum-workers, that has given a shelter from the frosty atmosphere and the biting wind to nearly 50,000 men in our Food and Shelter Brigades in New York and San Francisco, and thrown a gentle mantle of protection over some 12,000 helpless babes in our New York creche, while their already over-worked parents have had an opportunity of adding a little to their scanty existence by honest work."

"A new branch of work has been undertaken, and already gives promise of great usefulness. This is the establishment of rescue homes for the exclusive benefit of outcast and fallen women. The New York Rescue Home of the Salvation Army was opened by Mrs. Ballington Booth on the 6th of last June. It is situated in a quiet street, and has nothing outside to denote that its occupants differ from the people who inhabit the neighboring houses except one thing that would be noticed by a careful observer—the spotless cleanliness of the steps, area, vestibule and windows. The daily life in the home is, as nearly as practicable, that of a simple Christian household, with as little as possible to suggest a 'reformatory.'"

"In July the officers received from the slum-workers a girl who for twelve years had been a terribly abandoned character, guilty of almost every crime, and who had been in prison again and again. Her home was in the South; but when only seventeen she went off with a man, who soon deserted her. Then she drifted North, and in course of time married an elderly man, of whom she speedily wearied, and deciding that he was insane placed him in an insane asylum. Her third husband died while she was on Blackwell's Island.

"The first few days the poor girl passed in the home she pleaded continually for whisky, and was really unable to remain quiet either night or day for five consecutive moments. At the end of a fortnight the officers were almost discouraged, but God richly rewarded their labors."

"Some one touched the captain's arm, and turning around she saw in the next seat a coarsely-dressed working-woman, who held in her toil-hardened, grimy hand a quarter. She was rising to leave the car, and only said: 'I doesn't know nothin' about religion, and I doesn't care nothin' about God, but you be good 'uns to help that cre'ture, and I wish this 'ere quarter were twenty-five dollars.'

"Then with a 'God bless you!' one more opportunity of speaking a word for the Master was forever gone."

"Now for a few particulars of work actually accomplished at our New York shelter alone. From the best statistics at hand we find that 1,000 persons have been provided with employment; 650 persons have been provided with clothing; 22,000 persons have been provided with comfortable sleeping accommodations; 35,000 persons have been provided with wholesome meals; 350 persons have embraced the religion of Christ."

"Not only is this unique publication, the War Cry, which is printed in fifteen languages, found in all civilized lands, but it has even preceded the explorer and missionary. Great was the surprise of members of the expedition 'through darkest Africa' when, on arriving on Mount Kilimanjaro, they found a copy of the French issue, En Avant, in the hands of the natives, who, although they could not read or understand its meaning, looked upon the paper with peculiar veneration and respect, guarding the treasure as if it were a present from the gods.

"It is the only paper that enjoys the distinction of being read by rich and poor alike—by scientists and philanthropists, emperors, princes, presidents, paupers and criminals. Its expenses are met entirely by the receipts from sales of copies, for it has absolutely no subscribers and refuses to accept any advertisements."

GIVE WHILE YOU CAN.

A minister of the Gospel once called upon a merchant, Mr. Thornton, afterwards the first treasurer of the church missionary society, and solicited his aid for some benevolent object. The merchant, in response to his application, gave him a check for ten pounds. Before the clergyman left there came a letter with the news that one of the merchant's large vessels had gone to the bottom of the sea. The merchant read the letter, and told the poor minister of his loss, and then said:

"I must ask you for that check back."

The poor man returned the check with a sad countenance, and then the merchant wrote another check for fifty pounds, and handed it to him, saying:

"I must give while I can, for the Lord is warning me that sometime I may not have anything to give."

There are multitudes of Christian men who might profitably come to the same conclusion. They have been warned in various ways, by numerous losses and misfortunes, that this world is no safe place in which to lay up treasures, and that riches perish with the using, and take to themselves wings and fly away; but they too often neglect the warning; they seem to think that a steward's duty is to keep, and take care of his Master's money, rather than to use it as he directs, and for his glory.

The natural tendency is for persons to grow covetous as they increase in wealth. The daily economy involved in the acquisition of wealth, becomes a settled habit increasing with years. That which was at first a necessity, becomes a matter of choice and habit in the later years; and sometimes nothing but the sharp stroke of misfortune and calamity will loosen the covetous grasp of a heart which has its portion in this world.

In connection with every loss and every misfortune, Christians should consider, What is the lesson which God would teach me by this providence? If we are ready to learn the lesson, God is ready to teach us. If we refuse to heed his voice, then we may expect that calamities will increase and that strokes of the chastening hand will come yet more heavily.

It is quite usual for persons when they have met with losses and misfortunes to immediately begin to circumscribe their charities, and hold on to what they have. This is not the part of wisdom nor of righteousness. The lesson of loss and misfortune simply emphasizes the words of Him who said, 'Lay not up for yourselves on earth, . . . but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust can corrupt, nor thieves break through and steal.'

Dr. J. G. Holland relates that "After the Chicago fire, three friends met, two of whom had been burnt out of house and home, and the immense accumulations of successful lives. One of the unfortunates said to the other two: 'Well, thank God, there was some of my money placed where it could not burn,' saying which he turned upon his heel cheerful and went to work at his new life. His brother in misfortune turned to his companion and said, 'That man gave away last year nearly a million of dollars, and if I had not been a fool I should have done the same thing.'"

That man called himself a fool for hoarding up wealth that might have been devoted to the service of the Lord. A higher authority confirms the justice of the title; for to the man who had much goods laid up for many years, God said, 'Thou fool, this night thy soul shall be required of thee: then whose shall those things be which thou hast provided?'—Luke 12: 20.

Give while you can.—The Christian.

ONLY A BOY.

More than half a century ago a faithful minister, coming early to the kirk, met one of his deacons, whose face wore a very resolute but distressed expression.

"I came early to meet you," he said. "I have something on my conscience to say to you. Pastor, there must be something radically wrong in your preaching and work; there has been only one person added to the church in a whole year, and he is only a boy."

The old minister listened. His eyes moistened, and his thin hand trembled on his broad-headed cane.

"I feel it all," he said; "I feel it, but God knows that I have tried to do my duty, and I can trust him for the results."

"Yes, yes," said the deacon; "but 'by their fruits ye shall know them;' and one new member, and he, too, only a boy, seems to me rather a slight evidence of true faith and zeal. I don't want to be hard, but I have this matter on my conscience, and I have done but my duty in speaking plainly."

"True," said the old man; "but 'charity suffereth long and is kind; beareth all things, bopeth all things.' Ay, there you have it; 'hopeth all things.' I have great hopes of that one boy, Robert. Some seed that we sow bears fruit late, but that fruit is generally the most precious of all."

The old minister went to the pulpit that day with a grieved and heavy heart. He closed his discourse with dim, tearful eyes. He wished that his work was done forever, and that he was at rest among the graves under the blooming trees in the old kirkyard.

He lingered in the dear old kirk after the rest were gone. He wished to be alone. The place was sacred and inexpressibly dear to him. It had been his spiritual home from his youth. Before this altar he had prayed over the dead forms of a bygone generation, and had welcomed the children of a new generation; and here, yes, here, he had been told at last that his work was no longer owned and blessed!

No one remained—no one—"Only a boy."

The boy was Robert Moffat. He watched the trembling old man. His soul was filled with loving sympathy. He went to him, and laid his hand on his black gown.

"Well, Robert?" said the minister.

"Do you think if I were willing to work hard for an education, I could ever become a preacher?"

"A preacher?"

"Perhaps a missionary."

There was a long pause. Tears filled the eyes of the old minister. At length he said: "This heals the ache in my heart, Robert. I see the divine hand now. May God bless you, my boy. Yes, I think you will become a preacher."

Some few years ago there returned to London from Africa an aged missionary. His name was spoken with reverence. When he went into an assembly, the people rose; when he spoke in public, there was a deep silence. Princes stood uncovered before him; nobles invited him to their homes.

He had added a province to the church of Christ on earth; had brought under the Gospel influence the most savage of African chiefs; had given the translated Bible to strange tribes; had enriched with valuable knowledge the Royal Geographical Society; and had honored the humble place of his birth, the Scottish kirk, the United Kingdom, and the universal missionary cause.

It is hard to trust when no evidence of fruit appears. But the harvests of right intentions are sure. The old minister sleeps beneath the trees in the humble place of his labors, but men remember his work because of what he was to that one boy, and what that one boy was to the world.

"Only a boy!"

"Do thou thy work; it shall succeed
In thine or in another's day;
And if denied the victor's meed,
Thou shalt not miss the toiler's pay."

—Youth's Companion.

A BRAVE ACT.

Years ago a well-known New Yorker, crossing the Atlantic and half way to Liverpool, was startled while sitting in the smoke-room by the cry of "Man overboard!" He ran out on deck just in time to see a young sailor hurry aft and spring like a deer over the taffrail into the sea. He just cleared the screw, and as the ship was making thirteen knots his head was visible a moment only above the waves, and then he was out of sight.

The bell clanged; a boat was lowered; the passengers—men, women and children—rushed aft; all was excitement and confusion on the vessel. In less than two minutes the boat was pulling off; all eyes were strained towards it and the crew, tossing as in a cockle-shell on the swelling, receding water. Half an hour, three-quarters, crept by. The signal was given for return by a small red flag run up to the topmast. The boat came alongside in due season. Then it was found that the sailor who had fallen overboard had been lost, but the brave fellow who had gone after him had been recovered in an exhausted condition.

While under the care of the surgeon five hundred dollars was raised for him, and a proportionate amount for the boat's crew. The New Yorker was selected to present the money when the gallant youth appeared on deck. He simply said:

"Thank you kindly. I'm sorry the poor lost lad isn't here to share it with me."

The brave sailor was Matthew Webb, afterwards known as the champion swimmer of the world.—New York Times.

A CHINAMAN'S RELATIVES.

It is not uncommon for a Chinaman to number his cousins by the thousand. How inconvenient the possession of such an army of relatives may be, is shown by Rev. A. H. Smith, in some recollections of life in Japan:

By the time he is sixty years of age, a man is related to hundreds upon hundreds of individuals, each of whom is entirely conscious of the relationship, and does not forget or ignore it.

Not only do all the members of this army of relatives feel themselves entitled to know all the details of one's affairs, but the relatives of the relatives—a swarm branching into infinity—will perhaps do the same. If the man is rich, or a magistrate, they certainly will do it.

One cannot make a business trip to sell water-melons, to buy mules, to collect a debt, of which every one will not speedily know all that is to be known. Chinese memories are treasure-houses of everything relative to cash and to dates.

How much land each man owns, when it was acquired, when pawned and when redeemed, how much was expended at the funeral of his mother and at the wedding of his son, how the daughter-in-law is liked at the village into which she has married, the amount of her dowry, what bargain was made with the firm that let the bridal chair; all these items and a thousand more everybody knows and never forgets.

Though two men at a fair may do their bargaining with their fingers concealed in their capacious sleeves, it will go hard if the neighbors do not discover the terms at last.

There are no secrets in China. Everybody crowds in everywhere—if not in sight, then "behind the arras." Every one reads every dispatch he can get at. He reads "private" letters in the same way.

"What!" he exclaims, "not let me see?"

No wonder the Chinese have an adage: "If you would not have it known that you do it, do not do it."

TEMPERANCE.

THE SONG OF THE BAR.

With steps unsteady, unsure,
From the pawn to the drink shop came
A woman clad in unwomanly rags,
Dead to all womanly shame.
With features famished and thin,
Disfigured by many a scar,
Her children shivered outside in the rain,
And sang the song of the bar,
Drink, drink, drink, till the home is stripped and bare,
Drink, drink, drink, then quarrel, blaspheme and swear.

Father is now in jail,
Where mother will go in time;
The publicans go to church,
The richer for parents' crime,
Sell, sell, sell whisky and beer and gin,
Surely there isn't a heaven to win, isn't a hell to fear.

Sell, sell, sell whisky and gin and beer,
All the week they stand at the bar,
To gather the money in,
O, men with children dear,
O, men with mothers and wives,
It isn't money you're gathering in.
But human creatures' lives.
Lives and bodies and souls,
Naught to you is denied;
Money and drink are dearer than Christ,
To the beings for whom he died.

O, women to whom He trusts
His little children dear,
Are they less indeed in your eyes,
Than whisky and gin and beer?
With garments tattered and torn,
With features bloated and red,
A woman staggered away from the bar;
Womanly graces dead,
Drink! drink! drink! O, that such horrors are;
Her children followed with frightened moan,
And angels bore to the Almighty's throne,
The terrible song of the bar,

—Glasgow Observer.

THE WORK IN ENGLAND.

The Thinker, a well-known English journal, gives the following synopsis of what is being agitated for: Whatever government may be in power, we must reckon upon even stronger opposition if they attempt to legislate against the people's welfare. The following are some of the reforms the temperance party have promoted during the last twenty years: Prohibition of the payment of wages in public houses; disqualification of brewers and distillers from serving as licensing magistrates in Scotland; raising rateable qualification of Irish beer houses (this act closed 557 beer houses in Dublin alone, without compensation); Irish Sunday-closing; Welsh Sunday-closing; abolition of spirit rations in the navy to officers and youths under 20, and the substitution of chocolate; prohibition of liquor-selling on Scotch steamboats on Sunday; conferring upon magistrates the power to refuse "off" beer licenses (by this act hundreds of beer-shops have been closed without compensation); prohibition of public houses as committee rooms for parliamentary or municipal elections; prohibition of drink truck system (under which agricultural laborers can no longer be paid part of their wages in liquor); Scotch Early Closing bill (under which in all towns of under 50,000 inhabitants liquor shops are now closed at 10 p. m.); prohibition of the sale or barter of liquor in the North Sea fisheries; prohibition of the sale of liquor among the natives of the Western Pacific Islands; the second reading of both the Scotch and Welsh Veto bills.

STARTLING STATISTICS.

Where are our young men to-day, and what are they in character? In Washington are thirty thousand young men, but less than three thousand of them are members of the churches. On a single evening one hundred and sixty-eight young men entered ten church prayer meetings, and the same evening, in one hour, three hundred and sixty-five entered ten of the one thousand saloons licensed by our government under the shadow of our Capitol. In a city of seventeen thousand, one thousand and twenty-one young men entered forty-nine saloons in one hour; in another city of thirty-eight thousand, six hundred young men were found in seven of twenty-eight saloons on one evening. In Leadville, Colorado, on a recent Sunday evening, two hundred and fifty young men attended eight churches, and two thousand entered six of the seventy-six saloons of the city. In Providence, R. I., on an evening not long since, three hundred and fifty-four young men entered five of the one hundred saloons of the city in two hours. Evansville, Ind., has two hundred and thirty-seven saloons, and on a recent Saturday evening four hundred and fifty young men entered four of these saloons in two hours. In Carlisle, Pa., in three hours, on a certain evening, one thousand three hundred and fifty-eight young men entered eleven saloons. There is no way to save our young men but by closing the saloons. Is it not better that the saloon should die, than that the young men should perish?—Selected.

ELOQUENT APOSTROPHE TO COLD WATER.

Colonel Watt Forman exclaimed, in a sneering voice, "Mr. Paul Denton, your reverence has lied. You promised us not only a good barbecue, but better liquor. Where is the liquor?"

"There!" answered the missionary, in tones of thunder, and pointing his motionless finger at the matchless double spring, gushing up in two columns, with a sound like a shout of joy from the bosom of the earth. "There!" he repeated, with a look terrible as lightning, while his enemy actually trembled at his feet, like a convicted culprit. "There is the liquor which God, the eternal, brews for all his children. Not in the simmering still, over smoky fires, choked with poisonous gases, and surrounded with the stench of sickening odors and rank corruption, doth your Father in heaven prepare the precious essence of life, the pure cold water; but in the green glade and grassy dell, where the red deer wanders, and the child loves to play. There God brews it; and down—down in the valleys where the fountains murmur and the rills sing and high on the tall mountain-tops, where the native granite glitters like gold in the sun where the storm-cloud broods, and the thunder tones crash; and away far out on the wide, wide sea, where the hurricane howls music, and the big waves roar the chorus, 'sweeping the march of God,' there he brews it, that beverage of life, health-giving water. And everywhere it is a thing of beauty—gleaming in the dewdrop, singing in the summer rain, shining in the ice-gem, till the trees all seem turned to living jewels; spreading a golden veil over the setting sun, or a white gauze around the midnight moon; sporting in the cataract, sleeping in the glacier, dancing in the hail-shower; folding its bright snow-curtains softly about the wintry world, and weaving the many-colored iris, that seraph's zone of the sky, whose woof is the sunbeam of heaven, all checked over with celestial flowers by the mystic hand of refraction. Still always it is beautiful, that blessed ice water! No poison bubbles on its brink; its foam brings not madness and murder; no blood stains its liquid glass; pale widows and starving orphans weep not burning tears in its clear depths, no drunkard's shrieking ghost from the grave curses it in words of despair! Speak out, my friends, would you exchange it for the demon's drink—alcohol?" A shout like the roaring of a tempest answered, "No".

Critics need never tell me again that backwoodsmen are dead to the divine voice of eloquence; for I saw at that moment the missionary held the hearts of the multitude, as it were, in his hand.—Selected.

BIBLE LESSON.

OLD TESTAMENT TEACHINGS.

LESSON II—Second Quarter, 1893.—April 9.

SUBJECT.—Afflictions Sanctified.—Job 5: 17-27.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth.—Hebrews 12: 6.

[Open the Bible and read the lesson.]

DAILY READINGS.—M.—Job 5: 17-27. T.—Lam. 3: 22-33. W.—Heb. 12: 1-11. T.—Ps. 91: 1-8. F.—Ps. 107: 1-8. S.—Ps. 94: 1-14. S.—Ps. 34: 15-22.

COMMENTS BY E. E. FLAGG.

1. God's chastisements are for our good.—vs. 17, 18. The Book of Job is a dramatic poem, dealing with the problem of human trials and affliction. We see a good man, who used his riches to bless others, suddenly stripped of his worldly all,—children, fortune, health, everything but life itself. He, bewildered and stunned by the swiftly-recurring strokes of calamity, and seeing no reason why he should be thus afflicted, still holds fast to his faith, that God is just, and will somehow and somewhere right him in the end. His three friends, who come to condole with him, believe that such extraordinary afflictions must be sent as a punishment for extraordinary sins, which they accuse him of hypocritically concealing. The reader, however, is taken behind the scenes, and shown the arch-adversary standing in the very courts of Jehovah and accusing Job of serving God for nothing but mere regard for his own selfish interests. The Lord, who knows the hearts of all men, accepts the challenge, and allows Satan to do his worst by Job, with only this proviso—that his life be spared. Thus we see that the adversary, not God, was the prime agent in sending all these afflictions upon Job, and that the Lord permitted all this to test him, as a refiner subjects gold to the intensest heat of the furnace, in order to make it perfectly pure. Job himself seems to have had a glimmering idea of this, for he says: "When he hath tried me, I shall come forth as gold." The harsh and bitter judgment of his friends, and their grossly material way of looking at affliction, is condemned by God himself at the close of the book; but, however false in the personal application, they uttered many sublime truths, of which our lesson to-day is an instance. "Happy is the man," etc. How utterly unlike the judgment of the world, which counts the wicked happy, who, as the Psalmist says, "are not plagued like other men," and "have no bands in their death". "He maketh sore and bindeth up." We too often forget that the same Power which has smitten can heal, and seek to every other source for aid before we go to God.

2. His power to deliver.—vs. 19-23. "He shall deliver thee in six troubles," etc. The fact that God has delivered us once is sufficient guarantee that if we keep our faith in him he will continue to deliver us. Even in war and famine, the worst curses that can befall humanity, "he shall redeem thee from death." History can show many instances where the righteous who put their trust in God have been saved in circumstances of the most extreme peril. "Thou shalt be hid from the scourge of the tongue." Fear of what people will say causes more moral cowardice than anything else. Trust in God takes away this fear. Good men, especially if they are fighting some great evil, must expect to be slandered. This is pre-eminently the weapon of the secret lodge. If a member, convinced that Masonry is sinful, leaves and denounces the order, he must expect that his "business" will be "deranged," and "his reputation sent on before him". But here we have the promise that if he will but do right and have trust in God, he will be "hid" even "from the scourge of the tongue."

"Neither shalt thou be afraid of the beasts of the earth," etc. Sin has disturbed the equipoise of the universe, and converted into enemies those forces of nature, which, in a state of Edenic innocence, would be our natural allies. But in proportion as a man is pure in heart, and full of faith in God, he finds something of the old harmony restored. The chief reasons why men enter the lodge is because they think it will help them in their business and protect them when traveling. But how dishonoring to God is such a plea on the part of a professing Christian! He enters into an oath-bound organization, with saloon-keepers and men of vile lives, and says, tacitly, to the world that he prefers their help in time of trouble to the arms of the everlasting God.

3. The prosperity of the righteous.—vs. 24-27. It is a fact that righteousness always tends to prosperity. True faith in God will not make a man less, but more diligent in business. He will look well to the comfort of everything under his care. He will be wisely liberal, and yet saving and prudent, having no vices to feed. Many a young man might accumulate a handsome property in his old age if he would save the money spent in smoking and other evil indulgences. He shall not be afraid of robbers. The life of the elder Rothschild was made miserable by the constant fear that thieves would break in and murder him for his money. "As a shock of corn fully ripe." Death will be a natural event. He will go because his work is done—easily, painlessly as the leaves fall. Eliphaz uttered a grand general truth. His mistake was in the particular application, and in presenting this life as the whole of the drama, when we must look to another for the final act—the explanation of all that seems mysterious here.

RELIGIOUS NEWS.

AMERICAN BIBLE SOCIETY.

—The stated meeting of the board of managers was held at the Bible House, New York City, on Thursday, February 2, 1893, the Hon. Enoch L. Fancher, LL. D., President, in the chair. Reports from the various fields of labor were read, showing progress in the work of Bible distribution. On recommendation of the committee on distribution, grants of books were made to the value of about $1,120, including a consignment to the Central American agency. Nine new auxiliary societies were recognized, as follows: in Nebraska, three; in Missouri, two; in Texas, two; in Kansas, one; and one in Tennessee. Issues from the Bible house during the month of January, 74,294 volumes; issues since April 1st, 1892, 776,968 volumes.

BAPTIST.

—The Home Mission Board of the Southern white Baptists has been working among the Negroes of the South since 1845, and 60 colored and white missionaries are now employed.

EVANGELICAL.

—At St. Paul they are erecting a large building to be used by Rev. R. Fay Mills in his meetings to be held there in May.

—The Bible Institute of Chicago, with its plan of religious services in tents, will, by the opening of the summer season, erect a number more tents in various parts of the city where daily religious services will be held.

—The project of forming a federal union among the Lutheran, Reformed, Free Churches, Methodist and Baptists (Federation des Eglises) has been agitated of late in France. The object is to present an undivided evangelical front over against the Roman Catholic church.

—The aggregate attendance at the Fulton Street daily noon prayer meetings in New York City, for 1892, was 13,226, an average of a little over 40. The founder, Mr. J. C. Lanphar, and a few of the original friends of the movement, are still in daily attendance. The number of requests for prayer received by letter was 8,755.

—An interesting incident occurred recently in one of the Metropolitan meetings being conducted by the Rev. C. H. Yatman, in New York City. A letter was read by him asking prayer for a man who said that while on his way to a gambling party he had, attracted by the music, come in the preceding evening and been much impressed. After the reading of the letter, a fine-looking gentleman arose, and saying that he was the man, came forward and, with two others, gave himself to God. He was one of five gamblers converted in these meetings.—Independent.

—The Bible revision movement has made itself felt even in Russia. The Holy Synod has decided to take the matter in hand, and has intrusted the undertaking to a number of prominent Russian theologians and scholars. The movement is being pushed energetically, and the revision is expected to be ready for publication in two years. The Czar has approved the project.

EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN.

—EDITOR CYNOSURE:—The "Statistical Year-Book" of the Evangelical Lutheran Synod of Missouri, Ohio, and other States has been recently issued and contains the following statistics of the church for the year 1892: The Synod consists of 1,237 pastors, 1,729 organized congregations, 584 missions, 333,000 communicants, and 82,533 voting members, who, being twenty-one years of age, have formally joined the church and signed the constitution. Men only are allowed to vote. There are 1,328 parochial schools, attended by 83,514 pupils. The increase in 1892, as against that in 1891 is: 59 pastors, 74 congregations, 22 missions, 25,300 communicants, 3,358 voting members, 68 schools, 29 teachers, and 2,802 pupils. The children in the parochial schools are taught by 701 conscientious, God-fearing teachers, who devote their whole lifetime to the noble work of education. The teachers graduate at the Normal school, or teachers' seminary, of the Synod, which is situated at Addison, Du Page Co., Ill., and is certainly one of the best institutions of its kind in the Union. It furnishes first-class educators, who are, also, good Americans. In the rest of the parochial schools the pastors act as teachers. The colleges and seminaries of the Missouri Synod are attended by 1,222 students. There are sixteen church papers whose subscribers range from 2,000 to 27,000. The total number of souls in our Synod is 580,014. Large sums were raised for missions, etc., showing a high degree of spiritual life and energy.—L. W. DORN.

PRESBYTERIAN.

—Two hundred and thirty-five Presbyterian clergymen, both defenders and opponents of Rev. Dr. Briggs' views, have signed an appeal for a cessation of the heresy trials in the church.

—The New York Mail and Express, whose editor, now dead, was an elder of the Presbyterian church, says in a recent number as follows: "The lamentable absence of conversions in Presbyterian churches shows the paralyzing effect of Briggsism as a system of inquiry; and now that the Presbytery has sustained him, the coldness may be expected to grow. As a legitimate consequence of this indifference, and the anodyne of Briggsism, this Presbytery is about to sell several of its churches, and on the ground that it does not pay, to give up preaching the Gospel to the poor in as many sections of the city, and to join the mad rush for wealth in fashionable districts."

—It is reported that for three years and over Dr. Talmage has received but $638, in addition to what he has paid out for the support of his Brooklyn Tabernacle. The mortgages and debts of the Tabernacle amount to nearly $288,000. A demand is made for the payment of a debt of $20,000 on the first day of April next, and that demand threatens to necessitate the selling of the property. Published statements put the membership of the church at 7,447; but it is a church largely on paper. It is true that the people have had to build three churches, and that the payment of interest has drawn greatly upon their income. Appeals have been made frequently to Christians on both sides the Atlantic for contributions. It is stated that even Baptist pastors in Brooklyn are appealed to now for help in raising this needed $20,000.

—The Presbyterians are adopting the circuit-riding plan. Rev. Emanuel Schultz of Rehoboth, Ind., has made eight appointments, reaching each of them once in three weeks, with occasional revival services at each place. During the last three months he has received nearly fifty members on profession in one of these charges.

PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL.

—The Living Church says that in the Episcopal church "out of a total number of communicants of 532,054 in the United States, less than 50,000 take a church journal giving general news of the church's thought and work."

—The Protestant Episcopal church in the United States has 532,054 communicants, who constitute 5,019 organizations, which have an equal number of church edifices.

—The Phillips Brooks memorial fund has already nearly or quite reached the sum of $50,000. On one Sunday Trinity church, Boston, alone contributed $24,000, and the erection of a splendid memorial is now practically assured.

REFORMED PRESBYTERIAN.

—Rev. Dr. Nevin, minister of the Reformed Presbyterian church, Londonderry, Ireland, is dead. Dr. Nevin had been for half a century minister of the congregation, and was held in great respect.

—This is centennial year for the Reformed church in the United States, and it is going to celebrate. All pastors throughout the Reformed church are urgently requested to make Sunday, April 30, 1893, the day for special service in church and Sunday-school, presenting the history of the church, together with the centenary of the church's autonomy or independence in the United States.

UNITED BRETHREN.

—The United Brethren conference to be held at Dayton, Ohio, May next, will be composed of one hundred and eighty delegates.

A VEST-POCKET remedy — Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. Put up in little glass vials, handy and convenient. Sealed, too, so that you know they're always fresh and reliable, unlike the ordinary pills in wooden or pasteboard boxes.

There's nothing in the way of pills as small or as easy to take as these little Pellets. There's nothing so easy and natural in action—nothing that can do as much lasting good. They absolutely and permanently cure Constipation, Biliousness, Indigestion, Sick or Bilious Headaches, Jaundice, Sour Stomach, and Dizziness. All derangements of liver, stomach, and bowels are prevented, relieved, and cured.

They're guaranteed to give satisfaction, or your money is returned.

A case of Catarrh that can't be cured by Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy is so rare that the makers of the medicine are willing to risk this offer: "If we can't cure your Catarrh, perfectly and permanently, no matter what your case is, we'll pay you $500."

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

COUNTRY.

The Supreme Council of the Patrons of Industry of North America held its annual meeting at Detroit. Delegates were present from all over the United States and Canada. One item of business under discussion was the proposition to amend the constitution so as to do away with the county associations, and have each local lodge do business directly with the grand lodge of each State. This move will be in the interests of economy, and is in accordance with the creed of the order, which favors the abolition of as many "middle-men" as possible.

Margaret, the last of the Fox sisters, the founders of modern Spiritualism, died in Brooklyn, but the pestiferous devil-worship to which they gave renewed activity still survives, widening the circle of its influence and multiplying the number of its dupes.

The Brooklyn Board of Education has closed School No. 68, which for years has been used exclusively by the colored children in the Twenty-fifth Ward, and has ordered that its pupils shall be mixed in with the white children in School No. 80. This consolidation has caused profound excitement in the district.

A vagrant Negro, George Winn, was put on an auction block at the south door of the court-house in Fayette, Missouri, and his services for six months were sold for $20. Is this a revival of slavery?

The Iowa and Oregon Land Company, with a capital stock of $2,000,000, has been organized by twelve of the principal lumbermen of the Mississippi Valley. The object of the company will be to handle a tract of 850,000 acres of Oregon land, which is richly timbered.

The legislative investigation into the enormous coal combine in Minnesota is full of interest and the evidence of its operations grows stronger and more offensive daily.

President S. H. H. Clark of the Union Pacific Railroad, its present president, has been elected president of the Missouri Pacific, and will resign his connection with the former in April.

The annual fire report of St. Louis for 1892 shows a total loss of $1,638,607.11, the fifth largest loss sustained in twenty-five years. On this property there was an insurance of $7,939,969.91. The companies' losses during the year almost equaled the total fire loss, $1,529,155.95. In 1892 there were 844 fires, 318 of them in dwellings.

Fire and an explosion in the Planet flouring mills at Litchfield, Ill., left the mill plant a heap of fragments, and wrecked every place of business in the town. One employe, John Cowie, the head millwright, of Waterloo, N. Y., was instantly killed, and several others seriously injured. The damage to the mill is fully $1,000,000, and to the other property in the town is about $150,000. The force of the explosion was felt fifty miles away.

A bill is now before the Wisconsin legislature proposing that the State shall furnish text-books free to pupils in the public schools. This is strongly opposed by Lutherans and Romanists, who decline to have such a premium put upon public school attendance. Notice has been served upon the legislature that if the bill is passed the churches named will punish the Democratic party, which now rules in Wisconsin, just as the Republican party was castigated because of the Bennett law.

Distillers in Ohio and Kentucky have been notified to pay up their indebtedness to the government under the revenue laws. The bonded warehouse storage this year is large in Kentucky, where the crop so far has been double that of 1892, and the round totals of gallons will creep up close to fifty millions. The number of gallons of taxable spirits of all kinds in bond in 1892 was 116,813,364, and the owners, to take it out, will be obliged to pay the government in revenue taxes the sum of $122,654,630.70. This sum does not include the estimated taxes for the present year.

The heirs of Capt. E. B. Ward, the founder of South Chicago, who died in Detroit eighteen years ago, have begun suit in the Wayne Circuit Court, Michigan, for the disposal of the property. The amount involved directly is $5,000,000 and $12,000,000 contingently. O. W. Potter, Chicago, is one of the executors.

A new compulsory education law before the Illinois Legislature provides merely that every child between the ages of 7 and 14 must attend some public or private school at least sixteen weeks in each year. Any parent or guardian failing to compel the attendance of children is subject to a fine of not less than one and not more than twenty dollars. Authority is given to Boards of Education and school directors to appoint truant officers, who are to make inquiries into all supposed violations of the law.

In the litigation between the United States and the Mormon church respecting the use to which shall be put the church property escheated by the courts, the United States Supreme Court advanced the case and assigned it for hearing the second Monday of next term, with leave to counsel to submit briefs before the third Monday in April.

The French Canadians of Montreal are organizing committees among French-speaking people in the United States, to awaken a sentiment in favor of annexation.

(Continued on 16th page.)

SUBSCRIPTION LETTERS.

The following have made remittances of money to the Cynosure from March 20 to 25:

P Bacon, Dr W N Miller, Rev L H Norem, J H Wilson, G Anderson, J H Gray, W H Becker, N P Eddy, C H Cook, J Pikaart, J W Rupp, P F Thurber, J C Heywood, J Swank, S B Mercer, C S D Cowles, Rev S A Alt.

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO.

Wheat—Spring No. 2.....	74	@	74 1/2
Winter No. 2.....	64	@	74 1/2
Corn—No. 2.....	37 1/2	@	40 1/2
Oats—No. 2.....	31 1/2	@	36
Rye—No. 2.....	49	@	53 1/2
Bran per ton.....	12 00	@	12 25
Hay—Timothy.....	9 50	@	12 00
Butter, medium to best.....	18	@	29
Cheese.....	03	@	12
Beans.....	1 85	@	2 05
Eggs.....	14 1/2	@	15
Seeds—Timothy, 100 lbs. 3 00		@	4 35
Flax.....	1 19	@	1 19 1/2
Broom corn.....	02	@	08 1/2
Potatoes, per bu.....	63	@	78
Hides—Green to dry flint.....	03 1/2	@	09
Lumber—Common.....	10 00	@	13 00
Wool (washed).....	16	@	25
Cattle—Choice to extra.....	5 80	@	6 25
Common to good.....	4 45	@	4 10
Hogs.....	7 10	@	7 70
Sheep.....	4 75	@	5 30

NEW YORK.

Wheat.....	74 1/2	@	85 1/2
Corn.....	52	@	52 1/2
Oats.....	36 1/2	@	42 1/2
Eggs.....	16	@
Butter.....	18	@	30
Wool.....	13	@	25

KANSAS CITY.

Cattle.....	2 75	@	4 25
Hogs.....	5 80	@	7 20
Sheep.....	2 95	@	4 50

This is (a) House Cleaning Time

—and it's a time of trouble and much work for unbelieving women. Because their grandmothers worked hard then and made things uncomfortable, they can't believe that there's any better way.

Other women can—millions of them. They use Pearline, and "take it easy." They're spared the hard work, get through in half the time, and save the wear and tear that's made by useless scouring and scrubbing. Paint, glass, marble, wood-work, carpets, hangings, everything that will "wash" at all, is cleaned or washed easily and safely with Pearline.

Use Pearline, and you won't mind the trials of house-cleaning. You can laugh at them. But if you don't use Pearline, wiser women will laugh at you.

Send it Back Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, do the honest thing and send it back.

306

JAMES PYLE, New York.

OUR NEW 1893 FLOWER SEED OFFER.

A Magnificent Collection of FLOWER SEEDS 200 Varieties, FREE!

An Unparalleled Offer by an Old-Established and Reliable Publishing House! The Ladies' World is a large 30-page, 30-column illustrated Magazine for ladies and the family circle. Its devoted to stories, poems, ladies' fancy work, artistic needlework, home decoration, housekeeping, fashions, hygiene, juvenile reading, etiquette, etc. To introduce this charming ladies' paper into 100,000 homes where it is not already taken, we now make the following colossal offer: Upon receipt of only 12 Cents in silver or stamps, we will send The Ladies' World for Three Months, and to each subscriber we will also send Free and postpaid, a large and magnificent Collection of Choice Flower Seeds, two hundred varieties, including Pansies, Verbenas, Chrysanthemums, Aster, Phlox, Drummondia, Balsam, Cypress Vine, Stocks, Digitalis, Double Zinnia, Finks, etc., etc. Remember, twelve cents pays for the magazine three months and this entire magnificent Collection of Choice Flower Seeds, put up by a first-class Seed House and warranted fresh and reliable. No lady can afford to miss this wonderful opportunity. We guarantee every subscriber many times the value of money sent, and will refund your money and make you a present of both seeds and Magazine if you are not satisfied. Ours is an old and reliable publishing house, endorsed by all the leading newspapers. We have received hundreds of testimonials from pleased patrons during the past five years: "I had beautiful flowers from the seeds you sent me two years ago, and from experience know the seeds are exactly as advertised."—Mrs. N. C. Bayum, Dana, Wis. "Myself and friends have sent for various things advertised by you, and have found them to be entirely satisfactory."—M. J. Davis, Brooklyn, N. Y. Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher (a regular ordered our seeds last season). Do not confound this offer with the cheap penny schemes of unscrupulous persons. Write to-day—don't put it off! Six subscriptions and six Seed Collections sent for 60 cents.

SPECIAL OFFER! To any lady sending for above offer, and naming the paper in which she saw this advertisement, we will send free, in addition to all the above, one packet of the celebrated Eckford Sweet Peas, embracing the newest varieties, including Barometer, Ice Eckford, Splendor, The Queen, Orange Prince, Apple Blossom, etc. Sweet Peas are the most popular and fashionable bouquet flowers now cultivated, and the Eckford Varieties which we offer, are the largest, finest and most celebrated known. They grow to a height of 6 feet and produce for three months a continuous profusion of fragrant blooms of the most brilliant coloring.

ANOTHER GREAT OFFER! Upon receipt of Thirty-five Cents (our regular subscription price) we will send The Ladies' World for One Year, together with our magnificent Collection of Thore Flower Seeds above described, likewise one packet of the extensively advertised and justly celebrated Eckford Sweet Peas. Address: S. H. MOORE & CO., 27 Park Place, New York.

THE

Folly, Expense & Danger

OF

SECRET SOCIETIES.

BY

CHARLES A. BLANCHARD.

(President Wheaton College.)

5 Cts per Copy; $3 per Hundred.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.
221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

Anti-masonic Sermons and Addresses. Composed of "Masonry a Work of Darkness;" the Sermons of Messrs. Cross, William McNary, Dow and Sarver, the two addresses of President Blanchard, and the addresses of President H. H. George, Prof. J. G. Carson and Rev. M. S. Drury. "Thirteen Reasons Why a Christian cannot be a Freemason," "Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion," and "Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate?" 287 pages; cloth $1.00.

Standard Works

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Association

121 West Madison Street Chicago, Ill.

TERMS:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order, as a guaranty that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums. A liberal discount to dealers.

Revised Odd-fellowship Illustrated. The complete revised ritual of the Lodge, Encampment and Rebekah (ladies) degrees, profusely illustrated, and guaranteed to be strictly accurate; with a sketch of the origin, history and character of the order, over one hundred foot-note quotations from standard authorities, showing the character and teachings of the order, and an analysis of each degree by ex-President J. Blanchard. This ritual corresponds exactly with the "Charge Books" furnished by the Sovereign Grand Lodge. In cloth, $1.00; paper cover, 50cts.

Secret Societies Illustrated. Containing the signs, grips, passwords, emblems, etc., of Freemasonry (Blue Lodge and to the fourteenth degree of the York rite), Adoptive Masonry, Revised Odd-fellowship, Good Templarism, "The Temple of Honor, the United Sons of Industry, Knights of Pythias and the Grange, with affidavits, etc. Over 250 cuts, 99 pages, paper cover. 25cts each.

Between Two Opinions: OR THE QUESTION OF THE HOUR. By Miss E. E. Flagg, author of "Little People," "A Sunny Life," etc., etc. Everyone who loves to read a good story, chaste and elegant in expression, pure in thought, interesting in narrative, should read this book upon the power of secret societies in politics, and the remedy. 389 pages, cloth, postpaid, $1.00.

Sermon on Odd-fellowship and other secret societies, by Rev. J. Sarver, pastor Evangelical Lutheran church. This is a very clear argument against secretism of all forms, and the duty to disfellowship Odd fellows, Freemasons, Knights of Pythias and Grangers, is clearly shown by their confessed character as found in their own publications. 10cts each.

Five Rituals Bound Together. "Odd-fellowship Illustrated" (old work), "Knights of Pythias Illustrated," "Good Templars Illustrated," "Exposition of the Grange," and "Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic," are sold bound together in cloth for $1.00.

Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic, with signs of recognition, passwords, etc., and the ritual of the Machinists' and Blacksmiths' Union. (The two bound together.) 10 cents each.

Knights of Labor Illustrated ("ADELPHON KRUPITS.") The complete illustrated ritual of the order, including the "unwritten work." 25cts each.

HOME AND HEALTH.

(From the Vanguard, St. Louis.)

Street-sweeping dresses are the style, but how filthy! how foolish! Why not have a good sensible, womanly style of one's own and keep to it?

Butter for cooking can be boiled and then it will keep a long time without getting rancid. It is economy to buy a quantity in summer when it is low-priced and put it away in jars for future use.

A diet of corn meal gruel, cooked for an hour and stirred often is good to use in colds and when one is not feeling very well, as it helps to cleanse the system. With this, rest should be taken and labor should be light.

March with its cold winds is one of the most trying months of the year. Because there are spring-like days don't think that winter clothing should be put off. Lighten the outside wraps as the weather may indicate, but keep to the warm underclothing.

The hoop-skirt is threatened again. It is stated that 10,000 women in England have formed an association against it. Let all sound-minded, sensible women keep to what is modest, healthful and God-approved and such fashions will not trouble them.

Taking off heavy wraps immediately upon coming in from the cold, subjects the body to too rapid cooling and often results in a hard cold. An extra wrap on coming out of church is also a matter of prudence. By a little care most hard colds can be avoided.

Regularity in eating and drinking is quite as essential as what is eaten. The craving for food will come with the times for eating whether the intervals are long or short. This can be no correct guide for our needs. Three times a day, with the light supper taken as early as six o'clock, will cover the demand in most cases.

Beef suet is nicely rendered for cooking purposes by covering it with water in trying. A few slices of raw potatoes added takes the tallow flavor. The large quantity of water makes it softer. As this can be had fresh a few pounds is sufficient to prepare at one time. Warm it when used for shortening. Cakes fried in suet absorb less grease than when fried in lard and are much more wholesome.

Rolled oats cook quicker than oatmeal and are very palatable and nutritious when well cooked. An hour's cooking is none too long. An oatmeal cooker is best for this purpose. Stir the oats into boiling water and they will cook nicely with scarcely any stirring. If cooked in an ordinary vessel let them boil up quickly and then cook slowly till done. The reason why they are indigestible to some may be for lack of being well cooked.

The Japanese have some curious customs, one of which is their habit of hot bathing. They bathe every day in water that would actually scald an American skin. They do not use stoves nor very warm clothing and their hot baths seem to keep them warm. Hot baths are usually supposed to be debilitating, but the Japanese are a strong and healthy race. Perhaps our hot, illy ventilated houses are accountable for some of the tenderness and susceptibility to colds so manifest in the average American.

If you go out early in the morning, you may catch rheumatism. Salvation Oil cures it.

In cases where dandruff, scalp diseases, falling and grayness of the hair appear, do not neglect them, but apply a proper remedy and tonic like Hall's Hair Renewer.

What folly! To be without BEECHAM'S PILLS.

Ex-Mayor Long

Cured of Indigestion and Dyspepsia
General Health Built up—Wife Also Greatly Benefited.

Hon. Geo. S. Long

Is a very popular and successful lawyer of Troy, Ohio. He stands high in the estimation of his fellow citizens, having been mayor of the city. He writes as follows:

"In this case my brief contains a good many important points in favor of Hood's Sarsaparilla which I feel it my duty to file with you. We have found the medicine of very great value at our house, as my better half and myself have both been greatly benefited by it. I got into quite a serious condition with Indigestion and Dyspepsia.

I had very little appetite, and when I did eat suffered very severely with nausea and distress in my stomach. At times I had very severe headaches, and in the mornings would have that tired feeling and feel so dull and spiritless that I felt no inclination to attend my business. But I found in Hood's Sarsaparilla a true friend. It seemed to give strength to my weak stomach, restored my appetite, and assisted digestion, so that I can now eat heartily and enjoy it. With the disappearance of my indigestion I have also felt

Hood's Cures

Renewed Strength and Vigor, and every day feel as though I could do three times as much work as formerly. And best of all, the benefit is not temporary, but permanent. My wife was in a weak, nervous, debilitated condition, growing worse all the time. Hood's Sarsaparilla did so much good I persuaded her to take it, and in her case, also, it seemed to work like magic. It built her up finely, and did everything you claim in saying

Hood's Sarsaparilla
'Makes the Weak Strong.' We are warm friends of Hood's.' GEO. S. LONG, Troy, Ohio.

Hood's Pills are purely vegetable, and do not purge, pain or gripe. Sold by all druggists.

RUPTURE

A positive radical cure at home. (Sealed) Book giving full particulars sent FREE. Address: F. W. S. RICE, Box 206, Smithville, Tenn. (O. N. Y.)

THE IMAGE OF THE BEAST
A Secret Empire;

Or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy.

By Rev. Richard Horton.

Third Edition. 200 pages. Cloth.

Price, 60 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

MUTUAL HOME IMPROVEMENT CO.
CAPITAL FULL PAID $100,000.
Your Idle Money We issue Trust Certificates guaranteed by assets amounting to more than $2.00 in assets for every $1.00 in certificates. On these certificates we pay 6 per cent per annum, payable semi-annually. The certificates are issued for terms of 3, 6, 9, or 12 years, as investors may elect. The interest is paid semi-annually during the term for which the subscription is made, and at the end of the term the principal sum, together with its interest, is returned to the subscriber. Address: WALTER THOMAS MILLS, Pres. MUTUAL HOME IMPROVEMENT CO., 161 LaSalle Street, CHICAGO.

Our High Grade List and Bargain Book sent to any address on receipt of a 2-c stamp.

LORD & THOMAS,
NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING
45 RANDOLPH STREET,
CHICAGO.

STANDARD WORKS

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Association.

221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

TERMS:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order as a guaranty that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums. A liberal discount to dealers.

ON FREEMASONRY.

Freemasonry Illustrated. A complete exposition of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter. Profusely illustrated. Complete work of 640 pages, in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 75 cents. First three degrees (376 pages), in cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Knight Templarism Illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the Council and Commandery. A book of 341 pages. In cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.

Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated. The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all the Masonic Rites, and are fully and accurately given in "Freemasonry Illustrated." Vol. I. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3rd to 18th inclusive. Vol. II. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprised the degrees from 19th to 33rd inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive. Price per volume, paper cover, 50 cents each. In cloth, $1.00 each.

Hand-Book of Freemasonry. By E. Ronayne, Past Master of Keystone Lodge No. 639, Chicago. Gives the complete standard ritual of the first three degrees of Freemasonry. New edition, 274 pages. Bound flexible cloth covers, 50 cents.

Freemasonry Exposed. By Capt. William Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book republished. 25 cents each.

Adoptive Masonry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the five degrees of Female Freemasonry, by Thomas Lowe. 20 cents each.

Light on Freemasonry. By Elder D. Bernard. In cloth, $1.50 each. Paper, 75 cents each.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Baal Worship Identical, explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the lodge. Bound in fine cloth, 420 pages, 75 cents.

Mah-Hah-Bone; comprises the Hand Book, Master's Carpet and Freemasonry at a glance. Bound in one volume. In cloth, 589 pages, $1.00.

History of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. As prepared by seven committees of citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan. 25 cents each.

Ex-President John Quincy Adams' LETTERS on the Nature of Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties. Price, cloth, $1.00. Paper, 35 cents.

Hon. Thurlow Weed on the Morgan ABDUCTION. This is the legally attested statement of this eminent Christian journalist and statesman concerning the unlawful seizure and confinement of Capt. Morgan in Canandaigua jail, his removal to Fort Niagara and subsequent drowning in Lake Ontario. 5 cents each.

The Broken Seal; or Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. By Samuel D. Greene. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry, as proved in court in the New Berlin trials. The New Berlin trials began in the attempt of Freemasons to prevent public initiations by seceding Masons. These trials were held at New Berlin, Chenango Co., N. Y., April 13 and 14, 1831, and General Augustus C. Welsh, sheriff of the county, and other adhering Freemasons swore to the truthful revelation of the oaths and penalties. 10 cents each.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy. Address of Pres. J. Blanchard. This is a most convincing argument against the lodge. 5 cents each.

Grand Lodge Masonry. Its relation to civil government and the Christian religion. By Pres. J. Blanchard. The un-Christian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is proved from the highest Masonic authorities. 5 cents each.

General Washington Opposed to SECRET SOCIETIES. This is a re-publication of Governor Joseph Ritner's "Vindication of General Washington from the Stigma of Adherence to Secret Societies," communicated to the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania, March 8, 1837, at their special request. To this is added the fact that three high Masons were the only persons who opposed a vote of thanks to Washington on his retirement to private life—undoubtedly because they considered him a seceding Freemason. 10cts each.

Morgan's Exposition, Abduction AND MURDER, AND OATHS OF 33 DEGREES. Composed of "Freemasonry Exposed," by Capt. Wm. Morgan; "History of the Abduction and Murder of Morgan;" "Valance's Confession of the Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "Bernard's Reminiscences of Morgan Times," and "Oaths and Penalties of 33 Degrees." 399 pages; cloth, $1.00.

Finney on Masonry. The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry. By Pres. Charles G. Finney, of Oberlin College. President Finney was a "bright Mason," but left the lodge when he became a Christian. This book has opened the eyes of multitudes. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper cover, 35 cents.

Narratives and Arguments, showing the conflict of secret societies with the Constitution and law of the Union and of the States. By Francis Semple. The fact that secret societies interfere with the execution and pervert the administration of law is here clearly proved. 15cts each.

Temple of Honor Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of "The Templars of Honor and Temperance," commonly called the Temple of Honor. By a Templar of Fidelity and Past Worthy Chief Templar. 25cts each.

The Anti-mason's Scrap-Book, consisting of 53 "Cynosure" tracts. In this book are the views of more than a score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of secret societies. Postpaid, 25 cts.

Reminiscences of Morgan Times. By Elder David Bernard. This is a thrilling narrative of the incidents connected with Bernard's Revelation of Freemasonry 10 cents each.

Secrecy vs. the Family, State and Church. By Rev. M. S. Dury. The antagonism of organized secrecy to the welfare of the family, state and church, is clearly shown. 10cts each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. James Williams, Presiding Elder of Dakota District Northwestern Iowa Conference M. E. Church—a seceding Master Mason. 10 cents each.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 DEGREES OF FREEMASONRY. To get these thirty-three degrees of Masonic bondage, the candidate takes half-a-million horrible oaths. 15 cents each.

Pres. H. H. George on Secret Societies. A powerful address, showing clearly the duty of Christian churches to disaffiliate from secret societies. 10cts each.

Thirteen Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. W. P. McNary, pastor United Presbyterian church, 5 cents each.

Sermon on Secretism. By Rev. I. Theo. Cross, pastor Congregational church Hamilton, N. Y. This is a very clear arraignment of the objections to all secret societies, and to Masonry especially, that are apparent to all. 5cts each.

Knights of Pythias Illustrated. By a Past Chancellor. A full illustrated exposition of the three ranks of the order, with the addition of the "Amended, Perfected and Amplified Third Rank." 25cts each.

Sermon on Secret Societies. By Rev. Daniel Dow, Woodstock, Conn. The special object of his sermon is to show the right and duty of Christians to examine into the character of secret societies, no matter what object such societies profess to have. 5 cents each.

A Natural Food.

Conditions of the system arise when ordinary foods cease to build flesh—there is urgent need of arresting waste—assistance must come quickly, from natural food source.

Scott's Emulsion

is a condensation of the life of all foods—it is cod-liver oil reinforced, made easy of digestion, and almost as palatable as milk.

Prepared by Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All druggists.

FARM NOTES.

(From Farm, Field and Fireside.)

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Make hotbeds now.
Get the seeder in order before needed.
Select your garden seeds now and order at once.

Rhode Island has 12,260 sheep; Delaware is next to the foot with 13,551.

Start a few plants in the house if you have not the means to make a hotbed.

Work up the wood while other work has to stand still because of the spring mud.

Get up the summer's supply of wood before you are rushed with the spring work.

Ohio stands at the head of the list in the number of sheep with 4,378,725; Texas is a close second with 4,334,551.

Get things in as compact shape as possible about the barn and outbuildings and be ready for the soft time of spring.

Where is your plow? What condition is it in? Do not wait to find out till ready to use unless you know just how it is.

Select your fruit plants, bushes and trees and order them now, to be sent when safe to transport and the ground is ready to receive them.

Have plows, harrows and all tools ready for use—a little paint will not hurt some of them when you have the bolts all in and nuts tightened.

Iowa leads all the States in the number of her hogs, having Jan. 1, 6,181,028; Missouri comes second with two-thirds as many, 4,076,392.

Do not let the young calf get chilled and stunted. It is hard work to get money back out of a calf that is once stunted. It takes a deal of petting and coaxing and then often fails to come.

Secretary Rusk has sent out instructions to managers and agents of railroad and transportation companies in regard to care of cars used in transporting cattle moved from the districts in which "Splemic or Southern fever exists among cattle."

If you have fodder yet out in the field, manure still in the yard, or wood still unhailed and the bottom has not fallen out of the roads, do not wait another day. Do you realize March is nearly gone and "bad roads" or deep mud in the fields will soon prevent hauling.

If there are road culverts or sluiceways near you that need opening to let off the surplus water of spring rains, do not wait for the "pathmaster" till it is too late. Open them up yourself. This will be doing yourself a good turn as well as helping your neighbor to "better roads."

Don't let the matter of free delivery of rural mails rest until it is an accomplished fact. The matter of good roads is an important one, but it is a question yet unsettled, and after settlement it will be a long time before it can be carried into effect. No matter how bad the roads, a man on horseback can make a delivery of the mails. See to it that your Congressman knows how you feel in the matter. Personal letters are worth more than petitions; but sign petitions too.

(From Another Source.)

The average farmer comprises the majority of the farmers of the country. He is not, necessarily, the best of farmers, for his hap-hazard system of farming is that which depletes the average yield of grain of the careful farmer 25 to 30 per cent.

A Mississippi farmer educated his son at the agricultural and mechanical college of that State. After graduating the son returned home and took charge of his father's farm and managed it for one-half the proceeds. Now the old man gets as much as rent as he formerly made from the entire farm.

Combine bee-keeping with fruit-growing, and you can more easily procure two crops from the same land; and this double cropping is not exhaustive, requires no additional fertilizing, no extra plowing or cultivating. There are few crops which return so much for so little outlay and labor as does the honey crop.

Keep the orchard fenced from all stock, plant to hoed crops for three years, and sow to clover. When the orchard gets to bearing, give it a wagon load of manure for every five barrels of apples; do not expect, as in the past, an orchard can bear 20 years without food—you have starved the old orchard to death.

If any one will travel in any direction some distance from any town or city in America he will not consider the subject debatable whether or not our road laws need readjusting to suit our changed conditions. This is a subject not to be argued. The present condition of our roads and highways is an urgent appeal for good laws and their enforcement.

Nothing succeeds in removing coughs and colds like Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

LAND FOR SALE.

The undersigned offers for sale the northwest quarter of the northeast quarter of section 2, town 25, north range 12, west, in the township of Grant, and county of Grand Traverse, Michigan, containing 43½ acres, on which there is no incumbrance. On each side of this property is timbered land that can be bought for a reasonable price. My terms are $1,500—all cash down. Address

ORIEL Z. WOODARD,
Interlachen, Grand Traverse Co., Mich.

MY EXPERIENCES

WITH

SECRET SOCIETIES.

BY A TRAVELER.

With a Key to Masonry Illustrated

A new edition, greatly enlarged, has been issued, embracing chapters on the Language of Numbers, Secret Empires, and Good Men, containing more experiences, and affording a deeper insight into the Hidden Language and Workings of Secret Clans, and of the counterfeit pretences of good men, than ever before published. The Key is an exposition, explanation and verification of modern Baalism, with which all should be thoroughly acquainted. The price of the new edition is

Fifteen Cents,
but copies of the first edition will be forwarded for Ten Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

DO YOU WANT

To receive, read, distribute and otherwise aid in the circulation of a large number of Holiness and Reform papers and magazines? If so, send me a SILVER dime, and your name and address will be printed on the Holiness and Reform Mail Exchange List, which is sent to all publishers of holiness and reform literature, who will mail you sample papers and magazines. Write name and address PLAINLY. Address, J. H. PADGETT, Printer, Ennis, Texas.

THE BEST

Remedy for colds, coughs, and the common disorders of the throat and lungs, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is universally recommended by the profession. It breaks up the phlegm, soothes inflammation, allays painful symptoms, and induces repose. In bronchitis and pneumonia, it affords speedy relief, and is unrivaled as a prompt and effective in croup, sore throat, and the sudden pulmonary diseases to which young children are so liable.

Emergency Medicine

"Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has had a wonderful effect in curing my brother's children of a severe and dangerous cold. It was truly astonishing how speedily they found relief, and were cured, after taking this preparation."—Miss Annette N. Moen, Fountain, Minn.

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.
Prompt to act, sure to cure

The Blue Bell.

The Mountain Daisy.

Daily Text books for a year. Dainty little souvenirs, only 1½ inches square, elegantly and neatly bound in leather, with silk marker, gilt edges, round corners, each net 25
Illuminated paper covers, each 10

Birthday Memorial Text-Book.

An Autograph Text-book. Text for each day and space for autographs. 32mo., Cloth..... 25

Daily Comfort in Four Fold Links.

The most popular Wall Roll published, and deservedly so. Every page is an effective sermon.

The striking character and particular value of this new Wall Roll is in the remarkable arrangement and selection of the Scripture Texts.

A constant monitor in the Christian household.

A silent teacher for the school.

A comforting messenger for the sick-room, as well as being suitable for the office, the store or the shop.

Printed in beautiful large, clear letters, easily discernible at a distance of 10 to 15 feet. Mounted on rollers, with cord, to hang up in usual style. 31 pages, size 14x22in. 75

The Secret of Success; or

Finger Posts on the Highway of Life, by John T. Dale; introduction by Hon. John V. Farwell. 416 pages, 12mo., full cloth.....$1.50
A book for the aspiring. Written in a fascinating style and full of incidents and illustrations which hold the interest of the reader spell-bound.

"It may be true, as has been said, that 'books are sold, not bought'; but this, at any rate, is a book which, if brought to one's attention, he will wish to own."

Such a book in every intelligent family in the land—how much (in showing so clearly, so wisely, so persuasively the secret of success,) it might do toward helping to solve the countless aching, burning questions of the time.—The Advance.

Prof. Henry Drummond's Booklets.

The Perfected Life. (The greatest need of the world.) Bound in chaste style, vellum paper..... 20

Love the Supreme Gift. (The greatest thing in the world.) Uniform with Perfected Life..... 20

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Knights of Labor Illustrated ("ADELPHON KRUTOS.") The complete illustrated ritual of the order, including the "unwritten work." 25cts each.

Odd-fellowship Judged by its own utterances; its doctrine and practice examined in the light of God's Word. By Rev. J. H. Brockman. This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-fellowship, in the form of a dialogue. In cloth 50cts; paper covers, 25cts.

The New World of Central Africa.

By Mrs. H. Grattan Guinness, with a history of the first Christian mission on the Congo. 12mo., 530 pages with maps, portraits and numerous illustrations, $2.00
"A conscientious piece of work, and gives a very clear account of what has been done by the Protestant missions to evangelize the barbarous races of Central Africa. He who wants to know what missionary effort means in these days may well learn from this volume." The reader who goes carefully through will have a good bird's eye view of recent events in Africa, with all the results of modern travel. The work contains solid information of use to all who are interested in the future of this wonderful country. The many illustrations throw light upon savage customs and costumes."—Graphic.

in the Far East.

Letters from China by Geraldine Guinness, edited by her sister, with introduction by Rev. J. Hudson Taylor. Very fully illustrated. Quarto cloth,$1.50

This book was scarcely written—it was lived; for the breath of life is in it from cover to cover. We have never read so wonderful an account of successful missionary effort.—Presbyterian

We easily understand how this edition is the fifteenth thousand. It is a very remarkable book.—The Golden Rule.

Frances Ridley Havergall's Poems.

Author's edition complete. The only unabridged authorized edition published in America.

1. 12mo., 880 pages, cloth, beveled.....2.00
2. Beveled boards, full gilt.....2.50
3. Half white vellum, gilt top, uncut edges.....2.50
4. French morocco padded, roll red under gold edges.....4.00
5. Persian calf, padded and embossed, gilt roll and r. g.....5.00
6. Crushed levant, elegant.....6.00

7. Full German calf, padded, elegant, gilt, rd. cors.....7.50

Miss Havergall stands without peer in the English language in the department of religious poetry.

"The book in paper and binding is all that could be desired."—Publishers' Weekly.

Small Books by Miss Havergall.

Bound in elegant illuminated board covers.

Kept for the Master's Use. 20

My King; Daily Thoughts for the King's Children.....20

Works of Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

Sermon Notes. Covering all the Bible from Genesis to Revelation. 4 vols.....4.00

Feathers for Arrows. A volume of Choice Extracts, 12mo., cloth.....1.00

Twelve Striking Sermons..... 50

Twelve Soul Winning Sermons..... 50

Twelve Sermons on the Resurrection..... 50

Twelve New Year Sermons..... 50

Twelve Christmas Sermons..... 30

Notes by C. H. M.

On Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy.

Mr. D. L. Moody says of these books: "They have been to me a very key to the Scriptures."

Deuteronomy is issued in two volumes, the others complete in one volume each.

Separate volumes may be had if desired.

The complete set in six volumes, covering over 2,300 pages, is offered at the reduced price of 75c per vol. or $4.50 per set

A. L. O. E. Intermediate Library.

Selected from the numerous productions of this world-renowned writer as being those of rare merit. 12 vols., 12mo., cloth elegant, each 75c; set.....9.00

An Eden in England. Life in Eagle's Nest. Ned Franks. White Bear's Den. Sheer Off. Fally Spider's Web. Braid of Chords. Lake in the Woods. Silver Keys. Seven Perils Passed. Grace Vernon. Hartley Brothers.

The Jessica Series. By Hecuba Stretton. 6 vols., handsome bindings, cloth 50c each, or per set.....2.10

Jessica's First Prayer. Friends till Death.

No Place Like Home. A Miserable Christmas Under the Old Roof. A Night and a Day.

A. L. O. E. Junior Library. Adapted to the young folks. 7 vols., 12mo., cloth, each 60c; the set.....4.20

Claremont Tales. A Wreath of Smoke.

Christian Conquests. Pomegranates from Tales Illustrative of Punjab.

Parables. Little Bullets from The Battle of Life. Batala.

The Hecuba Stretton Series. 8 vols., elegant cloth bound, per set.....4.80

Cassy. King's Servant.

Lost Gipsy. Alone in London.

Max Kromer. Little Meg's Children

Storm of Life. Crew of the Dolphin.

Address - - W. I. PHILLIPS,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

A cream of tartar baking Powder. Highest of all in leavening strength.—Latest United States Government Food Report.
ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 106 Wall St., N. Y.

NEWS OF THE WEEK (Continued from 13th page).

Tremont Temple, in Boston, was, for the fourth time, destroyed by fire, March 19.

The Workman Arbitration law, which the Ohio State Legislature has just enacted, provides for a State Board of Arbitration, to be composed of three members. The Governor is to appoint one employer and one workingman, who are to select the third member. The pay is five dollars a day and expenses for the time actually spent in investigating and settling disputes. The duties of the board are to conciliate differences between employers and employee, to arbitrate when mediation fails, to investigate and conciliate or arbitrate when a strike or lock-out is impending or is actually in progress, and to make reports to the Governor and Legislature of transactions during the year, together with a statement of the condition of capital and labor.

Father Treacy, of Swedesboro, N. J., again celebrated mass in defiance of the orders of the Roman Catholic bishop and his excommunication.

Capt. Jacob H. Vanderbilt, brother of "Commodore" Cornelius Vanderbilt, died in New York, aged 86.

Senator Palmer, of Illinois, is to be chairman of the Senate Committee on Pensions. He was himself a General in the army and thoroughly believes in pensions and that it is the duty of the Government to give a liberal pension to every man who is suffering disability from service in the field. The present pension system is a good one, but, he insists, investigation should be made to free the pension roll of all fraudulent claimants.

By the burning of a fashionable apartment house at Cleveland, Ohio, Thursday, five women and a child were burned to death.

Peter Kiolbassa called on the President at Washington and presented a protest against the ratification of the extradition treaty between the United States and Russia.

The Indianapolis City Council has voted an appropriation of $75,000 and a general tax for raising the same to assist the city in entertaining the G. A. R. National convention in September. It is now asserted that an injunction will be taken out to prevent the levying of the tax.

The past week has been rife with March gales and storms. In Mississippi, Tennessee and Missouri, on Thursday, a disastrous cyclone destroyed immense amounts of property and killed a number of persons. Kelly, Tenn., was swept away. Tunica, Miss., with a population of several thousands, was wrecked throughout. A schoolhouse containing 150 colored children was crushed, and the children were buried in the ruins. Dozens were maimed and severely injured. Secret society halls were blown down, as were churches and private residences. Not a building was left standing in Kelly, Tenn. In Missouri the agricultural districts suffered severely, fruit orchards and fields and gardens being devastated, while houses, barns and outhouses were unroofed and otherwise damaged. At Nevada, Mo., an insane asylum was partly wrecked, causing a panic. Hundreds of domestic cattle were killed. Other parts of the South also received the force of the storm, with fatal and other casualties. Eight persons in the vicinity of Nashville, Tenn., were reported killed. Southern Indiana was also visited with a damaging windstorm.

North and South Dakotas, Minnesota and portions of Iowa were visited by heavy snow and windstorms on Thursday, doing considerable damage and making things generally unpleasant. Indianapolis, Ind., had several buildings blown down. Telegraph lines and railroads were badly injured and hindered, both north and south.

The Federal Anti-trust law is to be appealed to in Minnesota to break up the immense coal combine in that State, which includes the Pioneer Fuel Company, the Northwestern Fuel Company, the Ohio Fuel Company, the Youghiogheny Coal Company, the St. Paul & Western Coal Company, the Lehigh Company, and the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Company. Proceedings will be begun as soon as the papers can be prepared.

FOREIGN.

Pope Leo has informed the French Bishops of his decision to crown his Episcopal Jubilee by the beatification of the French heroine, Joan of Arc, who was burned by the English as a sorceress and heretic May 30, 1431, and was formally pronounced to have been innocent in 1456.

A horrible accident occurred in a coal-pit near Chesterfield, Derbyshire, Eng. While descending, loaded with miners going to their day's work, the cage, owing to some accident to the apparatus, suddenly fell to the bottom of the shaft and eight of the miners were killed.

A destructive hurricane March 6 swept over the New Hebrides Islands and New Caledonia destroying many villages and causing great loss of life. Large numbers of the natives are said to have perished. In Tchio alone ten persons were drowned. The loss of property was at least $600,000. Most of the settlers were ruined.

Opponents to Irish Home Rule in County Ulster, Ireland, threaten to organize a revolution if the bill to establish it is passed.

Jules Ferry, one of the brightest of modern French statesmen, is dead. When minister of instruction he created profound excitement throughout France by his efforts to exclude Jesuit teachers from the schools of the republic.

Chief Sikki, one of the greatest obstacles to German progress in East Africa, was killed in a recent battle.

British forces have had severe fighting with tribes beyond Chitral in India, finally subduing them.

Moslem mobs have been persecuting Armenians in Caesarea, Turkey.

The pecuniary result of the papal jubilee has been a net gain to the Vatican of over a million and a quarter dollars.

A revolution is in progress in Honduras and fierce battles have been fought.

The London Russo-Jewish committee has appealed to all the Jewish bankers of Europe to boycott Russia.

Brazilian revolutionists in Rio Grande du Sul have routed the government troops sent against them.

Plans for a revolutionary uprising in Nicaragua were frustrated by the arrest of the leaders.

The Princess of Wales, prospective Queen of England, and her children, visited the Pope at Rome in a social manner and were pleasantly received.

The cotton mills of Lancashire, Eng., started up on Monday last, after a strike that kept 125,000 men out for twenty weeks and entailed a loss of $10,000,000 in wages.

Much comment has been caused by the latest addition to the British code of morals which allows Sir William Pearce, M. P., to retain his seat in Parliament after he has been the co-respondent in a divorce suit. His apologists say the offense is condoned, because he did not know Mrs. Bristocke was a married woman.

The crinoline fad in London has been killed by a young woman who walked through the most fashionable quarters in a genuine old-style crinoline. She was charged double fare for the space she occupied in the street car.

At Paris, the anarchists, Meyrules and Chappullot, were sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of one Bissen, a fellow anarchist.

M. Challomel-Lacour has been selected as candidate for the Presidency of the Senate, to fill the place of the late Jules Ferry. He has the endorsement of M. Carnot, who has no liking for his rivals M. Constans, and he stands a good chance of being elected.

There is no reason why children should be allowed to suffer from loathsome scrofulous sores and glandular swellings when such a pleasant, effective, and economical medicine as Ayer's Sarsaparilla may be procured of the nearest druggist. Be sure you get Ayer's.

A PRISONER OF HOPE.

BY MISS E. E. FLAGG.

Author of "Between Two Opinions," "Holden With Cords," etc., New England Correspondent of the "Cynosure," and Editor of the "Home Light."

This very interesting and helpful story by this popular writer, who is well-known to the readers of this paper, will begin in the issue of

Messiah's Herald

for April 5th. The heroine of the story is a cripple, who has been advised to try different methods of healing. The story tells how she was at last healed, but while showing how this was accomplished, the author also deals with certain erroneous ideas concerning bodily infirmities. In writing this story Miss Flagg has done her best work, and it is sure to win praises everywhere. It will have a GREAT RUN, and it is evident that the papers containing the earlier chapters will be soon exhausted. The story will be copyrighted, and will appear in no other periodical. Those who desire to secure the complete story should send in their orders at once. The story will be continued several months, so that the better way to secure it entire will be to subscribe for a year. The Herald is the oldest prophetic journal in the world, and is opposed to Rum, Romanism, and All Evil.

It supplies sixteen large pages of the best reading matter every week. Terms: $1.50 per year, with Conwell's Life of Spurgeon (price $1.50) free, postpaid; six months, 75 cents, without the book. The book alone is worth the price asked for both it and the paper for one year.

Address, MESSIAH'S HERALD, Box 160. Boston, Mass. (In writing, please mention the Cynosure.)

Disloyal SECRET OATHS

ADDRESS OF

JOSEPH COOK,
OF BOSTON.

AT THE

Conference of Christians CHICAGO, 1890.

No better document of its size for general distribution has been printed. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference.

Single Copies 5 cents, or 12 copies for 50 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

"WORTH A GUINEA A BOX."

BEECHAM'S PILLS

(Tasteless—Effectual.)
FOR ALL
BILIOUS and NERVOUS DISORDERS.

Such as Sick Headache, Wind and Pain in the Stomach, Giddiness, Fullness, Swelling after Meals, Dizziness, Drowsiness, Chills, Flushings of Heat, Loss of Appetite, Shortness of Breath, Costiveness, Scurvy, Blotches on the Skin, Disturbed Sleep, Frightful Dreams, All Nervous and Trembling Sensations, and Irregularities Incident to Ladies.

Covered with a Tasteless and Soluble Coating.
Of all druggists. Price 25 cents a Box.
New York Depot, 365 Canal St.

LE CARON, THE SPY.

A STARTLING REVELATION.

More enticing than a romance, filled with the strongest evidences of the power and evil of sworn secret societies, and plainly revealing the danger to any government growing out of political conspiracies, is the

"Autobiography of Henry LeCaron, the Spy."

who was for years a Clan-na-Gael Center, a Fenian Commander, and a Land-League Orator, but always a British Detective. The book covers his twenty-five years' experiences in this secret service, and contains 205 pages.

Price, in paper covers, 50 cents.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
WM. I. PHILLIPS, Treasurer,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

JONATHAN BLANCHARD'S

—[oo]—

SERMONS AND ADDRESSES.

Select discourses of the late editor of the Cynosure and leader in our reform. Lectures, sermons and speeches given from 1834 to 1892 in leading cities of the United States, discussing topics of

LIVING REFORM.

Secret Societies,
The Sabbath,
Temperance,
National Reform,
Christian Education,
Christian Socialism,
The Bible, Etc., Etc.

A BOOK EVERYBODY SHOULD READ

12mo. Fine Photogravure Portrait.

Price, 75 Cents.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

AMERICAN HANDBOOK AND

CITIZEN MANUAL.

BY

MANLOVE N. BUTLER.

CONTENTS:—Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement; Real Prohibition; Poor Man's Bible, and All-Around Reformers. Over 200 pages

Paper, single copy 40c.; per doz. 35c.

CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

The St. Louis Sermon.

Are Secret Societies a Blessing or a Curse?

An Address by Rev. B. Carradine, D. D., Pastor of the Centenary M. E. Church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891.

W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's too."

A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover. Sent postpaid 25 copies $1.00. Single copy 5 cents.

Address - - W. I. PHILLIPS,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XXV., No. 30.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, APRIL 6, 1893

WHOLE No. 1,197.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,

221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PER YEAR..... $2.00
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... 1.50

No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrears paid.

Address all letters for publication to EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, CHICAGO. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed.

Make all drafts and money orders payable to the Treasurer, W. I. PHILLIPS, 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO. When possible make remittances by express money order. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address on Cynosure list always give the former address.

[Entered at the Postoffice, Chicago, Ill., as Second Class Matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:	REFORM NEWS:
Notes and Comments..... 1	From the New England
Self-Sacrifice in Religion 8	Agent; The Eastern
The Columbian Exposition..... 8	Agent in Pennsylvania; Reform Organiza-
Moral Boomerangs..... 8	tions..... 5,9
A Non-Union Printer..... 8	CORRESPONDENCE:
The World's Fair Sunday-school..... 8	A Delayed Letter from
The Dread of War..... 8	Greece..... 5
Protection of Citizens by the Government..... 8	IN BRIEF..... 7
CONTRIBUTIONS:	AGENTS AND LECTURERS..... 7
The Autocracy of Labor. 1	THE N. C. A..... 7
The Causes of Accidents 3	THE HOME..... 10
The Signs of the Times.. 3	TEMPERANCE..... 11
SELECTED:	BIBLE LESSON..... 12
Willard Fountain..... 3	RELIGIOUS NEWS..... 12
NEW ENGLAND LETTER..... 4	NEWS OF THE WEEK..... 13
WASHINGTON LETTER..... 4	Secret Societies Con-
LITERATURE..... 6	demned..... 13
	HOME AND HEALTH..... 14
	FARM NOTES..... 15

Rev. P. B. Williams, secretary of the Oregon and Washington Association, can be secured for a lecture on Secret Societies, by addressing him at Portland, Oregon.

The element of secrecy, in one of its most dangerous forms, has recently been developed in County Ulster in Ireland, in the Protestant opposition to the establishment of Home Rule in that part of the British empire. The movement manifests a good deal of strength, and may require government intervention to suppress it.

Strong documentary evidence exists that Mr. Risley, the newly-appointed Minister to Denmark, was a member of the detestable "Knights of the Golden Circle" during the Southern rebellion. At least his name was signed to letters of a condemnatory character that were captured by Gov. Morton of Indiana. Says the Inter Ocean: "Mr. Risley may be a good man, but there are Democrats all over the country saying that he is not fit to be a United States Minister." Then it was a mistake to appoint him to a position of that magnitude.

Right Rev. Horatio C. Potter, Protestant Episcopal bishop of New York, a Freemason of high degree, told the Young Men's Christian Association of Philadelphia, not long ago: "I want to say to anybody in the house who supposes that I am going to say anything disparaging of the Masonic order, that I am a Mason myself, though a very poor one." Inasmuch as the Bishop favors opening the Columbian Exposition on Sunday, and belongs to the Christless lodge, it may be reasonably inferred that his Christianity is confined to his ecclesiastical forms and not to his personality.

While dedicating a new annex to the Odd-fellow's Home in Philadelphia, Rev. Russell H. Conwell, pastor of Grace Baptist Temple in that city, after praising the boasted (paid-for) "benevolence" of the order, took occasion to say: "The love of Odd-fellowship is the best, truest, and broadest CHRISTIANITY I have ever been made acquainted with." Webster's definition of Christianity is: "The system of doctrines and precepts taught by Christ." Yet the National Grand Lodge of Odd-fellows has decreed that no prayer in any lodge of that fraternity can be offered in the name of Christ. What kind of Christianity is that which expels the name of the Founder of the Christian religion from its worship and sets up a salvation of its own? Mr. Conwell's standard of Christianity is not very high, but as high as his lodge will permit.

The law against the immigration of "contract laborers" from other countries is very strict. Without entering into any discussion as to the merits of this statute, or of that which demands that all such persons shall be forbidden to land at any port in the United States, or of that which requires them to be sent back to the place whence they came, the enforcement of these regulations is evidently creating considerable opposition to them. The "contract inspector" stationed on Ellis Island, in New York harbor, has recently returned a great many of this class of immigrants to Europe; and last week he received a letter, written in Italian, complaining of his operations and closing with this threat: "We have stood it as long as we can. We will have no more of it. If you are the cause of sending back any more of our people, look out. Prepare to meet some of your victims in the other world, for we will stop your tyranny." The letter is signed "Mafia," and has a rude sketch of a dagger, skull, and cross-bones at the bottom in red ink. Further developments are awaited with interest.

Whenever a Freemason orator begins a discourse upon the excellence and beauty of the fraternity, facing a lodge audience, in this manner: "The temple of Solomon became the temple of God, the home of acceptable worship, and the cradle of the ancient and honored fraternity of Freemasonry, the handmaid of religion. Here we first find the mystic numbers, the mystic symbols, and the grand fraternity of this order," he becomes an object of pity for his ignorance, or of derision for his arrogance and folly. The language quoted is that of Rev. Duncan McGregor, D.D., before members of a Masonic lodge, and a large congregation, in the Broad Street Baptist church, Philadelphia, on the 20th of March. Says Bro. Parvin, than whom there is no wiser Freemason living, and no more thorough member of the fraternity: "'Tis true, 'tis pity: and pity 'tis 'tis true,' that even Solomon was no Mason. With all his wisdom, great as it was, he knew no more of the mysteries of Freemasonry than the . . . beautiful Queen of Sheba." Isn't it about time that this ancient "fairy tale" of Solomon's Freemasonry was permanently retired?

Recent information relating to accommodations for housing and feeding the thousands of transient visitors to the Columbian Exposition between May 1 and September 30, dispels a cloud of doubt and distrust as to extortionate prices for the ordinary comforts of life. On the authority of the editor of the Inter Ocean it is announced that abundance of reasonable accommodations will be provided for all who come. "Plenty of rooms," in the vicinity of the Fair grounds, he says, "can be rented at the rate of $7 per week, and in districts more remote, but still within an hour's ride of the Exposition, clean and light rooms will be offered at $5, and very likely at $4 per week. In like manner hotel accommodations can be had at from $25 to $50 per day; but they can also be had at $2, and even at $1 per day also. No person need stand in dread of exorbitant prices or of scant accommodations. The hotel system of Chicago, which for years past has been able to provide for an influx of seventy or eighty thousand visitors in excess of the usual volume of travel, has been quadrupled by the erection of monster buildings that will be used as hotels during the Exposition season."

The litigation of the opposing factions of the Evangelical Association, or church, which has been a frequent subject for comment for several years, has received a quietus in the Illinois State Supreme court. A press dispatch to the Inter Ocean, March 31, thus reports the result: "The Court, in a lengthy opinion per curiam, absolutely settled the Evangelical church war by firing the Dubbs faction bodily and holding that the Indianapolis general conference was the only lawful body, and that its adjudications and findings regarding the decision in the church was final and binding. The opinion has been looked forward to with great interest, not only in the State of Illinois, but in Ohio, Pennsylvania, Oregon, and Iowa, where the splits have been organized in the Evangelical church by the Dubbs faction." The decision was in the case of Husser vs. Schweiker, from Chicago, and is practically in accord with those of the lower and Appellate courts.

Referring to Odd fellowship in an oration before a lodge of that fraternity, the pastor of a Christian church in Philadelphia said on Washington's birthday, 1893: "I delight in the order because it is doing the work that the church ought to do. . . . No agency is advancing the brotherhood of man more than the Odd-fellows," etc. Let us see: The church founded by Christ (which is the only Christian church) was designed for men, women and children without exception. "Whosoever will may come." But Odd-fellowship excludes from its lodges all women; all colored men—Polynesians, Negroes, Chinese, Indians and half-breeds—all persons except free white Caucasian males; and, of these last, all who are afflicted with chronic diseases, the deaf, dumb and blind, and all others who on account of their poverty are unable to pay their dues; and if a sound applicant for initiation has three enemies in the lodge which he desires to join, they can keep him out. Is this the spirit of Him who said: "Go out into the streets and lanes of the city and bring in hither the poor, and the maimed, and the halt, and the blind . . . compel them to come in, that my house may be filled?"

THE AUTOCRACY OF LABOR.

The following is a part of an able oration by Mr. C. E. Briggs, delivered in the oratorical contest in Oberlin College, February 3, 1893. Its estimate of the importance of the labor problem, the possible advantages of labor organizations, and the progress that has been made in securing the rights of laborers, is truthful and fair. More important, however, is its arraignment of the utterly un-American and criminal conduct of many of these labor unions. We fully concur with the speaker, that nothing can so certainly bring condemnation of the people, and in the end, nothing will prove so self-destructive as this defiance of both of the rights of individuals and of the state.

Our criticism (if it be called such) is that the speaker failed to consider the reason why these labor organizations have been led to adopt such un-American and criminal methods, for the accomplishment of their purposes. There ought to be, and need be, nothing in a labor organization more harmful to the rights of the individual or of the state, than there is in a young men's debating society. A labor union that had for its objects to sympathize with and aid all laborers, by the communication of all important knowledge, and by making its appeal to an enlightened public conscience—an organization that should eschew all secret methods, all pledges of unconditional obedience and all interference with the rights of non-union laborers, would be liable to no objection and might be truly beneficent in its results. It is because these organizations were not so constituted, because secrecy is made the basis of their organization, and sworn obedience the condition of membership, that they have borne the bitter fruits of anarchy and crime. Men do not plot treason in the light of the sun. Men who are free never sell themselves to the business of shooting officers of the law, destroying private property, or putting poison into the food of those whose only offence was that they sold their labor for the best obtainable price. It is only those who have been tools of an organization, and who rely on its secrecy and protection, that are led into such wickedness. Laws hidden from public observation and which are based on a regard for the selfish interests of the few rather than the rights of all, are liable and quite likely to be regarded as paramount to the laws of the land. Those who make them become practical conspirators against the rights of others. It is this feature of trades unionism and not any want of sympathy with the laborers that leads us to deplore the unwisdom of those who seek the promotion of their rights by un-Christian and un-American methods:

The public mind is always optimistic. It was ever so in the remoteness of ages; it is so to-day.

The struggle at Mantinea left Greece weak and disunited. The power of Philip of Macedon, born within the very wall of Thebes, was hanging like a black cloud upon the horizon of Thessaly. Although conscious of their peril and the certainty of attack, the sons of Deucalion bestirred themselves not. The heavy tread of the mighty phalanx of the enemy was heard along their border, yet inaction held them bound. The passionate appeals of Demosthenes stirred their blood for a moment only ere they turned away. But the Northern Spoiler, meeting at Cheronea the combined energy of Thebes and Athens roused all too late, destroyed to a man the Sacred Band of Epaminondas, and the independence of Helles became a story of the past.

The most awful act in the drama of modern times was like the awakening from a dream. In the early reign of Louis XIV., the revolt of a Parisian mob, contemptuously called the civil war of the "Fronde," caused only a stir of derisive laughter. Not for a moment did the Frankish people believe that this feeble flame, fanned by the extravagance of the Grand Monarch, and fed by the license and infidelity of his successor, would burst forth in all the frenzied fury of demoniac Paris, and the reign of the Holy Mountain and the power of the Holy Guillotine would be supreme! The causes of this awful disturbance were at work before the very eyes of France, but France did not expect a revolution. These are but two bits of history at either end of a line of more than twenty and a half centuries, but all time has been crowded with such examples. It has been the history of the race that the public mind, desirous of peace, has been slow to recognize the necessity of action. This has been most strikingly evident when the cause of concern has contained the suggestion of public reform.

The great social problem of the world is the question of labor. In one form or another it has been, perhaps, the most important question in the progress and civilization of every age. It is a problem which has cried for solution at the hands of every nation, a problem which, unsolved, has come down to us as an inheritance of the past. But although a solution of the question has as yet never been reached, the present condition of labor shows most clearly that while all previous attempts have fallen far short of attaining their purpose, they have not utterly failed in producing conditions favorable to accomplishment. Time was when the possibility of any rights being a part of the inheritance of labor did not hold even the importance of consideration. Labor was bound hand and foot with unyielding shackles, and lay prostrate under the ban of the most abject slavery.

From this well-nigh hopeless condition labor has dragged itself with slow and painful steps. Gradually it has been increasing its strength until now its rights are the subject of long and serious discussion. No longer is the stamp of inferiority branded upon the forehead of the laboring man. No longer does he wander the earth alone, struggling single-handed with the multitude of the oppressors. He has learned that in order to gain consideration and obtain power he must unite his efforts with the efforts of others, that he must organize if he would meet successfully those who have leagued themselves together against him. It is through organization, first in England and later in America, that labor has made its greatest and most decided advances; it is through organization that it has obtained power and influence to prosecute successfully its demands; it is through organization that it has been enabled to require a respectful recognition of its rights; and it is through organization that it looks most hopefully to the final attainment of its just and proper place among the institutions of men.

We rejoice at this glorious history of labor, and we are proud of the rapid advancement of its cause in our own land. Never before have the prospects of labor been so bright; never before has it been in possession of such high vantage ground where careful and considerate effort will tell so decidedly for the working out of its salvation. The present is a critical period. The world sees the possibilities of labor; it awaits in hopeful expectation the accomplishing of great things.

It is hardly necessary for me to call your attention to the rapid growth of organized labor in America. In England it took nearly two centuries of tireless effort before co-operative attempts of any nature were not condemned as conspiracies. But in the United States, hampered by no governmental restrictions, the progress of organized labor has been more than marvellous. With subtle persistency it has been spreading out its arms in the direction of every occupation, until now it holds nearly the whole industrial world within its grasp. The representatives of labor unions and associations have been untiring in their efforts to make their work complete, and the result is an industrial army thoroughly organized, shrewdly officered, and armed with the knowledge that they are powerful to control the wheels of nearly all production.

The mighty power, however, which has been slowly accumulating to organized labor, we as a nation have hardly begun to appreciate. In the labor question we have been confronted with one of the greatest problems of the age, at once perplexing and vital. In the hope that this movement might furnish us the solution for which the past had vainly sought, we have looked with favor upon the progress made by organized labor. Reforms have been enacted through the powerful influence of unions; abuses have been remedied as a result of persistent effort of associations; the condition of labor along every line of industry has been elevated and improved.

These things we have seen, and our souls have been satisfied. Content with the results, we have closed our eyes and made no further comment. The fact that important features in the policy of organized labor were in direct opposition to the fundamental principles of our democratic belief, has not been a question of the slightest concern.

What, then, was the sudden and painful shock to the public mind when, during the peaceful months of the last summer, this mighty power was unexpectedly roused into action! In amazement and horror did the people stand as the news came flashing from the wires that at Homestead organized labor had resisted in bloody encounter the employment of men according to law; that at Coeur d'Alene it had violently seized and destroyed the valuable property of a private company; that at Buffalo it had defied civil authority and set at naught municipal power. Never before had such radical measures followed each other with such startling rapidity. The vast destructive power of unions and associations was displaying itself, and there was wonder at its strength. Distrust was written on the public brow. The heart-beat of the nation was quickened and the darkness fell from its eyes. The true purpose of these disturbances became evident and their significance was weighed.

It is three of these un-American principles in the policy of organized labor that now demand your considerate attention. They will not be found among labor's written articles of faith; seldom have they been publicly proclaimed; but within the last six months they have been preached to us with fire and the sword! During these last days organized labor has spread them out before us in the alphabet of action, and we have been compelled to read.

The first of these is the abridgment of the right of free contract and labor. This is one of the most sacred of rights given to the American citizen by his Constitution. It is the embodiment of one of the principles upon which rests the complicated structure of our entire industrial system. So imbued are we with the right of man to a free exercise of his own will with regard to whom he employs or for whom he will labor, that the possibility of any abridgment of this right seems almost incomprehensible; and yet, upon every page in the history of organized strikes this very right is denied—except to members of the guild! Only a short time ago Mr. Powderly, in one of our leading magazines, claimed for union laborers the absolute right to employment at reasonable terms during good behavior; that it is no longer a question as to whether or not such services seem desirable to the employer. Nay, more. Organized labor is attempting by means of violence to control competitive labor. Brutal attacks upon non-union men have come to be considered a feature of every strike. At Homestead the mark of Cain was placed upon the murderous attempts of organized labor to abridge this inalienable right.

In the second place, there is the abridgment of the right of property. A right equally sacred, equally fundamental with that of free contract and labor to the preservation of our industrial world, it is, nevertheless, a right which labor unions are laying open to even greater danger. What, think you, means the lawless destruction of property by organized labor, the attacks upon the mills at Homestead, for example, the damage done to rolling stock at Buffalo amounting to hundreds of thousands of dollars, or the wanton sacrifice of a large and costly plant by Idaho miners? It means that labor organizations no longer consider the right of property sacred to accumulated wealth. Senator Palmer told the story when upon the floor of the Upper House he declared that great establishments like Mr. Carnegie's "must be treated like public institutions, subject to public obligations like railroads." At the last meeting of the American Bar Association at Saratoga, President Dillon, in speaking of this very subject, quoted as the stand taken by the judiciary, that remarkable statement of Sir Henry Maine:—"All the beneficent prosperity of the United States reposes on the sacredness of contract and stability of private property; the first to implement, the last the reward of success in the universal competition." And yet, it is the policy of organized labor to abridge the right of property!

And in the third place, there is the resistance to civil authority. This has been so painfully manifest that it is perfectly familiar to the American mind. It is an alarming fact that sheriffs are no longer able to maintain order within their counties when a strike is in progress; that since the last celebration of our national existence nearly the entire military force of four different States has been called into the field to preserve the public peace and prevent the lawless destruction of property by labor unions. In speaking of the situation at Homestead before the arrival of the State troops, General Snowden said, "The civil authority had been entirely subverted." Since that memorable sixth of July, there have been almost daily outbreaks among the strikers. One of the associate press dispatches for October read: "Homestead, Pa., October 28.—No disturbance of any kind is reported to have occurred within the past twenty-four hours." Think of it! In a town not twice the size of our own little village, no violent outbreak to disturb the public peace, destroy private property, or endanger personal safety—for twenty-four hours! Neither was the situation less alarming in Idaho, where death and destruction blocked the highways of peace for near thirty days, and martial law had no alternative. At Buffalo it required an armed force six thousand strong to preserve the peace against six hundred strikers!

These, honorable judges, are serious charges, and it is with the greatest reluctance that I lay them at the door of organized labor. The American people have looked with marked favor upon the growth and progress of labor. They have recognized its right to organization; they have appreciated its efforts, and they have rejoiced in its victories. But now that it is strong, it is blinded by its power, and has become arrogant! In these latest examples of labor policy, it is clearly evident that organized labor is in imminent danger of losing sight of its great and grand purpose. In embodying in its policy the principle that no longer has man the right to employ whom he will or to labor for whom he will; that his right to the accumulation and possession of property is no longer sacred; that the authority of the government under the very protection of which it exists is to be thrown down and trailed in the dust; the cause of organized labor, instead of maintaining itself in the lofty position which, in all equity, it should hold in the exalted principles of our democratic state, degrades itself to a level with socialism and anarchy! I have said that the public mind is long-suffering, slow to anger, and plenteous in mercy. But let organized labor beware! Let it not be deceived. America is not mocked. Already the public spirit has been stirred, and its power is mighty. Organized labor holds in its palm the destiny of the wage-earners of our country, and is powerful to act for the weal or woe of millions. It is a great trust, and we pray that it may not be betrayed. But let the leaders and captains of labor, the pillars of its organization, look well to their policy and action, lest that power of public opinion, as ponderous in its might as the mace of Richard, yet as keen in its final discrimination as the cimeter of Saladin, that power upon which rests the sole anchor of their hope, be turned from them and the cause of the laboring man in America meets destruction at its own hand.

THE CAUSES OF ACCIDENTS.

BY THE OFFICE EDITOR.

"To err is human," sang the poet; and if error is a test of humanity the evidence that the poet was right is overwhelming.

In our early days, a gentleman, a close observer of men and things, and an ex-judge, remarked that he did not "believe in accidents." There might be providential dispensations, like earthquakes, lightning strokes and pestilences, to which the destruction of life, limbs and property could be traced; but in the economy of social and political life all common casualties might safely be attributed to ignorance, incompetence and carelessness. Years of experience have served to largely attest the truth of his opinion, and every added year seems to further confirm it.

Ignorance, too often self-imposed, but quite as often the result of untoward circumstances, should be always looked upon with distrust wherever important responsibilities, such as the care of life and property, are involved. A man ignorant of the mechanism of a steam-engine, if entrusted with it, would probably soon destroy it and himself, and damage those about him. If he understood something of its character as a machine and its power, but not enough to regulate its speed and take proper care of it, he would be classed as incompetent, and unfit to have charge of it. If he understood the mechanism of it thoroughly, and could manage it skillfully at all times, yet was careless, he should not be employed to operate it. In each of these three characteristics—ignorance, incompetence, and carelessness—he would be sure to develop unfitness in an equal ratio, and be an unprofitable servant, because he could not be trusted.

In these days of over-hurry, over-burdens of business, and the rush after wealth, it too frequently occurs that men possessing neither sufficient intelligence, competence nor care are entrusted with responsible positions which they cannot fill successfully or profitably. They come with recommendations from political or family friends, who asseverate their competency, and self-interest or some extraneous influence induces employers to give them work in positions which they are not capable of properly filling. Hence it is not strange that some catastrophe may soon be traced to their unfitness, by which the lives of scores may be imperiled, and important financial disaster wrought.

There is too much of this heedlessness on the part of employers. If there were less of it; if none but thoroughly intelligent, competent and careful servants were employed, the annual record of accidents would be greatly lessened, public and private work would be better performed, and there would be more confidence felt by the public in all conveyances and operations by which the daily business of life is carried on.

As for accidents on railroads and elsewhere where labor is employed, we fear that too much of the responsibility may be directly traced to the methods of the secret labor unions. Sworn to support and aid each other in securing employment, we believe they have greatly lowered the standard of skill and intelligence and have filled up their lodges with incompetent artisans. Their oaths require them to befriend every brother and commend him as a thorough workman, whether he is or not, so long as he has his grips and passwords and working cards properly framed. His mechanical excellence becomes secondary in importance, and if he regularly pays his dues, his character as a brother cannot be impugned.

Partisan influence is another deleterious attribute of those who commend an incompetent workman as a trustworthy operative when he is naught but an ignoramus.

Nor is it in mechanical labor alone that incompetent and careless employes are found. They pervade our public offices, where they pose as gentlemanly accountants and clerks, because some alderman or other high official, almost as ignorant as themselves, vouches for their correctness and ability. One has only to go through the public offices of Chicago and other cities to be convinced of the general character of the subordinates with whom he will there come in contact—creations of official favor.

We have been led into this train of thought by two incidents that occurred in the closing hours of the Congress that ended March third. A World's Fair appropriation for $37,000 had passed both houses, had been engrossed, signed by the proper officers including President Harrison, and become a law, when it was discovered that the careless clerk who engrossed the bill had reduced the amount from $37,000 to $37 by simply omitting the word "thousand." There was no help for it then; and the Columbian Exposition managers can only draw the $37 to which the bill entitles them.

About the same time Congress appropriated over half a million of dollars for the payment of jurors and awards at the Columbian Exposition, in the nature of a loan, to be repaid to the United States. The bill was properly passed and signed, and became a law, when it was discovered that by the stupidity of the engrossing clerk the appropriation was turned over to the woman's department for disbursement—a provision not included in the original bill as passed.

But enough. "Civil service reform" is a good thing; let us "reform it altogether."

THE SIGNS OF THE TIMES.

BY REV. M. A. GAULT.

There are few of your readers who are more interested in our cause, and watching the signs of the times more closely, than J. R. Sharp, of Blanchard, Iowa. In a letter from him, dated February 6, he says: "Nothing perplexes me more now than the signs of the times. On every side, and in all lands, evil triumphs. When the Republican party was defeated, and when it steps down, it is that the Democratic party may be enthroned—a change of masters, but a continuance of the administration of the power of evil. This power was given by the deliberate act of the people—by the twelve million voters of our land; and one of these evil parties must be in power, because the people will have no other. Do you know, in all history, an organized force so mighty as these twelve million voters, having their intelligence both mental and moral, and with so great opportunities for good, and yet rejecting with disdain the guidance, authority and power of the Lord God of hosts? They reject his name, his Word and his law, notwithstanding they are all well-known. No place is given them in the politics of the nation, neither are they wanted; and yet, under his favoring providences there is seed-time and harvests, the continuance of peace and security, so that the wealth of the nation increases, and the people say, 'To-morrow shall be as to-day, and much more abundant.' As a necessary result of the retirement of God from the government of the nation, there is little mercy in its administration.

It's treatment of the colored race; its legalization of the slave-trade until the year 1808; the injustice done to the Indians and Chinese; its refusal of protection to the colored people after, in name only, they were made free; its keeping of large numbers of men employed on the Sabbath, in the Post Office Department; the almost supreme power given to the liquor traffic, and the government's participation in its gains, that it may, without hinderance, pursue its work of destruction. Now, who is sufficient to overthrow this power used for the promotion of evil? Not the people, for they themselves are the workers of all these iniquities. Can a people have better opportunities? Can they have a larger knowledge of right and wrong? Do they need a larger experience? Is six thousand years of human suffering and failures not enough to lead them to know that wisdom is not in man, but that it belongs to the Lord? 'The world by wisdom knew not God'; and by the same wisdom knows him not now. All this proves the need of a higher power and wisdom than man's, for after a long-time trial he will not be just nor merciful, nor choose that which is good. Is the time near when power shall be taken from wicked men? It is more than a hundred years to the end of the six thousand years. Is Satan's kingdom to continue till the end of that time, or are these days to be shortened?"

This question Bro. Sharp has raised is one that is now perplexing students of prophecy more than any other. Is it possible for the awful downward current of things to continue another century without reaching a crisis? We think not. The crisis must come now in a short time; indeed, it may come any day.

We attach much importance to the idea that six thousand years must elapse before the millennium of a thousand years begins; and most students of prophecy agree that after a thousand years' millennium, there will be a final period of the reign of Anti-Christ. Estimating this period at fifty years, we must then date the commencement of the millennium about the middle of the next century. This will harmonize with what we consider to be the best calculating of prophetic dates; that the world's crisis will be reached about 1896, and will be followed by a reconstruction period of fifty years, when the probability is the millennium will be fully inaugurated.

Nashville, Ill.

WILLARD FOUNTAIN.

The commission for "Willard Fountain," which is to be a gift to the city of Chicago from children all over the world connected with the Loyal Temperance Legion department of the World's Women's Christian Temperance Union, of which Miss Anna A. Gordon, of Evanston, Ill., is superintendent, has been placed in the hands of Mr. George E. Wade, of London. Mr. Wade is now at work upon the life-size model of the fountain, which is to be cast in bronze, and which will represent a little girl—a child of the people—who stands offering her cup of cold water to the thirsty passers-by, while the overflow from the cup helps to fill a trough at her feet for horses and dogs. Mr. Wade has admirably caught the idea of expressing in this figure the thought that children are being trained to temperance service; for the very attitude of the child is alert and full of interest in what she is doing, while the influence of the beauty and innocence of childhood will also greatly serve the cause, as the fountain will be reproduced times without number by means of photography and engraving, and thus its lesson will become familiar in all parts of the world where the white ribbon is worn and loved. Miss Gordon desires that children connected with the Loyal Temperance Legions and all temperance societies shall at once set about earning their dimes so that they may be contributors to this historic fountain, which will be suitably inscribed as their gift to the city entertaining the World's Fair. The names of all contributors will be recorded in a book to be kept in the Woman's Temperance Temple in Chicago. It is hoped that the managers of the Columbian Exposition will allow the fountain to be placed in the center of the children's exhibit, and that it may there begin its blessed ministry by furnishing water to the thirsty multitudes who will visit the World's Fair.

NEW ENGLAND LETTER.

St. Patrick's Day—Dress-pocket reform—The Telautograph—A singular Fast Day proclamation—Politics and secret societies—Romanians—Spring thoughts.

Is St. Patrick's day going to take its place among our national holidays? It looks like it when the Connecticut House of Representatives take to "wearing the green," and a motion to adjourn in honor of the day by an Irish Romanist member is unanimously carried. We can all afford to honor St. Patrick as a good and holy man, who was no more of a Roman Catholic than St. Paul, and is not to be held accountable for all the ridiculous fables that have sprung up around his name. But the seventeenth of March is celebrated less in honor of him than of a church St. Patrick never heard of—a church whose unscrip-tural dogmas and bloody persecutions would have filled him with horror and dismay. This legislative notice of a mere Romish holiday ought to be resented by all of Connecticut's Protestant citizens who are not moral mollusks.

A Boston woman—of course she is from Boston—is having a serge dress made with thirteen pockets in it, to wear to the World's Fair. She will certainly be as great a curiosity as anything at the Exhibition. That must be a unique style of dress in which it is possible to find places for such a multiplicity of pockets. When she wants to pay her fare on the electric cars, how can she ever remember into which one she put her portemonnaie? Most women, after reading the above item, though they may have chafed inwardly many times over man's superiority in this regard, and even mildly anathematized the dressmaker, who either leaves the pocket out entirely, or hides it among folds and gathers, where it takes them half an hour to find it, will agree that even in pockets it is possible to have too much of a good thing.

The simple-minded old lady who supposed that the letters flew along the telegraph wires has been often laughed at, but the telautograph, that latest wonder of science, which transmits anything written on ordinary paper, or with an ordinary lead pencil, certainly comes very near to realizing her idea. Surely we are living in the days foretold by Daniel when knowledge shall increase; but, after all, are we happier than our fathers who thought Franklin was almost a demigod when he drew lightning from the clouds by means of a silk thread and a paper kite?

Gov. Russel's proclamation for Fast Day is certainly a peculiar document, whose like may be searched for in vain among all the proclamations that were ever issued by governors of the old Bay State. Gen. Butler, when occupying that high position, took occasion to recommend to the ministers that they let political matters alone in their Fast Day sermon—advice which was very naturally resented by Massachusetts clergymen of every shade of belief as an unwarranted interference with their pulpit rights and duties on the part of the executive power. Gov. Russel's chagrin over the defeat of the measure to abolish Fast Day shows itself rather too plainly for the dignity of a state paper. The people have spoken their decided objection to giving up this old New England institution, or merging it into Good Friday, at the bidding of Rome, and it would have been more graceful in our chief magistrate to have accepted the situation, and given us a proclamation in the usual form. However, he has given us one thought that should be emphasized from the pulpit, and pondered by the pews: "It is for the people of the Commonwealth to determine whether this day shall be observed in conformity with the high and holy purpose for which it has been instituted, and is appointed, or whether it shall be a formal fast by proclamation, to which the great body of the community of a Christian State gives neither heed, support nor service."

Judge Blaisdell, who gave that very peculiar verdict against Miss Borden, who is still in jail awaiting the trial which she ought to have had in common justice months ago, is himself under a cloud. Serious charges of venality and corruption have been preferred against him, which throw a curious side-light on this strange case.

Mr. Conrad, of Providence, who expended $25,000 in trying to secure the conviction of Dr. Graves, might have saved his money had he taken the pains to acquaint himself with the workings of Freemasonry in our courts of justice. This was a snug sum to expend; but even money is no match for Masonic influence when it comes to saving a criminal out of the clutches of the law.

Sometimes political managers who bid for the votes of the secret societies get defeated, as recently in New London, Connecticut, where the Republicans nominated for their candidate the head of the I. O. O. F.'s in that State, but found that the Democratic members of the order preferred to support their own candidate, and did so, with the result that the latter was elected. The Hartford Times complains of this and various other attempts to utilize secret orders for political purposes. The editor of the Times should read history and see how Masonry was made a political catspaw by the Stuarts and their Jesuit allies two centuries ago. Politicians of the present day will continue to find it as convenient as did Chevalier Ramsey.

Insurance Commissioner Merrill reports only nine endowment orders existing, out of a total of fifty-six, and these have on hand only about $24 with which to meet each $787 of promises, while their officers have collected more from members for expenses than the fund now on hand amounts to. Will our legislature fail to give the people legal protection from these vampires?

Somebody ought to invent a word as expressive as Anglo-maniacs to describe those nominal Protestants who are always—metaphorically speaking—on tiptoe with admiration for everything connected with Rome and the papacy. Rev. George Batchelor, Unitarian minister in Lowell, recently preached a sermon on Pope Leo, in which he used the following extraordinary language: "Probably there is no Unitarian living more attached to my church than I am; and in it I expect to find all the soul craves for, but if I were to change, I would not stop in any church until I reached the Catholic church. All the good that I can find in any church I find in these two." Protestantism would only be the gainer if these Romanians—how will that do till some one coins a better word?—would secede in a body and join themselves, in name as well as in heart, to the ecclesiastical system they so much admire.

Even now city people are beginning to ask the question, "Where shall we pass the summer?" They need go but a very short distance out of Boston to find themselves plunged into depths of suburban solitude as complete as if the gilded dome of the State House was hundreds of miles away. I remember a most charming drive, one summer afternoon, through the heart of Weston—the home of our loved Dea. Leadbetter, though his postoffice address is Auburndale—over fern-haunted, forest-shaded roads, with a wayside brook to bear us company, and an occasional farm-house to take off the sense of isolation. I contend that one can come much nearer to "Nature's heart" amid such quiet and homely scenes, than among the sublimities of mountain and ocean, where she shows herself less as a mother to whose bosom one can nestle, than a queen in royal robes who smiles graciously and lets you kiss her hand; who wants homage rather than love.

March is passing. Only a few more days, and changeable April will take up the scepter. The winds are yet bleak and the mornings keen and frosty, but the grass is turning green in places, and white clouds scud across the sky. The signs of spring are in the heavens above as much as in the earth below, and the first violet that blossoms in its leafy nook is no surer token of her approach than the appearance of those island-like white clouds permeated through and through with the glory that is shining behind them—like a dim vision of the pearly gates. And when the time comes for their heavenly portals to unclose, will not our clouds of affliction turn as brightly luminous—the sign that earth's winter is over and gone, and the summer of eternity near, even at the doors?

ELIZABETH E. FLAGG.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, March 29, 1893.

At last there is a prospect that the liquor traffic of the national capital, which has for so long been practically a law unto itself, will have to submit to being controlled by law, as other traffic does, without protest. It has been decided in a local court that the new liquor-license law, which went into effect March 3, annulled all existing liquor licenses, and that new licenses must be obtained under the new law, which, although far from being perfect, or even tolerably satisfactory, is a great improvement upon what we have had. Under the new law, bar room licenses are $400 and wholesale licenses $250, and there are many more restrictions placed upon the business than ever before, and much more authority given to the Commissioners than they have heretofore had; all of which ought to be beneficial. Although believing that absolute prohibition is the only thoroughly effective remedy for the liquor evil, your correspondent, in common with a majority of our church and temperance people, thankfully accepted the new license law as the best that could be gotten from Congress at this time; and if it be fearlessly administered it will certainly result in a very considerable reduction in the number of bar-rooms, and in less Sunday rum-selling, even if the smart lawyers employed by the liquors-dealers do succeed in defeating the intention of some of its clauses. The principal trouble is likely to be in the administration of the law, through intentional negligence of officials, who, all too often, in the past have shown themselves over-friendly to the rum-sellers' interest. However, the temperance people of Washington are thoroughly alive to the situation, and if the law be not properly administered Congress and the people of the entire country will hear from them. The Good Templars have already filed a protest, because the rules issued by the commissioners, governing applications for retail liquor licenses, do not provide explicitly for the taking of a vote of the residents on the square where it is proposed to carry on the business, for and against the license, and requested that the rules be amended in accordance with their suggestion.

An unfortunate and humiliating thing has occurred in the United States Senate, our highest legislative body, which has been referred to by a distinguished foreigner as "the greatest legislative body in the world." A Senator—Mr. Hoar, of Massachusetts—has offered a resolution directing that a committee investigate the charge of criminal embezzlement made against another Senator—Mr. Roach, of North Dakota. Unfortunate as it is, it seems to me that in the interest of public morality a most rigid investigation is necessary, lest the impression should go forth among the young men of the country that good morals are not required of Senators.

There is an impressive lesson for us all in the two reports presented to the Senate this week from the Committee on Privileges and Elections, concerning the right of the Senators appointed by the Governors of Montana, Washington and Wyoming to take their seats. Five members of the committee signed the majority report, which is in favor of seating them, while four members signed the minority report, which is against their right to be seated. These reports show how easy and human it is for men to differ in their construction of language, both being based upon the clause in the Constitution of the United States which prescribes the method of electing Senators and of filling vacancies. In every controversy opposite arguments can be maintained with equal honesty. How much trouble might be avoided if this fact could be indelibly impressed upon the minds of everybody!

A very interesting and instructive address was delivered here Sunday evening by Rev. Dr. Edward W. Hitchcock, who was pastor of the American Mission in Paris for eleven years after the establishment of the famous McAll Mission in France, which was begun in 1872 and now has 135 stations, with over 19,000 sittings scattered throughout Paris and in 95 towns in the provinces. It costs about $90,000 a year to support the mission, about one-half of which comes from America, which has 85 McAll associations. Dr. Hitchcock recalled to the memory of his hearers the fact that it was only since the establishment of the republic in France that religious liberty has been enjoyed by the French. At the close of his address a liberal contribution towards the support of the mission was made by the large congregation.

The evident good effect upon the crowd of men who have come here from every section of the country seeking office under the new administration, of the semi-official announcement that President Cleveland would appoint no man to office who is known to be addicted to the drinking habit, has resulted in bringing forward the proposition that an addition be made to the oath now taken by every federal office-holder, something like this: "And I also swear to abstain from the use of intoxicating liquors while in office." There is much to be said in favor of the suggestion, and it will be difficult to present a good reason against its adoption.

REFORM NEWS.

FROM THE NEW ENGLAND AGENT.

Boston, Mass., March 27, 1893.

"Morning Star Lodge," A. F. and A. M., Worcester, Mass., celebrated its centennial on the 13th inst. Most Worshipful Grand Master Richard Riggs and suite were escorted, and duly eulogized in a graceful speech of welcome by W. M. Dr. Charles A. Peabody. The Spy of the 14th chronicles a list of worshipfuls, but makes no mention of "Mighty Lord and Heavenly King T. P. Gr. Master" Geo. F. Hewett, or of "men in nightshirts," who, according to the Worcester Daily Telegram of February 10, 1889, inducted the leading liquor-dealer of Worcester into the high and sublime functions of a "Thrice Potent Grand Master of Masons". Perhaps this mighty Masonic functionary was too busy with the affairs of the liquor-dealers' syndicate to grace the occasion with his august presence.

Orator Edward S. Nason, with the impudence characteristic on such occasions, appropriated to the craft all the patriotism and honors due to worthy members for a hundred years, giving no credit to the homes, or to social influences, to Christianity, or to the men themselves, for their noble deeds. He assumes that all their wisdom was acquired, and all their munificent exploits were inspired, within the tyled recesses of the lodge. To one not acquainted in Worcester, who should chance to read this glowing panegyric, it would appear that "Morning Star Lodge" has shaped the history of the past and now holds the city's destiny in the "lion's paw" grip of its "hidden hand". Not deigning to even notice the work of "profanes," or the part taken by those who "walk in the light," Orator Nason extols this band of Hiramites as the one humane, progressive, beneficent and elevating factor that has advanced the city to her high attainments in art, education, morality, diplomacy and material prosperity; all of which is doubtless a revelation to the good citizens of Worcester, who have not traveled the "Rough and Rugged Road" of initiation. Of course, in a mixed company holding such diverse religious beliefs, it would be highly discourteous to allude to Christ or to any distinctive feature of Christianity, as it would offend some sensitive brother, and he obviates this insult by avoiding the "vulgar era" and beginning the lodge's pedigree "March 11, 5093," and then, as if in contempt for the Christian era and its Divine Author, he tags on 1893. Advancing from negative to positive, he proclaimed the birth of the lodge and its christening with "solemn ceremonies of pouring on corn, wine and oil," and the dedication of its house of worship "to Freemasonry, virtue and universal benevolence," followed by "a truly Masonic symposium at the Bay State House," leaving no room for a question but that the lodge was duly consecrated by the "solemn" rites of its pagan ancestry. The speech concluded, toasts were in order and Past Master Hon. Charles G. Reed stepped to the front. "Mr. Reed," says the reporter, "made a brief speech of welcome, in which he took occasion to say that he regarded Freemasonry as the best moral institution that exists."

Mr. Reed, if I am not mistaken, is a member of Plymouth Congregational church, and was at one time superintendent of the Sabbath-school. How does this assertion of lodge morality appear to his pastor and his brethren in the church? He certainly knows of the church, and ought to know her worth as a "moral institution"; yet he degrades the church of his choice below the lodge to which he belongs, for he affirms: "Freemasonry is the best moral institution that exists." The only possible inference is that "Morning Star Lodge" is immaculate, or Plymouth church sadly corrupt; unless we presume that Mr. Reed is deficient in judgment or indifferent to facts. Is it strange that irreligious men, when listening to such statements in the lodge, made by men who pose as leaders in the church, turn away from the house of God, and become confirmed rejectors of Christianity? Was the betrayal of our Lord by Judas any worse; or will his final doom be more wretched than that of the man who sins against light and knowledge that Judas did not and could not have had when he betrayed his Divine Master for thirty pieces of silver? The warning Word by the prophet (Isa. 28:18) would seem to be written for those who thus betray the bride of Christ to secure the favor of her enemy. "Your covenant with death shall be disannulled, and your agreement with hell shall not stand."

One more specimen must suffice. Grand Master Riggs enlivened the occasion with "a carefully prepared paper on the future of Freemasonry," which he said was "independent of party and church, neither allied nor opposed to either, standing by itself, tolerant of all". These are not the words of a novice in Masonry, but emanate from the head of the order in Massachusetts. Neither are they hasty words, but they are part of a "carefully prepared paper". Now what is the fair import of these statements? It is this: The G. M. virtually says: "Freemasonry, rising out of pagan antiquity, stands upon its own pedestal, self-poised and self-sufficient, among the ordinary institutions in the world. Independent of them all, and allied to none, it exults in its grandeur, and looks patronizingly down upon its inferiors, and is graciously "tolerant of all". Rich in itself, and "increased with goods," it says: "I have need of nothing. Governments and the church are as nothing to me, and I will not tarnish my robes by contact with either, but simply 'tolerate' and not oppose their existence." Wonderful condescension! The lodge in Worcester actually "tolerates" Plymouth church, and with equal magnanimity spreads its sheltering wing of toleration over the Joss house, the Pagoda, and the whisky syndicate, making the superintendent of a Sabbath-school and the superintendent of a liquor trust loving brothers in the lodge. Is not this the anti Christ of 2 Thess. 2:4, "who opposeth and exalteth himself above all that is called God, or that is worshiped, so that he as God sitteth in the temple of God, showing himself that he is God"? How long will the watchmen upon the walls of Zion in Worcester hold their peace, while their Master's bride is traduced and maligned by the professed members of her own body?

J. P. STODDARD.

THE EASTERN AGENT IN PENNSYLVANIA.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., March 30, 1893.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—I am reminded that another week has passed, and it is time to report.

After my last I lectured in the Fayetteville Covenant church to a fair audience. The night was rainy. The Franklyn Repository of next morning contained the following?

"A LECTURE WITH A MORAL

"FAYETTEVILLE, March 24.—Rev. Stoddard lectured to a large audience in this place last evening. Two-thirds of his audience was composed of secret order men. Moral.—Four new applications this morning for the Eagles. Come again, Brother Stoddard."

Brother Stoddard will come again at any time the Eagles may arrange for his lecture. Eagles being birds of prey, naturally gather the remnants after the battle. Please tell us, next time, if the Vultures had any applications.

Bro. Tankey kindly conveyed me six miles through the mud to Altenwald, in the early morning of Friday. We reached the station in time to see the train that I had hoped to take go out of sight. The mud was deep, and I imagine we enjoyed the trip more than did the horse.

After several wearisome delays I reached Biglerville, where I anticipated meeting Bro. Weidner, the loyal U. B. pastor there. In this I was disappointed, as Bro. W. had gone to a distant appointment. His family showed me no little kindness.

Our train ran down over the hill to Gettysburg just as the sun was sinking in the west, and there, stretched out before me, I saw for the first time the field of that terrible battle so historic for its carnage and death. Here stand four hundred monuments, costing over a million of dollars, as silent sentinels, telling their sad stories. May God in mercy save our nation from ever witnessing a like encounter.

Dr. Joel Swartz, pastor of the First Lutheran church of Gettysburg, known to Cynosure readers by his letters, was at home and received your agent cordially. He related much of his experience in being initiated into the Masonic lodge, and at what a cost he had borne testimony against this gigantic evil. Space does not here permit a repetition.

There did not seem to be any immediate opening for lectures. A professor in the college to whom I was referred, received me kindly and promised to bring my request to address the students before the faculty. While personally in sympathy with our work, he had little hope of getting a lecture before the students, as the institution of secret college for fraternities are encouraged.

Not finding work for Sabbath, I returned to the dearest place on earth, my home. If there is a man or woman to be pitied it is the one without a home. Papa knows he is always welcome there. What sorrow is brought to the lodge and saloon-cursed abodes of our land, none but the inmates

(Continued on 9th page.)

CORRESPONDENCE

A DELAYED LETTER FROM GREECE.

ANDROS, Greece, Jan. 25, 1893.

A week ago to-day was the day with the Greeks for the baptism of the waters. It was a pleasant day. They first had quite a lengthy service in the church, and then they marched to the spring with a flag and there held a short service. The priest blessed the water and baptized it, as they called it, by dipping a cross into it, and then they all kissed the cross and the priest's hand while he sprinkled them with holy water. They all dropped a piece of money into a plate for the priest. Most of them drank some of the holy water, too, and took some of it home to keep through the year. The holiest water, however, is the water that is blessed in the church the day before, which is a very great fast day.

During these two days and the one following, the priests go around and bless the houses and get money for it. Each priest may visit as many houses in different villages as he finds time for during these three days, and so he gets quite a little amount of currency. I think that it is a good thing to ask God to bless the springs of water that there may be an abundance of water to water their vegetables with during the summer or dry season.

After the service is over at the spring they go to the sea shore and bless the water, so that it will be more quiet and boats can go again about their work. At the shore the priest throws the cross into the sea, and one or more men or boys dive in after it, and the one that gets it goes around to the houses and collects money for himself.

To day the snow is several inches deep, and the thermometer stood 38° above zero in a room without a fire. It is something which does not happen very often here in Greece. We bought, in Athens, a nice little stove for coal for $2. It is not quite two feet high, and ten inches across the top. It would be nothing more than a toy for the cold weather of America, and it is hardly large enough for us this cold weather, for our room is quite large. The children went out this afternoon and rolled up large snow balls and made a fort. They have been studying at home since this cold snap came on, for there are no stoves in the school rooms here, nor any way provided to heat the room; and the roofs of the houses are mostly flat and covered with earth and the water leaks through and makes the houses very damp. Some have to leave their own house and go and stay a while with some one else. It is no wonder that the roofs leak, for it has rained some every day for more than two weeks, and sometimes it has rained very hard nearly all day.

We have great reason to be encouraged in our work here. The Holy Spirit is working in the hearts of the people. An Englishman has come to Athens who seems to be doing a good work there. It was through him that a Monday evening prayer-meeting was established in Athens, Smyrna, Constantinople, and wherever Christian work is being done among the Greeks. This meeting is for the express purpose of praying for the descent of the Holy Spirit into the hearts of the Greeks, to lead them into the way of truth and righteousness. We have been greatly blessed here ever since these meetings began, and have felt the power of the Holy Spirit in our hearts at every Monday evening meeting. We have asked God for a hundred souls from, in and around this village. The people here are expecting to build a new church, and we have claimed that for the Lord also.

The day that the waters were baptized many had a dance in their houses in the afternoon and evening; and one man here has just built a nice large house, and he had a dance and two young men to play on stringed instruments. They had a fight there before it was over, and the family were very much scared and disgusted. The next morning Mr. Z. prayed that that family might be converted and that that house might be opened on that same day, next year, for a Gospel meeting.

Mr. Z.'s nephew, Demetre, a young man, has just built a store near us, and he says that he will not open it on the Sabbath nor sell any wine or spirits. This would be a wonderful thing, but we are praying that he will be converted before he opens the store. Another nephew by marriage is building a boat and we are praying that he may be converted before he launches it, so that there will be one boat for the Lord here. His wife lived with us for a number of years; so we are especially interested in the conversion of herself and her husband. Please unite with us in claiming these requests as the Spirit may lead you.

